John A. Hannah, B.S., D. Agr., LL.D.

Dr. John A. Hannah began his career in Grand Rapids, Michigan, where he was born. After graduating from high school there, he attended Michigan State College, from which he was graduated. He holds the distinction of being the fourth alumnus to become president of the college and is one of the youngest college executives in the nation.

President Hannah has traveled extensively in Europe on scientific and educational missions and from coast to coast with the Spartan football teams.

Doctor Hannah holds that, as a land-grant college, Michigan State should extend its facilities and influence to every section and county in the state of Michigan.

ISTRATION

The State Board of Agriculture is composed of six members elected from the State at large, each serving a six-year period. This board is provided for under the constitution of Michigan and revenues for the support of the college come from Federal and State sources as well as from student fees.

The history of the State Board of Agriculture goes back to 1835 when the State included a provision for the establishment of a university in its constitution. Fourteen years later the Michigan State Agricultural Society was organized, and it is from this latter date that the real history of the college begins.

The State Board of Agriculture has frequently pioneered in establishing new and valuable departments until today Michigan State is recognized as not only one of the best agricultural and scientific schools in the country, but of such character as to be entitled to be called a "university" in the best sense of the term.

Functions of the State Board include the control of the institution, bearing responsibility for all its money and property, electing the president of Michigan State College, and the receiving and approving of all recommendations from the college head.

ADMIN

Stanley E. Crowe, as Dean of Students, coordinates the work of all staff members having relationships with students in other than strictly academic spheres. As Registrar and Secretary of the Faculty, Robert S. Linton's responsibility is to record scholastic records of students, to serve as connecting link between the administration and the faculty, and to serve as public relations officer.

Dr. Fred T. Mitchell serves as Counselor of Men and as Director of the Service Men's Institute. His position calls for handling the personal problems of men students as well as for directing returned servicemen into proper channels. Assistant Counselor of Women Mrs. Isabelle Gonon supervises all aspects of "student life" in which college women participate.

Dr. Paul L. Dressel, Director of Counseling and Chairman of the Board of Examiners, has complete charge over the Basic College exams and the immense task of coordinating the Basic College program. Miss Elizabeth Corbishley is doubly familiar with the problems of Housing Director of Women for she is a State graduate.

ISTRATION

Lloyd H. Geil is head of the Department of Publications which handles problems pertaining to the interpretation of Michigan State College through the press, the radio, and personal contacts. Mr. Geil has a deep interest in student publications; for, when he came to this campus in 1935, he was adviser for both the State News and the Wolverine. Two years ago he became head of the Publications Department.

B. J. Coleman, head of the Department of Radio Broadcasting and Director of the college-owned Station WKAR, is proud of what he considers the greatest development of the college station to date -- extension of activities to include Sunday broadcasting. Largely through Coleman's efforts, the station, a 5,000-watt outlet, is now on the air seventy-one hours per week.

Professor Tom H. King, genial and capable director of the Central Placement Bureau, coordinates the work of placing State Graduates into positions fitting their qualifications. His hobby, he says, is pleading with senior candidates to co-operate more fully with his office — keeping their records up to date, keeping the office constantly informed of their changing status. When peace comes, King will continue with his duties as head of the department of Police Administration.

G. B. Egger
Col. Inf. U. S. Army
Commandant

Colonel Egger is a veteran of 34 years of service, having served on three continents. He is a graduate of the Infantry School, Command and General Staff School, and came to M. S. C. from general staff duty in the Sixth Service Command.

In addition to the R.O.T.C. he has command of the A.S.T.U. and Army Service Forces, East Lansing, Michigan.

Rifle shooting constitutes a part of his work, but he has also made it his hobby for many years.

Under Colonel Egger is a staff known as the Station Complement through which the ASTP and ROTC at Michigan State operate and train. The ASTP is divided into AC who will serve in the Air Corps and the ERC who are unassigned at present.

ISTRATION

Superintendent Kinney's association with M. S. C. dates back to the time when he was a student on campus. He became connected with the Electrical Engineering Department and last fall he took up his new duties as Superintendent of Buildings and Utilities.

Emery Foster, capable manager of the Union Building, has done much to further plans for a larger and more useful post-war Union Building which will mean a complete social and recreational center for M. S. C. students.

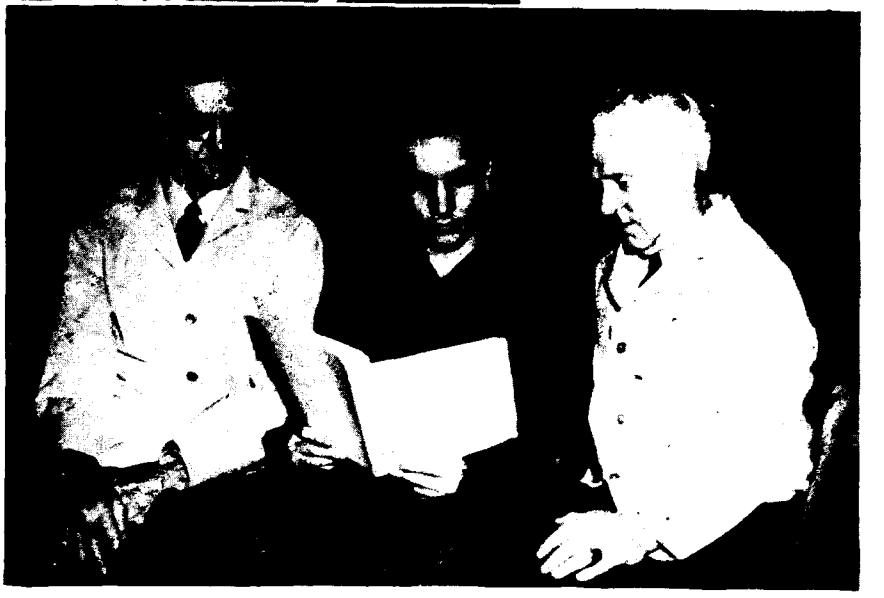

Mildred L. Jones is not only Manager of Women's Residence Halls but also assistant professor of Institution Administration in the Home Ec. department. In her South Williams office is a store of ration books.

C. M. Beachum, Manager of Men's Residence Halls, found that he had a new job on his hands when Mason Hall was converted into a woman's dorm for the duration.

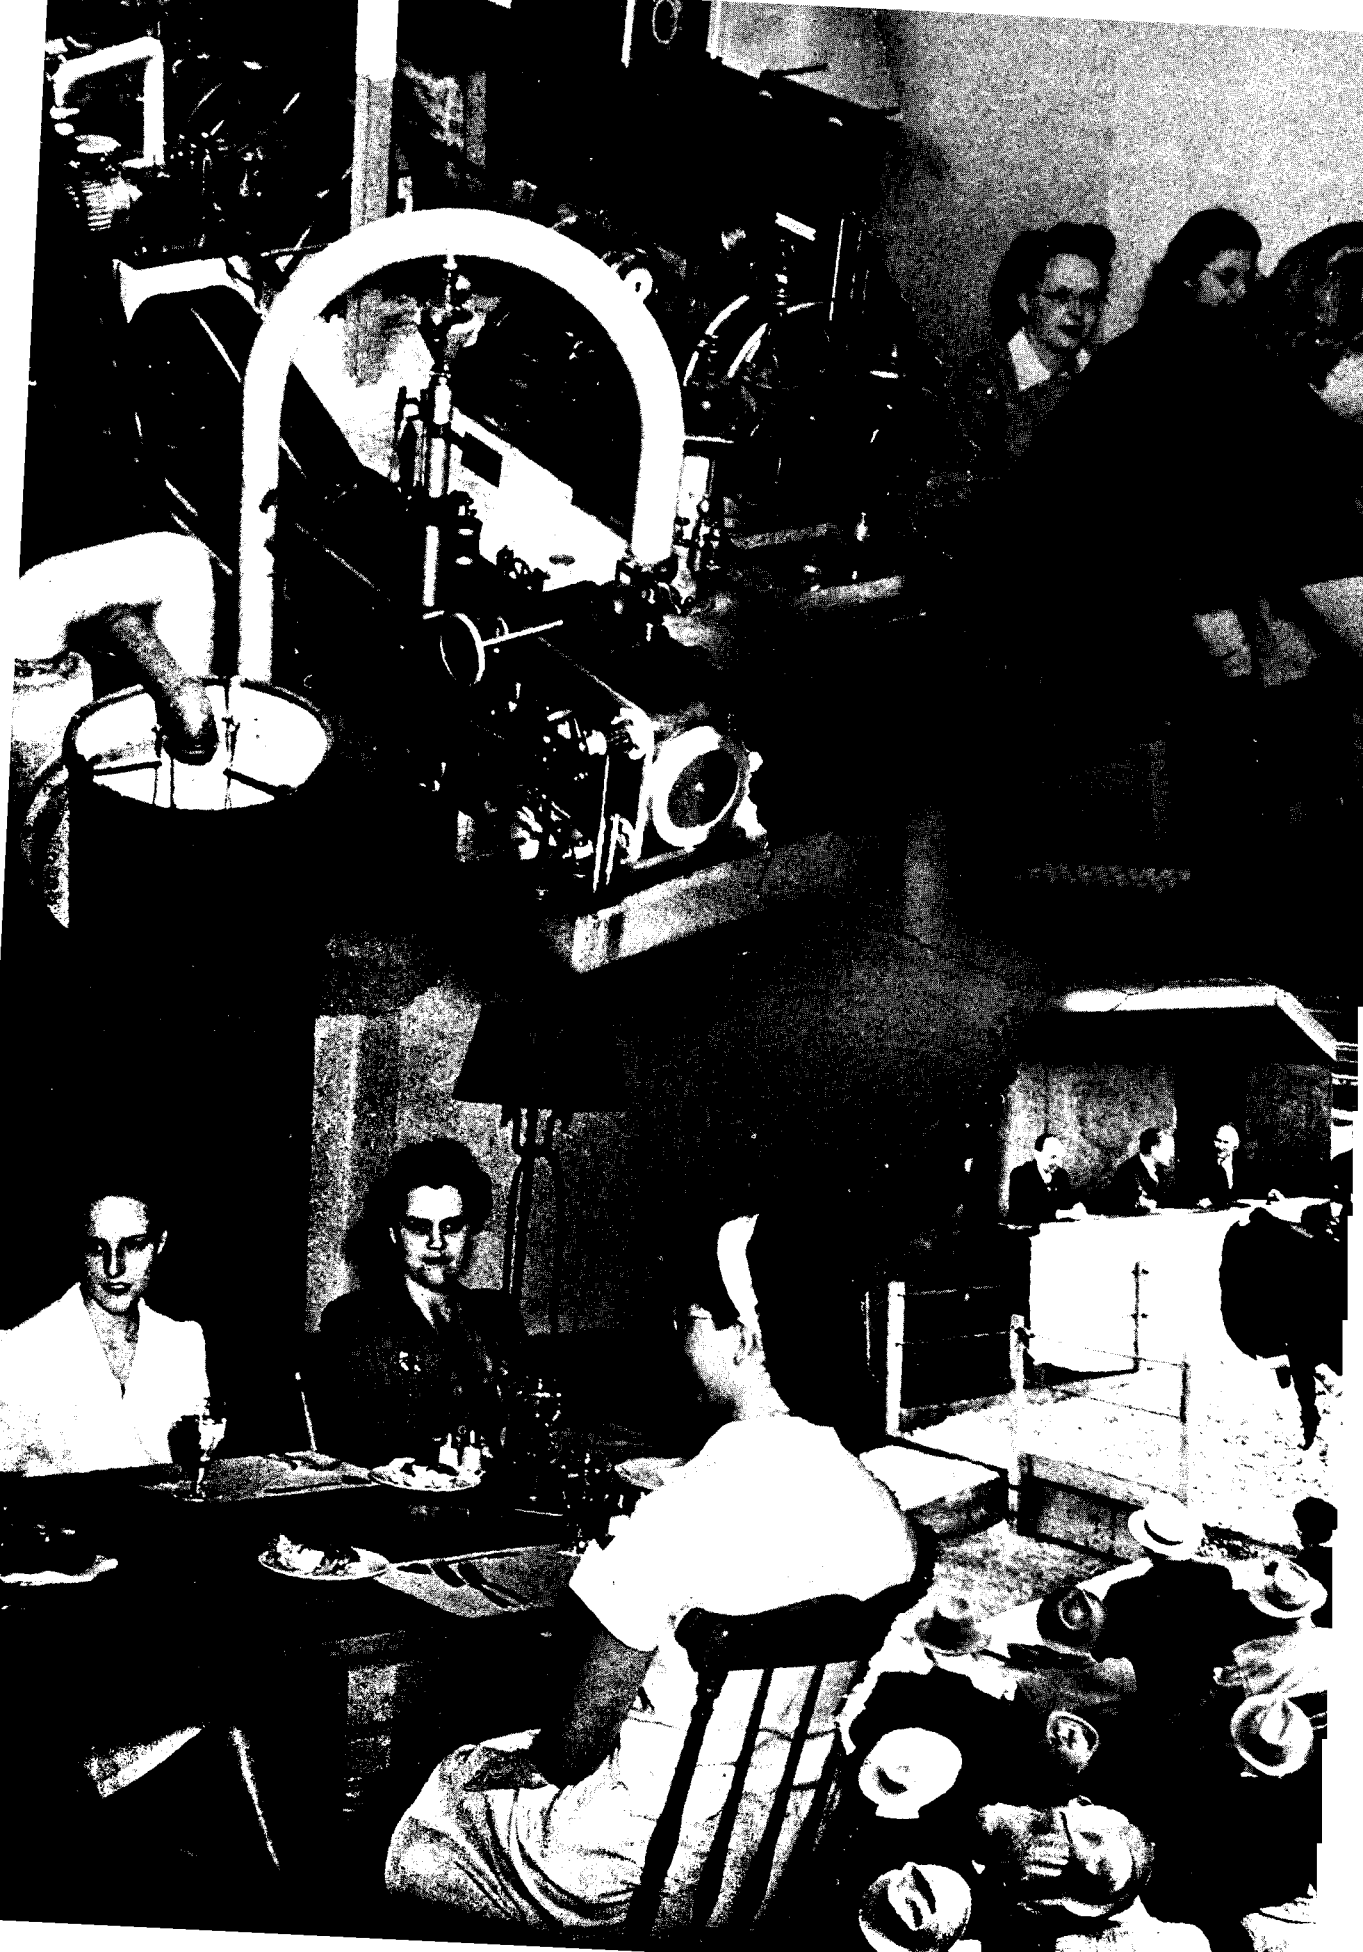

Mr. George Lafferty is day custodian of the Union building, looking after the building check rooms and making sure that everything is always in good order. The lost and found opens when the night-custodian, Mr. Bauer, arrives for work. Harold Hatt is in charge of the Union janitorial staff.

Dearest Sparty,

This is W.K.A.R. on campus at Michigan State College. Yepp, I made the air offcurse it was only on one of those "Student in the Union" broadcasts, but there I was with a mike and a man staring me in the face. I answered all the questions rather inanely, but I feel I'm quite a celebrity.

My voice isn't very adaptable for speaking just now because I yelled my lungs out at the football game. Oh, Sparty, I played a good game, believe me. Then we went happily homeward along the cinder path, hoping that there'd be a good dinner at the dorm to fill that empty spot in our middle regions.

The left side of my face is brick red from the heat. The new, smart two-tone effect, you know.

I hate to end this letter, but I'll heard more of a spread down in room 34.

Oh, but, I'm still hungry!

Love,
Spartina

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT PERMIT NO 30

The School of Agriculture, under the direction of Dean Anthony, has charge of the affairs of not only the regular Ag majors but also of between three to five hundred students enrolled in short courses during the year. State has one of the most extensive and far-reaching agricultural programs in the country.

R. J. Baldwin, Extension Service, Director
G. A. Brown, Animal Husbandry
C. G. Card, Poultry Husbandry
R. E. Decker, Farm Crops
V. R. Gardner, Horticulture

Two recent developments in the departments of the School of Agriculture are the Conservation Institute, which brings together all of the growing interest in the field of conservation, and Farm Management which co-operates with many hundreds of farmers each year in cost of production, studies, and efficient farm operation.

F A C U L T Y

One of the oldest departments is that of Animal Husbandry, which boasts modern barns and herds for its laboratory periods. Serving in fields of student instruction, research, and extension is Farm Crops. It is through this department that numerous services are given to the farmers of the state.

M. S. C. has one of the finest college farms of any agricultural college in the United States, composed of some three thousand acres and used as a laboratory for students in Farms.

Taking a leading part in the rapid mechanization of agriculture is the role of the Agricultural Engineering Department. Plans are well advanced for the construction of a complete modern agricultural engineering building as soon as the war ends. Other departments are those of Landscape, Poultry Husbandry, and Soils.

There are two other main functions to the School of Agriculture other than that of offering courses to students enrolled at State. One is the Extension Service which carries to the farmers throughout the state the best and latest information in better farming. The county agricultural agents are members of their staff. The other is the Agricultural Experiment Station which employs more than a hundred faculty members in research activities for new and better practices in agriculture. The Publications department co-operates with both these services in the dissemination of agricultural information throughout the nation by newspaper publicity and bulletins.

P. A. Herbert, Forestry; E. B. Hill, Farm Management; C. P. Halligan, Landscape Architecture; R. S. Hudson, Farm and Horse; E. G. McKibben, Agricultural Engineering; C. E. Millar, Soil Science; E. J. Miller, Agricultural Chemistry; L. A. Schoenmann, Conservation Institute; R. W. Tenny, Short Courses; E. Weaver, Dairy.

In pre-war days, about twenty-five per cent of the students enrolled in Michigan State College registered in the agricultural department. Now, in these days of shortages and decreased manpower, the farmers of the nation have had to step up production forty per cent above normal, confronting Michigan State College with the task of best fitting itself to be of service in the days of readjustment.

The whole school of agriculture has been busy this past year in making a close study and appraisal of the post-war problems that will affect Michigan farmers as well as the farmers of the nation. This planning must be done so that we will have the best type of organization here at State to help the farmers of Michigan when the war is over.

Representative of the varied aspects of the School of Agriculture are the Dairy, Forestry, and Horticulture departments. Not so familiar to students as the dairy counter, the sawmill, and the greenhouse is the fact that these three departments are modern, highly developed, effective, and far-reaching in the agricultural field.

SCHOOL OF BUSINESS AND PUBLIC SERVICE

Ending its first year of formal organization, the School of Business and Public Service is already proving invaluable to Michigan State. Colonel Dorsey R. Rodney, once Commandant here, returned in December 1943 as Administrative Coordinator and remained on as Dean of this recently established school.

A. A. Applegate, Journalism; W. H. Combs, Public Administration; E. A. Gee, Business Administration; E. B. Harper, Social Service; T. H. King, Police Administration; Lydia L. Lightring, Physical Education for Women (not pictured); B. R. Proulx, Hotel Administration; R. H. Young, Physical Education for Men.

July 1, 1944, will undoubtedly remain a memorable day in the history of M. S. C. Along with the installation of Basic College was originated another specialized school, Business and Public Service. This is one of six schools the student may enter upon completion of his basic education or for terminal two year courses.

Because of priorities and other existing wartime conditions, the facilities of the school are now comparatively limited to what they will be when the war terminates. Some of the future plans of the Hotel Administration Department call for the erection of three connecting buildings which will house classrooms, kitchens, research laboratory, an inn of approximately a hundred rooms, and a dormitory for students taking the course.

In anticipation of a large enrollment at the war's end, plans for new courses are being made to include real estate, and later on, airport management.

Mr. Kuykendall discusses the finer points of news type with his journalism class.

The big job of rehabilitation and guidance of returning soldiers, falls to the Social Service Department. The professional Social Work curriculum is divided into three main specialties: Case work with individuals and families, group work and recreation, and community organization and welfare planning.

Designed for students who intend to enter the publications field is the Department of Journalism. The first two years in Basic College will lay a foundation of culture combined with an introduction to the field of Journalism. The junior and senior years permit concentration in newspaper editorial practice, advertising, teaching, and industrial journalism.

The Sociology library provides valuable reference for Dorothy Martin.

The Hotel Administration Department was set up to meet the demands for personnel adequately trained in present-day hotel methods. Training in successful hotel operation and in the technique of hotel management is given. In connection with this department the American Hotel Association Testing Laboratory was begun in July 1943.

The department of Police Administration is operated in co-operation with the Michigan Crime Commission and Michigan State Police to meet the growing demand for trained police executives and specialists. Curriculum combines study of basic sciences with that of modern methods of crime prevention and detection.

SCHOOL OF ENGINEERING

Dean Henry B. Dirks, one of twenty-one regional advisers of war engineering in the United States, has charge of programs in a number of schools in Michigan. Since December of 1940, the U. S. Office of Education has offered Engineering Science Management War Training programs under the supervision of these schools. Staff members of our Michigan State College department have helped set up war-training courses in Flint, Charlotte, Muskegon, Grand Rapids, Jackson, Kalamazoo, and in many other places.

C. L. Allen, Civil Engineering
C. L. Brattin, Engineering Drawing
C. C. DeWitt, Chemical and Metallurgical Engineering
L. S. Foltz, Electrical Engineering
L. G. Miller, Mechanical Engineering

The future courses to be offered by the engineering department were in part determined when the college chose to adopt the Basic College plan in which one segregates the first two years of study from the last two. There will be, therefore, two types of courses in engineering: one course having the regular four years of study leading to a degree, and another two-year program for which no degree is given, but which helps a student prepare for positions as technician and engineering aids. The latter will be more practical and less theoretical.

The Civil Engineering Department is placing increased emphasis on the graphical determination in stresses in structures. There is also increased emphasis upon soil mechanics and foundations.

The Mechanical Engineering Department is beginning a co-operative research project with one of the outstanding regulator instrument companies studying the flow of air through registers and grills.

In the Chemical and Metallurgical Science Department, the chemical division has been conducting a series of research projects concerning the war effort. Metallurgical research problems conducted in connection with one of the local war industries have been especially successful.

The Engineering Drawing Department has been active in providing war training courses in drawing for both men and women. It is also placing increased emphasis on its house architecture course both for the School of Home Economics and the Department of Forestry.

The Electrical Engineering Department has revised its curriculum and included options in power generation, communication, and electronics. In the latter, particularly, considerable equipment is being added to that already obtained through war training courses being given.

Dear Sparty,

Of all the things you told me about State when you introduced me to the campus last fall, the spirit of friendliness impressed me most. Now after a term or more here, I'm more than impressed with the Spartan spirit — I'm a part of it.

After nearly two solid months (can't count weekends, of course) of Basic College, it's not complicated at all. I just study for three terms, then take one pass a six hour comprehensive exam.

I'm playing the thespian by being a member of Studio Theater (of course I haven't set foot on the stage yet, but they have let me press the curtain

I have to close to close, so goodbye for now.

Love,
Spartina.

Under Dean Dye, the Home Economics curricula has expanded to include three new courses. One is the major in research and foods and nutrition. The others will accommodate the Basic College students by offering them terminal courses in either general Home Economics or in Food Service Supervision.

Mabelle S. Ehlers, Institution Administration; Irma Gross, Home Management and Child Development; Margaret A. Ohlson, Foods and Nutrition.

War brings in its wake many changes and so it has been with the Home Economics Division.

As is customary in times of shortages, many substitute methods have had to be invented to replace the pre-war ones. For instance, the research work of this division has combatted problems of rationing in several ways. By studying the nutritive values of fish and new methods of preparation, it has aided the harried housewife in meeting her rationed meat problems. Since so many fish are available in the waters of Michigan, it is practical to make use of the four bulletins on fish preparations which have been published for the use of Michigan families. Other research has been carried on with the soybean in an effort to uncover new uses for it and products derived from it.

The hopes for post-war development in this division are running high, including building plans completed for a new nursery school and four new management houses.

I know you're not the jealous types but those Navy men who infiltrate the campus (the term was over at Ann Arbor a couple of weeks ago) are mighty interesting. They can certainly cover territory, even without the benefit of P.T.'s.

SCHOOL OF SCIENCE AND ARTS

Something to offer those seeking a career! Be it artist, musician, actress, social-worker, biologist, or whatnot, the School of Science and Arts has them all. Rather than limiting the scope of a student to a narrow field, Science and Arts provides for a major in a broad field. In his capacity as Dean of the school, Lloyd C. Emmons regulates the academic life of prospective artists, musicians, actors, social-workers, and biologists.

P. D. Bagwell, Speech and Dramatics; E. A. Bessey, Botany; S. G. Bergquist, Geology and Geography; A. J. Clark, Chemistry; A. W. Christ-Janer, Art; J. M. DeHaan, Philosophy and Psycology; B. Euwema, English.

There were two main considerations in the creation of a School of Science and Arts. First of all, the new school divided the responsibility of work equally among the divisions. Secondly, it brought the work of related departments together under one head.

F A C U L T Y

In the school are the main divisions of Fine Arts, Education, Language and Literature, Biological Science, Physical Science, and Social Science.

Post-war plans are in full swing at the Science and Arts office. Just as the other departments are doing, this one is preparing a curriculum for the returned service man to fit his individual needs. These courses will be set up so that the veteran may proceed at his own pace.

Refresher courses in various subjects have been arranged in order to enable them to get back in harness. Dean Emmons has declared that the School of Science and Arts will do everything in its power to coordinate itself with the Basic College Program and to provide for a better counseling program.

Dearest Sparty,
I finally found some film for my camera so I can take those pictures you asked for. Of course the biggest job of all is catching Fandom to give him a bath before snapping him. And wait until you see your kid brother Bud with his two front teeth missing! You probably won't recognize your jalopy either — one sort of pleated the fenders the other day, and after trying to fix them, decided it best to cover it all up with a new coat of paint.
Leave it to your crazy dog to do something dumb like trying to [illegible] over the ink. I'll have to give him a bath for sure.

SCHOOL OF VETERINARY SCIENCE

Dean Giltner has the immense task of co-ordinating affairs in the School of Veterinary Science; this includes research work and courses in bacteriology, anatomy, animal pathology, physiology and pharmacology, and surgery and medicine. The Veterinary Hospital is the newest building of the division.

C. S. Bryan, Surgery and Medicine
E. T. Hallman, Animal Pathology
B. B. Roseboom, Physiology
R. A. Runnels, Anatomy

The enrollment of the Veterinary Science School at Michigan State College has been disturbed less than any other program in the college because of the war, thus no drastic wartime changes have been made. Twice the number that could be admitted have been seeking entrance in recent years. Students are enrolled from half the states and from foreign countries, although applicants from Michigan are given preference.

Improvements have been added when need has arisen, and research for advantageous changes is always being conducted. Questionnaires are being sent to graduate veterinarians who will return to civilian life when the war is over. Plans are being made to meet the needs of these returning veterans, who feel that they must spend some time in lectures, laboratory and clinic work in order to learn the latest developments and to "brush up" on new techniques. These veterans will be welcome to audit classes. If enough graduates return, regular classes will be formed to constitute a refresher course.

Plans are also being made for additional building space for the department on the campus. The addition will be built on the anatomy building, increasing its size one and one-half times.

BASIC COLLEGE

BASIC COLLEGE

Basic College may be new to this institution, but its Dean, Howard C. Rather, dates his experience back to his college days here previous to World War I. His intelligence, interest, and assistance, along with the co-operation of the faculty have made possible this forward step in education.

P. D. Bagwell, Written and Spoken English; S. G. Bergquist, Physical Science; B. Euwema, Literature and Fine Arts; W. R. Fee, Social Science; L. A. Haak, Effective Living; H. H. Kimber, History of Civilization; C. A. Lawson, Biological Science

Basic College is the most discussed, debated, and revolutionary change that Michigan State has made to date. Because of its scope, the eyes of the nation's colleges are truly upon us and many have requested information about it. Some, in fact, have already begun a modified form of our plan in their own institutions.

To Michigan State, pioneering is nothing new. We have been pioneering since 1855. The change to a Basic College program is just another step up the ladder of our progress, another page in the annals of our already rich history.

Dean Rather, John Fields, and Leland Shores in conference

The general purpose of Basic College is to provide a broader intellectual background for the college student. The program has many specific purposes which each department carries out in its own way. It is the object of the Written and Spoken English Department to teach the mechanics of both and allow students to practice them under the guidance of experienced instructors. The purpose of Biological Science is to motivate and guide us in the development of an active interest in the world about us. For this reason the predominent theme is man himself. The comprehensive course in Social Science provides a liberal study of the problems of mankind in our era.

Because practical information is necessary for understanding and action in respect to more effective living, Effective Living was especially designed to include such specialized fields as psychology, sociology, philosophy, ethics, home economics, health and recreation. No field of study enriches man's knowledge of himself as a human being or provides a better background of understanding for the contempory world more than history. In this new course, History of Civilization, stress is placed on the broad aspects of civilization and their relationship to present-day events. Since we are constantly in contact with fine literature, art and music, we should know how to judge their worth. That is exactly with what the subject of Literature and Fine Arts deals. Students learn what is great, and what is minor; what will endure, and what is transitory. Physical Science explains the relationship among chemistry, physics, astronomy, geology, and mathematics.

SCHOOL
DEAN

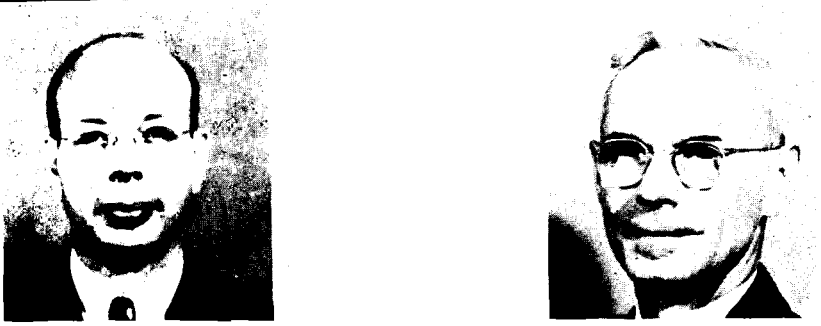

GRADUATE SCHOOL

Though Dr. Ralph C. Huston gives much time to his duties as acting director of the Physical Science division, his first and foremost concern is with the School of Graduate Studies as its Dean. At present, many of the students enrolled in this School are on a part-time basis.

W. H. Combs, Business and Public Service; C. C. De Witt, Engineering; D. T. Ewing, Physical Science; W. R. Fee, Social Science, Fine Arts. Language and Literature; C. R. Megie, Agriculture

The School of Graduate Studies includes work of every department on campus and offers advanced degrees in practically every field. The department expects to do everything it can to enable war veterans to go on with graduate studies, involving refresher courses the nature of which will be determined when students return.

Dean Huston and his capable secretary, Mrs. Margaret Nutting

FACULTY

The courses for the School of Graduate Studies at M. S. C. include something from each of the varied schools, including the newly organized Institution of Nutrition which involves research in fields of nutrition.

A new degree of Doctor of Education has been authorized and will become available soon. Other degrees offered are: Master of Science, Master of Arts, Master of Music, Master of Forestry, and Doctor of Philosophy. There are a number of professional departments which include civil, chemical, mechanical, and electrical engineers and metallurgists.

Research projects carried on by candidates for advanced degrees are also under the supervision of graduate school.

Marguerite Jackson and Phyllis Keegan, graduate students, preparing class assignments

C. E. Millar, Agriculture; C. V. Millard, Education; M. A. Ohlson, Home Economics; H. J. Stafseth, Veterinary Medicine and Biological Science.

SERVICEMEN'S INSTITUTE

More and more the Servicemen's Institute, under the direction of Fred T. Mitchell, is proving its usefulness to the war veterans who return to M. S. C. in search of further education.

After determining the present educational status of each man, the Institute places him in the college program which will be best suited to his needs. Every effort is being made to make the veterans feel at home in a student role again.

Outstanding among the observations of the Institute is the fact that returned servicemen are straightforward and definite in dealing with their problems and are very much in earnest about making the most of their educational opportunities.

STUDENT

President of Student Council was Ag econ major Jim Bibbins who is now working for a farming co-operative marketing concern in Virginia. While on campus, Jim became identified with Sigma Nu, Green Helmet, Blue Key, and the M. S. C. athletic department.

Keeping the cogs of campus affairs well oiled and running smoothly is the main job of the college Student Council. The list of things that the Council has handled ranges from supervising all general or special elections around the college to sponsoring the annual Mardi Gras.

With an eye to the future this representative body — comprised of a member from every campus organization — has promoted better student-faculty relations and directed some of the top Spartan activities for 1944-45.

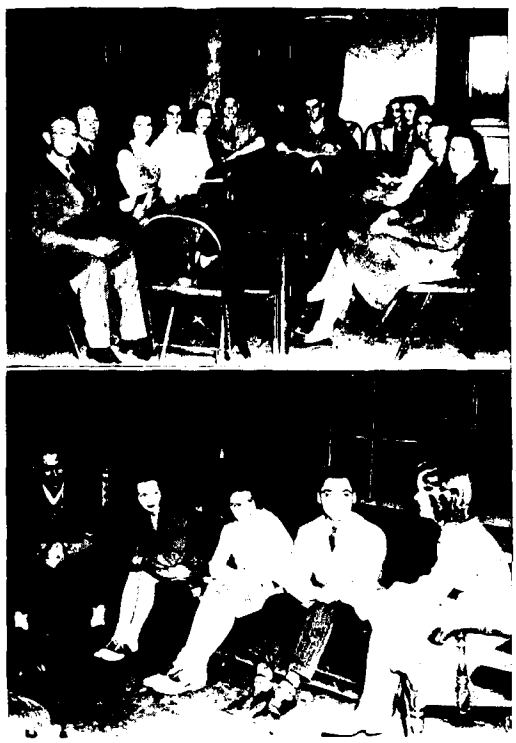

The ever-present Spartan Victory Loan Fund which began three years ago with the idea of helping finance State men who will come back from fighting to continue their education, has been gradually increased. A detailed Student handbook helped incoming campus hikers to figure out what was what at M. S. C., with proceeds from its sale headed toward the Fund's future.

Representatives of several of Wayne University's progressive-minded student organizations visited here during fall term to tour the campus, after which they joined the Council and the Union Board for dinner and an inspiring discussion on postwar planning.

Jim Bibbins headed the Student Council this year, with Ed Wallace as vice-president, while Helen Fisher did double duty as secretary-treasurer. Dr. Fred T. Mitchell and Mrs. Isabelle Gonon advised the group, while T. H. King and J. T. Caswell served as ex-officio members.

With an eye on post-war expansion plans, Union Board this year broadened its student activities in an attempt to keep each week end busy for Spartans, and managed to have each Friday and Saturday night spiced with entertainment.

Meeting each Tuesday for dinner, the Board fostered Party-party on Saturday afternoons as one of its first new ideas. Accompanied by Spartan Varieties broadcast, Party-party brought WKAR Program Director Larry Frymire and his all student talent to the mike for a half hour show. Dick Snook's orchestra provided music for the informal stag-or-drag affair.

Friday nights were highlighted by recorded-music dances on the third floor of the Union. As at Party-party, Friday Frolic also offered card and board games to its patrons.

Several campus bands supplied music for the Saturday night date dances, held in the ballroom in place of the many more formal affairs of pre-war years.

President Marge Graff was assisted by Jo Hunt, vice-president, and Virginia Jackson, secretary. Union Manager Emery Foster and Etoyle "Tex" White were advisers for the group.

Red-headed Marge Graff presided over Union Board activities for the past year. Rusty buys her train tickets to Detroit and after graduation will buy a long distance ticket in the same direction to take her year of interneship in the East. Besides majoring in dietetics, she has found time for plenty of horseback riding, varied activities on campus and in Chi Omega.

ASSOCIATION OF WOMEN STUDENTS

"Hi, there co-ed! The day you entered State you automatically became a member of A.W.S. And it's likely you'd want to know the workings of your organization."

Directing the activities of AWS is a Council made up of representatives from all campus organizations. Trailing yards and yards of wool yarn and toting small bags of paraphernalia, the Council held bi-monthly meetings at which they discussed ways in which AWS could help and coordinate the various campus functions and whether knitting sox or mittens was most useful.

President Jane Cumming was more often going . . . around in circles keeping pace with the Pratt-Whitney schedule and dashing off at odd times to see fiance "Bud" Walters. Meetings, on these occasions, were presided over by Jean Oviatt, who whipped through the order of business with " . . . and that takes care of that."

As eager a colony of beavers as is to be found round about, AWS keeps a finger in many pies and a watchful eye over others. Among the activities which it supervises are Freshman Orientation, the Freshman Counselor system, the "time ration plan," and it also supports the annual Woman's Day, Mardi Gras, Spinster Spin, and all campus drives.

No organization can function without having a goal toward which to aim and AWS is no exception. Affiliated with the national Association of Women Students, State's chapter keeps before it these ideals: To help establish and maintain high standards of conduct and scholarship: to further the spirit of campus cooperation and friendship: to supervise all matters pertaining to social conduct of the women students at State.

Just to make sure that everything goes according to Hoyle, Judiciary Board, a subordinate body of the Council enforces, revises, and supplements the regulations set up by AWS. This board, with the assistance of Theta Sigma Phi, women's Journalism honorary, and under the supervision of AWS, each year publishes a handbook giving all campus regulations, traditions, customs, and activities for women.

Millie Pickett, Shirley Logan, Barbie Quayle, Gayle Oviatt, Beverly Johnstone, May Ann Major, and Jean Oviatt

Jane Cumming, president of AWS and one of those who was instrumental in its reorganization, is a Chi Omega, a Detroiter, and a Mortar Board. Janie added a long list of college activities, office holdings, and honoraries to her name before leaving school the end of winter term to add her own name to the Pratt-Whitney pay roll.

FRESHMAN ORIENTATION

Each year thousands of freshman women enter college and each year it becomes more apparent that they need to be orientated to their new life. Under the assumption that the young may profit from their elders, upperclasswomen at Michigan State have taken it upon themselves to scatter the profits of their experiences among their younger sisters via small discussion groups or orientation classes.

Under the direction of co-chairman Sue Averill and Pat Darr, a crew of approximately 50 students lead classes composed of 20 freshman women every other week Fall term to discuss problems ranging from good grooming and personality to choosing a major.

Special topics, prepared by the co-chairmen, were designed to cover the most necessary adjustments of the entering college student. Leaders of the classes were also able to help individual students in their groups with particular problems. These classes were supplemented by large group meetings on alternate weeks for lectures and other programs.

Beginning Winter term, orientation classes were handed over to the physical education department and were under its direction for the remainder of the year.

"Bones" Euwema pulls a good one at the Carrousel.

Making Spartan sweater girls into campus leaders . . . selling a barrelful of activities . . . campaigning for traditional M.S.C. friendliness by helping coeds make more friends . . . this is the MSC of SWL. Spartan Sue has five interest groups from which to choose to release her innermost suppressed desires: art, social, curiosity, personality, and radio. . . . Keeping up on the latest books . . . working sound effects on the radio group's broadcasts . . . visiting nearby points of interest she never found time to get to before . . . these are just a few of the brainstorms that SWL'ers have had. . . . But that isn't all. When all the interest groups put their heads together, they pull still more ideas down from their collective sleeves. . . . Turning air cadets and civilians into prospective Fred Astaires through dancing classes . . . playing hostess to transfer coeds . . . managing the student-faculty Carrousel which, in two years, has become as much an MSC tradition as the Red Cedar ducks. Come the Carrousel, students and faculty combine talents, letting down their hair (if possible) for an evening of sense and nonsense. Woman's Day and the Spinster Spin also get the SWL spotlight, filling up the SWL datebook.

Twice a year seniors who have maintained a high scholastic rank during their four years in college, with a two point average or better, are elected to Phi Kappa Phi, national honorary. Both men and women from any division are eligible, but not more than ten percent of the graduating class is elected. The organization annually awards a fifty dollar scholarship to the junior who has the highest credit point average for the first two years at Michigan State College. Phi Kappa Phi each year presents three plaques to schools of Class "A", Class "B", and Class "C" ratings. These plaques are presented to the high schools from which the three highest freshmen come.

This year, officers are: president, Dr. A. J. Clark; vice-president, Dr. C. V. Millard; secretary, Miss Katherine Hart; treasurer, Mr. Clive E. Russel; and journal correspondent, Dr. Claude M. Newlin.

BWOC's of the campus this year were thirteen "gray ladies," members of Mortar Board, national honorary for senior women. Sporting gray blazer jackets with black mortar board emblems, members of the group met together frequently, planned activities successfully, graduated intermittently, and got married in between times.

Business was combined with pleasure at the bi-monthly luncheon meetings and having satisfied the inner woman, members mapped out such campus activities as the Women's Day convocation and activities open house, the Spinster Spin, spring term marriage lectures, Lantern Night, and the May Morning Sing.

Cupid had a regular field day among the Mortar Board's and the gray ladies were gay ladies as they raced to see who would be the first to say "I do." Encouraged by Prexy Dot Shaw's enthusiastic pep talks on wedded bliss, Helen Miller was the first to go, followed by Susie Moore and "Daisy" Dowling.

Tapped each year at the May Morning Sing, Mortar Boards are chosen on the basis of scholarship, leadership, and service to the college. Leaders of the leadering co-eds this year were Dorothy Shaw, president; Susan Moore, vice-president; Shelia Symons, secretary; Doris May, treasurer; Kay Besemer, editor; and Aileen Wilson, historian.

When Beaumont's chimes echo over the campus, there's one group of girls for whom they hold a special meaning . . . the only group privileged to meet in the Tower . . . the thirty girls chosen to wear the gold engraved replica of Beaumont Tower. A sophomore honorary, they're known as Tower Guard. If you've ever managed to get up early enough May Day morning to attend, you'd remember the impressive ceremony beside the Tower when new members were "tapped." Not just an organization for girls with high marks, prospective members are also judged on leadership, character and service.

Tower Guards are familiar figures on campus. Remember how they welcomed in the frightened Freshmen in the Fall, ready with any information and helping at registration. . . . How they helped the Freshmen through that first year when studies were getting them down . . . how they read to the blind students . . . how they entertained off-campus Freshmen . . . and we bet you won't forget the Spinster Spin they helped sponsor Winter term . . . or the Benefit Bridge, making possible the Tower Guard Scholarship for some outstanding Freshman student. . . . No, MSC students won't forget Tower Guard, whose members are continually working to further the aims of aspiring and progressive women and to make Michigan State the best possible college.

Through eighteen years of campus leadership, Blue Key, National Honor Fraternity, has gained the acclaim of the student body and faculty of Michigan State College. It has always been known for its high ideals, advancement of worthy causes, and pioneering in the maintenance and enhancement of State's traditions.

Its membership is limited to thirty-two men from the Junior and Senior classes. They are chosen each year upon three essential qualifications: scholarship, leadership, and activities.

The Annual Blue Key Sweetheart Ball has always been one of the year's biggest social events; the sponsoring of Hello Week, and the purchase of a seeing-eye dog for a blind student are but a few of the many worth-while projects for which this organization is noted.

The year 1945 found Blue Key's ranks depleted as never before. The few of us left endeavored to maintain the spirit and dignity that has always characterized the fraternity. When the organization attempted to select men eligible for membership it was astonished to find none that could meet the pre-war requirements. In the majority of cases, this was because the fellows in school today have little opportunity to enter into activities and to demonstrate leadership ability. Determined not to lower our standard, which would tend to weaken the meaning of membership in Blue Key, we decided to disband for the duration; leaving the choice of the next group to be tapped to the members that are going to return from service.

There is more to this practice teaching than meets the eye — especially to those who achieve distinction as students and servants of education, for then they may be invited to join Kappa Delta Pi, national education honorary.

Membership is drawn from the upper quarter of the college group. Prospective members must not only have mastered the usual skills and techniques of teaching, but must exhibit originality, creativeness, and resourcefulness. Active membership may include graduate students and faculty as well as undergraduates.

Kappa Delta Pi sponsors campus activities that are closely related to the ideals of high preparation standards in teaching by reviewing the society's magazine, holding panel discussions, social get-togethers, and student convocations.

Officers for the year were: president, Ann Doman; vice-president, Ruth Cogger; secretary, Betty Thomann; treasurer, Mary Cornell; historian recorder, Peg Middlemiss; faculty adviser, Dr. Martha Addy.

Habla vd. espanol? If so, you have been able to decipher the increasingly noticeable chatter between La Cofradia members of late. It's Spanish, of course! What are they all excited about? Well, with the many new activities they've promoted this year, the language is more in the limelight than ever before.

Pan-American relations are really booming, too . . . with the aid of the Latin American students here on campus. Meeting for lunch once a week, and enforcing the policy "Speak Spanish or Starve!" has greatly improved conversational ability.

Among their many activities were the "Fiesta" in honor of the A.S.T.P. conversational unit stationed here on campus . . . a party for the members of the International Club . . . and the unforgettable Spanish play, "La Cancion de Cuna."

This year, with the dream of becoming a chapter of a national honorary Spanish society ever in the minds of its members, La Cofradia has heightened interest in "all things Spanish."

Faculty advisers for the group are Mr. Sachse, Mrs. Leathers, and Mrs. Kerr. The presiding officers for the year were Alice Knott, president; Connie Campbell, vice-president; Virginia Fellows, secretary; and Kay Roehm, treasurer.

Sole requirements for membership are . . . a lively interest . . . a B average in your major subject . . . Art, Landscape-Architecture or Floriculture.

A great effort is being made to make all students and faculty aware of art "for art's sake." This year, the Art lecture series, which has been such a success, was the "brain-child" of Beta Alpha Sigma. Will we ever forget Boardman Robinson's "Leaves of Grass" or Arnold Blanch and his fiery discussion in defense of misinterpreted modern art?

No one could ignore the art featured in the campus art gallery, including the annual student exhibition, the Art Mart. Note that the tea and cakes served on opening days were also by courtesy of Beta Alpha Sigma.

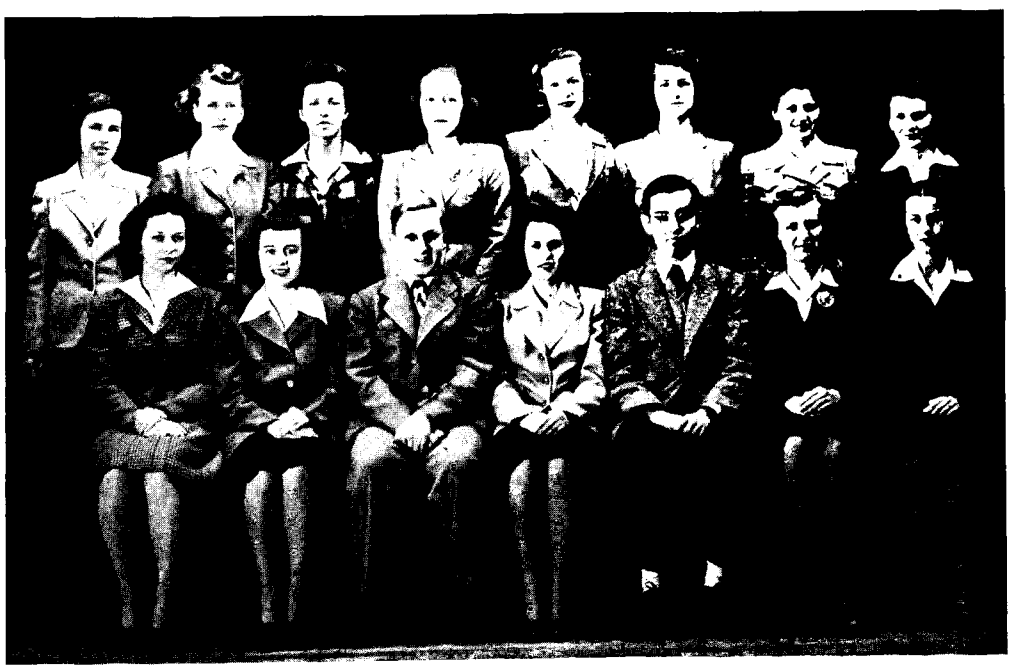

Posters wherever you go are contributions to campus events from the organization's newly founded campus poster service. And to top all in improvement, plans are already under way for a postwar student publication.

Beth Hollard is proving herself an efficient president this year, with the able support of vice-president Marion Goss, secretary Jean Harris, treasurer Jo Ann London, and faculty adviser Charles Pollock.

High honors in any field are worthy of note, but the plaque of Tau Sigma deserves a second look. Embodied in this fraternity are elements of close understanding between the arts and sciences. On the plaque are the symbols of the organization: the lamp of learning and the open book of knowledge. Membership is awarded each year to one student from the fields of Liberal Arts or Applied Science for scholastic achievement . . . The faculty adviser of Tau Sigma is Dean R. C. Huston of the School of Graduate Studies. Holding the gavel, symbol of order, is President Doris May. "Tapping of members will take place fall and winter terms."

The Michigan Alpha chapter of Tau Beta Pi is the second oldest chapter of a national engineering honorary which has seventy-eight active chapters throughout the country.

Although only undergraduate students with high scholastic ability and alumni engineers who have made outstanding contributions in their field are eligible for membership, several new members were accepted this year. Among the chapter's many activities was the initiation banquet held during winter term in honor of these new members.

During fall term several students attended the national convention of Tau Beta Pi in Detroit when C. F. Kettering, distinguished vice-president of General Motors, was initiated as an alumni member.

Tau Beta Pi officers are William Coleman, president; William Miller, vice-president; Hugh Forsburg, secretary; and Professor L. C. Price, treasurer. H. B. Dirks, M. M. Cory, P. DeKoning, and C. H. Pesterfield are advisers.

"Stand-by!" All eyes are glued expectantly on the little red light which flashes "On the Air," and it's time for another Michigan State College Radio Workshop play. This familiar little routine is repeated each Tuesday afternoon at 4 o'clock over WKAR, as Delta chapter of Alpha Epsilon Rho, national radio fraternity, sponsors its chief project, the weekly dramatic show called the "MSC Radio Workshop." A. E. R. is a relatively new honorary on the campus, having been established here in the spring of 1943. Prof. Joe A. Callaway of the speech department is faculty adviser, and Joan Carter, Kalamazoo junior, is the newly elected president who replaced Bob Kamins, Lansing senior, at the end of winter term. Points for membership in A. E. R. are gained by participation in the weekly dramatic shows or in other plays over WKAR and other radio stations. Approximately 15 appearances on the air are required before a student is considered for membership. The purpose of the organization is to foster radio activities in all departments on the campus. The projects of its members include writing, directing, and acting in radio broadcasts. Past presidents of the organization are Pegge Hall Dillingham, Owosso senior, and Barbara Hacker Baldwin, who was graduated in June, 1944.

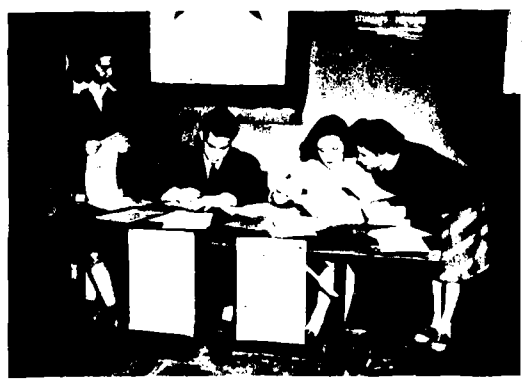

The women in the Business Administration and Economics Departments have taken advantage of the war's depleting the ranks of Sigma Epsilon to invade the men's scholastic sanctum and have succeeded in keeping the organization active.

As evidence of activities, this year Virginia Anderson, Ann Moore, and Florence Pugh were the spark plugs of the mixer sponsored by Sigma Epsilon at which the Frosh business ads met their profs and the students in the upper school on a strictly non-academic basis.

Long before the Ides of March came, Anne Eldridge suggested a Sigma Epsilon Income Tax Bureau, with tax experts Bob Freeman, Bob Jessup, and Franklin Gregg to relieve tempers and sorrows invariably caused by the complexities of the Federal Income Tax.

A newsy letter, full of professorial picturesque speech, what's what, and gossip of students, was printed this spring and sent to students in absentia. Editors Cherral Nowlin and Betty Axce had their budget balanced by Business Manager Fern Webster and the letter was put into circulation by Beverly Smith and Mary Mortimer.

Advisers, Professors C. S. Dunford and E. A. Gee, are preparing for "V-Day" and the adjustment which must take place when the men return in full force to "recover" Sigma Epsilon from the women.

Extend! Lunge! Recover! No — it's not a duel — no blood spilled — nothing but a couple of Delta Gamma Mu's practicing for the annual fencing tournament. These women are the campus experts in crossing blades.

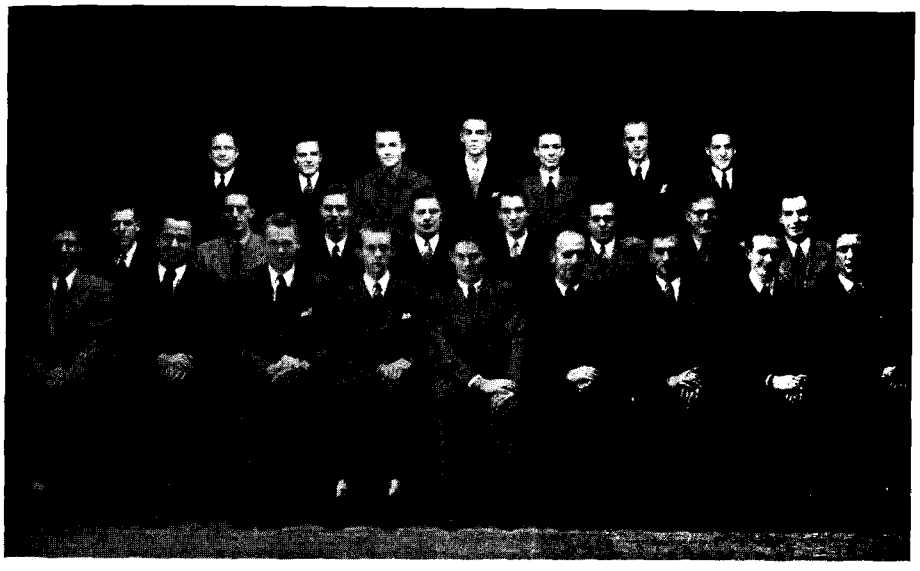

Members of Delta Gamma Mu also play teacher in the fencing classes. A prize problem is how to teach a left-handed fencer; it seems that the target lines are reversed when a southpaw steps up and starts thrusting.

Delta Gamma Mu's are keeping close track of acting president Marilyn Johnson. The first two elected president for Fall term left the foils to get married.

Alpha Psi is tops in every sense of the word. Being a national veterinary honor society it is the height of grandeur in the veterinary department. It takes high marks, for only the top twenty-five percent of vets may become members. One faculty member, distinguished by his work in the veterinary field, is initiated each year. Its goals are the highest that can be desired — to promote scholarship and fellowship among veterinary students.

Members are elected from the sophomore, junior, and senior classes during the first and third terms each year. Each new member delivers at the initiation banquet a short talk concerning some new development in the field of veterinary medicine.

One special theme is carried throughout the year in regular meetings. Motion pictures, lectures, and demonstrations showing development and advancement in various aspects of the profession are presented continuously to keep Alpha Psi members currently informed.

Harry Blair, president; Quintin Metzig, vice-president; Eugene Reeder, corresponding secretary; Tom Reutner, recording secretary; Glenn Snoeyenbos, treasurer; Jack McClain, sergeant-at-arms; and Dr. J. Stafseth, adviser, are the officers of the group this year.

Orchesis means continuous practice

The Modern dance enthusiast in Grandma's day snitched a lace curtain from the front parlor, kicked off her high-buttoned shoes, and made like a druid with wild flowers in her hair . . . abandoning herself to "moods."

Today's devotee of the dance looks like the lithe members of the local chapter of Orchesis, national dance honorary, at Michigan State college. Twice a week its members meet to perfect rhythm, movements, and dance compositions. Orchesis interests itself in all types of dance and the related arts but works chiefly in the contemporary modern field, using it as a medium of creative expression.

Pledges must pass a set of requirements before joining Junior Orchesis. Full-fledged novices practice hour after hour to pass the rigid test for entrance to Senior Orchesis. The big event of the year is dance interpretation of some theme; this year's program was presented in cooperation with the music, art, and dramatic departments.

Marie Angove is president; Helen Gover, vice-president; Marilyn Burley, secretary; and Carolyn Tracey, treasurer; Ann Kuehn, sponsor.

SIGMA CHI GAMMA

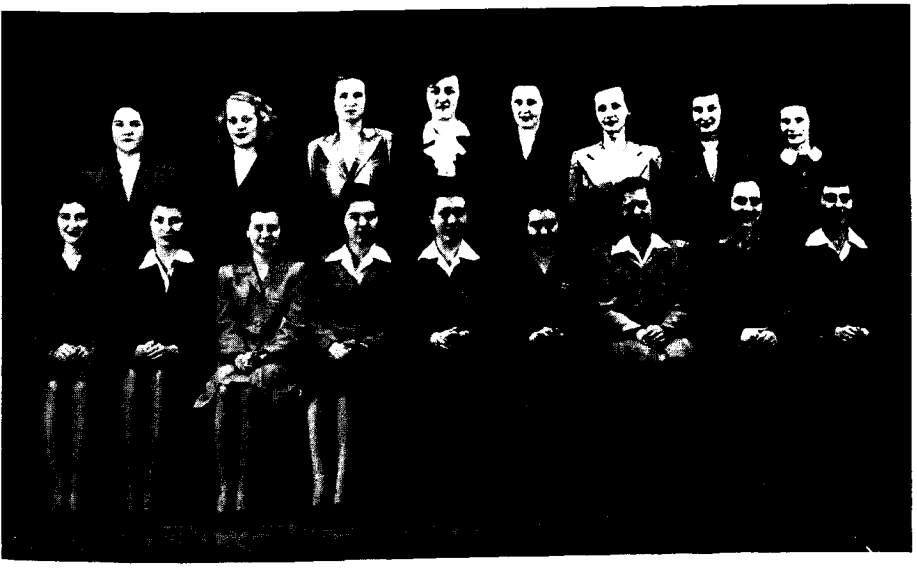

Ace women chemistry majors with at least 15 credits in this subject are eligible for membership in Sigma Chi Gamma. The organization was founded three years ago when a need was felt for closer friendship and cooperation among chemistry majors at State.

Since chemistry as a field is drawing more and more women into its folds, this organization has many branches of interest. Besides furnishing its members with outside speakers, discussions, and social events, Sigma Chi Gamma sponsors programs for the interest and benefit of all students.

Heading the organization are Elaine Waterbury, president; Marce Kidman, vice-president; and Jean Standiford, secretary-treasurer.

"On Stage!" "Cue!" "Strike the Set!" — just familiar trade talk for the members of Theta Alpha Phi, national speech and dramatics honorary. And well they must have learned it for it is only after two years spent earning the necessary points through participation in all-college plays, Studio Theater one-acts, and stage crews, as well as maintaining a one-point average, that drama-minded students become eligible for membership in Theta Alpha Phi.

The Michigan Delta chapter of the fraternity has been very active since its installation on campus in 1924 with its protege Studio Theater, a dramatics club for freshmen and sophomores, and its sponsorship of three all-college plays annually. This year's billing included "Kind Lady" and "Personal Appearance." The shows are under the enthusiastic direction of Professor Donald O. Buell. Professor C. H. Nickle has charge of assembling the settings. Both men are connected with the Department of Speech and Dramatics and, together with Paul Geisenhof, serve as the fraternity's advisers.

Theta Alpha Phi aims to increase interest, to stimulate creativeness, and to foster artistic achievement in all of the allied arts and crafts of the theater. Mildred Van Westrienen serves as president, while Vice-President Shirley Caswell, Secretary Marjory Rice, and Treasurer Marvel McGirr complete the executive roster.

Delta Chapter, Pi Kappa Delta, is the oldest national honorary speech fraternity on Michigan State Campus. Its members are chosen for outstanding forensic work here at Michigan State, and at the various state, regional, and national contests held each year. Due to war time restrictions, of course, travel has been limited, and consequently activities in which Pi Kap offers members chances to show their excellence in debate, oratory, extemporaneous speaking, and "victory speaking." Michigan State in cooperation with our Delta chapter of Pi Kappa Delta sponsored a Michigan Debate tournament here on our campus in which college debaters from about every college in the state sent delegates. In oratory M. S. C. and Pi Kap have an enviable record. Last spring M. S. C'ers won the regional male oratory contest of the lakes, sponsored by national Pi Kappa Delta, in which seven states were entered. Our feminine orator placed second, as did our debate team in their respective contests. Our victory speaker won first place to conclude the best record of any college at the tournament. This spring M. S. C. and Pi Kappa Delta sponsored a Michigan High School forensic tournament in which oratory, dramatic declaration, and extemp speaking were presented. All in all Delta chapter of Pi Kappa Delta not only recognizes excellence in forensics but provides ample opportunity for students to show and further this work . . .

Green Splash took a racing dive into activities by sponsoring Senior Life Saving courses and by promoting splash parties for the service-men on campus. They kept the water churning with the annual spring water pageant, "Alice in Waterland" in which the girls showed their form in water ballet and synchronized swimming.

Some people aspire for riches . . . budding skirted journalists aspire for membership in Theta Sigma Phi. A national professional women's journalism honorary, Theta Sigma Phi is the fruit of a six year's struggle for Spartan newswomen, from Matrix, local honorary, to acceptance and installation last year as the Alpha Psi chapter of the national organization.

To aspire for Theta Sigma Phi also means to attempt . . . or at least hope . . . to be among those who write the immortal of this generation . . . for membership requires a genuine intent to pursue journalism as a career, as well as a high scholastic standing and active participation on campus publications.

Among the group's activities for the year — keeping copy baskets full and publications row littered with galley sheets — were the editing of the AWS handbook and the publication of a new pamphlet, "Activities Bluebook." Members also entertained several prominent journalists including Jan Struther, and laid plans for editing a campus fine arts magazine.

This year has seen many changes in the Elementary Education Club. By joining the F. T. A. (Future Teachers of America), it has added one more national organization to the campus.

During its meetings every other Tuesday the club brings together faculty members and students for various educational, social and business purposes. Outside speakers, discussions, and social events help to accomplish these aims.

Fall term the members entertained the faculty at a Children's Party in the Forestry Cabin.

Every year the Elementary Education Department and the "El. Ed. Club" hold a Senior Day. Senior high school girls from over the state are invited here. Members of the club introduce them to the campus and the new curriculum.

Winter term the club began keeping a file of papers and bulletins in the library for the use of student teachers.

This past year the officers were: Jane Drake, president; Ila Wood, vice-president; Helen Sweet, secretary, and Bernice Beadle, treasurer.

From the staff Dr. Martha Addy, Miss Alicia Goetsch, and Dr. A. J. Huggett help members of the club with their duties.

C . D . C .

CDC's attention for the year has been concentrated mainly upon two important projects: establishing a Red Cross chapter on the campus and organizing entertainment shows for service men. The Council succeeded in bringing an active Red Cross chapter to Michigan State in time to have the machinery for the various classes set up for fall term. Home Nursing, staff assistants, Grey Ladies, and production were offered to the women students at least one night a week. Staff assistants gave their time to the campus and Lansing units; Grey Ladies acted as aides at Sparrow hospital, while kits for servicemen and clothing for the French Relief were provided by the production classes. In addition the campus unit sponsored the first student Red Cross Fund Drive in connection with the annual faculty members' drive.

Camp entertainment, sponsored by CDC and the Red Cross, has been taken to Percy Jones hospital, Fort Custer Service Clubs, and Alma College at least once a month. Talent for these shows was selected by Don Buell, who also directed them. Selections were made from the all-campus student tryouts held each term.

SPEAKER'S BUREAU

"Mr. Knittel speaking. I'll see if I can arrange it for you." Wrong number? Never over extension 392 — for people make sure they don't make mistakes in reaching the director of the Speakers' Bureau. The students provide programs for Michigan clubs and organizations which need speakers on various topics. A great many of these volunteer speakers are foreign students or speech majors. One member of the bureau has had the exciting experience of fleeing the Nazis in Belgium and France; another has timely, first-hand information about the islands in the Pacific.

Speakers' Bureau is one of the numerous activities identified with the speech department. Another aspect deserving mention is the debate squad. "Issues", "contentions", and "dilemmas" fly when they meet. A discussion about the methods for the settlement of labor disputes might floor some of us, but not these people. The men's and women's varsity and the freshman squads debated this question with ease and understanding when they represented State in several tournaments. These wranglers were coached by B. J. Knittel, Clarence Edwards, and Robert Starring.

The debaters weren't the only ones who wrestled with the labor problem. J. D. Menchhofer's "discussors" handled the same topic at the discussion festival in Grand Rapids. These students learned "how it's done" and then led groups of civic clubs in discussions.

Approximately 400 of the women enrolled in the school of Home Economics at M. S. C. are members of the Home Economics Club and, consequently, the National and State Home Economics Associations. This professional organization has given particular attention this year to problems of national and international interest, mainly the reconstruction of the libraries of foreign war devastated universities and assistance with the financing of a foreign fellowship.

Of more local interest is the part the club has played in community service. Many an East Lansing homemaker is grateful for the assistance it has given with party plans and caring for children.

The senior board, composed of the club officers as well as chairmen of the individual groups of the club, is its main governing body. Working under this board are the freshman and sophomore boards who promote home economics activities in their respective classes.

The Greeks have a word for it but the engineers prefer a combination of letters to spell either ASCE, ASME, or AIEE.

Since the field of engineering is made up of several divisions, it is impossible to have one central association for all engineering students.

The ASME, or American Society of Mechanical Engineers, enables students in this field to become better acquainted. Speakers, movies, and trips all play their part in keeping the members up to date on modern theories and practices. The local student chapter is under the direction of J. Campbell, honorary chairman; society chairman, W. Miller; vice-chairman, Terry Lobdell; secretary, Connie Hutty, and treasurer, Melvin Lill.

The American Society of Civil Engineers on campus is directly affiliated with the national organization for professional civil engineers. The group seeks to promote the advancement of knowledge in the civil engineering field under the leadership of F. R. Theroux. Officers for this year are James Donaldson, president, and Stewart Helliwell, secretary.

The American Institute of Electrical Engineers, AIEE, is active in promoting friendly relationships between the members of the campus chapter and the members of the national organization. Movies and speakers keep the students informed on modern practices. The chairman is John Allen and the chapter is under the direction of Professor M. M. Cory.

4-H is a familiar symbol to new students entering M. S. C., who were former members of the organization in their local communities. A professional unit to which a student may take membership immediately upon his entrance into college is a rare organization. 4-H offers this very thing.

Inspired by the meaning of the 4-H — health, heart, hand, and head — the group takes charge of a monthly radio program over WKAR and renders services of leadership during Farmers' Week. Meetings, held twice monthly, include lectures, discussions, movies, songs, and music programs. The club often participates in discussion groups with the speech department. This year the group undertook a new project in attempting the organization of a 4-H glee club.

This organization extends a friendly hand to short course students by having monthly parties in cooperation with them. State's 4-H Club is an affiliate of the International 4-H Club which renders social and educational services.

Alpha Phi Omega is a fraternal brotherhood for those men who take pride in rendering service to mankind. It conducts a definite program of service projects, with members directing their energies and talents for the benefit of their fellowmen.

A few of the projects carried on by the Beta Beta Chapter of Alpha Phi Omega are: conducting "Keep off the Grass" and "No Smoking on Campus" campaigns, getting blood donors for the Red Cross, finding rooms for farmers during Farmers' Week, supporting the Annual Homecoming Dance, Interfraternity Sing and many other worthwhile projects.

The influence of Alpha Phi Omega is felt far beyond the immediate activities of the fraternity. Men of Alpha Phi Omega today are around the world fighting for freedom and justice, while those who remain on the "campus front" continue an aggressive program which is of distinct value in the war effort.

Eighteen years ago M. S. C. established the first student chapter for AVMA in the United States. Today its membership includes more than 90 percent of the students enrolled in the veterinary division.

The Junior AVMA is, in reality, an extension of the national association of veterinarians which includes practitioners, teachers, and research workers. Through membership in these junior chapters the veterinary students create a professional atmosphere and attempt, through the organization, to have an official spokesman and clearinghouse for all problems relating to their welfare.

A V M A

At the regular meetings speakers of national reputation in various subjects present informative talks, films, and demonstrations to keep the students abreast of the newest and most effective developments in veterinary medical science.

The Junior AVMA also acts as co-sponsor of the M. S. C. Veterinarian, one of the leading collegiate quarterlies in the field of veterinary medicine. Other activities of the organization include the annual Medicine Ball, a banquet, sports, and an annual picnic in the spring.

Officers for the present year are: President, Stanton Williamson; vice-president, Merle Parlin; secretary, Warren House; treasurer, Gordon Goodband; sergeant-at-arms, Wallace Monson. Quintin Metzig served as program chairman, and Dr. H. J. Stafseth is faculty adviser.

Don't call the police! Those are just the triumphant screams of the winning basketball team. Women sportlovers from all parts of the campus swarm to the W. A. A. Tournaments. Activities range from the mild torture of riding a horse to hearing the old familiar — "strike one!"

Points are awarded and everyone strives to get their name on the honored scroll. Few make it, but everyone proudly displays numerals and letters. The annual canoe trip is known for its dunkings, sunburns, fun, and more fun. W. A. A. members have also bagged "big game" such as top place in national telegraphic swimming and archery meets.

Officers of W. A. A. are: Billy Morley, president; Marge Smith, vice-president; Barbara Mye, secretary; Doris Rinehart, treasurer; Dorothy Jury Shaw, social chairman; faculty adviser, Miss Parker.

Pi Alpha scored two major hits this year; pins have been made available to active members, and its constitution has been revised to include in the organization for membership basic college students interested in sociology and social service work.

Sponsoring activities to promote student-faculty relations, Pi Alpha also provides information on opportunities in the field of sociology. In this connection, Mr. Whitman, a social worker with the Lansing Children's Center, spoke to the group on the aspects of the Center's work with problem children. Prof. Roy Underwood, head of State's music department, described musical therapy and how it is being used today. An informal reception for graduating seniors and new members gave the students an opportunity to meet and discuss various fields of social work with representatives.

Officers of Pi Alpha are president, Gene Dennison; vice-president, Joyce Halbert; secretary, Sally Carey; treasurer, Doris Wason; and adviser, Dr. C. R. Hoffer.

STUDIO THEATER

The bustling of people hurrying to their seats dies down as the house lights dim and the curtain rises for the one-act play. The play could be any one of the forty-five one-act plays produced by Studio Theater members this year.

Working in Studio Theater gives one the complete inside picture of how a show is run, scened, and produced. It is not a function of the speech department alone. It is the means of fostering the appreciation of stage shows for the entire student body. The completed shows often serve in off campus functions, like the groups that go to Percy Jones Hospital in Battle Creek, and other affairs around this locality.

The entire work of the show is handled by the students . . . directing, lighting, props, make up, and all the various details that go into a well rounded show. Mr. Paul Geisenhof and Mr. Don Buell are the faculty advisers for this group. Frances Joyner, president; Carol Jean Reihmer, vice-president; and Ann Chevrie, secretary-treasurer, are the officers of the theater group this year.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB

No. 3 Faculty Row was converted this year into M. S. C.'s new International Center, meeting place for all foreign students on campus. Chinese, Russian, Brazilian, and fourteen other nationality groups are "at home" at the Center each Sunday afternoon throughout the college year to those who wish to meet the students and faculty of foreign birth who are coming to State in ever-increasing numbers.

The interior of the Center is decorated with Chinese ornaments from the collection of Dr. and Mrs. Shao Chang Lee, who, with their daughter, have made it their home. There are reading rooms, a guest room for foreign visitors, and a large kitchen. The college helped to establish the International Club to give our foreign students every opportunity while they are here to become acquainted with North American culture.

Of the sixty members of the International Club, thirty-five are foreign-born and the rest are North American students having a background of foreign languages and studies and who have traveled abroad. The club meets frequently at International Center and with other organizations on campus and in the community. One of their aims is to exchange a knowledge of our culture, and economic and political problems for theirs.

TOWN GIRLS

No late minutes, no hours to keep, no roommate . . . So goes four years of a Town Girl's life. The Town Girls' Club was organized in the fall of 1939 to unite girls living in Lansing and East Lansing in a closer bond of friendship and to encourage them to participate in campus activities.

Meetings, studying, and food are the order of the day in the Town Girls' lounge on the top floor of the Union. During the past year the club has worked on cartoon scrap books for the men at Percy Jones Hospital, cooperated in sponsoring the Spinsters' Spin, and planned a Christmas party given during vacation for the military trainees stationed on campus. The Town Girls collected talent and composed a skit that was given at Percy Jones; in their spare time they read to the blind students on campus. As part of the club's annual activities, they sponsor a formal tea for freshman women during fall term, installation of officers, and a mothers' tea spring term.

This year's officers include Margaret Rendall, president; Doris Englehardt, vice-president; Dorothy Renz, secretary; Nancy Wyngarden, treasurer; and Betty Corbishley, adviser.

Four groups — the Y. W. C. A., Y. M. C. A., Student Club, and Student Christian Union — combine their officers and cabinet members to make up the Religious Council. This group went right to work on several projects which are now an accepted part of student life. One which has met with great approval is the discussion group which meets on Sunday mornings at 9:30. Not only do religious themes provide topics; sociological and psychological problems are also discussed.

Another worthwhile project is the radio forum broadcast on Friday afternoons over WKAR when students talk over various personal and national current issues. A third successful undertaking of this group is that of sponsoring early morning meditation on Tuesdays and Thursdays in the Chapel of People's church and an Easter sunrise service.

Heading Religious Council is its capable president, Joe Davidson. Other officers are: Vice-president, Milly Gaskill; secretary, Betty Farley; treasurer, Max Ploughman; historian, Lois Hedrick; and student elders, Cecil Kerr and Charles Bostwick.

Crowning venture of the year for Jewish student members on campus is the promise of a house for Hillel in which members may gather, talk, dance, and, in which other activities may be carried on. This year Hillel has endeavored to extend its program of cultural and social activities for the Jewish students on campus to include the ever-changing current events that manifest themselves in movements directly affecting the Jewish people. Hillel is sponsored by B'nai B'rith nationally.

Hillel has broadened its program by bringing a vocational guidance expert to campus for the benefit of members. While the soldiers were on campus, parties and dances were given to entertain them; prominent leaders on campus spoke to the group on subjects of current interest; a radio play was produced and a stage production given. On the future calendar are handicraft groups, musicales, and speakers.

Under the leadership of Albert Chafets, president; Elaine Resnick, vice-president; Alice Present, secretary; and Harold Milinsky; guided by Rabbi Lebowitz; and counseled by Dean Bessey, Hillel is looking forward to even better years in the post-war future.

CANTERBURY CLUB

Canterbury Club, Episcopal student club at M. S. C., has its own chapel and religious services. Canterbury House, with its modern decorations, is available for students' meetings, dinners, services, and other activities. Sunday Communion, evening vespers, and the regular meeting of Canterbury Club are held in its Chapel of Christ the King. Communion is also held every Wednesday morning at seven.

Students don't limit their visits to services, though. The house is constantly in use by the club for studying, Altar Guild meetings, work for the club, and the Brotherhood of Saint Andrew.

The Reverend Mr. Selby, who lives at the house, is the students' chaplain, and he aids them in study, fellowship, and worship. The Canterbury Club is affiliated with the International Canterbury Foundation made up of Episcopal student organizations on college campuses everywhere.

Julie Barnes is president of the club and other officers are Patricia Ludt, vice-president; Mary Mayer, secretary; Grant Dean, treasurer; Dr. William Kimmel, faculty adviser, and Mr. Joseph Duncan, adviser to Christus Rex, publication.

A bazaar to raise money for the W. S. S. F. drive, a workshop to make gifts for the Lansing Children's Home and a Christmas party for some of these kiddies, and an inspirational talk by Dr. O. O. Warmingham are but a few of the activities of the members of the Y. W. C. A. during the past year.

Y. W. C. A. has as its purpose the ideal of giving all college women an opportunity to make firm, lasting, and varied friendships through constructive discussion and recreation. This recreation has also included weiner roasts, lively and fascinating discussions with members of the faculty in their homes, and several panel discussions on present-day problems with various faculty members.

Each of the cabinet members act as head of a committee and members then choose the one they would like to work on. Social, campus affairs, public affairs, program and membership, personal living, and publicity are each subdivided so that every member has a wide choice.

Mrs. Jean Jenkins, "Y" secretary, is a constant source of help to the Y. W. C. A. members, as are the officers: Joanne D'Arcy, president; Barbara James, vice-president; Polly Flaishans, secretary, and Betty Bolander, treasurer.

SPARTAN CHRISTIAN FELLOWSHIP

Members of Spartan Christian Fellowship, national interdenominational association, have marked up the fifth year of fun and fraternizing for the organization, which is affiliated with Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship. Fellowship, Bible study, and prayer are emphasized in the achievement of enriching the spiritual living of the college student.

Activities include get-togethers of singing, discussion, musicales, and lectures. High light this year was a program displaying and explaining a group of famous religious paintings. The Michigan Inter-Varsity chapters were entertained by the local group at a conference last fall. A formal banquet was held for the installation of the incoming officers. Game night is an evening set aside for the social activities of the group which include parties, picnics, sleigh rides, and a variety of other entertainment at which some hitherto undiscovered talents emerge.

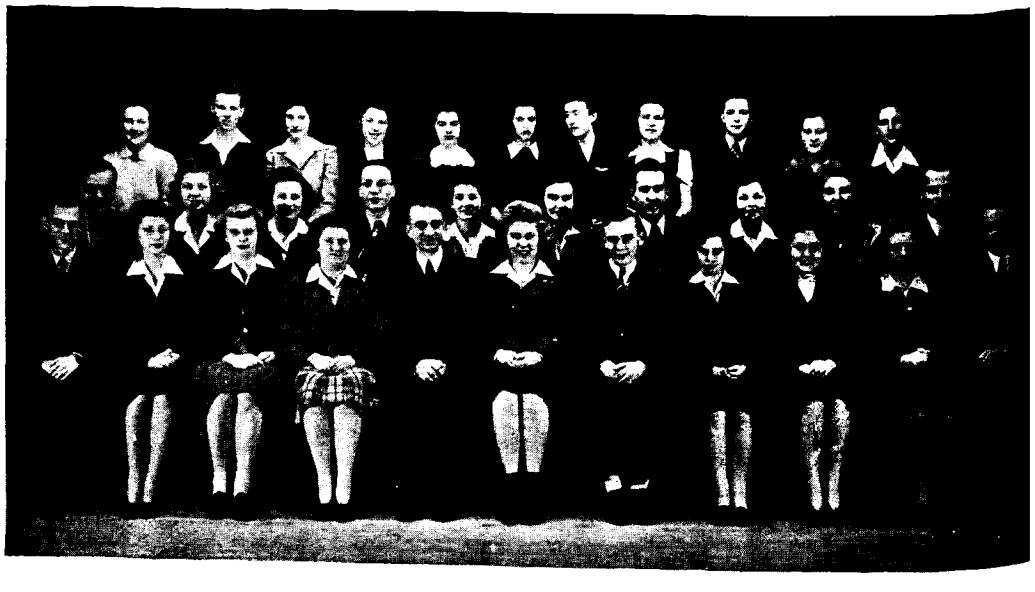

Bethel Manor, the home of Spartan Christian Fellowship, stands at 435 M.A.C. with the welcome mat always shining; and students who do not already do so are invited to drop in for counseling, recreation, reading, and Spartan Christian Fellowship weekly gatherings.

Designed to stimulate and sustain students in using the Bible, in prayer, and in church attendance, the Lutheran Student Club, a member of the International Lutheran Student Association of America, meets every Sunday evening in the Union for inspirational gatherings and entertaining programs. It develops the social life of Lutheran students on campus, proposes a strong Christian fellowship as its goal, and illuminates the need of Christ in our present conflict.

Each term the club holds a party in the Forestry Cabin and throughout the year its program consists of music, short devotionals, discussions of vital and interesting topics. Temporarily, church services are being held in the State Theater at 10:30 a.m. with Bible study at 10:00 a.m.; but the church has purchased ground for the erection of a church of its own after the war. At these services, Reverend William Young, adviser to the Lutheran Student Club, is the pastor. President of the club this year is Betty May Axce who is assisted by Hugo Niemi, vice-president; Sigwalda Nelson, secretary; Eunice Krans, treasurer; and Dr. B. T. Ostenson and Prof. Byron H. Newman Club, international in scope and membership, has as its aims to provide opportunity under Catholic auspices for the development of Christian culture and to foster the religious, educational, and social interests of the Catholic students at Michigan State College.

An activity program to satisfy varied student interests provides for weekly discussion meetings. During the past year the club has sponsored a series of get-acquainted affairs for the men in uniform and Catholic civilian students. Nine discussion meetings are held throughout the year on campus; civilian and soldier students Mission was held at St. Thomas Aquinas Church; and a variety of social affairs was climaxed by the Senior Farewell banquet.

Heading the organization are Sally O'Connor, president; Florence Gregoric and Mary Ellen Haack, vice-presidents; Rose Potter, recording secretary; Mary Jane LeBonte, corresponding secretary; Helen Kroll, treasurer, and Daniel Lynch, sergeant at arms; with Dr. T. STATE NEWS

"Femininity in multiplicity" has been the menu of the State News staff for two years now, with promise of at least one more year of the same coming up. Despite raised masculine eyebrows the domestic touch, such as hanging curtains in the State News office, the trio of women heading the paper this past year have proved they can put out a daily paper week after week when many other college publications have been forced to close shop because of the war.

The nerve-grinding rattle of the Associated Press teletype bringing the latest news of the world and the war to students of MSC, not to mention the banging of a half dozen assorted typewriters and the voices of a desperate mob of reporters vainly trying to beat the five p.m. deadline, provide plenty of wild activity half the day and well into the night.

Third door on the left — that's the Wolverine office, overflowing with pictures, pencils, papers — and in the middle of the hubbub, Sui Foo, editor-in-chief, directs traffic. Copy, classes, gripes, identifications, layouts, gripes, telephone calls, informals, and more gripes, all are organized to form your 1945 Wolverine.

In charge of operations is Doris Englehardt, office manager, turnkey for the supply-cabinet, and keeper of the files; while Dorothy Englehardt, in the capacity of assistant editor, tracks down over-due copy and the photographic editor.

Creating a tornado all his own when writing cagey ads and beating out sure-fire systems for undermining sales resistance is Doug Hird, circulation manager. Phyllis Boss, business manager, keeps noses to the grindstone, her hand on the telephone, one ear cocked toward the editorial office and the other toward Hank Reniger, advertising chief, who fences in local merchants and helps budge the budget.

Beth Beardslee, this year's classes editor, knows hundreds of students by name and to her, practically everyone on campus is a familiar face. Sue Averill organizes organizations, wrestles with write-ups, and follows Foo around trying to set a date to work. Bill Sticksel, of the smile-pretty-please department, is in charge of photography, picturing Michigan State College, 1945.

Came 1941, and the Vets of M.S.C. literally made headlines. Laying aside their saws and scapels, they perched behind typewriter and copy desk to send into print the news of M.S.C.'s grads, and scientific discoveries of veterinarians everywhere. Thus was born the M.S.C. Veterinarian, quarterly publication, under the advising eye of Dr. Carey.

Twelve hundred copies keep as many practitioners, former students, vet posts at Army camps, colleges and universities up to date on M.S.C. and the veterinary world.

Glenn Snoeyenbos, as editor, and Tom Reutner as business manager, have capably added another year's successful growth to this new baby of the department.

Out with the old and in with the new! Known last year as the Board of Publications — this year, for reasons of clarity, as the Board of Student Publications — this organization regulates matters or problems of policy confronting the State News, Wolverine, and MSC Veterinarian.

Meeting once a month, the board functions as an advisory group for all student publications. It is composed of the editors, business managers, and faculty advisers of the Wolverine and MSC Veterinarian plus the editor, manager, advertising manager, and faculty adviser of the State News. Suggestions concerning business and editorial policy may be given by the board to any of the three publications. The board however, is not a body of censors. Fall term sees the board sponsoring Publication's Open House to which students, faculty and interested towns people are welcomed. Climax of the board's activity is sponsorship of the annual publication's banquet held each spring term for all staff members and advisers of campus publications. At this time the heads of the State News, Wolverine, and MSC Veterinarian are announced for the coming year.

The officers, Tom Reutner, chairman; Barbara Dennison, vice-chairman; and Prof. D. W. Kuykendall, secretary, are responsible for guiding the activities of Publication's Row.

B A N D

It's one of those beautiful fall afternoons in the mid-October when football fans love to gather at Macklin Field. The crowds in the stands are waiting the start of a big game. But before the game proceeds we have a surprise for you. The announcer comes in on the P. A., "Ladies and gentlemen, may we have your attention please. As usual we have with us today our own Michigan State College Military Band, nationally known for its brilliant performance both in the stadium and in concert. Our Band is under the leadership of the widely known musician and baritone player, Leonard Falcone. This afternoon the Band will parade for us before the game and during the half."

The drums sound off and out of the tunnel marches the Band with a snap that could be characteristic of only the College Band. While we pat ourselves on the back for having such a splendid organization, it marches down the field and does a countermarch and right-about.

Yes, this was before the war when the Band had a hundred members and more on the waiting list. Let's examine the war Band and see of what it is made.

We see that skirts have replaced some of the trousers for the last two years. These women are doing well; the way the band is upholding its former traditions and reputation will prove it.

Even though the Band membership is now halved, the Band still is playing for major athletic events. Commencements, regular concerts, and other scheduled appearances.

But for the duration, marching down the field is out.

Some students claim Schubert as their favorite . . . others hum Schubert in the shower . . . and then there are those who can sing Schubert's compositions. The members of A Cappella Choir did just that this year when they presented Schubert's "Mass in A Flat."

Anyone with enough self-assurance to bring a good voice out in the open can pass the test — a competitive audition — for membership in Dr. William Kimmel's select group. Through study and public performance, the vocalists and student audiences become acquainted with the great choral works for accompanied and unaccompanied voices.

The one elected officer, Secretary Norma Lou Gregg, carries on business affairs for the organization.

WOMEN'S

For the first time the Women's Glee Club has been divided into two groups, a Freshman club and a Concert club. Both have proved successful and capable singers.

Under the leadership of Dr. William Sur and Ava Jean Humphrey, student director, the Concert Club has appeared off-campus in a program for the Michigan Secondary School Association, before the mid-winter meeting of the Michigan School Vocal Association, and on-campus during Farmers' Week. The group has also given several 15 minute broadcasts over WKAR and joined with the Freshman Club for the spring concert.

Dr. Sur and the student directors have enabled the groups to live up to their objective of stimulating greater participation in music by the women of Michigan State College. Membership in the club has been so great this year that it has been necessary to maintain a waiting list; and although this is the first year in which a student conductor has been given the opportunity to direct the club, it is expected to become the rule.

Officers for the year were Ava Jean Humphrey, president; Genevieve Nauman, vice-president; Betty Stone, secretary-treasurer; and Martha Canfield, business manager. Jean Wahl, senior music student, served as accompanist.

The Freshman Club has presented its own 15 minute radio broadcast over WKAR and made another public appearance when it sang at a convention of the Michigan Bankers' Association early in December.

So much enthusiasm has been shown for the work of the club that Dr. Sur has a waiting list of freshman women who are interested in becoming members.

Assisting Dr. Sur as student director for the Freshman Club was Genevieve Nauman, senior music student, and accompanists for the group were Mary Goodell and Fayola Foltz, both freshmen.

Not even during war years does good music recognize national boundaries. In true international spirit M. S. C. orchestra members are thankful for their unique opportunity to study and present fine programs of music from all lands. Professor Alexander Schuster, with his inexorable high standards of musicianship, guides students to sincere re-creation of compositions by Beethoven, Brahms, Prokofieff, Debussy, and many others. "Peter and the Wolf" was featured in the fall term concert; Joe Callaway of the speech department skillfully narrated the delightful story. Two senior students, Shirley Crisman and Dahlia Kriehn, appeared as soloists on the winter term program. As always, the M. S. C. symphony played for Farmers' Week, Collegium Musicum, and Baccalaureate.

Fifty representatives from all divisions on campus compose the orchestra, learning together in good-fellowship. Activities are not always purely academic; no one who was there, will forget Mr. Schuster, magnificent as host, at the Forestry Cabin party. Officers are Florence Lazarski, president; Shirley Crisman, vice-president, and Betty Bolander, secretary-treasurer.

Pulling out of the wartime doldrums in a blaze of glory, the Spartans' 1944 football season was the best since 1938. The inexperienced young eleven put State back on the football map of the nation by winning six out of seven games and gaining recognition as one of the better civilian teams of the country. Coach Charlie Bachman, back after a season coaching the Camp Grant football team, inaugurated a new simplified "Z" formation that worked wonders.

The Spartans' season opened with a wild rout of the University of Scranton and then took honors from Kentucky, Maryland, and Wayne, losing only to Missouri in one of the season's thrillers. The Spartan team was considered a prospect for the Orange Bowl game until its defeat by Missouri.

Many of State's 1944 football squad will be on hand this fall to build the 1945 team around. Faced with a tough schedule, Bachman will need the support of these experienced men. Chief of the returning veterans will be Jack Breslin, burly fullback who gained recognition by playing in the East-West game at New Year's, and Brady Sullivan, honorary captain for last year. Bachman will, however, have to count heavily on new freshman material to fill holes in his team left by the ever operative draft, but Spartan football enthusiasts are looking forward to an even better season this fall.

In basketball it was the same story, with a new twist, as the football history for 1944. State's basketball squad started out slowly. Coach Ben Van Alstyne had only one letter winner on his squad. After heartbreaking defeats at the hands of some of the nation's best teams, the squad found its pace and roared through the rest of the season.

In a typical Van Alstyne season, the squad lost to teams early in the season and later came back to give them a hair-raising defeat. Early in the season the Vanmen lost contests to Iowa, Kentucky, and Ohio State, and to Cincinnati twice. Then finally hitting their stride they whipped the Wayne team that had defeated Cincinnati, they literally swamped local college teams, racking up the second highest score in Spartan cage history against Kalamazoo college by hitting the basket for 81 points. Climax of the season, however, was the rousing defeat of Kentucky, 66 to 50, in one of the season's greatest upsets. Kentucky was rated as one of the best teams in the country but they were completely outplayed by the "Iron Men" as the starting team became known after playing several games without substitution.

Led by Nick Hashu, returning letterman, who was selected honorary captain, the five "Iron Men" consisted of Robin Roberts and Sam Fortino as forwards, Bill Rapchak at center, and Joe Beyer and Hashu as guards. Capable replacements like Paul Bauman, Joe Krakora, Bill Krall, Chuck Frankel, Bob O'leary, and Jack Breslin kept up the fast pace of the offensive when they saw action.

Coach John Kobs' twentieth baseball year at Michigan State was an informal season with little advance notice of games and no time to get a team in good shape. Intercollegiate athletics were not revived at State until after April, 1944. Scurrying around in an effort to whip up an official team for that spring, Kobs scoured the campus for players and neighboring campuses for games.

Finally coming up with a ten-game schedule with Wayne, University of Detroit, Coast Guard, Grosse Ile, and other Michigan army and navy camps, Kobs even managed to whip a team into condition to face the opposition. Kobs booked several practice games with Lansing industrial teams to temper the team before taking on any regularly scheduled teams. After defeating the Lansing teams, the Spartans still had trouble coming out ahead of the military teams in Michigan and finally won only three of the ten contests.

Discouragingly weak in the infield, the team so lacked in shortstops that Catcher Jack Breslin had to move out and play short in one of the season's wilder games, while Bob Buckenhizer caught. While producing no team of note, the season did provide plenty of fun and laughs for both coach, players and spectators.

Few of the 1944 players will be on hand for the 1945 season. Pitchers Meredith Yarling and Darrell Couey and outfielder Lee Grant will be on hand, though.

WRESTLING

Gale Mikels
Don Anderson

Spartan wrestlers had the most successful season in their history in 1945. The mat squad did not lose a single dual match in their competition and five team members won State AAU championships.

Outstanding performers were two native Oklahomans, Gale Mikles and Don Anderson. Mikles, undefeated throughout the season in the 145-pound class, won the National AAU championship in his weight class in Dallas the latter part of March. He won the State AAU crown in 23 seconds. Anderson, fighting a more deliberate and slow style, was not defeated until he got to the finals in Dallas.

Consistency has been the keynote of Michigan State's wrestling teams ever since Fendley Collins became coach. Year in and year out rated as one of the best teams in the country, the Spartan grapplers did not meet their arch rival, Oklahoma Aggies, in competition this year, hence were unable to test their prowess against the "fortress" of collegiate wrestling in the country.

State champions on the team include Harry Haight, who did not compete in the dual season, at the 115-pound class; Cliff Fletcher at the 121-pound class; Mikles, 145; Anderson, 165; and Harold Dachtler in the 191-pound group. Other members of the undefeated squad are Gordon Cole, 128-pounder; Al Borkowski at 136 and Jim Grams in the 155-pound group.

A quartet of golfers kept the Spartan name alive in Intercollegiate golf tournaments last spring. After competition with local golfers and faculty members, the team, under the direction of Coach Ben Van Alstyne, headed for the nationals. Not startling the world, the quartet made a good showing in the rather unofficial competition, intercollegiate athletics being banned until July 1, 1944. Led by Bob Bowen, the golf squad consisted of Stew Helliwell, Bob Sena and Bill Bueller.

TRACK AND FIELD

In track, it was the same story — Coach Karl Schlademan doing his best to whip up a creditable team out of a group of runners and field men with little or no experience. Only letter winner on the squad was Captain Bob Price, ace distance runner.

Fall cross country found the Spartan team under the direction of Lauren Brown, cross country coach, far down the list at the NCAA meet, and with few dual meet victories to their credit. Lack of manpower here again was a critical factor.

Winter track and field was a re-run of the same film. Ohio State and Indiana were able to show their heels to Spartan speedsters and only Wayne took a beating from the cinder squad.

Bright spot of the squad was the mile relay team, undefeated in winter competition. Lee Pickering, Wayne Finkbeiner, Ray Beckord and Herb Speerstra were the swift foursome. Finkbeiner was Schlademan's handy man. A discharged lieutenant, he competed in the cross country and went on to be high point man in almost all of the Spartans' meets by winning points in the high jump, pole vault, broad jump and half mile.

Ray Beckord also proved his worth on the team in the high jump and the high hurdles as well as the mile relay. Captain Price, though hampered by illness through much of the winter season, was always good for points.

SWIMMING

High spot of the 1945 Swimming season was the defense of State's crown in the Central Collegiate conference meet. Coach Charles McCaffree's swimmers successfully defended their crown against Illinois Tech, Detroit Tech, and Wayne in the finale of the regular pool season.

McCaffree, too, was troubled by lack of experienced swimmers. Only experienced men at his disposal was Fred Stillman, veteran free-styler, and Tom Barber, who returned to the Jenison diving board after his discharge from the navy. The Spartans lost their only dual meet to Ohio State, holders of the national collegiate championship. The swim squad also dropped the lead in a triangular meet to the Indiana swimmers, but came out ahead of Detroit. McCaffree kept his swimmers in shape and his spectators interested throughout the season and pre-season weeks with a series of intramural meets that pitted the Spartans against one another and against high school champions.

A two-meet schedule heralded the return of fencing to the Spartan sport scene after a two-year absence. Coach Charles Schmitter booked a home and home series with Ohio State to give his foilmen some intercollegiate competition. The home factor was the deciding one in the outcome of the meets since State won the event when it was held in East Lansing while the Buckeyes won in Columbus, both by narrow margins.

Schmitter, comparatively fortunate, had two returning veterans. Dick Pinkerton and Gordon Hueschen formed the mainstay of the squad through its two meets. In a post-season finale, Schmitter defeated all the members of his squad in his usual yearly contest.

Cupid strikes again! But this time at the gold of the Archery targets in back of the women's gym. Last spring four teams entered the Annual National Intercollegiate Telegraphic meet. The top archer was Margaret Mahoney with 68 hits and a total score of 400 — dropping below her 1943 record. Next in line was Lucille Cannon also with 68 hits, but a total score of 352. As usual the rain interfered and the girls waded knee deep in water to retrieve their arrows which had either hit or missed the face of the target.

Warming-up for swimming meet

S W I M M I N G

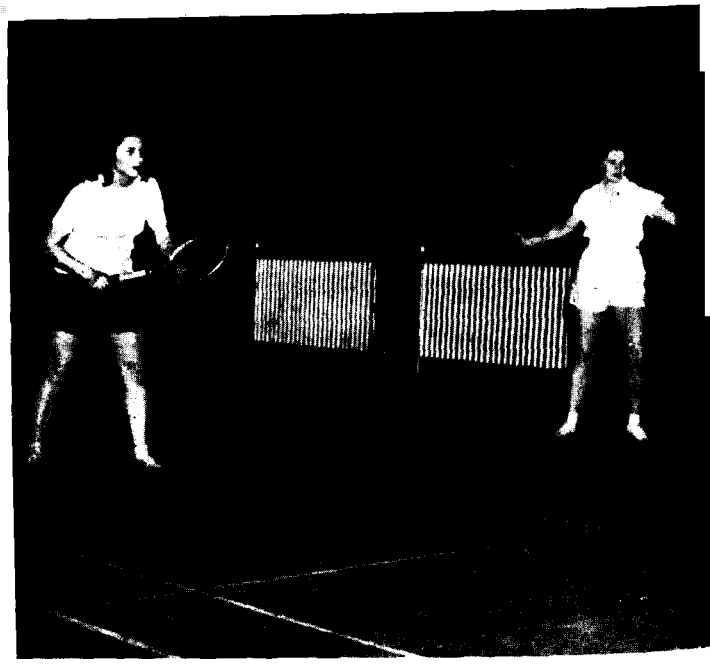

Intramural sports at State are becoming more and more popular, and swimming is no exception. When a record-breaking number of 30 teams signed up, the intramural swimming program had to be revised. Instead of having the meets on Wednesday nights only, the teams were divided into two blocks so that one block swam on Monday nights and the other on Wednesday nights. At the end of three weeks, an intra block swimming meet was held to determine the grand winners. Kappa Alpha Theta took first place with 57.5 points; Chi Omega second place with 56.5 points; Alpha Zi Delta third with 40.5, and fourth place went to Kappa Kappa Gamma with 32.5 points.

During the inter class meets, two records were broken. Ruth Burmeister beat Jean Procter's side over arm record of last year. Then Jean turned around and broke Ruth's record by one second. The medley relay team changed the old record from 1:05.4 to 1:05.2. The sophomores took first place with 81 points, the junior-senior team took second with 57 points, and the third place winners were the freshmen with 51 points.

Home was never like this! This has been a year full of laughter and the kind of fun that piles up so many wonderful memories for the future.

Among our seniors goes president Donna McLachlan, armed with a determination to get her master's degree . . . and Kaye Knight, the strawberry blonde, who will be thrilling kiddies with the exploits of the Bobsey Twins — unless the Army wins out . . . Leah Jane Tuttle will be the cause of silence in the house when she transfers her musical talent to larger but just as appreciative an audience, and we shed a tear or two for the loss of her three-point. . .

No one can replace Peg Smith, who could transport a roomful of listeners to the heart of South America via one of her colorful stories . . . The telephone rings constantly for Marge Mizener, who is headed for one of those dream houses with a white picket fence all around it . . . Crashing over her fellow actives on the way to the mail box is Gloria Searle — another letter from Bob!

It's been said before but never more sincerely — lots of luck always.

1945—the year that old songs revived and most particularly, "Always" reappeared on the scene. If you'll pardon the parody, Xi Gamma will use it for its parting salute to their lucky 13—seniors who'll be on alum lists come fall.

"I'll be missing you, always; with winter term comes blues, always,"—this time because Doris May, Jane Cumming, Helen Muncie and Gloria Deutsch departed 1212 E. Grand River for parts called vaguely, "Pratt-Whitney." AWS will miss its up-and-Cumming prexy, too.

"When the sing you've planned needs a helping hand"—Jeanne Blandford's the girl Chi O's always called on. "Days may not be fair always," but Al Kraker and Billie Morley'll know ways to get us home in rainstorms after their experiences as heads of Green Splash and W. A. A.

Peggy Bradbury's a handy girl to have around, too, especially if there's a radio or stage show in the offing. Late hours, but no late minutes, is the reward offered "Dado" Davidson in order to fulfill her duties on the State News.

Rusty Graff's fame extended beyond her claim to red hair when she rated Merrill-Palmer and presidency of the Home Economics honorary, Omicron Nu, as well as that of Union Board. In addition to playing confidante to the campus in general and the Chi Omegas in particular Eilleen Seymour got her chance to travel when she rated a Kellogg scholarship.

SWL claimed Marilyn Seabury's attention during her two years as an M. S. C. Chi O, while June Walraven quick-changed her accent from Brooklyn to Boston for term plays.

And we'll be missing you—always.

With the walls of the Phi Delt house resounding from the shrillness of feminine voices, fall term found us merrily cleaning . . . up to our necks in paint, varnish, and wax. Eager work until the very last minute converted the masculinity into pastels and frills, and September 21st the welcome mat was put out for the incoming freshmen.

Life in our new house has been exciting and memorable . . . our confidence was vested in Margaret Todd who as Prexy, aptly steered us through thick and thin . . . Phyl Hamborsky's "Jeep" proved to be the answer to a Delta Zeta's prayer when we piled in three deep to make our eight o'clocks . . . we'll all remember for a long time Elaine Foster's wedding and reception at the house . . . Pledge-trainer "Pug" Bogart wearing her prized SAE pin, and introducing the neophites into the intricacies of pledgeship . . . Jo D'Arcy dashing madly off to fulfill her duties as "Y" president . . . Ann Chevrie's countless admirers . . . Marce Kidman Weaver still suffering from a strange malady known fondly to all of us as "Buck Fever."

We'll miss smooth and calm Jo Delp . . . Treasurer Ellie Belyea, tearing her hair out over the budget and twisting arms to make it balance . . . our athlete, "Mac" Mac Kichan refereeing a basketball game, or returning black and blue from a soccer game.

We'll remember with fondness the weekend visits of Bette Fenwick's sailor . . . Anne Marland and Marian Mitchell comparing husband notes . . . "Georgie" Hayes talking in her sleep about a certain Sigma Chi.

Yes, Delta Zeta seniors are the girls who will leave the big stone house on the corner of Cowley, with pleasant memories . . . we wish you sisters the best of luck, and gosh, kids, we're gonna miss you!

This month the Gamma Phi's are having a double party — a birthday party to celebrate our chapter's first year on campus, and a farewell party for our first departing seniors. Every one of them helped us build the chapter and we're going to miss them all.

Sally Seifert, our first president, and head of CDC, whose poise and leadership set an example difficult to equal . . . house president, Marty Vargha, who did such a good job of waking us up in the gray hour of dawn in time to make that eight o'clock . . . Ginny Labbitt, who gave everyone such a thrill with a surprise announcement of her engagement . . . Marge Merriam, the Swedish mushroom, who came to our rescue when we needed advice . . . Margaret "Pete" Peterson, I. A. president, whose lovely voice made us all dewy-eyed when she sang the sweetheart song . . . Gretchen Kensler, who was always dashing off to the auditorium for a radio rehearsal . . . Millie VanWestrienen, prexy of Theta Alpha Phi, who could give out with a most unique version of "The Three Ittle Fitties" . . . Barb Caldwell and her straight-faced humor . . . "Diz" Fisher, whose quick smile and gracious manner made her one of our best hostesses . . . "Mac" Boucher, who could do a convincing rendition of a French song — in French . . . Mary Ann Bancroft, who became Mrs. Bud House in the first wedding at the house . . . Gertrude Jackson, who seriously considered moving into the Home Ec experimental kitchens since she spent so many hours there anyway . . .

Wherever they go, Beta Delta will always be proud of them and of their share in organizing our chapter.

Another June has caught up with us and so we must bid farewell to our fifteen graduation seniors. We shall remember each one.

Our efficient Prexy, Daisy Dowling for her ability to handle people and situations, her talent at dog-growling, her mad dashes to Mortar Board meetings, and her ideas on Navy wives.

Marty "Party" Kelly, our Union Board representative, for her sense of humor, her "definitely" different vocabulary, and her stimulating enthusiasm.

Donnie Glaeser, who brought us successfully through formal-rushing, will be remembered for her long-distance phone calls at odd hours, her many out-of-town visitors — all men, and her lame dress.

Pledge Captain Jayne Kuykendall has left memories of her well-seasoned wit, her many trips to Marshall for stead, and her famous Phi Delt pin.

Ruth Mary Millis for doing such a fine job keeping our finances straight, and for her fickle, or rather versatile character where men are concerned.

Who can forget petite Marie Angove's boogie, her various hair-styles, and her numerous letters from fiance Murray. Marie was our House President and President of Orchesis.

We'll remember Jeanne Ringle for her sweetness and efficiency, her beautiful hair—the envy of all—and her dozens of roses from Ed.

Dottie Schneider for her amazing faithfulness to Joe, her daily V-mails from Italy, and her diligent work as social chairman will not be forgotten.

Our Activities Chairman, "Woodie" will be remembered for her athletic ability, her gurgling giggle, her remarkable hair which can be washed, dried, and "ready-to-go" within an hour, and her ever-present flute.

Eileen "Sleeping-Beauty" Fink will be remembered for her lengthy eye-lashes, her wonderful disposition, her poise, and her red jacket from Panama.

Dottie Geyer and her rendition of "Deenah" will be missed at rushing parties, and we won't soon forget her dreamy brown eyes or her ideas on housekeeping.

Marie McCain leaves us memories of her prowess at the bridge table, her knit-

Pat Kelly well known for her midnight "at-homes" featuring tuna-fish sandwiches and cokes, will be remembered for her friendliness, and her high scholastic average, which she maintains in spite of her many activities.

Vivi Nauman spent many hours trying to eke some harmony out of the Kappas, but she managed to write to Garr, be active in Orchesis, and keep up her scholastic average at the same time. We won't forget her "Smoke Gets in Your Eyes."

Shirley Simmons with her tremendous male following leaves us memories of her sweetness, her amusing antics, and her envious beauty.

"Our tears flow like wine" as fifteen seniors, known as the home guard, enter the ranks of the Sigma Kappa alumnae, and leave behind them a houseful of memories.

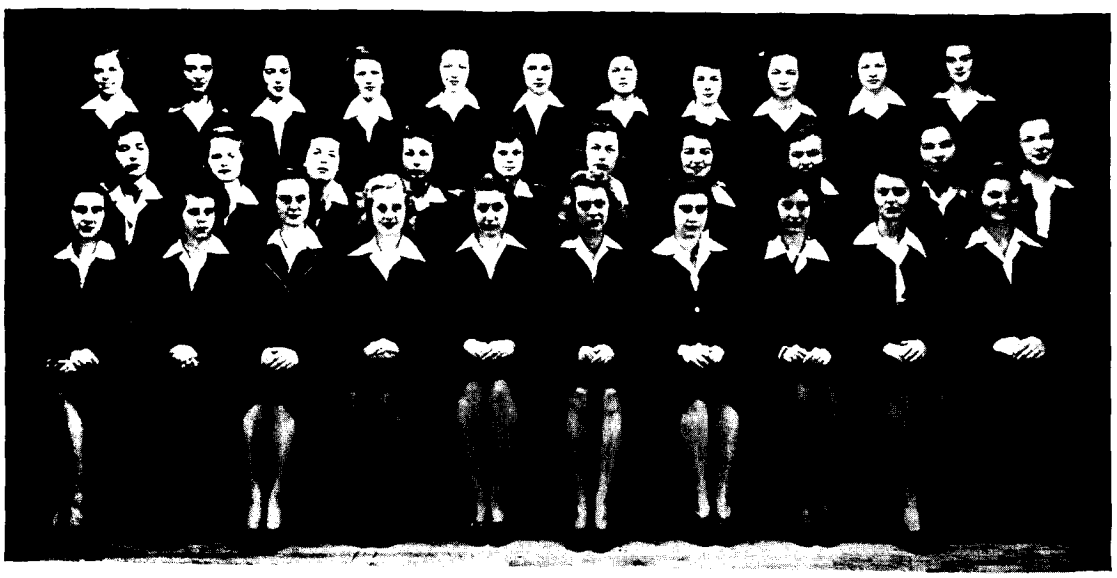

Nelly Clark, spending her time acting as social chairman of the house and keeping up the morale of fiance Don . . . and Joyce Kephart, rolling off the horticultural terms like so much double talk, not to mention her genius at cutting her sisters' hair . . . Anita Baker, house secretary, with her undying love for pinochle . . . and prexy Shirley Reckard — efficiency plus . . .

House manager Muriel Wilson, having more than her share of headaches from light bulbs to plumbing . . . Marge Smith, W. A. A. vice-president, upholding the sports department . . . and Ruth Peters, our nominee for the stately charm division . . .

On the entertainment side was Lovina Lovegrin, an individual surprise package . . . Katie Roehm, ac-centuating the Spanish, being the treasurer of La Cofradia . . . and Mortar Board Kay Besemer, spending her time raising the house average and being night editor of the State News . . .

Shirley Logan, A. W. S. secretary, with her velvety brown hair . . . Marge Zimmerman, who was "Zimmy" to her adoring pledges, and Neva Longnecker, who both kept the house on pins and needles waiting for Ensign Babe and Marine Lt. As another June rolls around, bringing vacation, but taking seniors from us in return, Epsilon Chi looks back on a year that encompassed the usual doings such as rush parties and studies. But what is more, it has left us with never-to-be-forgotten memories of our events — the small, the unusual, and the funny . . . the memories which will bring many a smile in later years . . . memories that can be recalled at the mention of a word or two. "Boy Scout" reminds an Epsilon Chi of the Pinetum roast when a Boy Scout put his knowledge to work and coaxed a fire from the wet twigs which before had absolutely refused to flame. Or the words "coal pile" will bring the same amused smile. The coal pile episode resulted when our pledges gave a scavenger hunt party for us, and that climb to the top of the pile was really something!

While June brings many happy memories, there is also the other side. We'll all be sorry to bid goodbye to Elaine Sobel, our conscientious rushing chairman. Elaine did some successful planning on those parties, and we give her a vote of thanks.

Jack Carrier found that, as president of Inter-Fraternity Council, he didn't have much time to answer Detroit-marked letters from home. He's a Sigma Nu, interested in swimming and track, and intends to continue his law studies at the University of Michigan.

INTERFRATERNITY COUNCIL

Fraternities at State are back on the merry-go-round. Radio parties . . . rushing . . . athletics . . . hell raising . . . fraternity week . . . cramming for exams . . . and brotherhood . . . all took on a new meaning when many of the houses were turned back to the chapters. For the first time in two years the fraternities have taken on a resemblance of the days gone, but not forgotten.

The spirit that has characterized the fraternities at State is rapidly returning. Bowling, basketball, softball, and other inter-fraternity competition have unified the houses as never before. At the IFC-Pan Hel Dance, the modern Greeks really strutted their stuff, for it was one of the year's outstanding social events.

The fraternity system at Michigan State is continuing to astonish other colleges and universities throughout the country. While their chapters are dwindling away into oblivion, ours are building toward prewar standards. We are proud of the manner in which they have carried on under wartime hardships, and the council is determined to continue to aid and guide them to the best of its ability.

ALPHA EPSILON PI

Al Chafets, Windy Windt, Tobi Goldoftas

Under the guiding hand of fraternal adviser Alex Cohen and the wise leadership of Master Al Chafets, Chi chapter of Alpha Epsilon Pi weathered another year of turmoil and hardships.

Combining pleasure with competition, we entered in the IFC-sponsored bowling and basketball leagues and also sponsored several social functions including a hayride and radio parties.

Not only are our ranks being depleted by the call to the armed forces, but we are also losing Master Al Chafets, and Lieutenant Master Morris Cooper, who are graduating with the class of '45. Chafets will receive his degree as Doctor of Veterinary Medicine, and Cooper will complete his extensive studies in physics.

ALPHA GAMMA RHO

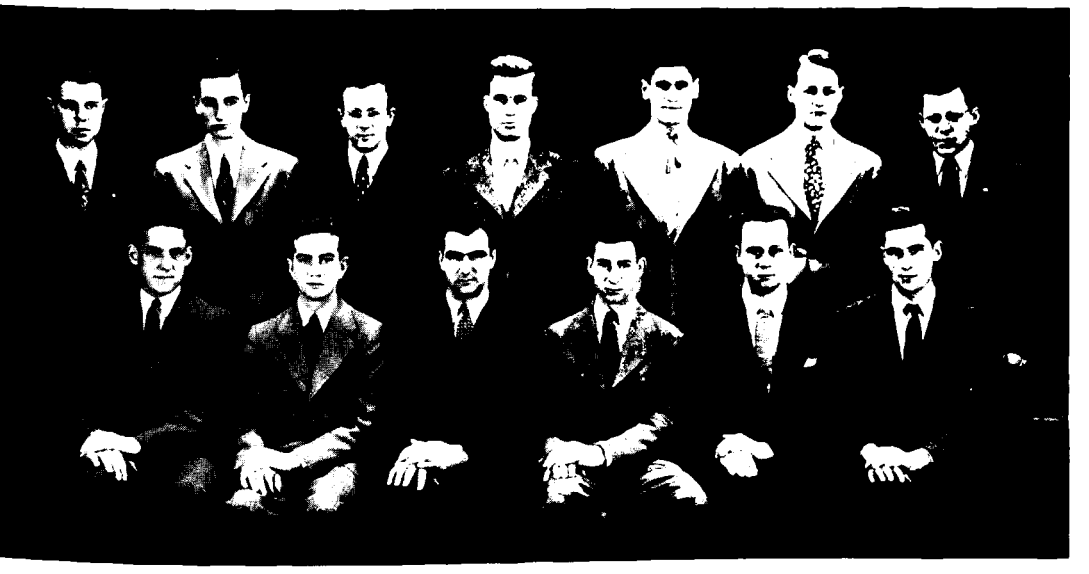

Big event of the year for Alpha Gamma Rho was the purchase of a new house at 803 E. Grand River last fall. There the bridge games, term dances, and radio parties continue as before.

With considerable regret we are informed that two members of the fraternity will soon leave our fold after "serving the customary sentence" for graduation. Graduating in June is Jerry "Motorcycle Ace" Fries. Formerly, Jerry roamed the countryside far and wide on his steed until an undesirable quirk in its character brought about its sale. Editor's note: Details have been deleted.

Our other member about to leave is Prince Bondarenko, an Inter-Fraternity Council representative and the first president in our new house. Prince will graduate in the summer upon completion of requirements and become a member of our Fraternity Brother Alumni.

ALPHA TAU OMEGA

Dick Lotz, Stu Helliwell, Jim Donaldson, Ray Roush, Ed McFarland, (Spook)

Under the inspired leadership of a mere handful of men left stranded on campus by the fortunes of war and the draft board, Alpha Tau Omega has come back to life.

Among the returning "vets" we counted our president, Dick Lotz, Bill Garrison, Nick (Baseball) Picciuto, Roy Roush, Keith Steffee, Hubie Webster, Jerry Cole, George Souter, and Bob Haggerty. With enough persuasion, Steffee will haul out for the boys' inspection the D.F.C., his air medal, the purple heart, and five oak-leaf clusters.

Michigan State's fine football showing can be partially attributed to A. T. O.'s. Jack (Star) Breslin sparkplugged the '44 eleven, winning the Governor's award for "most valuable player" and playing in the East-West All-Star game last New Year's Day.

Tom Mitzelfeld, Bill Kelly, Dick Treharne, Tom Stevens and Bob Hill also did fine work on the gridiron last fall.

During the year we lost Mitzelfeld, Treharne and Bruce Maynard to the service, and last December Chuck Ahlstrom, house manager deluxe, became a C.E. Chuck won distinction by being elected to Tau Beta Pi, as did Brothers Mitzelfeld and Lotz.

Brothers Helliwell and Buckenhizer represent A.T.O. on the Inter-fraternity Council, and Breslin holds membership in Student Council and sits on the Union Board.

Although we won't get back into our house until the war is over, or until they start drafting co-eds, we're doing all right on Abbott Road, where the welcome sign is always out to returning Taus back on furlough. During the year it was our privilege to welcome back a number of the old brothers. They think we're doing all right; we think they're doing a little better than all right.

"All dressed up and no place to go" was the situation faced by Delta Chi during 1943 when they found themselves minus a chapter house. Last January they filed into the old Alpha Chi Sigma house to establish their fraternity beachhead under the direction of president, Bob Hogle and house manager, John Hewitt.

The Delta Chis seemed victimized by an almost negative membership in comparison with former years; but immediately upped their membership with the addition of ten pledges and the return of two army men, John Potts and Bob Hogle. Two of the Delta Chi brothers left State this June. Jim Sitar, whose duties as secretary didn't cut down on his work as social chairman, graduated as the only male language major. Bob Price, on the other hand, is going to make a break and transfer to the University of Michigan after winding up his pre-law career at State . . . he was treasurer and IFC representative, as well as representative of the School of Arts and Sciences on Student Council. Australian-born Bill Thielicke left at the end of the winter term to continue his dramatic studies in California.

Looking more to the future than to the past, Delta Chi wishes good luck to its seniors and turns with confidence to the tasks of tomorrow.

To break a period of between a year and two years of limited activity, the Delta Sig's have added new members and pledges and are now participating completely in college and inter-fraternity affairs. With the able help of Les Belknap and Harold Balback, the alumni advisers, the chapter has had a successful year.

There are many Delta Sig's who have left for service, among them being last year's prexy Harold "Rocky" Rockwell, Ned Mann, Bob Hamer and Alex Dillingham. A couple of engineers, Morie Bettison and Bob Bowen, have been doing well since their graduation last spring.

Fall term the actives and pledges held a joint party with the Delta Chi's and this was followed with a winter term closed dance. The list of actives was supplemented with Harold Session's name at the start of winter term when he returned from the service.

Some of the new faces in Delta Sigma Phi include those of Dick Henderson, Howard Beyer, Pete Limber, Milton Manley, Jess Woodring, Zig Kovaleski, and Gene Thomas. Also initiated this last year was ex-Spartan Earl Keith who is studying in the Navy V-12 Program.

Officers are William S. Coleman, president; Zigmund Kovaleski, vice-president; Howard Beyer, vice-president; Harold Sessions, secretary, and Jesse Woodring, treasurer.

"Hello, is Janet in?" "No," said Jake Venema choking a laugh, "we've got men here." The receiver on the other end slammed down. Lynn Zimmerman assumed his usual post at the phone; but before he could call Doris, "Br-r-r-ing-", the phone again! "Hello, is Shirley there?" "Who?" exclaimed Gordon Ross, next in line and bending over Lynn. "Shirley," snickered Lynn. "Tell him it's 8-9096 he wants," said Harry Blair looking up from the latest Time. Yes, co-eds are in the old Farmhouse on Sunset Lane, and the fraternity men have taken over Hedrick Co-op for the year.

Lynn finally reached his party only to be interrupted by Merle Parlin asking for a cigarette. "Look in my coat pocket," replied Lynn. "Boys, Zimmerman has Camels," announced Merle. "Just lay them here on the table," called Howey De Wolf playng bridge with Ken Frey, Bud Freeland and Dan Lynch. The phone call was lengthy. The line of fellows grew limp and sat down. Dale Brown followed by Herm Lung and Gerry Heyt burst in from the outside. "They've got cigarettes at the Union," panted Dale. Out went the line, Johnny Bardens in the lead, to amble over to the Union for cigarettes, knowing full well that Farmhouse men will share their cigarettes as long as they last—and their good times forever.

Temporarily established in a house other than our own, we are striving to bring the fraternity and its activities back to its pre-war standing as much as possible in a world of turmoil. We want our brothers to come back to the same "grand old fraternity" that they knew in days of yore. Such a picture was painted by Lieutenants Rodge Blackwood, Tom Loring and Jack Boorsma, old-timers who visited the chapter during the school year.

As a result of election of officers, Pete Wheeler turned the presidency over to Charley Lentz. On the romantic side, there were four pinnings and many mellow serenades fall term.

So "here's a toast to old Phi Delta Theta" — the pledges are still keeping the trophies polished for the happier days to come.

This year Phi Kappa Tau moved back into their house on Delta street. From then on, things began looking up for Alpha Alpha Chapter.

Three of the Phi Tau's were quite active on the football team this season — with "Rip" Godfrey, "if you're jivin' around Detroit, drop in at Conn's" — playing regular guard for the Spartan eleven, — Ellis "Da Nose" Phillips at tackle — Joe Emerick at end.

And with the piano back, "Bud" Smith and Co. is again driving the boys mad with the incessant boogie that flows forth daily.

Again this year we will be losing a few of our stalwarts — "Lil" Bill Herrick, Mac Cropsey, Chuck Roberts, Ben Hekhuis, and Don Whaley. With the exception of "Lil" Bill, all are senior vets and will graduate this spring.

Of course, this is a natural metamorphosis; but we wish all our brothers, the world over, the very best of everything.

"With a stein on the table and a good song ringing clear."————in the hundred and twelfth year of Psi Upsilon and the second year of the chapter, Epsilon Nu sends greetings and best wishes to its brothers in arms wherever they may be and whatever they may be doing.

The chapter was especially saddened during the past year to learn of the death of Brother "Rich" Pattengil, who died in action on the Normandy beachhead.

Although we are still competently represented out on U. S. 16 as well as on Union Board and Student Council, we were forced during the past year to send out into the world as graduating seniors, Brothers Edgell, Hickey, and Wallace.

The thanks of the entire chapter goes to Brother "Stubby" Stebbins, who did so much to make the chapter a success. His warm hospitality at his home in Lansing will long be remembered and appreciated.

Things were fairly tough for awhile, but now Psi U is on the upswing and we have fond hopes of moving back into the House some year soon. In the meantime, it is in the next best possible hands, namely those of the Gamma Phi Betas.

Back in the house on Abbot Road, and building a Sigma Nu chapter the boys will be proud to come back to, is a fair report of 1944-45.

In June, we felt the loss of three of our outstanding members. Jack Carrier, our able Lt. Commander and president of IFC, will leave us to take up further studies in law school. Ken Harris, who has done a marvelous job as pledge master and leader of our social functions, will leave us to further his practice in veterinary medicine. Our third loss is Jim Bibbens, Commander of our chapter and president of Student Council. Jim will carry on his work in the business world.

We feel the loss of these three fellows, for due to their able leadership, guidance, and encouragement, we have learned the "Sigma Nu way." Good-bye and good luck to them.

THETA CHI

Fall term of 1944 found Theta Chi high in spirits but low in membership. All but five of the members of Beta Zeta had answered the call to the defense of his country. Since that time, membership has been increased to fourteen. We remaining brothers are determined to keep the name of Theta Chi among the list of fraternities of MSC until those who are absent have returned to carry on our fine tradition.

It is proper and fitting that we, the remaining brothers, dedicate our sincere appreciation to all men of Theta Chi that are gone from us for now. We say, "for now," because we know that, however long the time may be, they will return.

Here the women, gone the men; here 430 lipsticks, gone 430 pipes; here Mason Duration League, gone Mason-Abbot Club.

Before '44, the girls entered Mason only by the front door; bobby-pinned heads and creamed faces were an oddity in the smoker. But the girls are here! And no sooner did they arrive than radio parties began, exchange dinners became the vogue, open houses set the pace, and fashion magazines decorated the lower lounge. The gals accepted the tin "GI" trays with a grin and adorned their bulletin boards with lace.

At Mason, the belles not only boast of a house mother but are the proud possessors of a house father, "Doc" Luker. Individuality, here, again strikes a key note with the nine student counselors. A la the Mason Music Makers, the smoker can be converted into a haven for our fast dancing pals. Incidentally, the drums were bought by the gals themselves.

Grill-ology, perhaps because the girls possess their very own grill, is a favorite subject of the Masonites. Lab. classes include: sundaes, any flavor; cokes, and sodas.

The atmosphere of the hall, however, is another story. The combination lounge and smoker "Rec" room unifies the dorm into a friendly place in which to live. There's always something going on — ping-pong, dancing, bridge, singing — and the lounge dial phones are in almost constant use.

In spite of the fact that Beaumont chimes every fifteen minutes during the night, the building with the ivy-covered walls does have quiet moments and college social atmosphere.

The hall is proud to have had a part in keeping up State's reputation as a friendly campus by making Wells a real asset. ELLSWORTH HOUSE

Windows polished to shine, pipe racks back on the fireplace, copies of Esquire on the table are no mild indications that the Ellsworth Co-operative House has once again thrown open its doors to the male element on campus. With the war diminishing its college stock, Ellsworth was forced to close for two years. Two members, Dick Storey and Art Lepinat, rode the wave of discouragement and, through their assistance, Ellsworth Co-op was brought back this year as a working success. Here the mutual co-operation of each student participant is expected and received with real enthusiasm. Members plan and finance the operation of the house and each one shares in the physical upkeep as well. The application of democratic principles is expressed in all activities, for the Ellsworth Co-operative House is a materialization of the ideal of real co-operation.

Sparty dear,

I didn't know what time it was. I guess said familiar song. E.W.T. or C.W.T. that is perplexion. However, I think I'll just go along and try to get to classes on time. Beaumont goes on C.W.T. and supposedly we go to 8 o'clock's at 7, while business districts are geared to E.W.T. I fully expect to see people wearing two wrist watches and a portable sun dial for good measure.

We had a serenade here at the dorm the other night. Perhaps the songs weren't rendered by as many voices as in previous years, but it was just as enjoyable. I'd love to talk on some more but my heavy eyes won't let me.

Night, Sparty.

Love,
Spartina

PLAYS

"Tuttle, you know perfectly well—" shouts temperamental Carole Arden (star Marge Rice) at her business manager, Bob Kamins, in a scene from the winter term play, PERSONAL APPEARANCE.

In the next act, Marge shows another facet of her personality by acting sweet to naive Chester Norton, played by Milton Haitema, and is interrupted by Lois Banzet's (as Aunt Kate Barnaby) sarcastic, "Listenin' to the music?"

Star of KIND LADY fall term was Fran Joyner, shown here in a scene with Kay Telfer, who plays her niece, and Howie DeWolf, Kay's fiance. Howie is asking for the statue as a wedding gift, much to the delight of generous Fran and the disapproval of Kay.

Letters to Lucerne

LETTERS TO LUCERNE literally wheeled in 1944 Senior Week activities — for the set used in the dormitory scenes was on casters and was wheeled into place when required. Jean Granville, Joan Carter, Barbara Chandler, Fran Joyner, and Barbara Hacker share their news and letters from home every night before they go to bed. The tone of the letters changes and so does the attitude of the girls toward each other until the climax of this psychological play is reached in the last act shared by Barb Chandler, Jean Granville, Nancy Blue, Joan Carter, Fran Joyner, Helen Kroll, and Marion Parker.

Henry Wallace and President Hannah score for State in opening the basketball season with a toss to the referee . . . "Saludos Amigos" . . . Poster publicity in the Vet building . . . Hi, Sparty,

I know I'm neglecting you horribly, but here I am at last. Some of the seniors tell me campus life is beginning to look up again what with various and sundry banquets being served, two boys to clear the tables in the cafeteria and dunts, and the graduating class complaining that if they didn't have to attend classes, spring term would be wonderful. Maybe some day I'll know how it feels to have part in four years. A lot of people on campus are asking two questions. "How do you pass a comprehensive?" and "When's the Wolverine coming out?" Anybody knowing these answers please post in the Union — immediately!

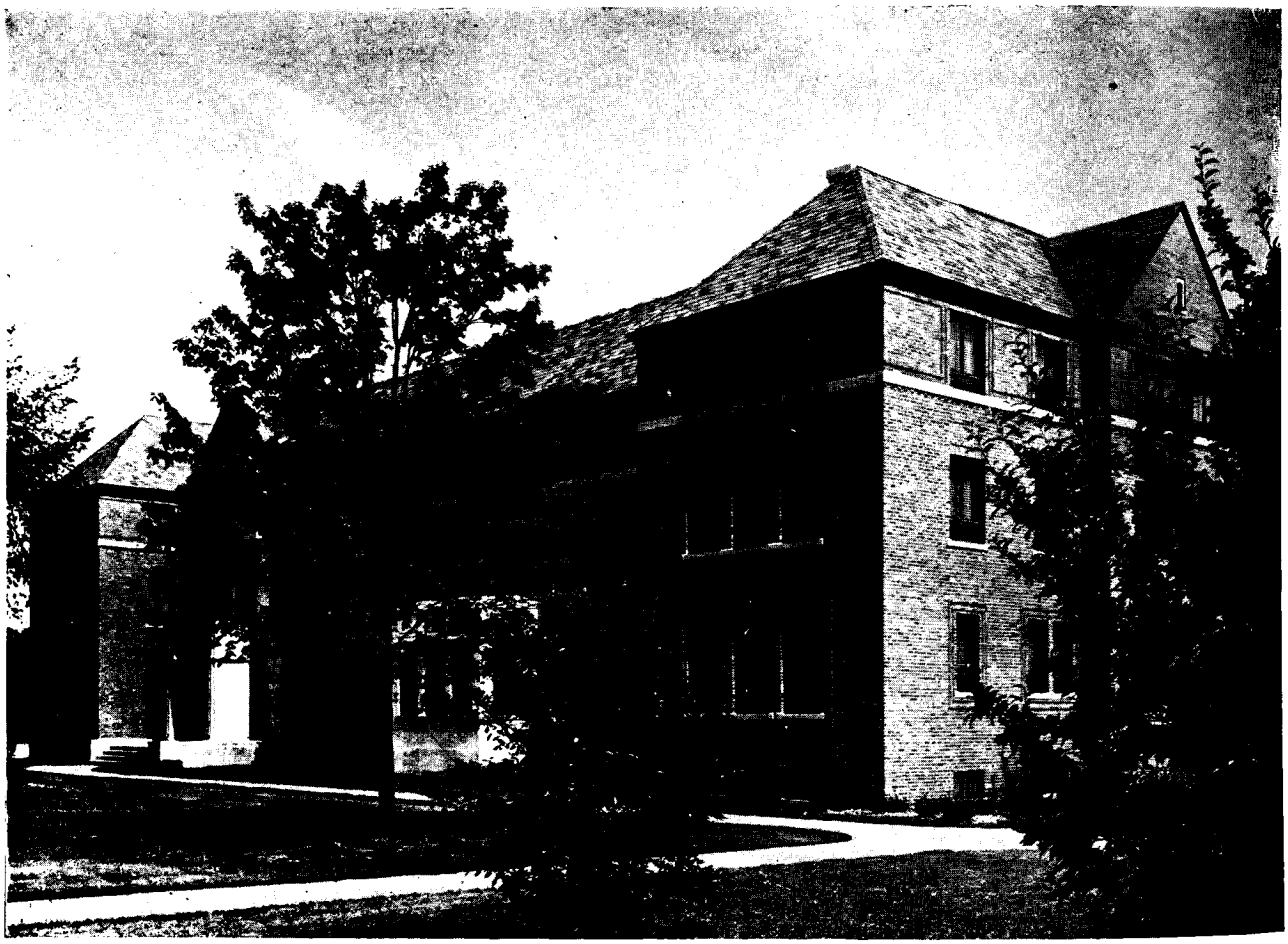

My roomy is going out, so I'll let her post this. Write soon. Love, Spartacus

The Financial CAPITAL of Central Michigan

Even as Lansing was chosen as the State capital in the early days of Michigan's establishment as a commonwealth because the city was centrally located in the lower Peninsula, so Lansing has become also the financial focal point for the entire Central Michigan territory surrounding the State Capital.

In Lansing — where per capita wealth is among the highest in the State — the Bank of Lansing has won and merited a growing clientele among State institutions, industrial and commercial firms and the farmers throughout the rich agricultural region of Central Michigan.

LANSING

To the Veteran at M. S. C.

Don't ever get the idea that physical or mental perfection is necessary to succeed in your chosen field. Entertain no such thought or let it prevent you from obtaining your objective.

The following 4F's all had handicaps; it never stopped them: Lord Byron had a club foot, Robert Louis Stevenson and John Keats had T.B., Charles Steinmetz and Alexander Pope were hunchbacks, Admiral Nelson had only one eye, Edgar Allan Poe was a psycho-neurotic, Charles Darwin was an invalid, Julius Caesar was an epileptic, Thomas Edison and Ludwig Van Beethoven were deaf, Peter Stuyvesant had a wooden leg. There are these, too, whom most of you have heard about: Franklin D. Roosevelt, King George, Joseph Stalin and Winston Churchill.

Of course, you are not 4F's — not by a long shot. You fought for your handicap. THE SAME OLD FIGHTING SPIRIT THAT HAS BROUGHT YOU BACK WILL PUSH YOU AHEAD. Forget the phrase or talk about "interrupted education" and let it cause you no worry. There is no terminal point to education, it is a continuous never-ending job. Everytime you stop to eat, sleep or earn a dollar, education is interrupted.

One of the best educated, most widely traveled men I have ever known was a veteran. War and its wounds had treated him unkindly, leaving him a cripple as well as changing his physical appearance. He had a cigar box full of medals, one or more from several countries, including two from the United States Government, even though he was not an American but a British aviator in World War I.

He wore only one of his decorations, The Rosette, on his coat lapel and those who knew its significance always gave him a salute. People he met were instantly attracted to him. He could discuss or talk on most any subject: travel, engineering, aviation, etc. During his travels he had made friends of most everyone worth knowing in any country you happened to be talking about. He had cards and identification entitling him admission to the world's best clubs and hotels. His best achievement was the ability to talk hard-headed business men, industrialists and bankers into supporting him, in style, at the best hotel, while they investigated schemes and intriguing patents he had mentioned in conversations in his various contacts. He had polish and finish that enhanced his appearance. Time proved he was an educated hobo, a gold brick — his contacts corroded rapidly. Once the connection was broken it could not be made again.

Education is mainly time and its application in passing to the problem at hand. True values are proved only under stress. You have some of the qualities that prove you can take it or you wouldn't be here, you lucky birds! Keep your contacts clean, for long life-time friendships.

You are at one of the country's best — if not the best — educational institutions on the most beautiful campus in America.

KEEP FIGHTING! MAKE THE MOST OF YOUR OPPORTUNITY!

First Impressions are Important

Yes, we all know the value of a first impression. It may be a step toward success — or failure — depending on what we make it. Even the newest recruit in our nation's fighting forces knows this, as he strives to make a good first impression which will prove he has what it takes to win.

This principle applies to yearbook covers — they are also first impressions. That is the reason why we are particular never to overlook the smallest detail of design, color, or finish, which will add to the beauty of your yearbook cover. Thus it will be one which you will remember with pride always.
