Students Should Attend

College Lectures.

With the appearance of Emil Lengyel as the third speaker on the lecture series, Michigan State students were given another opportunity for a cultured use of their leisure time. However, the attendance was "just fair." The Liberal Arts Board has arranged for a series of eight outstanding world figures to speak on the course this year. The speakers are not only interesting personalities, but emissaries of the subjects which they discuss. They are, therefore, as well as educational and give students an opportunity to see in person famous contemporary authors, journalists, adventurers, and professional men.

This year, the Liberal Arts Board is presenting another series of interesting figures and should

EISSLER NAMED TO CONVENTION

Will Represent Local Chapter at First National Blue Key Conclave.

Walter G. Eissler, president of the local chapter of Blue Key, was chosen at a recent meeting of the service honorary as delegate to the first annual Blue Key national convention to be held at the Stevens hotel in Chicago on December 28 and 29. Elton Mollett was chosen as alternate. The delegates in attendance at the convention will become the first members of the national chapter.

The motive for this first annual conclave is fivefold. The five problems for discussion are: Government and management problems, local and national programs, membership, ceremonies and public relations.

The convention will open with registration at 10 a. m. on December 28. There will be an official banquet and dance following in the evening. The convention will conclude the following day with a luncheon and a sightseeing tour. It has also been announced that Blue Key members will assist committees to facilitate the handling of the Michigan State football team for high school football stars from all over the state, which will be held on campus tomorrow. Eissler has also announced that Blue Key is proposing to purchase trophies on consignment and sell them to freshmen at cost. This undertaking is being planned because of the success of the recent sale of pots under the same plan.

He congratulated for their fine program which features next the famous Will Durant. State students should take advantage of this free beneficial entertainment and attend the lectures.—J. Q.

Praises Chairman of Football Bust

H. P. Proulx, assistant liberal arts dean, and general chairman of the football bust to be held in the gymnasium Saturday evening and W. G. Knickerbocker, president of the Michigan State College Alumni association, deserve a great deal of credit for the sterling effect they have put forth in making this the greatest football banquet in the history of this fine institution. They have made it possible for the closest of State football fans to hear the great Gordon "Mickey" Cochrane, the dynamic leader of the Detroit Tigers and Colonel Pickert, the Detroit commissioner of police and the leader in the drive against crime in the motor city.

Due to the fine organization set up by Proulx, nearly all of the 300 tickets to this affair were sold a week ago and arrangements had been completed. Another gentleman who has made this successful event possible is none other than Charles W. Bachman, famous coach of the Spartans, and a man whose all-around ability and untiring effort brought to this college its best football team. Coaches Castrol and King also deserve a lot of credit for the team's fine season. All hail to the Michigan State Spartans of 1934.

STUFF AND NONSENSE

The week and the term come to a close in the same uneventful way—with the arrival of Saturday. On second thought, however, we notice that the co-ed strife over the location of the college Christmas tree resulted in its placement in front of the Union. The winter formal announcements are still pending, though we can state that Blue Key may lead off the party season again, followed by the Engineers' ball around the end of January. The J-Hop and Military ball will provide the usual peak of activity in February. Exams will supply the necessary damper at present, but don't worry too much. And the Kerns disaster will be a national tragedy for many days to come... though it's hard to realize that, familiar as we are with the place.

REGRESSION

With Christmas a few weeks off, many of us would like to be kids again. As Wordsworth has philosophized in his Ode on Intimations of Immortality from Thoughts of Early Childhood, we feel that something is missing in life after we have passed the very youthful stage—something that was fascinating then and commonplace now, though it's still here. When we were playing with sleds and putting wet mittens on the radiator at night to dry, we were spiritual pals of Santa Claus every year. We speculated on whether the jovial saint would come by sleigh or airplane, we wondered naively at what our parents were whispering about, we scampered to bed on Christmas eve because we knew we had to be good or the old boy would find out and do something about it. Now we drag the tax out of mirthless and ponder over who should receive gifts and who should receive a mere card. We count our shekels again and plan a social campaign that will be climaxed on New Year's eve. And when the holidays come around, they're just dates on the calendar, chances to sleep late in the morning. It's funny—this growing up stuff, and a little mystifying. But things are like that.

SOCIAL ABUSAGE

After a week-end with Emily Post, we have finally learned how to write acceptable Christmas letters. Of course we can't guarantee your handwriting—all socially acceptable letters must be handwritten, and we guarantee the letter and we'll guarantee to be angry if you don't take it as a friendly suggestion. You start out like this: Dear folks (auntie, uncle, grandma) according to who has the best Christmas savings account. Again, Dear Uncle, I'm sorry that I haven't written before, but I have to work so much because I haven't much money that I don't have a great deal of time. However, during the holidays I ought to have lots of leisure. I'll try to write you again after Christmas and tell you how everything came out.

The weather is pretty cold around here and I mind it quite a bit because my mittens are all shot and I hate to buy a new one until I can get a nice woolly gray one to go with my black coat. And I need gloves, too, but it's hard to get six 7's around here, so I guess I'll have to wait awhile.

Pretty soon the formal parties will start around here and I'm trying without much success to line up a set of black studs. And even when I do line up a set, which is practically impossible, I'll have to get a new shirt. I could wear my roommates, but he takes a 12 1/2 and that's a little loose, because

Forestry Projects Here Attract Much Attention

College Department Under Direction of Prof. P. A. Herbert, Does Much to Aid Lumbermen of Michigan.

By RICHARD ROBEY

Increasing interest on the part of state and national departments in reforestation has confronted the teacher and research workers of the M. S. C. forestry staff with many new problems. The forestry department, occupying the red brick building on the east side of the campus, which stands modestly back from the walk, being almost overshadowed by adjacent structures, is the scene of these new activities.

The forestry department under the guidance of Prof. P. A. Herbert is constantly on the alert for new equipment and the broadening of its sphere of experimentation.

In recent interviews, Prof. H. S. Nevin of the forestry department revealed some of the problems which the department is attempting to solve at the present time.

Several weeks ago the department completed the installation of a dry kiln for experimental as well as practical use. A dry kiln for those who do not already know is an oven-like structure used for the "curing" or drying of wood. All lumber must be dried out in this way so that it will not warp or check when subjected to weather conditions.

This piece of apparatus is the most modern obtainable and is equipped with automatic controls and recording instruments. These controls maintain the proper temperature, humidity and circulation of the air, and record graphically the conditions in these respects at all times. The kiln has a capacity of over 1,200 board feet, and is capable of drying any kind of wood. The buildings and grounds department cooperated in installing the equipment and the physics department in calibrating the instruments. The forestry department has been looking forward to such a piece of apparatus for a long time and is very much pleased with the results obtained in experiments thus far.

Two test runs have already been made with the kiln and a third is underway at the present time. The present experiment is an interesting one in that it has to do with white oak cooperage stock used in making beer kegs, etc. Many distillers have met with serious losses due to the cracking open of kegs, so the forestry department is attempting to discover a method of drying the wood to prevent this warping.

The kiln, besides being used for experimental purposes, is placed at the disposal of forestry students so that they gain practical experience. Personally I always wear a 12. And then I'll have to worry about getting a pair of gray gloves, the same size as everyday gloves, only gray and lighter in weight. After that I'll be all set, and I'm looking forward to a happy season in spite of my low finances.

Well, uncle, I guess that's about all. I'd like to be able to promise you those all-elastic suspenders you want, but as I said I'm pretty broke, and that's pretty tough on me, uncle, because if anyone believes in GIVING, it's me. At any rate, I hope we all have a very Merry Christmas. Hoping to hear that you received my letter. I remain, Your loving nephew, XXX.

ACHIEVEMENT

Under the insidious guidance of William Kirkpatrick, the State News is now becoming a den of technocracy. It started when the lads decided that if they were to be warm nights, they'd have to fire their own furnace. Kirk took charge because he's a white collar man—the rest of the lugs wear bargain-sale blue, etc. and with his business ad training, perfected a system that is verily a fool-proof. Warner excepted. On the wall we now have an impressive chart showing the seasonal rise and fall of the steam temperature readings. For those who can get technical along with the Spoofer, this seasonal stuff is based on sound economics and indicates that the whole thing is necessary because winter is with us—in the summer we substitute pictures of bathing queens. We have no cynical reading because the furnace won't stand up that long, and we have no residual notations because the residents don't matter. At the end of the season we shall draw up a secular recording, if we don't run out of paper—and firemen.

Above the colored graph is a less impressive paper carrying water temperature records and showing degrees of heat at each 15-minute reading. All in all, this system gives the supervisor a sufficient amount of training to enable him to get a job as technical director of the American Association of Journeymen Janitors. And if Prof. Davis reads this and sees how well the Spoofer understands his subject, we might raise our own flunk average in econ.

few years ago it tended towards the abstract, perhaps that is why so many pictures were hung upside-down by the owners and so proudly displayed as being the latest thing in the art world. At present, however, the tendency is away from the abstract. True modern art is not "futuristic" or "modernistic." These are terms given to the "junk" that is produced by the mediocre artist.

Along these same lines of art education, classes are conducted on Saturdays for small children. Here the children are given a free hand to express their own ideas. The classes are conducted by art education students. This Saturday the mothers of these fifty children have been invited to attend the class and observe the manner in which the work is being carried on.

The art department of this college is rated as one of the best in the United States. Many students who plan to make art their career select Michigan State for their training, passing by courses offered at universities much older and larger than our institution.

with stooped shoulders and snowy white hair. His eyes are cloudy, his voice low and gentle, and he gives one the impression of being a sophisticated scholar rather than a lecturer. When spoken to, he gives all his attention to the speaker and, unlike many platform men, has no trace of a face-tious "time" in his answer.

Asked next about conditions of travel in Germany, Lengyel refresherman Sparten players, and Dice Remington will present in person his All-State High School team, chosen for the Detroit News. President Robert S. Shaw and other famous personalities will also speak.

Three trophies will be awarded of varsity players. The Governor of Michigan award, a handsome engraved watch, silver frame cup and plaque will go to the most valuable player whose name will be announced at this time and will be presented by Mr. Bennett J. Abbott, secretary of the state administrative board. Another award which will be given is the James Kilbride trophy which goes to the Spartan player who has gained universal favor among the coaching staff and close followers of the team. The Harold Sweden silver trophy which goes to the winner of the University of Detroit-Michigan State game will also be tendered the Spartans.

Visiting high school boys are to be entertained with a diversified program of athletics during the afternoon. The youngsters all transported here by alumni, will be kept busy until the banquet starts at 6 o'clock. Vaudeville number and music will be offered during the course of the event. A football, autographed by all members of the Spartan squad, will be given away during the evening.

Interfraternity Party to Climax Social Activities for Fall Term; Two Societies Plan Open Houses

Dance, dine, and be merry for next week we flunk seems to be the motto of the Interfraternity Council which is staging a big Christmas party in the Union tonight. Festive decorations featuring Christmas trees and wall hangings of fraternity emblems and Greek letters promise to make this an unforgettable last party of the term. Other groups apparently undismayed by approaching finals are the Sigma Alpha Epsilons, who are entertaining the Alpha Chi Omega at the S. A. E. house Saturday night in one of the joint fraternity-party parties that are getting to be just an old S. A. E. custom since that fraternity inaugurated the idea last year by entertaining the Chi Omegas, and the Alpha Gamma Rho, who are having one final fling with no open house before facing the sad solemn problem of term examinations.

Interfraternity Party Given Friday in Union

Fraternity men and their guests will flock to the music of Fergie's and Friday night in the Union ballroom. The party will feature an unusual arrangement of the ballroom with the orchestra near the wall opposite the stage and Christmas decorations combined with fraternity emblems to make a beautiful room. Dean and Mrs. C. E. Emmons and Prof. and Mrs. C. Davis will act as chaperons for the party.

DORM PARTIES IN FULL SWING

Women's Building to Hold Fair Saturday; Mayo Dinners are Held.

The plans for the Women's building Christmas party are rapidly progressing. It will be held Saturday night following their birthday and Christmas dinner combined, at which the gifts will be distributed from the tree. After they are unwrapped they will be given to the Red Stocking club for distribution among the poor families. Grace Anderson, social chairman of the dorm, is in charge of the arrangements for the party and the informal dance which is to be held afterward.

Both wings of Mary Mayo held their birthday dinners Wednesday night. Tables were placed in the center of the dining rooms for the girls who have birthdays in December, and a cake was decorated especially for them. West Mayo held its Christmas tree Thursday night, and it has been rumored that there were plenty of hints and insinuations given through the choice of presents. After the gifts were unwrapped they were given to the Red Stocking club for distribution. East Mayo met in the lounge after dinner Wednesday night to present the house mother, Miss Richards, with a Christmas gift. Their party will be Saturday night, all the arrangements have been made for the transportation and entertainment of the 50 poor children who will be their guests.

up. Dr. Lengyel pointed out another danger for the Nazi chancellor. "Hitler," he explained, "is a native of Austria, a country greatly hated by Germans, and he became a German citizen only recently. At present, blind to the fact that their country is headed by a foreigner, the German people someday will awake to this fact and when that time arrives trouble will ensue."

Still another danger sign pointing to the cessation of Hitler's power, which Dr. Lengyel referred to was the fact that he was brought into office through the efforts of a powerful group of capitalists and industrialists who backed his program and now it appears that he has disappointed them. Another foreboding indication is that 19,000,000 Germans voted against Hitler in 1932 as compared with 17,000,000 who supported the dictator. The majority who opposed the chancellor in that last campaign however had no capable leadership, which seemed to minimize its importance. Hitler's drive against religion is magnified by distance and is not as acute as it seems, Dr. Lengyel added. "When German Nazis invaded Austria and attempted to possess important Austrian government positions, Germany made a stupid blunder," the speaker declared. "Austria would hate to be a suburb of Berlin, yet Germany does want Austria, but doesn't dare to take the country by force."

The fact that Germany gave up rights to the Polish corridor in a pact signed during Hitler's first year in office, was also criticized in Dr. Lengyel's speech.

Patton Acquires New Title Of "Iron Man"

Prof. Fred Patton, head of the voice department, has added another accomplishment to his already long list and, incidentally, another enviable title: States Iron Man.

This title was unofficially bestowed upon him last week-end after he had made two public appearances in two distant cities within 24 hours and a second appearance on a day's notice. After singing at the faculty concert in Grand Rapids Friday night, he drove back to East Lansing that night and took the sleeper to Chicago. There Mr. Patton sang, without any rehearsal, the part of Wolfram in the opera Tannhauser, in a matinee performance of the Chicago Opera company.

Van Fassen, Garlock, Herrick, and White on Injured List as State Prepares for First Big Game of Season with University of Michigan on December 15.

When the Michigan State basketball squad goes into action against the University of Michigan on Saturday, December 15, they will be seriously handicapped by the loss of several of their key men.

The Spartan basketball team will meet Michigan at Ann Arbor in the first big game on their schedule, and the list of casualties, which includes Van Fassen, Herrick, Garlock, and White, will be a decided set-back, and will decrease the chances of a victory for State.

Van Fassen, playing his third year on the squad, will be definitely out of the game due to a case of influenza. Van is a dangerous man under the basket, and his loss will be keenly felt by the Spartans when they clash with the Wolverines.

Herrick, who will be remembered for the team work that he and Rouse built up around the guard position last year, is still bothered by an injured ankle which he received a few weeks ago.

Russell Reynolds, senior quarterback from Flint, Michigan, was elected honorary football captain at a meeting of the letter winners held Wednesday.

Garlock, substitute for Herrick at the guard position, will probably be out with an injured shoulder which he received in the game with Kalamazoo college last week.

White, a junior and one of Van Alstyne's prime forwards, will also be out with an infected foot sustained during practice.

This leaves Coach VanAlstyne with comparatively few men to fall back on.

STATE CAGERS PLAY FOR VANS

Many Former Stars are Featured on Team of Triple-A Basketball Champions.

Michigan State's contribution to independent basketball throughout the state has been a great aid to several of these teams, but never has there been so many college stars on one club and from a single institution as the group of sensational basketballers who will romp over the basketball courts of the mid-west while engaging some of the best teams in the nation this winter. The team referred to is the Lansing Vans, last year's State Triple-A champions, and recognized as one of the greatest teams ever to amass this coveted prize.

The state champs are composed of Maurice Byrnes, regular center at State last year, besides being one of the most feared pivot men in collegiate circles, also high scorer of the State team during last season's schedule.

"Pat" Patchett, forward and captain of the State squad last year, Patchett, a heavy, fast and expert ball handler in addition to being a good shot from the floor.

"Eddy" Briggs, who played one year on the freshman team here at State, but left school to become one of the leading men in independent circles in the state before last year and is an expert shot.

Art Huggs, former captain of the Spartan five and with Scott he teamed up to create one of the greatest guard combinations in State history.

One that compares favorably with the Herrick-Rouse combination of the present team.

"Ed" Riordan, manager of the team this year and a man who has served State in great fashion for two seasons. Ed is playing at guard and is one of the big reasons that the Vans won the State title.

"Doc" Hopkins, another forward, who played three years with Ohio Wesleyan and was the most feared man in the Ohio conference. Hopkins stands an even six feet and a great man under the basket.

"Jerry" McCaslin, another former State captain and a forward on the Vans team. Jerry captained the team in 1932 and 33. A great team player and a fine one-handed shot who has been sought after by several of the leading colleges in this section.

The team this year will be strictly a travelling team and games have already been scheduled with Flint, I. M. M. A., Kalamazoo, Grand Rapids, Cedarburg, Berlin, Hattiesburg, Greenburg, Alpena, Ann Arbor, Y. M. C. A. state "Y" champs and Port Huron "Y" finalists in the national "Y" tourney at Colorado Springs in 1934 and also state champs that year. Fisher Body of Detroit who are headed among others by the great Louie Jagnow of Jackson and the team the Vans defeated in the finals of the state tourney by a score of 44 to 19. Belmont, Princeton of Detroit and many others to be scheduled within a few weeks. The Vans plan a trip through the mid-west playing the leading teams in the large cities.

Manager Riordan stated today that the first game of the season will be played within the next two weeks and from then on two and three games a week will be played. Any teams, any place wishing to play this team call Ed Riordan at 2-1742 at his home on Logan street.

A Dope Chart on Michigan State's Opponents

While everyone else in the sport world is picking his all-American team, the State News staff is now coming out with its selection of an All-State Opponent team for the past season. The selection this year is especially difficult because, although there were any number of season stars on the opposing teams, few were outstanding in the engagements with the Spartans.

We picked the players on our team because they stood out when they played State. In most cases when this is done the team chosen usually ranks inferior to other all-star squads that might be picked.

The guard position was one of the big reasons why the Titans outgained State on the ground. Steen, picked on all of the eastern teams, teamed with Vavra to form one of the best tackle combinations in the country. The Spartans on this team will stack up against any opposition.

ALL-STATE OPPONENT TEAM

ENDS	Lewis, Carnegie
	Muth, Marquette
TACKLES	Steen, Syracuse
	Barrett, Detroit
GUARDS	Sutton, Grinnell
	Hildebrand, Michigan
CENTER	Singer, Syracuse
QUARTER	Conner, Texas A & M
HALEBACKS	Boyd, Marquette
	Nott, Detroit
FULLBACK	Ginter, Syracuse

but this lineup could hold its own with any team in the country. Here we have offensive power, a strong defense, excellent passing, good kicking, generalship, and blocking.

Directing our team's attack is Conner, captain of the Texas A & M attack. Haggood of Kansas is rated on a par with the Texan, but Conner is given the choice because he directed his team to two well-earned touchdowns against Bachman's cohorts. Both these men did the punting for their team and both are excellent passers.

At the halfback posts are two of the best backs in the middle west. Hildebrand was the big threat of the Marquette attack and carried the brunt of the backfield defense as well. His point averaged 44 yards and kept the Spartans in the hole throughout most of that game.

BIG TEN STICKLERS

Minnesota's championship team for 1934 was recently riddled by the big shots of the Big Ten committee, taking from the squad three of its most valuable men. They are Stan Kotska, Bill Bevan and George Svendsen.

Big Ten colleges do not allow their freshmen to play games with outside competition. All competition must be within the college itself. Therefore, all students who transfer from another college which permits outside competition are penalized one year of their eligibility. They are allowed to play three years under ordinary circumstances. Whereby, my friends, Kotska, Bevan and Svendsen are all through with college football. And all because they played on a freshman team before they came under the mighty regime of the Big Ten.

Now, if the Big Ten was not a stickler for exact interpretation of the rules, and if they were not slightly hard headed (or headed as you will), they might have given the boys a break. The three players had gone to Oregon to be under the instruction of Dr. C. W. Spears, the former coach at Minnesota. When he returned to Wisconsin the players were barred from going with him because of a hastily passed and somewhat fishy ruling that students who transferred from another college could not play under a former coach. This forced them to go to Minnesota, with one year sheared off of their playing eligibility.

Then there's the case of one Pacetti, star guard of the University of Wisconsin. It looks as though the spirited lads from Minneapolis want to get even, or something. Anyway, they claim that Pacetti couldn't Pacetti of his courses while in college, and that he dropped completely out during the winter and spring terms of 1934, but had returned in September and after taking an examination had been ruled eligible to play football.

The Minnesota newspapers claim that a complete investigation of eligibility rules should be made throughout all of the schools in the western conference, and pointed out in no uncertain language that even more so after the action taken against the men at the University of Minnesota who were barred under the freshman ruling.

Not being on the "in" concerning all of this prattle about the

MAY ORGANIZE BOXING TEAM

Prospects Good as 30 Candidates Turn Out; Wisconsin Scheduled Tentatively.

Prospects for organizing a boxing team at Michigan State college are very favorable, according to Coach Ervin Bortman, who to date has a total of 30 experienced candidates anxious to try out for the team. Ralph Young, athletic director, has received word from the University of Wisconsin that the athletic board there would be willing to pay all traveling expenses to have a State team appear at Madison. Both the Wisconsin offer and the large turnout should help to influence the athletic board to pass favorably on the organization of the team at the meeting to be held tomorrow.

The intercollegiate boxing rules of three 2-minute rounds will prevail. Ten-ounce boxing gloves will be used. Weight classes will begin with the 115 pound division with a representative with each 10-pound increase in the weight. Boxers must come within four pounds of their weight limit.

Experienced men who would stand excellent chances of making the team are: James Emmmons, runner-up in the Detroit Free Press Golden Gloves of 1932 in the light heavyweight division. Emmmons has since that time gained weight and will probably enter the heavyweight class. Jack Vesceville was New York A. A. 1175-pound champ last year and would prove a valuable man on any boxing combination.

Duke Zarza, last year's 165 pound champ at college, will also see service with the team in the event that it is organized. Don Miller, central up by this midwest guard. He was one of the best that State faced.

Milt Singer gets the nod for Marquette because of his team's best pivot men in the east, and the Hilltopper was a bulwark in another of the strong Marquette lines.

Weizorek of Detroit and Mihm of Carnegie were two other outstanding backs. Austin of Michigan and Dollaway of Carnegie came in for consideration on the line. But the final selection is as strong as any and is a fitting representative of the opposition faced by the Spartans in the past season.

At the University of Illinois six Kappa Sig freshmen had dates at the same house and all 12 of them piled into one taxicab. Maybe they have a Ford too.

The scandal column of the Purdue Exponent received a letter from a student protesting against the fact that the same names were used week after week. We see and the motion.

Big Ten, we reserve our opinions to ourselves. But it is evident
