'Congenial' to Whom—Locals or Nationals?

At Hanover, New Hampshire, this week a few members of the "silent generation" spoke up:

The Dartmouth College chapter of Phi Sigma Kappa, social fraternity, severed all connections with its national organization and reorganized on a local basis.

Ronald Read, of Dearborn, president of the new group, gave their reasons:

"It is incongruous for any organization founded on brotherhood to sanction discrimination on the grounds of race, color, or creed."

"We have felt for a long time," he said, "that we should not be restricted in any way in choosing our pledges. There has been general dissatisfaction with the policies of the national fraternity."

At a New York State Teachers College a few years ago, 37 girls resigned in protest against discriminatory practices enforced on the local chapter by the national organization.

The national gave the ultimatum: The girls were "local-minded and didn't realize what it meant to be national;" they were slack in some things that the national required of them; they must sign a loyalty oath in order to "remain national."

Undoubtedly constraint was upon the girls to preclude their pledging Negro girls. Yet the sorority's national officers repeatedly declared that the sorority had "no discriminatory clauses whatsoever."

Many campuses have tried to force fraternities and sororities to eliminate discriminatory clauses from their constitutions.

To some extent they have been successful.

Erasing clauses seldom means the end of discrimination, however.

One of the main arguments of both local chapters and national councils is that the fraternity system is based on the right to choose those persons who will be congenial, whom the members will want to live with—and that on these grounds discrimination is justified.

Whether or not this is a valid argument is not the question here.

The point is that many fraternity and sorority people, from students to alumni to national officers, consider it a valid argument. They use it to justify exclusion of persons on the basis of race or religion.

There are others, like the men of Dartmouth and the coeds of the teachers' college, who try to fight discrimination, and with the same argument.

What happens when a local chapter votes to pledge a Negro, or a Jew, or a Catholic; when a chapter decides that the person will be congenial, and a genuine asset to the house?

How, then, can a national council, on the basis of its own arguments, forbid the local chapter's action, forcing it either to drop the pledge or to resign from the national organization?

Shall the local Greek-letter group choose only those members whom the national feels will be congenial?

The "right to choose" argument seems likely to backfire.

Congratulations, Gracie Dear

A special wedding song has been written for Gracie Kelly's trip down the aisle today. It would have been a bit more appropriate had the orchestra played "Mixed Emotions."

Gracie and her prince have done a superb job of thoroughly mixing the world's emotions during their three-month betrothal.

The people of Monaco have hit the heights of happiness during that time while the press in general and the British press and photo press in particular has screamed in frustration.

The social life in Monaco this past week has been gay and delightful while thieves were walking off with thousands of dollars of jewelry from the guests.

And right here in America the emotions have been mix-mastered right properly.

The public grumbles and groans, mutters and murmurs about the whole "silly" business.

But every American's heart will walk down the aisle with the gorgeous Gracie. This is an American dream coming true and no one would want it any other way.

Yes, We Still Remember You...

A rifle cracked and a little guy in dirty, baggy fatigues toppled over.

He was smiling when he hit the ground... he was always smiling, that was the way a half-million of his buddies would remember him.

A corporal said unbelievably, "He's dead!" and sat down on the gritty black volcanic earth. Tears crept through the grime on his cheeks.

The word cracked across the choppy, sullen sea and everywhere it was heard people reacted the same way the corporal had.

It was eleven years ago today that the balding little guy with the grin pitched forward into the dirt of a sweltering little Pacific island that nobody had even heard of before.

The memory is still fresh. Fresh enough to prompt a rifle detail of Marines to make the 40 mile over-water trip from their base to fire a volley over the little pyramid which marks the spot of his death.

Yes, we still remember you, Ernie Pyle.

... Southern Viewpoints ...

JAMES O. EASTLAND
... Mississippi Senator ...

Monday the State News presented views of Thurgood Marshall, special counsel of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored people, on segregation and integration in the South. Today's articles give some viewpoints of southern political leaders. Thursday's articles will discuss discrimination against Negroes in Michigan.

WALTER F. GEORGE
... Georgia Senator ...

As Alabama's Governor Sees It...

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The State News asked Alabama's Governor James E. Folsom to comment on segregation in the South today and to give his views of the NAACP. Following are his verbatim remarks.)

By JAMES E. FOLSOM
Governor of Alabama

Your newspaper has asked several questions regarding the matter of segregation in the South today. I am pleased to have this opportunity to give you my opinions on the subject.

The Supreme Court in its decision emphatically expressed a generous time element in which the South had to work out its own problem concerning segregation. This was a most wise step because the Justices realize that the custom of segregation in the South is so old and deep-seated that people's emotions are strongly involved in any sudden change of their mores.

Personally, I am against integration. I do not believe that it can come overnight throughout the region. I further believe it was the intent of the Supreme Court Justices for it to be worked out on the local school level, which means on the county and city school board levels.

Every community and every county in Alabama are different regarding segregation. Our state is 400 miles from north to south and 200 miles from east to west. We extend from the mountains to the seashore. Our mountains are filled with small farmers—it is a region where no plantations held slaves prior to the Civil War. They were strongly anti-secessionist and even in one area set up the free State of Winston against the secessionist movement.

Thus, throughout this northern half of the state, the Negro population is very small. Whereas in central Alabama, where the great plantations existed prior to the war, the Negroes greatly outnumber the white people in about 20 of our 67 counties. It is in this area that the segregation problem is acute.

I have stated many times recently that as long as I am Governor I will not force the Negroes to go to school with the white people. I do not believe they want to. I have traveled around the world several times and visited many countries and I have always observed that races and groups associate within their own cliques. That is true of the white, yellow, red and black races. I believe it is inherent among the species of nature.

This racial problem is not only one in the South. It is one in the North as well. In your own State of Michigan the City of Dearborn, with 130,000 population, does not allow one single Negro to live and reside as a citizen in that city. No such conditions can be found anywhere in Alabama.

Until the NAACP began its prejudiced activity throughout the South, our people got along well together. I believe that most of the trouble arising today in my state has been brought on by the NAACP. That is certainly true in the recent case of Autherine Lucy at the University of Alabama. Her NAACP employed lawyers brought unmitigated and false charges that the University officials and Board of Trustees, of which I am ex-officio chairman, actually conspired to create mob action against her attending the University.

These ridiculous charges boomeranged during the court trial and the NAACP lawyers tried unscrupulously to have the charges withdrawn from the case. It is such tactics as these that has made the NAACP completely without reputation or character in Alabama.

Mr. Thurgood Marshall attended this trial and he was the one who sought to have the charges withdrawn when they were so ridiculously involved in the case.

I should like to add further that I have stated repeatedly that as Governor I would use every means at my command to carry out the rulings of the Federal Courts. If the courts had given full legal backing for Miss Lucy to have remained in school I would have used whatever means necessary to have kept her there and to have protected her and other students. My position was made clear on this matter.

The fair-minded southerners are trying very hard to cope with this very difficult situation. It is a time when all of us need Divine guidance and the prayers of morally concerned people.

Georgia—Militantly Against Integration

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The State News asked Georgia's Governor Marvin Griffin to comment on segregation in the South today and to give his views of the NAACP. In reply he sent us a copy of a speech he made to the Georgia General Assembly Feb. 6. Following are excerpted remarks.)

By MARVIN GRIFFIN
Governor of Georgia

The Supreme Court had not authority to declare segregated public schools unconstitutional. Therefore, Georgia may not be accused justly of violating her obligations as a member of the Union in continuing to operate her public schools in each and every school district in this State.

As a matter of right under these circumstances, the State ought to be possessed of power to declare that the Court overstepped its authority, that these decisions are null and void, and, thus, to justify before the nation the interposition of her sovereign power between the Court and her public schools.

It is my request that this General Assembly adopt a resolution declaring the decisions of the Supreme Court... in the cases relating to the public schools of Virginia, South Carolina, Delaware and Kansas, to be null, void and of no effect.

The procedure of Interposition is woven throughout the whole fabric of our constitutional history... This right has been asserted many times over the years by both Northern and Southern States under a wide variety of circumstances.

Invocation of this State's right of Interposition is not a substitute for, nor does it take the place of, the plan formulated for going to private schools as a last resort to preserve segregation.

The private school plan is designed to provide segregated schools within the terms of the United States Supreme Court's decision.

It is our first, last and only remedy.

We say with our fathers that no government, no governmental department, no court or other tribunal, has the right to dispose of the fundamental liberties of man. We believe that they derive from Almighty God. That when the great Creator of the universe breathed upon the dust and made an immortal soul, he gave that man certain rights and freedoms, beyond the power of government or of any court, no matter how supreme.

Upon the great issues of the day Georgia always has played the valiant part. Let no one be mistaken about this and upon this issue the State and her people firmly will stand.

The General Southern Viewpoint...

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are excerpts from the "Declaration of Constitutional Principles," also known as the "Southern Manifesto." It was presented to the U.S. Senate by Sen. Walter F. George of Georgia and to the House by Rep. Howard W. Smith of Virginia, March 12. Signed by 19 southern senators and 77 southern representatives. It gives the general southern viewpoint toward the Supreme Court's invalidation of the "separate but equal" doctrine of education.)

We regard the decision of the Supreme Court in the school cases as a clear abuse of judicial power. It eliminates a trend in the Federal Judiciary undertaking to legislate, in derogation of the authority of Congress, and to encroach upon the reserved rights of the States and the people.

The original Constitution does not mention education. Neither does the Fourteenth Amendment or any other Amendment. The debates preceding the submission of the Fourteenth Amendment clearly show that there was no intent that it should affect the systems of education maintained by the States.

... the Supreme Court... with no legal basis for such action, undertook to exercise their naked judicial power and substituted their personal political and social ideas for the established law of the land.

We deny the Supreme Court's encroachments on rights reserved to the States and to the people, contrary to established law and to the Constitution.

We recommend the motives of those States which have declared the intention to resist forced integration by any lawful means.

We pledge ourselves to all lawful means to bring about a reversal of this decision which is contrary to the Constitution and to prevent the use of force in its implementation.

Michigan Ranks High In Grade Percentage

Public High School Study Conducted by MSU Prof

Michigan ranks ninth among the states of the nation in the holding power of its public secondary schools, with about 70 percent of its ninth graders eventually graduating from high school, an MSU education specialist stated Tuesday.

But Dr. George R. Myers, assistant professor of teaching education, believes the fact that 30 per cent do leave school before graduation should cause educators to think and plan carefully.

In an extensive study of 441 Michigan high schools and 31,417 pupils, Dr. Myers found the rate at which children leave before completing high school has a direct bearing to the size of the school and its classes.

"School with larger enrollment and larger classes tend to have a higher percentage of drop-outs than smaller schools," he stated. "This may be due to the fact that in smaller schools the teacher is often more able to take a direct interest in the individual child and is more likely to be a family friend and neighbor—not just someone the pupil sees in school a few hours a week.

In the small town or rural center, the school also frequently serves as a focus for social and recreational activity so young people may develop a sense of belonging more readily than in city schools. Jobs in business and industry are less often available for the teenager in the average small community, and there are fewer alternate activities for him than are found in larger cities.

Myers also discovered the majority of those leaving school before graduation are not significantly involved in extra-curricular school activities. They are usually the "left-out" who feel out of place.

More boys than girls leave school, and more transfer students than non-transfers. In towns where there are numerous factory jobs for women, more girls fail to graduate. Non-graduating students tend to be employed at more menial jobs than do graduates.

Close to 40 per cent of the parents of children who left school during the years covered by Dr. Myers' study disapproved, but were unable to prevent their child from leaving. About 42 per cent went along with the student's decision to leave, and in about 17 per cent of the cases the parents themselves made the decision that the child should drop out.

Children who leave school are not necessarily less intelligent than those who stay, Dr.

Myers stated. More often, they prefer working to studying, fail to see what good an education will do them, dislike the school or its subjects or teachers, or feel strange and friendless in the school.

"There is much that dedicated school workers and parents can do to develop effective practices designed to hold more youth in school long enough to gain the full benefits of a high school education," Myers suggested. "Such programs might include better extra-curricular activities, curriculum improvement and provisions for integrating part-time jobs with school work. The potential drop-out should be spotted at an early stage and assisted before it is too late."

Myers believes that, when possible, schools should encourage these former pupils to re-enter school or to attend adult night school classes.

Humor Improves With Age

Spartan Not Outdated, Just Mellowed

By JERRY JENNINGS
State News Feature Editor

If one of the jokes in the latest issue of the Spartan magazine seems a little shopworn, it's nothing to write the editor about. Like whiskey, college jokes are traditionally supposed to improve with age.

Students at Michigan Agricultural College 40 years ago had as lively a sense of humor as today's Spartans.

Their tastes were a little different, though. Some of the jokes that raised snickers from students in 1916 and 1917 were contained in The Hothead, forerunner to today's State News.

Dialogue jokes were a favorite form of humor during the days of the doughboy and the tin lizzie. For example:

Adam — "Time must hang heavy on your hands?"

Eve — "Why, honey?"

Adam — (recklessly) — "Well, you wear a wristwatch."

Or the one about this couple whose honeymoon has been over for a good many years:

The Cruel One — "Do you remember, when I proposed to you, how a faint blush crept over your cheek?"

The Enraptured One — "Yes!"

The Cruel One — "Well, nowadays, it would have to creep or raise a cloud of dust." As might be expected at a "cow college," many of the witticisms dealt with life on the farm:

"A North Dakota farmer roused his new harvest hand from slumber in the haymow promptly at 3 a.m.

"You can slip down and cut that little patch of oats before breakfast," he ordered.

"Are they wild oats?" sleepily inquired the hired man.

"Wild? Why no, they're tame oats."

"Well, if they're tame, maybe I can slip up on them in the daylight."

Poetic jokes in the early years of the century were more excited than the "Little Willie's" and limericks of modern humor magazines. For instance, there was the tragic story of Willie Weeks:

"The year had gloomily begun, 'For Willie Weeks, a poor man's Sun."

"He was best with bill and dun, 'And he had very little Mon."

"This cash," said he, 'won't pay my dues,"

"I've nothing here but ones and twos." "A bright thought struck him and he said, 'The rich Miss Goldtrocks will I wed.' But when he paid his court to her

"She lisped, but firmly said, 'No 'Fun!' " "Alas," said he, "then I must die." "His soul went where they say souls fly. They found his gloves and hat and hat. "The coroner upon them sat."

State Nine Prepares For Tartar Contest

Wayne Plays Here Saturday In Spartans' Second Game

Tartarins covered home plate and the pitching mound of Old College Field, Tuesday, and the Spartan nine was forced indoors.

Despite this bad break in weather, the thoughts of John Kobs and his squad were still on the coming contest with Wayne University.

When the Spartans play host to the Tartars on Saturday, it will mark the 22nd meeting between the two teams.

Only once have the Kobsmen been turned back. In 1948, Wayne edged the Spartans, 8-7.

Last season Wayne had a five-game winning streak when they met the heavy-hitting State men. The Spartans ended the streak by outslugging the Tartars, 13-5, and 13-1, in the final scheduled games.

This year Coach Joe Truske as eight lettermen returning to his Wayne roster.

Leading the field are first baseman El Williams and outfielder Don Halverson. Williams wound up the season with a .382 batting average while Halverson ended with a .321 mark.

The big problem for Truske seems to be in the catching department.

Roy Herndon seemed the likely starter after veteran receiver Dick Gogolowski decided not to play this spring.

Herndon hit .107 in 11 games last season.

In the infield the Tartars have Fred Snowden, George Duncan and Bob Leggett.

Snowden, a second baseman and shortstop, played in every game last year and hit .240. His big weakness is fielding as he led his team with eight misplays over the 16-game schedule.

Duncan is both an infielder and an outfielder. This is his first year with the Wayne nine but is expected to add strength to the club.

Clarence Straughn and Harlan Wouden are the only returning moundsmen.

Appearing in four games last year, Straughn was charged with two defeats. He allowed 19 hits and 12 runs in the 11 and two-

... FORMER BASKETBALL AND BASEBALL STAR AT DETROIT CASS TECH. MSU BASKETBALL CAPTAIN AND WINNING BASEBALL HURLER ...

Hopes for Career in Majors

Baseball Part of Walt's Life

By BRUCE AUGENSTEIN

Walt Godfrey exhibited the form and talent in the Spartan's 19-3 victory last Wednesday which he hopes will help him achieve his ultimate goal after graduation next fall.

Godfrey, Detroit senior, after hurling three innings of near perfect baseball against Detroit came into the locker room, wiping the perspiration from his brow, said, "This is my game. I hope to have a good season this year. I love the game and hope to sign a major league contract after graduation."

Early in Walt's career, he also gained recognition as a promising basketball player. Attending Cass Tech High School in Detroit, Walt received All-State honors in his senior year. Godfrey's baseball pitching started in high school where he was starting pitcher for the Cass Tech squad.

During the past four years at State, Walt has proven his ability, both on the hardwoods and diamonds.

Walt considers being elected honorary captain by his teammates of this year's basketball team the most stimulating return he has received for his efforts. He also considers the Spartan's victory over Ohio State in basketball this year as one of the "sports thrills" of his career.

He is the exception in his family as far as a sports career is concerned. Walt has an older brother attending Wayne University, who in earlier years used to lead Walt in sports activities, but since has declined to follow his scholastic endeavors. Walt also has a younger sister who plans to enroll at State next year.

"My parents have supported me all the time during my athletic career, and have encouraged me to continue, which has proved very inspirational to me," Walt said.

Godfrey's decision to attend State was made after one visit here. "After you once get here, it's hard to leave," Walt said. He is majoring in General Business.

One of his favorite pastimes is "relaxation periods" with his roommate, Harry Lux. These periods are spent talking about world tensions and the art of playing basketball, each having his own theories on how to play the game.

Between school years, Walt plays sandlot baseball in the Detroit area. Leading his teams to championships in their respective leagues, Walt has had several offers to join a major league organization based on his performance. However, he has withheld the signing of a contract until after graduation.

Contemplating his first action after graduation as that of signing a major league contract, the future should be a very successful one on the basis of his past performance here at State.

Two men, Doug McFetters and Terry Block, missed the indoor season because of academic difficulties, while Ron Wheeler has just become a sophomore and Bob Brown is recovering from a foot operation.

McFetters, a returning service veteran, will add depth in the field events and the hurdles. He can be counted on to high jump, broad jump and run the 120-yard high hurdles.

In addition, McFetters is also good in an Olympic event, the hop-step-jump.

The Spartans should have a good shuttle hurdles relay team with McFetters, Capt. Joe Navarro, Dave Lean, Dave Hoke, Ray Eggleston and Roy Bates battling for the four places.

Block and Wheeler are distance runners with the latter a member of the four mile relay team. Block, a junior, can run in either the mile or two mile and will add depth to already strong events.

Wheeler is primarily a two miler but will run the mile in the relays. The Detroit sophomore has done 4:23 in the mile and 9:30 for the two mile.

Brown, a member of the squad last year, had a foot operation last winter and should be in good condition in a few weeks. A member of the mile relay team last year and one of the squad's best quarter-milers, he ran a 25.5 quarter at the Drake Relays last year.

At Kline, the batting champion, in three appearances, Tuttle and Kuenen ties to the spittle Tiger attack.

But as was the Detroit's extra base smother, the Tigers would capitalize on the on-base hit came by Larry slammed Kuller than got a foul to the catcher an intentional walk Ray Boone for the line to right.

Athletics Edge Bengals, 2-1, In Baseball Season's Opener

DETROIT (AP)—Gus Zernial came off the bench in the seventh inning to lash a two-out, two-run double that gave the Kansas City Athletics a 2-1 victory over the Detroit Tigers in their American League opener Tuesday in Briggs Stadium before 40,037 chilled fans.

The drive by Zernial wined out a brilliant, one-man effort by sophomore righthander Frank Lary, who had pitched and batted the Tigers into a 1-0 lead. Lary, 25-year-old righthander, broke a scoreless deadlock in the fifth inning when he lined an inside-the-park home run past centerfielder Harry Simpson. The ball rolled 40 feet to the centerfield wall and Lary scored on a head-first slide.

Up to the seventh, the fast-pitching Alabamian had held the Athletics to three scattered hits and hadn't walked a man.

Catcher Joe Ginsberg started the uprising in the seventh with a one-out double to center. Jim Finigan walked and after pinch hitter Charlie Thompson flied out, Zernial slapped Lary's 3-1 offering off the wall in deep left center. Bobby Shantz, who was running for Ginsberg, and Finigan scored easily.

Zernial tried for third on the play at the plate on Finigan but was thrown out.

The Tigers threatened in the sixth when RENO BERTOLA, ex-minor league player given a shot at the regular second base job, led off with a ringing double to left center. But he could get no further than third. Buddy Hicks, pinch hitting for Lary, tried to sacrifice Bertola into scoring position but popped to the catcher.

Harvey Kuenn flied to Enos Slaughter in short right. With left hand hitting Earl Torgeson coming up Athletic Manager Lou Boudreau then summoned southpaw rookie Tom LaSorda from the bullpen.

The youngster, obtained from the Brooklyn Dodgers' Montreal farm club, uncorked a wild pitch that sent Bertola racing to third. But after throwing one more bad ball, the A's hurler got Torgeson to take a half swing at a breaking pitch and tap weakly to the second baseman.

Despite the disappointing loss, it was an impressive start for the 21-year-old Italian born Ber-tola. He got two hits in four innings and handled seven chances flawlessly.

Al Kaline, the major league batting champion, had a single in three appearances and Bill Tuttle and Kuenn added doubles to the sputtering eighth-hit Tiger attack.

But as was the case of the betas' extra base rap in the sixth, the Tigers were unable to capitalize on the others. Kuenn's two-base hit came in the fifth after Lary slammed his home run. Neither got Torgeson on a foul to the catcher, gave Kaline an intentional walk and retired Ray Boone for the final out on a liner to right.

Gridders Take Cover From Snow and Cold

By JIM HYPPIA

Spring training for Michigan State's football squad has to take a back seat to major league baseball's spring training, weatherwise at least.

Cold and snowy weather prompted Head Coach Duffy Daugherty to send his charges through their paces in the shelter of Jenison Fieldhouse Tuesday afternoon.

The first half hour of practice was spent demonstrating pass plays at the secret practice field with Clarence Peaks, Walt Kowalezyk and Pat Wilson doing the throwing. The remainder of the day was spent at Jenison.

Daugherty selected four teams to run through offensive plays in scrimmage. Two of the teams alternated inside the fieldhouse while the other two went outside. Later the teams switched places.

Among the casualties was end Frank Vaccarelli who broke his left hand. He is expected back Thursday or Friday and will wear limited action while wearing a cast.

Congress To Consider New Bills

Money Main Issue Of Proposals

Money may be appropriated, transferred and detained tonight as three of four bills to be submitted to Student Congress for approval deal with greenbacks.

One bill, introduced last week by treasurer Rex Dawson proposes a $4,000 budget for spring term. Of this amount, $570 has been carried over from the winter term account, according to Dawson.

The budget provides for a contingency fund of $1,310. This will operate the executive branch of government. The unappropriated student fund allows congress $1,490.

A $1,000 budget has been proposed for the student fund. It consists of Spartan Spirit, Student Traffic Appeal Court, International Festival, special elections and personnel program expenses.

The second monetary bill requests the transfer of $557 from the Olympic Fund to the Spartan Olympic Night Fund.

This amount was collected by student government at the MSU-Illinoi basketball game winter term.

Another bill dealing with finances extends the final payment of a $125 loan to Alpha Epsilon Rho to Nov. 30.

One bill granting a temporary charter to the Fellowship of Religious Liberals, a campus organization, will be introduced. Speaker Diane Kroersma said.

A temporary charter is valid for one year. During this probationary period, the club is investigated by the organization committee. The organization must then apply for a permanent charter.

Congressional approval of the bill revising the Fresh-Soph Council's constitution will also be on the agenda.

Boston's Ted Williams in the opening day lineup for the first time in four years and cracking three hits, led an easy lead over the visiting Baltimore team.

Chicago's Bill Larkin walked across the winning run in the eighth inning of a game to give the White Sox a 2-0 record over the Blue Jays.

Jim Brown walked off the field because he was ejected during the game. He was ejected for striking a referee with his fist. He was ejected for striking a referee with his fist.

Cinda 'n Linda, or Linda 'n Cinda?

The All-A Way Cinda, Linda Look, Think Like Twins

Lucinda and Melinda Coulter, Saginaw freshmen, seem to be twins that think alike as well as look alike.

Taking the same tough blend of courses in mathematics, chemistry, natural science and communication skills, the twin sisters achieved straight-

A grades through their first two terms here.

Both were also able to finish two courses one term early via "comps."

They are daughters of Charles C. Coulter, assistant superintendent of Saginaw public schools.

Dr. Thomas H. Hamilton, vice-president for academic affairs, points out that the Saginaw girls have achieved their record by hard work.

"Individuals of great intelligence and an equal diligence are rare," he said. "To find twins who display these capacities is even more unusual. We are delighted to have the Coulters at Michigan State University."

Graduates of Arthur Hill high school in 1955, Cinda and Linda both are accomplished swimmers and pianists.

Their major field of study is mathematics. Of the courses they've had so far, Linda likes chemistry best and found she had to work hardest in natural science. Cinda says she likes "all my courses," but confesses having had the most difficulty with com-

World's Fastest Jet Given Test

PALMDALE, Calif. (AP)—Lockheed's sleek F104A Starfighter, billed as the world's fastest combat plane, has been flown faster than 1,000 m.p.h. in its first public demonstration.

The razor-winged jet, soon to enter Air Force duty, was put through its paces for several hundred observers Monday. The pilot, Herman R. Fish Salmon, 42, made it clear he was holding the craft well below its full speed.

"We could take the world's speed record back from the British with the F104A any time we wanted to," he told reporters.

Lockheed Aircraft Corp., forbidden by the Air Force to make public the plane's full speed, nevertheless indicated it may be capable of velocities more than twice the speed of sound.

m.p.h. more than two times the speed of sound. It was launched, however, from a mother aircraft.

The F104A, with its stubby, water-thin wings, looks more like a rocket than a piloted plane. It is, in effect, a manned missile moving so fast that special refrigeration is required to offset the heat from air friction.

Because the air inlets for the General Electric J79 engine are of "very advanced design," they were concealed under dust covers while the plane was near the hanger. Also for secrecy's sake, the F104A was not demonstrated in flight below 5,000 feet.

C. L. Kelley Johnson, Lockheed vice president for research and development, said outstanding features of the F104A include:

1. A weight about half that of a comparable fighter, although it has all the required safety devices. "This definitely is not a stripped airplane," he said.
2. A cost about half that of an equivalent plane.
3. A versatility so great it can be used for ground attack, interception, or tactical performance, or even carry atomic bombs.
4. The most powerful jet engine thrust per pound, yet developed, and, says Johnson, a rate of climb higher than for any other fighter in the world.
5. The first downward ejection system for a production fighter.

The speed of sound varies from 760 m.p.h. at sea level to about 670 m.p.h. above 35,000 feet.

The official speed record, flown under conditions observed and judged by the International Aeronautic Federation, is held by Britain's Fairey Delta experimental plane at 1,132 m.p.h.

A U.S. research plane, a Bell X-1A, has flown some 1,650
