Air Slaughter Chases Nazis Out of Belgium In Hopeless Retreat

PARIS, Jan. 22 (AP)—The Belgian bulge collapsed in a German rout today and swarming Allied warplanes attacked out nearly 3,000 German vehicles and tanks—many to equip almost an entire panzer army—in an air slaughter without equal in the war.

The Sixth army, racing about 15 miles, found the German half of the shattered Ardennes salient virtually deserted and resistance disorganized and the enemy stand collapsed before the U. S. first army in Belgium.

Have Worse Than Falaise

Special dispatches quoted fighting pilots as saying the German havoc, stretching from northern Luxembourg into Germany east of the Siegfried line, was worse than at Falaise, where Allied aerial execution was so complete the enemy could not stand on the Seine.

Third army doughboys were capturing the Luxembourg and the town of Wiltz, had cut off the Duchy through Visé with artillery fire and were shearing off the tiny country's autonomous northern tip in a dash that carried to within 10 miles of the Siegfried line.

Gains North of Aachen

The British second army, gaining about two and a half miles north of Aachen, had flattened a wide, dangerous salient 33 miles west of the Rhine and the city of Dusseldorf and were driving from the Roer—about 100 miles on the Rhine—toward the German border.

The French first army gouged a gap in southern Alsace, capturing a hampering new German base and the German border appeared stalled nine miles from Strasbourg.

Maude Gilchrist Will Be Honored By Home Ec Club

Maude Gilchrist, first dean of home economics at Michigan State University, will be guest of honor at the Home Economics Club's annual dinner tonight at 7:30 in the Student Center, according to the club's assistant professor of nutrition.

Gilchrist was instrumental in the Alpha chapter of the Phi Kappa Nu, the national home economics honorary, and she has been asked to take an active part in the organization. Since she has held deanship at MSC, she has remained interested in the activities of the Home Economics Club and in its progress.

A Glee Club program has been planned for the entertainment at the general meeting of the Home Economics Club. Jack Wilkinsson has been appointed chairman and will delve into the history of home economics during the program. Both national and local organizations.

The program is being furnished by the following: Nancy Laine, Pleasant Street freshman; Ruth Wilkinsson, Royal Oak junior; Elizabeth Glassbrook, Lansing senior; Margaret Foster, Detroit freshman; Elizabeth Walcott, assistant professor of home economics, will be mistress of ceremonies.

After the program has concluded by June Kuhlman, Brecken, Ohio, junior, and the faculty.

Mabel Nelson Dies Suddenly After Illness

Miss Mabel E. Nelson, 55, housemother in Wells hall until Jan. 14, died Sunday at 8 a.m. at the home of her sister in Farmington after a short illness, according to Mrs. Isabelle A. Gonon, counselor of women.

Miss Nelson came to Michigan State campus in 1938 as hostess in the dormitory section then in Hillcrest village. The next year she went to Campbell dormitory as night hostess, where she remained until winter term last year when she became housemother at East Mayo. She had been in poor health since her late return this fall and left a week ago to stay with her sister during her illness.

Funeral services will be held at the VanBalkenburgh funeral home in Redford. Miss Nelson is survived by her sister, Mrs. George Niben of Farmington.

Callaway to Present First Commentary On Broadway Hits

"Broadway in Review," commentary on the New York theater season, which is to be given Thursday evening at 7:30 in the Music auditorium by Prof. Joe A. Callaway of the radio department, will be admission-free and open to students, faculty, and townspeople, according to Jean Granville, Saginaw senior and president of Speech Majors club, sponsor of the lecture.

Highlights of the current Broadway season, including both dramatic shows and musicals, will be given with opportunity for a question and answer period following the lecture. This is the first lecture of its kind to be given in this vicinity for several years, and offers an opportunity for theater goers to familiarize themselves with plays now in New York which may later tour in this vicinity.

Artist Will Show Slides With Talk

Second on a series of art lectures will be given at 8 p.m. today in the Music auditorium by BOARDMAN ROBINSON, above, visiting artist at Michigan State for winter term. Robinson will read passages from Walt Whitman's "Leaves of Grass," which the artist illustrated in 1934-35. Slides of the drawings, and readings from the book will be shown at the lecture.

Two Pincers Capture 30 German Divisions. Take Prussian Bases

LONDON, Jan. 22 (AP)—The Red army in a 38-mile dash across western Poland swept to within 165 miles of Berlin today as another powerful Soviet force sliced to within 37 miles of the Baltic port of Elbing in East Prussia, forging one of the greatest potential encirclements in military history.

The German radio appealed for help against "this bestial, overwhelming mass onslaught."

Million Men Engaged

Berlin said that the two Soviet armies attacking on three sides of East Prussia alone totaled more than a million men, and it was estimated that 30 or more German divisions were caught in the fast-closing Russian pincers cutting through the shell-torn forests.

The big East Prussian bases of Insterburg, Allenstein, Osterode and Deutsch-Pylau fell in quick succession to the Russians, who had cut one Berlin-East Prussia trunk railway at five points and were only 33 miles from the last supply artery running through Elbing.

War's Mightiest Offensive

Behind the crest of the war's mightiest offensive, the harrowing Russians were less than 22 miles from Poznan, last big west Polish stronghold on the direct road to Berlin.

Others were almost to the entrance to the Polish corridor joining up to Danzig, now only 60 miles away. Still another massive Red army was digging deeper into industrial Silesia, menacing the capital of Berlin and launching in southwestern Germany.

It was another great night in Moscow. The capital's 224 victory guns began firing 100 salutes ordered by Premier-Marshal Stalin in five orders of the day.

In Campus Quarters

By DOTTIE LA MONT and NANCY TRABUE

A SLIGHT sign of spring is slowly passing through the vicinity, but it can't be taken as the real thing this early. Everybody is still making that slippery grand entrance into classes that only comes from walking in snow.

Progressing from weather to the more important things of life, finds Marty Kelly, Kappa, a happy wife-to-be. Marty announced her engagement to her surprised sorority sisters at Sunday dinner, naming Lt. Wayland "Bud" Prekard, Cordova, Ala., as the one and only. The wedding is planned for early next summer.

Phi Deltas are in the spotlight this week, because of the change in ownership of two of their pins. Bill Baumgart, Bloomington, Ill. junior finds Sue Stathore, West Winfield, N. Y., sophomore the best one to watch over his possession. Bill's brother-in-law, John Omer, Grand Rapids freshman, has entrusted his pin to Marjorie McKay, Theta.

Maybe it's too early for spring, but the fever seems to have hit campus Irene Waiser, Ferris sophomore, is the one to verify the statement with definite proof in the way of a Theta Chi pin. Giver of the gift? Robert Young from the U. of M.

The logical way to go is from pins to rings. Ruth Burmeister, Pi Phi pledge, has that tell-tale gleam to her eyes these days. The token involved being a diamond and the fellow involved being Roy Fox from Shelby, Mich.

Wedding bells chimed forth last weekend for Joan Preuthun, Detroit junior, and Sgt. John Heaton, John is a navigator in the Royal Canadian air force, and Winnipeg, Canada is the present destination of the couple.

Choosing Dec. 13 as a future anniversary date Phyllis Jean Olin became the bride of Lt. Walter Bielanski. The couple attended MSC, Phyllis graduating in '44 and her husband leaving for the air forces in '42. Their temporary residence is in California where Lieutenant Bielanski will report at a base for reassignment.

One more wedding terminated the weekend and that's all for that. Margaret Nelson, Manistee junior, became Mrs. Harold Bryan as of Saturday. Dr. Bryan is a '44 Vet graduate.

That's all for the Lovelorn rains of today, but things are still humming as any new sorority or fraternity notices will be anxious to announce. Alpha Phi initiation took place this weekend resulting in seven more to rail those pledge duties just a thing of the past. They are Elaine Brandt, Lansing freshman, Elizabeth Hammond, Niagara Falls freshman and Mary Loring, East Lansing freshman. Other new Phi actives are Dorothy Martin, Lansing freshman, Dorothy Reddy, East Lansing freshman, Barbara Reid, Detroit freshman, and Peg Senaeter, Bay City freshman.

Ten new Theta kites have replaced pledge pins and are worn by Andrea Hatch, Marshall freshman, Jeanne Campbell, Detroit freshman, Valerie Wilder, Bay City freshman, Marjorie McKay, Ferrisale freshman and Marilyn Green, Detroit junior.

Mud Hole Made Into Valuable Experiment

By LOUIS KENNEDY

This is the story of a forgotten piece of land. Twelve miles north of Lansing, in the center of a small Corey swamp, are 200 acres of Michigan State college-owned bog land. The last remaining segment of an original land grant of 240,000 acres made by the federal government to the college in 1862, this land remained idle for nearly 70 years while the more desirable surrounding land was sold to finance the development of the college.

Black and uninviting, its forested interior generally unvisited, except by the occasional hunter, and the land itself was considered worthless.

In 1931, however, the Corey land was again brought to the attention of college authorities when a prospective buyer offered to purchase it for $2.50 an acre.

Dr. Paul Harnett, college muck scientist, investigated and found the supposedly useless land held beneath its spongy surface a virtual treasure of fertility and experimental produce. Acting upon his recommendation that the bog be retained as an experimental muck farm, the college rejected subsequent offers that rose as high as $25 an acre and began to prepare plans for the setting up of the project.

The final steps were taken in 1941 to complete the transformation from wilderness to farmer's dream; the bog was laid out, and the land was drained and tilled. Now it is still productive capacity, the land's value has soared fifty-fold, its worth valued at $175 to $200 an acre and constitutes one of the college's most valuable properties.

Its crops are being raised by farmers who have visited the experi-

LETTERS

To the Editor

To the Editor:

Having had my backside well lampooned by the barbs and scorn of Manager-columnist Middlemiss, I rather hesitate to reply... however, the dear girl needs the information so I shall sacrifice my own personal feelings and answer. I criticized the paper from the standpoint of a worried bystander, worried with the concern of a parent for an erring child.

I am amazed indeed at the attention you paid me in your column "Once Over Lightly," though I must assume that the lightly in the title refers to the thought content and not the style of writing. The way in which you carry on without an iota of sound argument astounds me.

You must remember, Dear Pee, that to write from a collegiate viewpoint does not entail writing down to the readers level, rather, the State News staff should realize it is not putting out a high school paper (in spite of the impression the over-stuffed mast head gives), but must appeal to an intelligent adult class bound together by mutual interests.

I still maintain that Kenney's "exclusive" was but a poorly condensed, heavy handed, flat grey rehash of the AP flash. Apparently though, when any one leaves the office and visits a story's source, it rates as so unusual an occurrence that the venturing staff member is greeted back with a laurel wreath and a chorus of "Buzza's." In view of his great doing-do and rose for news, I suggest you publish the whole thrilling story of his adventure, complete with pictures and a short biography. Such venturesome boldness as Kenney's should not go unrewarded.

Being a hard-working senior Engineering student, I have neither the time nor inclination to carry this matter further. Hoping this will not pique you to more scabbles, I remain, Robert Knudson.

It's been charming—Ed

Wrestlers Score Three Spartan Debate Teams Enter Second Victory In OSU Match

Spartan wrestlers turned in their second straight victory Saturday afternoon when they defeated the grapplers from Ohio State 23-11. The Spartans won five of the first six bouts and put the match on ice as Gordon Cole, Gale Mikles, Jim Gandy and Don Anderson won via the fall route.

The closest bout of the afternoon was in the 121 pound class as Cliff Fletcher won a 3-2 decision over Dick Payne of Ohio. Probably the most interesting bout of the afternoon was staged between Harold Dachtler of State who weighed in at 190 pounds and George Bolas of Ohio State who tipped the beam at 345 pounds. Dachtler lost the match by fall after 5:39 of noteworthy wrestling.

Al Borkowsky and Doug Brown lost to Ohio by decision. State will face the Ohioans in a return match here in East Lansing, February 3.

- Summary: 121—Fletcher, MSC, defeated Payne, OSU, 3-2; 128—Cole, MSC, defeated Hersch, OSU, 2-46; 136—De Morra, OSU, defeated Borkowsky, MSC, 3-2; 145—Mikles, MSC, pinned Hersch, OSU, 2-47; 155—Grain, MSC, defeated Schmittle, OSU, 5-38; 165—Anderson, MSC, pinned Kolas, OSU, 4-04; 175—Wells, OSU, defeated Brown, MSC, 6-2; HW—Bolas, OSU, pinned Dachtler, MSC, 5-39.

Yank Infantrymen Capture Capas In Advance Through Luzon Plain Toward Capital of Philippines

Troops, 54 Air Miles From Manila, Fast Approach Pampanga Province

GENERAL MAC ARTHUR'S HDQ., LUZON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Fast-rolling American infantrymen, more than half way to Manila down the central Luzon plain, captured Capas in an 11-mile gain from fallen Tarlac and were only 54 air miles from the Philippine capital at the deepest penetration, headquarters reported today.

They were fast approaching Pampanga province, the gateway to Manila.

Gains in All Sectors

Gen. Douglas MacArthur, announcing gains in all Luzon sectors and the throwing back of ineffective enemy counter measures, disclosed the makeup of his liberation forces on this main Philippine island. He announced:

"Our ground forces comprise the I corps on the left, with the Sixth, 25th and 43rd divisions and the 158th regimental combat team, and the XIV corps on the right, with the 37th and 40th divisions."

The Yanks also captured the town of Santa Monica, some 10 miles east of Capas, in a general advance on all Luzon sectors.

Approach Clark Field

Seizure of Capas put the Americans only about 10 miles north of Clark field, major air-drome of the Philippines, and its big military post adjacent, Fort Stotsenburg.

American warplanes made their usual harassing attacks on Japanese airfields and supply columns in the network of roads north of Manila, and long-range bombers hit Takao airdrome on Formosa.

Sever Bataan Peninsula

U. S. infantrymen Gen. MacArthur's wide-sweeping right flank reached Dasol bay, thereby severing the entire Bataan peninsula which juts like a thumb off the Luzon west coast near the Langayan gulf beach-heads.

On the hard-pressed left flank the Americans captured the highway towns of Cayapo and Anao to the east of Moncada, which was taken Jan. 14.

Near Rosario, stubbornly held highway town on the route to the Philippine summer capital at Baguio, MacArthur reported his artillery was heavily pounding Japanese dug trandy into hillside positions.

In their drive toward Clark field the Yanks will be forced into the mountains of western Tarlac province where the main highway cuts through the foothills for several miles. This will be the first time the Americans have had to abandon flat territory, excellent for mechanized equipment, since their Jan. 9 landing.

Capas is 11 miles south of Tarlac and Santa Monica is 15 to the southeast.

George Suggests Splitting Double Commerce Job

WASHINGTON, Jan. 22 (AP)—Senator George (D., Ga.) struck the first strong tactical blow in the senate today against turning over vast federal loan powers to former Vice President Henry A. Wallace.

George introduced legislation to set aside President Roosevelt's executive order of 1942 under which the federal loan agency, the Reconstruction Finance corporation and subsidiary agencies were transferred to the commerce department.

The effect would be to split up the twin job of loan chief-secretary of commerce to which President Roosevelt nominated Wallace at noon today.
