Once Bitten, Twice Shy

It certainly must look incongruous to many people.

Donald M. Nelson, head of the Supply Priorities and Allocation board has inaugurated a bill which would permit the government to enter private homes and buildings to seize metals essential to national defense.

Nelson has taken the position that civilian demands must be sacrificed in order that materials may be preserved for the defense program.

To home owners who would have to give up ash trays, copper and brass plumbing equipment, kitchenware, and staircases, this is going to be very funny. After all it was only this past summer that movie stars, boy scouts, and other nationally known organizations very successfully persuaded housewives to part with their aluminum pots and pans for defense.

But the 28 smelters throughout the country to whom these mountains of aluminum were allocated don't want them, and they won't collect them because they don't know what to do with them. So the aluminum lies there.

American's don't mind sacrifices when they're necessary, but no one likes encroachments on his personal effects that come to naught.

Old East, the single building that comprised the University of North Carolina's physical plant when it opened in 1795, is still in use. And we kick about Rotten Row!

Still More Greeks

The Greeks must have a word for it. At least there are more Spartan women this year who have pledged to MSC's 13 sororities than did last year.

Congratulations to both pledges and sororities. May it be a happy and profitable year for both.

The merits and demerits of sorority and fraternity life have been discussed and cussed in many a bull session and publication.

But no matter what the outcome, make the most of the opportunities and overcome the difficulties. Everyone benefits that way.

Breathing of air low in oxygen impairs capacity to learn and decreases ability to act, reports Dr. Nathan Shock, assistant professor of physiology at University of California. Yes, but open classroom windows and frozen students don't help either.

Quotable Quotes—

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

"Few teachers or administrators who have been at work during the decade just ended need be told that public education is under fire. In every community there are many sincere people who turn back in their thinking to more peaceful and happy days of yore. Not knowing that thus they are only making an effort to escape reality, they regard the old days as golden, happy, peaceful days—a veritable golden age. Everything that existed in those old days is touched with a roscate glamour that makes them seem ideal. Thus, when the problem of supporting the school arises, they are, in every community, a substantial number of middle-aged people who are quite ready to turn against modern school practices and who bring forth many arguments to show that the ways of teaching in their youth were much superior to those of the present. Yet seriously to attempt to impose the kind of teaching that was done in 1911 on 1941 were as futile as to attempt to abolish automobiles in favor of horses and buggies, to silence all radios, to abolish all chain stores, or to tear up all concrete highways."—Orville T. Bright, president, Illinois Education Association, says that every teacher must be convincingly articulate in interpreting the modern aims of education.

Can We Afford To Declare War?
No One Can Win

By Tom Greene

TODAY WITH THE final collapse of the Russian army apparently coming, the future no longer holds the false glow painted there by encouraging reports from Moscow. If Japan attacks Russia the United States may move the remaining few inches over the brink of the war.

TODAY MANY BELIEVE that immediate declaration of war by the United States is all that can save the world. Some 278 teachers at the University of Michigan and Wayne university think so and have petitioned Congress for "Total war against Hitlerism." One of the better expressions of their cause was recently published in the Michigan Daily by junior editors Homer Swander and Morton Mintz.

THEY SUMMARIZE their arguments as follows:

1) Psychological effect of U. S. entrance would terrify Hitler and Co., encourage the democracies, and make possible actual all-out production here.

2) Convoys and American armed merchant ships would GET goods to England instead of to the ocean bottom.

3) A "small" American Expeditionary force would attack Dakar and North Africa and expose Hitler's southern flank, allowing British to "blast the Italians right out of the Mediterranean."

4) The United States could "crack down" on Japan, either by embargo which "would humble completely the Japanese in a few months," or by a victorious war.

THESE PEOPLE ARE sincere. In a letter to me, Swander declared he and Mintz would enlist the day the United States declared war, although they "hate war with a fierce hatred that becomes more intense every day of their lives."

WE'LL PROBABLY HAVE the war. It will come. But it is not necessary and will be a greater disaster than the world has experienced. Here's why I think it is unnecessary:

1) Psychological effect is fine, but arguments talk louder to Hitler. Our entrance would encourage the democracies, but our planes and ships would be just as potent. A lagging defense program is the result of bungling and mismanagement. Entry in the war would give the government more powers, but nowhere is there any certainty, or even likelihood that it would use them for real efficiency. The defense program MUST start rolling, but war wouldn't do it.

2) Our materials, when and if we produce them, can be gotten to England by the present United States convoy system.

3) We are not prepared to fight in Africa and it is extremely doubtful that anything except planes can stop the Stukas and "suicide" torpedo boats that are keeping the British stymied in the Mediterranean.

4) A Japanese war or embargo would mean that our supplies of tin and rubber in the East Indies would be cut off and defense "production" would hit a new low.

OTHER BENEFITS they ascribe to war can be accomplished under our present system of undeclared war. The government should recognize Free France and get rid of Henry Hays and the rest of Petain's Nazi stooges.

SURELY FREEDOM AND DEMOCRACY are worth the blood of American soldiers and sailors, of you and I, but that blood can't win it. A Nazi victory does mean defeatism here, coupled with a staggering armament race that would bankrupt our strained economy.

BUT WAR ENTRANCE means bankruptcy. It probably means fascism or communism here after the war. It means that nowhere in the world would freedom or security be left. A Nazi victory means the same. The United States must help Britain, and Russia, if she lasts, beat Hitler. Aid must be real and immediate. Production and delivery of supplies for the allies must begin IN ACTUALITY, NOT ON PAPER. Only then can there be a free world. But war is a game where no one wins and the United States must not gamble its own destiny and that of the world.

News Round-up Destroyer Hit By Torpedo As House Okays Arming Bill

By George Herbert

"United States destroyer, U.S.S. Kearny, torpedoed 350 miles south and west of Iceland, while on patrol duty."

These words, flashing over the nation's news wires yesterday morning, opened one of the year's most important news stories and, perhaps, will open a new phase of the war.

The 1,600-ton destroyer, patrolling the American half of the U. S. of Britain sea lane, was struck by a single torpedo early yesterday morning, but at last reports the vessel was still afloat and proceeding to port under its own power. No casualties were listed in the Navy department's preliminary communique.

President Roosevelt, declaring that the Kearny was within the "defensive waters" of the United States, immediately ordered the Navy to track down the Kearny's attacker (presumably a submarine) and take suitable "retaliatory" action.

Ship Arming Approved
Only a few hours after the Navy department announced the torpedoing of the Kearny, the House of Representatives, early yesterday afternoon, passed the administration's "ship arming" amendment to the Neutrality act of 1937, sending the measure to the Senate for approval.

IN BRIEF
U. S. destroyer torpedoed off Iceland. Navy hunts attacker.
U. S. merchantmen ordered out of Asiatic waters.
Japanese general sets up wartime cabinet in Tokyo.

MODERN GREEKS

Add to List Of Fraternity Actives—And Add

By Dash Wuerfel

There's nothing new under the sun, so they say, except a few dozen new fraternities men and a couple of party plans.

Parliament held its fall term formal last night, and the Hesperians entertained at a fall term informal party.

INITIATE SEVEN
Seven new Lambda Chi are on the loose, having been initiated at the beginning of the week. Art Moushler, a sophomore, Jack Brooks, junior, and Jim Carpenter of Highland Park are on the list, and so are Jack Knight, a junior from Sterling, and George Moon of Middleville. Ray Bush, Hastings sophomore, and Joe Lay, Valley of Channing, Mich.

Margaret Adler, Niles senior, was elected president of Epsilon Chi at their last meeting. Other officers include Rosalind Friedman, sophomore from New York, vice-president and pledge chairman, Elmer Pick, also from New York, secretary, Rose Taylor, Bay City, junior, treasurer, and Florence Wilkins, Stevenson, junior, social and rush chairman.

SERENADE IN THE NIGHT
A recent poll of coed opinion shows that it's the men who succumb who count! Kappa Sigma held high last Tuesday night, because of their impromptu, and very interesting, serenading round about.

The Delta Sigma proudly announced the addition of 19 new men on their general staff—Jack Kropfstedt, of Des Moines, Ned Mann of Cass City, Al Ludwig of Detroit, Dick Quayle of Oxford, and Elsworth Smith of Lansing. All these men took active Monday night along with Alex Dillingham of Grand Rapids, Bill

Prince Konoye's cabinet, which resigned Thursday following unsuccessful conferences with the United States, is being replaced by a war-time government headed by Lieut. Gen. Tojo, one of the Japanese army's "big three."

Conspicuous among the new government's first statements was the declaration that Tojo will maintain all provisions of the Japanese-Axis agreements.

Capitol Hill observers, in Washington, are speculating on the attitude of the Tojo government and many officials express fear that British-American interests in the Pacific face a serious threat.

Hoover's Food Scout Is Friend Of High Nazis

By United Features Syndicate

WASHINGTON—Ex-President Herbert Hoover recently announced he was starting a new drive to send U. S. food to Nazi-occupied Europe, contending that it would be "entirely possible" to this without helping Germany.

Mr. Hoover doubtless believes this. But it also happens that one of his principal European assistants, from whom Mr. Hoover obtained much of the information on which he based his feed Europe campaign last winter, was on most cordial terms with high Nazi officials.

This man was John Hartigan, representative of the Hoover Relief organization in Germany. Hartigan was famous among the American colony in Berlin for several things.

DISPLAYS HIS HATS
One was his hats. He had twelve of them, of four different styles and three of each style. Hartigan would explain to callers that he bought his hats in Bond Street, got a new one every time he visited London.

All the hats were kept on display on a large table in the anteroom of Hartigan's club suite suite in the Adlon hotel, the most fashionable in Berlin. Hartigan never failed to tell callers about the hats. In fact he sometimes invited guests especially to come up to see the unique collection.

Hartigan also was noted for his piano playing. He had a fine piano moved into his suite and he liked to invite guests to hear him. Among the waiters of the Adlon Hartigan also had a special reputation. To them he was known for his remarkable breakfast appetite. They were much impressed by the fact that he often ordered two whole breakfasts.

FOND OF QUARTERS
Mr. Hoover's representative was very fond of his comfortable quarters at the Adlon. He also liked other things about Germany.

He was a great admirer of what he called Nazi "efficiency," and he was very appreciative of the hospitality of Herr Frank, Nazi Governor-General of Poland. Hartigan was noted by Herr Frank to his confidant Polish castle for the Christmas holidays. Hartigan was so grateful for the pleasant time and favors shown him, that he wrote Herr Frank a letter in which he not only thanked him for his generous hospitality, but congratulated the Nazi Gauleiter on all the wonderful things he was doing for the Poles.

These latter views, with those held by the German and military officials, attributed any food shortage in Nazi-occupied Europe directly to the country they dominated, supplies and are in complete control of the transportation and distribution systems of most countries.

American officials have said that if there is starvation in Europe this winter it will be Germany, the master of food supplies. They also have pointed that the Nazis are working to use mass starvation as a retaliatory measure against the Allies.

Brides, Newcomers Feted by Faculty

Faculty newcomers and brides were honored at the Faculty reception yesterday afternoon in the Union ballroom. Mrs. Ball, president, and Mrs. Cardinell, retiring president, received the guests.

Dean Marie Dye, Dean Miss Conrad, Mrs. K. H. McMillen, E. A. Bessey, and Mrs. Mitchell poured at the refreshments.

'Stage Door' Tells Tale Of Two Hollywood 'Crashers'

By Maxine Eyestone

Armed with a former Broadway hit and a cast of State's most able actors and actresses, Dr. W. Fawcett Thompson of the speech and dramatics department has launched rehearsals this week for the fall term play, "Stage Door."

The leading role, played originally by Margaret Sullivan on the New York stage, is being portrayed by Frances Grootjans, Lansing junior. "Stage Door," by George Kaufman and Edna Ferber, is the story of the struggle of two girls to crash the gates of stardom. Terry Randall, played by Miss Grootjans, adheres strongly to the Broadway stage and refuses to allow her friends to persuade her to take the easier way to Hollywood stardom.

JUMPS AT CHANCE

Jean Matland, played by Virginia Hager, Detroit senior, on the other hand, is out purely for the money in the business, and seizes the first opportunity offered here for a movie contract.

Keith Rogers, City junior, is a friend of Terry's and a writer for the "Leftist" movement. He is a cocky, self-confident fellow, who shares Terry's sympathy for Broadway. However, he gets a chance in the movies, and leaves the stage-loyal Terry to her struggle in New York.

David Kingless, a picture producer played by Alex Dillingham, Grand Rapids sophomore, admires Terry's determination, but nevertheless is trying to coax her into the movies. She still refuses, and they quarrel about the matter.

COMEDY, TRAGEDY

The delightful blending of comedy and tragedy, the clever portrayal of characters, and the very human struggles of these girls bring the play to its climax.

The chief element of comedy is gained by the extreme contrast in characters: the naive girl who can't get a job, the pokey and placid Big Mary and Little Mary, the man-hater, the "toughy," and the sophisticated, together with their many and varied gentlemen-friends.

Dr. Thompson also announced Thursday that Doris Veith, Lansing sophomore, has been added to the original cast of characters, playing Bernice Niemeyer.

Judges Take 13th Place in Nationals

Having placed 12th out of 24 teams participating in the National Dairy show at Memphis, Tenn., the Michigan State college dairy cattle judging team returned home Thursday evening. Russell Horwood, coach, announced that Albert Hall placed 13th in the entire contest of 72 entrants.

The team total was 4867, only 217 points lower than the Iowa team which won the contest. The local team was sixth in Holsteins and fifth in Brown-Swiss.

Digest to Sponsor Exhibit of Photos

NEGRO

A salon exhibit of 36 of the best prints entered in the annual salon edition contest sponsored by Collegiate Digest last spring will be brought to Michigan State college and placed in the exhibit cases of the library next week.

Represented in the exhibition are all types of photographs, including novel still life compositions, candid shots, portraits, and scenic photos. The top prize-winner of the contest, "Negro," is included in the show.

The editors of Collegiate Digest, distributed each Saturday by the State News, announce that the Salon edition will be featured again next year. This contest will be open to all college and university students and faculty members in the United States.

Deadline for the contest will be April 1, 1942 and all winners will be awarded money prizes.

Housemothers "Go To School": First Classes Held

By CHARLOTTE WHITTEN

A training course for housemothers, product of women's housing director Mabel Petersen's summer school research at the University of Chicago, is being offered on Michigan State's campus for the first time this year, the Dean of Women's office announced this week.

Purpose of the course, according to Miss Petersen, is primarily to help adjust the woman student who comes to Michigan State. By discussion of student problems, and exchange of ideas between students and housemothers, the course should also promote greater understanding among housemothers and establish unity in the women's housing system, she says.

HOLD FIRST MEETINGS

Showing the official college application blanks and discussing the forms and tests to which the college gathers information on entering students, Dean Elizabeth Conrad pointed out at the first housemothers' meeting recently that the purpose of this information is to supply a sufficient background of every student for intelligent guidance. Therefore, forms are available only to those who have an official reason for consulting them, she explained.

At the meeting health was discussed. According to Miss Petersen, the October 22 meeting will be a discussion of health objectives and food, while at the housemothers' meeting October 29, Pres. John A. Hannah will speak on State's philosophy in regard to the personnel program.

DISCUSS VARIOUS TOPICS

Other topics to be considered by housemothers this term include "Sociological backgrounds" and their significance to us in counseling students; "Understanding our Students," and "Resources for living." Special literature recommended by visiting speakers will result in a reading list for housemothers, the housing director adds.

After a year of weekly meetings featuring outside speakers, trips to other colleges, as well as group and panel discussions between women students and housemothers, housemothers will have seen students from varied viewpoints, says Miss Petersen.

is planned for July delivery, has not yet arrived. Present plans call for laying of the new floor during Christmas vacation. Davenport said. In the meantime a four-inch cement base for the life is in use, replacing the former wood floor worn by nearly three generations of hungry students.

Other renovations of the Wells cafeteria include the erection of a partition separating the cafeteria proper from the dining room, and the creation of a second cafeteria line designed to lessen the mealtime rush. A new celatex ceiling also has been installed, both to improve the appearance of the room and to deaden sound. Both the kitchen and dining room have been completely redecorated as well, Davenport stated.

Band Is Discovery Of Glenn Miller

One of the few bands discovered and recommended by Glenn Miller is Rodd Raffell's organization, now playing its second week at Coral Gables, a mile east of East Lansing on Grand River avenue.

Raffell's band has just completed an engagement at the Nightingale club in Washington, D. C., where, according to the Washington Post, musicians were "emphatic in their appreciation of its fresh and modern handling of both melody and rhythm."

The debate is an annual contest held before the delegates of the all-state high school forensic association, which meets at the University of Michigan each fall before the opening of the regular debate season.

Wagner had a record of over 70 per cent wins during last year's season and won the Grand Eastern Gratory championship at Winthrop College at Rock Hill, S. C. while Perry was a member of winning debate teams at the University of Wisconsin tournament and in the Michigan Inter-collegiate tournament.

Several Michigan State freshmen debaters will accompany Bagwell and the two seniors on the trip.

Defense Courses Will Begin Here Next Week, Miller Says

By Bill Barclay

About 350 men and perhaps a dozen women will enroll in defense training courses on the M. S. C. campus, some of which are scheduled to begin next week, Prof. L. G. Miller, director of the courses, predicted yesterday.

Judging on the basis of early enrollment figures, the most popular of 19 courses, none of which gives college credit, to be offered this fall is in gauges and gauging practices. The need for experienced men in this field is constantly increasing, Miller stated, since most defense orders demand very careful testing. Three other classes for inspectors will be held, he said.

Some of the classes will begin on Monday, Miller announced, but others will not start until more have enrolled. He pointed out that most men taking the courses are now employed in industry, thus making it difficult to set an arbitrary date for the beginning of all the classes.

DEMANDS ARE HEAVY

Demands for trained men coming to the college from various sources, according to Miller. Nearby industrial firms, the highway department, OPM, and even the WPA are included in the number requesting courses.

Among the new courses, which appear likely to achieve popularity is one in typographic design sponsored by the WPA. The course will teach map-making and the making of aerial surveys, Miller stated.

Courses for maintenance men assist them in changing from normal to defense work, and probably be well attended, Miller predicted, with materials being and piping design being among the classes offered in this category.

Courses of a similar nature, those to be offered this fall, completed only a few days ago, Miller stated. All courses are given on the campus, and about 16 weeks.

WOMEN HAVE CLASS

Women in industry will be represented in the production supervision classes, Miller said, including the college foremanship and industrial accounting. The latter course, taught by the college accounting staff, is a class in lens grinding, supervised by the physics department.

The only classes not directly supervised by members of the engineering division, Miller stated, though he emphasized that most of the courses are open to those not directly concerned with engineering.

Six main types of courses are planned for this fall's program, including courses for designers and inspectors, foremanship and general production supervision, courses for engineers, civil engineering, including concrete design for highway engineers, and courses such as mathematics and lens design.

Debaters Face Ann Arbor Duo This Morning

Two senior debaters, Glen Wagner of Detroit and Fred Perry of Lansing, will debate a University of Michigan team at Rackham auditorium in Ann Arbor this morning before an audience of nearly 500 high school students. Paul D. Bagwell, varsity debate coach, announced last night.

The debate will be in the form of a demonstration to illustrate techniques involved in the high school debate question. "Resolved: That every able bodied male citizen should serve at least one year in the army before attaining the age of 21."

The debate is an annual contest held before the delegates of the all-state high school forensic association, which meets at the University of Michigan each fall before the opening of the regular debate season.

Wagner had a record of over 70 per cent wins during last year's season and won the Grand Eastern Gratory championship at Winthrop College at Rock Hill, S. C. while Perry was a member of winning debate teams at the University of Wisconsin tournament and in the Michigan Inter-collegiate tournament.

Several Michigan State freshmen debaters will accompany Bagwell and the two seniors on the trip.
