General Services
Conducted Sunday

Death of Loren H. 22-year-old MSC freshman in a snow-covered car near Saline, was accidental Friday by coroner.

Body was found by county police officers Thursday. He had been missing since last Monday.

When he was found, he had been inhaling carbon monoxide from a faulty exhaust while he was driving. He stopped the car to walk down the road. He apparently fell into the shallow water.

Had more than $100 in his pocket. His watch was on, but it was not working.

He had been in the car for four years in the past. He had just enrolled in his first term at State.

He was a junior, and was dissatisfied with his grades. He planned to return to his home in Ironwood.

His family told his death was a tragedy. It was a sad accident. A cousin in the car was returning home when the accident happened.

Still Among Missing

Paul Fails to Keep 'Date' At Basketball Game

Paul Bunyan, the slippery statue, is still among the missing.

Paul failed to show up at Saturday's MSC-U of M basketball game in spite of a prediction by the Michigan Daily, U of M student newspaper, that he would be there.

The missing statue was thought at first to have been stolen from its home in a dressing room under the Michigan Stadium by MSC students.

The Daily said Friday, however, that it had learned the statue was taken by "prominent Michigan students." The paper said the statue was hidden in the home of a Michigan undergraduate in "Lansing or East Lansing."

The paper also quoted U of M officials as having said "little disciplinary action" will be taken. It also offered to receive the statue on a no-questions-asked basis, but so far there have been no takers.

An anonymous phone call to The State News Thursday said the statue would show up Saturday night.

Campus police said Sunday they have no information regarding Paul's whereabouts.

Group to Pick Candidate for Big 10 Contest

MSC to Seek Third Straight Win

MSC's Blue Key chapter will be shooting for a third straight selection of a Miss Big 10 on Sunday.

They'll select a Miss Michigan State at a meeting Sunday with queens of the past year's all-college events.

In both previous Big 10 contests, MSC coeds have been chosen for the top honors—Jan Somers in 1954 and Dee Means in 1953.

Under the honorary fraternity's bylaws, candidates for the "queen of queens" honor must meet one of two criteria.

They must be crowned at an all-college event after being named through nominations open to all coeds' living units.

Or they must represent one of the men's living unit associations: InterDorm Council, InterFraternity Council or the men's Inter-Coop Council.

The Big 10 queen will be announced Feb. 5, during the inauguration of MSC's J-Hop. The two previous contests were held at Northwestern.

The Army's honorary colonel, Miss Somers, is not eligible because contest rules bar previous winners from entering.

Chess Tourney Starts Thursday

Entries will open at the YMCA Thursday for the 1955 Lansing Chess Tournament, a six round Swiss event scheduled there for six Thursday evenings beginning Jan. 20. Entry deadline will be 7 p.m.

In the tournament, open to everyone in the area, Edgar Snelgers, city champion the past several years, will defend his title.

Cagers Invade Bloomington To Face Sagging Hoosiers

Ordinance Fight Denied By Hurst

Calls 'Anti-Bias' Rule Unworkable

Student Government President Bill Hurst denied Sunday there was any "five-year-old battle" raging in the Student Congress over the so-called "discrimination ordinance," as was reported Friday.

Hurst said he proposed at the last meeting of Congress the controversial ordinance be changed because "parts of it are completely unworkable and other parts are unconstitutional."

He recommended the ordinance be amended or revised "for next year's president will face an almost impossible task."

The controversial ordinance, passed by the Student Congress in 1951, states in part "All campus organizations and living units which have national and or local constitutional structures which contain discriminatory clauses which limit or prohibit membership because of race or religion, must eliminate such clauses by Oct. 15, 1956 as a condition of recognition by MSC."

The ruling did not apply to religious groups. It was aimed chiefly at fraternities and sororities, and these groups were given five years to have their national constitutions revised to comply with the MSC ruling.

Hurst said the ordinance as it now stands is unenforceable, and should be changed. He said the student government does not have the constitutional power to revoke fraternity or sorority charters.

Hurst has scheduled a meeting Tuesday with Interfraternity Council president Curt Lockholder and PanHellen president Judy Strong to discuss the matter.

Lockholder was not available last night for comment. Miss Strong said she would not make any statement concerning the proposal until she had a chance to look into it more thoroughly.

January Spartan To Go on Sale

Sales of the January issue of the Spartan magazine start today, at stands in Berkey, Union and Natural Science Building.

Men students can get some hints from the story of "How Tommy Traddles Won His J-Hop Date." A boy who has been around is the main character in "Elroy Comes to College," by Clarence Peterson. Also included is a feature on the original paintings done for the Centennial Wolverine.

Rounding out the issue are three pages of Kleptomania, and Sparty Pix.

Hectic Night

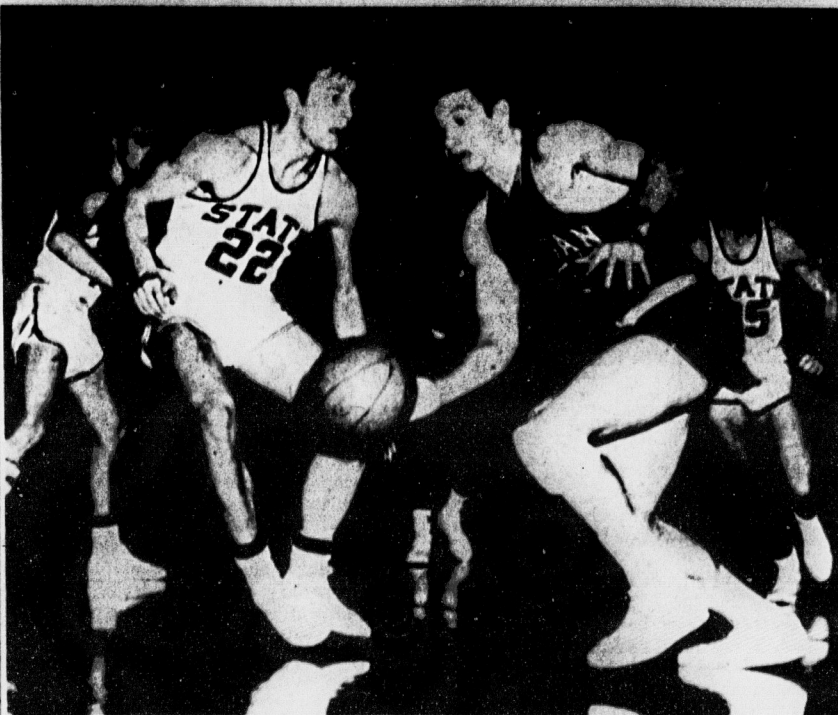

It Was a Mighty Chilly J-Hop Back in 1912

By MYRA MACPHERSON
Borrowing your roommate's cuff links, getting a car, a date, and tickets are just a few of the minor arrangements MSC males will have to make before the big dance is hectic, you should have been an undergrad here in 1912. That year, J-Hop dates wound up the evening with very chilly "good nights."

It was Feb. 24, and one of Lansing's worst snow storms was fast turning into a blizzard which blocked all street cars, trains, and traffic.

Spartans heading for the J-Hop, then held at Lansing's Masonic Temple, decided sleighs would be the best way to get there. Just outside the city limits, sleighs broke down and the gowned, high-heeled coeds and their dates trekked through the snow to the dance. Incidentally, the dance lasted all night because the group was snowed in.

MSC has had J-Hops since 1905 with few such tragic mishaps. During the second world war, J-Hops were discontinued for two years because wartime enrollment made it inadvisable.

Costa Rican Fighting Breaks Out Again

Possible Decisive Battle Expected Within 24 Hours

SAN JOSE, Costa Rica (AP) — Fighting broke out again Sunday between government forces and rebels near Santa Rosa in northwestern Costa Rica, where the possibility of a decisive battle within the next 24 hours was shaping up.

The renewed fighting in the northwest, only front in the five-day old revolt, came less than 24 hours after government forces estimated unofficially at about 1,000, had claimed victory in a major skirmish.

President Jose Figueres, an old-time fighter in Costa Rica's wars, was under rebel bombardment Saturday night and again Sunday in the war area near Liberia, about 20 miles southeast of Santa Rosa. Reports from the front said the President had to seek cover quickly when two dud shells nearby.

A communique said three persons were killed, Oscar Cordeiro, correspondent for the San Jose newspaper La Prensa Libre, and two soldiers.

Six foreign correspondents covering the fighting in Costa Rica returned safely to government units after failing to return to a base in Liberia last night, the U. S. ambassador said.

The radio identified them as Time magazine correspondent Phil Payne, George Skadding, Life magazine photographer, United Press photographer John Abney, Antonio Llano Montes of Diario Nacional, Havana, Cuba, Jose

Garcia of Cine Periodico and CMQ radio station of Havana, Cuba, and Paul Sanchez of NBC-TV.

The renewed fighting broke out as the organization of American states, Council in Washington moved in a precedent-shattering all-night session to help speed the sale of four U.S. P-51 fighter planes to Figueres' anti-weak forces. The U.S. State Department later said the planes were ordered to hurry from Brooks Field at San Antonio, Tex., to San Jose where they were expected to land Monday morning.

President Anastasio Somoza said the United States and the Organization of American States made a "big mistake" sending five planes to Costa Rica.

In an interview he said he was urgently asking Washington to fly an equal number of planes to Nicaragua.

After Saturday night's fighting, the general staff said the situation in the Santa Rosa area, where between 200 and 300 rebels were reported routed, was "definitely in our favor." Col. Marcel Aguilar, government commander in the fighting zone, said his troops "fought valiantly with splendid morale."

Slim Majority Favors Spring Term Banquet

Senior Vote Split On New Activity

A hair-line majority favoring a senior banquet for spring term was announced Sunday by Bill Thistle. But further approval is still needed.

Ballots handed out during winter term registration drew 1,355 senior votes, with 690 favoring a banquet and 665 opposing it.

Thistle said the Senior Council will meet Tuesday to decide whether or not to go through with the banquet.

Tentatively scheduled for Senior Week, the banquet would be held in Kellogg Center in the midst of many other senior activities.

Thistle said that the banquet would cost about $2.50 per person instead of the $1.25 quoted on the ballot. He called the lower figure an "understatement."

Passing by a convincing majority on the same ballot was a proposal to initiate a "Great Issues of the Day" course for seniors during spring term.

Of the 1,370 voting, 989 favored the course with 381 in opposition.

Final council approval on the course is almost certain, Thistle predicted.

The "Great Issues" course would be offered for one credit and would be held one hour each week.

Spartans Tied for 4th Place

Peterson to Resume Duel With Schlundt

With their most enjoyable win of the year behind them, Michigan State's basketball team is in Bloomington to tangle with the Hoosiers of Indiana tonight at 8:30.

The Spartans will be trying to break a seven-year losing streak at the hands of the Hoosiers.

Indiana has beaten the Spartans 11 times in 12 meetings, the lone MSC win coming seven long years ago.

Although they still have All-American center Don Schlundt, the Hoosiers have been having their troubles. They have a poor 3-11 mark and are residing in the Big 10 cellar with a 1-3 mark.

The Spartans vaulted into a tie for fourth place with Michigan and Northwestern following their 84-82 win over the Wolverines Saturday.

The Hoosiers are expected to start Jim Barley and Wally Chodura.

ree at the forward spots, Schlundt at center and Burke Scott and Charley Hodson at the guard slots.

Spartan fans will remember Scott as the Hoosier who sank a jump shot with three seconds left, to beat MSC, 63-61, last year at Jensen Fieldhouse.

Schlundt continues to rank among the leading scorers in the conference but he isn't getting the help from his teammates that he got last year.

The Hoosiers are also weak in the rebounding department. They have a relatively short team, with Schlundt the only man over 6'5" among its regulars.

The game will probably develop into a continuation of the Schlundt-Dan Peterson rivalry that has marked their high school and college careers.

Peterson, the Spartan's high scoring center, bested Schlundt in an Indiana high school championship game and twice last year made the big Hoosier center look bad.

In last year's close loss at home, Peterson scored 15 points while holding Schlundt to well under his normal scoring pace.

Peterson was one of the stars of Saturday's win over Michigan, coming off the bench to score 24 points.

It was the third straight game that the Elkhart junior didn't start but scored more than 15 points.

The Spartans fell behind 8-0 at the start of the game, and it took them until halfway through the last half to go ahead.

After they got a small lead, the lead changed hands four times before the Spartans scored eight straight points to gain a seven point lead.

They then squashed a Wolverine rally by throwing up an impenetrable freeze for the whole last minute.

Al Ferrari was the night's high scorer with 27 points, followed by Peterson's 24.

Council Should Forget Banquet

It's going to be a rough decision for members of the Senior Council when they meet Tuesday to decide whether or not to sponsor a Senior Banquet during spring term.

A vote taken during registration drew 1,355 ballots, with 690 students showing interest and 655 others taking time to record their opposition to such a banquet.

Inadequate phrasing of the question didn't help the banquet cause, either:

Are you interested in a Senior Banquet costing about $1.25 per person during the spring term?" it asked.

Therefore, a senior could conceivably take the question to mean three different things:

1. The class treasury could stand the banquet cost and the council wanted to get approval to use class funds.
2. If the measure passed, each senior would be assessed $1.25 whether he liked it or not, as per the student government tax.
3. If the banquet would be approved, seniors would be free to attend by paying $1.25.

The latter idea, an optional banquet, is the one that the ballot was supposed to get across. But many seniors rambled in a "no" the minute they saw the $1.25 mentioned, especially when the word "optional" wasn't there to explain the plan.

To make things more difficult, class officers found that the $1.25 figure was a vast understatement. Now it seems like $2.50 per head would be more like it for a supper banquet in Kellogg Center.

Possibly, some seniors who favored a banquet at $1.25 thought the class treasury would incur part of the cost burden. These seniors probably wouldn't have given their assent to a $2.50 price.

Under present circumstances, then, the council cannot consider all of the "yes" votes, as actually giving approval since the price has gone up.

Even disregarding the entire ballot mix-up, we would advise the council to forget about a senior banquet.

Initial plans call for it to be held during Senior Week, already crowded with events such as Swingout, Lantern Night and Senior Reception.

We don't think the average senior wants any more activities during his last few days at MSC.

Besides, class officers say that Kellogg Center has set a 600-person limit on such a banquet. That would exclude about 80 per cent of the graduating seniors—even if they did want to attend.

Then it wouldn't be a "senior banquet," but a banquet for the first 600 seniors who could and would pay $2.50.

Little Man On Campus

"Sometimes I question the reliability of these vocational aptitude tests."

More Later, He Says

Williams' Message Has Few Specifics

This is the season for messages—the President's annual on The State of the Union, the President's military manpower and the Governor's Message to the Legislature.

Gov. G. Mennen Williams' message was received, as was to be expected, with mixed emotions.

It dealt mainly in generalities, with the governor promising more specific messages on particular problems later on. The Governor was specific only about Michigan highways, or rather the lack of enough of them.

On this score he proposed to build today with money to be collected during the coming years, rather than waiting until the money is collected.

Democrats generally agreed with this notion. Republicans did not.

There were the usual shades of Republican opinion ranging from Sen. Carlton Morris' comment that Williams had replaced his old slogan "Build Michigan" with "Mortgage Michigan" to Sen. Harry Hittle's comment that he thought the program was constructive and forward looking except that the state should go a little slower in bonding itself into debt.

All in all it was a message that, except for the highway proposal, one could hardly find real fault with. The words will really start to fly when Williams starts sending the promised "more specific" messages to the Republican-controlled legislature.

Republicans may suddenly decide to go along with a Williams-sponsored program for Michigan. But such a decision would be a surprise, to say the very least.

Atom Experts To Plan World Peace Agency

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Scientists from eight countries assembled here Sunday for a series of conferences to help set up a world congress for peace.

Ranking U.S., British and Soviet scientists were in the group, whose job is to advise U.N. Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld where and when the Congress should be held, what countries should be invited to send scientists, and what they should discuss.

The Congress is authorized by the unanimous General Assembly Resolution adopted in December which also endorsed President Eisenhower's atom-for-peace plan first advanced here Dec. 8, 1953.

The United States and seven other countries are proceeding separately to set up an international peace-atoms agency and the United States is also negotiating separately with the Soviet Union to join. The seven countries are Australia, Belgium, Canada, France, South Africa, Britain and Portugal.

Dr. Isidor I. Rabi, who helped build the first U.S. atom bomb and is now an advisor of the U.S. Atomic Energy Commission, is the U.S. delegate to the closed sessions with Hammarskjöld, who will make all final decisions about the Congress.

Rabi said he met briefly Saturday for the first time Dmitri V. Skobeltsyn, considered Russia's top atom expert.

Senate May Tighten Floor Debate Rules

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate rules, which Sen. McCarthy (R-Wis.) was accused of violating twice during floor debate last Friday, may be in for a little tougher enforcement.

Although there was no evidence of concerted action, several senators said they will back up the public assertion of Sen. Kuchel (R-Calif.) that he, for one, intends to see to it that "debate is conducted in accordance with the rules of decency."

Sen. Knowland of California, the Republican leader, said he expects stricter enforcement of the rules, and Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) said he does too. Sen. Mundt (R-SD.), who voted with Knowland against condemning McCarthy last Dec. 2 for unbecoming conduct, said he hopes the rules will be applied impartially.

In the past, the Senate has not often enforced its Rule 19 which says that in debate no member shall "directly or indirectly, by any form of words impute to another senator or to other senators any conduct or motive unworthy or unbecoming to a senator."

Sen. Long (D-La.), presiding in the absence of Vice President Nixon Friday, ordered McCarthy to take his seat when Long said the Wisconsin senator had implied "insincerity" on the part of colleagues who signed an anti-Communist resolution, and again when McCarthy said they were trying "to remove the stench from their hands and the mud from their skirts."

Marcia A. Eastman, choreographer for the musical, will be a special judge of the tryouts along with those general musical tryout judges. Eight men and eight women are needed.

A "bouncing, bubbling, rag-time playing personality" is being sought for the part of "Ragtime Annie," the "wild" gay-nineties piano player, according to Lewin Goff of the speech department.

Callbacks of people auditioned last week for the musical will be held Tuesday.

There were about 12,000 students in U.S. colleges in 1859 and about two million in 1959.
