

Churchill Assures Commons of Complete Allied Unity

Prime Minister Reviews War Progress

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill today promised Germany sharply increasing air blows this spring and summer to "reach far beyond the dimensions of anything yet employed or indeed imagined," but soberly withheld encouragement that the European war would end in 1944.

Speaking before the house of commons for an hour and 18 minutes in his first war review in five months, Churchill declared that "victory may not be so far away—and will certainly not be denied us in the end," but he spoke cautiously of the power the German army still holds and derided the view that Hitler is about to collapse.

Churchill made these points: "There has been no 'cooling off' of Anglo-Russian or American-Russian friendship," and "none of the ground made good at Moscow and Teheran has been lost."

Although Britain is sympathetic to the Poles, she recognizes Russia's right to reassurance against future attacks from the west and is "going all the way" with Russia to see that she gets it.

Churchill covered both military and political affairs around the world. Here is a summary of the picture he drew:

Military: Declaring that he had certainly given no guarantee or even held out any expectation that the year 1944 will see the end of the European war, Churchill said his information was that "Hitler and his police are still in full control and that the Nazi party and the generals have decided to hang together."

Slap That Bass

The present generation, notably known as "Hep-Cats," are no longer living up to their reputation. In a recent rehearsal of the college symphony orchestra, the current hit "Holidaze" for Strings was attempted. Not only did the musicians have trouble in getting "into the swing of it," but the director, Prof. Alexander Schuster, was forced to give a demonstration on the art of slapping a bass.

Owner Missing

Mrs. Mildred Weisinger's English class is still wondering about just how he did it. During a recent class period, the entire first row of seats was covered with army overcoats... and one pair of pants, and as the period progressed, the men kept coming in to claim their belongings. Finally, one fully dressed soldier appeared, and took the trousers.

Allied, Enemy Troops Lash Anzio Lines

Yankees, British Remain Alert for Anticipated Fire on Beachhead

ALLIED HDQ., NAPLES, Feb. 22 (AP)—Allied and German heavy guns pounded each other's lines in heavy artillery duelling on the Anzio beachhead today as both sides recuperated from unbroken days of bitter fighting and prepared for further battle.

Fighting on a comparatively small scale took place yesterday near Carroceto, scene of the heaviest Nazi assaults last week, without a decision being reached.

But, for all the temporary lull in the main conflict, American and British troops remained constantly on the alert for a third enemy effort to drive them into the sea. They felt it would come, for the Nazis were believed still under Hitler's personal order to wipe out the beachhead at any cost.

Germany's infantry and tanks, in fact, were observed concentrating yesterday in the so-called "factory" area of Aprilia, just east of Carroceto, but were scattered by accurate fire of Allied artillery and the attack, if one was contemplated, did not materialize.

Making his first visit to the scene of last week's desperate fighting, Edward Kennedy of the Associated Press today described the beachhead as "no brilliant victory, no triumphal entry into Rome, but a hard, grinding struggle against odds and with risks."

Maj. Gen. WILLIAM O. BUTLER, 48, has been named deputy commander in chief of the Allied air forces operating out of England for the forthcoming invasion.

Scientist Outlines Innovations of Future World

Keynoting his talk with a plea to parents to try to understand the desires of their children and to help them more quickly adjust themselves to the coming world, Gerald Wendt, science editor of Time magazine, outlined the possible effects and futures of science at College auditorium last night.

Wendt also stressed the immediacy of science and said that "science is in your house, and under your skin." He condemned reaction and urged an open-minded attitude toward new ideas.

Discussing first the field of electronics, Wendt told his audience about the tremendous possibilities of short wave radio telephone sets weighing one pound or less with which a person could call a friend at any time by merely dialing the proper wave length.

Wendt said that a helicopter or an airplane in every garage will not be possible for quite a long time.

Soviet Army Captures Krivoi Rog by Storm After Four Months

Stalin Announces Victory as Germans Retreat from Vital Ukraine Metal-Producing Area; 300 Northern Communities Also Retaken

LONDON, Wednesday, Feb. 23 (AP)—On the 26th anniversary of the Red army, Moscow celebrated today the capture of Krivoi Rog, the Ukraine town of iron mines, and Premier Marshal Joseph Stalin triumphantly announced that in one year the Russians had swept the Germans from almost three-quarters of occupied Russia in a westward advance that in places exceeded 1,000 miles.

At the same time a Soviet information bureau statement announced that "the German Fascist war machine has been placed by the Red army on the verge of complete defeat."

Germans Admit Evacuation

Stalin announced yesterday the capture of Krivoi Rog, which the Germans had defended with fanatic zeal for four months of bitter fighting. Gen. Rodion Y. Malinovsky's third Ukrainian front forces took the valuable town by storm, an order of the day announced a few hours after the Germans admitted they had evacuated it.

The Soviet communique, recorded by the Soviet monitor from a broadcast, added that 300 more communities were captured in the north, where the Germans were retreating upon

Manners Denote Quality of Coeds

MICHIGAN State has never claimed to be a sophisticated place. We have preferred to be known as a friendly college. However, it would seem that we could do with a few of the characteristics associated with sophistication.

With the passing of served meals in the dormitories, some elementary phases of dining etiquette, which most of us were taught in our childhood, have passed into oblivion.

Although our parents probably told us that if we did not like the food put before us, we should be quiet so others could enjoy their meal, many coeds have made a habit of airing their dislikes and griping all through meal time, much to the disgust of those around them.

Most college women are capable of deciding for themselves whether or not they like a certain dish of food without devoting the entire conversation to the subject when there are so many other things that could be discussed.

This brings up another complaint. The mark of a well-bred person is the ability to carry on a pleasant dinner table conversation by being congenial with everyone present without monopolizing the whole conversation. Anyone who lives in a dorm knows well enough that consideration of this point has been sadly neglected.

These and many other rudenesses obvious in the dining room are things by which we, as a group of coeds, are judged. Certainly we do not want to be known as unpolished and ill-bred, for that does not speak well of us as individuals or as a school.

THE GUEST SAID...

By GORDON HUESCHEN

THE forthcoming Duke Ellington dance in College auditorium Friday night has provoked a good deal of comment on campus, mostly favorable but some slightly otherwise. It is the opinion of the writer that much of the unfavorable comment could be very easily done away with by an explanation of the party, its significance, and its underlying purpose.

Some persons seem to have a very hazy and incomplete idea of the Civil Air Patrol, the organization for which the Lansing Exchange club is sponsoring the dance. As the CAP has as one of its main objectives the enlistment of men for the army air forces, the dance appropriately honors Aviation Cadet day.

The purpose of the dance is to raise funds to further carry on the activities of the CAP, but the persons behind the movement have seen it to present the drive in the form of a party instead of soliciting funds otherwise. The affair shows promise of being a good deal for those attending, providing they appreciate a good band; and instead of giving an outright donation, they will be enjoying themselves.

Looking over the past record of the CAP, we find that it was originally organized by a small group of civilian pilots, disqualified for some reason from active service, who wanted to help the war effort. They used their own planes to help spot subs along the coast. Their work became important enough for the government to investigate and authorize a special uniform for the CAP as well as grant reimbursement to the organization for limited expenses.

The uniform is regulation air forces with silver buttons and red epaulets. Now the CAP and army air forces are recognized as closely allied units, working together where one or the other could not successfully operate alone.

Since the time of founding, CAP has already located more than 75 army planes lost in crashes. The ability to maneuver the small ships has proved invaluable in low altitude flying and in getting in and out of tight places where larger ships can not go. Regular services of the group are flying forest fire and border patrols, dropping supplies, medicine and equipment to flooded or otherwise isolated areas, relieving air force men from guard duties, and guarding planes or supplies of a secret nature.

A Jap was recently picked up and identified by his blue polka-dot tie which a CAP pilot flying the southern liaison patrol had reported him as wearing. Air force procurement and instruction of 17 and 18 year old air force enlistees are also routine activities or "maneuvers" of the CAP.

The Lansing patrol, squadrons 637 and 637-2, truly maintain the ideals of the organization. Besides an office in the Michigan arcade, the CAP maintains a trained enlistment, ready at all times to take up their duties, stand guard, hunt for planes, suppress riots or public commotions, fight forest fires and even block the airport within 30 minutes after an alarm.

The organization has done these things time and again, but without much publicity. Now the organization would like to extend its services and give flying instructions to its members. Of course expense is involved. To give instructions at cost, two used planes are needed. The Russ Morgan dance helped provide a start toward buying these planes and the CAP members would like to see this second party put the planes and flying instructions "in the bag" for them.

If anyone still doubts their sincerity, they can watch them at the airport each Wednesday night in full military drill or studying for some of the 20 odd courses which they must pass.

Breach Grows President Vetoes Taxes

Roosevelt Raps Congress: Overriding Majority Appears Imminent

WASHINGTON, Feb. 22 (AP)—The breach between the White House and Congress widened today when President Roosevelt vetoed the tax bill with a stinging message and Democratic chairmen of the House and Senate tax-writing committees publicly backed its enactment.

Republicans lining up to vote in favor of overriding the veto there appeared a good chance that the necessary two-thirds majority would be achieved in both House and Senate. The first test will come in the House on Thursday.

Roosevelt, who has fired his language at Congress this year over soldiers' voting and subsidy legislation, minced no words in his veto. He declared the measure sent to him "not a tax bill but a tax relief bill providing relief for the needy but for the greedy."

At another point, he said that he asked for "a loaf of bread" and received "a stone" in new legislation. He had been suggested that he should be content with a "piece of crust."

He said that he had not noted that small piece of crust contained so many extraneous and unnecessary provisions.

He said the sharp-tongued remarks came from the Democratic side, and some Democrats were resentful of the president's message.

TAIL SPINNING

By A. S. C. GELLERMAN

OFTEN stories come out of the air forces that charm even the most cynical of skeptics. Of course, constantly kept in mind is the fact that these stories come from the same men who have flown B-24s 300 miles back from Rabaul on one motor and returned from Berlin in B-17s sans wheels, motors, fins and rudders.

Back in '42 A. S. J. W. Godwin, squadron G, then a staff sergeant in charge of basic training ships at Blytheville air field, Ark., had one of his B-17s take off in a routine operations flight to Columbus, Miss. South of Memphis, Tenn., the pilot grew weary at the controls, so he announced through the plane's intra-phone to the mechanic in the rear cockpit to "Take over." He then settled back to enjoy the trip as a passenger.

Over Columbus he switched on the intra-phone and told the mechanic he would take the ship over again. The mechanic was surprised no little and, after a bit of questioning, the pilot discovered what had happened. The latter, at his first order, had forgotten to switch on the intra-phone.

About 300 more short coats, cadet caps and insignias became part of the 310th CTD Monday, having come up from Jefferson Barracks, Mo., for the five-month training course. They are being formed into the new A and B squadrons.

Ye shall have music. The campus has been quite fortunate of late in booking some of the nation's better music-makers.

Unknown Planes Bomb Stockholm in Night Raid

STOCKHOLM, Feb. 22 (AP)—A small number of unidentified planes, which attacked from the east, dropped several bombs in the streets of Stockholm tonight, causing some property damage.

A message to the American-Swedish news exchange in New York telling of the attack on the neutral city said the number of planes involved was small and one of the raiders was seen falling in flames north of Stockholm. It said they flew in "from the east" at 9 p. m.

The Swedish home guard went into action immediately, the message said. Several bombs were reported to have fallen in the streets of South Stockholm as well as in the town of Stragnas.

The dispatches did not intimate the nationality of the attackers.

Both German and Russian air bases lie east of Stockholm, across the Baltic sea.

Relations between Stockholm and Berlin have been strained since Sweden cancelled transit permits for German troops and war supplies to Finland and Norway across her railroads last August, although the two nations did renew a trade agreement recently.

U. S. Bombers Strike at Messerschmitt Factories in Reich

LONDON, Feb. 22 (AP)—American heavy bombers from Italy struck with record strength today at the Messerschmitt airplane factories in Regensburg, Germany, while other powerful United States forces from Britain dealt devastating blows elsewhere in the Reich in the first such synchronized assault from two directions.

The force from the south was the greatest ever sent against a single target by the Mediterranean air forces and was the longest mission ever made from Italy. Regensburg is 50 miles north of Munich and 550 miles from the major Allied airdrome in Italy at Foggia.

The two Messerschmitt plants at Regensburg are among the most important in Europe, prime targets in the great campaign by the United States strategic air forces from both flanks of Europe to destroy Germany's air defenses.

Home Economics Club to Combine Spring Cleaning, Fellowship Drive

This Friday will be the big day for the Home Economics club, when its members will come out en masse to clean their building, and incidentally to make some additional money for their foreign fellowship drive.

Goal of the Home Ec club is to raise $275 as their share toward a scholarship which will bring a foreign student to the Home Economics division at State. The additional $225 will be donated by the National Home Economics club.

According to co-chairman Mary Gorsline, Battle Creek junior, 36 of the 40 women needed to work in two shifts with the B and G in washing the Home Ec library walls have signed up. The first shift will be from 5 to 7:30 p. m. and the second from 7:15 to 9:15 p. m.

The first group will work with Miss Gorsline, and another group of 26 women will clean the little apartment, polish furniture and do miscellaneous work under Marge Graff's leadership.

All women are asked to work the full two hours if they sign. Miss Gorsline said and added that this way the club hopes to raise $35.

Showing the spirit of the drive, the Maude Gilchrist home management house has volunteered to come as a group to cooperate in the spring cleaning drive.

Air Attack on Rabaul Fails to Stir Action from Passive Japs

ALLIED HDQ., S.W. PACIFIC, Wednesday, Feb. 23 (AP)—Allied air raid on Rabaul, enemy base in New Guinea, failed to stir up any enemy resistance, Allied headquarters reported today. The Japanese dromes have been hit with hundreds of tons of bombs in recent weeks.

A headquarters spokesman on the late Rabaul reported enemy aircraft there at the lowest stage ever observed.

Fifty-two tons of bombs smashed the newly reconstructed airfield, and American troops captured a village, nine miles from the northeast coast of Guinea and west of where the 32nd infantry landed from the sea.

University of Texas home economics students and teachers are getting extra time work in restocking and refinishing the home.
