Glum News

Glum news for students writing final exams this week is the estimate made by the registrar's office that there will probably be approximately 500 less students attending Michigan State college at the beginning of winter term than there were at the beginning of fall term. However, this may not be so bad as it seems, since there are many reasons for the decrease in enrollment. Graduation, financial difficulties, transition to different schools, marriage, and other causes are responsible, as well as academic failures. Already more than 100 students have dropped out since the beginning of the term.

Tickets, Please

Assistant Athletic Director L. L. Primodig has announced there will be a block of seats reserved for Michigan State rooters at the Orange bowl game in Miami. Each ticket will cost $3.30. For those finding the price too steep, other tickets will be available at $2.20 and $1.10. All tickets must be ordered through the Recreation department, Miami, Fla. No tickets are being sold here.

Light Minded

Los Angeles, Cal.—(ACP)—A "Candy Light Brigade," 250 strong marched into the library at the University of California at Los Angeles in protest against the inadequate lighting facilities of the building.

Sleepless Night

Business usually aren't anything to get excited or lose sleep about, but George Mashkin, the State News sports editor, became all flustered Saturday night when he received a telegram revealing he was to have a business in the Detroit Times Sunday.

Mashkin has written sports for the Times for seven years, but on Sunday did he have to name appear over a story. The news from George Van in Detroit that Bud Shaver, the Times sports editor, had signed Mashkin's story proved too much for the latter.

Thetas Serenade

The fraternities and sororities staged a big treat Sunday night when the Kappa Alpha Thetas serenaded the town serenading the houses with Christmas carols. Wherever the coeds went, they received a big hand.

Shoot is Held By ROTC Units

Infantry Defeats Cavalry.
803-774.

The infantry freshmen riflemen defeated the cavalry freshmen in a match on Thursday afternoon with a score of 803 to 744. This was an informal competition between selected members of the two team sports classes.

The excellent results obtained by both groups in a difficult match indicate the great interest taken this year by the freshmen in rifle shooting.

Ray Goodrich, infantry, was high scorer of the match with a 274 out of a possible 200. John Blum was high scorer for the cavalry.

FINAL EDITION

This is the final edition of the Michigan State News for 1937. There will be no issues during the Christmas vacation. Publication will be resumed Thursday, January 6.

City Offers Cash Reward For Invader

Police Continue to Search for Assailant of Mrs. Turk.

A reward of $250 for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the assailant who attacked and beat Mrs. Margaret Turk, 733 West Grand River avenue, last Thursday, has been posted by the City of East Lansing. Local police, assisted by Lansing and State police, are still continuing the search for the mysterious intruder.

Mrs. Turk has returned to her home after being confined to the Edward W. Sparrow hospital for several days, and is recovering rapidly. She is the wife of Lloyd M. Turk, assistant professor in the Michigan State college soils department.

Entering through the back door of the Turk home Thursday afternoon, the intruder was mistaken by Mrs. Turk as being a practical joker. She jerked away the scarf with which his face was hidden, and he warned her not to attract attention by screaming.

In spite of this, she did scream, and the man struck her on the head more than a dozen times with an instrument that seemed to be a screwdriver. Left stunned and lying on the floor, Mrs. Turk finally managed to reach her neighbors' home, and police were called.

Police have obtained a description from neighbors who said they thought of the man from Mrs. Turk saw someone loitering in the vicinity. He is said to be a young man about 18 years old, medium complexioned, well-dressed, good-looking, and tall. He was wearing a slouch felt hat and a brightly colored scarf, using the latter as a mask.

Conference Opens Today

Extension Service Men Stage Annual Meet This Week.

Celebrating 25 years of service to Michigan farmers and homemakers, more than 180 members of the college extension service are meeting for the annual conference Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday.

The conference also marks the first year that county agent service has been extended to all of Michigan's 83 counties. The county agricultural agent personnel includes 72 men.

Today's session was opened by R. J. Baldwin, director of the service. Speakers on Tuesday's program include C. H. Bramble, master of the Michigan State Grange, Robert S. Shaw, president of Michigan State college, Harry L. Brown, assistant secretary of agriculture, Washington, D. C., and Maurice A. Dean, chairman of the Michigan Agricultural Conservation committee.

Speakers on Wednesday's program will be Dr. C. H. Hays of the State Bureau of animal industry, Barbara Van Heulen of the Farm Credit administration, Washington, D. C., and Ira Wilmoth, president of the Michigan Farmer's Union.

Principals Say Former Pupils Approve State's Advisory System

Approval of Michigan State college's advisory system, its friendly faculty-student relationship and student living conditions was expressed by Michigan high school principals in letters following a recent freshman-principal conference, according to Dean Fred T. Mitchell.

The high school principals met here recently, on invitation from the college, to hold informal talks with M. S. C. freshmen who graduated from their various schools. Reports have been received from 55 principals, Dean Mitchell said.

Purpose of the conference, according to Dean Mitchell, was to give principals a more complete understanding of the college freshman's problems, and to give college officials, through the prin-

Service Desk To be Set Up

Independents to Sponsor Project to Assist Students.

A permanent student service desk will soon be established in the Union for students of Michigan State college. The service is being sponsored by the Independent Men's league and has the approval of Secretary John A. Hannah and B. R. Proulx, director of the Union.

The desk will include a regular lost and found department, typing service, tutoring class, and ticket-selling service. Tickets for dances in Lansing and vicinity, in which students might be interested, will also be sold.

The desk is temporarily located in the men's lounge in the Union. It is open every evening from 7 to 9 o'clock. At present, all transportation facilities, including the sale of special student-rate tickets, are being offered here. These rates will be them.

This service has also made arrangements for a Christmas dinner-dance, featuring Benny Goodman and his swing band in the Madhattan room of the Hotel Pennsylvania in New York City Tuesday, December 28. All reservations must be made before leaving for home. The cost is $3.50 per couple, $1 down, and $2.50 upon attendance.

Prof. P. A. Herbert, head of the forestry department, and M. E. Deters, P. W. Robins, A. B. Bowman, J. H. Husted, J. H. Kraemer, and R. M. Carter will make up the delegation from here.

The convention will deal with problems and issues which foresters face today. Professor Herbert and his staff will take an active part in the sessions on forestry education Wednesday afternoon

Engineers Pick Madill To Head Ball

Name Committees for Formal in Lansing February 4.

Robert Madill, Lansing senior, has been named general chairman of the annual Engineers' ball to be held in the Lansing Masonic temple, Friday evening, February 4.

Madill was picked by the heads of the technical societies of the engineering division, the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, Tau Beta Pi, Phi Lambda Tau, the American Society of Civil Engineers, and the American Institute of Electrical Engineers. He was chosen from the senior engineering class for his leadership ability, popularity, and high scholastic average. He is a member of Beta Kappa fraternity and the Interfraternity council.

Monday, Madill announced the committees for the event. A junior has been placed on each committee, in order that next year's class may not be totally ignorant of the necessary arrangements. As in past years, Prof. L. N. Field of the engineering division will act as faculty adviser for the affair.

Following are the committees named by Madill: tickets, Joseph Lash, chairman, Lodo Habrle, Don Maskey, Ernest Lefell, and Harvey Chocoye; programs, George Ranney, chairman, John Austin, Pat Gormerly, Bob Sterling.

Chairman of publicity is Walter Lueck, Phil Lewis, Jerry Dickerson, John Hart and Kurt Kuhne are other committee members.

George Grantham will have charge of the decorations. He will be assisted by Jack Patriarcho, John Sangster, Richard Hammarstein, and Lewis J. Patterson, other members of the decorations committee.

YM Offers Job Service

Part-time Workers Can be Obtained by Towns- people.

Employers and householders who will be faced with shifts in employees after the new year are urged to use the facilities of the College Y. M. C. A. Employment service, phone 26744.

Many needy students are anxious to work for their room, or board, or both. Odd-job work by the day or the afternoon can also be provided. Occasionally men needing full time employment are available.

William Genne, in charge of this service, states that many of the students applying to him have considerable experience in janitorial, housecleaning, business, secretarial, and merchandising work.

Applicants may be interviewed with no responsibility on the part of the employer, but only qualified workers will be sent, thus making a considerable time-saving for the busy man. The headquarters of this service are in Peoples church.

Adoption of movies to supplement but not replace the present system of teaching is being seriously considered at Michigan State college.

Spartan Gridders to Depart Monday for Battle in Miami; Speelman Named Best Senior

Croix de Guerre Award Goes to "Fire Chief" of State Team.

Tackle Stars Three Years

Speelman Joins Klewicki, Wagner, Monnett in Hall of Fame.

To the list of Michigan State's football greats today has been added the name of Harry Speelman, left tackle for the last three years.

As a feature of the annual football banquet last Saturday night, Dr. Eugene Elliott, state superintendent of public instruction revealed Speelman had been voted the most valuable senior on the 1937 State eleven by a secret committee.

The honor also carries with it the Croix de Guerre watch, valued at $100 and allows Speelman to follow in the steps of Bob Monnett, Syd Wagner, Ed Klewicki, and Sam Ketchman, others to receive the presentation in the past.

Known to his teammates as the "Firechief" because of the spirit and drive he instilled in the Spartans on the field, Speelman has been the sparkplug of the State team for two years. Only last week, his mates named him to captain the team in the Orange bowl game at Miami New Year's day.

Speelman, who was born in Detroit 21 years ago, prepped at Lansing Central. His father, Jake Speelman, now connected with physical education in Lansing schools, formerly was a football star at the University of Missouri.

Frats Hosts To Needy Kids

Girl Scouts Assist at Christ- mas Party.

Parties for underprivileged children were given by the Hesperians and Sigma Nus Sunday afternoon.

At the Hesperian house a turkey dinner was followed by a visit from Santa Claus. Each of the 30 children received a gift from the Christmas tree. Mrs. Herman Wyngarden and the Girl Scouts, of which she is leader, came with dolls they had dressed for the small guests. The children ranged in age from 4 to 7.

William Caldwell and John Hutten were in charge of the party. Faculty guests included President and Mrs. R. S. Shaw, Dean and Mrs. F. T. Mitchell, and Dean Elizabeth Conrad.

The Sigma Nus were hosts to 29 children. With Richard Nahlstoll acting as Santa Claus. Each child received a toy and a stocking full of candy, nuts, and fruit. John Lorimer was chairman for the event.

Harry Speelman of Lansing was named the most valuable senior on the Michigan State football team at the annual grid banquet last Saturday night. Speelman, who also was voted the team captain, has played left tackle for three seasons.

No Immediate Peril Seen By Faculty in Bombing

Will the bombing of a United States gun boat and three United States civilian ships by the Japanese lead to a serious misunderstanding between Japan and the United States? Will Great Britain also be involved since one of her ships was attacked at the same time?

These were questions uppermost in many students' minds when they either heard the broadcast of those facts at 2 a. m. Monday, or picked up a newspaper.

In an attempt to gather expert opinion on the international implications of the occurrence, several faculty men known for their insight into international affairs were questioned.

Prof. E. H. Ryder, head of the history and political science department, stated that he felt the incident involved no immediate danger of war. He said that the nations were not yet ready to take up arms on such slight provocation and that without doubt an adjustment will be made for the time being between the nations involved. However, if this incident is followed by other serious happenings, the bombing might be a contributing cause to a future world war.

Dr. R. T. Ohi, Latin instructor, said he felt that this event was certainly the most serious thing that has happened yet in the Japanese war, as far as the United States is concerned. However, Doctor Ohi felt quite sure that adequate apologies and reparation will be made by the Japanese government. He anticipates that it will divide United States public

Bachman Schedules Drill at Gainesville, Fla., Next Wednesday.

State to Face Auburn Team

National Network to Air Game Direct From Scene of Play.

The Orange bowl calls the Michigan State football team. State's gridiron warriors, at present engaged in writing final examinations, will leave here next Monday night for their game against Auburn in Miami on New Year's day.

The Spartans first will head for Gainesville, Fla., where Wednesday the team will participate in a light limbering up practice. The following three days will be given over to scrimmages, after which the Spartans move south to Miami to finish preparations for the game.

It will mark State's first appearance in a post-season bowl game, and affords the team its greatest opportunity of all time to crash into the national collegiate limelight.

RATED MAJOR BATTLE

For the Orange bowl game is considered one of THE battles of the year and victory brings considerable prestige and glory to a team.

Coach Charley Bachman is taking 41 players to the scene of action. The largest State traveling squad ever to make a trip outside of Michigan. It is Bachman's hope most players will get a chance to show their stuff during the game.

As during the regular season, Bachman again is counting a great deal on Johnny Pingel, State flashy halfback, who received mention on the majority of All-American selections.

ALL AROUND STAR

It will be Pingel who will carry the brunt of the State attack. Pingel, during the regular season, ripped off 50 yards each time he carried the ball, in addition to logging an average of 42 yards per kick and completing almost all of the passes he threw.

In Auburn State will battle a team which like the Spartans, employs the Notre Dame style of attack. Auburn, rated by Bachman as "the strongest team in the South," came through a difficult schedule with five victories, two defeats and three ties.

The game already has attracted nationwide interest, and the Columbia Broadcasting system has announced it will air the game direct from the field of play over its coast to coast hookup with Ted Husing, crack sports announcer, at the mike.

PLAN TO LEAVE

Here in East Lansing, hundreds of students and townspeople are making plans to spend part of their vacation in sunny Miami, which incidentally is cold Miami for the present at least.

State followers are going by train, by bus, and by car. Some even are going to trust their luck of seeing the game to their thumbs.

Next to exams, the big topic of conversation here is "Are you going to Miami?" And if you say, yes, the next question directed at you is "How are you going to get there?"

The gridgers will lead the southern parade, starting Monday. The greatest throng of the Spartan followers probably will leave the day after Christmas.

Swimmers Halt Work

Coach Jake Daubert has announced that swimming practice will resume the first week in January. All those who have not been practicing and who wish to try out for the team are asked to report to Daubert at that time.

State News Fees Raised

Increase Will be Added to Winter Term Fees.

Beginning with the winter term, the fees for the Michigan State News will be raised to 30 cents a term. The increase from the former 35-cent fee is necessary because the paper is being published three times a week, instead of two as last year.

The increase was approved at a student election last June, but did not come before the State Board of Agriculture until this fall.

The Board recently approved the increase. The fees are paid along with other college fees at registration time.

War in China

Will the U. S. submarine Panay become another Maine? Will it sinking provide the spark needed to set off an international conflagration? Will the flag continue to follow the dollar? Will the Standard Oil company's interests be sufficient to draw 150 million Americans into war?

These are the questions that the American people are asking today, were asking yesterday, will ask tomorrow. And the consensus of opinion is definitely "NO!"

Coming from the premier capitalistic country in the world, it hails as an abrupt break from policy heretofore. And it proves conclusively that the American people are no longer willing to believe that they, as Americans, are always right, always omnipotent, and beyond reproach.

The surprising point is that many people today are not condemning Japan at all for the action she took. "Those boats had no right to be in the war area," has been heard more than once.

What is it that has changed the American ideas and ideals so greatly in the course of ten years? Have we become a peace-loving people in the finest sense of the word?

Will the man who, as a conscientious objector 20 years ago, was imprisoned for the duration of the war, be the hero of tomorrow? Such are the present trends. The American people have re-evaluated their standards, politically, financially, and ideologically.

And conclusively, it is a change for the better.—H. P. H.

For What?

Bold headlines on Monday's newspapers blazed forth a message that has caused unusual comment throughout the nation. "JAPS SINK U. S. SHIPS" is the strongest war scare this nation has received in 20 years.

The concern with which this news is being taken is clearly shown on our campus. Since the first extras came out Monday morning, it has been the main topic of conversation. In the Union, on the streets, in rooming houses—everywhere students are discussing this latest Japanese act of warfare and its possible effect on the United States.

The attitude with which this news is being received is a great deal different from what it was 20 years ago, and it is indeed encouraging. Spartan men, most of whom will be drafted in the next war, have formed a definite opinion, the sum and substance of which is just this:

"If this nation is attacked, we're more than willing to fight. It is then a case of protecting our own homes. But why should we go to some foreign country and get ourselves slaughtered, just to "protect" investments of American capitalists, and put a few more thousand "Judas-dollars" into the pockets of the already over-rich munitions makers."

An excellent attitude. It is an attitude that will do more than anything else now to keep this nation out of war.

BUT WILL THEY STAND BY THIS OPINION?

That is the important question. During the World war, the easiest thing to do was to go along with the flag-waving crowd. Just so, it is the easiest thing now to go along with the majority who take this sane attitude about foreign wars.

But supposing the falsely patriotic jingoism should get hold of the nation? What then? It will take more guts to stick to this opinion of refusing to be needlessly butchered than to follow the bands and the crowds.

The general opinion in the nation today is to keep out of foreign wars. Let us not forget that. Let us have the courage to stand by our convictions and hold firm to this opinion. Let us do everything in our power to keep the jingoists from arousing war fever in America. Let us keep out of war!—J. C. S.

Grading the Faculty

For several years the forestry department has been distributing copies of the Purdue rating scale to students at the last class meeting of the term. Each instructor is rated by each student, and marked as the student sees fit.

The instructors are graded on several items, among which are the way he puts his subject matter across, his neatness, fairness, progressiveness, and the readiness with which he receives student criticism.

Students place a check on a graduated scale opposite the point they think most accurate for the instructor. Of course, they are not signed. It takes but a few minutes, and when the student is conscientious in his criticism, it is invaluable in aiding the head of the department to point out to each instructor his shortcomings.

The regrettable fact is that students are reticent about giving their candid opinion, and hesitate to give a grade lower than "fair." The fault here lies with the student alone, for the department is energetic in impressing upon him that his identity will not be known.

That the department is anxious to improve its personnel, to increase its teaching efficiency, is commendable. As a whole, the plan works splendidly. But students should realize that the way in which they mark the scale may influence greatly the instruction of the next class, and that complete integrity is necessary for the maximum benefit to be derived from it.—H. P. H.

So They Say

"College-trained women have tried to be objective in a field in which objectivity is obviously at its minimum. They have not allowed themselves really to feel and have any emotions. We don't have to confuse mother love with smother love, and just because we have revolted from over-sentimentality, we don't have to eliminate sentiment entirely." Mrs. Sidonie M. Gruenberg, educational director of the Child Study Association of America, gives her views on mother love, prompted by the recent controversy.

"The great mass of American girls, from the girls at the department store to the most elite, are much more beautiful than girls of foreign countries," Dr. Earl H. Bell, University of Nebraska anthropologist, is a loyal native son.

"The result of teaching young persons they are helpless in the clutches of a soulless economic system . . . has been an attitude expressed by the phrase, 'Let Father do it.'" Dr. Henry C. Link, director of the Psychological Service center, flays the belief that man is a victim of heredity and social environment.

Harrassed World: "Thanks, Santa!"

In The Rough

With Harvey Harrington

"Peace on Earth. . ."

Nineteen hundred years ago a man walked the roads of Palestine, teaching men to love their neighbors, that they lead a more useful and happy life. His fundamental tenet was "Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men."

"Peace on Earth, Good Will to Men" indeed. Even in the comparatively uncomplex life of that time, men were not willing to accept it. It was too profitable for the strong to consider such a move—and the weak, they were too weak.

And they killed the Man of Nazareth for daring to show the light into the gloom.

Now we approach the nineteen hundred and thirty-seventh anniversary of the birthday of that Man who died for his fellowmen. We do indeed. It is doubtful that most people realize what Christmas is—the birthday of the Man who died to save the world!

Here at Christmas time, 1937, two major wars are waging in the world. One of them, true enough, is a war among pagans. The religious of one of those pagan lands at least, however, fosters brotherly love. That land is slowly but surely being subjugated beneath the yoke of a ruthless, ambitious nation.

The other war is being waged with the full consent of the church in a land Christian to the core. But is it Christian? Can any nation so flagrantly disregard the basic precepts of a church, claim membership within it? And can the church itself, in so sanctioning such a war, let itself a duly constituted Christian organization? Can it?

As we today seeking refuge under the mantle of Christianity, yet to make faith in convenience to take our lot, and return forgiven to the fold? It would seem that we are. As we therefore justified in celebrating the birth of a man, respect for whom we show only of a superficial manner.

Religion has become a one day a week affair at best in most cases. Whether you believe the preachings of Christianity in the manner prescribed by the church is not important. That belief can go by the board and better for it, if man honestly believe—and you cannot believe without practicing—that their neighbor is their brother who we respect, honesty and comradeship.

As you sit before the yule log, think. Are you justified in claiming the love of your fellow? I'm sure I shall.

"Peace on earth, Good will to men."

Student Pulse

Dear Editor:

I am glad to note that Mr. Gewirts has been properly squelched. I trust that in the future he will refrain from disemboweling idealists in public. It is to be hoped that his good taste will refrain him from turning the "Bard's Nook" into a combination slaughterhouse and ginmill in the next issue of the Spartan. I saw him on the street corner yesterday, leering at four-year-old girls and kicking kindly old professors in the whiskers. I said to my companions: "Students, spurn this man. He is an immature dialectical materialist with no comprehension of life as it must be." Had it not been for recent, timely comment in the State News I would have been unable to penetrate his disguise. To me he looked like an ordinary college student.

Up until Saturday I considered "dialectics" a vocal artifice employed by radio comedians, now I have uncomfortably discovered that they are something explosive—like love or TNT. When I read the original criticism by Mr. Yunek, was convinced that Mr. Gewirts was a harmless hitherer on the way to Parnassus; when I read Mr. Watson I suddenly realized that he was an insidious anarchist, issuing subversive propaganda in the guise of "dialectics." I need not tell you that upon training my binoculars on Demonstration hall I was relieved to see the Stars

H. Lauer, of the University of Washington.

For in it they will learn that when a student says "I'm taking my fever frau to a cement mixer in a tinfoy," he really means he's taking his "heart-hastener to a swing-session in a whipped tub," or just taking his girl to a dance in his car.

Wise Guy . . .
 A man named Nichols stepped from the library last evening, stopped, lit a cigaret, and proceeded with a couple of feather-trained felines.

When requested that such things aren't done, he insolently replied: "Who's going to stop me?"

and Stripes still flouting over M. S. C. Evidently Mr. Gewirts is not only not a poet, but he is an adolescent sports of Karl Marx who does amateur butchering and espionage on the side.

May I propose a review of the lack of progress made up to date? I. Mr. Gewirts printed some poetry in the Spartan, purportedly very bad. I can verify this statement myself in all ways because I wrote some of the poetry in question. 2. Mr. Yunek ("From the Tower," Michigan State News) arose in righteous indignation at the implications of moral latitude and the prospect of seeing the entrails of the campus idealists strewn from M. A. C. avenue to the Kedzie chemical laboratory. He also thought the poems were punk. Up to this time all concerned were happy about the whole thing—with a prospective free-for-all in the offing and with Mr. Yunek going on record as reading Mr. Gewirts, and vice versa. 3. Mr. Watson leaped into the struggle with a double-barreled blast of polysyllabic words, an undeniably able definition of the poetry, and a translucent explanation of "dialectical materialism," which served to throw everything off on a tangent. Result: Mr. Gewirts is planning worse poetry, Mr. Yunek has furthered his reputation as a cynic, and Mr. Watson has displayed his erudition to the discomfiture of all concerned. In the meantime State students are carrying a clothespin and a copy of Webster's unabridged dictionary in their pockets.

Might I further propose that the whole affair be placed under canvas and all financial proceeds be given to Escalibur or the needy members of the Spartan staff. Surely, State students would pay a quarter to see Mr. Watson down Messrs. Yunek and Gewirts and the referee with a volume of Socrates. If the audience was great enough Mr. Watson might even be induced to impersonate Socrates with a cup of hemlock tea. There are unlimited potentialities to be considered. However, for the present I see three immediate alternatives: 1. Call the whole thing off. 2. Really get into the Christmas spirit and make it a worthwhile feud. 3. Throw a few firecrackers along with the high-toned words. In either of the last two cases don't forget to mention the Spartan every now and then. There'll be another issue out next term. "It's yours for ten cents (10c)." Thank you.

Respectfully yours,
 OSRIC

P. S. I'd still like to know what a "dialectical materialist" is. Anybody but Mr. Watson please answer.

State Eleven Books Two New Opponents For 1938 Campaign

West Virginia U. and Santa Clara to Grid Card.

Battle Wolverines In Second Contest

Wolverines to Renew Rivalry With Illinois Wesleyan and Syracuse.

The much talked about 1938 Michigan State football schedule was made known to the public for the first time Saturday night at the annual grid bust—and it proved two big surprises.

Announced by Athletic Director Hugh H. Young, the schedule calls for five games—five against foes in 1937, to against total against State football wars, and two others, who are coming after a few years of absence.

The surprises of the card list were with Illinois Wesleyan in West Field, October 8, and with University of West Virginia at Morgantown, the following Saturday. At no time during the weeks preceding the official announcement was either team mentioned as a possible State opponent.

WV EACH TIME

State has battled the Illinois team three times in the past, with cash time by comfortable margins. Their meeting next fall will follow on the heels of the annual invasion of Ann Arbor for the annual game with Michigan.

Illinois Wesleyan was inserted in schedule in hopes of avoiding a showdown which hits the Spartans each year after defeating Michigan. The game gives State a place to recuperate from the long battle without the fear of defeat.

Although a newcomer on the Michigan West Virginia is coached by Frank Murray who needs no introduction hereabouts. Murray formerly coached Marquette, and here he led his team to several victories over State.

After tracking West Virginia, the Spartans plunge into the most important part of their season's work at Syracuse, Santa Clara, Marquette, Marquette and Temple on successive Saturdays.

The schedule:
November 21—Wayne University, here.
November 22—Michigan, there.
November 23—Syracuse, here.
November 24—Santa Clara—here.
November 25—Missouri, there.
November 26—Marquette, there.
November 27—Temple, here.

State to Enroll 24 New Students

That Michigan State college continues to be a popular place to come to school is evidenced by two facts. Twenty-four new students will be entering school beginning winter term, as well as a few more who are returning after absence of a term or more.

College Will Add Short Courses

Training in forestry and wildlife conservation will be offered at Michigan State college in an eight-weeks' short course, beginning January 3. The course provides training for practical foresters, forest nurserymen, conservation officers, game refuge keepers, fish hatcherymen, and other conservation workers.

Other eight-weeks' short courses that start January 3 include golf course management, dairy production, dairy manufacturing, poultry, practical floriculture, home economics, general agriculture, commercial fruit production, and agricultural engineering.

Meeting Plans Started

Plans for the eighth annual sectional meeting of the American Foundrymen's association to be held early in April now are under way. Cupola practice will be the main subject to be discussed.

With the Modern Greeks

Well, that title of ours is not so very apt this week, 'cause we're NOT with the Modern Greeks, we're with our books. However, the show goes on, the paper goes to press. Of course everyone's studying now, but they weren't last weekend, they were doing thusly:

ALPHA CHI OMEGA—

The Alpha Chis had their Christmas party Saturday night, after which they went caroling. All went calmly until they got to the Kappa Sig house, where the members sprang out gallantly in the brisk winter night and sang the Alpha Chi sweetheart song, after which the Kappa Sigs had their song sung to them. Seems as though the feuding is about over. The Kappa Sigs serenaded recently pined Ruth Phipps in accordance with their tradition. Lois Land, who was one of Santa's reindeers at the Christmas party, attired in Doctor Dentons, straw hat, etc., answered the doorbell to behold boy friend Bob Despite his rude awakening, connections have not as yet been severed. Perhaps he values her for her intrinsic qualities ever more now.

CHI OMEGA—

Mrs. George L. Brown, a patroness, gave a tea Sunday afternoon at her home in Lansing for the Chi O's, their alums and patronesses. They had a Christmas party at the house Friday night. Elinor Shaw of Dearborn was pledged recently.

ALPHA GAMMA DELTA—

The Alpha Gams had their fall term formal Saturday night. Nate Fry played, and the Caswells and Applegates lent an air of

East Lansing Women Hold Yule Party

Music Committee Hostess at Christmas Meeting Monday.

A Christmas program, presented with the music committee as hostesses, featured the meeting of the East Lansing Woman's club, in the parlors of Peoples church, Monday afternoon.

Mrs. W. E. J. Edwards, chairman of the music committee, presided, and was assisted by Mrs. L. C. Emmons, Mrs. W. W. Giltner, Mrs. J. E. Powell, Mrs. Robert Coleman, and Mrs. Gerald Robbins.

Eight members of the club, attired in robes of white, entered the parlors singing "Joy to the World," to open the program. They were led by children bearing red candles. Mrs. James Sepeter sang four songs suitable to the Christmas season.

An adaptation of the novel, "Christmas," by Zona Gale, was presented by Mrs. Harold W. Berwig. This was followed by two violin selections played by Miss Frances Ayres, director of the high school orchestra.

Wendell Westcott played two piano numbers, and Norma Soule, small granddaughter of Mrs. Ira

W. Whittemore, the club president, sang a Christmas song. Then the carolers, singing "Silent Night" were led out by the candle bearers.

Refreshments in keeping with yuletide were served after the program. The parlors were decorated with two Christmas trees and lighted candles in numerous candelabra.

West Mayo Holds Christmas Party

West Mary Mayo held its annual Christmas party Thursday evening. The girls assembled in a living room decorated with pines and dully lit by candles.

Eighteen carolers carrying white candles came down the stairs into the living room singing familiar Christmas songs.

Gifts were exchanged, according to custom. After the gifts had been distributed, refreshments were served.

Dean E. Elisabeth Conrad, Miss Mildred Jones, dietitian, and Miss Cora McCauley, assistant house-mother, were guests.

Tax Collections Show Increase

Sales tax collections during November passed the five million mark for the fourth time this year, making the past month the best since June, it was disclosed today by Draper Allen, managing director of the State board of tax administration.

The November collections totaled $5,117,096.84, as compared with $4,419,336.07 for the same month in 1936, an increase of nearly $700,000.

"The sales tax collections seem to disagree with the reported general business recession," Allen declared. "Although it has been stated by some authorities that business has fallen off, our collections the past month are more than $150,000 higher than they were in October.

It is true that there has actually been a slump in trade, the gain in sales tax revenue can only mean that there has been a marked increase in the efficiency of our collection system."

High School To Offer Play

Give "And There Was Light" This Thursday.

"And There Was Light" will be presented at 3:15 p. m. Thursday, December 16, in the East Lansing high school auditorium. It is being given by high school students under the direction of Jeanne Beukema, M. S. C. senior.

The cast was chosen from the high school speech classes. Miss Beukema has had entire charge of the project. College speech and dramatics classes, and all high school students are invited free of charge.

The story is one of a physician, neurologist, who attempts an ingenious cure for imaginary nervous on a neurotic old lady. The "cure" consists of having the old lady present when a young girl, who has been blind all her life, regains her sight. This brings about the desired change and the ending is the traditional happy one. The play is kept at a high tempo with clever conversation. Humor is supplied by many incidental lines.

The cast includes four persons: the doctor, Weston Gardner; the rich old lady, Barbara Amundson; the nurse, Marjorie Lesher; and the young girl, Jean Quick. The stage manager and lighting assistant are Gerald Marshall and Howard Ingerson, respectively.

Y Activities Are Success

Freshman Camp, Mixers, and Fireside Group Well Received.

A report of the fall term activities of the Spartan Y. M. C. A. was submitted to the faculty advisory board last week by William Genne, secretary of the group. According to Mr. Genne, the Y. M. C. A. work so far this year has been satisfactory and encouraging.

The opening activity was a freshman camp, at which 85 freshmen were organized around upperclass cabin-leaders for a two-day camp during freshman week. A joint mixer sponsored with the Y. W. C. A. was also held during the opening week of school.

Bi-weekly meetings featuring well-known speakers have been held throughout the term. Two Sunday evenings of fireside groups involving seven faculty homes and reaching more than 100 students have also been conducted.

Other activities of the organization have included an educational trip to Detroit, supplying the college hospital with a daily paper and several magazines, sending speakers to Lansing and nearby churches, and conducting a student part-time employment service.

Womochel to Conduct Iron Research Work

Inability to Convert Free Throws Costs Spartans Game at 'M'

Wolverines Register Fifth Straight Victory Over State in High Scoring Battle, 43-40. Staving Off Late Spartan Rally; Hutt Paces Scorers With 15.

By VIC SPANIOLO

Coach Ben Van Alstyne, State basketball entor, has ordered intensive drills on shooting fouls because the squad has appeared woefully weak in this department.

The Spartans kept busy with fall term exams, do not have a game until December 22, when the University of Iowa invades the State camp. So far this season in games against Hope and Michigan, the cagers have missed 16 out of 26 free throws. This flaw has marred their otherwise good showing.

VanAlstyne is certain that if the team is to win many games, this condition must be eliminated. Added practice, he feels, should do it. The showing of Marty Hutt in the two games has been nothing short of sensational. STARTS ONE-SIDED Against the University of Michigan last Saturday in Yost field house, the inability to cash in on gift tosses cost the Spartans a victory, losing out 43-40. It marked the fifth straight time that Michigan has vanquished State in this sport.

The game started off as if it were going to be a one-sided contest with the Wolverines piling up an early advantage. At the end of ten minutes of play the score stood 27 to 10. But the Spartans attack got under way besides the slowing up of the Michigan defense.

It was a long uphill battle but when the first half ended State had pulled within nine points, the score then reading 29 to 26. The Spartans looked good but the Wolverines with Captain John Townsend displayed a brilliant brand of ball.

Of the Spartans, Hutt flashed the best form, as his five buckets early in the first half kept State abreast of Michigan. Hutt also captured high point honors with 15, two ahead of Townsend. The latter had a hand in nearly every goal that the Wolves registered.

SPORTS SPURT

Michigan in the last half managed to keep a safe distance in front of State and with the clock showing two minutes of play many of the crowd milled toward the exits. But the Spartans were not through yet. Howard Kraft sank a shot followed by another by Frank Shidler.

Then George Falkowski, State forward, bagged a goal, making the 43-26. Kraft rushed in to hit the nets, making it 38 for State. Hutt looped a "long tom" from a difficult angle, but here Michigan "froze" the ball until the gun sounded.

Michigan State Michigan
Falkowski 2 0 4 Townsend 4 5 12

SPORT INTERLUDES . .

To You, and You, and—

by George Maskin

The old typewriter rattles for the final time this year to produce this column with the sturdy body on campus. Always looking for a chance to jump the gun, we're going to make use of the column today, although a few days early, to extend our holiday greetings.

KOBS

And so Sport Interludes is wishing a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to...

John Herman Kobs, one coach who is fully aware of the troubles which face a referee or umpire; A. A. Applegate, who cleans the Michigan State press box of undesired intruders; Lyle Rockenbach, who blocked a kick in the Temple game at Philadelphia, to brighten our return trip from the City of Brotherly Love.

The author of the poem which went something like this: "Notre Dame may have had its Rock, State has its Bach, and put them together and you have Rock-en-bach."

Annie's roomie, who persuaded us to give the coeds a break: Fendley Collins, who even when his wrestlers are losing, comes up with a big smile; the cop, who stares at us as in the early hours of the morning as we glide along down Oakhill avenue.

The porter, who pulled us out of an upper berth so that we might catch a fleeting glimpse of the northern part of Washington, D. C., at 4:12 a. m.

Vic Spaniolo, who tipped us off on the news Michigan State was going to a bowl, providing it defeated Carnegie Tech and San Francisco, three weeks ahead of the official announcement; the professors whom our snores have disturbed on each Tuesday and Thursday since the start of the present term; Miles W. Casteel, whose eyes don't miss the most intricate play pulled by a State football opponent.

Fred Schroeder, who moved from tackle to guard to tackle to guard to tackle, and starred every place he went; Tom King, who has tried unsuccessfully to insure our life; the coeds who played hockey and soccer in snow.

'Bruck' Crosses Up State Opponent

Leslie Bruckner, who had the courage to cross up Kansas by calling a pass with ball at midfield, fourth down and almost 10 yards to go; Joe Rube, who has built up a strong Independent Men's Athletic League.

The fraternity boys who insist on practicing for football games at the dinner table instead of on the field; Russ Daubert, who strokes popular airs on the Beaumont Tower chimes.

The gentleman, who made public our bowling score of 44 or thereabouts; Henry Johnson, reserve football coach, who wired the varsity in Philadelphia, "We've just beaten Michigan. Yuse guys take Temple."

The managers of various athletic teams whose efforts go unused.

The State News business staff, which keeps us guessing until late in the afternoon how much stuff we'll need to fill the page; Bob Refior and George E. Van, who to date, have not forgotten us on the first and fifteenth.

Town's Weighted-Down Mailmen

Benjamin Francis VanAlstyne, who plays critical basketball schedule year in and year out; Harry Kipke, who today is hunting for another coaching job; John Spenser Pangel, who furnished us with a little copy during the 1937 football season; the postmen who find themselves weighted down with special deliveries and what have you, each time a State athletic team leaves town.

George Alderton of the Journal, who covers football practice for us while we hide in other spots; the athletes, both freshmen and varsity, who make it possible for us

Brings Good Fortune in Bridge

Tom Ferris, who publicizes the happenings of Michigan State for the Associated Press; Dick Remington, who usually makes it a point to talk several extra minutes at the football banquet each year.

Ola Barbara Gelzer, who brings good fortune as a bridge partner; Jerome J. Krueger, who should get a job as Charley McCarthy's stooge; Beverly J. Smith, who keeps thome fires burning Thursday mornings.

Raymond Turner, who snapped the picture from which one John Carveth in Detroit obtains his inspiration for writing headlines; Ralph H. Young, who steers the athletic department to greater heights each year.

Jack Heppinstall, who is the "pal" of every Spartan athlete; Charley Halbert, who is keeping his chin up, despite the refusal of the athletic department to take him on the Orange bowl trip.

And each of those who has read this column since its induction.

Osborne Steals Banquet Show

Picking up the high spots at the annual football banquet, Eddie Osborne stealing the show with his performance on the organtron. Harry Speelman being the most surprised person in the gym when named the most valuable player. "Gee, I thought Fred (Schroeder) would win it," remarked Speelman. Fred Patton leading the gang in a new version of "Jingle Bells." It was "Pangel Bells." Oranges scattered over the gym to remind all present State will play in the Orange bowl game New Year's day.

C. W. (Bill) Otto, his usual brilliant self, acting as the toastmaster. Kathryn Freeman stirring the hearts of the men with her medley of college airs on the accordion. The attempted cornet solo by the German in the band sent up by Henry Ford. Charley Bachman's tribute to Neilson Schrader, the big tackle, who was forced to leave the team after the Carnegie Tech game. Also

FROSH CAGERS

Any and all freshmen interested in trying out for the frosh basketball team are asked to report to Coach Tom King in the gymnasium, January 6. Coach King urges all those freshmen who are eligible and want to play basketball to report.

TRACK TO START

Candidates for Michigan State's 1937-38 track team are asked to report to Director of Athletics Ralph H. Young in the gymnasium during the first week of January. All freshmen and others interested in track activities are urged to attend.

Cagers to Face Busy Holiday

State Five to Battle in Three Contests.

Three basketball games will furnish those that remain in East Lansing some entertainment during the Christmas vacation. All of the games pit Michigan State against strong opposition.

The Spartans swing into action Wednesday, December 22, to battle the highly touted Iowa Hawkeyes who will be making their initial bow in Demonstration hall. The Hawks always are one of the strong teams in the Big Ten race.

Eight days later, on December 30, the Spartans will play host to the University of Missouri, which will be swinging through the mid-west. The Tigers are reputed to have a powerful quintet.

New Year's night will see the Spartans hooking up with Case, also on the local floor. A year ago, the two teams staged a close battle in Cleveland.

The Spartans will be strengthened for these games by the addition of Len Osterink.

Collins Visions Bright Campaign

Satisfied with the showings made by competitors in the all-college wrestling tournament which concluded last Saturday, Coach Fendley Collins anticipates a winning season for his charges this winter.

Last season the matmen came through with only one victory, but with an all-veteran combination back, plus several promising sophomores, Collins can't help but vision better results in the ring.

Like all other teams, the matmen have suspended action until after the examination period.
