No Confusion

Modern Art Show Offers Simplicity

Students who just can't understand modern art will have no trouble at the Matisse show opening today in the Lit and Fine Arts Gallery, A2, south campus.

The show, the third for the new Gallery, has 30 prints, including lithographs, etchings, linoleum blocks and aquatints. The prints are all simple, but it takes a genius to create such simplicity. Dr. Paul Love, associate professor of art, said:

"Matisse's aquatints are one of the most unusual points of the show for their clarity. Charles Pollock, assistant professor of art, said: 'Most aquatints, which use rosin on a metal plate for the engraving have a pebbly surface. Those in the show lack almost any graying, pebbly effect.'"

The collection was a complete show bought in Paris by John Newberry, curator of prints from the Detroit Institute of Arts. They are on loan from the institute.

Matisse executed the group between 1937 and 1952. He died last year at 85.

Speaking of his work, Matisse said, 'I want people who feel worried, exhausted, over-worked to get a feeling of repose when looking at it.'

Lighting and simplified setting were designed for the show by Ted H. Davis, assistant professor of speech.

About 25 members of the dance honorary will take part in the concert according to Orchestral advisers Miss Eastman and Dorothy Cleveland, assistant professor in the women's physical education department.

Folk themes were used in creating 'Auburn', an Indian dance by Given and St. David Servant, danced to the music of the spiritual.

House to Debate Bill

Group Favors Income Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House Ways and Means Committee, over the strong protests of Secretary of the Treasury Humphrey, Monday voted in favor of a $20 income tax cut for everybody.

Humphrey accused Democratic members of the committee of working "completely contrary to the public interest" in pushing the bill to give each taxpayer a $20 reduction in income earned after next Jan. 1, plus $20 for each dependent, including his spouse.

But the Democratic-led committee was reported to have voted 15-10 for the cut. Democratic leaders planned to send the bill to the House floor for debate on Thursday.

At its closed-door session, the committee also was reported to have approved by top heavy margins President Eisenhower's request to postpone for one year a reduction of about three billion dollars in corporate income and excise taxes.

Members said they decided to wait until Tuesday to take final action on a composite bill incorporating all the provisions.

Humphrey, in a statement handed out to reporters after his session with the committee, said the proposed $2,300,000,000 cut would "just about wipe out" the progress the Eisenhower administration is making toward a balanced budget.

"This move is playing fast and loose with the welfare of 160 million Americans by deliberately increasing deficit financing with all its inflationary dangers—instead of continuing the administration's responsible financial management which has been so beneficial for all Americans during the past two years," the Treasury chief said.

"This maneuver is completely contrary to the public interest. It is being made as a surprise in connection with the proper action proposed by the administration for the desirable extension of the corporate tax rate and certain excise taxes which otherwise would be reduced."

Humphrey referred to the Democratic strategy of tacking the income tax cut onto a bill to continue about three billion dollars worth of corporate and excise taxes due to drop April 1.

On that date, unless Congress passes an extension bill, the corporate income tax rate will drop from 52 to 47 per cent, a revenue loss of about two billion dollars, and excise taxes will be reduced on automobiles, gasoline, cigarettes, liquor, beer and wine. These cuts would run about one billion dollars a year.

Thus if Eisenhower vetoed the personal income tax cut to save two billion odd, he would lose three billion by nullifying the corporate income and excise tax extensions.

Republicans have called the maneuver a "political move."

Red Captive Sees No Out In Formosa

Applegate Tells Of Brain-Washing

By WALT OLEKSY
State News Associate Editor

"Formosa is our baby," Richard Applegate, United Press correspondent, said Monday night in an Auditorium lecture on his 18-month imprisonment by Communist Reds.

Should the United States aid Chinese Nationalists in the defense of Formosa? he was asked.

"I don't like Chiang Kai-shek," Applegate said, "but Formosa is our baby." He said President Eisenhower and Secretary of State Dulles have already made America's decision to hold Formosa and there are no longer two sides to the question.

Applegate gave a taut picture of his brain-washing treatment by the Reds in Canton. He said brain-washing is slow mental torture, pounded at by vague questions and being shut up in a room six feet by 11 feet, with nothing but your memory between you and insanity.

"The Communist program is to dominate the world," he said. "We must stop them. We must recognize the appeal communism has to deprived people of the world."

Applegate said one of the strongest propaganda arguments the communists are using today, especially in India, is that it took the United States 175 years to reach its present industrial strength and it has taken the Russians only 30 years. They tell India to take its choice.

Applegate said America is its own worst enemy abroad, by the way it pays lip service to democracy, but won't practice it at home.

He cited school segregation as one of the blackest marks against democracy and one of the best excuses for foreign nations to reject democracy.

Another blot on democracy, he said, is in the practice of court-martining G. I.'s who have broken down under brain-washing and who may at one time have embraced communism.

First-Day Donors at Work

Greeks Offer Trophy

1st Day Donors Give 241 Pints of Blood

By BOB HERMAN
State News Managing Editor

A first-day total of 241 pints of blood—less than a twelfth of the record 3,000 goal—was donated Monday in the first day of the drive ending Friday.

But Red Cross workers called it a good opening day turnout.

"The first day is usually slower than the rest of the week," said Miss Winifred Harvey, assistant chief nurse for the Lansing Regional Blood Center. "So maybe," she said "it will pick up."

With 21 rejected donors included, the first day total indicated that most students who signed to give on Monday had turned out. Said Bruce Ferris, drive director for the sponsoring MSC Veterans' Assn.

As part of the veterans' annual drive, a Phi Delta Theta-sponsored trophy is being offered again in a "Blood the Greeks" contest.

The trophy is awarded each year to the fraternity getting the highest percentage of members to volunteer to give blood.

Last year in a drive which hit 2,000 pints, four Greek groups went to the fourth floor Union donation center as a unit to achieve a 100 per cent volunteer mark.

They were Phi Delta Theta, Delta Tau Delta, Alpha Gamma Rho and Phi Kappa Psi, which last year was Theta Sigma.

Workers at this year's blood drive said the busiest hours at the Union's temporary blood center were just after the opening hour at 10 a.m. and from 3-5 p.m.

"We can still put a donor through in an hour," Miss Harvey said. "If it isn't a busy time, less than that, but donors should plan on an hour."

Today's drive hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. The Red Cross has provided facilities to handle 100 donors an hour.

Volunteers to give blood must be between 18 and 55, Miss Harvey said, with only those having had jaundice definitely restricted from giving.

Otherwise, she said, rejections vary, and all other possible donors should be checked by the blood center doctor.

Drive officials emphasize that facilities are available to handle more than the 1,900 students who registered prior to the drive. To help achieve maximum use of facilities, the veterans' group has added a "bring a friend along when you come up" motto.

Governing Boards May Discuss Bill

Introduction Set For House Today

By GENE RITZINGER

A bill which would change MSC's name to Michigan State University of Agriculture and Applied Science was filed last night in the lower house of the Legislature.

The bill was filed by Rep. John J. McCune (Rep. E. Lansing), and backed by several other legislators.

It will not be formally introduced until the Legislature meets today in an afternoon session.

McCune's action followed a resolution adopted Friday by the State Board of Agriculture, MSC's governing body, which urged the name change.

Meanwhile, President John A. Hannah disclosed Monday that a conference had been held between MSC and U of M officials concerning the proposed name change.

Dr. Hannah and U of M president Harlan Hatcher agreed to ask the governing bodies of the respective schools to consider appointing a three-man committee from each body to "explore the possibility of a name change for MSC which would be agreeable to all."

Dr. Hannah said the proposal has not yet gone beyond the discussion stage. The U of M has opposed MSC's request for a name change, contending it would lead to confusion.

After the bill is read today, it will be sent to committee, but to what committee it will be referred was uncertain last night. Last year, it was sent to the House Education Committee.

McCune was among the sponsors of last year's name change bill, which was withdrawn at the request of college officials after the U of M objected.

This year McCune is optimistic about the bills chances of passing. He said "If logic and good reason prevail, the bill will pass."

Last week, McCune observed "overwhelming sentiment" in favor of the name change and had said "the Centennial anniversary of MSC is the appropriate time for the people of the state to recognize this institution as the great university it is."

Back on the campus, action was expected late today from the student body.

'Crowd' Influences Habits Guys Drive, But Gals Instruct

It's up to his teen-age girlfriend whether the average high school driver is a "hot rod" or a "ditch creep."

Looking back to high school days the hot-rodder was the boy who zoomed around corners and tried to interest friends in a drag race while the ditch creep was the staid Sunday driver type.

The 200 safety-minded high school students who attended the Michigan Teen-Age Driver Safety Conference on campus last weekend feel sure that the "crowd" is an influencing factor on drivers.

One girl said a boy will hot rod if he thinks he can show off—but not if the girl doesn't want him to. One of the boys chimed in to say that his girl friend bawls him out if he does anything wrong while behind the wheel. The chairman of the conference said it would help a great deal if girls were more interested in driving safety.

The teen-agers talked and the adults listened in this two-day meet sponsored by the department of public instruction and the governor's youth advisory commission.

Among the recommendations listed by the teen-agers were more efficient driver education systems in Michigan high schools and safety booster clubs which would encourage better teen-age driving.

However, college students don't seem to think they have many driving problems, adding that this might be because "we don't get the chance to drive very often."

"It's assumed that by the time you're in college you should know how to drive and high school facts are usually left behind," said one MSC male.

The college student with younger brothers and sisters thinks much improvement could come from teen-age safety conferences. "My younger brother could sure learn to take it easier when he's driving," said one coed.
