Yesterday's temperature hit its peak at 30 degrees.

Workman's Pay Boost Guaranteed

New Index Issued By Labor Bureau

WASHINGTON — (AP) —

An estimated 1,700,000 workers were assured yesterday of an automatic pay increase as the government announced that the cost of living rose 1.5 per cent in January.

These employees, including 800-

000 automobile workers, have contracts tying their scale of wages directly to the labor department's cost of living index.

The auto workers may get four or five cents an hour more.

The department's bureau of labor statistics issued a new type index adjusted to changing buying habits. This one stood at 181.5 for mid-January, compared with 178.8 for mid-December. The period 1935 to 1939 is considered normal or 100.

The point change of 2.7 represented a percentage rise of 1.5.

Old Type Index

The bureau also issued the old type index. On this basis of calculation, the January figure was 181.6, and the December index

178.4, an increase of 1.7 per cent.

The auto industry's cost of living, or "escalator," contract, provides for raising or lowering pay one cent an hour for each rise or fall of 1.4 in the index. It has not yet been worked out whether the new index will be applied in figuring out the wage increase.

Escalator Clause Exempt

Contracts with escalator clauses

signed before the wage freeze

date of Jan. 25 are allowed to go as high as the cost of living can carry them.

However, those negotiated since that date must be submitted for stabilization agency approval if they push wages more than 10 per cent above the level of Jan.

15, 1950.

An escalator contract was signed

Thursday for one million non-operating railroad employees—a per cent index point.

Spartans Capture First Place In Conference Preliminaries

On the steps are Ed Wagonlander, team captain Hank Amos and stewardess Phyllis Leon.

Conference To Hear FCC Official Today Senate To Vote Monday On 18½-Year-Old Draft

WASHINGTON — (AP) — By unanimous consent yesterday the senate agreed to vote Monday on the hotly debated issue of drafting young men into the armed forces at the age of 18½ instead of 19.

The test will come on an amendment to the universal military training and service bill, which Democratic Floor Leader McFarland of Arizona is trying to push through the senate as "emergency legislation."

A draft age of 18 has been approved by the senate armed services committee. Its bill would provide, however, that 18 year olds nearest 19 be taken first, and that none be taken before all eligible men in the 19 to 26 year category are inducted.

Senator Morse (R-Ore.) is the author of the amendment to drop the draft age only to 18 years and six months. But he proposes that those in the 19-26 bracket be called up at the same time, and that boys between 18 and 18½ be allowed to volunteer.

It is on this amendment that the senate will vote Monday. The house armed services committee has not acted on a bill yet, but the representatives are thinking in terms of registration and classification at 18, induction at 18½, with no waiting until the 19-26 group has been exhausted.

Another complaint was that heavy pedestrian traffic between the Dairy and Natural Science building warranted a stop sign for vehicles at that corner.

The committee found that the campus police are conducting a traffic survey to find where stop signs are needed. The department expects to put the signs in approximately five places around campus, Eshewitz said.

Jesse Thomas Stars As State Scores Upset

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — (AP) — Michigan State, making its debut in Big Ten championship track competition, last night topped preliminary trials of the meet by winning 10 places in today's showdown.

Leading the Spartans' 30-man squad, second largest entered, was little Jesse Thomas, a senior freshman. He qualified for today's semi-finals in the 60-yard dash and 70-yard high hurdles and the finals in the broad jump and 70-yard high hurdles.

If Thomas, a defensive half-back on the Michigan State football team, comes through the semi-final tests today he will carry the Spartan colors in four final events—a real iron man stunt.

Michigan Second

Favored Michigan was second in the preliminaries by qualifying for nine spots. The Wolverines were followed by Illinois with seven Iowa, Ohio State and Purdue with five apiece, Indiana four, Northwestern three, Wisconsin two and Minnesota, two.

Six events did not require preliminary trials with title competition in them starting today as the finals open. They are the pole vault, high jump, shot put, one mile run, two mile run and one mile relay.

Major Upset

One major upset was recorded in the qualifying round. Harold Omer of Purdue, the 1949 sprint champion, failed to place in the 60-yard dash.

Former Champion

Omer, one of three former champions returning, finished fifth in the first heat of the 60-yard dash, an event he won two years ago.

Stan Wilkins of Indiana, Joe Gonzalez of Illinois, and Jesse Thomas of Michigan State won their respective heats and qualified for the dash semi-finals tomorrow preceding the finals.

All three were timed in .06.5, four-tenths of a second off the record pace.

Illinois spraking sophomore from Panama, Cirilo McSween, headed 440-yard qualifiers with a clocking of .49.9 compared to the record 48.1. Another sophomore, Gary Scott of Iowa, was second in .50.1.

Good Condition
Of Units Found

Off-campus living units are in "far better than average" condition as far as possible fires go, Mide Croy, East Lansing fire chief, said yesterday.

College regulations for off-campus housing and inspections conducted by college and East Lansing fire officials have worked to cut down fire possibilities.

Co-operation from sororities, fraternities, co-operatives and other rooming houses to prevent fires has been "wonderful," according to Chief Croy.

Europe Feeling Better After 'Great Debate'?

By J. M. ROBERTS, JR.,
AP Foreign Affairs Analyst

As the senate concluded its hearings on the matter of sending additional American troops to Europe, the net result of the "great debate" to date seems to be a deep split in the Republican party which, however, has given Europe a solemn warning against trying for a free defense ride on Uncle Sam's coattails.

Senators Taft, Wherry and former president Hoover set themselves up against the so-called "internationalist" wing of their party, led by Dewey, Stassen, former vice-presidential candidate Warren of California, and Republican State department adviser John Sherman Cooper.

It also wound up with Hoover, Taft and Wherry left to face, almost alone, the military judgments of Generals Marshall, Eisenhower and Clay.

There is still the barrier of senate debate to be hurdled, of course. The committee still has several proposed resolutions to work over, ranging from Wherry's desire for congressional veto to the Conally-Russel validation of the full administration program.

President Truman, following the close of the hearings, was quick to hint that, whatever its value in clearing the domestic atmosphere, the debate was doing the country's foreign relations no good. He didn't go so far as saying that they had actually been damaged, however.

In fact, Europe seems to have preserved a better sense of balance, a greater feeling of confidence in the ultimate American decision, than it has in some past cases while the United States was submitting its policies to her customary democratic processes.

In the long run, the troop debate, by producing a definite answer and a congressional affirmation of policy, may give Europe greater confidence than if the executive department had gone ahead in the face of mutterings without the issue ever becoming clearcut.

The Sad Story of the RFC

Copyright, 1951, United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

WASHINGTON—The current senate investigation of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has revealed, in truth, some inadequacies of administration at the top and an unsavory operation of political influences. The first must be corrected; the second, stopped.

But the natural and necessary emphasis on maladministration and improprieties—the ordained purpose of senate investigations—should not be allowed to obscure or confuse the basic public service of such a credit agency in promoting free enterprise, especially for small business.

The revelations have provoked demands that the RFC be abolished. That would play right into the hands of some powerful financial interests that want a monopoly of credit control in private hands. They watch the current exposure gleefully.

The fact is that it was the abuse of its privileges by private finance, whose restrictive practices maintained a private credit monopoly for so long, that forced the government into the lending business. It was a move by the government to preserve the free enterprise system to which such financial interests gave so much lip service. This innovation by government began many years ago, originally in the federal reserve system, subsequently in lending agencies for farmers, home-builders, and others. They were established in both Democratic and Republican administrations to meet a growing need.

This lending function was broadened further when the RFC was continued after it had performed the service for which it was setup by the desperate Hoover administration in the midst of depression. Its original assigned task was to resuscitate and bail out private banks, railroads, and other great units in our financial-industrial system threatened with collapse. They were very grateful for the RFC then, back in the early 1930's.

In fact, they indicated it. The RFC is not in fact a competitor of private finance, and some of the more enlightened members of the financial community clearly recognize that. The agency can consider only loans that have been turned down by private bankers.

It has been successful. It is a going business. It is in the black. Though not created to make a profit, it has. It has turned some $575,000,000 of dividends into the U.S. treasury, which is not chicken feed.

Naturally, emphasis in the public mind generally is on the large loans. They attract attention. But while they are larger money-wise, the truth is that in actual number, 90 percent of

Dionysians Prepare Musical

MSC Talent Cast In New Production

The Dionysians are at it again.

They are a unique organization on campus, incorporating the talents of MSC students for an original musical comedy each spring.

Rehearsals are now going on for "Script Tease," the product of several writers, according to its director, Dorothy Harrison. It is in the style of "Hellsapoppin'."

The comedy, songs and dances center around a take-off on the Dionysians preparing a script. Presentation dates are April 11-14 in the auditorium.

Started in 1946 when six students got together and drew up a constitution which has since been dedicated to producing good musical comedies each spring.

Membership is open to volunteers who have worked on one of the productions. Jim Hale, Grand Rapids junior, is president. Secretary is Marjorie Fine, Grosse Pointe senior.

Script co-writers for "Script Tease" are Sheila Murphy, Mt. Pleasant senior; Al Lustader, Forest Hills, N.Y., junior; Robert Chesky, Tawas junior; Spence Ketchum, Muskegon Heights junior; and Miss Harrison.

Production staff has been selected through petitions to the executive board. They include: Chesky, public relations agent; Chuck Parmelee, Bound Brook, N.J., junior, designer and chief technician; Elmer Dennis, Flint sophomore, production manager; and Fran Funk, Saugatuck junior, properties.

Also chosen were: Joan Mason, South Haven sophomore, wardrobe mistress; Gloria Tarpinian, Hazel Park senior, make-up; Bob Scott, East Lansing junior, lighting; and Sheila Murphy, Mt. Pleasant senior, prompter.

May Mahon, Birmingham senior, is assisting the director. Pat McFate, Detroit sophomore, will be rehearsal pianist.

Vote On I-3/2 Draft Set For Monday

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the house committee recommended yesterday that expansion of the reserve officer training corps be deferred in favor of building up more officer training schools so that youths who are drafted will have an opportunity to become officers.

At a hearing on his committee he expressed fear that the college ROTC units may become a haven for students trying to avoid the draft.

ROTC Leaders
ROTC leaders told the committee present plans call for expanding the number of ROTC college students from about 124,000 to approximately 150,000. The cost of the program would be increased from $8,642,000 a year to $115,000,000. ROTC students are exempt from the draft under present law.

Support for drafting 18-year-olds came yesterday from Senator Cain (R-Wash.), who told the senate "we need every man we can get in Korea."

"How impractical and how unrealistic can we become in our efforts to sugarcoat this pill to evade the issue," Cain asked. He said he hoped the bill would be enacted and not "circumvented or crippled" by amendments, such as those offered by Morse.

Pianist Awe Small Group At Concert

By MARGARET FULLER

Robert Casadesu combined emotional depth and artistic sensitivity last night to captivate an audience of 3,000 in the Auditorium.

Climaxing the evening was a trio by Ravel. With agile fingerings, France's number one pianist painted a flowing picture of contrasting moods in "Jeux d'eau," "Forlane" and "Fecunda."

The Paris-born musician clearly indicated last night who he has received high praise from critics since he made his American debut in 1935.

Contrasting the delicate strains and martial air of "Etudes Symphoniques," Casadesu released himself in the grandiose finale.

He opened his program with two compositions by Mozart, "Fantasia D minor, K. 397," and "Sonata in F Major, K. 332." Francis' "Prelude of Fugue" completed the program.

A composer, educator and virtuoso, Casadesu has played with nearly every major symphony in the world. He was director of the American school at Fontainebleau from 1942 to 1943.

Casadesu started formal study of the piano when he was 10. He won several prizes for his artistry at the Paris conservatory and had some concert work before entering military service during World War I.

Capitol Comments

Graves Eyes Discrimination Fight At MSC

By ARMY SPELLUN
STATE NEWS Capitol Reporter

Progress toward the removal of discriminatory requirements of campus organizations is being watched with keen interest by one freshman legislator.

Rep. Gerald W. Graves drew the attention of MSC at the beginning of this legislative session with the announcement that he intended to introduce legislation that would withdraw recognition of any fraternity or sorority with restrictive entrance requirements.

He later decided to withhold action in the hope that students at state assisted colleges and universities would correct the situation themselves, making the dictates of a higher body unnecessary.

Studied At MSC
Graves majored in political science and public administration at MSC before dropping out of school to try for the Republican nomination from the Alpena district.

In a previous attempt he had been defeated in the primary but this time he won handily in both primary and general elections. He intends to re-enter MSC spring term.

In order to clarify what he considers an improper air of secrecy surrounding membership qualifications, Graves last week introduced legislation requiring "all fraternities, sororities and secret societies" to submit their constitution to college authorities and the superintendent of public instruction.

Awaits Consideration
The bill is now awaiting consideration by the house education committee.

The resolution adopted by the IFC last Tuesday, requiring membership fraternities to work for removal of discriminatory clauses does not completely satisfy Graves. He is disturbed by the fact that the ruling was not made a part of the permanent organization by-laws and also that no concrete result of the fraternities work need be demonstrated.

Looks To Council
Graves wants all student organizations effected and looks to the Student council for such action. The University of Michigan has already passed legislation similar to the measure now under consideration by the Student council civil liberties committee.

According to the representative, if student government does not take up the problem he will go to work on legislation banning all student organizations that fail to remove discriminatory clauses.

It would either be an amendment to the general FEPC law proposed by Rep. Louis E. Cramton (R-Lapen) or else a separate bill.

IFC To Publish Newsletters

A newsletter will be issued by the Interfraternity council to all local fraternities starting next term.

The publication will carry information concerning sports, scholastic reports, social activities and numerous other articles of interest to fraternities.

Only two issues are planned for next term but once it becomes established an attempt will be made to make this a monthly project.

"The purpose of the newsletter is to provide means whereby information from the IFC and individual fraternities may be distributed throughout the campus," said Bob Benson, IFC president.

The first copy, prepared by the IFC executive committee will be ready by the end of April.

Group Begins Servicemen's News Project

By NANCY HOTOP

Work on the Servicemen's news service is underway. John Green, chairman of the project, revealed Tuesday night.

An article will appear in Campus Capsules, the newsletter mailed with student grades, asking parents or alumni to contribute addresses of men they know would like to receive news of the campus.

Committee Heads
Committee heads have also been appointed. Guiding three main groups will be Josy Bubolz, information procurement; Gene McDermott, column and bulletin publishing; and Barbara Basine, information dispersing.

A records committee, chairman will be appointed later.

Servicemen will become co-chairman of the committees to insure continuation of the project. Present heads are all juniors. The project is sponsored by the junior class.

Help Needed
Student help is needed to gather names of men who have left MSC for the service, and to set up a mailing system to distribute the news bulletin and answer inquiries.

Ex-servicemen and sophomore girls who serve and sororities are especially asked to assist.

Permanent Stressed
News from home is very important, Green, a veteran himself, said. He stressed the fact that with UMT or a long time draft imminent this could become an important, permanent project.

The service is aimed at men who will be entering the armed forces this summer, and those who have left since the outbreak of the Korean War.

Career Carnival Advise 1951 Job Opportunities

More than 50 representatives from all phases of employment will arrive on campus next term to take part in all-college Career Carnival.

The Senior Career Carnival, held for the first year, has merged its committee with the Junior class job training program this year to stage the all-college event.

The two groups working in conjunction with the college placement office have planned the carnival to aid all students in exploring job possibilities.

Reveal Job Opportunities
The carnival, organized around the theme, "Opportunity in 1951," has been set up to give students a clearer picture in what to expect in the way of job opportunities and conditions in 1951. Bob Scott, carnival promotion manager, announced.

"Students have many questions on their minds this year concerning jobs because of the world situation," Mickey McFall, carnival executive secretary, said, "and conditions in fields of employment caused by the war emergency will be discussed."

Summer Jobs
Representatives taking part in the carnival have also been asked to consider the possibilities of hiring potential employees in summer jobs before they graduate.

The carnival will open at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday, April 5, with a program in the auditorium.

Included in the program will be welcoming addresses by Dr. Clifford Erickson, director of the Institute of Testing, Counseling and Guidance, and John Schuelter, assistant director of the college placement office.

Student Skill
Highlighting the evening will be an address by a top personnel director in the state, who will be announced later, Scott said.

Also featured on the program will be a student produced skit entitled "Life Begins," which will tell of jobs college people get and how they get them.

Question Period
Students will have a chance to ask questions concerning employment at the question period which will conclude the evening's program.

An eight member panel of company representatives and students will be on hand to answer questions among themselves and from the audience.

Telephone Relay
Questions from the audience will be relayed to the panel by cords equipped with telephones supplied by the signal corps.

Jack Foglio, New Rochelle, N.Y. senior, will act as emcee.

Thursday noon, company representatives will be guests at a luncheon in the Union. Welcoming speakers will include President Hannah, Dean King and Harold Stenberg, of the college placement office. Students are also invited to buy tickets for the luncheon.

Booths In Auditorium
Display booths will be set up in the college auditorium that afternoon and representatives will be on hand to answer questions and give information on their particular phase of employment.

Booths will be open from 1:30-4:00 p.m. and 6:30-9:00 p.m.
