Davis Doubts Union Merger

Animosity Between Union Leaders Halts Progress

By Dave Jones

Doubt was expressed yesterday by J. C. Davis, assistant professor of economics, that the country's two hostile labor groups, the A.F. of L. and the C.I.O., would reach any settlement of their differences in the near future.

"Although the resignation of John L. Lewis from leadership of the C.I.O. may improve relations," Davis stated, "I am inclined to be pessimistic about the outcome. If reconciliation is brought about at all, it may take a year or two."

ANIMOSITY BLOCKS PEACE
Two major issues have stood between the rival organizations, according to Davis. First is the personal animosity between Lewis and William Green, A.F. of L. leader. For several years these two men have been fighting each other constantly. Lewis' resignation does not remove him from the labor picture, in Davis' opinion, since he still retains his leadership of the United Mine Workers, wealthiest and most powerful element in the C.I.O.

The second and most important factor hindering reconciliation, Davis believes, is their disagreement over the status of the C.I.O. unions if they should merge with their opponents. C.I.O. chiefs have insisted that their unions should have equal status with A.F. of L. unions in the event of a merger.

ENROLLMENT CHANGES
Since the C.I.O. membership has been greater than that of the A.F. of L., such an agreement would give the C.I.O. control over union affairs. In the last few months A.F. of L. has taken the lead in membership, however, and this fact may influence the Green organization to accept the C.I.O. on an equal footing.

The element of dual unionism is also important, according to Davis. An A.F. of L. union such as the Progressive Mine Workers of America could hardly be expected to combine with Lewis' United Mine Workers, whom they hate intensely.

DAY BROKEN TALKS
Davis also expressed the belief that President Roosevelt, in his message to the coming union conventions, will urge the two factions to reopen negotiations in the near future.

hope of settling their differences. The conflicting ideas of craft unions versus industrial unions were described by Davis as being of lesser importance in keeping the warring groups apart.

Woodmen Plan Two-Day Trip

A group of Michigan foresters will inspect four state evergreen plantations and a method of sand dune control employed in Ottawa county, Friday and Saturday, W. I. Bull, of the forestry department, announced yesterday.

Forestry specialists planning to participate in the inspection are from the forestry department of the University of Michigan, Michigan Conservation department, U.S. Soil Conservation service, State Highway department, Consumers Power company, and the Dow Chemical company.

Purpose of the trip is to study advanced methods of evergreen planting and elimination of tree diseases. Material gathered during the inspection will aid the foresters in answering the questions of private planters.

Birds Again Seek Out Hannah For Winter Feed

Like the swallows to Capistrano, the sparrows, bluejays, and cardinals have returned to the window of Secretary John Hannah's office.

With the first snowfall of the season, Hannah renewed his yearly custom of feeding birds which gather around the administration building. This year Secretary Hannah is particularly looking for the return of a female cardinal conspicuous by the lack of one of her legs.

The cardinal in her one-legged state managed to keep going during last winter, and the observers from Hannah's office are curious about whether she will return this year.

Cups, Medals to Go To Best Debaters

Cups inscribed with the winners' names will be given to the four top teams in the men and women's intramural debate contest, according to Burdette Stampely, faculty debate director.

If two teams within the sororities, fraternities, and independents win the same amount of debates they will debate each other to determine the representative of the group.

Top team for sororities and fraternities will then be paired against the top men and women independent team to determine ownership of the first place cup. The two losing teams in this final debate receive the second place cups.

Members of the four teams in the debate finals will receive individual debate medals.

JAPS BACKTRACK

A step backward from her belated attitude toward the U.S. a few weeks ago accompanying signing of the Axis-Tokyo pact is seen in the appointment of a man friendly to the U.S. as new Japanese ambassador to Washington. Admiral Nomura, new ambassador and soon to leave for Washington, said "recently that there is no issue between his nation and the U.S. which must be settled by recourse to war."

Voting Monday to take under consideration a bill which would limit four federal agencies, favorites of the administration, the Senate administered a setback to the President's plans. Washington observers say.

The national machinery of education will move 32,285,000 students, from kindergarten to college, another notch ahead this year.

Grades Won't Be Xmas Presents; To be Out Late

Registrar R. S. Linton revealed yesterday that students will be able to enjoy Christmas day without the unhappy feeling which has obsessed many in the past. Fall term grades, Linton states, will not reach students until a day or so after Christmas.

In past years some students have received their fall term marks in the form of Christmas presents, but under the new punch-card system, no grades will be sent out until all marks have been compiled.

Linton expects final marks to begin coming into the office soon after the last examinations are completed. He believes that all grade cards will be ready by Tuesday after the beginning of the recess.

Warren Smolen, sophomore engineering student, is capitalizing on a novel way of financing a college education.

Smolen, who is officially rated as a professional, teaches fellow students to roller skate, and to reverse the usual procedure he has informally instructed several Michigan State faculty members in the sport.

According to the student instructor, included among faculty members who accompanied student organizations on skating parties during the past school year were B. Sangster, mechanical engineering instructor; Fran Dittich, physical education instructor; M. S. Vandemeer, assistant football coach, and J. H. Kobs, professor of physical education and head baseball coach.

TABLE SERVICE—7:15 - 9:00 Monday Through Saturday

Spartan Sportlines

BY JOE SIMEK

The release of Paddy Driscoll as head coach of Marquette's grid-ders just before the Hilltoppers' game with the University of Detroit Saturday comes as a distinct surprise. The offensive-minded Golden Avalanche was having one of its leanest years, not having won its second game until the 7-6 victory against Michigan State the week before.

Before the game, the Spartans were made heavy favorites by the Milwaukee writers and those close to the team. But when Center Ray Apolskis rammed over a touchdown on an intercepted pass to Spett State, I heard a prominent Marquette official remark that the victory over the Spartans would constitute a successful season. Evidently it did not.

Milwaukee sources have frequently mentioned Mike Casteel, popular Michigan State assistant until two years ago, as a possible successor. Much as I would like to see Casteel at Marquette, for that school rates No. 2 in the number of engagements on the year-around schedule for the Spartans, I can hardly see him leave the powerful team he has built at Arizona.

Arizona is now a power in the border conference and Mike has made a tremendous hit in the west. His position at Marquette would be precarious. At any rate, the game between Arizona and Marquette this Saturday should bring forth some interesting developments.

First to feel the force of the selective service draft at Michigan State is Don Rossi, backfield assistant and graduate student. One of the quarterbacks on the 1933 squad, Rossi drew an order number of 153 at a Detroit board, and will report to Fort Sheridan, Illinois, in January.

ROSSI

Bill Kennedy, crashing end who has seen service in the backfield and at center, was the only griddler to draw a low order number, coming up with 29, which would make him subject to immediate service except for the provision that exempts all regular college students until July 1.

Other athletes at State in the draft appear to be in the high brackets. Mike Soffak, basketball star at Michigan, drew one of the famous 158's. So it appears that I will have some athletes around me when 135 comes up.

Halfback Warren Panushka, a 22-year-old senior at Macalester college who never played football in either high school or college, is in the Macalester starting lineup this year.

He Leads Gridders In Yards Gained

Top man—Leading all of State's backfield men in the matter of individual play this season was Wyman Davis, left-half portion of the Dundee twin combination. In 76 ball-carrying attempts, Davis ran for a total of 391 yards and completed 14 passes out of 46 for 240 yards. In addition to these feats he also ran back punts and kick-offs for 220 yards, scored two touchdowns.

Lead Changes In Loop Play

South Campbell took possession of first place in the women's volleyball tournament when it defeated Alice Cowles 39 to 29 and stretched its winning streak to six straight against no losses. Sigma Kappa sorority threatens the leaders with a mark of five wins, no losses and one tie. Grove-Robinson co-op house, which was tied with Sigma Kappa for first place lost the opportunity to play in the finals when it defaulted to the Kappas Tuesday night.

Tied for third place are Alpha Chi Omega, Kappa Kappa Gamma.

Students and friends in the vicinity of New York interested in attending the M.S.C.-Long Island basketball game at Madison Square Garden Jan. 4 at reduced prices may do so by dialing George Handler at the A. E. Pi house before next Thursday. Special tickets may be obtained for 44 cents instead of the regular charge of 82 cents.

National AAU Meet Draws State Dalers to Detroit

Shorn of their national collegiate championship as the result of Monday's meet here, Michigan State's cross country team will attempt to regain prestige in the National A.A.U. 10,000 meter run over Detroit's Meadowbrook Country club this afternoon.

The Spartans and Michigan Normal of Ypsilanti are the only full collegiate teams in the meet, which has attracted strong amateur teams from the east as well as a big entry of unattached and collegiate stars from throughout the country. Indiana, newly crowned collegiate champions, will be represented only by individual entries.

Coach Lauren P. Brown's harriers are anxious to renew their rivalry with Michigan Normal, over whom they have two state meet victories, but who outran them 68-102 in the nationals on the Spartans' home course.

A.A.U. rules permit eight man teams, which is one more than is allowed in collegiate competition. Coach Brown has added Bill Van Velzor, Lansing sophomore, to his regular team of Capt. Ed Mills, Al Mangano, Warren Anderson, Walt Beardslee, Bill Scott, Ralph Monroe, and Jerry Page.

The two college teams are not expected to threaten for the team title held by the New York Athletic club. With renowned stars such as Gene Venzke, Joe McCluskey, and Luigi Becali, Italian 1932 Olympic 1500 meter king, the New York contingent is expected to keep its title.

For the individual crown, attention will be centered on Don Lash, Indiana state policeman and former Indiana university flyer, who has run off with the title for seven consecutive years. Today he is expected to have stiff competition from Greg Rice, Forrest Efw, Walter Meh, and Mel Trutt, a former teammate.

Usually held in the east, the meet has not drawn a Michigan State entry since 1934.

Coaches Award MSC With Harrier Meet

If the N.C.A.A. governing body adopts the unanimous recommendation of the National Collegiate Cross Country Coaches association, Michigan State will be the site of the national meet for the fourth consecutive time next year.

The coaches adopted the resolution at a venison dinner following the national meet here Monday. Officers elected for the coming year are Tom Jones, Wisconsin, president; Fred Tuotell, Rhode Island, vice-president; Mike Ryan, Idaho, treasurer, and Lauren P. Brown, Michigan State, secretary.

Coaches Hang Bird On 'S' Gridders At Banquet

Thanksgiving came a week late for the Michigan State football team which was honored at a luncheon in the Olds hotel yesterday by the Lansing Downtown Coaches' Club.

Not only did the gridders return laden with shirts, ties, key chains and other personal gifts, but also birds of all sorts. Every player had at least one fowl.

Bob Friedlund, junior right end, had a pig under his arm; Bill Batchelor had a duck. All were very much alive.

Frosh Gridders Elect Deibert

Glenn Deibert, left end, from Pontiac, was elected honorary captain for the season by freshman football numeral winners Tuesday noon. Last year's captain was Tom Johnson, varsity tackle.

The Athletic Council awarded 42 gridders and Manager Fred Colwell, Scotia, N. Y. senior, with numeral sweaters. Receiving numerals are:

By Ed Kitchen

Whether or not the Spartan front line will pack enough scoring punch to make its threat felt against the big boys looming ahead this year was just one more of the problems confronting solemn Ben Van Alstyne as Michigan State basketball forces pitched into final pre-season drills today.

Hinging on veteran Max Hindman, the 6 foot, 2 inch center from Gary, Ind., State's forwards figure to have their biggest difficulty in controlling the ball in beneath-the-basket action this season.

Dumped into a particularly tough job is quiet, curly-haired Bob Morris, the Grand Rapids senior whose lot it is to fill the spot left vacant by Martin Hutt, now one of Uncle Sam's army air corps fledglings. With Hindman and Max Dalrymple, also one of the missing this year, Hutt helped form a dangerous combination around the backboard.

PLAY AGAINST SCOTS Morris, who measures in at 6 feet, 1 inch, is teaming with the 1939 North Webster, Ind., flash, Joe Gerard, and although neither has an extra amount of finesse, their driving play leads Spartan cage followers to predict that things may not be so dark on the Jensen hardwoods after all this winter.

Behind these experienced reserve material last year, too deep and Van Alstyne personally has bemoaned the lack of seasoned secondary strength week.

Backing up the forwards are Dudley Jones, the East Chicago sophomore, and a pair of Scheradians, Carl Petrofski and May.

What there is left to learn before Monday's encounter at Kalamazoo will be packed into afternoon, Friday, and Saturday for the Spartans as they close fifth week of practice. Alma will be back for a second scrimmage Friday.
