Today's Campus Holy Cats!

J. R. Stiefel, instructor in the physiology department, recently republished one of his sections for not showing enough interest in the laboratory experiments. It seems that several of the feminine students were rather squeamish about "cutting up cats".

B in Name Only

Raymond B. Smith, liberal arts freshman is carrying six credits this term. Wednesday, much to his surprise, he received six dean calls. But only one of them was intended for him.

Bear Facts!

Betty Harris, one of the campy secretaries in the accounting office, was thrilled to hear that Fred Kretzmer of Lansing had brought back a 250-pound bear from a recent hunting trip.

APO on the Go

Michigan State's Boy Scouts and we don't mean the ROTC, claim to be the busiest organization on the campus. Alpha Phi Omegas lists the following accomplishments for this week: 1 committee meetings, 2 executive meetings, 1 open meeting, a trip through the State Police post, recognition of 19 new pledges, selling the Student Directory, assisting at the Student Principal meetings, and holding the fall term party.

You Bring Ducks

The out-of-town student who drops in school is coming into his own. Beginning Monday all students who bring their lunches are invited to eat them in the student mess hall at the Peoples church. Milk will be available at cost. The YM is sponsoring this better-eating plan on a cold-day-for-a-student-who-drove-to-school movement. No advance reservations are necessary, but students planning to make use of this privilege should call 5-9439 so that all necessary preparations can be made.

Diagnosis Needed

Dr. W. F. Riley, instructor in the veterinary division, is gaining the reputation among his students as an "absent minded professor." His class in "diagnosis" meets in the Anatomy building on Wednesday mornings.

Men Will Return From Soils Meet

Several members of the soils and farm management departments are returning from Washington, D. C. this weekend where they attended a soils and agronomy meeting.

Former Lady Envoy To Discuss Danish Co-op Movements

Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde, First Woman Diplomat, Will Address Students Twice Monday Night Concerning Condition in Adopted Country

Ruth Bryan Owen Rohde, former American diplomat, will speak at Peoples church next Monday night, on "The Co-operative Movement in the Scandinavian Countries". She is the second speaker to appear this year on the student lecture program. Mrs. Rohde will give two lectures, one at 7 o'clock and one at 9 o'clock.

Mrs. Rohde, daughter of William Jennings Bryan, became America's first woman diplomat when President Roosevelt appointed her as minister plenipotentiary and envoy to Denmark. She has lived in Copenhagen for three years where she has endeared herself in the hearts of the Danish people. Mrs. Rohde has gained an intimate knowledge of the Scandinavian economic structure. She was the first woman to represent the "old south" in congress, to serve on the Congressional Foreign Affairs committee, and to represent the United States at the Interparliamentary Union.

RUTH BRYAN OWEN ROHDE

Mrs. Rohde has been interested in public questions since she was a child. When she was 11 years old she knew both the Republican and Democratic platforms. She began her speaking career by giving campaign speeches for her father when he was running for the presidency. She is widely known as an orator, and has written a speech text book, "Elements of Public Speaking," which has been translated into several foreign languages.

During the World War Mrs. Rohde was a member of the executive committee of the American Women's War Relief fund in London. At one time during the war she managed a hospital, and later served as a nurse in Egypt under the voluntary aid detachment in the Egypt-Palestine campaign. Mrs. Rohde holds a Doctor of Laws degree from Rollins college and Florida Women's college, and a Doctor of Humane Letters from Russell Sage college in New York. In private life she is Mrs. Boerge Rohde, wife of Kammerjunkere Rohde, one of the Danish king's life guards.

She will be introduced by Dean E. L. Anthony of the Agriculture division.

Victory Dance Will Be Held Tonight

Members of the football squads of both the State and Temple teams will be guests of the Union board at the Union board victory dance in the ball room of the Union tonight.

Music will be furnished by Frankie Prindle and his campus organization. The decoration scheme has not been announced as yet, but will be simple and in tune with the football aspects of the affair.

For those students who will be forced to spend their Thanksgiving vacation on campus, the Union board has planned a special Thanksgiving dance to be held in the Union ballroom next Friday evening.

This dance is an annual feature sponsored by the Union board for the benefit of those far-from-homes who will be here during the entire vacation.

Corps Honors Sponsors In Ceremony

Six Co-eds Awarded Insignias; Officers' Club Dance Follows

Amid an atmosphere of pagentry and military preciseness, Michigan State's ROTC sponsors were formally installed and presented insignias of rank at a ceremony in the riding hall of Demonstration hall last night.

These recently selected sponsors and their divisions are: Magritha Gunn, Honorary Colonel; Charlotte Mason, infantry; Donna Lou Castenholz, cavalry; Katherine Burke, field artillery; Leone Schaeve, band; and Jeanette Roper, coast artillery.

Led by the 100 piece college band, representative units of the six divisions of the ROTC marched into the riding hall through the east entrance and took positions facing the gallery. Then in typical military fashion the honored coeds entered the hall from the north beneath a canopy formed by the crossed swords of their 24 escorts in full military uniform.

After taking their positions in front of their divisions the sponsors were presented insignia pins by Raymond Montague, president of the Officers' club, as the main lights were turned off and a spot light played over the colorful ceremony. Again the band started to play and the escorts took their positions with raised swords as the girls left the hall by the south door.

Installation was followed by the Officers' club semi-formal dance in the ball room of Demonstration hall. In a room decorated with flags and division colors, the junior and senior officers with their escorts danced to the music of Nat Foy's orchestra. Sponsors for the ball were Col and Mrs. Griffin, Maj and Mrs. Stanford, and Major and Mrs. Bent.

Ex-Grads Hold Clinic Today

Edwin M. Boyne, Mason high school superintendent, will speak briefly at a luncheon of the second teachers' clinic to be held here today.

The clinic is for the benefit of those Michigan State college graduates now teaching. The classes of '37 and '36 have been invited.

Activities start at 9 o'clock in room 130 Morrill hall where the teachers will be given their room assignments for the day.

English Language and Social Studies, Music and Art, Science, Math and Phy. Ed. Home Ec. Agriculture, and Elementary are the groups that have been invited.

Nearly 225 teachers are expected for the clinic. Dr. Victor Noll of the English department, will summarize the meeting at 11 o'clock. There will also be brief talks by one or two beginning teachers at the luncheon.

Visiting teachers will be guests of the college at the Michigan State-Temple game after the luncheon.

Farms Class to Take Field Trip Tuesday

Professor E. B. Hill, of the farm management department, will take his "Successful Michigan Farms" class on a field trip on Tuesday. Among other places they will visit the 1700-acre farm of C. E. Sorenson, production manager of the Ford Motor Company, at Farmington.

After talking things over with the students the 280 representatives will be the luncheon guests of the college in the Union ball room. The program includes a few remarks by President Shaw, songs by Edith Mettetal, and violin selections by Julius Stuhliker. Following the luncheon the high school representatives will attend the State-Temple football game.

Firemen Pay Vain Visit To WKAR Radio Studio

For the first time in more than eight months, fire trucks raced onto the Michigan State campus last night. But it was all in vain.

Fire broke out in the WKAR studios atop the Home Economics building. Don Carney, janitor, who discovered the flames, phoned in the alarm to the East Lansing fire department. Unaware that the studios and transmitter were separated, fire trucks roared to the transmitter in the power plant.

Finding no fire there, they rushed to the studios where they found the janitors had extinguished the blaze before serious damage was done.

Authorities blamed the fire on a short circuit in the elevator wiring.

Woman's Glee Club to Sing

To Appear at Church Tomorrow; Quartet, Soloists to Sing

Michigan State college Women's Glee club, under the direction of Miss Josephine Kackley, will sing at the First Baptist church of Lansing tomorrow morning in its first appearance of the season. The group will sing two numbers: "Ave Maria" by Brahms, and "Sleep of the Child Jesus" by Gevert.

and Professional Women's club banquet today. Marian Maddy will play a group of three numbers, "Marinka in A Minor" by Chopin, "Cuckoo" by Durquin, and "Waltz in D flat Major" by Chopin. She will also accompany the soprano solo.

Lutheran Club To Take Trip

About thirty Lutheran Student club members will go to Ann Arbor Sunday afternoon where they will attend a banquet and an evening of entertainment to be given by the University of Michigan Lutheran Student club.

The exchange of banquets by the two clubs is an annual affair. The University of Michigan club members were the guests of the Michigan State club last year.

The group will leave from the front of the Union at 2:30 p. m. Any Lutheran student wishing to attend the banquet, may call 2-5636 and register for transportation which will be made available.

Bus Service Threatened By Ruling

Students May Be Forced to Transfer at Lansing Limits

With the Michigan Public Utilities commission's definite refusal of a permit for traffic between East Lansing and Lansing to the newly-formed Inter-City Busline, it seemed today a virtual certainty that students of Michigan State college would ride to Lansing on the old Lansing City line after December 1, when the new busline will open service in Lansing.

By agreement of opposing counsel the commission has postponed further discussion on the hearing until November 23, two days before service is scheduled to start in Lansing. It is generally agreed that the hearing will take more than two days to reach completion.

On Monday night, W. E. Cann, manager of the Lansing City line, was formally served with the city council's notice that after November 20, his buses would not be allowed on the streets of Lansing.

Speculation immediately followed on campus as to whether this denial, coupled with the Public Utilities commission's refusal of an inter-city permit to the new company, would hold up bus service to and from the campus.

Cann, in a statement to the State News last night, said "The campus service will continue just as it always has in the past. Our company still holds its permit with the Public Utilities commission, and, as we have not violated it's conditions, we can see no reason why it should be revoked."

"If it is not, and if the Inter-City Coach line operates in Lansing, students will still be able to ride from the campus to the capital on one-fare service."

NYA Pay Period Ends Tuesday

Final time reports for the second NYA payroll period should be sent to the business office of the college on November 23, according to Glen O. Stewart, director of NYA. The second payroll period ends on Tuesday evening, November 22, and time slips should include any hours worked by students up to and including that day.

A special warning is issued to students and supervisors not to delay in sending in time reports as the Thanksgiving holiday comes when reports are due.

Pingel Leads Eleven Seniors Onto Field For Final Game

Bachman Drills Team on Passing Attack; Owls are Rated Tough Foe Despite Poor Record

King Football will bow out of the Spartan athletic spotlight this afternoon when the eleven of Temple university and Michigan State come to grips at 2 p. m. on Macklin field in a game which should produce plenty of fireworks.

It will be a sad day for Coach Charlie Bachman, win or lose, for it will mark the final collegiate appearance of Johnny Pingel, probably the greatest back Michigan State has ever turned out. The best punter in the nation last year, and one who was always among the best in every department of play, Pingel's loss will leave a vacancy in the Spartan ranks that will not be easy to fill.

From his position at left half, Pingel has sparked pinged his team's play ever since he broke into the lineup back in 1936. A consistent performer, Pingel has never had a bad day. His opponents also have recognized Pingel's

There will be plenty of music and color at the State-Temple football game this afternoon, with two bands on hand to provide time-out entertainment.

Director Horace E. Pike will bring the Temple college 85-piece band to East Lansing for the game, arriving this morning by bus. Both the Temple and Michigan State bands will share honors at half-time. The visiting musicians will take the field before the game and during the half.

The Temple band remains sceptical about its plans for the half-time entertainment, but the State boys who made the Temple trip last year promise that whatever it is, it will be good. They will find themselves arrayed against no mean competition, however. The Michigan State band is rated as one of the finest in the nation, both in the quality of their music and the experience with which they perform skillful maneuvers between the goalposts.

Other losses in the State lineup will be felt next year, as well. Ernie Bremer, Dave Diehl, Tim McShannock, Ole Nelson, Darwin Dudley, Al Diebold, Steve Szasz, Gene Cohen, Cliff Haney, and George Kivovich all will be playing their final game for State. Injuries will keep Chiel and Szasz on the sidelines, but they will be missed next year.

Five of these men will be in the starting lineup when the Spartans take the field tomorrow. Besides in say they will be out to show their college careers with a victory.

The ball, however, probably won't be too easy a nut to crack. Their record is more impressive than they have the players, class and power needed to make them a great team. They have a limited offensive arsenal, but a brilliant defensive line, being definitely an in and out team. If they are all today, State will have a busy afternoon.

What has reached Spartan ears at the Warmerest is a weak at loss defense. Dr. Brown has built his offense according to Pingel, Drake and Les Bruckner, recently switched from quarter to left half, will fill the air today.

The Owls, on the other hand, make their attack at the tackles, this being the principal weapon.

These girls being initiated are: Jane Hopkins, Adelaide Krueger, Shirley McCoy, Frances Vanderploeg, Lucille Hallett, and Florence Rann. Two girls, now attending Merrill-Palmer school, Flora Anderson and Edna Walz, will also be initiated.

After the initiation, a breakfast will be served at Hunt's Food shop for the Omicron Nu members.

Gertrude Seckinger, vice-president, is in charge of arrangements for the initiation as Dorothy Gibson, president, is at Merrill-Palmer this fall.

Faculty men are urged to attend to lead these smaller "bull sessions", and tell of their experiences in certain fields.

Omicon Nu To Initiate 8

Initiation of eight Omicron Nu members will be held Sunday, November 20, at 9 a. m. at the department in the Home Economics building.

Work on Michigan State's new field house will begin in two weeks, Athletic Director Ralph H. Young announced yesterday. The new structure, to be erected south of the present football practice fields, will be ready by September 1, 1939.

U.S. 16 Will Not Move Without Aid

An editorial in a recent State News concerning the re-routing of U.S. 16 around East Lansing caused a great deal of comment among townspeople and students. But as yet they do not realize the importance which their own opinions, if expressed, will play in the actual changing of the highway.

For although the highway department of Michigan recognizes the problem, they do not include immediate action of their program. Mr. Harry G. Coons, of that department, stated, "Long time plans have been figured out for all such communities such as East Lansing where a principal highway runs through the main street. However there is no action to be taken in the immediate future."

The State News contends that the situation in East Lansing is very current and that some plan of action should soon be decided upon. The new hospital will be completed within a few months, and Michigan State college will continue to increase in size. Undoubtedly traffic on U.S. 16 will also continue to increase. Why should the change be put off until some serious accident takes place?

The only way that the highway department has of knowing that East Lansing citizens are serious about a change in U.S. 16 is to be told. Otherwise plans made will be in the future, pushed aside for projects apparently more urgent. When these citizens will take it upon themselves to circulate petitions, and talk personally to the highway department, some action may be had.

Phi Bet's Tell How It's Done

Said a duffard to a Phi Beta Kappa, "How did you get that way?"

A psychologist overheard and decided to do a bit of research and answer this question which must be in the minds of many poor to mediocre students.

So he questioned at least 20 honor students of the graduate school of Columbia university about their study habits hoping thereby to uncover methods of study which could be applied by all students who want to get better grades. He found good students have several study habits in common.

These are listed here for the benefit of other students:

1. Honor students invariably studied alone, avoided distractions.
 2. Honor students took fairly complete notes of lectures and followed assignments carefully.
 3. Honor students had a system of exercise which they followed rather closely. It is to be noted that the below-average students had no systems whatsoever. Honor students averaged 7 to 8 hours of sleep.
 4. Honor students read rapidly, read phrases instead of words.
 5. Honor students talked about their studies and reviewed classwork and readings in their heads during the day. They talked with professors and students both in and out of class.
 6. Honor students were good social mixers, did not stay at home. They also read widely not only in their own fields but in other fields of study.
 7. Honor students examined for exams when necessary.
- The psychologist who prepared the above analysis, in the Psych Education pamphlet, 1935, said that the greatest handicap to the new freshman is his sudden change of life when he comes to a campus from a home.
- As suggested by one Michigan college editor, it would be a good idea for students, especially freshmen, to clip out the above list and paste it in their notebooks for easy reference.

Ag Council Exemplifies Democratic Government

Promotion of the Ag Council within the Division of Agriculture which acts in an advisory capacity to the council of the division, was the subject of the annual student organization of the Ag Division and support of the division of agriculture that will advance the interests of the Ag Division and the Michigan State college for the year and objectives of the Ag Council.

A sequel to the Ag Council of the old days, the council was first organized in 1927. It was later reorganized and a new constitution drawn up giving it a more substantial foundation. Today the council consists of a representative, usually the president, from each of the eleven clubs within the Agriculture Division plus a representative from the freshman, sophomore, and junior classes.

A president, vice president, secretary, treasurer, and student council representative are elected by the members of the council. A faculty committee of six

CROSSFIRE

By OSRIC

So now the coeds at Alma want to play football. Gahwah! Might be Martha, what's the world coming to?

I didn't mind it when the dames of the 1900's started smoking. There is admittedly a certain fascination to the fatal weed that attracted even Ethel Roosevelt way back when papa T. R. was president.

Personally I think a cigaret in a woman's face adds about as much to her beauty as gloves would to Venus de Milo. But if the females want to smoke, OK, this is a free country.

There wasn't anything especially wrong either when the fair sex of 1919 got "equal rights" with men because of the 20th amendment.

"Equal rights," Nerdy! Someone ought to write a declaration of independence for the down-trodden men of this country. But if the dames want the right to vote, OK, suits me. I'll even remove my hat before I enter the polls.

Now did it worry me too much when the dizzy trails of the Mad Twenties belted their curls, took a cue off the rack and turned loose a post-hall into Ye Old Recreation Centre for Floozy Franks. I could still run fourteen miles on the corner pockets and stendle La daisy on the eighth floor.

I suppose if Mrs. Courtland Glop—some time Elizabeth van Hoop—wants to step into the billiard room for a quick game of straight-rail before going to Junior League, I can't stop her if she's from any place but Kentucky, she's probably over twenty-one and her own boss.

I shied it too when some red-tied cheer girls boared the courts playing basketball under men's rules. God is a woman's name to which I've never objected. Personally I think tennis is a neat way for a girl to show off her better points and swimming for women is absolutely OK from both an aesthetic and athletic viewpoint. I can even get interested when two amazons start pulling hair and call it wrestling.

But now a batch of slenderness-shoppers from Dormitory Six with more beauty than brains evidently get the brilliant idea of seizing a pink-splashed muslin and doing the deed old Alma at least in front of the camera.

Could a publicity director have suggested this publicity-minded business? No, no, no. Forget the thought. It was just a group of six girls who didn't find field hockey strenuous enough.

I'd guess, maybe I'm old-fashioned. When I kiss a girl I still use the old but necessary have to kiss a girl out of her mouth first. When I kiss a girl, I still want an opponent with whiskey on his face and a fathomed opinion on his lips. When I go to a ball, I don't want to see the girls in the stands nod down on the field watching out a referee's eyes because of a fair deppot. I'm sentimental. I want a girl who looks appealing in an evening dress and not like a female basketball player.

OK, girls go ahead at it if you want to. I'd like to see you and live the life but be sure you don't get out of range of the camera or miss up your permanent.

And I'd guess autumn afternoon I look into the stadium to find the football field with pink bows. The girls to move to Palagathia and hold the hands of all the women in Michigan.

Mrs. A. A. Johnson presided over the meeting and it was decided because December is such a busy month the next meeting would be earlier in the month, December 9, which will be Christmas party at the D. T. Ewing residence.

Special Services Planned Sunday Vote on Bond Issue Again

Tomorrow, November 20, has been designated by the Religious Council as "Go to Church Sunday." Each term the Council sets aside one Sunday on which all students are specially urged to attend church. Fraternities and societies are expected to attend the Peoples church in a body.

Voting on the $70,000 bond issue by the citizens of East Lansing will take place next Tuesday, November 22. There will be two separate issues to be voted on. The first will be on the water works bonds, and will entail the borrowing of $36,000, by the issue of bonds for that amount. These funds will be used for the improvement of the water system of the city, which includes the addition of a new water softener unit, a new water tower, and a new well. The need for these improvements was demonstrated by the lack of sufficient water pressure last summer.

Linton Speaks at PTA Meet

At a meeting Thursday, November 17, the Bailey Parent-Teacher association heard Professor R. S. Linton, assistant registrar at M. S. C., speak on "Vocational Guidance." Mr. Linton stressed the need of a complete survey of all evidence in regard to a child's health, intelligence and personality in order to obtain a complete guidance record of value. At the conclusion of his talk he answered questions relative to the subject. Other features of the program were the Bailey glee club and Miss Anne Wagenvoort, soloist. At the close of the program refreshments were served by Mrs. D. C. Mosher and her committee. Mrs. Mark Doty, Mrs. Joe Hess, Mrs. A. A. Applegate, Mrs. C. F. Myster, Mrs. W. H. Bartels and Mrs. R. O. VanOrden.

Prep Seniors Plan Gifts

The less fortunate of East Lansing's citizens will not be forgotten this Thanksgiving, if the seniors of East Lansing high school can help it.

Every year the students in the senior class of East Lansing high school collect food to make up Thanksgiving day baskets, for the needy people of the city. The whole school cooperates with the seniors, in bringing whatever they can to fill the baskets. The week of Nov. 21 is set aside for this worthy project.

Committees are chosen from the class for the various jobs that must be carried out. The students deliver the food stuff themselves.

Sigma Nu Player Ruled Eligible; Team In Semi-Final Round

Play Lambda Chi Eleven In Opener

Kappa Sigma Faces Alpha Epsilon Pi In Second Contest

By CHARLES DUTTON

The athletic committee of the Inter Fraternity council yesterday ruled all police ad students eligible for competition and in doing so rejected Elected's protest of its game with the Sigma Nu last Tuesday.

By the action Sigma Nu officially gains the semi-finals in the touch football league and will play Lambda Chi eleven Monday night. The other semi-final game will bring together Kappa Sigma and Alpha Epsilon Pi.

Ties had protested the Sigma Nu's use of Franz Hartnacke, now in his fifth year of the police course and grounds the player was not taking the prescribed number of credits. To play in fraternity games, students must be carrying 10 hours per term.

ONLY 30 CREDITS

Police Ad students are permitted to carry only 30 credits in their last 18 months, which according to the rules made Hartnacke ineligible. However, there was no provision which governed such cases as Hartnacke's.

The committee decided since Hartnacke was a regular student and the constitution contained nothing to cover his situation he should be allowed to participate.

In order to cover any future cases of this type the committee ruled that any student from fresh to graduate may take part if he is carrying 10 or more credits and in the case of Police Ads, special police work will count as credits.

Therefore the Sigma Nu victory over the Ties on Tuesday holds, and the Lambda Chi will battle with the Sigma Nus for the right to meet the winner of the Kappa Sig-AE Pi affair in the finals.

SIGMA NUS FAVORIT

By virtue of the victory over the powerful Ties, the Sigma Nus go into the game as favorites over the Lambda Chi, who while not showing a great offense have completely stopped any scoring attempts of their opponents. Lambda Chi offense will need a real test against Bill Carpenter and Hartnacke. Sigma Nu backs who can run and pass equally well.

Making three first downs in the last two minutes of play, the AE P's triumphed over a hard fighting SAE seven 4 to 2 Thursday to win their block title.

It was costly victory for AE P's as they will come up against a tall and fast Kappa Sig team without the services of George Schulte and Warren Schneider who were injured in Thursday's game.

Dorm Elevens Play to Gain Big Game

The semi-final and final for the championship in the Dormitory touch football league will be played Monday and Tuesday nights.

Precinct 7 of Block 7 plays Division 2 of Block 2 in the semi-final, with the winner facing Precinct 6 of Block 3 for the league flag.

Precinct 7 should be hard to beat, on the basis of past performance. They have a well-balanced team, including the Gerard-to-Etter combination which has scored 59 points in four games.

Division 2 has gathered only 20 points, winning three of their contests on first downs. Precinct 6 has chalked up 46 points, largely due to the play of Fred Quigley.

Scoop Says:

By George Maskin

Here and there the day before the final football game of the season.

Glenn L. (Pop) Warner leaning on a cane and admitting it won't be long now before he'll quit the coaching business. Pop's been around 44 years, which is 42 years more than the average coach.

The Temple Oxis flashing bright red uniforms with numbers on the front. Back in 1935 State marked up the jerseys of the Temple players with black chalk for the purpose of telling who was who.

Fred Swan, assistant Temple coach, walking into the shed on the lower field, and noticing a blackboard filled with State plays. "Better erase those," he smiled to Tom King. "They're probably your touchdown plays." King did.

Bachman Praised

More Observations:

Temple coaches going wild over the dummies recently designed by Charley Bachman. "You're quite an inventor," Pop Warner told the State coach as the pair walked hand in hand back to the showers.

The visiting players boasting of the swell State campus. "Gee, they don't have to be afraid of being knocked down by buses here," he told us. Back at Temple, the University is spread all around Philadelphia, if you didn't know.

Leslie Bruckner serving as singing director as the State football players headed for a hotel to spend the night. And Bruckner's a pretty fair singer, too. He certainly had stronger voice practice this fall while at quarterback.

Spartans Picked

Picking winners for the last time.

With Johnny Pingel leading the procession State will take Temple by two touchdowns. Michigan will finish its Big Ten drive by topping Ohio State. It's Detroit to beat Tulsa in a battle.

At Evanston, the Irish backs will go marching past Northwestern Wisconsin's one chance to take Minnesota and thus win the West-ern Conference flag. Purdue has too much for Indiana, while Illinois will have some fun playing Chicago.

Oklahoma will beat Iowa State. Columbia down Syracuse. Harvard conquer Yale. Manhattan beat West Virginia. Duke win over North Carolina State. California whip Stanford. Texas Christian stop Rice and Nebraska trip Iowa.

But, please don't bet on these.

Honor Pingel

Happy to see Franz Hartnacke ruled eligible for fraternity play and Sigma Nu okayed to clash in the semi-finals next Monday.

Temple has decided to bring its band to out confines. It marks the first time a musical organization from an eastern school will parade on Macklin Field.

The National Collegiate cross country meet has attracted a sizeable entry. Athletic Director Ralph H. Young labored many an hour trying to land the classic for Michigan State.

Ben Van Alstyne has cooked up another corking good basketball schedule. The home card is especially impressive with 10 games on tap in Demonstration Hall.

FOOTBALL

Temple will start practically the same team that the Spartans defeated 13-6 last year at Philadelphia. Mike Laska, who scored the touchdowns against State in that game, will again be very much in evidence. He was a thorn in State's side all afternoon last season.

"Pop" Warner also employs the two-team system which the Spartans use. He has two complete elevens ready for action, and undecided which to start today. Both lineups list capable performers and thus leaves little to choose between them.

Harrier Stars Race On Campus Monday In Nationals

State, Indiana Teams Stand Out in Strong Field Of Entries; ICIA Indivi dual Tops Aces Who Will Perform for Laurels; Start at 10:30 on Track

By JOE SIMEK

Nationally famous distance running stars are beginning their trek toward East Lansing for Michigan State will be hosts to the first National Collegiate and the Thirteenth Annual Central Collegiate Conference cross country championships, Monday forenoon at 10:30.

All the powerful teams of the middle-west will be represented, while scattered entries have been received from the East, South and as far west as Drake university.

Indiana will be defending their perennial C. I. C. crown. The Hoosiers especially are desirous to repeat because they suffered their first defeat in more than four years in a dual meet here last month.

BADGERS STRONG

The Big Ten favorite is represented by Ohio State, Purdue, Wisconsin, and Minnesota. With the exception of Minnesota all schools will be title contenders. Wisconsin's runners are particularly outstanding this year.

Other strong teams entered are Alfred, Penn State, and Pittsburgh of the East. Notre Dame, Drake, Oklahoma A. & M., and Marquette are also sending their aces.

A galaxy of individual stars will be galloping for the crown won last year by Indiana's great colored strider, Jimmy Smith. Penn State's ace is the I. C. 4-A winner, William Smith, who is set to lose a college race.

A few of the stars include Mel Trutt, Indiana; James Whittaker, Ohio State; Art Badeau, Purdue; Gregory Rice, Notre Dame; and Walter Meil, Wisconsin.

After releasing this grip on the I. C. 4-A crown the runner-up Michigan State harriers are all the more determined to have the magnificent national trophy remain here in East Lansing.

SHOULD IMPROVE

Undeclared in the middle-west and second in the I. C. 4-A, the Spartans have shown the balance necessary to improve their second place spot in the C. I. C. the last two years.

With the advantage of running in their own back yard Fletcher Gibson and Bill Mansfield should regain their normal form and put State in the running.

Dick Frey, Roy Fehr, and George Keller turned in the best times of the season to finish in the first ten in the New York classic, and will lead the State entry in its quest for laurels.

The race, a four-mile event, will start and finish at the track.

Hard But Good, Coach Says of Cage Card

"It's the toughest and the best schedule we've ever had," was basketball Coach Van Alstyne's reply when asked to comment on the recently released Michigan State cage card.

"It takes a first class schedule to bring out the best in a team," he went on to explain his rather ambitious statement. "We have the finest material to work on this fall, and should be able to have the greatest quintet in the history of the college."

"However, only through stiff practice and stiffer games can the true abilities of any team be brought out," he continued. "We certainly won't suffer this year from the lack of competition—just look at the list of teams we play; that'll prove the point."

"For instance," he pointed out, "Temple was the best team in the east last year, and they're coming up with another strong outfit this season. Some of the others are just as strong. Indiana, always a hot team in any cage league, will throw out an all-veteran first five this year. Tennessee rates next to Kentucky as the class of the Ohio valley, and finally there is always Michigan—we never know what to expect there."

Battle Seen For Loop's Crown

Bealton and Acres To Clash Tuesday In I. M. L. Final

By BOB DELISLE

Enthusiasm for the coming battle between Briggs' Acres and Bealton for the Independent football league championship is at a high pitch.

Each team won its block leadership and advanced successfully through the semi-final round.

Tuesday night, the Acres will be gunning for their second consecutive championship, as last year they were co-holders of the title. Bealtoners, however, are equally determined in their quest, and a spirited game is assured.

OJEN ON SPOT

Bob Ojen, of Briggs Acres is certain to be the marked man of his team. His accurate passes have been the undoing of opponents all season, only the Pushovers succeeding in checking his heaves and earning a scoreless tie.

Nyquist, St. John, Reece, and Bing Miller form a quartet of very able receivers, but the playing of the whole team has been an important feature in the team's success.

In Brady Rice, Bealton has uncovered a passer of their own who compares favorably with the Briggs' star.

In the Face, State appears weakest. Ben Bieser is the only man who is sure of a fencing spot. Oswald and Hammon seem to be the other men in line for a position at this time, but the positions are wide open.

Fresh. Note!

Freshman basketball players reporting for practice sessions are asked to turn out in gym clothing ready to begin work immediately. No uniforms are issued until later in the season.

Pingel's Record for Season Merits National Rating

Carried the ball 202 times for total gain of 512 yards, an average of 4 plus yards.

Completed 49 out of 91 forward passes for total of 539 yards. (That's really pitching).

Punted 59 times for an average for 41 yards plus (the college standard is 35 to 36 yards).

Has gained 528 yards of his team's 1,368 total for the season and has played only slightly more than half the playing time.

Has scored only four touchdowns, but has thrown passes for six others.

And Pingel is not a new star. Last year the 175-pounder gained on an average of 57 yards each time he carried the ball, gaining 665 yards and completing 30 out of 68 passes for 481 yards, a total of 1,146 yards. He was ranked the No. 1 punter in the country last fall, having an average of 42.6 yards.

Coach Charley Bachman not only likes Johnny in the game when his team has the ball, but he is a key man on defense. He is a surefire tackler, a good blocker and at pass defense he is a natural.

P. S.: He never has had a punt blocked in college—or high school—a perfect record for six years of play.

Vaughn Captures Freshman Run

Running true to form, Glen Vaughn led the field in the All-Freshman run yesterday. The winning time was 22:01.4 for the four-mile course.

Close finishes characterized the meet. The thriller came when Louis Gray and David Cowden came in a near-photo finish for third place.
