

Today's Campus

Sacked

Whoever climbed up on a step-ladder and attached paper sacks to the branches of several trees around campus can claim credit for creating the controversy of the week.

Among more educated factions, the affair is quite simple. It's just a little experiment in cross-pollination being carried on by the college, they state. The sacks are supposed to protect the buds from contamination, or something. But multitudes of not so well informed students advance theories from "Wells hall men did it" to "a joke" to "Will someone please explain?"

Does He Wear 'Em?

E. J. Smith, chemistry instructor, got unexpected aid in a classroom attempt the other afternoon to illustrate the part chemistry plays in everyday life. Smith brought up the subject of nylon stockings and queried a woman in the class about her views on the synthetic stockings.

Not bothering to wait for her answer, Walter Keadzinski, Detroit freshman, came up with a "Yes. They look pretty good, too!"

Paneless Accident

It's fun to be fooled once in a while, but to Jack Foster, New Baltimore freshman, once is too much.

Foster, one of Wells hall's more promising young specimens, found it necessary for some undisclosed reason to climb out of the shower room window onto the fire escape. In doing so, he failed to notice that some of his unsuspecting dormmates had removed the two halves of the window—the frosted lower half and the clear upper half.

It looked to Foster as though the window were open, so he boldly stepped through. The resulting splash left Foster with shattered eyes and Wells hall with a shattered window.

Spring Harvest

A number of interesting specimens have been expounded concerning the sudden disappearance of the hard Bob Leavenworth was cultivating for the annual Foresters' study whisker-growing contest. Some authorities attribute the loss to a friendly ambush by badmen friends; others insist it's a case of lost nerve. A few uninvited skeptics even maintain that since campus ladies don't like man foresters with long, sharp whiskers, pressure was brought to bear from feminine sources. Whatever the cause, a clear-cut operation on Bob's chin was carried out.

Buell Talks Before Newcomers Club

Don Buell, instructor in speech and dramatics, spoke on current roadway plays before the drama club of the Newcomers club Wednesday afternoon. Mrs. D. H. Byers was chairman of the meeting, held at the Sigma Kappa house. About 55 people attended.

Death Postpones Opener At Ohio; Twin Bill Today

COLUMBUS, O., April 11.—In deference to an Ohio State freshman baseball player who died here last night as the result of being struck in the head by a pitched ball, the first of a two-game series between Michigan State and the Buckeyes was postponed today.

The two teams, however, will engage in a double-header Saturday with Frank Mekules, giant righthander, and Joe Skrocki, sophomore find from Saginaw, slated to do the hurling for the Spartans. The Michigan State squad of 19 players arrived here late Thursday evening intent upon opening their regular season schedule with the Buckeyes who trimmed the Spartans twice last year, 4-3 and 7-3.

Coach John Kobs readily agreed with Ohio State officials to postpone the game when informed of the tragedy that had hit the Buckeye camp.

The Ohio State victim was Albert R. Davison, Jr., a freshman from Plainboro, N. J. Davison, a student in the school of agriculture, was struck by a pitched ball in batting practice last Wednesday. He failed to regain consciousness and died Thursday night.

Thorburn Cops Speech Prize

(Special to the State News)
ROCKHILL, S. C., April 11.—Al Thorburn, Lansing junior, captured top honors in parliamentary practice at the Grand Eastern Forensic tournament here yesterday.

Thorburn, who also entered the debate and extemporary speaking contests, placed first early in the contest receiving the title of Grand Eastern champion parliamentarian.

Because of laryngitis, Mary Elaine Childs, Detroit sophomore, was unable to compete in the opening two rounds of the oratory contest. Miss Childs will enter later competition, however.

Others entered in the meet, which ends Saturday, include George Herbert, Glen Wagner, Ida Mae Stevens, Frances Hillier, Grace Sidoti, Isabel Streiter, and Joe Kroll.

Wrenn to Be Vocational Keynote

Minnesota Man Will Speak On Job Choice

Dr. C. Gilbert Wrenn, professor of educational psychology at the University of Minnesota, will give the general convocation talk at the fifth annual Vocations conference opening Wednesday, it was announced yesterday by Jack Widick, chairman of the conference.

Wrenn, a graduate of Stanford university, will speak on "Principles of Vocational Choice." Wednesday at 10 a. m. in the auditorium. The talk will open this year's conference, sponsored by student organizations of the college.

For several years Wrenn has been associated with Stanford, holding in succession the positions of executive secretary of vocational guidance, assistant registrar for student personnel, and assistant professor of education. He was also president of the California Educational Research association during 1935-36.

In addition to his educational positions, Wrenn is a member of the American Psychological association, the American Educational Research association, and a fellow of the American Association of Applied Psychology. He also holds memberships in two other honorary groups.

An author as well as psychologist, Wrenn has written several books on student study habits, including "Practical Study Habits," "Study Habits Inventory," and "How to Read Rapidly and Well." He has also contributed numerous articles to educational and psychological journals.

Individual sessions of the conference will be held during Wednesday and Thursday, beginning with meetings in advertising, flying cadet training, institution administration, and commercial aviation and air hostess work at 2 p. m. Wednesday.

Senate Studies MSC Aid Bill

Passed without definite opposition in the House Thursday, Michigan State's biennial appropriation bill was to be considered by the Senate finance committee today in its first step through this body, it was disclosed Friday by Sec. John A. Hannah.

Cut by $225,000 in its trip through the house, the bill provides for a $2,725,000 appropriation, just $225,000 more than the present annual figure. It was introduced by Rep. Roy O. Gilbert, of Algonac.

An additional $1,200,000 originally included in the bill for a natural science building was stricken from it and will be included in a measure introduced this week-end, according to Hannah. This was a proviso of the house ways and means committee, which removed it from the bill, he said.

Course Topic to Be 'Whom to Marry'

"Whom to Marry" will be the topic of the third lecture in spring term marriage series Monday night in the Union ballroom, it has been announced. Prof. H. R. Hunt, of the zoology department will be the speaker.

Part of a series of six lectures scheduled for every Monday and Thursday through April 21, the Thursday lecture treated the topic "Personality Factors in a Successful Marriage." Dr. Harold Anderson, of the University of Illinois, was the speaker. The final lecture will be presented April 23.

Sponsored by Excalibur and Mortar Board, senior men's and women's honoraries, the course is open to seniors enrolled in the course only. Four of the lectures will be joint sessions, with the final pair slated to be attended by men and women separately.

Dean Conrad to Fete Honor Freshmen

Also present at the dinner will be Shirley Freeman, president, and four other Tower Guard members; Marie Gorte, president of Mortar Board, and the outgoing and incoming presidents of A. W. S., Marge Baldwin and Margaret Jensen.

Beal Gardens Are Changed; Weren't So Crowded Once

When Dr. W. J. Beal started work on his botanical garden 64 years ago yesterday, chances are he didn't plan on Beal garden becoming the spring evening sanctuary it is today.

According to Beal's "History of the Michigan Agricultural College," he made a very modest beginning in 1877. The garden was started on the bank of a brook northwest of the greenhouse, the stones used being a portion of those left over in building the first Wells hall. Most of the brook now flows underground through a 700 foot cement tunnel.

To suit the nature of each plant, the garden was designed with ponds and bays, sun and shade, sand, loam and clay. The work, for some years was done almost entirely by students, and cataloging of each plant was handled by the use of two labels, one above ground on which was punched a number, the other a piece of zinc in the ground on which was punched a number.

The director of the garden has had perplexing difficulties. For some years moles caused much damage. There has also been

High Sorority Grades Go To Epsilon Chi

Scholastic averages for sorority women show a slight increase as compared with fall term averages according to figures released from the Dean of Women's office yesterday.

Epsilon Chi led other Pan-Hellenic groups with 1.546. Kappa Alpha Theta ranked second with an average of 1.503 while Chi Omega and Kappa Kappa Gamma tied for third place with 1.492.

Averages for other houses are Alpha Xi Delta, 1.483; Alpha Chi Omega, 1.452; Kappa Delta, 1.452; Sigma Kappa, 1.411; Alpha Omicron Pi, 1.381; Alpha Gamma Delta, Alpha Phi, 1.343; Zeta Tau Alpha, 1.312.

Lack of Engineers Is Convo Subject

Shortage of mechanical engineers due to the action taken by draft boards was the outstanding topic of discussion at the mid-western power conference, according to L. G. Miller, head of the mechanical engineering department.

Professor Miller, along with Assoc. Prof. Reuling of mechanical engineering, O. E. Murgan, chief engineer of the power plant, and Asst. Prof. C. H. Pesterfield of the mechanical engineering department attended the conference held at the Palmer House in Chicago Wednesday and Thursday.

Other universities represented at the conference were Michigan, Illinois, Iowa, and Purdue.

Workshop Resumes Tuesday Sessions

The art department's weekly workshop held each Tuesday from 7 to 9 p. m. will continue during spring term under the direction of E. B. Brauner and Miss Katherine Winckler, instructors in art.

Work is already being done in clay, chalk, water color, oils, and metal, with other media available. During each workshop period, four senior art education majors act as consultants. These include Gordon Kittle, Calumet; Eleanor Wendt, Oxford; Barbara Bloore, Rockford; and Mary Jane Blue, East Lansing.

The workshop began last term as a result of student-staff discussions, and is open to students, faculty and townspeople.

Matrix Has Annual Initiation Dinner

NSFA Will Climax Meet With Active Weekend

Final Sessions to Be Today, Sunday

Brown Slated For Journalism Talk

Swinging into its second-half program, the convention of the National Student Federation of America has 15 conferences and meetings scheduled for today and Sunday. Delegates were arriving all yesterday from the student councils of member and non-member colleges throughout the East Central region, including most of the Lake states.

Thus far, 29 colleges are represented by 67 guests, according to Jean Bills, chairman. More late arrivals last night and this morning are expected to add to the total. Ten sororities and 10 fraternities volunteered to house delegates, and still other conventions are staying in dormitories, private homes, and hotels.

The conference, which is sponsored by the Michigan State college Student council, has for its purpose the achievement of mutual aid in solving self-government problems.

SEENE ATTENDS MEET
Robert Seene, 1940-41 chairman of the East Central N.S.F.A. region, and president of the Kent State university student council, arrived Friday afternoon. Seene will be leader of plenary discussions Saturday and Sunday.

Official welcome of the college was given by Sec. John A. Hannah at a dinner attended by 99 delegates. He stressed common participation in government as a necessity of democracy.

Today's program features a luncheon with Dean of Men Fred T. Mitchell as speaker, an informal dinner in the evening with Paul Bagwell of the speech department and Mary Jean McKay Byrd, former national president of N.S.F.A., delivering the addresses.

SPECIAL GROUPS MEET
Groups for discussing college calendars, college publications, finances and accounting systems, honor systems, and orientation programs will form during the day, supplemented by groups who will consider student leadership and organization in both large and small schools.

A dance in the Union ballroom in the evening will end the day's activities. This dance is open to all college students. Delegates to the convention, however, will be admitted by showing their badges as identification.

On Easter morning, conferences concerning vocational groups and placements and student-faculty and student-alumni relations will be held in the Union. Dinner will be served in the cafeteria, and for the remainder of the afternoon a plenary session will end the convention.

Convoy to Draw Greeks From Three States

Michigan State college Interfraternity Council will sponsor its fifth annual regional Greek Convoy on the campus three days beginning Thursday, April 24. Al Holcomb, general chairman, announced yesterday.

Inaugurated here five years ago, this year's three-day program is expected to attract the largest number of delegates yet. Approximately 1,000 off-campus undergraduate and graduate fraternity leaders are expected to come from all parts of Michigan, as well as from other colleges and universities in the Ohio, Indiana, and Illinois region.

Through the exchange of ideas and frank criticisms of various organizations in a series of addresses and roundtables, delegates hope to achieve the aim of the conference as set forth in the theme, "Fraternities Today and a Projected Look into the Future." During the three-day program, participants plan to cover every phase of fraternity life from the importance of financial solvency to the effects of the Selective Service act and the national defense program on fraternity membership.

It is not the aim of these sessions to bring forth resolutions for action. Dean F. T. Mitchell explains. Rather, the sole purpose is to afford the fraternity man a look at obstacles and dangers of fraternity government to be avoided in the future.

Only men can compete in the Lawson Essay contest. Judges announced yesterday, will be Dr. Robert Lammus of the department of English at Michigan State Normal college, Myron M. Golden of Station WJL, Detroit, and Professor Paul Fabout of Purdue university's department of English.

Judges for the short story contest, in which any student may enter, will be Walter J. Mullenberg of Glenzie, Arnold Mulder of Kalamazoo college, and Harold Titus of Traverse City.

The poetry contest, open to all students, will be judged by Professor Bennett Weaver, of the University of Michigan's English department, Professor Roy P. Bassler, of the State Teachers college at Florence, Alabama, and Professor Low Lawser of Northwestern's department of speech.

As a public service, the club plans to conduct a date bureau for lonely males. Dates are not confined to members of the house, it was stated, since the "old maids" go out outside of the club in arranging twosomes.

In spite of the foreboding title, Miss Bimba insists that the group has a real purpose: "Holding the house together."

Members of the economics and accounting majors debate team will defend their ownership of the Robert Pierre award for annual inter-collegiate debate in Detroit Thursday against the Wayne university team.

The debate will be held before the Detroit chapter of the American Association of Cost Accountants, sponsors of the award held by Michigan State for the past two years.

M. S. C. students will take the affirmative on the topic, "Resolved, that the differential costing method, as used by railroads, can be applied to all costing in any industry."

The team will be composed of Russell L. Gibbs, senior from Lansingburg; William Murphy, Chicago senior, and Raymond Lonsburg, Flint junior. Alternates will be Robert Lowe, Lansing senior; Alfred Beurie, Suttons Bay junior; and Donald Goss, Jackson junior.

Beware of the Grass

Freedom is wonderful. The United States is so saturated with the tradition of freedom

At most public events "No Smoking" signs are not only displayed prominently, but frequent announcements are made to the same effect.

Americans admittedly have a high degree of literacy and can read signs.

Alpha Phi Omega has placed its yearly crop of signs about the campus in the hopes that there will be a good crop of grass this spring.

All that is needed now is the realization that those little white signs apply to everyone. And that, friends, means you, and you, and YOU.

Easter Is Here

Easter time is here. Sunday even in Europe where Christianity is stifled by a blackout, the day will be one of deep import.

There is more to Easter than attending church services. The meaning of the day has come to be largely hidden behind customs such as the "Easter Parade" and scattering candy Easter rabbits about the house for the small fry.

Stripped of the artificialities and ceremonies, Easter is the celebration of the greatest event in Christian history.

College students are busy it is true, but there is time for all to stop a few moments and think about some things they may have forgotten in the last few years. It won't do anyone any harm.

The Defense Rests

How to be comfortable, yet conscious, in classes is a pressing problem during spring term

It seems to be a generally accepted idea, even though dictated by social convention, that students really should stay awake in classes. With some, appearances in class are so infrequent on days when it isn't raining that impromptu celebrations can be organized to keep them awake for the duration of the hour.

This, however, obviously cannot be a regular procedure for the rank and file of students. Each one of these must face and conquer his individual problem.

The simplest way is to sit back of some rather bulky individuals, effectively screening dormancy from the prying eyes of the instructor. Of course if seated in the front row a student has to be ingenious. This is also the case if the instructor is one of those unfair individuals who insists on moving around.

? And What? Do You Think ? ? ?

By TOM GREENE

"BUNDLES FOR BRITAIN" has apparently been quite an effective slogan. In return for the Bundles, Americans receive in return what is called "Bulletins from Britain."

CONTRIBUTIONS INCLUDE food, Red Cross, and hospital supplies, ambulances and mobile first-aid posts, clothing and cash for relief. Americans are also included in the list of those donating funds for the purchase of Spitfires.

NOT MUCH PROPAGANDA is needed to influence this sort of gift. Like movie stars who own prize fighters and race horses, the givers get a vicarious pleasure out of having a financial part in the air battles over England.

ONE OF THE MORE interesting and typically British contributions came from the sailors of Mess No. 9 on one of His Majesty's warships. It was only a small contribution and it was explained that it came from fines imposed for swearing.

THESE LITTLE HUMAN touches injected liberally in the "Bulletins" make them doubly effective as propaganda. Some of the humorous sallies attempted are so poor that they are absolutely convincing proof that the English are all too human.

IT IS CERTAINLY to be hoped that the British get some encouragement out of the thought, if not the humor, of this gem:

Writing to a school friend now in Canada, a 12-year-old English boy concluded his letter as follows:

THE ATROCITY STORIES of the last war turn up only infrequently. Their place is taken by stories of heroism and calm nerves. There is one about a mother who apologized when she brought her three children to the nursery without washing them.

THE STORY IS probably true, since it would take quite an imagination to dream that one up. It is harder to swallow the one about a railway worker who saw an incendiary bomb drop in a carload of high explosive British bombs.

AFTER READING THAT it is hard to deny that the British are brave. It is harder to remember that the Germans, the Russians, and the Italians all have their brave men too.

Even these peripatetic pedants can be outmaneuvered by the use of colored glasses, provided the sleeper doesn't sprawl too noticeably over the adjacent territory.

Ford Balks at Peace Plan; Croatia Goes Fifth-Column

DEARBORN, April 11—Whereas Ford balks at the peace plan of the Ford Motor company this afternoon after a settlement of the 11-day strike was reached, based on Gov. Murray D. Van Wagener's three-point plan.

The strike of CIO-UAW employees at the Ford Motor company's gigantic River Rouge plant which has kept 118,000 workers idle for nearly two weeks continued yesterday, after the company had made certain exceptions to the settlement plan proposed by Michigan's Gov. Murray D. Van Wagener.

The regional NLRB office refused to allow a delay in hearings, and the union at its Thursday night mass meeting failed to act on the company's exceptions.

A temporary lull in military activity on the Balkan front held sway yesterday, while Athens reported Allied troops were taking advantage of the respite to make their defenses stronger on the north front.

German diplomatic moves followed Nazi military advances into Yugoslavia, where the Croatian minority declared territory comprising more than one-fourth of the nation's area to be "independent."

Hungary, new military partner of the Axis, announced yesterday that her troops were occupying areas of Yugoslavia that formerly were a part of the Austro-Hungarian empire.

British forces in Libya admitted losses to the Axis armies which were advancing toward the Egyptian frontier, and stated that three British generals were missing, possibly among the 2,000 prisoners when the Germans reported taken in action at Mechili, 50 miles southwest of Derna. The Nazis claimed capture of six generals.

The date bureau seems on the road to success. Proof of that statement lies in the fact that Ruth Cornell, in her position as head of the bureau, has been contacted by students from Wayne university, who would like information that would help them in setting up a similar organization on their own campus.

In a plan inaugurated with the purpose of training as many lower classmen as possible in the art of becoming leaders among Independents, one person, not a senior, will be put in charge of each project undertaken by the I. S. A.

! And Here's ! What They Think

LETTERS FROM READERS

To the Editor: On March 17 a bill for academic freedom was introduced in the legislature of our state. Very few students at Michigan State college are aware that such a bill exists—a bill that concerns us all directly as students, teachers, and future teachers.

The contents of this bill for academic freedom, in brief, are that no person can be dismissed or excluded from the student body or teaching staff of any educational institution by reason of race, religion, nationality, color, creed, or political opinion.

If attempts are made to exclude or dismiss such a person, that person must be served with a written statement, by a competent authority, of the charges and reasons for such charges against him. To further insure the civil rights of the person, he shall be permitted to be heard in person and by counsel; to present witnesses; and to cross-examine the persons making the charges against him.

Neighbor Panama Is Called Playground of the Americas

By Henry Simons Quiroz.

It is quite a pleasure for me to write a series of articles on my country with the intention of getting Michigan State college students acquainted with many things that they probably do not realize exist in Panama, and also to give them an idea of our customs, habits, living conditions and relations with Americans.

This is the first in a series of articles describing Panama and its people, written by a native of that country. Others will appear periodically.

It will try to present Panama in this series of articles as it really is—the playground of the Americas, continent.

At the crossroads of the world is the Isthmus of Panama, which is rich in scenic beauty and historic association. In this country you will find the romance of the old world and the adventuring spirit of the new, recalling conquests of Spain and pirates of the Spanish Main.

WASHINGTON MERRY GO ROUND (Trade Mark Reg.) By Drew Pearson and Robert S. Allen

WASHINGTON.—Through half a century Franklin Roosevelt and Henry L. Stimson have differed on almost everything political. But at the Gridiron dinner the other night Roosevelt paid his Republican Secretary of War one of the finest tributes he has ever given anyone in public life.

In paying this tribute, the President preached a sermon which would have made an excellent fireside chat. The inner circle would have liked it to be broadcast to the nation instead of restricted to a limited group.

The Gridiron dinner struck a more sombre, restrained note this year. A lot of the usual partisan vitriol was absent, and Roosevelt, noting this restraint, said in his introduction that it was all-important in the present state of the world for people not to lose the ability to laugh.

Humor, he said, was an essential to everyone in public office, and he had had occasion to turn down one distinguished man for an important post because he completely lacked a sense of humor.

The suffering people of the world, he said, must keep faith in their democratic ideals and in their hope for peace.

It was in this connection that the President paid his tribute to his Republican Secretary of War, Mr. Stimson, he said, had never lost faith in 1931, when the world was first beginning to plant the seeds of the present war.

The reason Roosevelt rose above personalities to bring a critic into his cabinet was that Stimson represents those who were trying to build a new system of peace out of the ashes of the World War.

Stimson believes there is something basically good in peoples—all peoples—if it only has a chance to develop. And as Secretary of State in the Hoover cabinet he struggled to give that development a chance.

He built toward a "Good Neighbor" policy. It was far from perfect, but it was a start. And the destruction of this start probably is the most serious blow Hitler has struck at civilization. Roosevelt feels this keenly, so does Stimson.

"He is an old man now, and as Secretary of War, this will be his last try. It may be the last try also for the United States. Stimson belongs to an age which struggled toward the goal of loving thy neighbor as thyself—an age which will be dead unless, like Stimson and Roosevelt, we are willing to sacrifice for it."

LACKS ENTHUSIASM—Senator Ellison D. ("Cotton Ed") Smith of South Carolina voted for the draft act, but doesn't seem anxious to let his son, Ellison D. Smith, Jr., be drafted. In fact, the Senator intervened personally with officials of a District of Columbia draft board in order to get his son placed on the deferred list.

Young Smith, who is a law student at National University, first wrote a letter to the draft board explaining that he was indispensable to the Senate Appropriations committee, of which he is clerk.

Wild Life Students Seek Game Facts In Field Survey

Michigan State's conservation institute is sponsoring a wild-life census today to determine the number of pheasants, rabbits, squirrels, hawks, quail, and other wild-life on the college farms. Conducted quarterly by Harold Burgess, sports graduate student, the purpose of the census is to help protect crops and to determine the number of pheasants in wild-life management classes. The survey will start at 8 a. m. today, with students moving forward across the fields, spaced 200 feet apart. They expect to cover 2,000 acres in the four hours allotted to the survey. The game division of the conservation institute will assist by checking a portion of a field with dogs to see if students have missed much wild-life.

College faculty members will visit seniors at 18 high schools next week as part of the annual college freshman visitation program. Two college days are included.

Dean of Men Fred T. Mitchell will visit Northern and Bendle high schools in Flint Monday. Tuesday's program includes trips to Clio and Mt. Morris by H. J. Stafseth, professor of pathogenic bacteriology; to Plymouth and Northville by T. H. King, assistant football coach; to Blissfield and Adrian by P. S. Lucas, professor of dairy manufacturers; and to Grand Blanc and Flushing by Prof. Ray Hutson of the entomology department.

V. A. Fremont, professor of animal husbandry, will visit Middleville and Caledonia Wednesday. S. G. Bergquist, professor of geology and geography, will visit Romeo and Utica, and Prof. C. W. Chapman of the physics department will visit Pontiac and Walled Lake Wednesday also.

Prof. C. G. Card, of the poultry husbandry department, will represent the college at the annual college day at Vassar, Cass City, and Caro at Vassar, also Wednesday.

The second college day, at Coldwater Thursday, will be attended by J. T. Caswell, assistant professor of political science, and Mabel Petersen, women's housing director.

trouble with red squirrels, chipmunks, muskrats, snails, slugs, and roe-chaffers. Most perplexing of all was the habit of the Red Cedar in overflowing its banks and covering most of the garden with water for three to seven days at a time.

When this flood continued during the growing season, two or three hundred attractive plants were killed outright. To overcome this, a section at a time was raised from one foot to five feet or more during a period of six years.

Evans to Present Piano Selections

Joseph Evans, former Michigan State student, now on the music staff, will give a recital of piano selections Tuesday, at 8 p. m. in the Music auditorium.

The program will be divided into three parts. The first will consist of selections from the "Organ Toccata in C Major," by Beethoven; the second, excerpts from Beethoven's "Sonata in D Minor, Op. 31, No. 2"; in conclusion, Evans will play 26 preludes from Chopin, "Op. 28."

Campbell Notes Big Jump in Advanced ROTC Applicants

According to Lt. Col. J. T. Campbell, associate professor of military science, the number of students accepted this year for advanced military classes by R. O. T. C. department has shown a 20 per cent increase over last year.

Both applications and acceptances have increased over the level of past years, Campbell said. Starting next fall term, 360 of the 600 sophomore men who made applications will take advanced training. This is 60 more than the total this year.

"Political considerations do not enter into the selection of men," Campbell pointed out. As well as physical condition, applicants are judged on the basis of military grace, personal attributes, and recommendations of their officers during the two required years of basic training, explained Campbell.

Although the department never deliberately looks for political implications, but leaves such investigations up to other government agencies, applicants are carefully questioned if they exhibit undesirable political tendencies such as Communism or Fascism, he explained.

All sessions will be held in the Union building, Widick announced, with the exception of the opening convocation. This is to facilitate attendance by students, he stated.

Stomach Study Simplifies Trout Fishing Problems

Walter P. Moresky's work of investigating trout stomachs will enhance the chances of Michigan fishermen who begin trout fishing the last Saturday in April.

Moresky, a member of the Michigan State college entomology department, has been doing research work since 1933 on what trout appetites demand. He has scanned more than 35 streams in both the north and south.

In his study, Moresky obtained trout stomachs from fishermen along the streams, dropping them in labeled containers holding preservatives. He has spent weeks during the winter classifying the stomach contents.

CADDIS, MAY FLY COMMON

Moresky discovered that the outstanding insects in the trout's diet are the caddis and the May fly. Both brooks and streams like these two. In surveys involving 414 brook trout and 485 brown trout, the caddis and the May fly together constituted more than half of all identified insects found in trout stomachs.

These facts are especially important to fishermen because these two principal types can be obtained by winter ice fishermen and can be used by stream fishermen operating with artificial flies.

In one study of 888 brook trout, Moresky found the caddis numbered 34.69 per cent of all insects found in the stomachs. Aquatic flies numbered 19.9 per cent. True bugs were 9.11 per cent and included water boatmen and black swimmers.

UNKNOWN MAKE 11 PER

In lesser numbers were May flies, followed by beetles, bees, ants, wasps, stone flies, dragon and damselflies, grasshoppers, butterflies and moths. Unknown insects constituted only 11 per cent. There was little variation between

Student Opinion Remains Stable About Problem of Liquor, Opposes Dry Laws

AUSTIN, Texas—Although college students are as a whole not teetotalers and a majority may be classed as liberals on the question of drinking, there exists today on the campuses of America a good amount of conservatism regarding liquor.

Two years ago this March, Student Opinion Surveys of America conducted a nationwide poll that for the first time provided a complete picture of drinking habits and sentiment among collegians. The survey has been repeated, and besides producing a new set of figures on this topic, the study brings proof that the sampling procedure used by Student Opinion Surveys is of such stability that its results may be interpreted as an accurate barometer of college thought from coast to coast.

NEWS AIDS IN SURVEY

In summary, these were the results of the survey, taken through the cooperation of the college press, including the State News:
1. Six out of every ten believe that students do not drink too much.
2. Nearly seven out of every ten men, and nearly five out of every ten co-eds, admit they drink alcoholic beverages.
3. Eight out of every ten are opposed to the return of prohibition.

The 1939 survey and the present one, taken in identical manner, reveal figures that are almost parallel in every respect, giving new basis to the fact that by sampling it is possible for the Surveys to gauge what the total enrollment of nearly 1,500,000 thinks. Prohibition and drinking in general are rather static questions on which sentiment is not expected to vary considerably for long periods of time, and that is what this comparison shows.

1939 1941

Believe students don't drink too much 65% 61%
Admit they drink (both men and women) 60 61
Opposed to prohibition 78 81

DRINKING IS HEAVIER

The percentages above appear to indicate that during the last two years there has been a slight trend toward heavier drinking in college, accompanied by a similarly growing trend in opinion against another dry era. But these differences are so small that it would be going beyond the statistical limitations of the poll to say that they are definitely indicative of a change.

"Do you ever drink alcoholic beverages, such as beer, wine, cocktails, or highballs?" was the question asked. Of the hundreds of students interviewed in every section of the country only three refused to answer. The small number of no-opinion answers in all of the questions have been eliminated from the computations.

Drinking, sectional returns show, is heavier (more than 70 per cent) in the New England and Middle Atlantic states. In the West Central states only half of the students say they drink.

How does your garden grow?

This is the time of year when Michigan folks turn with joy to their spades and rakes and seed packets. Nowhere in America do people think more of their flowers and kitchen gardens. Nowhere are finer vegetable and flower seeds produced. Michigan is world-famous for the breeding and marketing of improved seeds, bulbs and flowers.

To seedmen and commercial flower-growers the telephone is indispensable, because speed is so important in their business. Seed orders for the short planting season are filled and shipped within a few hours of the time they are received. Ordered by telephone, freshest flowers are rushed daily from Michigan's 700 greenhouses to city dealers.

And when you want a bouquet for the table or plants for the window-box, you have only to pick up your telephone and call the florist.

Schlademan Sighs Scott to Threaten Miler Holderman

"The only thing we haven't had in an attack of club feet," boasted Head Track Coach Earl Schlademan yesterday as he counted up the misfortunes that have befallen his track team since he took over its generalship last fall.

And the former Washington State track mentor isn't exaggerating, for no less than six of his track stars will be, at the best, absent from today's Purdue meet and many will be absent from the Spartan lineup indefinitely. In addition, a fresh prospect is on the shelf.

Schlademan's grievances got started several months ago when Walt Arrington, who the jovial coach describes as one of the best high jumpers he has ever coached, wrenched his ankle jumping a two-foot high sign in Beal gardens. However, Arrington will be ready today.

From then on injuries followed fast and furious. Bruce Blackburn and Freddie Hauser were injured in automobile accidents and will be unable to do any more hurdling or pole vaulting respectively.

More damaging blows came when Dale Kaults, who Schlademan counted on heavily in today's meet, picked up a case of pneumonia and Earl Cady and Charles Craig were confined by an attack of mumps.

The final blow came when Harry Moore, a high jumper, turned up yesterday with a sore back.

Farmhouse Defeats Delta Sig Riders

By virtue of Bob Gay's second-chucker goal, Farmhouse eked out a close 1-0 win over Delta Sigma Phi yesterday to win the first interfraternity boomstick polo championship in Michigan State history.

Gay's goal, the only one of the game, came after the first chucker had resulted in no scoring by either side.

Four Guards Teach Grid Candidates

Former Gridders Show Spartans How It's Done

By ED KITCHEN
If there's one thing that Michigan State's spring football squad is learning above all others these days it's how to play heads-up football at the guard position.

For the fact is that no less than four of the six members of the Spartan coaching staff played at that post in their collegiate days. Heading the list is Coach Charley Bachman who was one of Knute Rockne's better guards in the immortal Irish mentor's early coaching days.

KAWAL PLAYED GUARD

Line Coach Al Kawal is another ex-guard. Kawal bulwarked Northwestern university's line during 1933-35 and received All-Western conference and All-American recognition at that spot.

The new coach of State's forward wall will tell you that playing guard is a much more complicated business today than it was even six years ago. "Guards have to be constantly on the watch for traps, blocks, and that they didn't get a few years ago for one thing. And for another they have to do a lot more sliding out of the line to pick up blocking assignments than they used to. Guards do a lot more than just get in the way of the play, you can bet." Kawal pointed out.

WERE STATE GUARDS

The other former star college guards who are on the Spartan grid staff are Gordon "Jake" Dahlgren and Edmund Pogo, both ex-Michigan State graduates. Dahlgren, who played here in 1934-36, came in the middle of a long string of fine Bachman-coached guards, while Pogo operated at that post from 1937-39.

It is also the guards who are getting a major share of attention in the Spartans' spring training camp. With Paul Griffith and Eddie Abo both lost by graduation, it is a large job for Bachman and his aides to fill up the vacant spots.

RUPP'S FUTURE UNKNOWN

What is even a spicier note is the fact that Bluegrass Billy Rupp, the Louisville trip-hammer, may trade his Spartan grid uniform for some of Uncle Sam's military togs.

That leaves of the veterans only 210-pound Barney Neubert of Chicago, stocky little George Danou of East Chicago, and Walt Kutchins of Hamtramck who are sure to be around next fall. All three were reserves last season.

Of the men up from Coach John Kobs 1940 freshman aggregation probably the most promising is Don LeClair, a hard-working Wyandotte product. Also showing well are Fordson's Nick Pagan and John Heid of Detroit. A new addition to the guard ranks this week

Spartan Sportlines

By Joe Simcik

It struck this corner rather strangely one forenoon, when on the way to the Jenison fieldhouse, a stranger asked, "Is State so intent on building a great football machine that it drills the team in the morning as well as in the afternoon?" as he pointed to Old College field.

And sure enough, there were over 30 men in football togs running through formations and learning the fundamentals of the grid game. But it wasn't Charley Bachman's 1941 gridders, but one of the regular classes of instruction in the autumn of 1937.

A closer examination revealed that there was little to be seen to alarm de-emphasis because there are only a few varsity candidates enrolled in the course, and nearly the entire squad is too light to make the varsity grade. But the eagerness to learn football is there.

Directing the strategy is Backfield Coach Joe Holsinger, with line-mentors Jake Dahlgren and Al Kawal assisting in the outdoor laboratory. Some of the points covered are equipment, conditioning, individual positions, offense, defense, signals, and interpretation of rules.

Classes like this one have given Spartan men good training in fundamentals and has given them selling points to school administrators. Sixty-eight physical education graduates of the last 12 years are now active in coaching, and all but four of them have remained in Michigan.

Varsity greats are not predominant in the list, in fact many never qualified for a major letter. The State graduates are a good example that varsity experience is not a prerequisite to a successful coaching career.

Latest addition to the ranks of Spartan-trained mentors is Vince Apton, who accepted a position in Nashville last week. You probably won't recognize the name because Apton used to do his football playing and boxing here several years ago as Vince Apanovic.

Disruptive Pete Hawtrel, who held out against linotype operators and proofreaders during his varsity competition, has finally broken down and is changing the tongue twister to Harlow.

Varsity men at State have a good right to be whistling "Down on the Ohio" this spring, for three teams open their campaigns against the Buckeyes. The baseball nine is at Columbus today to launch their regular season and next week the golfers will make the trek. April 26, Ohio State will come to East Lansing to open the season.

Eddie Leach, former Flint Central star who didn't play freshman football but who has been shining in recent drills.

Y.M.C.A. Will Hold Annual Statewide Swim Meet Here

Although it held no 1940 team titles, a powerful Detroit Northwestern Y.M.C.A. is favored to make a clean sweep to the annual state Y.M.C.A. swimming meet which will be held in Jenison pool today. The preliminary rounds will be held at 1:30 p. m., while the final events will be staged at 7:30 p. m.

To make good its promise of sweeping all three divisions of the state meet, Detroit Northwestern must oust three still strong 1940 champions who will compose part of the nine clubs entered. In the junior class, Detroit Northeastern holds the intermediate crown. The Grand Rapids squad is the senior champion.

Today's meet which is conducted by Jake Baumgartner of the Lansing Y.M.C.A. is sponsored by the state Y.M.C.A. Spartan Coach Jake Daubert will act as starter and referee and will be assisted by Michigan State varsity swimmers.

VanAlstyne Announces Frosh Golf Meeting

As if he didn't have enough with over 30 varsity candidates to take up the average coach's time, Coach Ben VanAlstyne, State golf mentor, is asking for more next week.

VanAlstyne asks that all freshmen interested in trying out for the frosh links team report to Jenison gymnasium for this first meeting, Tuesday. The meeting will be held in room 215 at 4:15 p. m.

According to L.V. Benton, stock room clerk in Jenison gym, one can't even dream about spring. Yesterday afternoon during a slack period, Ivy was resting his head on his hand when he was awakened sharply by a pain in an elbow. The cause was a ruptured blood vessel, and resulted in a first aid victim for Trainer Jack Heppinstall.

Called to Kenosha

Showmen, Trainers Ride In State Polo Ranks

Spartans Card Five Outdoor Games

By Gordon Cole
A college baseball, football or basketball squad with personnel composed of athletes who have excelled in the particular sport since pre-teen age days is not out of ordinary, but a college polo squad boasting among its membership four versatile horsemen is unique in collegiate ivory and mallet circles.

The 1941 Michigan State polo squad is such an outfit. One member is an experienced horse showman, another is a veteran trainer, specialized in the art of jumping, and every man has been closely associated with horses long before they took up mallets for the Green-and-White.

GIBSON IS THREAT

The main Spartan offensive threat this season is Capt. Fred Gibson, who is competing in his third season of polo. Gibson is a junior physical education major from Northville. Fred's family has long been connected with horses; his father once being manager of the Grosse Pointe Hunt club and now riding stable manager at Northville. The entire Gibson family is interested in polo. In 1938, Gibson's father and two brothers mounted ponies and took on the Spartan varsity in a contest which resulted in a win for the State men behind the high scoring Fred.

Riding in number two spot has been Norm Spatz, a twenty-three year old Applied Science junior from Bidepoet. Spatz who has done the majority of his work on defense this season, has been riding for many years.

BURTON TRAINS HORSES

Most enthusiastic horseman on the squad is Jack Burton, Berwyn, Ill., public administration junior. For four years, Burton has trained cavalry horses as jumpers and has become accomplished in the art. Last summer Burton took horses to exhibitions throughout this state and Indiana and was awarded several major prizes for jumping and general horsemanship. Burton has alternated with Ed Chazy, Brooklyn, N. Y. senior Vet major.
