Without venturing too far out on a limb, the unnamed aide engaged himself in a takeoff on a much-quoted bro-

"It's all over but the shouting."

We hope no one realizes better than Dwight D. Eisenhower that that's not all that's left.

For ahead of the American people's choice for the top office in their land lies a difficult course. No president in the history of the United States has ever taken the reins at a more trying time

Gen. Eisenhower has succeeded in uniting the American people behind what might be termed discrepancies between his ideas and those of the Republican platform. Whether not he can unite the members of his own party and the southern members of the Democratic party who supported him remains to be seen.

Gov. Stetenson took his defeat in what has come to be described as a Stevenson manner. It was typical of his whole character-a reliance on the people in the future of our democracy

His "fellow citizens" had "made their choice," he said. "I gladly accept it.

Gen. Eisenhower also realized the co-operation that he going to need to perform his task adequately. He, too, asked the nation to unite in an effort to make a better

Ike, very serious, termed yesterday his "day of dedication" and voiced his realization of the weightiness of his

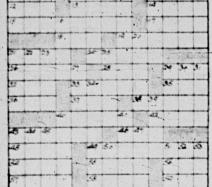

Neither party seems sestined to secure a decisive working majority in either the House or the Senate. In the Senate, the Republicans stand the best chance. Signs pointed to a 49.47 GOP majority there, a slim margin which in the past has never proven successful. So the diffy hopes for constructive planning for the future of the U.S. still seems to lie in a middle-of-the-road program, with coprefation the keynote.

Perhaps it is too idealistic and optimistic to think that two tooth-and-nail adversaries could compromise differnces in the face of the past

But therein lies the only hope we can see for the wellbeing of the natio
