MSU-U of M Establish Joint Judiciary Board

The Associated Press
President Eisenhower's physical condition late Monday that he was "very comfortable day" and that he was "resting comfortably" after a total of one hour out of bed.

An announcement issued after the meeting, which also was attended by Acting Atty. Gen. William P. Rogers, said the National Security Council will meet Thursday and the Cabinet Friday—both to take up matters "of a normal routine nature."

Thursday's National Security Council session had been decided upon before Monday's meeting but there had been no previous word on whether the Cabinet would meet this week. Nixon will preside at both meetings.

One of the top questions—and one that obviously was thrashed out in part at Monday's White House meeting—was how much presidential authority can be delegated to Nixon and others while the chief executive is incapacitated.

Taking part in the conference, in addition to Nixon and Rogers, were Sherman Adams, Eisenhower's chief assistant, and presidential aides Wilton B. Persons and Gerald Morgan.

Rogers represented Atty. Gen. Herbert Brownell Jr., who started home by plane Monday from a vacation in Spain.

Just before leaving Madrid Brownell promised quick action on the problem of delegating authority while the President is incapacitated—perhaps for a few weeks, possibly longer.

King, 2 Students Interviewed on TV

By JOE HOFFMAN
State News Night Editor

"How to Stay in College for $100," an article appearing in the September issue of Coronet magazine, was the subject of an interview with Dean of Students Tom King and two MSU students on WKAR-TV's "Ladies' Time" show Monday afternoon.

The interview was conducted by the show's producer—MC Kay Eyde, a graduate of Michigan State.

In the September article, a number of educators throughout the country were asked to make comments related to the article. King's comment was:

"Students fill so many jobs today that the unusual becomes commonplace."

King's viewpoints were discussed along with those of senior Harry Blount, St. Clair Shores and junior Gail Plouffe, East Lansing. Blount and Miss Plouffe were picked to be on the program by King as "examples of outstanding students working their way through school with the aid of a scholarship."

The two students told the TV audience of their experiences in earning most of their tuition and keep during their first three years at State.

King praised the campus Placement Bureau for its work in aiding students in getting part-time employment.

In concluding his comments, King said, "I feel that those students who work their way through college have a little better appreciation because they've earned part of it themselves."

A documentary film of the Centennial events is presently being prepared for use. Photographed in color by Information Services, the film will be offered to interested groups after its completion.

Before the Centennial office in Wells Hall closes Jan. 31, a detailed report of the Centennial events will be published, announced A. Westley Rowland, Centennial director. The resume will be distributed principally to 169 colleges in the United States to celebrate their Centennials in the next 10 years.

Governor G. Mennen Williams and President John A. Hannah have been asked to speak at the dedication ceremony, Rowland added.

In addition, six Centennial awards will be presented to MSU alumni who have achieved outstanding success in their fields.

A special stamp will advertise the Centennial parade on MSU correspondence beginning Saturday, Jack Frakes, Wayne junior, designed the stamp.

The DuPont post-graduate teaching assistantship in the department of chemistry has been awarded to Theodore L. Brown, Grand Rapids, for the school year 1955-56.

He will work in the general chemistry division with Prof. Frederic B. Dutton.

Group to Act On Student Vandalism

Will Decide Penalty For Misconduct

By ART UNDERWOOD
State News Editor-in-Chief

Plans for the joint consideration of vandalism cases have been formulated by a group to be known as the Joint Judiciary Council of Michigan State University and the University of Michigan.

Jack Strasser, chief justice of the MSU judiciary, represented Michigan State at the meetings which resulted in the approval of the administration at both schools to allow the joint student group to handle all cases of vandalism.

The decision of the council as to what penalty, including expulsion, will be meted out to any student caught participating in "action which may be construed as conduct unbecoming a student" will be final.

Strasser pointed out that the rash of painting parties and other types of "raids" in the past few years has reached costly proportions and said the new council will not be inclined to be lenient with any student caught indulging in this type of activity.

Immediate action against the student, according to Strasser, will involve paying for the damage and restoration. Other punishment may include any form of discipline used at the student's school.

The council will be composed of three members from each school and the chief justice of the student's own school.

The hearing will be held at the school where the majority of the cases originate. Michigan students will be tried at Michigan and State students here.

Since U of M has no campus police force because of the integrated campus, vandals caught by Ann Arbor police will be jailed and their cars will be handled through the city police court. This will not mean that they do not have to appear before the council, however.

Michigan students caught on the State campus will be released after they have been identified, and their names will be turned over to the council immediately for action.

Students apprehended just before the U of M-State football game will not be tried until after the game and will not be allowed to attend the game.

U of M students caught by East Lansing police will be tried in municipal court.

Police patrols on both campuses have been increased, and Strasser said that any student's chances of committing acts of vandalism this year without getting caught are very slim.

He also pointed out that such acts can result in a permanent criminal record and that if the student is expelled, this record would make it almost impossible for him to complete his education here or at another school.

Stocks Topple 25-Year Low

NEW YORK (AP)—News of President Eisenhower's attack sent the stock market spinning down Monday to its greatest falls it ever suffered.

The Dow Jones industrial average fell from 1 to 7 points in the first hour and then continued to slide, ending the day down 14 points at the 194 level.

Expected news raised an air of uncertainty in the political and economic

Street and around the world. The only thing that seemed to give the market a slight reprieve was the news that the President's health was improving.

The crash was much greater than any measured on Monday when measured on a percentage basis.

Elements of the stock market were equally by the news.

Industrial component of the average was down $18.10, the Dow Jones industrial average off $10.20, and the utility index down $2.00.

There was one of the larger drops in the history of the stock market since July 21, 1933.

American Stock Exchange closed lower in line with the Dow. Volume amounted to 1,200,000 shares compared with 1,100,000 shares traded Friday.

MSU Gets Grants for Research

Includes $38,801 For Scholarships

Michigan State received $127,113 in gifts and grants from industry and government Sept. 16 for research and educational purposes.

The funds, accepted by the State Board of Agriculture, MSU governing body, included $38,801 for scholarship purposes. The largest individual scholarship grant was $20,000 from the Central Trust company of Lansing to support the Hinman scholarship program for the 1955-56 year.

The board renewed a memorandum of agreement with the U.S. Office of Vocational Rehabilitation of Washington, D.C., covering a grant of $20,155. The amount will be used under the direction of Prof. G. A. Miller in administrative and educational services to train rehabilitation counselors. Funds will be made available for staff personnel and student scholarships.

A long-term research project concerned with heredity and tooth decay will be continued under terms of a grant of $27,248 from the National Institute of Health of Bethesda, Md. Data are studied in the project, directed by Prof. H. R. Hunt, of the zoology department.

Mansfield Calls Executive Meeting

Bill Mansfield, student government president, has called a meeting of his executive cabinet for 7:30 tonight in the third floor student government offices. Mansfield has requested the members of the cabinet to have their reports ready for the meeting.

Float Chairmen to Meet Tonight

Parade to Windup Colorful Centennial

Centennial spotlights will culminate on the Homecoming festivities, Oct. 22, to round out the year-long celebration that opened with Founder's Day, Feb. 12, according to Westley A. Rowland, director of MSU's Centennial.

A four-and-a-half mile parade from downtown Lansing to the university will highlight the Homecoming events.

The advisor and consultant to the float construction, Kenneth Beers from a Detroit construction company, will conduct a special meeting for float chairmen tonight at 7:30 in the Tower Room of the Union Building.

The general outline of the parade will be explained and each chairman will arrange a half-hour consultation with Beers. Photographs of the chairmen will also be taken for hometown publication.

The 32 floats planned to be constructed by the living units will depict a "March of Memories—In Our Past Our Future Lies." MSU's Centennial will be divided into 25-year periods with each float picturing a specific event responsible to the university's development.

The MSU band will lead the parade, followed by a float contributed by Lansing's Chamber of Commerce. The university's Centennial Commission will conclude the parade with a float. Two additional floats will carry the Homecoming Queen and her court, and Miss Big 10 and Miss Michigan.

Twelve bands from Michigan high schools will compete for honors judged by their performance in the Centennial parade.

"The Jackson Zouaves," a novelty marching unit, has also accepted an invitation to salute MSU in the parade.

Duplicate trophies will be presented to the four best floats jointly constructed by a male and coed living unit. The trophies are being designed especially for the Centennial event.

An automotive sidelight to the march will include seven antique cars dating back to 1907. Arrangements have also been made to obtain the original car in which R. E. Olds drove for former United States president, Theodore Roosevelt, when he visited MSU for the semi-centennial.

Tentative plans call for the presentation of a historical marker to MSU by the Michigan State Historical Commission sometime during the Homecoming weekend, Rowland said.

First in a series of the state-wide system of registered historical markers, the plaque will be attached to Beaumont Tower to commemorate the site of the first building devoted to the instruction of agriculture as a science.

Governor G. Mennen Williams and President John A. Hannah have been asked to speak at the dedication ceremony, Rowland added.

In addition, six Centennial awards will be presented to MSU alumni who have achieved outstanding success in their fields.

A special stamp will advertise the Centennial parade on MSU correspondence beginning Saturday, Jack Frakes, Wayne junior, designed the stamp.

Go... Go... Go...

Changes Result In Sickly Song

"Go Right through for MSU." That isn't an excerpt from the Spartan, or any other humor magazine. It is the punch line in our fight song.

It leans more to ribald humor than it does to punch. It sounds like a parody, a lampoon of a fight song. An appropriate following line might read "Fight fiercely, fellows."

When the name of our school was changed, obvious revisions were necessary in the school songs. Changing the "colleges" and "C's" in the song lyrics was entirely proper. So were minor changes for the sake of rhyme.

But where is the justification for changing the best line of the fight song—a line with no mention of "college" or "school?"

It was the key to spirit and drive of the fight song. The word "smash" was a perfect kick-off verb. Changing that word was silly.

During the name-change controversy there was grumbling from Ann Arbor that in our fight song we wanted to "smash right through that line of blue." The line of blue referred to is obvious, and it was thought this was rather "unfriendly" of Michigan State people.

Rivalries are as old as people, however, and there is no more spirited rivalry than the one that exists between Spartans and Wolverines. Smashing right through the line of blue is a pastime greatly enjoyed by Michigan State.

In addition, it is downright humiliating when your rival school can rewrite your own fight song.

The most plausible excuse offered is that the song was suited only to football. This is true and, perhaps, unfortunate. But it wasn't the basis for ruining a good fight song. To make adjustments during basketball season is fine—but football is still the chief use of the fight song and the sport it should best support.

A fight song's purpose is theoretically to bolster the team that hears it. The football team is more liable to "smash right through" than it is to "go right through."

The more practical application of the fight song is to build student spirit and provide a safety valve for student pep and steam.

It is hard to imagine students getting roused up singing the lyrical but listless "Go right through for MSU."

The song has been officially changed by the State Board of Agriculture (upon recommendation of a student-faculty committee.)

Official or not, there is nothing to stop a vocal rebellion by the student body this Saturday—or any other Saturday.

This weekend the prime motive of the football team and its backers will be to "smash right through that line of blue." It will be a battle cry all week on the practice field and on the campus.

When fight song time comes Saturday, every Spartan fan will rise to his feet and defy the "line of blue" in spirit, in play and in song.

THE FIGHT SONG — BEFORE AND AFTER

On the banks of the Red Cedar,
There's a college known to all;
(It's a school that's known to all;
Their specialty is winning,
And those Spartans play football,
(And those Spartans play football,
Spartan teams are never beaten,
All through the game they fight
Fiercely for the only colors,
Green and white.)

Chorus:
Smash right through that line of blue,
(Go right through for MSU.)
Watch the points keep growing;
Spartan teams are never beaten,
They're fighting with a vim,
Hah! Hah! Hah!
See their team is weakening,
We're going to win this game,
Fight! Fight! Hah! team, fight!
Victory for MSU.
(Victory for MSU.)

Student Guides Praised

To the Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to express my appreciation to all students who have so generously of their time and effort to the AWS-Men's Union Student Guide program during Welcome Week.

The idea for a Student Guide program was originally conceived last winter term, and the Administration asked the AWS and Men's Council if they would put such an operation in motion.

The purpose of the Student Guide program is to help new students make an easy and pleasant adjustment to MSU.

I would like to render my special appreciation to Bill Wurm, my chairman, who worked so diligently on this program. I would also like to give special thanks to Bev Grier and the AWS for their work, and without whose aid the completion of the operation would not have been attained.

It is too early to tell how successful the program may have been, but any credit for the final success goes to the Student

President's Illness Has Serious Impact on U. S.

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

If there is ever any doubt as to which world figure touches the lives of most people, it is always resolved when something happens to the President of the United States.

The impact of other rulers and other governors of other states varies from time to time. Some rulers have become ill and even died to the cheers of large sections of the world. But not America's.

The questions became uppermost when President Eisenhower became ill on Saturday. Who would run the government if he was incapacitated for any length of time?

The answers are still speculative, much depending on just how well the President gets along.

There is no fixed precedent for continuing the business of his office when he is unable to do so, nor any law about who can sign for him. Herebefore, in the cases of Garfield and Wilson, both of whom were worse off while still alive than Eisenhower appears to be, the Vice President and the White House staff modeled along with the help of the Cabinet, which carried much of the responsibility.

The prospects are that government functions can rock along for quite a while, with the President's policies being carried forward.

The absence of the President from the world political scene, however, cannot be minimized. Since his trip to Geneva, he has replaced the free world's normal diplomatic functionaries as the figure to whom people looked for the conduct of negotiations with Soviet Russia.

A Sketch on Kent

By JACK SWIDERS

A "session," in musical language, is defined as a gathering of musicians to stimulate a feeling through improvising sounds, in a manner which is listenable and enjoyable, but which sounds thoroughly organized.

When any organization can capture an audience for three hours by creating and rendering a type of music which stimulates and entertains—that surely is genius!

Indeed, genius was displayed Sunday evening when Stan Kenton, the czar of modern American jazz, and his band entertained at the Coral Gables. No one present felt composed. They couldn't! The beat of the heart seemed to coincide with that of the rhythm section. At times it seemed impossible, but it happened. Stan Kenton was in town, and his followers greeted him with octopus-like arms.

It's been 14 years since Balboa Beach and the first engagement by the Kenton Band. Since that time, no obstacle has been too great for the modern jazz musicians to overcome.

Radio, TV, concerts, and a long list of dance dates have pronounced the name "Kenton," as the founder of modern American jazz. Since closing out show, "Music 55" which all summer, the Kentonization is again setting the road for dance engagements. On his closing TV show, Kenton introduced "Opus in Pastels" to "Opus in Pastels" which promises to be the list of Kentonian ditties. Watch for it for the top.

Mantle, Furillo Nurse Ailments; New York Star May Not Start

Newk, Ford Hurl Opener At Stadium

Yanks Favored To Take Series

NEW YORK (AP) — Carl Furillo rested with a cold and Mickey Mantle tenderly tested his injured right leg Monday as the Brooklyn Dodgers and New York Yankees held final workouts in their own parks for Wednesday's World Series opener at Yankee Stadium.

Furillo is expected to be in the opening day lineup at his usual right field spot but Mantle may not be ready. The final decision on the Yankee center fielder probably won't be made until shortly before game time Wednesday.

"It feels better," said Mantle after swinging away for about 10 minutes at the pitching of coach Frank Crosetti. Batting lefthanded, he smashed one pitch into the second deck in right field. However, he still couldn't run freely. Instead of going to the outfield, he fooled around with a first baseman's mitt, just to limber up.

The Yanks will work out at Ebbets Field Tuesday afternoon while the Dodgers will get a look at the Stadium where the first two games will be played. Usually, Manager Casey Stengel turns down an invitation to practice in the other club's park.

Phil Rizzuto, veteran shortstop, said this would be the first time he remembered a Yank pre-series practice was scheduled for the Brooklyn park. Rizzuto and his shortstop rival, Pee Wee Reese of the Dodgers, have played in all five previous Yank-Dodger series.

Despite the doubt about Mantle's status, the betting men stretched the odds favoring the Yankees to 13 to 10. The Yanks remained the 6 to 5 choice in the opener. As for a sweep, you could get 11 to 1 the Yanks wouldn't do it and 19 to 1 that the Dodgers wouldn't.

The Dodgers, of course, never have won a series. This will be their eighth try. The Yanks held the record with a 6-4 record for 20 previous series and five straight under Stengel from 1949 through 1953.

Stengel confirmed his earlier announcement that Whitey Ford (18-7) will work the opener and Tommy Byrne (16-5) the second, on the theory that his lefthanders would be more effective at the Stadium than at Brooklyn with its convenient fences for righthanded hitters.

Unless he has to use him on relief in the first two, Stengel probably will start Bob Grim (7-5) in the Ebbets Field opener Friday, following with Bob Turley (17-13) and Don Larsen (9-2). Grim has been his most efficient pitcher in recent weeks.

Walter Alton, Dodger manager, said Billy Loes (10-4) probably would start the second game at New York. He had listed Don Newcombe (20-5) as his opening day pitcher when he announced his batting order in Pittsburgh Sunday. Big Newk, who won 10 straight at the start of the season and had an 18-1 record on Aug. 4, had a 2-4 record the rest of the year.

Carl Erskine (11-8), another righthander who struck out 14 Yanks for a new series record in 1953, probably will work the Friday game with either Johnny Podres (10-10) or Karl Spooner (8-6) going Saturday.

Newcombe probably would be able to come back Sunday with three days rest, provided the best-of-seven series goes to a fifth game. Clem Labine (13-5) and Don Bessent (8-1) will be the relievers.

Another big sellout crowd of close to 70,000 was due to jam the Stadium Wednesday. Reserved seats have been sold out for days. However, 14,000 bleacher seats at $2.10 each and standing room in the grandstand at $4.20 each will go on sale Wednesday when the gates open at 9 a.m. EST.

The series will be beamed across the nation by network radio Mutual and television NBC to millions of fans.

The opening game will start at noon, EST.

Alton's batting order produced no surprises although it did settle a question about left field, third base and second base. Junior Gilliam, who has played second and left, will start in left with Don Zimmer at second and Jackie Robinson, slumped down about 10 pounds in the last two weeks, will be at third.

The big "if" of the Yankees is Mantle. If he plays, the lineup is pretty well set with Irv Noren in left, Mantle in center and Hank Bauer in right. Joe Collins will be on first, Billy Martin on second and Gil McDougald on third.

Stengel is torn between Rizzuto and Gerry Coleman for short but is expected to lean toward the veteran Scooter.

If Mantle can't play, there could be all sorts of changes. Against a righthander, like Newcombe, Noren could play center, leaving Bob Cerv or Elston Howard in left. Stengel might even decide to send Collins to right field, move Bauer to left and install Eddie Robinson on first. However, Collins still can't run at top speed due to a torn muscle.

Michigan State's freshman football coach, Don L. Mason, won All-American honors at Guard for the Spartans in 1949.

MSU Not Rated Maryland Edges Wolverines In AP Gridiron Vote

Maryland, conqueror of top-ranked UCLA, barely out Michigan Monday for No. 1 place in the Associated Press college football poll.

In handing the Pacific Coast champions their first shutout in 40 games 1-0, Jim Tatum's Terrapins rocketed from fifth to first in the weekly standings on a thumping vote from 135 of the nation's sports writers and broadcasters.

Although Michigan received the greatest number of first place votes, 48 to 45, Maryland gained enough all-around voting strength to head the list with 1,113 points. Michigan, 42-7 winner over Missouri in its debut, drew 1,032 points.

The first full Saturday of games so shuffled the standings that only one position in the top ten—Southern Cal at ninth—remained stationary.

Of the top 10, Notre Dame, Army and Texas Christian are newcomers, routing out Pittsburgh, Mississippi and Navy because of impressive opening performances.

The top teams with first place votes and won-lost records in parentheses and points based on 10 for a first place vote, 9 for second, etc.

ANN ARBOR (AP) — Michigan football squad spent part of day looking at what Coach Oosterbaan described as "takes" made in their 42-0 over Missouri Saturday.

All of the squad took a brief limbering up drill. Terry Barr, who suffered a head injury in Saturday's game, and Tony Brannoff, who has his ankle, were out for today and ran well.

Dr. James Feung, team physician, said that Peaks also was able to face the Wolverines in Ann Arbor.
