Council Acts to Stop All Dorm Riots

Violators May Get Social Probation

Men students accused of rioting in the dormitory will be brought before Men's council and the dean of students under the authority of a Student council resolution passed last night.

Men's council will hear cases of accused rioters, and will recommend that the dean of students place those believed guilty on social probation.

Violators, punishable under the Student council resolution are men breaking after-hours visiting rules in dormitory rooms and "agitators" at mass demonstrations.

Applies to Future

The resolution will not apply to cases occurring before last night. Council member Dave Miller Phillips introduced the resolution.

Special Meeting

Bill Forbush, president of Men's council, said that administration members had called a meeting Tuesday with leaders of AWS and Men's council.

At the meeting student government groups announced that they would take measures to stop, but they would not demonstrate.

New Penalties

AWS adopted new penalties Tuesday night which will be applied to riot demonstrators. If convicted from any dormitory, AWS regulations, their whole dormitory will be penalized.

Men's council, lacking any judicial control over male students, worked through the Student council to pass last night's resolution.

Military conspirators do not defeat orientals by force and submission, they win the hearts and minds of the people. That is the way of the east.

Laying with orientals, Mrs. Wain said, the countries of China, Korea and Japan through their eyes. Touring Japan during the occupation years she noted that people were busy everywhere, rebuilding for a better future. They were not apathetic about their condition.

Under MacArthur's guidance, Americans picked up their pieces and showed the Japanese how to do things rather than stand aloof and tell them what to do. This Mrs. Wain believes has influenced the United States reputation while British power is slipping.

When asked about Truman and MacArthur she said, "I hope the younger, less educated man who is our president will not enter into a dispute with the older man who knows Asia. I hope the younger man will learn."

U.S. Tanks Smash Ahead with Hit-Run Tactics

TOKYO (AP)—Two tank-tipped allied spearheads plunged as much as 18 miles inside North Korea on the western front Wednesday and blasted the Reds before pulling out.

One force rumbled to the vicinity of Chigyoung, 19 road miles north of parallel 38. Another struck within two miles of the big Red road hub of Choryon, 18 miles above the old north-south Korea boundary.

And behind these powerful thrusts, the main United Nations line moved up nearly two miles south and southeast, of Choryon.

Reds Off Balance. Allied commanders say these tactics, used in concert with tremendous aerial and artillery firepower, are keeping the massed Red manpower off balance.

The two tank-infantry spearheads met artillery, mortar and machine gun fire near Choryon and Chigyoung. But this, like resistance elsewhere on the rugged front, was attributed to rearward action and piecemeal commitments of Red forces.

Smoke Blanketed. A dense smoke haze still covered the western and central fronts. A front-line officer told AP correspondent John Randolph the smoke pall probably resulted from a combination of allied artillery and air strikes plus a natural springtime haze—rather than any deliberate effort by the Reds to conceal their movements.

The cars will be driven by Indian and Arabian students.

Another parade will be held at 3 p.m. tomorrow as a final publicity attempt.

Tonight at 7 p.m. the foreign students will hold their final rehearsal in the auditorium under the direction of John Winburne, director of the festival.

Very few seniors have ordered their caps and gowns for Senior Swagout, according to Bob Kiera, class president.

The deadline for ordering gowns for both Swagout and commencement is set for April 27. They can be reserved at the Union bookstore.

He went to San Francisco and boarded a train for Fresno, Calif. There he went to the home of an uncle, Dan Giordano. His mother and father, who had been with him at Fort Ord, picked him up there Friday night and drove him to their home in Glendale, near Los Angeles.

His doctor, S. S. Polito, who has been treating him for three years, sent him to the rest home. Said Contino:

"I want to serve. I would have enlisted six months ago if I considered myself able. I will be glad to enlist if this illness is cured."

Prolonged Illness Fatal to Statesman

GRAND RAPIDS (AP)—Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg died last night. Death came quietly to Michigan's Republican senior senator at 9:40 p.m. after a long illness, 27 days following his 67th birthday.

Senator Vandenberg had been fighting tenaciously to regain his health since surgery Oct. 3, 1949, for removal of the upper lobe of his left lung. The operation was performed at University of Michigan Hospital, Ann Arbor.

Returned Briefly

He recovered and returned briefly to his senate duties. In April of 1950, he underwent a second major operation at Washington's Georgetown hospital for removal of a tumor from his spine.

In an official statement, his physician, Dr. A. H. Smith, announced that death resulted from complications of a long illness following surgery.

Suffered Relapse

Returning to Grand Rapids for convalescence, the senator suffered a relapse last November. After six weeks in a local hospital he reportedly reported plans for a return to Washington in January.

But a second relapse Feb. 27 from which he failed to fully weakened him and his condition became hopeless.

Children Present

At his bedside when death came were his three children: Arthur H. Vandenberg, Jr., Mrs. John Bailey and Mrs. Elizabeth Pfeiffer, and Dr. Smith, a long-time friend.

The senator's wife, Mrs. Hazel Vandenberg, died last June in Washington.

Disregarded Advice

In a statement, the senator's son, Arthur H. Vandenberg, Jr., disclosed for the first time that nearly a year elapsed after a tumor was discovered in Vandenberg's left lung before it was removed by surgery.

The delay was against the advice of doctors, the son said, but the senator insisted on seeing the North Atlantic treaty and the Inter-American treaty through congress "without regard to his personal welfare."

Under Treatment

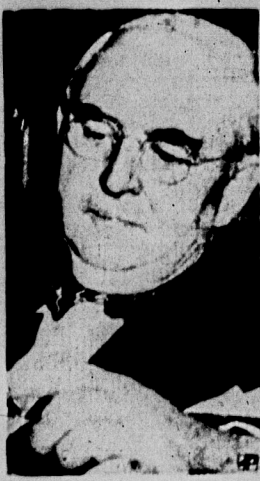

It also was disclosed for the first time that Vandenberg had been under treatment for a major heart ailment for the last 25 years.

The senator's death ended a career that started in obscurity as a thrifty harness maker's son. Vandenberg was carried to renown as a newspaper editor and ended finally in the U.S. senate.

Presidential Possibility

There he served for 23 consecutive years, becoming president pro tem of the senate and chairman of the senate's foreign relations committee in the 80th congress. Twice he was a top possibility for the republican nomination for President.

Until death intruded, he had planned to retire after 1952.

WSSF Fund Chairman Talks Here

Tells Workings of Organization

Frank Sulawski, regional chairman of the World Student Service Fund, spoke last night in Keweenaw auditorium. Campus Chest solicitors.

Sulawski told of the organization's beginning in 1937. It started on a national basis, with about ten schools, and collected $5,000 the first year. From that time on WSSF has tried to meet existing needs of students everywhere. The organization is run by students at their respective colleges. There are about 1,300 colleges and universities in the country that represent WSSF.

Sulawski pointed out the three main reasons why the collection of funds are necessary:

1. On-going Progress

This entails meeting health needs. He pointed out that foreign schools don't have campus health centers or dorms, and the WSSF is raising money to finance the erection of these. In Japan the WSSF is financing the complete expense of buying equipment for a new tuberculosis hospital being built.

2. Emergency Needs

WSSF hopes to be the organization to meet the needs of students in Korea. In Assam, India, a new university has been partially destroyed by earthquakes, and the organization has sent many medical books over to help replenish its library, and is raising money to help finance

Beginning Alumni

Seniors, wrapped up in the details of graduation, often think of MSN only as the place they leave behind. They forget to consider it in terms of continuing interest and support.

It is important to be a good alumnus. MSN, like any other school, needs the prestige and financial support which comes from strong alumni backing.

But the best alumni are not necessarily those who give the most money to the college. They are the ones who keep track of MSN, know what's happening there, and help whenever they can.

The '31 club, which will be a nucleus for the organization of '31 alumnus, is too often slotted off as 'rah rah.' An interested alumnus is never the perennial Joe College.

The most interested alumnus recognizes their obligation to support the school which has given its facilities for their education.

True, anyone who goes to college pays for that privilege. But many students could not go at all without college-sponsored scholarships or jobs.

These are made possible by drives like the alumni roll call now being on at MSN, which brought in nearly $23,000 last year. It was used for scholarships, student aid, research, follow-up, and special equipment.

These funds are used partly for students, but they also aid in the college program of extension services, and experimentation.

In a large sense, alumni are helping to improve society as a whole by their contributions to research and scholarships which will raise the standard of education.

Graduation does not sever school ties; it is the beginning of a new and broader college relationship.

The AWS Ruling

The AWS judiciary and activities boards Tuesday night decided that women's living units would be penalized "for infractions of AWS regulation and standards."

They ruled that "the penalization will be a full weekend campus-wide and the withdrawal of late pers from the entire campus."

Another section of the minutes stated:

"Women students may visit men's residence under the following conditions: a) the housemother must be present, b) women may not go above the ground floor, c) women students may not visit in men's residences during the morning hours."

"Women may not leave their residence before 7 a.m. unless they have obtained special permission from their housemother the night before."

See Merriman, president of the AWS judiciary board, explained that if a group of women joined in demonstrations around men's dormitories such as those which occurred earlier this week, they would campus their entire living units.

The aim of the ruling was to stop coeds' early morning serenades around men's dormitories. They hoped this would halt the "raids" by men who supposedly were visiting for the serenades.

After much discussion they decided that group pressure would be most effective. They slapped on the "group campus" ruling instead of declaring individual penalties for the women directly involved. Mrs. Isabel Gonon and Miss Mabel Peterson, the board advisors, were present at the meeting.

The ruling aims to correct an undesirable situation. AWS made the decision hoping it would never be enforced.

Although the alternate "raids" and serenades have been going on, someone might be hurt if they continued.

This is the best way to stop them.

The demonstrations would probably have died out by the end of the week without disciplinary action. But there were a sizable number of rather childish students prepared to carry them out to the bitter end.

These students who couldn't see when a joke stopped being funny, would have been the ones to get hurt. It is too bad a larger group had to be penalized for their lack of judgment.

The In-Between Stage

Sparty in the Service

(Editor's note: A Sparty in the Service column is planned for this space every Thursday. It is written by Gene McDermott, president of the junior class, which is sponsoring this project.)

By GENE McDERMOTT

In a college of this size, it is not difficult to become lost in the thousands of students. Unfortunately, a person can drop from school to join the armed services and be missed by only a few close friends.

The remainder of the people who knew him, merely forced that a familiar face has not been seen around campus. Only when it is brought to their attention will they recall him.

That will be one aim of "Sparty in the Service" to inform students of their friends in the service. The most important aim of this column is best expressed in this letter from the mother of a serviceman:

Dear Sir: Stanley would have finished his third year March 15, but he was called to service on Feb. 1 of this year.

He hopes to be permanently stationed in Phoenix with the rest of his training squadron. The Michigan Air National Guard and the Arizona Air National Guard form the nucleus for this new training center.

I'm sure Stanley will appreciate hearing from MSN and it is my hope that he may eventually be able to finish his schooling. Perhaps the news from MSN will go a long way in determining the future. I'll write from time to time.

Best of luck for your future and all those in service or to be in service.

As ever,
Mrs. George Opfermann
Stanley's mother.

We were grateful for the many responses from the parents of servicemen, but the letters are not limited to the parents and the servicemen alone.

Much of the material for this column will have to be gained from students. The success of this project depends solely on the responses from the parents and you, the student.

If you have information concerning servicemen, please drop us a card or visit.

Just A Moment

The Big Show

By Steve Brandendorfer

The campus has just witnessed quite a theatrical performance. It featured men and women from the dormitory living areas. It was analyzed and reviewed by the college police and AWS.

Here's a synopsis of the production:

ACT I

It's a week ago Monday morning at 7 a.m. The trim Scabbard and Blade pledges are marched around the women's dorms. That type of thing has become more or less a tradition. This time the Scabbard and Blade boys add something.

They not only wake the women up—they sing to them.

ACT II

The second act began last Thursday morning. Campbell coeds are featured. They throw water at the paraders. "After five mornings of the parading, it's not very funny," one bleary-eyed young thing told me.

ACT III

Saturday morning, Williams dormitory coeds dressed as pseudo Scabbard and Blade give the men's dorms a demonstration of close order drill.

ACT IV

Dormitory men are featured now. The time is Sunday night. The place is the women's dorm area. With bugles, drums and trumpets the dormitory men whoop it up. At this point the play starts to drag. But wait until the next act.

ACT V

A smash hit. A real mob scene. This again features the men but the coeds played strong supporting roles. On Monday night, the dorm men came over to the coeds again and attempt to break into the dorms.

Some went into Wells hall. Some coeds throw undergarments at them.

ACTS VI and VII

Act six was Tuesday morning with about 50 or 60 coeds serenading Mason and Abbot men. Four of the girls are snatched and made to bus dishes inside Phillips dorm.

Act seven never really got started. It was broken up by college police Tuesday night when a group of about 100 men started moving toward Wells hall.

Reviews on the performance revealed what many of the people thought about it.

The AWS, a perennial reviewer of this type of thing, ruled that entire coed living units will be penalized if any of its members persist in the act.

FINIS

Everyone who has participated in the affair should take a look at the whole thing now that it's over. What was accomplished? Everyone had a good time... up to a point.

Then it went too far.

That's an adult criticism of college students. They think they don't show good judgment. They're right. But only in some cases.

Take the Wells hall coeds who threw undergarments at the men. In referring to this, an expert here in criminal psychology told me that it's just such things that incite the weak minded into dispirited acts.

How about the coeds who were taken into the dormitory before regulation hours to bus dishes? Three of the group were in The State News office after it occurred. They asked that a picture taken of them be killed. It didn't seem so funny to them then.

College students should enjoy themselves.

At the same time that part of the nervous system which is supposed to separate men from mice should be used to keep men from becoming monkeys.

Coeds Protest AWS Ruling. Stuffy Rooms

TO THE EDITOR:

We, the coeds of North Williams dorm, have a problem with no solution. One of our inmates has been fortunate enough to secure a date for the coming weekend. The problem is that because of the recent AWS ruling we have been forced to keep our windows closed for fear that one of us might sneeze, cough, or breathe too loudly, thus compounding the entire dorm and running our inmate's chance for success.

It is our unanimous opinion that the extreme stuffiness in our rooms closely resembles the AWS rules. Give us air or give us death!

Yanks Win Again

Bengals Lose to Cleveland in Overtime

The Cleveland Indians' battery of pitcher Early Wynn and catcher Jim Hegan was too much for the Detroit Tigers yesterday. Wynn led the Indians to a 4-2 win, their second in a row over the Bengals, by allowing but four hits. A home run by Hegan in the ninth inning sent the game into extra innings. Hegan also had three singles and drove home two runs in the 10th inning battle. Denny Trout, 35-year-old Detroit right-hander, was the losing pitcher.

In the tenth Ray Boone singled home Larry Doby from second with the winning run. In the only other American league contest played yesterday afternoon, steady Rodie Lopat pitched no-hit ball for 6 1/2 innings, set down the red-faced Red Sox with two singles total in New York's second straight victory, 6-1, over Boston.

Ted Williams, twice struck out by Lopat's "nothing" stuff, turned his no-hit bid with a line single to center after one was out in the seventh.

The Yanks broke the game wide open in the fifth inning with a four-run outburst. Lopat, besides his pitching effort, uncoiled a two-run homer in the eighth.

State's 1950-51 basketball team was named by varsity players as one of the Sportsmanlike Clubs during the season.

NCAA Okays Limited TV of Grid Games

WASHINGTON—(AP)—The television committee of the NCAA, in what it said was a move to save the life of intercollegiate sports, yesterday approved a plan for limited telecasts of next fall's college football games.

Under the plan adopted by the National Collegiate Athletic association group, here's the menu for the television fan:

1. Only one game will be televised in any area on any given Saturday.
2. One at least one Saturday, a blackout may be imposed and no game will be brought into the area at all.
3. No team will be seen more than twice, once at home and once when it plays away from home.

Applications for '51 Club Available Now

Members Accepted for Outstanding Activities and Contributions

By CONNIE COURTEAU

Applications for the '51 club, nucleus of 1951 alumni association, are now available at the Union desk and in organization room 2 of the Union.

Seniors interested in petitioning for membership in the alumni group should return petitions to organization room 2 by April 30, according to Bill Ziering, '51 club organization chairman.

Samples Filled

Complete explanations of the club's organization and purpose and sample application blanks are posted in dormitories and off-campus living units. Members will be chosen on May 1 and 2.

Committees will be made up of Ziering, Dick Wolfe, Dunkirk, N.Y., senior; Paul Worthington, Romeo senior, and representative of Men's council, AWS, Interfraternity council, PanHellenic council, Inter-cooperative council, and Women's co-op league.

Two Committees

They will be divided into two committees, the first of which will weed out ineligible petitioners. The second group will narrow the remaining contestants down to 50 members.

Names will be removed from petitions, and each blank will be assigned a number.

Judges will have no knowledge of the names on the petitions they review, Ziering said.

The fifty outstanding seniors will be chosen for their college activities and the contribution which they will make to alumni activities after graduation. Announcements of the 50 members will be made at senior swingout, May 8.

Unique Idea

The small alumni club idea is unique at MSC, according to Ziering.

"Although other colleges have active alumni groups, none that I know of have small central groups like the '51 club," he said.

Reserve Duty, Draft Call Cut

WASHINGTON — (AP) — The army cut its May draft call from 60,000 men to 40,000 yesterday.

At about the same time September was set as a target date to start releasing reserves called involuntarily to army duty. The other services plan to start even sooner.

The draft action follows up a similar move which reduced the April call from 80,000 to 40,000.

In both cases the cut was attributed to an increase in volunteer enlistments. In addition, the army said today, casualties in Korea have been lighter than expected, reducing the need for new men.

Miller and Wally Mayer of the Student council, and Bill Richardson, council organizations secretary, will lead discussion. Bob Duryea, conference chairman added.

Urges Interest

Robert Rombouts, graduating council president, urged increased student interest in an official statement. Rombouts declared that, "now is the time for those pondering the difficulties and effectiveness of Student government to get into the midst of it and do something constructive."

Urging "all interested students to enter the race at once," the retiring president stated, "Student government relies on those it represents."

Knittel to Speak at Conference

Prof. Bernard J. Knittel of the speech department will speak Friday before the Central States Speech conference at its annual meeting in Milwaukee.

Professor Knittel is president of the Michigan Speech association and will outline the progress of the group in promoting speech activities throughout the state.

3. Refugee Problem

WSSF is the organization which arranges for the DP students to come to American schools. Last year they sent 265 students to school, and are looking forward to five or six hundred next year.

Last year WSSF collected $530,000 in cash, $35,000 in gifts and an estimated value of $265,000 for scholarships of DPs.

On the MSC campus WSSF has its special group which works with the Campus Chest. Sulewski said that the organization would be very happy to have anyone interested to work with them. Students can obtain more information at the Campus Chest office, or by contacting Carol Stewart at West Yakeley.
