Neither Proposal Does the Job

The Student Congress legislative program came to a halt last week when student government officials started campaigning for next year's presidency a term ahead of time. Campaigning came out into the open under the guise of four proposed constitutional amendments.

The fourth proposal, changing the time for electing Congressmen, was withdrawn by its sponsor, Rep. Don Hosie (fraternities).

Two of the proposals provide alternate ways for selecting the student government president. Proposal No. 3 would change the method for getting constitutional changes before the student body for an all college vote.

As the constitution now stands Congress can prevent either of the presidential proposals for which petitions are now being circulated from coming to an all college vote by refusing to approve the amendments.

If adopted, proposal No. 3 would require that an all college vote be held whenever 15 per cent of the students sign a petition, proposing a constitutional amendment. On the other hand two thirds of Congress could force a vote by approving a proposed amendment.

This proposal would end the congressional veto power over proposed constitutional changes.

Proposal No. 1 introduced by Rep. Hosie and Rep. George Weeks (East Lansing) would open the Student Government presidency to all juniors. Regardless of his lack of experience in student government any junior could petition for the job and his name would be placed on the ballot for the all college primary election.

If this proposal is approved the Student Government presidency elections will face the same problems that class officer elections meet. Unqualified students could have their names placed on the ballots and through ignorance and apathy the student body could elect them.

An unqualified Student Government president would probably blunder through the year, failing to give Congress the executive leadership it requires. One year of poor leadership would reduce student government to the relatively insignificant place held by class government whose officers are chosen by popular vote.

Students annually demonstrate their unwillingness to assume the responsibilities expected of them in a democracy by neglecting or refusing to vote in class and congressional elections. Those who do vote cast their ballots too often for the person whose name rings clearest in their ears, for the candidate who has the right connections and has enough money to plaster his picture on posters all over campus.

When students take an active interest in the qualifications of candidates they will be ready to vote for the Student Government president. Until then Congress will be better qualified to select from within its own membership the Student Government president.

Proposal No. 2 requires Congress to nominate two candidates for the presidency and gives the student body the right to choose between the candidates. On the surface this proposal appears to give the two major factions in Congress an opportunity to get their candidates on the ballot. At the same time it seems to prepare the student body for a more active role in government affairs.

In reality this proposal would permit the majority faction in Congress to name both candidates. A strong candidate whom the majority faction wants elected could be nominated and a weak candidate also put up by the majority to insure the election of the strong candidate.

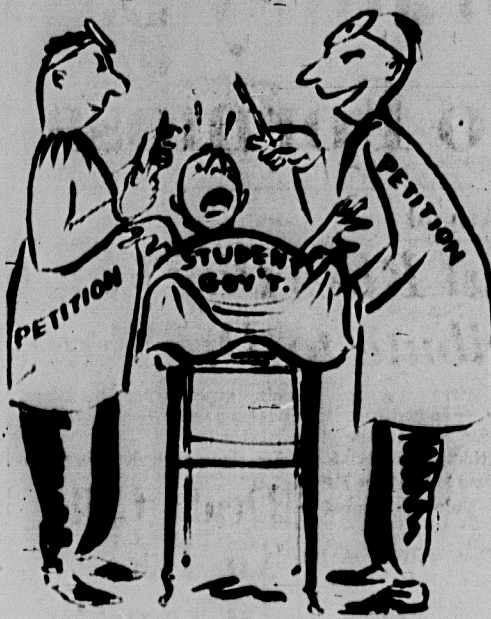

Students would have no alternative but to vote for the strong candidate whom they may not want or for a weak candidate and poor Student Government.

Until the student body takes more active interest in campus elections the procedure now provided for in the constitution for electing the Student Government president is best.

Congressmen realize the need for a well qualified chief executive. They are also better acquainted with prospective candidates than most students.

These two factors combined with apathy of the student body make congressmen better qualified than the student body to elect the Student Government president.

Davey Seeks Title

Amid cries of "underdog," and "they brought him along too fast," Chuck Davey will enter the ring tonight against Kid Gavilan in their battle for the world, welterweight crown.

Davey, former Michigan State boxing king, admits to being the underdog, but claims to like the role—pointing to his fights with the Williams, Rocky Graziano and others when he was not the favorite but came on top.

The former Spartan has built up a tremendous following in his relatively short career. The fight "experts" refuse to believe what the fans seem to want—that Davey has the stuff it takes to make a champion.

Win or lose, Michigan State can be justly proud of their former student and athlete, who has come farther in a tough sport than any college graduate in the past.

When Chuck steps between the ropes at Chicago Stadium tonight, he will be on his own, but thousands of fans—Michigan Staters and otherwise will be behind him all the way.

4 N.Y. School Heads Face Senate Fire

No Comment Made Tuesday to Probers

WASHINGTON (AP)—Four members of the New York City school system refused a dozen times in a dozen ways Tuesday to tell probing senators whether they ever have been Communists.

Two of them, Dr. Oscar H. Shaffel, also in the City College registrar's office, did testify to affiliation with the Teachers union expelled by the CIO as Communist dominated. Shaffel is assistant English professor at Queen's College. President an assistant professor of physical education at Brooklyn College.

Shaffel and Hyman Gold told the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee they thought Communists should be allowed to teach in the schools under some conditions.

Gold is employed in the registrar's office of City College of New York.

The fourth witness was Richard H. Austin, also in the City College registrar's office. In an atmosphere of short tempers and hot words, the subcommittee reopened hearings on the question of Communist infiltration and "organized subversion" of schools and colleges.

Chairman Jenner (R-Ind.) said in a statement that subcommittee records hold evidence "there are many hundreds of teachers organized by the Communist party in a secret underground operation, the plan for which has been imported from abroad by high Communist leaders."

The witnesses flung at the subcommittee accusations that it was damaging the cause of academic freedom, and invading the private thoughts of individuals. In the end all four fell back on their constitutional rights not to testify against themselves. They did that even though Sen. William Smith (D-N.C.) called attention to a section of the New York City charter which provides for the firing of any city employee who pleads self-incrimination into state, county or municipal affairs.

Fred Waring Group Slated For Campus

The Fred Waring "Festival of Song," under the direction of Dr. Lara Hoggard, will be presented at the Michigan State College Auditorium Thursday, Feb. 26, at 8:15 p.m.

Rosalie Randall, 1931 music graduate of Michigan State, will be featured harpist with the "Festival of Song." Miss Randall will present "A Ceremony of Carols," by Benjamin Britten. Composed in 1932, this work is scored for treble voices with harp accompaniment.

The leadership of Dr. Hoggard, one of America's best-known choral directors, plays a large part in the performances of the choral group.

String Quartet Offers Chamber Music Concert

The Loewenguth string quartet will give a concert Feb. 17 in the Music Auditorium at 8:15 p.m. as part of the Music Department concert series.

This group from Paris has made several tours in America, gaining fame as one of the leading interpreters of chamber music.

It consists of Alfred Loewenguth, first violin; Maurice Fieri, second violin; Roger Roche, viola; and Pierre Basseux, cello. They will play quartets by Mozart, Milhaud and Beethoven.

Their instruments are all made by Amati, the 17th century violin maker of Cremona. The Loewenguth violin is said to be replete with adornments that make it a rarity among instruments.

Proposals

will include all the students working on publications whereas the present one only demands that editors, business managers and their assistants have two points. It also covers all the students participating in plays, television and radio productions, with the exception of those that are required for classes. The present eligibility ordinance only covers those taking part in major term plays, children theater productions and Dionysians. The new ordinance does not change the rule on averages, which states students must have all college two points prior to and while in office.

The grants and aid proposal will loan or grant money to organizations who petition the Congress and each case will be taken on its own merit, according to Rep. Jean Warren (Lansing).

The reason for asking organization to make a financial statement of their money is because the students asked for it, according to Bob Steele (Lansing). It will be related to those organizations having business connections with the government in such cases of grants and aids, Steele said.

If the proposal for oaths is passed, it will mean that all the officers of the Student Government and classes will take an oath of office from the Chief Justice.

The two proposals on electing the president will be on the agenda after being held over from last week's meeting. They were on the floor for a straw vote.

Proposal one is the amendment suggesting election of the student government president by an all-college election.

Hosie's amendment would permit all juniors to petition for the student government presidency. In an all-college primary in April the student body would select two candidates for the presidency. They would face a final all-college election in May. The losing candidate would automatically become a voting member-at-large of the Student Congress.

The second proposal would open the presidency to members of the executive and judiciary branches as well as congressmen. It requires, however, that they serve six months in the student government before they are nominated.

THE SHAME OF OUR COLLEGES

Are we a nation of uneducated people with college degrees? Do less than half of our students in college actually belong there? Why is today's campus the target of Communist propaganda—a hotbed of sports scandals—a marriage mart for enterprising females? Don't miss Louis Bromfield's shocking expose, "The Shame of Our Colleges."

Flu Threat Drops Hospital Still Full

The influenza epidemic is subsiding, according to Dr. Charles Holland, director of Health Center.

The past two weeks have been the most severe in the number of cases admitted to the hospital. Cases reached a high point when approximately 100 were admitted. During this time available beds in the hospital were filled.

But the number of cases now is near normal. Dr. Holland said it is doubtful that any further increase of cases will be noted.
