Michigan State will be heard from this year as the college celebrates its 100th birthday. The Centennial will be publicized by the special stamp issued to MSC and Penn State in honor of founding in 1855.

Only the third to be issued to a college or university, will be distributed for the first time in East Lansing on Feb. 12.

Publications will present special photo-features on MSC and its celebration. The Michigan Law Journal, Michigan Educational Journal, the American Magazine, and possibly Harpers and Coronet, will be distributed to their readers.

Newspapers, including the New York Times, New Herald-Tribune, and the Chicago Tribune, have agreed to publish special articles.

Week editorials honoring the college were printed in the New York Times, Better Farming and the Feb. 5 issue of the Evening Post.

East Lansing papers also have noted the Centennial with articles.

Information Services has selected 68 U.S. newspapers to publish special news bureau Centennial releases.

Michigan State and national press, radio, and TV representatives will cover the Founders' Day ceremonies. The college history, "Michigan State—the First 100 Years," by college historian Madison Kuhn, will be published by the MSC Press.

The book includes 48 pages of rotogravure illustrations and more than 100 pages of accompanying text.

Through all Centennial activities will be the slogan "This is for the living . . . to be dedicated here to the state work," from Lincoln's Gettysburg Address.

Michigan, contributed by Prof. H. J. Stafseth, director of the Department of Biological Science, will be inscribed on a special paperweight, to be presented to about 2,000 special guests during the Centennial year.

Medallions show the first college building, Old College, which was located at the site of Beaumont Town, and the tower, to symbolize the 100-year growth of the school.

Michigan State College Centennial, 1855-1955, will be on the paperweights, with the slogan on the reverse side.

Medallions are three inches wide, and a half-inch high. The slogan has been printed on all MSC stationery, and will be used in other decorations during the year.

Michigan State will pay official recognition to the college by a joint resolution introduced into the legislature last night by Rep. John J. McCune (R-East Lansing). The resolution cites MSC as the first agricultural college in the United States, based upon "a then new concept that education should be limited solely to the classics and the professions, but be made available to those engaged in agricultural pursuits."

Official recognition is asked for the State Board of Agriculture, MSC governing body; Pres. John A. Hannah and past presidents of the college, and the faculty.

Passed, copies of the resolution will be presented to Hannah, faculty members, and U.S. Senators and Representatives from Michigan.

Michigan car will pay tribute to MSC during the Centennial year.

1955 license plates are green and white, in honor of the college celebration. East Lansing police have joined school spirit, by painting patrol cars with the MSC logo.

Michigan schools and parks will plant more than 2,500 pine trees this spring, as a gift of MSC. The 18-month-old trees will be distributed under the direction of the MSC.

Red Bombers Halt Raids on Tachens

Diplomats Keep Up on Cease-Fire

Result May Be
'Unwritten' Pact

LONDON (AP)—A flurry of diplomatic activity here raised guarded hopes Wednesday night that Red China will accept an "unwritten" cease-fire in the Formosa Strait.

A day of urgent exchanges between Prime Ministers Churchill of Britain, Nehru of India and other ranking statesmen brought these developments.

Informants said Red China's envoy in London, Huan Hsiang, delivered a secret message to Nehru from Mao Tse-tung's Chinese government about cease-fire moves.

Later, well-informed diplomats said there was strong indication Peiping would go along with an informal cease-fire if Nationalist China surrenders the offshore islands—Matsu, Quemoy and the Tachens.

The Indonesian ambassador in London, Prof. Baden Supomo, in a private meeting with Nehru, suggested that the five Colombo powers mediate in Formosa if peace moves by the U.N. Security Council fail.

Meanwhile Red China's propaganda indicated Mao was casting about for a face-saving way of sending a delegation to the Security Council to discuss Formosa.

Only last week Peiping said a cease-fire proposal would be "absolutely unacceptable." But Mao's radio repeatedly reported the Soviet U.N. resolution inviting Red China to New York to talk about American "acts of aggression" in the Formosa Strait.

The feeling was general in diplomatic circles here that Red China was getting ready to talk before the Security Council about America's role. In discussing that, the Chinese Reds would have to talk about cease-fire.

Red China's acceptance of the U.N. invitation would lessen tensions, informants noted.

Diplomats of many nations here were privately pessimistic about the Security Council's chances of arranging a formal cease-fire agreement. But there were hopes that an informal, unwritten agreement to quit shooting would grow out of the talks.

Prime ministers of the British Commonwealth in session here already have plumped for a Chinese Nationalist withdrawal from the offshore islands as part of a cease-fire deal.

Three hotel administration students from Cornell University will arrive at MSC this week for a two-day tour of the campus and the department of hotel, restaurant, and general institutional management.

On March 3, MSC hotel students Don Harden, East Lansing junior, Alan Terrill, East Lansing senior, and Walter Luecke, Stan-dish senior, will make a similar trip to Cornell at Ithaca, N. Y. This is the first exchange trip of this type made between the two schools.

Bill Asks Anti-Bias Law Repeal

Present Ordinance
Said 'Unworkable'

By JERRY JENNINGS
Student Congress got its first look Wednesday night at a bill to repeal the present anti-discrimination ordinance.

No action was taken on the repeal bill, introduced by Congressman Don Hadden. It was referred to the Congress Business and Student Affairs Committee for further study.

Besides removing the present ordinance, the bill would establish a Congressional committee to propose "a constructive program for doing away with discriminatory clauses in the constitutional structures of campus living units."

The bill is a result of recommendations made by government President Bill Hurst, who assailed the anti-discrimination ordinance as "unworkable." Remarking that "You can't legislate brotherhood," he suggested seeking a solution to the problem through education.

In line with the proposal was another bill introduced by Hadden, and referred to the Finance Committee.

I would appropriate approximately $110 from the Student Fund to send Hurst to the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, March 25, for a conference on "Selectivity and Discrimination in American Universities."

Earlier in the meeting, Prof. Milton B. Dickerson, head of the Student-Faculty Motor Vehicle Committee, explained the Committee's aims and policies to Congress.

Giving reasons for the recent rules change which prohibits 2-6 a.m. parking in lots C, D, and F on South Campus, Dickerson said it was done to discourage storage parking in those areas and to allow daytime visitors to have more room to park. At its last meeting, Congress asked the Motor Vehicle Committee to reconsider the new ruling.

Dickerson concluded by telling Congress that the Committee is working for a resolution which would allow student parking anywhere on campus after 6 p.m. "We have high hopes it will go through," he said.

U. S. Veto Seen on Chiang Plea

Aid for Quemoy
Apparently Denied

By JOHN M. HIGHTOWER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States reportedly is turning down a request from Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek for firm, public guarantees that this country will fight Red China if necessary to keep the Quemoy and Matsu Islands in Chinese Nationalist hands.

A rejection was indicated by everything President Eisenhower said on Formosa policy at his news conference Wednesday. Inquiry in official quarters brought the information that Chiang's plea, reported from Taipei earlier this week, would not be granted.

Eisenhower said the United States has been trying to make clear its determination to defend the "great island barrier" in the Western Pacific—the Japanese-Formosa-Philippines line.

As to Quemoy and the Matsu, he called American plans for these Nationalist-held islands tactical details about which the American Government cannot afford to be too specific.

Questioned specifically about Chiang's request for a public reassurance with respect to the two island groups along the China coast opposite Formosa, the President said his representatives and those of Chiang are in constant contact "and not always do our views exactly coincide."

He declined to give further information.

The President declared at another point that his "purpose is honestly and hopefully to prevent war."

There are indications he is intent upon holding American commitments to an absolute minimum and keeping U.S. movement in the Formosa situation at the lowest possible cost.

Persons familiar with the administration's thinking suggest that if some fighting does have to be done to establish the Formosa policy firmly it will be as limited as the United States can make it and will be responsive to initial attacks by the Red Chinese.

This applies particularly to the evacuation of the Tachen Islands, preparations plans for which are reported going forward on schedule.

If Red combat planes attack American planes and ships engaged in the Tachen operation American fighters will defend the United States' forces and will follow the policy of "hot pursuit." That means they will initially chase the Reds back to their bases.

If the attacks persist and the effectiveness of U.S. defenses plus hot pursuit does not discourage the Chinese then the bases from which the planes come may be bombed. They might be bombed in an earlier stage if the U.S. 7th Fleet actually suffered combat damage which could only be offset in that way.

McCann said he felt the "deal was too good to pass up," and that he would have enough time to work on the piano, since he has just begun his graduate work.

The Groundhog Sees His Shadow—Winter Ahead
Mr. Groundhog Says So

Winter to Continue For 6 More Weeks

By DERRY HALL
Mr. Groundhog kept his eyes open just long enough Wednesday to make out his shadow before he tumbled into bed again for a six weeks nap.

Spring was postponed when Old Sol fooled shivering Spartans by appearing in time for the groundhog to spot his silhouette and scamper back to his underground home for six more weeks.

This age-old character of mythology is sought after every year by ardent spring lovers. And who is he to tell these victims of winter chills that he is actually the woodchuck in disguise.

The tale is so valid to some Pennsylvania citizens that in Punxsutawney and Allentown, societies have been organized to spy on the evasive groundhog.

The groups meet every year on Feb. 2 to search the woods until they spot this underground denizen of Spring.

A State News photographer just happened to encounter Mr. Groundhog of MSC, rubbing and out of his eyes as he arrogantly boasted of the large shadow he could make.

"This means more sleep for me," he happily admitted, while the photographer attempted to adjust his camera for a photograph of this well-known celebrity.

The weather will continue to be cold with occasional snow flurries corresponding to the groundhog's prediction. The mercury dropped to 12 degrees Wednesday and promises to reach 25 degrees today.

But Maj. Gen. Lewis B. Hershey, director of Selective Service, insisted the draft law intended no discrimination between able-bodied young men.

The lawmaker and the general testified before the House Armed Services Committee on a proposed four-year continuation of the draft.

The present law runs out next June 30, but renewal in some form is considered certain.

Hershey and Hinshaw spoke on an issue phrased this way by witness Ralph W. Chaney of the University of California:

"Is a highly trained specialist in science or engineering more valuable to his country as a member of the armed forces or may his greatest services be rendered in a civilian capacity where his special talents may be effectively utilized?"

Hinshaw and Hershey suggested Congress provide the answer. Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.), said his committee would decide whether to specify that liability for service is "universal" and added he felt the obligation for service is for the learned and the unlearned.

Refugees Flee From Devastation

Lull Coincides
With Peace Talks

TAIPEI, Formosa (AP)—Red China's bombers Wednesday broke off their raids on the Tachens which have been devastated by repeated air attacks.

The lull, which may be temporary, coincided with diplomatic maneuvering over a cease-fire. Some officials believe this may hold up withdrawal of the Tachen garrison, perhaps for weeks.

Indian sources in London said Communist China had delivered a secret message about a Formosa cease-fire to Prime Minister Nehru, but Peiping broadcasts gave no hint of Red intentions.

Broadcasts heard in Tokyo continued to announce a cease-fire and once more demanded that U.S. forces quit Formosa, which President Eisenhower made clear Wednesday he has no intention of doing.

Eisenhower told a news conference the United States is determined to defend Formosa as part of the great island barrier in the Far East.

Another group of 538 civilian refugees from the Tachens, 200 miles north of Formosa, arrived at the Formosan port of Keelung Wednesday after a harrowing voyage during which they said they were threatened by four Communist gunboats.

They reported the gunboats appeared shortly after they left the battered Tachens. Reporting Nationalist warships chased the gunboats away.

A Chinese newspaper said some refugees reported a U.S. destroyer was nearby "apparently to protect us," but both U.S. and Nationalist naval sources said they knew nothing about this.

Somewhere in the dangerous waters around Formosa, however, the powerful U.S. 5th Fleet was alert and busy with training missions," said AP correspondent Forrest Edwards with the fleet.

The refugees from the Tachens said Red bombs had hit all over the two tiny islands in the group. They expressed belief most of the 15,000 civilians will want to leave.

The refugees declared the 15,000-man garrison was ready to stay and fight.

Chinese official sources said there had been no report of any action anywhere along the offshore island front since Nationalist warplanes Tuesday night bombed Yi-kiangshan, eight miles north of the Tachens.

Branch Plan--Milestone or Millstone?

Experiment at Flint

Branch College Plan Could Help or Hinder

Does the University of Michigan's plan to set up a branch at Flint hold an answer to the state's problem of accommodating increasing enrollments?

The Board of Regents, governing body of the U of M, has announced tentative plans to administer third and fourth year level courses in conjunction with Flint Junior College.

U of M President Harlan H. Hatcher says the program, under which the Flint Board of Education would continue to run the junior college level courses, would solve two fundamental problems:

1. The Flint area's need for a four-year college will be met. Flint is presently one of the nation's largest population areas without a four-year school.
2. Of more important long-range significance, the branch plan could take some of the pressure of increasing enrollments off the established state institutions.

With the state making plans now to accommodate twice the current number of students by 1970, a system of several branch colleges could offer an out to the state and its problems of financing and overcrowded facilities.

A program like this, with Flint JC handling the first two years of the program and the Regents administering the second two years, is so far untried in this country.

But if several of the dual-college branches are planned, the state would be in the awkward administrative position of having three constitutionally-independent groups governing higher education in Michigan—and at least two of them would be running systems of more than one school.

Michigan's teachers' colleges and normal schools are administered by the State Board of Education. Michigan's two universities are run by separate groups, the Regents at the U of M and the State Board of Agriculture at MSC.

The initial $250,000 estimate for operating the Flint branch, which would come from the state legislature, will look expensive beside the millions appropriated for the other state colleges and universities.

But costs are held down by eliminating expensive laboratory and educational equipment and the athletic program. It is an economy which can be practiced in only limited quantities before state-wide standards start to slide.

The initial cost—an item which will rise as the Flint branch becomes more accepted by students—is also minimized by using Flint JC's physical plant.

At Flint there is the unusual and ideal situation of a comparatively flush and privately-endowed college which is willing to donate buildings and grounds.

The Regents and state taxpayers who will have to pay the cost will have to consider whether this sets a precedent which other Michigan cities will use to claim state-subsidized four-year programs for themselves.

The state's facilities will have to be expanded, of course, to handle the expected extra students. But a Legislative study commission has already recommended that existing institutions, and particularly the four state teachers' colleges, be expanded, and duplication of facilities be minimized.

U of M officials have no plans at the present for extending the unique program to other Michigan cities, which would have less ideal circumstances and facilities.

They aren't, however, closing the door on a series of state-subsidized four-year schools. It's called, by one Regent, "a historic milestone in university history."

"We don't know," Dr. Hatcher said, "about the future yet. This is in the nature of an experiment under ideal conditions."

The Regents and Flint education officials still have to work out final details of the plan, which has been considered in off-and-on discussions since 1946.

But an early test of how the program will fit into the state's college and university plan of a decade from now will soon be held when the Legislature is asked to provide additional funds for the four-year project.

U of M officials estimate that, if they go through with the plan they now "view with favor," the new curriculum would be effective in fall of 1956.

They say, however, there is a possibility that some of the Regents-sponsored courses may be taught as early as next fall. And unless funds are diverted from the Ann Arbor campus, that would require appropriations action by this session of the Legislature.

But a Legislative study commission has already recommended that existing institu-

Word War Ends as Air Force Chooses Cadillac for Jet Base

Cadillac has finally been decided upon as the site for the new jet interceptor base in Michigan but the decision came only after a word war between three Northern Michigan communities.

It all began last June. The Air Force announced a base was to be built within range of the Air Force radar station at Empire on Lake Michigan north of Frankfort. Three sites were under consideration—Cadillac, Kalkaska and Homestead (Benzie County).

The Homestead site was announced as first choice by the Air Force on June 17. However, on Dec. 2, the choice was switched to Cadillac and then the fireworks began.

Rep. Ruth Thompson, whose ninth district covers both sites, found herself right in the middle. However, she listened to the protests of her constituents from the Homestead area and asked for a Congressional investigation.

Secretary of the Air Force Harold E. Talbott sent Rep. Thompson a letter explaining the switch, saying "the initial air staff position recommended the Homestead site, although the Air Defense Command recommended as its first choice, the Cadillac site."

Meanwhile a committee of Cadillac businessmen formed to point out the advantages of the Cadillac site to the Air Force. And while the Air Force listened to both sides, the Kalkaska site was apparently forgotten. But not for long.

Accusing the Air Force of ignoring the proposed Kalkaska-Grand Traverse site, a joint committee from both Kalkaska and Traverse City protested that detailed information about the location 12 miles east of Traverse City was buried somewhere, and the committee was going to uncover it.

Shortly afterwards a Michigan politician who asked not to be named sounded a warning that if these communities kept up the fight, the state might lose its $13,000,000 jet base to Wisconsin. He said:

"Secretary Talbott of the air force must be sick and tired of this whole thing by this time and I don't think anyone could blame him one bit if he decided the base should be located in Wisconsin."

The announcement took effect and the controversy quieted down. Nothing much was heard until last week when the Air Force reaffirmed the Cadillac choice.

Cadillac was a wise choice. The town has a population of more than 10,000 and has a larger shopping district. A million dollar senior high school was recently completed and there is a 125-bed hospital in the town.

Perhaps the only disadvantage would be the recreational facilities. Cadillac has a recreation center with an indoor pool and gymnasium, but it can't compare with the facilities offered at Lake Michigan.

Michigan found itself in an unusual position in having three good possibilities for this base. This time instead of competing with other states, the fight was a city vs. city battle.

It is not known how close Michigan came to losing the base, or if that was even considered. But if the state is to continue growing all localities should be prepared to work together.

'Time' Snubs Some Schools

To the Editor:

Although it was impossible for me to attend the Hyman lecture to which Mr. Adrian Jaffe refers in his recent letter to the State News, from what I have heard of this lecture, although I should have to differ sharply with Mr. Hyman on his views of tragedy, I do concur in substance with what Mr. Jaffe states in that letter.

Even more distressing to me than your inadequate coverage of the Hyman lecture was another item in the Feb. 1 issue of the State News.

This was your succinct and, I can only hope, accurate report of the interview by "Time" magazine of a few select MSC senior honor students in the schools of Education, Agriculture, Veterinary Medicine and Business and Public Service, to feature these interviews in the forthcoming "Time" article on the MSC Centennial.

Whatever were the reasons for the failure of "Time" to have interviewed similarly a student each from the Schools of Engineering, Home Economics and Science and Arts, as well as from the Graduate School, I do not know.

But as an MSC alumnus and member of the faculty of the School of Science and Arts, I do genuinely regret the oversight in these interviews.

Whatever anyone's definition of the word "university," the historical definition of this word has always included the sciences and arts as well as the Graduate School.

Doubtless the "Time" story will include mention of these other schools, but the emphasis,

NOT GUILTY

DAYTON, Ohio (AP)—Air Force S. Sgt. Bob Stiefman ordered his eight-year-old daughter to stop imitating a police siren.

"But daddy, that's not me," Karen giggled. "It's that car back there with the red light."

Stiefman pulled his car to the curb, but fast. Turned out, though, the police were interested in someone else.

French Theme to Accent Dance

By JOAN BECKER
"C'est Magnifique" ... It's J-Hop time again, and this year through the magic of a sparkling fountain, green-entwined trellises and wrought iron gates—MSC coeds and their dates will be dancing in the garden of the palace of Versailles.

For the first time, the MSC J-Hop will take on a French accent. The decorations will be centered around an 11-foot fountain which will be placed in the center of the auditorium.

A constant flow of water will stream from the fountain, as bluish spotlights highlight the dance floor. And a giant abstract drawing of a Frenchman and his lady will furnish the orchestra's backdrop.

Other "firsts" to appear will be Ralph Flanagan and his music.

Also during intermission the "Salt City Five," a dixie land band recently voted one of America's best by Cashbox magazine, will appear.

A special intermission attraction Saturday night will be the crowning of the Miss Big 10. Eight of the Big 10 colleges will be represented. Contestants for the honor will include: Judy Bradley of MSC, Carol Goulet of the University of Minnesota, and Geraldine Gerber of the University of Illinois.

Road Trip Looks Rugged

Spartan Hoop Fans Set Record

By JOE HOFFMAN

About the greatest tribute that can be paid to a coach is the fact that people come to watch his team in action.

Coach Fordy Anderson has received this compliment.

Attendance figures for the year show an average of 7,011 fans have witnessed the first eight games in Jenison Fieldhouse this season. This is the first time since the Spartans entered the Big 10 that the average attendance has been over seven thousand.

Chances are that the average will go even higher as the remaining three home attractions of the Spartans are all with top Big 10 squads. The remaining games are with Iowa, Northwestern and Indiana.

Currently the Spartans are preparing for their most critical test of the year. They are getting ready for a crucial four game road trip with three of the contests against Big 10 competition.

"This trip will go along way in deciding our final position in the standings," said Anderson. "All four games are tough, and we'll have to be at our peak at all times in order to come out on top."

State first encounters Wisconsin Saturday and then journeys to South Bend for a non-conference tilt with the Fighting Irish Monday.

Next weekend finds the Spartans visiting Illinois for games with Northwestern and Illinois.

After this the Spartans return for three straight home games before winding up the season against the Wolverines at Ann Arbor.

Minnesota still holds down the top spot in the Big 10 race with a 5-2 record. Iowa is second, Illinois third.

The Spartans are tied for fourth place with Northwestern both teams just one game behind the pace-setting Gophers.

The Spartans appear to have the toughest remaining schedule of any of the top five teams, since they must meet both Illinois and Northwestern away from home. Northwestern also has a tough remaining schedule. The Wildcats have to play both Illinois and Michigan State on the road.

The easiest schedule falls to Minnesota. The Gophers have just three remaining road games, none of them against a first division team. Their two toughest games, Iowa and Illinois, are both to be played at Minneapolis.

Anderson still sees a wide open race, with the Spartans given as good a chance as anyone to cop the title. "It's just a matter of us being able to play the kind of ball we're capable of playing," said Anderson.

Latest scoring statistics show a drop for the Spartans in nearly all departments.

The top scorer, Al Ferrari, dropped to seventh place, in the Big 10 scoring race, as a result of his netting only 16 points against Purdue last Monday. Ferrari is now averaging 21.1 points.

Robin Freeman, though he hasn't seen any action in Ohio State's last two conference encounters, still maintains a slight lead over Indiana's Don Schlundt for the individual scoring honors.

State's Julius McCoy made a one-notch jump to eleventh place with an 18.7 average. No other Spartan is in the top thirty scorers.

Ohio State's Johnny Miller, by virtue of his spectacular shooting against Northwestern Saturday, has jumped ahead of State's Duane Peterson in field goal shooting accuracy. The Buckeye forward has hit an amazing 56 percent of his shots, while Peterson is tied with Schlundt for second place with a 50 percent average.

As a team, the Spartans rank second in offense to Michigan. The Wolverines have a game average of 83.6 points to the Spartans' 82.8.

The Spartans are also in second place in field goal accuracy with a 42.5 percentage. Northwestern is the conference leader with a percentage of 42.8.

The fact that State made only fifty percent of its foul shots against Purdue Monday is indicated by the Spartans' eighth place standing in that department. In defense, Minnesota leads the pack, having allowed their opponents 77.3 points per game. The Spartans have allowed their opposition to score an average of 81.4 points a game.

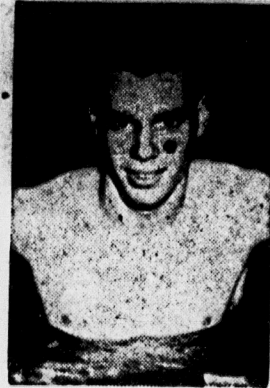

He Got the Shirt, But Off Who's Back

KALAMAZOO, (AP) — Referee Max Schaefer forgot his black and white striped shirt when he showed up Tuesday night to officiate the Western Michigan-Marshall basketball game.

So Western Michigan loaned him one.

A fine gesture, but scrawled across the back was "Property of Western Michigan."

Sharpen up your free throws is the latest word from the IM office. The all-college free throw contest will be held Monday through Friday next week from 3-5 p.m. in Jenison Gym.

Both individuals and teams may enter. A team will consist of the four highest scorers of any organization. There is no limit on the number of entries from an organization.

Each contestant will be allowed 25 shots from the foul line.

The all-college table tennis tournament has been given the nod for Feb. 9-10. The union table tennis room will be the scene of the action.

Thirty-four entries competed in last year's tourney and an even larger field is expected this year. Entry blanks may be picked up in the Union or the IM office. The deadline for entries is Tuesday.

To assure proper conditioning for the all-college gymnastic meet, Gymnastic Coach George Szypula has opened use of equipment to all prospective entries.

The meet has been set for March 7-8.

Twin Losses Spur Squad In Efforts

Stung by two straight losses, Michigan State's swimming team will meet Illinois tonight at 7:30 p.m. in Jenison Pool.

The Spartan losing string started with a 54-33 loss to Iowa State, followed by a 65-28 swamping by Ohio State, the defending Big 10 and NCAA champs.

The Spartan squad is headed by Capt. Tom Payette and breast-stroker John Dudeck.

Payette has been shutout in only one meet this year, against OSU. He has topped two firsts in two meets, the 63-30 win over Bowling Green and the 55-37 victory over Wisconsin.

He is the top Spartan sprinter and finished sixth in the Big 10 in 1954 in the 50-yard free style. Dudeck set an NCAA record in the 200-yard breaststroke in the Iowa State loss, winning in 2:27.6. He has racked up five wins so far this year, his only loss coming to teammate Paul Reinke.

Dudeck also holds the Big 10 record for the 100-yard breaststroke.

Reinke, who has trailed Dudeck to the wire twice posted his lone win in the Bowling Green meet, winning in 2:36.

Heading the Spartan divers will be Don Leas, who has posted two wins.

Leas is also a varsity gymnast, and after coping first in diving against Iowa State, at Ames, he flew back to East Lansing to compete with the Spartan gym team.

He is only a sophomore but, according to Coach Charles McCaffree, he improves every time he goes out on the board.

Bob Dust and Frank Pagnini head the Spartan backstroke corps. Each had posted one win this year.

Jim Rickard has earned three firsts for the Spartans this year, all of them coming in the 440-yard freestyle, where he will compete tonight.

Illinois lost most of its team by graduation, and will depend on untied sophomores to carry the load.

Last year, the Illini finished fourth, right behind MSC, in the Big 10.

The Spartans have never lost to an Illinois swimming team, racking up six straight wins.

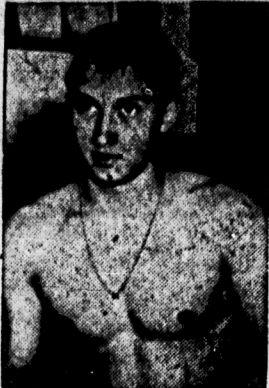

Last year they swamped the Illini, 61-32.

Patricia Keller McCormick, Olympic springboard ABB platform diving champion, has won 20 American diving titles during the years 1949 to 1954.

Michigan State cross country teams have won 16 major titles; eight in the ICA, four in the NCAA, three in the Big 10 and one Senior National AAU crown.

Face Wisconsin State

Boxing Newcomer Break Into Lineup

Five Spartan newcomers will break into the lineup day night when Michigan State's boxing team faces Wisconsin State College in Jenison Fieldhouse.

After last Saturday's 6 1/2-1 1/2 win over Maryland, Coach George Makris has decided to give the new men added experience in a move designed to add depth to the squad.

In one of the top bouts, Spartan John Seis will battle Carl Klechesski. Seis, a free-swinging junior, hails from Toledo, where he boxed as a Golden Glover.

Sophomore Bob Boudreaux, three-time Louisiana State amateur champion, will face Wisconsin's Dick Starha at 125 pounds.

Jim Buck, a junior who prepped as a CYO boxer in Detroit, will oppose Dan Michela in the 139-pound division. A pre-season training injury kept Buck out of action as a sophomore.

Sophomore Bob Jenilo will get the nod from Coach Makris to go against Warren Livingston in the 132-pound class. Jenilo copped the Chicago Golden Gloves featherweight title in 1952.

Two hard-punching 178-pounders will square off in another bout. Sophomore Mike Palatas, Spartan portage from Pittsburgh, will battle Wisconsin's Gene Herubin.

Four feature exhibitions at 7:30 will precede the varsity action.

They are: Sheed Smith vs. Herb Weisblum; Chosen Mackawa vs. John Butler; Herb Odum vs. Carroll Trahan; Bill Greenway vs. Cliff LaRose.

On Campus

A GUIDE FOR THE DATELESS

With the cost of dating rising higher and higher, it's no wonder that so many of us men are turning to throwing. Naturally, we would prefer a simple warm flinging cold disci, but who's got that kind of money? Being what they are, the average man today has a simple dating or eating.

Unless the average man happens to be Finster Sigafos, a man no smarter, richer, than you or I, solved his dating problem. Finster to college with the normal ambition of any average man wanted to find the prettiest coed on campus and make her his. He looked long and carefully, and at last he found her—job named Kretchma Inskip, with hair like beaten gold.

He asked her for a date. She accepted. He appeared at a sorority house that night, smiling, eager, and carrying a bouquet of modestly priced flowers.

"Now then," said Kretchma, tossing the sleazy date pledge, "where are we going tonight?"

Finster was a man short on cash, but long on ideas. He prepared several attractive plans for this evening. "How you like to go out to the Ag campus and see the machine?" he asked.

"Ick," she replied.

"Well then, how about running over to the dental school?"

"Bah," she replied.

"Well, what would you like to do?" he asked.

"Come," said she, "to a funny little place I know, just out of town."

And away they went.

The place was Millionaires Roost, a simple wooden hut of solid ivory. It was filled with beautiful ladies in gowns, handsome men in dicks. Waiters in white uniforms were serving costly eats on flaming swords. Original Rembrandts hung on the walls. Philip Morris trays adored the cigarette holders.

Chained to each table was a gypsy waitress.

Finster and Kretchma were seated at a table. "I'll wait," said Kretchma, "will start with shrimp remoulade. Then I'll lobster and capon in madeira sauce with asparagus and dessert I will have loads of out-of-season fruit."

"And you, Sir?" said the waitress to Finster.

"Just bring me a pack of Philip Morris cigarettes."

"For if ever a man needed the soothing, relaxing aromas of mild vintage tobaccos, it is me," said Finster.

So, smoking the best of all possible cigarettes, Finster Kretchma ingested her meal and calculated that every time fetching young adam's apple rose and from he was out 97¢. Then he took her home.

It was while saying goodnight that Finster got the idea. "Listen!" he cried excitedly. "I just had a wonderful idea. Next time we go out, let's go Dutch!"

By way of reply, Kretchma slashed him across the face with her house mother and stormed into the house.

"Well, the heck with her," said Finster to himself. "I'm just a gold digger and I am well rid of her. I am sure there are many girls just as beautiful as Kretchma who will understand the justice of my position. For after all, she got me money from home as men, so what could be more fair than sharing expenses on a date?"

With good heart and high hopes, Finster began a search for a girl who would appreciate the equity of Dutch truck.

Today Finster goes everywhere and shares expenses with Mary Alice Hematoma, a lovely three legged girl with sideburns.

MSC to Add to Music Hall

$500,000 Wing to Hold Choral Room

By JACKIE OLDHAM

A half-million dollar addition to the Music Building has been announced by President John A. Hannah.

Students still must tolerate the drafts and creaky floors in old Abbot Hall, the music practice building, for a while, however.

Tentative plans had called for the addition to cover the area now taken up by the 67-year-old campus landmark.

The revised plans will leave the building standing. The new addition will extend in the opposite direction, about 50 feet north toward Pres. Hannah's home, and 150 feet west toward the Women's Athletic Field.

Instead of doing away with the north campus practice area, the Music Annex on south campus will be taken down. A new Education Building is tentatively planned for that space.

A choral room, 41 by 52 feet, with large picture windows facing north, will take up the west end of the addition. Although acoustically designed for singing groups, it also will be available for general use. Dr. Roy Underwood, head of the music department, said Wednesday.

The basement will contain 43 soundproof practice rooms with four organ practice rooms, an ensemble room, and a piano workshop.

Five classrooms, six studios and six offices will fill the two upper floors.

The proposed addition will replace the 31 practice rooms, four studios, three offices and the piano repair room now in the south campus Annex.

As with the Music Building, the entire cost of the addition and its furnishings will be paid from music practice fees, not by the college, Dr. Underwood said.

Temporary repairs are planned for Abbot Hall, in addition to the building program. Because the building eventually will be torn down, no extensive work will be done at this time, Underwood said.

Contracts have been let, and the new addition may be ready by fall term, Dr. Underwood said.

Architect Ralph Calder, who designed the present Music Building, is in charge of the plans for the addition.

Once the home of the MAC president whose name it bears, Abbot Hall also housed famous botanist Dr. William Beal. Coeds used it for a dormitory for three years following the establishment of the School of Home Economics in 1906.

Later it was known as Club B, one of the few student living units on campus. A restaurant, "The College Inn," operated independently of the club in the basement.

"A meal of potatoes, meat, bread and milk was 15 cents there," Karl McDowell, secretary of the State Board of Agriculture, said McDowell, a 1916 graduate, traveled by carline from Lansing to attend MAC and often ate at the restaurant.

'Post' for Hannah

Representatives of The Saturday Evening Post magazine will present a bound edition of the Feb. 5 issue to President John A. Hannah in his office this afternoon. Currently on sale at newsstands, it carries an editorial on MSC's Centennial.

Top Speaker at Farmers' Week Session

40th Annual Week

Ezra Benson to Speak At Farmers' Meeting

Michigan State's 40th annual Farmer's Week will open Monday with Sec. of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson and Gov. G. Mennen Williams listed among the principal speakers.

More than 40,000 visitors are expected to swarm to campus for the Monday through Friday event.

The event for state farmers will be the last major college meeting before Founders' Day on Feb. 12 formally ushers in MSC's Centennial observance.

Topics scheduled for discussion during the five-day meeting include "Getting Started in Farming," "New Studies in Nutrition," and "Success in Family Life Around the World."

Campus visitors also will see special exhibits and displays. Other events include a horse-pulling contest and movies on farm life in Latin America, Finland and India.

The Farmers' Week guests will be housed in Kellogg, and in East Lansing and Lansing hotels, motels and private homes.

The usual opening day tradition will be observed Monday when Dairy Day is celebrated.

Horse Day will also be observed Monday with an exhibition of six-horse hitch, along with the lightweight pulling contest. A business meeting will be held in the afternoon.

No general session will be held Tuesday afternoon. This will give visitors time to attend meetings and exhibitions. In the evening the "Bangs Facts for You" program will be presented.

Many awards will be presented on Wednesday. Also on the Livestock Day program is an intercollegiate debate between the University of Wisconsin and Michigan State on the price control support program.

The biggest feature on Thursday will be the address by Secretary Benson, who will be introduced by Gov. Williams.

"Accent on Youth" will be presented in the evening. The entertainment will be furnished by 4-H Club members.

On Friday the American Dairy Association of Michigan will meet with national officers to discuss plans for 1955.

Tickets for the Founders' Day Convocation at MSC are a scarce item. Alvie L. Smith, Centennial director, said Wednesday.

The student tickets—all 1,050 of them—are gone. The tickets were distributed this week, largely on a population basis to every living unit on and off campus.

On Wednesday more than 200 were made available at the Union ticket office on a first-come, first-served basis. According to Roy Rider, student Centennial chairman, they lasted about one hour.

Smith said that all remaining tickets for faculty and East Lansing residents have now been pooled and are available only at the Union ticket office. Less than 100 are still available, he said.

Smith emphasized that all faculty members scheduled to take part in the processional of the Convocation will receive three tickets each, two immediately through their department heads, and one at Founders' Day registration Feb. 11-12.

Other members of the faculty who have been invited to participate in the Founders' Day program as guests will receive one ticket to the Convocation when they register Feb. 11-12.

Tickets have not been reserved for the remainder of the faculty.

Centennial Story

P. A. Herbert, head of the Division of Conservation. Throughout the state, MSC alumni will see and hear the Centennial plans in their own home towns.

Speakers from the college, together with portable box-type displays, will visit schools and meetings during the year. A large exhibit, similar to the display on the second floor of the Union, will be set up in Kellogg Center to show the growth of the college.

The Centennial movie, "The Second Hundred," will be distributed for showings throughout the U.S.

First shots for the film were taken in Greenfield Village near Detroit, to picture the agricultural environment of 1855. The plot centers around an MSC graduate, played by William Montgomery, Lansing alumnus, who returns to the college with his son, acted by Devere Logan, Bay City junior.

Typical campus scenes will include classroom shots, research work, and student activities, dances, and football games.

Sharon Robinson, former MSC speech major, was production assistant.

The movie will be shown for the first time on Founders' Day from 9 a.m. to 12 in Kellogg Center.

Student publications also will tell the Centennial story.

The 1955 Wolverine will include a 104-page Centennial section, containing about 200 historical pictures of the college and students, a 16,000 word history of the campus, and six paintings depicting early campus scenes by artist John S. Coppin of Bloomfield Hills.

The State News will publish a 16-page Centennial paper on Feb. 11, telling the history of student activities, the growth of the college, and the early days of MSC athletics.

Spartan to Issue Centennial Copy

The Spartan magazine after waiting 100 years is coming out with its first centennial issue. The February issue will go on sale Feb. 15, three days after the official opening of Centennial activities by the Founder's Day program, Gregg Stecker, editor, said.

The magazine will take a humorous look at the 100-year progress. Features and stories will emphasize the school's primitive origin and its evolution to Big 10 university status.

Extra issues are being printed in anticipation of a demand for souvenir copies, Stecker said.
