THE HOME STRETCH

The basketball season is over, the major social events are past, most of the class periods have been attended. There remain but two weeks of school, eight classes more to prepare in each course. The crucial period of the term is at hand. Labor which will be expended by many students will determine whether they are to participate in the joys and sorrows of the campus for another 12 weeks. It wouldn't be a bad idea for many to go light on campus activities and get in some real work. Perhaps one should start digging in the term papers which are due next week and which supposedly have been occupying a great deal of attention since the opening of the term. Also outside reading and similar efforts in which one is able to show his talent for procrastination must finally come to that point where they can be put off no longer. We are one and all here with that the time is short and the final day of reckoning approaches. May the lights hold out into the night.

ROADS

As the warm weather approaches and the roads about the campus softens it becomes apparent that they are deteriorating in living up to their names. We doubt if the pioneers had a rougher time driving their wagons through the mire forests than do those who jounce over the mud-covered roads and mountains which cumber our gravel drives. There again we some means of coating them smoother surface. If money is not available to have the roads repaired as certain there will be claims against us. Therefore let's contribute in the building fund as far as possible.

BASEBALL

The ball tossers are at work again, pulling flies, chasing grounders and getting up the throwing arms. At present the squad is working out in the recreation hall. We anticipate soon to secure their first outdoor practice. Then we will know for sure if the new coach has appeared also, that is, physically here.

PRECLASSIFICATION

In initiating a system of preclassification in the liberal arts department next term, it seems probable that the inefficient and time-wasting method of classifying and registering will be remedied somewhat. At least there will be no long lines waiting to pick courses hurriedly and haphazardly in an attempt to fill up credits and get into the next class. Nearly two weeks will be allotted for the work which was done in a day previously.

BLOODTHIRSTY

The campus Forum contains an article regarding military training in which with an entirely different spirit in the matter. The new entrant into the field of discussion demands better means of spilling gore than a way to stop it. However should the new plan be followed the new armory will have to be abandoned and military headquaters established in the hasty building we suppose that Colonel Shurterton will see drilling straight rows of men up and down the laboratory aisle while the cavalry officers would be riding saddles over galloping horses.

PATHS

The warm weather approaching and softening up sidewalks should be used for pathways and not the short cuts across the campus. If three persist in disregarding the rare beauty of our surroundings the campus will be marred with unattractive scars throughout this year. Let's lead and keep to the concrete.

NEW DORMS ARE TO BE PLANNED ON EASTERN STYLE

Officials to Make Trip of Inspection to Eastern Colleges to View Modern Structures.

COMPLETE FINANCE PLANS

Inspection of dormitories in eastern colleges will be made within the next few weeks to obtain the best plans possible for the contemplated new building on this campus according to Secretary H. H. Hollingshead.

Means of financing the project are being rapidly worked out by representatives of the college and officials of the Detroit Trust company which consent is to provide the money. At present are now preparing the suggestions for the new dormitories.

The most comfortable rooms with the least amount of cost is the problem which is occupying the attention of those engaged in the arrangements. Due to the fact that the scheme of financing is entirely new among state controlled schools, all possible care is being taken to make out a reasonable income. Previously the building of dormitories for colleges has been entirely dependent upon state appropriations or endowments. Should this new success with its probability be taken up by many other institutions stated Secretary Hollingshead.

The building will form the first part of the future series of improvements which it is planned to ultimate, and strict on this campus. Arrangements will follow the style now in vogue here known as collegiate Gothic. It is well determined as to what the plan of the rooms will be, although it is certain there will be changes as in the future. There will be included in the building and in the dormitories suites.

The contemplated unit will consist of 60 to 80 rooms and is expected to be situated across the street from the Union building, close to the rear back of the dormitory.

The entire new dormitory building will be completed by the fall of this year will be given to the students both in the dormitory and in the new dormitory. Present plans call for the point where the new dormitory will be built to be certain there will be changes as in the future.

In addition to the new dormitories other improvements planned for the campus include the enlargement of the dairy barn and will stand just north of the new horse barns on the south side of the river. They will be completed with the exception of the kitchen and the laundry which are to be completed in the spring of the following year. The new dormitory will be the only dormitory built on the south side of the river.

Michigan State News

Published twice weekly during the college year by the students of Michigan State College. Entered as second class matter at the post office, East Lansing, Michigan.

OUR BASEBALL FIELD

It may be a little early to speak of baseball, but in some things it is wise to be a little ahead of time. At present Coach Kobs has about 50 aspirants for his baseball team working out daily in Demonstration hall. They will go south in three weeks for a spring training trip. They will then return home to play the toughest schedule that a State team has ever been forced to meet.

Last season we had a great baseball team; in fact, it was one of the best nine in the country. This year we are due to have another winner. Several veterans are back and a lot of new material shows promise. Five or six big home games have been scheduled and the 1st is not yet complete. Notre Dame will be met here as usual and the University of Michigan will be played here on Alumni day during Commencement week.

At the big games last year, the crowds overflowed to the playing field itself. What will it be this year when Michigan and Notre Dame play at East Lansing? Our baseball teams for the past few years have been ranking with the best in the country while our baseball plant ranks with that of some little secondary institution. Our playing field is excellent but our stands are in pitiful condition. It is too bad that the students did not repeat their 1926 performance and burn that ancient relic of former days that stands along the third base line.

Baseball should prove a big drawing card this spring and we would like to suggest that some improvements be made in order to take care of the mammoth crowds that can be expected.

Mr. John Kelly
Michigan State News

I have been impelled to express my humble views on the much mooted question which has already filled so much State News space. If in your opinion, this paper has any semblance of truth, you have my hearty permits to let it into print.

During all the discussion of compulsory military training, I have waited in vain for the one criticism which above all others, would give the question a basis for debate. Despite paradoxical vocabularies and oratorical declaimations, I have not yet found any mention of the fundamental argument against the present system. We hear talk of illfitting, itchy uniforms, and half mile hikes to class, but never a mention of the fact that as sons of courageous ancestors we are bound to prepare for the defense of our ideals and capital. Now, I am willing to go out and help kill off any other nation Christian or otherwise, which has the temerity to get in our way. I maintain, however, that my government has no right to expect me to slaughter the enemy with a pugnacious spirit if he is bigger and better pugnacious than I.

The next war, our scientists, military men, and thinkers say, will be one of science gone mad. No art or science, however diabolical, will be forfeited in the face of an equally merciless foe. Why, then, in the name of expediency, do our college men have of tinker with weapons which will be obsolete three cities, et cetera, so we shall return to months after the declaration of the our own proper sphere of athletics next war? Why do we learn to kill? Incidentally, this is going to be a with a gun when we should be practicing athletic editor just showed some with microbes and disease germs' little boost for the Wolverine. The Of what value will our first aid be in of the pictures that are going to be in the warding off death rays and radioactive air-ships?

It is certainly not my wish to do away with our present military training if it can prove its case. It must, however, above everything else be expedient and devastating. Our foe will not use anticipated make-shifts. Therefore if we are to preserve the glory of our land, we must be in readiness to apply wholesale methods of destruction.

Well, children, I suppose that you are all getting ready to cast your ballot in the all-college elections. It's a wonderful thing to have a ballot to cast, but when you are doing the casting, be very careful that you don't hit someone and injure them seriously. A few words from the wise on the methods of voting:

When the ballot is given to you, don't look foolish and say "What's this for?" Instead, retire with it gracefully to a corner, balance it on your knee, borrow a pencil from your nearest neighbor, and mark the ballot by putting a cross opposite the name of the person you wish to see get the office. The cross does not indicate that they are conditioned but that they will get the office on condition they get enough votes. That done, you will cautiously slip the ballot in the ballot box, being very careful that no one sees you, for it is a well known fact that the administrative board stuffs the ballot boxes to make sure that no radical gets elected to a responsible position on the campus. Enough of this, we are no authority on politics, weapons which will be obsolete three cities, et cetera, so we shall return to months after the declaration of the our own proper sphere of athletics next war? Why do we learn to kill? Incidentally, this is going to be a with a gun when we should be practicing athletic editor just showed some with microbes and disease germs' little boost for the Wolverine. Prom-Trotters Enjoy Brilliant Revel Given by Class of 1929

A formal prom that lost all stiffness and dignity, that became a mad swirl of youth and music and riotous fun—that was the J-Hop of the class of '29. A hop that has already gone down in the social register as an unqualified and unadulterated success.

Beginning with a formal dinner at 7 o'clock, followed by the introduction of the toastmaster, Harry Burris, by John Anderson, president of the class, and continued by short talks from Harry Manor and Jack Hornbeck, each part of the program passed smoothly. The J-Hop, class of '28, was the grand partner for the grand march. As the prom trotters came up the platform all marching abreast, they formed a picture. Innumerable cameras were clicking away. The orchestra struck up an impudent J-Hop trot, and the evening began.

The theater's orchestra proved their mettle by intermission they were
