Bus Boys' Holiday

When the Thetas invited the men who have been working in the kitchen this term over for Christmas, stating that the girls would turn bus-boys and dish washers for the evening, the guests were expecting a catch somewhere. After dinner, they found out what it was. The Theta Christmas tree stand was broken and the women needed someone to turn up another. They are still trying to persuade their guests that there was no ulterior motive behind the invitation.

Slave Belle

Seems there is something new in campus a student. At the last Mayo Christmas party the student Santa read this verse from a package.
Her name is Valerie Strong
She knows the difference between right and wrong.
If to choose between she could,
She always does just what she should.
Santa shouted for Valerie—No answer.
"Well, where is she," he demanded.
"Valerie's studying," came an answering voice from the rear.

Choir of Peoples Church to Sing Handel Oratorio

Handel's "Messiah," ever popular Christmas oratorio, will be sung tomorrow by the choir of Peoples church, under the direction of William R. Sur. A performance of the Vesper service, the performance will be given at 7:30 p.m.

Tomorrow's program will be given in three parts, "The Nativity," "The Passion," and "The Resurrection." Soloists include two students, Constance Hutt, soprano, East Lansing sophomore, and Jacqueline Bullen, contralto, Jackson junior.

Other solo parts will be sung by Paul Davis, regular tenor soloist of the choir, and Paul F. Fuller who has been selected as bass soloist for this year's performance of Lansing's inter-collegiate chorus of Bach's Christmas Oratorio.

The "Messiah" is Handel's best most successful oratorio. Composed in 1741 in 24 days, its first public appearance was a concert given for charitable purposes at Dublin, Ireland, in 1742. Handel conducted this performance in person.

Basic College Notice

Basic college students who have not discussed their winter term program with their counselors should do so before leaving for home. If not done at this time, students may find some delay will be caused in registration winter term, Paul Dressel, director of counseling, announced yesterday.

43 Seniors Listed As Degree Candidates for Fall Term

Remaining Few Have Not Clarified Status

Nearly 50 seniors have been listed as candidates for degrees from Michigan State at the end of fall term, according to Registrar Robert S. Linton. The exact number has not been released because of the failure of some students to clarify their status.

ERC Will Present All-College Dance At Term's End

Featuring army sponsored entertainment for the first time this term, the social forgoette will view army students, civilians and their dates as they swing out tonight at the ERC association semi-formal dance from 8 to midnight.

Dick Snook and his orchestra will play for dancing with Capt. and Mrs. William N. Beckman, Lt. and Mrs. Milton H. Aronson and Lt. Mae T. Schoenberg patronizing the affair.

Student club's weekly party will take on a holiday atmosphere tonight under the chair-

Scholar to Speak On Turks Monday

Dr. Ernest Jackh, widely-travelled and well known scholar in the field of international politics, will be the guest of Michigan State college on Monday and Tuesday. At 7:30 p.m. Monday, he will deliver a public lecture in the music building auditorium on "Turkey Today, Yesterday and Tomorrow," which will be the second in a series sponsored by the MSC Institute of Foreign Studies.

German-born, Dr. Jackh emigrated to London in 1933 after a personal talk with Chancellor Hitler, details of which are recorded in his book, "The War for Man's Soul," and became director of the New Commonwealth Institute. Dr. Jackh became a British subject in 1937.

Prior to establishment of the Nazi dictatorship in Germany, Dr. Jackh conducted the oriental seminar of the University of Berlin.

Dr. Jackh is the author of numerous articles and books and is at present visiting research professor at Columbia university. He is being brought to Michigan State college under the auspices of the American Institute of International Education.

BULLETIN

By The Associated Press
Tokyo acknowledged last (Fri.) night that factories in Osaka and other war industry sections of the main Japanese island were damaged by the Thursday earthquake, so severe it caused a tidal wave.

A Domei agency dispatch, picked up by the Federal Communications commission, said factories and homes in Osaka, Hamamatsu and Shimizu areas were damaged, but claimed that "on the whole" the destruction was light.

Osaka, 210 miles southwest of Tokyo, has a population of 3,252,000. It is an important rail and shipping hub and manufactures textiles, machines, metals and chemicals.

Dr. Chen Yu-Kuang to Address Convocation

By EILEEN OEHLER

"Better cultural relationship between the East and West is needed and would be conducive not only to peace but to better international living." This is the opinion of Dr. Chen Yu-Kuang, president of Nanking university, China, who will address an all-college convocation at 10 a.m. Monday in College auditorium.

Dr. Chen's topic, "Higher Education in China in Wartime," will deal with the history of 80 years of Chinese education, the effects of Japanese invasion and moving to the interior on the universities, and Chinese and American cooperation in the field of education.

Coming to Michigan State from a 10-day stay at the University of Michigan, where he has been addressing large audiences, Dr. Chen's lecture Monday will be open to the general public as well as students.

Since the Chinese educator's last visit to this country in 1937, great changes have taken place in Nanking university. The Japanese order to move came in November, 1937, and more than 400 boxes of equipment and books were carried a thousand miles into the mountains to Chengtu.

The forced moves have been advantageous both to the institution which went westward and to those already in the interior of China, in Dr. Chen's opinion. Interior universities have benefited from contact with the more highly organized institutions previously located along the coast, while the latter have been enriched by the gathering together of educational leaders from all parts of China.

Nanking university has added to its regular work projects to further the prosecution of the war, promotion of cooperatives, production of food, and visual education. It now has 1,100 regular and a number of visiting students.

"We are looking forward to a more positive program when we move back to Nanking," Dr. Chen said recently. "Although we may find that our buildings and equipment have disappeared or are badly damaged, we now have enough of a foundation to make a good start again."

MACARTHUR'S HDQ., PHILIPPINES, Dec. 9 (AP)

American ground forces have advanced to the outskirts of Ormoc, Japanese port on the western coast of Leyte island, headquarters announced today.

A large Japanese force south of Ormoc faces annihilation, Gen. Douglas MacArthur's communiqué said, as the 74th and 7th infantry divisions closed in to pinch off the enemy in a five square mile area.

Sink Transport

A 9,000-ton Japanese transport was sunk off Luzon and the Manila area was harassed and Clark field, near there, was pounded by U. S. forces.

Reconnaissance planes sweeping over the Visayan islands to the west of Leyte destroyed or severely damaged 13 Japanese freighters ranging from 300 to 800 tons in size.

Six small Japanese vessels also were sunk Dec. 5 and 6 and 19 Japanese planes were shot down over Leyte, the communiqué reported.

Result of Dec. 7 Landing

The advance to Ormoc and the pincer movement against Nipponese ground forces south of there was the consequence of the spectacular dawn landing Dec. 7 of the 77th division three miles south of Ormoc in a combination army navy marine amphibious operation.

The landing, in the rear of the enemy's Yamashiro line, drove a wedge between Japanese in Ormoc and on northward and those operating south of Ormoc. This southern enemy contingent now has the U. S. 74th at its back and the 7th at its front.

Other American units striking westward from the eastern side of Leyte island went over the mountains in the direction of Ormoc and captured a mountain pass at Mahonag.

PEARL HARBOR, Dec. 8 (AP)—The Japanese island stronghold of Iwo Jima was hammered yesterday by American air and sea forces which included superfortress bombers, giving the Nipponese notice that the giant B-See—PHILIPPINES—Page 2

Weekly Letter to Men in the Service

Dec. 9, 1944

DEAREST JOHNNY,

Last week we started off the basketball season with a bang, by defeating Drake University 44-36 Saturday night. Tonight the team will take on Ohio State at Columbus, and we're looking for them to blacken a few of the Buckeyes.

Who's Who will soon have to put out a special edition for Michigan State. Jack Breslin and Frank Brogger were named to the team to play for the east in the annual New Year's day football game in San Francisco. It must be tough having to take a trip west this time of year. I hope they can bear up.

Kappa Kappa Gamma shut out the scholarship senate this past year and was presented with the scholarship cap given annually to the society having the highest point average. The award used to be presented at the PanHellenic banquet, but since war conditions don't provide enough food for luncheon, they now sleep up in the national office at the various houses.

The 1944-45 convocation of the term will be held Monday and Tuesday, Dec. 11-12, at the University of Chicago. The convocation will speak on "Higher Education in China in Wartime." It should be an interesting session to a missionary and work.

It's almost time to put up a Christmas tree and dig out all the lights that probably won't work anyway. There's still not much use for mistletoe, but I'll save it and have a fight with you when you get home. And when Santa Claus from Vancouver calls, tell him what I want. I'll tell him to hurry up Yuletide.

Merry Christmas and a happy new year to you, Johnny, and yours, specially.

Third and Seventh Armies Hammer At Siegfried Line Guarding Industrial Basin

SHAFF, PARIS, Dec. 8 (AP)—The U.S. third and seventh armies in a concerted push along a 60-mile front from shell-torn Saarbrücken to the Rhine, hammered today at the Siegfried line guarding Germany's Saar basin and at the outlying defenses of the neighboring Palatinate province.

The third army's 35th infantry division forced two new crossings of the Saar river near Sarrageimines, at the threshold of the rich industrial basin eight miles southeast of Saarbrücken, and established bridgeheads a half mile deep at both points.

Other officers include Erwin Osterreicher, Saginaw, vice commander; George Souler, Highland Park, junior vice commander; Margaret Hindman, Dearborn, finance officer; and Chester Wesley Beaverton, sergeant-at-arms. Dr. F. T. Mitchell, director of the Service men's institute at Michigan State college is acting as adviser. Straight said.

All Wolverine salesmen are asked to turn in their sales slips by Tuesday so the number of sales for each person can be counted, Doug Hird, circulation manager, announced yesterday.

Wednesday is the last day for freshmen pictures. All those who have not received an appointment by then should call Beth Beardslee, classes editor, at 2-6739.

Steel Factories Lost

Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's armor closed steadily on Saarbrücken, the political and industrial capital of the Saar, whose big furnaces turning out a tenth of the steel for the enemy's armies already were considered lost to the Reich.

The U. S. seventh army, on the third night, thanks to the east wind, surged forward as much as three miles along a 35-mile front, and field dispatches from Associated Press Correspondent Thoburn Want said they entered a town four and a half miles from the German frontier.

At this point the Seventh turned its heavy artillery on a mountainous sector of the Siegfried line.

Exact Location Withheld — Field censorship would not immediately permit disclosure of the exact location of the closest advance to Germany's Oct. 10 advance by the seventh.

The U.S. third army, located nearly halfway across the northwest corner of the basin, fought a mile and a half to the north of pillboxes of the second half northwest of Sacramento and "was smashing thru" Saur's "capital" sprawling war facilities with shells.

Pittion's third army, being long and heavy, howitzers were wrecking Safarabeken, where two of the greatest reefs in the whole valley are located in the suburbs of Rethym and Purlach.

Saarlautern in Ruins

The basin's second city of Saarlautern was falling in ruins under the fire of the Germans themselves who were trying to check the American line and materials streaming across the Saar river bridge head where the attacks on the west wall were launched.

Churchill Policy Gets House Support

Foreign Rule Is America's Problem As Well As Great Britain's, He Says

LONDON, Dec. 8 (AP) — Prime Minister Churchill won an overwhelming vote of confidence in the House of Commons today for a foreign policy of intervention against "mob rule by murder gangs" in liberated Europe after a vigorous defense in which he clearly suggested that the United States could not wash its hands of the problem.

A tense, often turbulent, house supported him 279 to 30 when the premier, in a back-me-or-sack-me stand, forced the issue to meet a clamor of criticism at home and abroad.

Crisis Over Foreign Rule

The crisis was provoked by the use of British troops to combat fraternal strife in Greece, by British refusal to approve Count Carlo Sforza as Italian foreign minister, by violent demonstrations in Belgium, and by rumblings of unrest in Holland.

Refusing to retreat an inch from his position, which he epitomized in the sentence, "Democracy is not a harlot to be picked up in the street by a man with a Tommy gun," Churchill made it evident that he regarded the responsibility as America's as well as Britain's.

U.S. Should Share Rule

The United States state department has publicly avowed a hands-off policy regarding the internal affairs of other countries, with Italy and Greece specifically mentioned, but Churchill made repeated references to Americans sharing the authority for what has happened.

Of the whole European problem he said, "If there is a democracy and its various defenders believe they express the wishes of the majority, why can't they wait until the general election a free vote of the people, which is our sole policy in every country into which British and American armies are marching?"

WMC to Divert Workers Back Into War Jobs

WASHINGTON, Dec. 8 (AP) — Speed is essential in solving the manpower problem, the war manpower commission said today as it prepared to steer "straying" workers back into war production.

Charles M. Day, deputy manpower chairman, told the Senate war investigating committee that if Congress acts swiftly to put more "teeth" in manpower controls, all well and good. But if it does not, he added, WMC will proceed to use "voluntary" methods in tackling the shortage of 300,000 workers.

He opposed a labor draft, but said the WMC would like statutory authority to enforce "employment ceilings" on civilian industry.

The idea is to enforce a tight limit on the number of employees a night-club or other non-essential establishment may have. A ceiling would be established for each individual establishment with a view to "squeezing out" able-bodied workers for employment in war plants.

LETTERS

To the Editor

TO whom it may concern: There is a time and place for everything, and it seems to us that the Union lounge is not the place to carry on one's "affaires d'amour."

It is not the casual hand holding that we refer to but the couples locked in each others arms, or reasonable facsimile thereof, that is so objectionable.

Although it sickens us fellow students, the damage it really creates is the forming of an unfavorable impression on the alumni and other guests who pass through the Union.

We realize that this condemnation applies only to a small minority, but we must consider how it appears to outsiders.

A NEW JACOBSON STORE

IS NOW SERVING

GROSSE POINTE, MICHIGAN

It is with great pride that we announce the opening of our Grosse Pointe, Michigan branch. We are especially proud of this store because it represents our faith and confidence in Michigan, because it is truly the Store of Tomorrow in its advanced ideas of store decor, and because it is another step in the extension of our policy of bringing Jacobson fashions and quality and Jacobson service to more and more women of Michigan.

Jacobson's, Grosse Pointe is located in the heart of an area widely recognized because of its fashion-conscious women. From the very acceptance of Jacobson fashions by these women will come your assurance of a greater style responsibility by every one of our stores in Michigan.

We invite you to visit this new branch the next time you are in the vicinity. The address is 17030 Kercheval Ave., Grosse Pointe.
