TODAY'S CAMPUS

... Out of Africa

Michigan State produced a president of another institution of higher learning this week when John A. Reuling of East Lansing, graduate of Michigan State in the class of 1927, was named to head Northland college in Ashland, Wis. Reuling is the son of W. C. Reuling, associate professor of mechanical engineering at M. S. C. He recently returned here after spending 15 years as head master of a college at Durban, Natal, South Africa.

... Exams Already?

Final exams will be held during the final two-hour class period of the term, instead of scheduling regular examination hours, according to announcement yesterday from the registrar's office.

Tests will be given on the last meeting of classes this session, and the second summer session will begin without a break the following Monday. Plans for registration next term are not definite as yet, it was announced.

... Forest Fighters

Two service flags now hang in the entrance hall of the forestry building. The smaller of the two has 64 stars, representing those students from the forestry department who fought in the first World war. The other, a service flag for the present war, already has 50 stars in it, and symbolizes the forestry students now in the service. It has an abundance of space left, according to Department Head P. H. Herbert.

Churches Honor, Dine Service Men

Service men living at Wells Hall will be honored Sunday at special morning services in the East Lansing churches. Following the services the men will go to various homes for Sunday dinner.

Sponsored by the Lansing U. O., these "Home Sundays" will come monthly affairs. Sunday, as the first, is an Independence Day observance. Campus churches cooperating include: Peoples church, College Lutheran church, St. Thomas Aquinas, and the Chapel of Christ the King.

State Vets Name Five New Officers

The Michigan State Veterinary medical association recently elected a slate of five new officers. They are the following: President, Dr. L. H. LaFond, Detroit; first vice-president, Dr. S. Colby, Monroe; second vice-president, Dr. C. F. Clark, M. S.; secretary, Dr. B. J. Killham, S.C.; and director, Dr. H. H. Clark, Lansing. Dr. C. F. Clark and Dr. Killham are in the pathology department of Michigan State college and the other men are all alumni of this college.

Educators Gather At Conference on Teacher Guidance

Teachers, superintendents, and students will gather from a 40-mile radius today for the first Educational Guidance conference, to be held in the Union building under the sponsorship of the M.S.C. education department. The meet is open to Michigan State students and faculty.

Nine prominent off-campus visitors will aid in the two main sessions of the conference, led by Alfred J. Cardall, director of the test service division of Science Research associates in Chicago and keynote speaker for the sixth annual Vocations conference last April.

"Recent Trends in Guidance" will be the topic of the morning session at 9, presided over by S. E. Crowe, summer session director. At this session a panel presided over by Carl M. Horn, chief of the occupational information and guidance division of the state board in control of vocational education, will be presented.

Participating in this panel will See EDUCATORS—Page 6

ROTC Rated 'Excellent'

All of the five ROTC units at Michigan State college received ratings of "excellent" at federal inspections during spring term, it has been announced by Maj. Gen. George Grunnert, commander of the sixth corps area.

In a communique to President John A. Hannah, General Grunnert said the rating was the highest attainable. The spring inspection included approximately 2,200 basic and advanced ROTC students.

Cavalry, coast artillery, field artillery, infantry and the new quartermaster corps all received the rating which entitles men in these divisions to wear gold stars on the sleeves of their uniforms next year.

Soprano Star Gives Color To Program

About 1,700 Attend Opening Number In Summer Series

By BILL BARCLAY

Miss Jean Dickenson, soprano of the Metropolitan opera company, gave the summer sessions concert-lecture-series a colorful opening in college auditorium last night, revealing the facility and vocal poise which have given her a high place among young American singers.

In keeping with the warm summer evening, Miss Dickenson limited her program primarily to light compositions displaying the color, vitality, and charm of her singing. About 1,700 attended the concert.

Among the compositions best showing the warmth of the youthful soprano's voice and personality was the aria "Ah! Tardis Troppo" from Donizetti's "Linda di Chamounix," which pictured in music the feelings of a young woman anxiously awaiting her tardy lover, and her joy in anticipating his arrival.

Selections by Gretcheninoff and Ravel gave Miss Dickenson an opportunity for demonstration of technique in keeping with the pleasantness of her voice and stage appearance. Rossini and Massenet were other composers whose works added to the variety of mood and style which the concert offered.

Miss Dickenson opened her concert with a group of typical program selections for soprano.

Two later selections, a vocal arrangement of the Strauss waltz, "Voices of Spring," and an encore number, Grieg's "My Johan," were among the popular compositions which she presented.

English Educator to Speak At Special Convo Monday

All 11 O'Clock Classes Dismissed to Hear Dr. Davies Tell of British Conditions

Dr. Evan Davies, a member of the National Educational Board in Great Britain, will be the principal speaker at a special convocation for Michigan State college summer school students, it was announced yesterday by Prof. S. E. Crowe, summer school director.

She Will Explain, Act Radio Roles

ELSIE MAE GORDON

... Versatile Air Actress ...

Sometimes called 'Radio's Most Versatile Actress,' Elsie Mae Gordon will appear at Fairchild theater Wednesday at 8:30 p. m.

When radio was in its infancy she began her work 'just for the fun of it.' At that time it was necessary for an entertainer to be able to hold out for an entire evening.

Due to her gift of characterization, Miss Gordon played many different roles in the same sketch; for instance in "Folks of Tomkins Corners" she played the parts of a giggling girl and a stuttering boy.

She will take the local audience members behind the scenes of the big broadcasts and tell them how parts were evolved and how some accidentally came into being.

She will mention a part and then from her lips will come the voice of that visionary person. One minute she may be a colored mammy from Irving

Dr. Davies was on the campus this week, and after a brief swing into the East, he will return here Monday for the convocation at 11 a. m. in the college auditorium. All classes will be dismissed at 10:50 a. m., according to Prof. Crowe.

Studying Changes

A member of the educational board, which corresponds with the Department of Education in Washington, Dr. Davies is a member of a British committee appointed to study possible changes in education after the war.

He was delegated to come to this country and make a survey of American educational policies, and since April 1 has traveled extensively in the East and South, stopping at manifold high schools and colleges.

When Dr. Davies visited with the Michigan State college administrative group they were so impressed they asked him to return to speak before the entire summer school student body.

To Tell Conditions

He will speak on British education as affecting the British morale, and the general conditions resulting from war in England.

Dr. Davies stated that Michigan State has a splendid educational system, and that he believed the schools in Michigan were among the best in the country.

In comparing the United States to England during wartime, Dr. Davies said that in England all boys were drafted at the age of 18, and all women at 20. The women work along with the men and are subject to the army rules and regulations.

Doctor Davies received his M.A. and Ph.D. at Oxford university, England.

MSC Latin-Americans To Present July 4th Floats in Parade

Ten Latin-American students at Michigan State will participate in the Lansing Fourth of July Victory parade, according to Henry Simons Quiroz, who is in charge of the group.

The parade will start at 10 a. m. and is to include several floats representing the United Nations. Ligia Simons Quiroz, Armonia Sarasqueta and Lister Simons Quiroz, all of Panama, will be dressed in native costumes.

Other students who will take part are Tomas Dominquez and Jose Navarro of Puerto Rico; Jorge Awuapara of Peru; Mario Acevedo of Santo Domingo; Fernando Ronden of Venezuela, and Rogelia Boyd of Panama, who will represent the Latin-American nations with their respective flags.

Housing Director Seeks Men for Summer Jobs

Opportunities for two full-time jobs and several part-time positions during the summer are open to men who wish to apply at the office of the men's housing director in the Union annex. Students interested are asked to fill out application at the office.

'Doc' Thompson to Leave State Dramatics Department After Six Years of Successes

By JERRY TER HORST

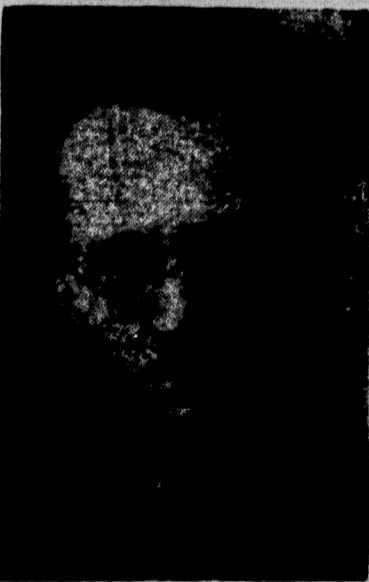

Dr. W. Fawcett Thompson, associate professor of speech, and head of the dramatics department became the sixth member of the speech faculty to leave during the past year, when he announced his resignation recently.

Thompson, or "Doc" as his many students affectionately term him, will leave the Spartan campus on July 15 for the west coast.

Plays Were All "Hits"

Since 1936, he has been dramatics coach of all major campus student productions ranging in depth and scope from Shakespearean dramas to light modern comedies, each play being marked with the Thompson stamp of success.

Born the son of a Stanton, Minn. minister, his first dramatic experience was conducting religious productions. Later he attended Hamline college in St. Paul, receiving his B. A. degree in 1917.

DR. W. F. THOMPSON

... to leave State drama ...

Thompson enlisted in the medical corps of the army and served 17 months overseas in World war I. During that time he was awarded the medal D'Honneur by the French government for distinguished service.

Is Well-Traveled

Returning to the United States, Thompson spent the following 11 years in stage and dramatic stock productions, traveling over the country from the Pacific coast to the Atlantic, working with such prominent stage personages as—Blanche Yurka, Florence Reed, Jean Dixon, and J. Hammond Bailey.

Thompson returned to finish his formal education at the University of Nebraska, where he received his M. A. and Ph. D. degrees by 1936 in English, when he became a member of the State English department.

Heads Drama Courses

Later transferred over to head the dramatics courses established in the speech department, Doc's wide professional stage experience soon brought his

Ceiling Now Fixed on Living Costs

The price ceiling covers all of Grand River avenue now. From one end of Michigan to the other, it stands above the cash register in the shoeshine shop as well as the butcher shop. It has been extended until it shields the man who wants a clock repaired or his hat blocked quite as much as it does the customer at the corner grocery or drug store.

All these additions to the price control structure—the whole list would fill innumerable pages—fall into the category of what are called "consumer services." They are controlled as of July 1 by a new Office of Price Administration regulation.

The new regulations finish the complete price ceiling system begun on April 28. In the space of two months we have set our economic house in order for war, with solid barriers against rising living costs.

'Doc's Workhouse' Is His Monument

Two things which have become synonymous in the six years that he has been at Michigan State are all-college plays and Dr. W. F. Thompson, who announced this week that he will leave the department of speech and dramatics July 15.

A thin, nervous man, "Doc," as he has been known by students, almost single-handedly built up the dramatics department from putting on plays in the Little Theater of the Home Economics building to presenting them in the professional atmosphere of Fairchild theater.

And his plays have improved along with the settings. For "Doc" knows his dramatics and he had capable helpers in Mrs. Thompson, Don Buell, and Prof. C. H. Nickle.

His pupils have been trained in every phase of the stage, from emoting Shakespeare to applying grease paint. In rehearsal "Doc" played every part from a lowly servant to "Katherine" in "The Taming of the Shrew," and if no stage hands were around, he wasn't too proud to pull the curtains.

With his goatee and beret, familiar for the last two years, Thompson epitomized dramatics at State. He will be missed, but Fairchild theater will remain as a monument to his unselfish work and far-sighted planning. Fairchild theater will always be "Doc's Workhouse."

Let's Keep the 'Open Door' Policy

Remember back in grade school when you marched in lines from class to class or in and out of the "little red school house?"

That's when you were regimented and kept in tow because you weren't old enough to control your voices and actions. But you're in college now, and should know the right time and right place to do things and how to conduct yourselves.

All of which leads us to the problem of holding classes in the hot weather. Larger summer school classes than ever before plus the heat make many of the classrooms exceedingly uncomfortable.

However, it does make considerable difference if classroom doors can be left open. This "open door" policy can remain in effect as long as you conduct yourself in a quiet manner during classes when passing through buildings.

ALONG THE WINDING CEDAR

By Len Barnes

WITH the proposed July 1 deadline for gas rationing past yesterday and no doling of petrol yet in the midwest, motorists can sit back today and heave a sigh or two of relief.

They won't sigh very hard if they think about it much, though. Probably the left rear tire of their car isn't too good if the right rear one does happen to be okay. Their cars aren't getting any younger. Spare parts are becoming scarcer every day.

And eventual gas rationing even in the midwest seems inevitable. So the future of motorists hereabouts is clouded in more than one place.

Washington experts say that Americans are driving themselves off the road at the rate of 3 per cent a month. On that basis, in less than three years there won't be any cars in operation at all except army vehicles.

Tourist resorts of northern Michigan reported a near normal Memorial day week-end business, but growing rumors about gas rationing in this state practically cut off that revenue which many Michiganders depend on for subsistence.

Most of these entertainment entrepreneurs feel optimistic about getting a fair resort trade this summer in spite of the tire and gas shortage. When hot weather comes, they feel, everyone will want to go some place to cool off, even if they don't go as far as usual.

You don't have to be a defense worker to know that most Michigan plants are going six and seven days a week, resort owners say. They can tell merely by watching the cars all crowd in late Saturday night in a steady stream, rather than drifting in over the entire week-end as before.

War Scatters Friends

Friends come and go in everyone's lives during peacetimes, too, I guess, but it hits you harder in wartime. Or maybe it is just a period everyone passes through in growing up.

But every week the bus stations and train depots are crowded with people saying farewell for a long time, maybe forever.

Someone once said that the most valuable thing anyone can have is a true friend. Today as never before that is correct, with all the false values surrounding the inhabitants of a world grown callous from glitter and its counterpart, tarnish.

The richest man alive may find out tomorrow that the hours of labor he's saved up and traded for money are worth nothing. Everyone in college learns that honors won at any cost are empty without someone to enjoy them with.

But somehow an unselfish association with a person of common likes can never grow dim. In the end true friendship is the only way to true happiness. It's the only tangible thing you can count on always. More poor than rich people realize that, I suspect.

One gang that traveled together through high school and partly through college reports having its members with anti-aircraft men at Midway island, the air corps and medical corps in Australia, two in the naval academy at Annapolis, one in West Point, two in infantry training, and two women in the nurses' corps readying for overseas duty. That's the way friends go these days.

Dean Dye Elected To National Post

Dr. Marie Dye, dean of the Home Economics department of Michigan State college, was recently elected national treasurer of the American Home Economics association at its 35th annual business meeting in Boston last week. She will hold the post for two years.

The association has a membership of 30,000 home economists, 14,000 of which attended the meeting. Miss Jessie Harris of the University of Tennessee will be the incoming president.

THE WOMEN'S WORLD

By BARBARA DENNISON

Deaner Heads Board

The Judiciary board, functioning as usual during the summer, is headed by Vera Deaner as president. Assisting Miss Deaner with her duties are the other officers, Barbara Scarlett, secretary; Verena Hotchkiss, East Mayo representative; Katherine Welch, West Mayo representative; Marilyn Ott, Cowles representative; Katherine Tew, off-campus representative; and Patty Reddy, PanHellenic representative.

Dorms Partly Filled

East and West Mary Mayo dormitories, open for women students this summer, are only partially filled, according to Mabel Petersen, housing supervisor for women.

East Mayo is approximately two-thirds filled, with 115 women living in that dorm, while West Mayo has only 85 residents now, but with more expected for the second session of summer school. So many sorority houses are remaining open, at least for the first session, that at present there are more rooms than are needed, Miss Petersen said.

Sign-out Sheets

Women are again reminded that sign-out sheets should be in the A. W. S. office, 108 Union annex, by noon of each Tuesday, as the Judiciary board will meet every Tuesday at 4 p. m. during the summer.

Navy Recruiter to Be Here Friday for Interviews

A navy recruiting officer will be in the Spartan room of the Union from 10 a. m. to 1 p. m. tomorrow to explain naval enlistments, particularly V-1 and V-7, according to announcement by Ron Heath, director of information on enlistment in the armed forces.

The naval officer will answer all questions concerning the various programs, Heath said. He stressed the importance of contacting the officer during his brief stay here.

THINKIN' OUT LOUD

By Sheldon Moyer

IT'S quite easy to get fooled in the newspaper business. You can never tell from one day to the other what's going to happen.

For instance, in this column last week we left out the following item because we felt sure that it could just as well run this time:

PEOPLE WHO LIKE TO DO THINGS—Bill Krieg and Frank Lafferty, the two green-jacketed gentlemen in the Union. They're always doing something to tidy up the building and make people comfortable.

We have some very sad news to report today, for Bill Krieg, one of those green-jacketed gentlemen, is no longer with us.

Gets New Job

Ole Friend Bill has served his last day in the Union building and is now employed in a Lansing war plant as an inspector.

There's a long story behind Bill's departure from M.S.C. He didn't leave because he didn't like the place, nor did he leave because he wasn't liked by the people around here.

Bill left M.S.C. with many regrets. He spent many nights thinking over his final decision, but now it is made, and Bill is gone.

The story behind his departure started many years before he even came here. Bill was a factory worker in Lansing for 11 years until he was laid off during the recession of 1937.

Educated in Union

Shortly after he became houseman of the Union. It was a new experience for Bill; smiling faces every day, shady dealings in the Union building, and an education in itself like never before.

Bill became a psychologist overnight. In four years and eight months he got his high school education in the Union building. His experiences were many and even though he is now 34 years old, he managed to stay young.

But Bill always worked hard. He never had much time for play, for his work here was always making play possible for others—and sometimes to make it impossible.

Some of Bill's best friends were college students, who made his acquaintance at the time they were being bawled out for doing something they shouldn't have, so to speak.

Raising Chickens

Anyway, Bill finally had to make his decision. He had the opportunity to double his income by going to work in a war plant. It was a choice between staying at the job where he had enjoyed the most pleasant years of his life or achieving a life dream.

Bill hopes to earn enough money in the next few months to finally buy a small piece of land and settle down with his wife at raising chickens. He has four children are all married and doing well, so now it's time for Bill to get his share of play.

Probably much harder work in store for him until he reaps his fortune, but after that it will be raising chickens.

Bill says that he never has gone back to a former place where he worked, but Michigan State college, and especially the Union building, will be the first exception.

HOPPING 'ROUND

Suzie Says Shops Show Summer's Here
By CAROL McHENRY

Well, sir, no matter what this changeable climate says, summer is the only weather accorded to what Suzie saw while hopping the shops this week. Play clothes are flocking the racks.

To show off a tan tummy there's a three piece striped suit with a crisp white pique trim circling around the short sleeves and square neck. . . . Real neat! . . . The long full shorts waffle pique. After the game, slip into the matching top with a splashy flowered design and be neat and cool for that coke date. . . . Definitely in design for defense, there's a jumper to be worn with or without a blouse, has no metal hooks, buttons, or buttons, whatsoever. Material—glazed chintz, comes in solid colors or floral print.

Denim is taking more curtain this season. You'll see it in slacks and culottes all summer.

late to carry big, bulging noses. Well, don't then. Dat's solve the problem perfectly because they're just petite enough to tuck into your palm come all equipped with a compact and comb—easy on the advance, too! Or maybe you're type who likes long, smooth ribbons; then how about one braided straw or rope inside hand in Tahiti. They'll suit your taste in creamy pastels, red or solid colors. (Hopping material in bags is good, simply fetching for dancing a sultry night, they'll all be and wiping their brows you wait across the floor in a te eyelet pique formal with red linen top and heart shaped lace. . . . Look downtown for with such a romantic light, cut.

257 Men Sign For Reserve During June

More To Be Enlisted In Army Program In Fall Term

More than 257 men, exclusive of advanced military students, were sworn into the Enlisted Reserve of the Army during June, it was announced yesterday by Capt. George H. Branch, post adjutant at Michigan State college.

An undetermined number of men students who also have applied for the Enlisted Reserve will be sworn in sometime between now and the beginning of fall term, Captain Branch said.

The bulk of the men already enlisted were signed up during the last three days of final examinations, spring term. The peak day was June 18 when 102 men were sworn in.

George R. Hackman, a senior from Detroit, was the first Michigan State college student enlisted under the new army program. Hackman was sworn in alone on June 9.

All of the men enlisted will be deferred until they are graduated provided they pass a mental screening test to be given sometime during the first year of the program.

Upon graduation, they will be ordered to an induction center and processed. After their qualifications are determined they will be sent to an Officer Candidate School where they will receive training toward commissions as second lieutenants.

Following are the names of those enlisted and the dates they were sworn in:

10 Officers Get Boost In Ranking

ROTC Instructors Step Up a Notch; Banning Is Lt. Col.

Ten military officers of the Michigan State R.O.T.C. teaching staff stepped up a notch in rank this week as a result of promotion notification from the Sixth corps area headquarters in Chicago.

Major E. A. Banning of the field artillery branch exchanges the gold leaf grade insignia for the silver leaf of lieutenant colonel.

Coast artillery instructor Capt. P. Thompson has been promoted to the rank of major.

Six first lieutenants have been elevated to the position of captain. They include Capt. G. H. Branch, infantry; Capt. E. F. Totten, field artillery; Capt. R. J. Rosa, cavalry; Capt. J. M. Keyes, coast artillery; Capt. W. F. Swartz, infantry, and Capt. E. R. Bremer, infantry.

First Lieuts. A. J. Smith and L. E. Kyle, field artillery, were promoted from the grade of second lieutenant.

Others are Lieut. Clarence H. Fowler, here in 1939-41, from South Haven, at Foster field; Lieut. Hugh H. Holloway, of Lansing, '37, at Brooks field; Lieut. Frank E. McCauley, Hicksville, '39, Kelly field; and Lieut. Miles Newell, '41, of Dearborn, at Foster field.

Course Is 32 Weeks Long

Lieut. Robert Parker, a student here in 1939-41, at Foster field; Lieut. Clarice A. Randall, Lansing, '41, at Brooks field; Lieut. Charles H. Sackerson, Jr. of Cleveland, at State in 1938 through 1940, at Lubbock; Lieut. Earl L. Stevens, Buchanan, here in 1938-41, at Lubbock; and Lieut. Oliver E. Tilli, Ravenna, here in 1939-40, at Brooks field, will also graduate in the same class.

The course consists of a 32-week flying schedule of 200 hours aloft and 400 ground school hours. No figures were released on the total number of pilots in the group.

Parents Get Awards

"It's our largest class thus far," Maj. Gen. H. R. Harmon, commanding the 40-school training center, revealed, adding that the same thing would be said about future classes.

Twin-motor bomber pilots graduated at Ellington field, Kelly field, and Lubbock, Texas. Single engine fighter pilots completed training at Moore field, Foster field and Brooks field in Texas.

Parents unable to attend were mailed miniature wings and a scroll, naming them honorary members of the graduating class.

Collegiate World

(By Associated Collegiate Press)

The posture of the present-day co-ed is the "collegiate droop," as contrasted with the "stylish swagger" affected by her campus sisters of ten years ago. Evelyn Anderson of Stanford university and Mrs. Velda C. Row of San Francisco State college reported to the American Physiotherapy association.

The "stylish swagger" they described as giving the effect that the user thereof has a bustle, with chin up, chest out, and hips trailing far behind.

On the other hand, they said, the "collegiate droop" demands a weary slump forward of the shoulders, back curved and hips well forward. It is particularly advantageous for tall girls, who thereby give the impression of being shorter.

Examinations of 200 freshmen women each year gave the researchers their information.

Thirty-eight per cent in recent tests had switched to the "collegiate droop," and seemed thereby continually hurrying home to get out of the rain.

A bare 17 per cent clung to the "stylish swagger," and an encouraging 41 per cent had good posture.

Cupid's bow is hitting fewer Vassar graduates.

The college reports that only 28 of the June graduates are engaged or married. Last year's class was smaller by 13, but 46 of the young women were engaged or married in the corresponding length of time.

Along FACULTY ROW

By Joan Meyers

The average student thinks of him simply as director of the summer school, but actually S. E. Crowe is one of the busiest men on campus.

His duties range from hiring Metropolitan Opera prima donnas to appear on the Student Lecture course to the planning of the summer school curriculum and now his latest job is directing the new two-year curriculum.

As chairman of advisers he is attempting to improve counseling methods and techniques used in dealing with students.

Has Test Bureau

In this connection a testing bureau is maintained under his direction for the purpose of determining the main interests of students who wish to choose a major field. Several hundreds of these batteries of vocational tests are administered to students each year.

The planning of the freshman week program as well as the setting up of folders including the registration information of each new student is under Crowe's supervision.

As director of summer school he answers approximately 1,500 inquiries concerning summer school each year.

674 4-H'ers Here To Exude Health, Test MSC Life

A goodly proportion of the totally unfamiliar faces you've seen about campus this week undoubtedly belonged to the 674 4-H delegates from 44 counties in lower Michigan who are currently attending the 24th annual 4-H Club week here.

The week's activities will close tomorrow after a tour of the state capitol, according to A. G. Kettunen, state 4-H club leader.

For the week the male delegates have been housed at Abbot hall, and the girls at Williams and Campbell halls. The entire group has been fed at Peoples church.

Educational lectures and demonstrations for the girls were sponsored by the Home Economics division, and information on livestock and crops was likewise disseminated for the boys by the Ag division.

The feature address of the week was presented at the welcoming session Monday by John Strohm, assistant editor of Prairie Farmer magazine, whose topic was "Our South American Neighbors."

WHAT'S COOKIN' - - By the Chef

The following officers were elected for the summer term at West Mary Mayo hall:

President—Kay Welsh, H. E. '44.
Secretary-Treasurer—Phyllis Reese, H. E. '43.
Social Chairman—Martha More, L. A. '44.
Air Raid Warden—Jane Merrill, L. A. '43.

The following officers were elected for the summer term at East Mary Mayo hall:

President—Verena Hotchkiss, H. E. '44.
Secretary-Treasurer—Lois Hotte, H. E. '44.
Social Chairman—Jean Jackson, A. S. '43.
Air Raid Warden—Avis Stauffer, H. E. '43.

It seems that Eddie Sewell, Kappa Sigma, L. A. '43, loaned his Spanish book to a certain young lady in Mary Mayo with the condition that she toss it out the third story window at midnight when he gave the Kappa Sigma whistle.

Evidently the lady in question didn't heave it hard enough as the book didn't land where it was supposed, and Eddie had to climb up to retrieve it. Looked like strange doings.

Maybe it would be of advantage next time to pick a stronger armed girl or use the first or second floor for the necessary return.

Mason hall held a Get-Acquainted Smoker recently. The activities included informal games and contests. Bob Eleson was declared "Champion Exponent of Tall Tales," while Bill Cathcart was crowned the "Boogie Woogie King." The prizes consisted of loving cups—tin cans neatly tied with ribbons.

Don Krushak was the cute little (six feet, 4 inches) cigarette girl, appropriately gowned in the latest campus mode, dividing his attention between passing out cigarettes and resisting the passes made by swain—Ed Brown.

'Too Many Men,' Registrar's Office Tabulations Indicate

Assistant Registrar Kermit Smith revealed another reversal of enrollment trends yesterday in announcing that men students have increased their numerical superiority over women among the 2,267 students who have so far registered for summer school.

Preliminary figures last week showed that summer enrollment had halted temporarily the decreasing college enrollment of the last two years. Previous high for summer enrollment here was about 1,900. The ratio of women had been increasing, however, as more men were called into armed services or entered defense work.

Men Number 1,450

With the enrollment of two more men yesterday morning, the men's total rose to 1,450, compared with 812 women. The men's ratio is even higher among the regularly enrolled students returning from spring term, with 1,051 men outnumbering 483 women.

Last summer's totals show a much smaller percentage of men among the regular students, leading by only 891 to 797. In spite of the increase of returning men, the total of previously enrolled students taking summer work dropped to 1,534 from last year's high of 1,688.

Undergrads Help

Greatest factor of increase in summer enrollment this year is in newly-matriculated undergraduates, with 234 outnumbering last year's 30. New graduate students matriculating here dropped from 109 to 46, but the increase in beginning students brought the new-matriculant total to 280, an increase of 141 over last year's 139.

Men also reversed the ratio trend among the newly matriculating students, now outnumbering new women, 186 to 94, against the women's advantage of 88 to 11 a summer ago.

Undergraduate increase this year was great enough to counterbalance a drop of 143 graduates from last year, since 3,000 are now attending, contrasting to last year's 449.

For instance, Second Lieut. Julius Yucker, '42, has been assigned to the Wellston Air depot at Wellston, Ga. R.O.T.C. graduate Yucker used to be an intramural sports fixture.

At Randolph field, Texas, oldest and largest basic flying school, are Aviation Cadets Stanley Powell, Edward Sass, Jr., Vern Warren, George M. Burns, Walter Ball, Gene Brogan, Lawrence Lockwood, Gail Smith, and George Vicary, all former Spartans.

Sass is a former member of Delta Chi and hails from Battle Creek. Warren was a Pershing Rifles man and marched in its drill team as a sergeant, while Burns, who with Sass and Smith is a first lieutenant, was a Delta Sig. Ball will be remembered as a two-letter halfback a couple of seasons ago, while Lockwood won numerals in football.

Goes with Marines

Smith, an Ag student, was a member of Alpha Zeta. Vicary lived in Mason hall and belonged to Block and Bridle, Poultry Science club, and Ag council.

With the marines at San Diego is Ray B. Smith, of East Lansing, and in the navy air corps training base at Grosse Ile is unrelated Martin Smith, Jr. Also at Grosse Ile is Francis Stark, former member of Phi Kappa Tau here.

Miles Newell, of Dearborn, and Robert Parker, of Lansing, are now at Foster field, Victoria, Texas, for advanced flying

THOMPSON

name into campus, local and statewide prominence.

Serving as president of the Michigan Association of Non-Professional theaters, as a member of the advisory council of the Michigan Author's association, and as member of the Lansing Civic Players' Guild for two years, Thompson became a dramatics figurehead.

Doc has made extensive lecture tours the past two years, conducting workshops various phases of stage technique for dramatics circles and giving reviews of current Broadway productions.

Mr. and Mrs. Thompson plan to leave the middle of July for the west coast, stopping first in St. Paul, Minn., to visit his parents. Later they will journey to San Francisco, where Doc is to consider movie engagements in Hollywood radio work, or may open his own dramatic studios.

Other members of the speech faculty who have left the college this year are Dr. Donald Hayworth, head of the department; Prof. L. D. Barnhart, William Shay, of the speech clinic and voice science office; R. G. Turner, assistant debate coach; Dr. Van Dusen, head of the speech clinic; and B. Stampley, instructor in speech.

Don't be a tradition breaker.
No smoking on campus.
