

ke Urges Congress to Extend Draft, Modify Reserve

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Eisenhower sent Congress Thursday a blueprint for maintaining "a military force that we can support for the many years that may be necessary to dispel the shadow of the communist threat."

Presidential leaders promised to give it careful study. The President called for a four-year extension of the draft law, increase in pay and allowances for the "experienced hard core" regular fighting men, and a modified form of compulsory military training to create a powerful reserve of young men ready for mobilization.

The increases, ranging up to more than 20 per cent, would go to men serving longer than the minimum time on active duty—years for officers and two for enlisted men.

They are losing too many men trained in leadership and technical skills, the experienced hard core of a modern fighting force," the President said.

Asserting that the atomic jet age has "drawn our services into new dimensions of hazard and uncertainty," the President also proposed extra, hazardous duty pay for airmen, submariners, paratroopers, demolition crews, deep sea divers and certain other specialists. He did not go into details on the amounts.

He also urged special allowances to men forced to leave their families, better medical care and housing for service families and other benefits.

In two messages outlining what he has described as the "cornerstone" of his long-range military program, Eisenhower asked Congress to create a combat-ready reserve and National Guard that would constitute one of the "invincible elements in our military striking power."

To achieve this state of readiness, the President's program would give young men a choice, for the first time, of volunteering for six months of intensive training followed by nine and a half years of compulsory service in the reserves; or being drafted into the active forces.

Under the reserve program, about 100,000 young men would be trained every six months and then would go directly into the reserve. In his manpower message, the President said:

"The penalties of our unreadiness have been manifold—in treasure, in blood in the heartbreak of a mighty nation buying time with the lives of men. Now, in an uneasy peace, we can and must move toward this proper posture—at tolerable cost, with due regard for tradition, without disruption of human plans or the material economy."

Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.), chairman of the House Armed Services Committee, said he agreed with Eisenhower that the present reserve program is inadequate and said the committee will give "most careful study" to the suggestions for improving it.

Vinson said he "strongly endorsed" a selective pay increase for regular servicemen and "approved in general" all of the additional fringe benefits recommended. He also said he would support Eisenhower's proposal for a four-year extension of the regular draft and two more years for the doctors' draft.

Republican lawmakers generally expressed approval of the Eisenhower proposals. Rep. Arends (R-Ill.), of the House Armed Services Committee, commented:

"A big point is to have satisfied career men in the service... and by keeping them in service we will save money in the long run." Sen. Mundt (R-S.D.), said the idea of including incentive pay "makes sense" and added: "I think the President has proposed a far better reserve plan than the one now in operation."

V Sports Commission Urged

Similar Measures Will to Pass

Resolution to televise all and U of M home football games was introduced to Legislature Thursday by John J. Fitzpatrick (D-Mich.).

Resolution calls for the establishment of a six-man commission to accept bids and control televising of home athletic events of both Michigan State and University of Michigan.

The commission, designated by resolution as the Michigan Television Commission, will be apart from NCAA and its 10 conference control.

Mr. Fitzpatrick has thrown similar and unsuccessful resolutions in the hopper in previous legislative sessions.

Primary purpose of his action was to get football games televised, where they can be seen by the thousands of Michiganans and taxpayers.

He denied it was a move to get the NCAA into apportioning a regional plan for the televising of grid games.

Legislature to the games of their state schools televised was the arguments presented by the regional TV network last week's NCAA meeting in New York.

Mr. Beck said the resolution, which could not force the schools to televise their games, but he added that if the state approved the resolution, the prospects were pretty good for the U of M and Michigan to go along with the proposal.

Governing bodies of the schools, the State Board of Education and the Board of Regents, are constitutional with almost exclusive powers over their institutions.

Mr. Beck said the questions of resolution's constitutionality would be decided by the courts, and he would accede to the courts' action—have never been decided.

Mr. Beck said that Michigan's Governor, H. O. (Fritz) Fitzgerald, was unlikely to comment. University President Harlan Hatcher said in town.

Football Coach Bennie Sorenson said he wasn't well acquainted with the resolution, but he said he would comment publicly on the resolution.

Chairman of MSC's Athletic Council, Edgar Harden, said he didn't think the resolution would affect the NCAA's action. He said the Michigan State Board of Education was a resolution, or a matter of preference. In Illinois and some other states, the board took the form of bills that passed, would be blind-

Blames Nicaragua

MSC Student Is In-Law Of Costa Rican President

One student on the MSC campus is following the situation in Costa Rica with particular interest.

He's Richard H. Beck, New York City freshman, a brother-in-law of Costa Rica's president, Jose Figueres.

Beck revealed his relationship to President Figueres in a letter to the State News commenting on the "war." The letter is printed in full on today's editorial page.

Karen Olsen Beck, his sister, met Figueres when he was visiting New York and she was working for her M. A. degree in social science at Columbia University.

The couple was married last February in San Jose, Costa Rica's capital.

Beck got a leave from his Army duties to attend the wedding and get acquainted with his sister's new husband.

"When I saw the country," Beck said, "I was astounded at its great development." He has the highest admiration for "Pepé" Figueres and his liberal, democratic government in Costa Rica.

Beck blames the present trouble on Anastasio Somoza, dictator-president of Nicaragua. Somoza's actions, he feels, are due to "a great feeling of jealousy he shows toward Figueres. They're two opposite characters. One is terrible, the other idealistic."

What really burns him up, Beck said, are newspaper inferences that Costa Rica's government is undemocratic or Communist.

He pointed out that Figueres led a revolt against the pro-Communist government in 1948. "At that time, Pepe probably could have kept control of the government," he said, "but that was furthest from his mind."

The conflict can be worked out without bloodshed, Beck believes, adding that "it behooves us as the United States to take an interest in Costa Rica, because this country is going to be one of the leaders in Latin America in the race for a free world."

Beck is waiting for a letter from his sister telling him about the situation. A news report said she calmly washed dishes in government headquarters Thursday.

5-Nation Group Flies to Costa Rica

Will Decide Issue Of Invasion or Revolution

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — A U.S. Air Force plane rushed a five-nation commission here Thursday to investigate Costa Rica's three-day-old war.

The big question was whether this central American republic has been invaded, as its government charges, or faces a purely internal revolution, as neighboring Nicaragua contends.

Already the presence of American planes and the commission from the Organization of American States was having a pacifying effect.

There were no recurrences of air raids which developed Wednesday, or reports of military engagements.

On the northwestern front, Loyalist troops moved out from Liberia in an effort to engage an opposition force holding La Cruz, on the Inter-American Highway 35 miles to the northwest, and some villages in between. Col. Marcial Aguiluz, the Loyalist commander, reported he hoped to establish contact soon.

The staff command said the government "maintains control of all national territory except certain points of northern Guanacaste," the province of which Liberia is the capital.

The OAS asked for planes to make "a pacific observation" flights over Costa Rica and the United States agreed to supply them. Two U.S. Air Force planes arrived here and six Navy patrol planes stood by in the Panama Canal Zone for use if needed.

Foreign Minister Mario Esquivel expressed pleasure at the arrival of the commission, but added this was not what Costa Rica had asked of the Western Hemisphere organization.

He said Costa Rica had asked invocation of the Treaty of Rio de Janeiro, which provides for joint action if any American state is invaded. President Jose Figueres has charged that exiles and others had prepared an invasion of Costa Rica from Nicaragua. But See SHOOT, Page 3

Varied Entertainment

Cap and Gown Cloaks Culture

MSC students don't have to write home to mom and dad to tell them what goes on around campus. Often the parents seem to be more informed than the students about MSC and take an avid interest in all its activities.

One group which makes it possible for many Michigan residents to keep posted on MSC activities is the Cap and Gown Series. This series was started last year and is composed of the college band, men's glee club, a capella choir, symphony orchestra, string quartet, MSC Players, vocalists and vocal quartets.

During the year, these groups extend their talents throughout the state. Perhaps it's the MSC players performing on stage in your home town, or the Glee Club singing in the civic auditorium of some Upper Peninsula city. At any rate, they help to familiarize many Michigan communities with the college.

Besides providing cultural entertainment to many cities and towns, the series offers an opportunity for communities to raise funds for various local projects, said John McGoff, assistant director of alumni relations, co-ordinator of this project.

Bunyan's Bunions

Paul Has Been Dribbled From Court to Court

By GENE RITZINGER

My name's Paul. I'm a statue.

I'm only two years old, but I've had a rough life. I've been laughed at, snorted at, sneered at. I've been ignored and unappreciated.

And now, to top it all off, nobody knows where I am. I've been kidnapped.

But wait. Let me go back to the fall of 1953, and tell you my whole life story. My whole sad tale of woe.

Governor Williams was my daddy. He paid $1,400 for me, but he couldn't keep me. So, he decided to give me two sets of foster parents.

Michigan and Michigan State were the names of my two new sets of parents. Each year they were supposed to fight on the gridiron for my custody.

Michigan State was my first home, and I was pretty happy there. I lived in Jenison Gymnasium, and I had lots of friends. Every day, somebody would come in and look at me. I was appreciated. Well, most of the time, anyway.

Some people were nasty, though. Like the person who wrote a letter to the State News calling me "Soapy's Balsam Abortion." I didn't like that at all.

Then, last November I had to go live with my other parent, Michigan. I didn't like it at all down there. They put me in an old dressing room and just left me there. I was lonely and miserable. Nobody cared for me.

But then, last Monday, it happened. Somebody stole me! I was ripped off my pedestal and whisked away. It hurt my bunions a little, but who cared? I was wanted again.

I can't tell you where I am. It's a secret. Maybe I'll show up at the basketball game Saturday, and then, maybe I won't. Depends on my abductors.

I'll tell you one thing though. I'm sick of being bounced around and mishandled. I want to be respected. After all, I am a trophy. I think I deserve to be treated as such, and I'm taking my stand!

Autopsy Split On Death Cause

The body of a first-term MSC freshman who had been missing since Monday was found in a swamp near Saline, Mich., Thursday afternoon and an autopsy showed death was caused either by carbon monoxide poisoning or drowning.

He is Loren H. King, 22, of Ironwood, who registered at MSC for the first time only a week ago Monday and apparently became discouraged with school before driving off in his car.

Washtenaw County Sheriff's officers found the body in two feet of water at 3 p.m. Thursday and took it to Ann Arbor for the autopsy in the University of Michigan Hospital. They reported that there were no marks of violence.

Saline is approximately 10 miles south of Ann Arbor.

Vital organs were sent to East Lansing late Thursday night for further examination in the state laboratory. State police said that the results of that examination would not be available until today.

A brother, John Gordon King, a 24-year-old MSC junior who rooms at 325 Evergreen, said that Loren came to his room at 10 Monday morning and told him that he was "going for a ride to think about quitting school."

That was the last time John saw his brother.

Wednesday afternoon John reported his brother missing to the East Lansing police who sent out a state-wide bulletin with descriptions of Loren and his 1951 Hudson automobile.

Loren's car was found on a road near the swamp and this led to the discovery of the body. A farmer noticed the car Monday. He notified the sheriff's office Thursday when he noted the car apparently had been abandoned.

Officers immediately started a search in the swamp and found the body after discovering King's hand protruding from the water.

King was discharged from the Air Force in November after serving four years. He enrolled in the School of Engineering for winter term a week ago last Monday and attended classes Thursday and Friday.

He roomed with James McCormack, Portland senior, at 329 M.A.C. McCormack was not available for comment Thursday night.

Vital UN Mission

Dag's Efforts
Leave Some
Trace of Hope

"Hope springs eternal . . ."

Immortal words by an immortal author but small comfort to the family and friends of the 11 Americans recently sentenced to long prison terms by the Red Chinese.

With the restraint and grace of a civilized nation the United States turned its case over to the United Nations. Dag Hammerskjold, secretary general of that body, saw the justice of the U. S. position and willingly traveled to Red China to plead its cause and ask for the release of the men being held as spies as well as the release of an estimated 700 other Americans held by the Chinese or their Russian partners.

The results of Hammerskjold's mission are about what the U. S. had expected from the Peiping "Peoples Government."

At the conclusion of his talks with Chinese Premier Chou En Lai, Hammerskjold issued what was called a joint statement worded in the cloudy, meaningless terms the West has become so accustomed to hearing from the Reds.

"We feel that these talks have been useful."

It is generally felt that the UN Secretary General would not have allowed his name to be used in connection with a statement of that nature unless there were signs in the Chinese capital that the imprisoned fliers would be released.

But indications are that much more maneuvering and diplomatic bickering will take place before this happens.

Various means of forcing China to release the men have been suggested in this country—blockade, aggression, brute strength.

These things are more in keeping with the character of the Chinese and their Red masters than in the tradition of the United States.

The U. S. has a promise, vague but evident, of further action. It is far better to sit and bargain, maneuver, bicker and wait than to commit the lives of thousands of people in a conflict over the lives of 11 men as long as there is hope.

There will be time for action when China slams the door. Patience is often hard on pride but the end results are generally far more conclusive.

The Chinese have long been noted for patience. The United States may need a lot of it now.

Business Booms

Michigan Advances
'Remarkably' in '54

The Economic Development Commission reported that during 1954, Michigan's economic growth had advanced "remarkably." From all indications, economists will be able to use the term remarkable to describe Michigan's development for quite a few years to come.

Major factor in Michigan's welfare has been the automotive industry. Despite the industry's cutback in spending and reorganization, industrial development hasn't been slowed down.

Many small industries have been created throughout the state as a result of the auto plants. And the industrial giants themselves are building and expanding.

Another factor in Michigan's climb, pointed out by the commission, was expansion in the chemical industry and the electric power developments.

The forests, iron ore deposits and salts are the only natural resources that have been developed thoroughly, leaving a long way to advance in that direction.

The state, with four Great Lakes waterways, will be in an enviable position when the St. Lawrence Seaway is completed. In addition to the seaports that will grow, industry will be inclined to invest in Michigan because of cheaper transportation costs for the raw materials and finished products which will be offered by the waterway.

The commission noted three other "encouraging" signs during 1954. These were: During 1954, 15 firms announced expansion or relocation in Michigan communities, four state corporations moved parts of their manufacturing operations from other states to Michigan and plant locations within Michigan have been selected by four out-state corporations.

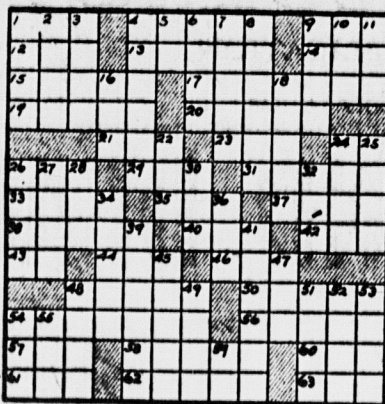

How much the state grows depends entirely on the residents, the governing officials that are elected on all levels and acceptance by the population of the new industries throughout the state.

If Michigan keeps advancing as it did in 1954, each coming year also will be called remarkable.

Proposed Draft Cut
Is Basically Sound

The big question mark for draft-age men—military service—loomed up again recently with the announcement of Administration plans for a large-scale draft cut in 1955.

As outlined by Secretary of Defense Wilson, the plan provides for a total reduction of 400,000 men in the armed forces during the next 18 months. The cut would bring total military strength down to about 2,800,000 men.

Beginning in February, draft calls will be slashed nearly in half. This will be continued at least through June, Secretary Wilson said.

The Army, Navy, and Marines will all suffer reductions. Only the Air Force will be maintained at its present size, testifying to the ever-growing importance of air power for national defense.

Since its introduction, the program has already raised some vigorous opposition, both in Congress and out. Many believe that the nation's military manpower is already smaller than it should be, and that a further cut would be an invitation for aggression.

While we can understand the opposition's doubts, we feel that the Defense Department's action is basically sound. It fits in with another Administration plan, announced last month, for renovating the military reserves.

Under the new proposal, which will probably be submitted to Congress sometime this month, the reserves will be greatly expanded and reactivated. At the same time, the Regular Army will consist of a greater proportion of career soldiers and long-term volunteers.

The shift in emphasis makes sense because of one important fact: the increasing complexity of modern warfare. As new weapons are introduced, they require a greater amount of skill and know-how from men who handle them. By the time today's draftee has been adequately trained in his job, his two years of service are almost gone.

If the reserve program was active and healthy, it would give ex-servicemen a chance to keep up their training, without depriving them of civilian life. At the present, however, most men soon drop out of active reserve duty, quickly losing the knowledge which the services spent two years giving them.

Through one of the new proposals, about 100,000 17-year-olds would be able to volunteer for six months of active duty, followed by 9½ years in the reserves. If they failed to keep up their reserve training after discharge, they would be subject to immediate drafting for an additional 18 months of active duty.

Come on Back, Get
The Rest of Trophy

To the Editor:

Many students and alumni here at the University of Michigan will be grateful if the "Operation Rescue" team will come back and steal the rest of Gov. William's monstrous Paul Bunyan trophy.

The trophy was never wanted here in Ann Arbor, and when offered originally by the honorable governor, was never officially accepted by our athletic staff or coaches.

To us it is symbolic of nothing except Soapy's sense of publicity. As a trophy representing victory in a football classic, it has no basic tradition to make it worthy of the great athletic rivalry between the two schools, nor does it do justice to the sportsman's ideal of playing the game for the pleasure of the playing.

If the "Operation Rescue" team wants the trophy so badly that they feel they must steal it rather than win it back, many of us here at Michigan say they are welcome to it.

As for us, it is petty larceny, and we only wish that the crew had done a neater job and cleaned out the whole monstrous hunk of timber.

We doubt seriously that it will ever stir either of our teams to deeds of any greater derring-do on the gridiron than they have perpetrated to date.

MSC Dismissed
Laughed Hastily

To the Editor:

This is in regard to paragraph nine of the editorial in favor of Dr. Laughhead's dismissal (Jan. 6). It stated that the institution is free to dismiss a man "if his statements reflect adversely on the institution."

Ten paragraphs were devoted to the assumptions that the institution would be made to look ridiculous, would be slurred, would drop in enrollment, and would be made a laughing stock if Dr. Laughhead had been retained.

I supposed that these were the adverse reflections. Since I am not a prophet and since I have no contact with outer space, I do not know if they would or would not have come true and I doubt if any State News editors know either.

In any case the evidence does not fit the premise. The premise said that the institution is free to dismiss a man "if his statements reflect adversely on the institution"—it did not say that the institution is free to dismiss a man "if the administration and some editors think that his statements will probably reflect adversely on the institution."

Dr. Laughhead should have been retained. Then if enrollment dropped, parents squawked, and ugly letters began to pour in from all over the nation—then he could have been justly dismissed according to the given premise.

10,000 Refugees
remain in Reich

There are 10,000 youths between the ages of 19 and 29 "away" today. The youths are among 100,000 remaining refugees in Germany, according to Charles Pearman-Wilson, Southern Germany office of the UN High Commission for Refugees.

Of these 250,000 refugees accepted in the United States for any other country being immigration laws, said Wilson Thursday night.

Informal discussion in Kelso.

According to Pearman-Wilson, group of youths is one of the most serious problems now confronting U.N. refugee work.

Of this condition is our "big" problem, he said. "Under a refugee law, refugees are supposed to work without loss of refugee privileges."

Refugees are supplied with housing, food, and pocket money, but they have no desire to work.

The youths have nothing to do so they get in mischief, Pearman-Wilson said. "They have criminal records and will not be accepted by any country for resettlement."

Of these are not criminals, Pearman-Wilson said. "They are just anti-social."

He said these people, most of whom are refugees from Germany, are a "big" problem.

Pearman-Wilson is a guest of the Michigan State News. He is working with the U.N. in New York since the end of World War II.

Senate Starts Move For Veteran Bonus

Morris Sponsors $80 Million
Resolution for Korean Services

LANSING (AP) — A resolution was filed in the senate today to start the machinery in motion for payment of an $80 million dollar Korean veterans bonus.

Sponsor was Sen. Carlisle R. Morris (R-Kalamazoo), who has been working with military agencies to iron out details for the payment of the bonus.

Voters approved the bonus at the Nov. 2 election but left details of the payment up to the legislature.

The adjutant general's office, which will handle the bonus payments, said applications probably could be accepted starting late in February if the legislature acts speedily.

Other bills filed would: Give Oakland county four circuit judges instead of the present three.

Prohibit the state to go into bonded debt except in time of war or insurrection except by a two-thirds vote of the legislature and a majority vote of the people.

Make all legislative acts effective immediately on passage instead of the present 90-day wait required unless the legislature rich, said that King didn't say much about school but that he did mention how tough it was getting back to studies after four years in service. He was graduated from Ironwood High School in 1950.

"He wasn't any talker at all," Mrs. Aldrich said. She said she hadn't seen him since Sunday night.

John King said that Loren had planned to go to school for a year before being discharged and that they had talked about it a lot during Christmas vacation.

They drove to East Lansing together in Loren's car for the start of winter term.

East Lansing police notified John of his brother's death at 5:30 Thursday afternoon and he called his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Lay H. King, in Ironwood.

John said he would leave for Ann Arbor at 8 this morning to make arrangements to send the body to Ironwood for the funeral.

Four other brothers, aged 20, 28, 32 and 34, survive Loren.

that northern neighbor rejected the accusation, saying Costa Rica was undergoing internal revolution.

One of the tasks of the commission is to send in a report which would guide the council of the OAS on any action under the Rio treaty.

Luis Quintanilla, Mexican chairman of the five-nation commission, said the committee would set about at once on its task of obtaining the facts in the tense Costa Rican situation.

There was a brief flurry of excitement when a nervous airport guard fired a single shot at a U. S. transport plane which arrived ahead of the commission. The shot did no damage.

Members of the commission in addition to Quintanilla are John Dreier of the United States, Francisco Enciso Velloso of Paraguay, Jose Chiriboga of Ecuador and Fernando Lobo of Brazil.

An underlying factor in the ill feeling between Costa Rica and Nicaragua is the long time personal enmity of Figueres and President Anastasio Somoza of Nicaragua.

Wednesday Somoza challenged Figueres to a duel and the latter said today of his political enemy:

"He's crazier than a goat in the midsummer sun."

There was little news of military activity.

The Civil Guard command, head of the national police which is Costa Rica's only military force, announced the capture of Carlos Lara Hine and identified him as a leader who began the uprising at Villa Quesada on Tuesday that set off the warfare.

There was no air of great excitement in San Jose, where the wife of the President was setting an example for calmness. Mrs. Figueres showed up in the kitchen of the general staff headquarters Wednesday night and washed the dishes.

Radio listeners in El Salvador said they heard a radio identifying itself as "the voice of the authentic anti-Communist revolutionary army" of Costa Rica predicting victory soon against what it called "the mercenary Communist forces" of President Figueres.

It claimed the opposition had won control of all Costa Rican airports. It could not be determined whether the station operated on Costa Rican soil.

Harrison Sidelined by Bad Leg

Crippled Matmen Face Indiana

By JIM JOHNSTON

Injuries continued to play havoc with Coach Forddy Collins' matmen as the grapplers prepared for tonight's match with Indiana.

In practicing for the Hoosier encounter, Brian Harrison, Spartan heavyweight, sprained the ligaments in his right leg and as a result, will be sidelined for the remainder of the season. Already on the injury list are Bill Tambo, wins and two losses. Their losses were at the hands of powerful Iowa, 24-5, and Illinois, 14-12.

Facing MSC's attack will be Bob Gunner, who was State's only victor in last week's meet with Pittsburgh. Gunner, winner of Chicago's 120-pound City Open title as a prep, will tangle with Indiana's Robert Burns.

The Hoosier's will be lead by Howard Fisher, who has yet to be beaten this year in the 137-pound division. He was Indiana's only winner in their loss to Iowa. Opposing him will be Bob Richardson, who is appearing in his first varsity meet for MSC.

Again this week the spotlight will fall on MSC's Dick Abraham. Battling with him in the 177-pound division will be the rugged Dick Anthony.

Anthony was second in the Big 10 meet last year losing out in the final to Purdue's Amel Senol. His over-all 1954 season record was an impressive 9-1. This year he is undefeated in six bouts.

Opening the meet will be MSC's Don Phillips, when he faces the elusive Manuel Phakis. Phillips, who last year was held to a 3-3 draw by Phakis, will be out to show who's boss of the 123-pound division.

Constantly piling up points this year for the Hoosier's has been Jim Bose.

BOB GUNNER ... only winner ...

...ace 157-pounder, and Dick Hoke at 123-pounds.

The loss of Harrison leaves Collins with no choice but to forfeit tonight's heavyweight match.

However the rest of the team is in top physical shape and will be trying to extend their victory string over Indiana to three straight.

The Hoosier's have managed to beat the Spartan's only once in their last seven encounters. The lone win came in 1952 when they edged MSC, 14-12.

The Hoosier's so far this year have compiled a record of four

His record this season is 4-1. He will have his hands full when he battles Norm Gill, who last week put on a display of elusive wrestling before being edged out by Pitt's Bob Cook, 9-5.

Michigan State's blind wrestler, Ted Lennox, will oppose Jerry Grummell to round out the pairings for the meet. Grummell carries a 2-4 record going into tonight's meet.

The match will get underway at 8 this evening in Jenison Fieldhouse.

Programs will be free, and admission can be obtained by showing ID cards.

Final registration day for IM basketball brought the total to 26 teams in the fraternity league, 45 in the dormitory league, while the independent race drew a total of 55 contenders.

The IM Open Basketball League may not function this season due to lack of entries. To date only two teams have registered.

Thursday also ended registration in the dorm bowling league, with 38 squads entered.

IM Chairman Frank Beeman has designated Tuesday and Wednesday between 7:30 and 8:30 p.m. as bowling league nights. The complete schedule will be posted later.

All next week entries will be accepted in the all-college singles badminton tourney. Any individual may enter at the IM office in Jenison.

Beeman announced that post cards will be sent to all entries the week before the opening matches. The cards will contain the name and phone number of the first opponent.

After the opening match, winners are asked to contact their opponents according to the play-off diagram.

New Plays, Patterns

Frosh Cagers Busy Learning

While the varsity is well along into their schedule State's freshmen cagers are also busy learning with their practice sessions.

Having started practice way back on Oct. 4, the frosh cagers have been busy learning the skills which they will need if they are to eventually join the varsity.

Under the tutelage of Bob Stevens, the frosh have been working primarily on offensive patterns and general fundamentals. This week they are starting to work on defense.

Besides learning the varsity's style of play, it is the job of the freshmen, along with the JV squad, to set up the pattern of play which State's opponents will use each week.

Stevens checks the scouting reports and has the squad practice the opponent's setup and then scrimmage the varsity.

This helps the varsity become better acquainted with each rival's play patterns.

Several members of the freshmen squad are former all state selections during their senior year in high school.

Brian Gooch was an all-Michigan, Class B selection and, also, a Detroit Free Press all state selection. Ron Klingehoffer starred on the Indiana All Star team which faced Kentucky. Another excellent prospect is Max Gonzenbach who stands 6'8" and hails from Milbanks, South Dakota.

The freshmen squad plays its games prior to each varsity game, beginning at 6:15. Saturday, they will face an independent team from the campus.

School Plans Delayed

Williams' Highway Plan Draws Republican Fire

LANSING (AP)—Gov. Williams' message to the Legislature got a cool reception Thursday from Republican leaders.

Williams presented a generalized set of recommendations. The main one was his proposal for a $500 million dollar highway construction bond issue.

The governor said he had developed a plan to aid schools, but would not reveal it until later.

On his highway bond issue plan, Williams clung to his earlier position that it would not require any increase in highway taxes.

It was this which drew the fire of Republican chiefs.

Speaker of the house Wade Van

Valkenburg (R-Kalamazoo) said "apparently his highway program is being offered very largely to save face, without too many details about how bonds will be paid. I would say it is extremely doubtful that the house will pass his highway program."

Sen. Creighton R. Coleman (R-Battle Creek), the majority floor leader in the senate, said Williams "program of 'paving now and paying after I leave' is political chicanery of the worst sort. The only honest way is to go to the public with a financing program in the bond issue."

Coleman said the message indicated the Governor will recommend an unbalanced budget and noted that Williams made no reference to more taxes to make up the anticipated deficit.

Williams avoided the question of new taxes—which many in state government predict—and said the complications of drawing the new budget would delay his fiscal recommendations.

Williams made his biggest drive for a half-billion dollar bond issue to build more highways.

Saying he did not think gasoline taxes ought to be increased, Williams turned aside the question of financing the bond issue by saying:

"I urge you to set aside the controversial long-range questions which need not be answered now—and to consider this proposal as the simple matter it really is—a proposal to buy some of the roads we most acutely need, on the installment plan, out of future revenue from existing sources."

Williams said also:

"Some have argued that we will need additional taxes after the bond issue funds have been expended. Perhaps so. But there are variables which make it unwise to attempt to settle that question now."

"It is estimated that five years from now, if traffic increases occur as anticipated, our present gas and weight taxes revenues will be $5 million dollars higher than they are today. We are not in position to know, at this time, how much we may profit from projected federal highway aids."

"That is a bridge we can cross when we come to it, if we ever come to it—and I hope we never do."

Williams said the primary school enrollment of Michigan is increasing 60,000 to 70,000 a year and college enrollments 6,500 a year.

He said he had evolved a proposition of such magnitude that it is not possible to discuss it in detail and present his recommendations in a later message.

The Governor said he would return later also with a message on increasing unemployment compensation, but he advocated generally uniform benefits for all idle workers, more than the present 26 weeks maximum duration. He asked for coverage for all employees of one or more employees, now eight employees, and removal of so-called disqualification provisions in the law.

By combining the offerings of these two stations, a greater variety of programs will be telecast, including both national network programs and educational presentations.

WKAR-TV has requested the change from UHF Channel 60 to VHF channel 10 because it would result in an increase of audience availability, said Dr. A. L. Hunter, director of the station.

FCC Official To Hear TV Channel Bid

The application submitted by WKAR-TV for the rights to VHF channel 10 will be reviewed today at a preliminary hearing before a Federal Communications Commission examiner.

The petitions of four television stations in this area will be presented at this meeting, which is being held in Washington, D. C. Descriptions and program examples will be exhibited by lawyers representing each of the stations.

Another meeting of the FCC has been tentatively scheduled for Jan. 24 for further examination of the four applications.

If MSC's television station is granted the rights to the VHF channel, a share-time plan with the Television Corporation of Michigan will go into effect.

Firemen Save 2-Year-Old Tot

Prompt action by the East Lansing Fire Department and attendants at Edward W. Sparrow Hospital prevented serious injury to a two-year-old East Lansing girl Wednesday afternoon.

Michelle Ried, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Ried, 130 Linden, swallowed some drain cleaner at about 2 p.m. A few minutes later, she was rushed to the hospital where a stomach pump was administered.

The only apparent effects, according to East Lansing firemen, were slight burns about the lips and mouth.

Applications must be mailed to the Princeton Office not later than 10 days prior to the testing date chosen, Dr. Dressel advised.

Calls Talks With Reds 'First Stage'

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—U. N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld returned Thursday night from Peiping and what he called the "first stage" of his efforts for release of 11 American airmen jailed as spies in Red China.

He indicated the door is open to further contact and called for restraint on all sides.

The U. N. administrative chief landed at Idlewild Airport at 6:03 p.m. EST to end a two-week, round-the-world flight on behalf of the American fliers.

He issued the following statement as he stepped off the plane:

"My visit to Peiping was a first step in my efforts to release the 11 American fliers and the other United Nations Command personnel still detained. I feel that my talks with Mr. Chou En-lai, premier-foreign minister of Red China, were definitely useful for this purpose. We hope to be able to continue our contacts. The door that has been opened can be kept open given restraint on all sides."

In addition to seeing delegates, Hammarskjöld will hold an "on the record" news conference at 9 a.m. EST today.

Proposed Draft

The present draft and volunteer system for two-year periods would be continued. Pay for reserve training would be increased, and other legislation might be used to get greater participation in the reserves.

Dismissing fears for the nation's safety, President Eisenhower has said that chances of a global war are less now than they have been for several years.

How it would affect the future plans of college men, particularly those in advanced ROTC, it is still too early to say. It will still be up to all young men to look carefully at the situation, and decide what course of action will be best for them.
