

Dean Anthony Tells Farmers Of Food Needs

Sounding the keynote of Farmers' week was an opening address given by Dean J. L. Anthony during the session yesterday afternoon in which he reminded the farmers that they, the farmers, must face the gravest crisis in the world's history and they must endure their hardships and come through them as they produced them. "Even with the tired, overworked farm population, I believe Michigan farmers will somehow come through," he said.

His extension of sympathy and understanding by all sections of the national society to farmers and producers must be maintained in order to attain these goals, Anthony concluded.

W. H. Baldwin, director of extension, stressed the need for protection of the land from erosion by wind and water and the greatest sin in agriculture, he stressed, "action must be taken by the farmers themselves. This must be stimulated by continuous, sustained educational program."

W. S. Schrader, state coordinator of the U.S. department of agriculture Soil Conservation Service, further emphasized the need for more widespread conservation measures in the state.

Baldwin pointed out that in Michigan agricultural counties about two-thirds of the land is seriously affected by erosion and concluded that conservation measures will only be taken if we take care of the land.

Allied Statesmen Guard Plans for Big-Three Session

LONDON, Jan. 30 (AP)—Statesmen of the United States and Britain apparently were converging on an undisclosed spot tonight for preliminary conferences or even the Big-Three meeting itself as British and American leaflets raining on enemy lines urged the Germans to surrender.

Outside of the closest official circles nobody knew when or where President Roosevelt, Prime Minister Churchill and Premier Marshall Stalin were to meet, and those who did know were not giving the slightest hint.

German and Swiss broadcasts said the Big-Three meeting already was underway or about to begin. The best guess in London was that the parley would be held in the Soviet Union or close to its borders. Some quarters, however, thought the meeting might be in Italy.

The Germans said the conference would occur "somewhere in the Near East or the Mediterranean." Nazi agencies declared, however, that they had been unable to check Spanish reports that Mr. Roosevelt had left Washington accompanied by a large staff.

There has been some speculation that the Big-Three session might produce a joint immediate surrender call to Germany.

U. S. Army Fights South for Goal—Manila, 60 Miles

GEN. MACARTHUR'S HDQ., Luzon, Wednesday, Jan. 31 (AP)—Eighth army troops, seeking to seal off a historic Filipino peninsula as a haven of retreat for the Japanese and to capture the vital Subic Bay naval base, made amphibious landings. The day's operations took place northwest of Manila on the east coast of Luzon. Cutting the Japanese off, they captured a perfect and superbly defended island and 150,000 miles of coast.

The eighth army, landing at San Francisco and San Antonio, then moving through San Francisco and San Antonio to the coast, had cut in behind the rear flank of Japanese forces, falling back before sixth army Yanks. It had routed less than 30 miles from Manila as they headed inland.

No Losses The eighth army, in action, comprising the 24th division and elements of the 24th division, reported such a complete success in their landings on the Zamboanga coast that not a man, plane or ship was lost. Gen. Douglas MacArthur announced today.

The Yanks moved swiftly to within 10 miles of the Luzon navy base on Subic Bay. The airfield was the 24th which Yank forces have captured on Luzon since the start of the campaign. The invasion of Luzon was at Lingayen.

Move to Stop Fight The MacArthur move to seal off Luzon meant a bid to avoid an armistice by Japanese forces of Lt. Gen. Tomoyuki Yamashita of the long held out on that same coast from Manila from January to April, 1942, by Americans and Filipinos.

It came at a time when Japanese elements, with abandoned Laramon Sunday were reported fleeing steadily from their position.

While this operation was in progress, paratrooper troops of the sixth army landed around Fort Stotsenberg in the Clark field area and first corps troops crossed a seven mile route northwestward from San Quenton on the enemy left flank.

Aim at Manila The eighth army invasion now, stipulated a second spearhead aimed at Manila.

The Yanks landed on the five miles of the Zamboanga coast in an amphibious operation which caught the Japanese by surprise "both strategically and tactically," MacArthur announced as his sixth army spearheads drove north from the Lingayen Gulf beachheads past San Fernando, within 30 miles of Manila.

The new landings were approximately 60 air miles north, west of the Commonwealth capital.

SPEAKING FOR MYSELF

By BARBARA DENNISON

It never fails, when a program of music is presented at Michigan State college, that a small portion of the audience will always applaud at precisely the wrong moment during the middle of a selection, without waiting sufficiently for the conductor to indicate that he has reached the end of the piece.

Such an unfortunate situation occurred Monday night at the Minneapolis symphony. Naturally the audience appreciates and enjoys the program to the extent that they want to show their like for it, but it is discourteous to say the least, not to pay strict enough attention to what is going on to be able to wait till the end to applaud.

As soon as a pause between parts of a piece or different movements occurs, someone breaks out with unmistakable applause, which is not only embarrassing to the audience, but to the conductor as well.

Usually the audience catches on to its error before it is too late, but it has happened within the memory of many on campus now, that the conductor of a musical group was forced to concede defeat to the audience and let them applaud when the selection was only half finished.

Such appreciation of music as that, bringing an admission of lack of interest in the whole thing or an unwillingness to pay attention to the program. While it is true that there is always a margin for error, there is not much excuse for the same thing to happen over and over again with essentially the same audience responsible.

Let's hope the next time a similar program is presented, that a similar blunder will not be repeated. It's getting beyond the point where we can excuse it every time.

We're glad to see that at least one student at this college is beginning to study hard enough to get up the energy to say so, even though there are some who seem to be complacently "about ready" everything, especially things which do not particularly interest the average student, as one of the main faults of this campus.

Students never bother to say anything about anything until they start criticizing. A long of everything pleases them; they run along as easily as possible, never bothering about things one way or another.

There's an old adage, "If you can't say anything good, keep your mouth shut." If you can't say anything constructive, keep still.

Captain Relates Story of Danish Underground

Telling an unbelievable story of the German term of detention, Danish Capt. Peter Frøden, a member of the Danish underground and escapee from a Nazi prison camp, spoke at the Farmington week lecture in College Hall Monday night.

Frøden, who was held in a prison camp for ten months on suspicion of being a spy, was released fully expecting to be retaken. The underground, discovering plans for his death, kept him and his 23-year-old daughter in hiding until they finally managed to reach Norway by being boxed as a piece of machinery.

In closing, Frøden stressed that he wants America to know what Denmark is going and that they too will be heard at the peace table.

Reds Push Within 73 Miles of Berlin

Soviets Complete 20-Mile Advance West of Driesen

LONDON, Jan. 31 (AP)—The Red army thrust through a pocket of Berlin today, capturing the town of Stettin, 20 miles north of the city.

The penetration of the city was completed in a 20-mile advance from the northern town captured by Marshal Gregory K. Zhukov's Russian army.

Stettin was an important railway hub and a regular night broadcast from the town made no point of its capture. It represented the closest approach to Berlin.

Stettin, 20 miles from Berlin, was captured early today by the Red army, more than 50 miles from the front for Berlin on the east. Stettin is 12 miles from Berlin.

The town yesterday had been captured further west of Berlin, 10 miles east of Berlin, and 80 miles from Berlin.

U. S. First Army Slashes 3 Mile Hole in Siegfried Line in Berlin Advance

Armies Find Weather Worst Opposition in Slow 4-Mile Drive Into German-Belgian Border; Eisenhower Troops Strengthen Positions

PARIS, Jan. 30 (AP) — The U. S. first army ripped a three-mile wide chunk out of the face of the Siegfried line in Germany today and advanced up to four miles through deep snow on both sides of the German-Belgian border against potty opposition.

The U. S. third army attacked strongly along the first army's southern flank, expanded its Our river bridgehead in side Germany to three quarters of a mile deep and two miles wide.

French Cross Colmar

In the south the French first army with American companions crossed the Colmar canal in southern Alsace, further encircling Colmar. Paris papers said that the last major German held city at the front was under attack.

Late dispatches from Associated Press frontline correspondents indicated General Eisenhower's forces were moving into strong positions for a major push should the Germans weaken the western front appreciably by withdrawals to meet the Russian onslaught in the east.

From the Canadian front in Holland came word that the Germans apparently were pulling troops out for transfer to the East.

40 Mile Front

The first and third armies already were probing ahead on a front more than 40 miles wide.

In near zero weather and through snowdrifts which deep the first army, in an explosive 9-hour attack by the rugged forest area east of Morsbach and Sommerath, outflanked strong pillbox defenses and grabbed up to three miles of the Siegfried line outerworks against surprisingly slight opposition.

Six divisions of the first army were named as in action there and farther south, including the first, second, ninth, 28th, 99th, and one that was not identified by number.

The second division took Nunkelt and Röchelath, scenes of the second epic stand to hold the northern shoulder of the German breakthrough into Belgium in December.

The U. S. third army, also bucking atrocious weather conditions, pushed across the Our river, expanding its new bridgehead about a division in strength and advancing within three-quarters of a mile of the Our head inside Germany with forces farther south at Laxemburg.

Hitler Makes Frantic Appeal to Nazis

LONDON, Jan. 30 (AP) — Adolf Hitler, his creaking Heilich invaded from the east and west and leaning with war-torn refugees, called upon the German people tonight "to fight on no matter where and no matter under what circumstances until final victory crowns our efforts."

The Fuehrer, making a radio address to the German nation on the 12th anniversary of his ascendancy to the chancellorship, declared "a horrid fate is in progress in the east today," but asserted this fate "will be mastered in the end in spite of all reverses and stern tests."

Hitler spoke for 20 minutes, beginning in calm tones which veteran listeners believed actually to be the Fuehrer's voice. "I expect every German to do his duty to the last," Hitler cried at one point in his broadcast.

"Every fit man must stake his life and body," he said. "The sick and infirm or otherwise dispensable must work to the last ounce of their strength."
