WELCOME, ALUMNI

Another turn of the calendar brings us to one of the most enjoyable times of the school year when Homecoming is observed. Alumni from one to fifty years standing will again walk over the scenes of their school days and meet old friends who have been scattered to the four corners of the earth, sparing only a few days at this time of the year to again return to their Alma Mater. The State News extends a most cordial welcome to the "old boys" who will again be with us tomorrow.

WHO SHALL VOTE?

Election of corps sponsors this year again emphasized the fallacy of allowing underclassmen to participate in the selection of these positions.

In the junior and senior classes alone there are many men who are neither personally acquainted or perhaps have never heard of the candidates in question. How can an intelligent vote be cast when such a condition exists.

In the two lower classes the condition is much more pronounced. A conservative estimate would be that less than one per cent of the freshmen know for whom they are voting and less than five per cent of the sophomores are casting an intelligent vote.

The only solution to the problem is to confine the suffrage on this question to the upperclassmen and then we will fall far short of perfection in the matter.

THE COUNCIL CONSIDERS

The Interfraternity Council will vote upon the proposal of deferring fraternity winter term initiations until Farmers' Week and limiting the time of duration to three days, at its meeting Monday night. At present the probable outcome is somewhat uncertain but it is believed that most fraternity representatives are in favor of the proposed move.

The deferring of the date and the limiting of the duration of fraternity initiations are both admirable features. Farmers' Week, coming near the middle of the term as it does, presents a time when freshmen will have become more or less settled scholastically and can more easily spare the time needed in going through the initiations. In past years with the initiations usually coming the first or second week of the term, first year men are thrown into a scholastic slump that many never come out of and eventually feel the faculty ax on their neck. This would be permanently overcome with the adoption of the recent proposal.

The limiting of the duration of the initiations would not only be easier on the neophytes but also on the fraternities, cutting objectionable "horse play" to a minimum and getting the thing over with as quick as possible.

With the placing of the date during Farmers' Week as proposed, faculty members would be much more disposed to be a bit lenient with the slumbering or absent yearlings. Many classes are disrupted during Farmers' Week which is an added incentive to set this time definitely as the time for all fraternity initiations.

AN OFFICE OF TRUST

One or two complaints have been registered with the Student Council by East Lansing people who employ college students. One business man in particular expressed disappointment in the dependability of the young man he had hired in a position of trust, claiming that without any notice whatever, the employee had walked out of the place of business without returning. The student did not make any complaint over the nature of the work nor signify his intention of leaving—merely walking out and forgetting his responsibility.

Such a thing as this, no matter how small, is a black mark for all members of the student body who depend upon outside work to defray college expenses. College men should be dependable in any position offered and failure to live up to the trust merely reflects upon other students who are trustworthy.

It, therefore, devolves upon all students who depend upon employment in East Lansing, to remind their responsibility to the employer and their obligation to other students in similar straits, and to give the employer a square deal.

CAMPUS FORUM

To the Campus Forum:

During a recent trip to the University of Iowa, I was frequently in the Union Memorial building at that school. I noticed a very novel feature of the place, that I think could be worked out here. In one section of the wall was a large panel in which postoffice boxes of the fraternities and sororities were placed. Many students were going to and coming from these boxes at all hours. Upon inquiring about the boxes I was informed that a few years ago the Union was used by the students very little. Someone suggested putting the mail boxes in the lobby, and the plan was very successful. The Union is now the center of all student activities, and is a gathering place for the entire student body.

I would like to suggest that a similar plan be considered for Michigan State's Union. What it has done for the University of Iowa's Union can be done for ours. Information about the plan could probably be obtained from their Union.

CHOOSE BAND FOR SOPH FALL PARTY

Tickets Go On Sale Monday As Plans Are Completed for Annual Social Event.

Ralph Morrison and his orchestra, a popular eight piece Grand Rapids organization, will play for the 1929 Sophomore Fall party to be held Saturday, November 2, in the Union ballroom, according to an announcement made public late last night by Melville Pfing, chairman of the music committee. Tickets will be placed on sale next Monday and may be procured from any of the class representatives in fraternity houses or at the Union.

Morrison's orchestra, which has been acclaimed one of the outstanding bands in Grand Rapids and the surrounding district, has made an enviable reputation for itself through appearances in Detroit and Ann Arbor. As the orchestra has never before played for an open party at Michigan State its initial appearance is eagerly awaited for. However, five members of the band have been engaged several times by a number of societies for private parties. Selection of this band gives assurance of good music for the party.

With the announcement of the orchestra word comes relative to the distribution of the tickets. There will be a representative appointed in every fraternity who will take complete charge of the sale in his house. Non-fraternity men may purchase their tickets at the Union. The price is two dollars per couple.

An appropriate decorating theme has been selected and work is well under way. Novel programs have been ordered and are sure to score a hit.

As only a limited number of tickets will be sold, it is suggested that to avoid disappointment, they be purchased early next week.

BISSELLS GUESTS OF IOWA ALUMNI ASS'N

In honor of Dean G. W. Bissell, dean of engineering at Michigan State college, and Mrs. Bissell who are leaving this fall for California, the Iowa State college alumni association gave a dinner in the Union Memorial building Wednesday Oct. 16 at 6:30 p. m. Out-of-town guests in a series of talks paid tribute to Dean Bissell, who was formerly head of the civil engineering department at Iowa State.

MICHIGAN STATE READY FOR
INTERSECTIONAL GRID CLASHNorth Carolina State Eleven Arrives Today for Homecoming Day
Game of Crowley-Coached Machine; Big Crowd Expected.

SERIOUSLY handicapped by injuries and a lack of practice this week, Michigan State will meet the North Carolina State eleven here tomorrow in the third home game of the season. Saturday will also mark the annual Homecoming for old grads as well as being Parents' Day, so that an unusually large crowd for the game is expected.

With Dill, veteran left tackle, and Capt. Fred Danziger, fullback, both out of the game with serious injuries, Coach James H. (Sleepy) Crowley has been hustling to work every material into the two recent scrimmages. This fact, coupled with the lack of practice due to the inclement weather, has proved a serious handicap to the Spartans. Yesterday's scrimmage with the freshman squad has been the only outdoor workout for the squad this week. Other drills have been held in the riding hall of the armory.

The Green and White gridders have been drilled extensively this week on the fundamentals of the game as well as building up an aerial defense. At the Wolf Pack is reported to be strong in this department. During the scrimmages in the armory, dummy drills on North Carolina plays were run through with the frosh opposing the varsity.

The Wolverines have had three battles thus far, turning in one victory over Wake Forest and losing to Washington and Lee and Clemson. In the last meeting with the Spartans, the Wolves went home with the light end of a 7-0 count. In the preceding year the Carolina squad defeated the Green and White gridders.

Only two men who played in the game against the Spartans last year will start the game for the North Carolina eleven tomorrow. They are Capt. John Lepo, tackle, and Jake Jordan, fullback. If Lepo is in shape for tomorrow's clash, it will be the

FROSH GRIDDERS
MEET YPSI SQUADM. S. T. C. Yearlings Play On Spartan Gridiron Saturday at 10:00.

Michigan State's freshman football eleven swings into action here tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock when the Spartan yearling clash with the formidable Michigan State Teachers college frosh on the State gridiron.

The gridders from Ypsilanti come here today as a strong aggregation with a powerful offensive attack. However little is known as to the make-up of the downstagers.

Coach Kobb has his Spartan first machine primed for tomorrow and hopes to open the 1929 schedule with a victory. Supplied with plenty of good line and backfield material, the Spartan yearling coaches have developed what is expected to be one of the best first year teams in years.

When the teams line up for the kickoff tomorrow the State eleven will line up with an exceptionally capable backfield consisting of Bud Meyer, quarterback, Noble Elowitz and Bob Mott, halfbacks, Keith Kowach, fullback, George Hill and McKinnis are other usual calling prospects. March and Bush, halfbacks, and Kennedy, fullback are other possible starters.

Gray or Ansel will be at left end and Brunette or Sweeney, left tackle, Collins or Broughton, left guard, Foxworth or Hyatt, center, Hawksworth or Bowen, right guard, McDowell or Kennedy, right tackle, and Vandermere or Woods at right end.

First time this season that he has had a chance to show his real ability, Capt. Lepo has been under the care of a physician for the past few weeks for ulcers of the stomach and has had considerable weight.

Coach Crowley has shifted his backfield around in hopes of developing a strong offense. His present combination includes Basil Melton, star right half, Norm Jeffrey, Ken Aderholt and Gus Wright, the fullback. Capt. Lepo will direct the plays from a huddle.

Thursday's scrimmage against the frosh showed that the Spartans have wasted time this week although they could only practice out-of-doors one night. The Green and White line received attack made by freshman backs armed with Wolfpack combinations while the backfield showed a decided improvement in aerial defense. The Spartan offense with Grove making made a fair showing and tried out several new plays during the seven season.

Coach Crowley's men are in fine trim for their intersectional tilt tomorrow and returning alumni are promised plenty of action.

Philadelphia, Pa., Dec. 12.—The University of Pennsylvania last week was presented with the mammoth organ built for the Requestration here in 1926 and bought later by Charles F. Curtis. The organ has been installed in the main auditorium of the university. The exercises at which the organ was officially presented to the university also marked the dedication of the building in which it was installed which was built at a cost of $1,000,000. The auditorium was completed last summer but when Mr. Curtis' gift was announced it was decided to withhold formal dedication until the organ could be installed.
