Big 10 Passes Round-Robin

Athletic Councils to Get Grid Schedule Proposal

By JOE HOFFMAN
State News Sports Editor

The Big 10 athletic councils will meet in Minneapolis this week to discuss the much-discussed round-robin football schedule, receiving most of the attention of the athletic directors and faculty representatives.

As things stand now, here's the tentative plans for the next few years.

In 1959 and 1960, each Big 10 school will play seven conference games. In 1961 and 1962 it will be increased to eight, and the actual round robin schedule will begin in 1963, with each school playing exactly one actual plus one non-conference game.

The directors voted in favor of this program by a 6-4 count. The proposed schedules now go before each school's athletic council, and a simple majority is needed to pass the new round-robin slate.

In other action, three Michigan State athletes were given one extra year of eligibility.

George Thomas, captain of this year's tennis squad, will be eligible next season. Thomas had completed for one year while attending Highland Park Junior College, but the faculty representatives decided this should be cut down his eligibility at State.

In other action, three Michigan State athletes were given one extra year of eligibility.

Football fullback Bob Handloser, who was injured in practice following State's game with Stanford, was given another full year of eligibility under a rule which states that if a player appears in only one game and then suffers an injury which prevents him from playing the rest of the season, he is still entitled to that year of eligibility.

The third athlete to get an extra year's eligibility was trackman Crawford Kennedy, brother of Henry Crawford entered State this past winter term at the age of 20. A rule states that if a foreign student, (the Kennedys are from Scotland) enters a school after his 19th birthday and has competed in sports elsewhere for each year he has competed will mean one less year of eligibility at the Big 10 school he is now attending.

But since Kennedy's competition was while serving with the Royal Air Force, it was not counted against him.

Athletic Director Biggie Munn reported he had issued an invitation to Michigan Athletic Director Fritz Chrisler for the Wolverines to play here at East Lansing in 1960 and in alternate years thereafter.

The current deal between the two schools has the Spartans playing at Ann Arbor four out of every five years. Michigan is next scheduled to play here in 1958, and Munn said he hopes it will continue to play here every other year.

The cadets, accompanied by Lt. Col. Robert L. Dickerson, assistant professor of military science and tactics, will have an opportunity to meet Brucker prior to the luncheon.

The eight cadets selected are: Lawrence Carr, Edmore; Finley E. Lake, Grand Rapids; Duane K. Peterson, Elkhart, Ind.; George W. Tomlinson, Okemos; Neil E. Wall-dorf, Six Lakes; Jon R. Zola, Saginaw; Robert D. Mullin, Green Bay, Wis.; and George Siniini, Milwaukee, Wis.

'False Prosperity,' Claims McNamara

DETROIT (AP)—Sen. (D-Mich.) said Sunday that "this so-called Republican prosperity that we have now is something like a false-front prosperity."

Speaking to a mass meeting of jobless United Auto Workers, McNamara continued:

"There's something about this prosperity picture that strikes me as a bit odd. According to some sources you get a picture of people singing and dancing in the streets and lighting their cigarettes with $10 bills."

But when you look a little closer, it reminds you of a movie set. All the buildings are beautiful, but when you go around behind them, you find they are only attractive fronts held up by some shaky props."

The surface looks good, the high-sounding figures are impressive—but some of the props are giving way—and these are important props such as the auto industry, the farmer and independent business."

The Michigan Employment Security Commission's latest estimate of jobless in the state is 220,000, with 120,000 of them in the Detroit area.

The mass meeting, which drew an estimated 1,000, was called by Louis UAW Local 3, which estimates 14,000 of its 26,800 members are out of work.

Trotter Mayor Albert E. Cox announced candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, Gov. G. Mennen Williams, a Democrat, and Rep. Mackinac, (D-Mich.) also addressed the meeting.

Generally they agreed the unemployment situation is bad here and pledged to do all they could to correct it. None, however, came up with a specifically recommended cure.

Cox said he planned to sound out auto-makers on the possibility of keeping up car production to keep down unemployment. See McNAMARA, Page 6.

Snucker to Address Church Council Group

Dr. Orden C. Snucker, associate professor of sociology and anthropology at MSU, will address a public assembly of Lansing Area Council of Churches at 7:30 p.m. today at the Holy Trinity Greek Orthodox church. He will speak on "The Segregation Issue."

Examination of metropolitan areas is destroying local governments, leaving only empty husks in the core city and suburbs, according to an MSU political scientist.

This is the "real problem" of metropolitan areas today, Dr. Norton E. Long told members of the Northern Ohio Citizenship Clearing House meeting at Western Reserve University.

"This withering of local government is far more important to democracy than mere creature comforts like sewers, water facilities, zoning, highways and transportation for the metropolitan community," Prof. Long said.

Apathy and civic apathy are taking over on the local level. At best, there are endless civic committees whose members stagger listlessly from one meeting to another, measuring their "success" by the number of inches of publicity they receive in the local press.

The big question is whether the people of the United States are capable of recreating new and vital local governments. It would be dangerous to continue the present trend of municipal agencies like the New York Port authority, where the people are administered, rather than self-governed."

The public administration expert cautioned that if local self-government withers on the vine, there will be serious repercussions on the state and national democratic systems.

"Local government has traditionally been the place where political parties had their roots, and legislators received their early training," he said. "Local self-government is the basis and the cradle of democracy."

"The creation of meaningful government for this modern age has not yet been faced up to. If local governments and people continue to fail to meet this challenge, things may deteriorate so far that some form of government will have to be imposed from above, just like Congress was forced to set up the Tennessee Valley authority."

Horse and buggy governments won't work in this atomic and jet age. Citizen committees, special purpose authorities and trustees, and other stopgap measures only make matters worse.

"This country needs democratic, responsible, and efficient local government. In another 25 years, the bulk of our population will be living in metropolitan areas, and the problem must be faced now to avoid disaster then."

Dr. Long was professor of political science at Western Reserve from 1947 to 1955, and prior to that was with the National Housing Agency and the Office of Price Administration.

Arabs' Offer Of Nazi Aid Unearthed

British Publish German Papers

LONDON (AP)—The British government published Sunday a captured German document which claimed the late King Ibn Saud offered to cooperate with the Nazis just before World War II if Germany would provide bargain-price arms for Saudi Arabia.

The document is part of a series of papers on German foreign policy being published by Britain to shed light on diplomatic maneuverings before the war. The series issued Sunday is entitled "The Last Months of Peace."

The document on Saudi Arabia, a report sent to Berlin just before the war by Fritz Grobba, German minister in Iraq and Saudi Arabia, Grobba's report, as published by the British, indicated he had been sounding out possible allies for Hitler in case the broke out.

While in Saudi Arabia I completely revised my views of King Ibn Saud's attitude to Britain," Grobba wrote. "I have gained the definite impression that he hates the British and is trying to extricate himself from their hands."

In his new position, Linton will serve as secretary of the academic council, senate and assembly—all faculty governing groups. In addition, he will be secretary of the administrative group, the central council made up of university officers and deans.

In commenting upon Linton's appointment, Vice President Thomas H. Hamilton said that one of Linton's major responsibilities will be to codify university rules and regulations.

This has not been done at Michigan State in recent years," Dr. Hamilton said, "and it requires a person who has an intimate knowledge of the functioning of the institution to do the job."

Mr. Linton's long and meritorious service to Michigan State makes him entirely qualified to assume this responsibility.

Fear Cut Of Measure By Senate

Needs Support Of GOP Leaders

WASHINGTON (AP)—Three Democratic senators called on President Eisenhower Sunday to put pressure on Republican Senate leaders to fight hard for his $4,900,000,000 foreign aid bill.

The three—Sen. Sparkman (Ala.), Humphrey (Minn.) and Mansfield (Mont.)—are members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

This group is now conducting hearings on the program, which the House Foreign Affairs Committee last week passed by more than a billion dollars.

Republican Sens. H. Alexander Smith (N.J.) and Kuchel (Calif.) voiced hope of more favorable treatment by the Senate. But Sparkman told a reporter:

"There is danger of the program being cut in the Senate, too. This cut can be forestalled only by the President's exercise of his leadership, through his own leadership."

If he can get the support he ought to have from his own leaders, there's no reason why the program cannot be substantially sustained."

"We Democrats ought not to be required to carry all the load for him. That job belongs to him and to his leaders."

Senate Republican Leader Knowland (Calif.) and Chairman Bridges (N.H.) of the Senate GOP Policy Committee will not vote the full amount sought by Eisenhower.

Sen. Humphrey, in a separate interview, declared: "The passage of this program is going to require more leadership than just sending a bill down here and having witnesses testify."

In another interview, Mansfield said that if Knowland and Bridges get behind the full program, it would have a better chance.

"The Democrats have been carrying the ball for the President's foreign policy," Mansfield said. "Some of them are beginning to waver."

Dr. Louis L. McQuitty, noted psychologist and educator at the University of Illinois, will become head of Michigan State University's psychology department Sept. 1.

Dr. McQuitty, whose appointment was approved Friday by the State Board of Agriculture, will succeed Dr. Donald M. Johnson, who has served as acting head of the department since September, 1955.

The 16-year-old educator presently is professor of psychology and assistant head of the department at Illinois. He received the B.S.E. degree in 1933 at the University of Florida, the M.A. degree in 1934 and the Ph.D. degree in 1937, both at the University of Toronto.

What Should Determine Who Goes to College?

Fifty years ago a college education was something only a tiny percentage of the population acquired. Wealth and social position were important factors in determining who went to college. Most American youth of college age were content—indeed, considered themselves lucky—if they could finish four years of high school.

Today the picture is changed. More and more youth are demanding a higher education. Educators and administrators see their enrollments climbing and wonder how the trend can be curbed.

Out of their wondering and worrying, several plans have developed. One of the most interesting is propounded by those who maintain quantity is superseding quality.

They claim a weeding-out process must be done at the high school level. Only those deserving a higher education, they say, should be allowed to benefit from the available facilities. A system of choosing the most qualified persons must be put into effect.

The plan perhaps has some merit, but it contains a problem for which no adequate solution exists: who can judge an individual's potential ability to do well in a college situation? And on what basis?

The answer is no one. Despite all sorts of psychological tests, intelligence tests and ability tests, no one can measure and predict scientifically if a student will succeed in college. The superior students can be identified of course, as can the very poor risks. But even among them high or low grades are not a guarantee of college success or failure.

Obviously, no college or university can admit just anybody. Standards must be established. But what shall these standards be?

Some institutions maintain a philosophy that education is the acquisition of knowledge, period. They cry for a rigid and absolute standard of admission which would admit the brilliant—and deny advanced learning to many who have the potential and desire for higher education, but in whom the potential and desire are latent.

Professors seem to be the prime advocates of the "rigid" admission policy. Each usually has his own set of standards and finds much to criticize in students who do not know what he thinks they should know when they enter his course.

Many of these critics, staunch backers of a classical foundation, apparently see little merit in a mind desiring a higher education and capable of that education.

They instead rant on about inadequate high school preparation and the "pitiful" state of the student mind—"pitiful" meaning a mind that has not been steeped in ancient history, foreign languages, philosophy or whatever topic the professor happens to be teaching.

If the admission policy of any institution of higher learning was conducted along this "rigid" line, a class of intellectual elite would be produced, certainly. But it would be an elite unable to fill the places needed in modern society.

Fortunately, most admissions offices do not operate on an unbending, "rigid" basis. A student's potential, not how expert he is in any one field, is of the utmost concern to the registrar who believes education is the utilization of knowledge.

The goal is the graduate who is fit to be a citizen of the world; stable and well-rounded; able to cope with the problems of life.

MSU operates on the principle that, as a state-supported institution, its duty is to provide an education for the children of the taxpayers of the state. This does not mean, as is so often claimed, that MSU must admit every person who applies.

Every applicant for admission is carefully considered; his high school record is examined; his high school principal is asked to comment on his conduct, character, habits, emotional stability, attitude and potential.

In this way, and through admission tests and counseling, every applicant is given a fair chance. Those who do not pan out flunk out.

Educational opportunity does not mean repeated opportunity to fail. It does not mean that the high school student with a weak record, with inadequate achievement in admission testing and counseling, without endorsement of his high school teachers and without initiative should be admitted.

What does it mean?

David Henry, executive vice-chancellor of New York University, summed it up when he said:

"Between the poor student and the superior one, are a large number for whom the door must be kept open, not alone for their sake but for what the opportunity means to American life."

Man of the Hour

From the Secretary of Labor

A Message to 1956 Graduates

EDITOR'S NOTE: The following is the first of two articles written by the Secretary of Labor, especially for the graduating senior. In them, he describes the nation's present economic condition and outlines the employment possibilities in the fields of business, civil service, engineering, health, natural science, social work and teaching.

By JAMES P. MITCHELL
Secretary of Labor

Last year the U. S. achieved a higher and more fairly distributed material prosperity than ever before.

More goods and services were produced, and consumed, and more people were employed at higher wages and salaries than at any time in the history of our country, including the high-level war periods. It was a period of unprecedented and remarkable growth.

Indications point to further increases in the production and consumption of goods and services and to further employment and wage gains in 1956.

Everywhere across our broad and varied land are signs of continued confidence. Employment this spring is 21 million higher than it was last spring. Wages and salaries are higher. Business is embarking on the largest expansion in our history.

Consumers are planning to spend as much as ever before and there are many more of them now. Unemployment has fallen 350,000 since last spring.

A period of great expansion creates a natural drain on materials needed to feed our industrial processes. It is not surprising that as the record year of 1955 drew to a close limitations of materials, plants, equipment and qualified personnel were noticed. Plants now underway will overcome much of the material, plant and equipment shortage. An indication of the size of our expansion may be had from these figures:

Businessmen will spend about $35 billion in new plants and equipment—$6 billion more than last year's all-time high. Manufacturers alone will spend some $15 billion—30 percent above 1955's total. Those engaged in commercial, service and similar enterprises will spend almost $11 billion more. Public utilities plan to spend some $3 billion. Further billions will be spent by the mining, railroad and other transportation facilities.

Unlike material limitations, the shortage of qualified personnel cannot be met by greater expenditures and broader planning. An alert, creative, imaginative human being is the product of many years of training, discipline and guidance. It is to our educational institutions we turn for this, the greatest of our nation's riches.

The role this year's graduate will play in our economy is a critical one. The fabric of our manpower, stretched by technological advances, by new industries, by the pressing demands of military preparedness and domestic expansion, has revealed the acuteness of old shortages and the danger of new ones. These shortages promise to continue with little abatement throughout the year. While this poses many serious problems to personnel managers, it also places this year's graduating class in an excellent employment position.

Close to 325,000 bachelor's degrees will be awarded this spring—this is nearly 40,000 more than last year but still 100,000 below the peak of 1950.

Job opportunities for those receiving bachelor's degrees are excellent. In even greater demand are the 57,000 men and women gaining their master's degree. At the top of the wanted list are the elite group of 8,300 who will receive their doctorates.

Most of you will complete your formal education with your graduation. For those of you who have the means and ability to continue your education, it is well to realize that in this age of the specialist, there is a great premium upon those who have advanced knowledge.

The fact that many jobs are available is of little value unless you can find the right one in terms of your training, aptitudes and interest. Many sources of detailed information and assistance are available to you. One useful source, which you may find in your college placement and counseling office is the Department of Labor's "Occupational Outlook Handbook." By all means make full use of your college placement office—it may save you from making a costly mistake in choosing your career field.

The public employment offices affiliated with the U. S. Employment Service list job openings in your area. While these are by no means the total of employer's shortages in your area, they are indicative of the types of workers in demand. You will find in these offices a wealth of information on employment not only in your area but throughout the country.

A selective look at the entire employment situation reveals the variety and breadth of opportunity. Long-term trends in trade, finance, service and government, for instance, will enable those sectors of the economy (all of which have been setting new employment records virtually every month for the past year and a half) to absorb something like 500,000 workers. This year's further small increases are anticipated in construction and transportation.

A major part of the employment gains last year were in manufacturing. The expenditures mentioned previously promise additional jobs in many manufacturing industries such as those producing iron and steel, copper and aluminum, and other basic metals.

Plants producing electrical generating and transmission equipment, electric motors and instruments are expected to have more jobs.

Sustained consumer demand, boosted by continued high wages, will require job vacancies to be filled in the furniture, household appliance, apparel and paper industries, among others.

On the other hand, long-term downturns in lumber, textiles and leather will probably continue throughout 1956.

TUESDAY: General employment opportunity prospects for this year's graduating class in several broad occupational fields.

SATURDAY
The Cycling Spartans will bike to Grand Ledge. Everyone is welcome on the trip, which will leave from the "Y" House at 9 a.m. Lunch or lunch money should be brought.

An important meeting for all State News staff members will be held at 10:30 a.m. Production plans for fall term will be discussed.

SUNDAY
The Lutheran Student Association will meet at the church from 6:30-8 p.m. Pastor Wolf will lead the discussion on "Lutheran Heretics in Wisconsin."

Wisconsin Turns Down Bricker

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Sen. Alexander Wiley (R-Wis.), a staunch supporter of President Eisenhower's foreign policy and fierce opponent of proposed Bricker amendment, faced Sunday the prospect of a bitter September fight in seeking a re-election.

Wiley, a GOP Convention delegate, turned down a Wisconsin campaign for endorsement. He placed his blessing to the state's 11th congressional district, Waukesha, Wis., an eleven-hour steamship ride to swing the vote away from Wiley.

Wiley was a last minute entrant in the endorsement race. He was recently as April he was not a candidate.

Wiley added with state Republican party leaders for the next year, said, however, the loss of endorsement would prevent him from seeking re-election.

Wiley said, "I never want to be a candidate."

Wiley, a ranking GOP member of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, was censured by the State Republican convention in 1955 for opposing the amendment on the floor and leading an all-out effort to bring about its defeat.

Wiley is regarded as a highly respected Republican and followed what political observers called "the Republican line" on the amendment, not supporting it.

Wiley said that as many as 28 former service men in a recent class at Annapolis resigned soon after appointments, Russell said.

Existing law directs that cadets at the West Point military academy, midshipmen at the Naval Academy and appointees to other military academies be discharged from regular military obligations when they win these appointments.

Until 1953 the Selective Service Act required that the student officers serve out regular enlistment or be subject to draft induction unless they completed their studies or had medical or physical discharges.

May Crowning

Approximately 800 people joined in the annual May Crowning of the Blessed Virgin Mary as Queen of the Campus at the bandshell Sunday. Principal speaker for the coronation was Fr. Walter Mas Lanka, a former Michigan State student. Also on the program was a living rosary recited by 66 men and women university students and the St. Thomas Aquinas school choir. Mike Dillon, Newman Club president, gave the introductory address.

Academy Drop-Outs

Draft Loophole Closed By Senate Services Group

WASHINGTON (AP) — Chairman Russell (D-Ga.) said Sunday the Senate Armed Services Committee has voted to close a legal loophole open to a few draft age men who want to avoid military service.

Only those able to get an appointment to Army, Navy, Air Force or Coast Guard academies can take advantage of the loophole, by resigning after brief stays.

"We were told that as many as 28 former service men in a recent class at Annapolis resigned soon after appointments," Russell said.

Existing law directs that cadets at the West Point military academy, midshipmen at the Naval Academy and appointees to other military academies be discharged from regular military obligations when they win these appointments.

Until 1953 the Selective Service Act required that the student officers serve out regular enlistment or be subject to draft induction unless they completed their studies or had medical or physical discharges.

Since then the resigned cadets and midshipmen have been exempt from the draft. The new legislation would end this exemption and require from 6 to 8 years of military service.

Russell said the Defense Department bill was unanimously approved by his Senate committee.

Rivals Rest On Florida Campaign

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The rival candidates rested wearily on their campaign oars Sunday, each guardedly confident of victory in Florida's vital presidential preference primary Tuesday.

For Adlai Stevenson, the former Illinois governor and in 1952 Democratic presidential nominee, it was church at Fort Pierce and an afternoon on the beach with the brothers and widow of the late Gov. Dan McCarly of Florida.

Stevenson's strategists have been telling him he has gained in Miami and populous Dade County and he's optimistic now about his chances in the primary.

For Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) it was church at Jacksonville, with a strong and key supporter, Mayor Haydon Burns.

Kefauver felt for a while he was running second in the Florida primary battle. Now he says he has stepped out ahead.

Among political observers and newsmen who have been tagging after the two candidates, the preponderance of opinion seems to be that Kefauver still is behind, but not far.

Thinclads Place 4th In Big 10 Title Meet

Brabham, Kennedy Capture 3 Individual Track Titles

Ed Brabham and Henry Kennedy coupled three individual titles to lead Michigan State to a fourth place finish at the Big 10 outdoor track championships at Minneapolis, Minn., last Friday and Saturday.

State had 28½ points while Michigan won their fourth straight crown with 41. Iowa finished a close second with 37½ and Indiana was third with 34½.

Minnesota's 21½ was good for fifth place while Ohio State was next with 19½. They were followed by Illinois with 15, Northwestern 13, Wisconsin 4½, and Purdue 1.

Brabham was one of the two double winners in the meet. The New York center captured the 100-yard dash in a personal best, and took the 200-yard dash with a 21.1 clocking, his fastest of the season.

In addition, he placed fourth in the broad jump with a 25' 7". His total of 12½ points surpassed only by Ohio State's Glenn Davis, who had 13.

Henry's Ted Wachs placed fourth in the 100-yard dash, and fifth in the 200-yard dash. He was followed by Illinois' Ed Smith, who placed sixth in the 100-yard dash and seventh in the 200-yard dash.

Kennedy, the Big Ten country champion, captured the 400-yard dash with a 1:12.1 clocking, his fastest of the season.

Weather Halts '500' Drivers

INDIANAPOLIS (AP)—Twenty-eight veteran Indianapolis Motor Speedway drivers and five newcomers from the dirt and midget car circuits Sunday filled the field for the 40th 500-mile race, Wednesday, but some of the slower ones weren't sure starters.

Track officials promised two hours of qualifying runs after rain washed out the Saturday trial, and delayed Sunday's runs for two hours and 35 minutes.

Six cars got onto the track before rain set in again 57 minutes later.

The track will open for an hour and three minutes at 8 a.m. (EST) today if weather permits, but chief steward Harry McQuinn said there can't be more qualifications after 6 p.m. because the track surface must be cleaned Tuesday.

The weather apparently had eliminated one of the powerful Novi V-8s, driven by Eddie Russell of Hammond, Ind., and the experimental Italian-American Barfield Ferrari.

Net Squad Takes 6th in Big 10

The Michigan State varsity tennis team completed the 1956 season placing sixth in the Big 10 Championships held at Minneapolis Friday.

The University of Michigan net squad won the title although Indiana was close behind. Their top win came at the No. 1 singles as Harry McKay won over Al Kuhn 6-2, 6-2.

The championships were originally scheduled to be held on Thursday but were cancelled due to rain.

State's captain Dave Brogan advanced the furthest for the Spartans. He reached the semi-finals in the No. 1 singles.

He faced Kuhn, the 1954 champion. After losing the first set 7-5 he rallied to win the next set 6-2 and struggled to a 5-2 lead in the third. He lost the third set 8-6.

Dick Menzel, State's No. 2 singles player, was defeated in the third set of the first round by Carl Dentice of Indiana who finally went to the finals. He was defeated 6-8, 6-3, 6-4.

Coeds Rained Out In Tennis Finale

The coed tennis team was rained out of its final meet Saturday afternoon, as only one match was played against Western Michigan College at Kalamazoo.

State's No. 1 player, Joyce Pniewski, defeated Western's Libby Holtz, 6-0, 6-0 in the only completed match.

The coeds finished their season with a 5-2 record.

At the No. 3 singles position George Steponovic faced Big 10 champion Mark Jaffe in the second round and was defeated 6-0, 6-1.

Bill Bisard was defeated in the first round of the No. 4 singles as he was ousted by George Fryman of Indiana 9-7, 6-1 after leading 5-1 in the first set. Fryman won the No. 4 singles position.

Jim Beachum of State was defeated in the first round of the tournament as he lost in three sets 3-6, 6-3, 6-2 to Jack Wings from Wisconsin.

In the No. 6 slot Charles Dare was beaten by Don McDonald of Illinois 6-2, 6-3. Ken Dillman of Indiana won the No. 6 position.

In the doubles at the No. 1 spot Bisard and Menzel were defeated by Big 10 champions McKay and Potter 6-3, 6-2 in the first round.

Brogan and Steponovic were defeated in the No. 2 doubles 6-4, 7-5 by Anderson and Egan of Northwestern.

Beachum and Dare were defeated by Fryman and Dillman 6-2, 6-3, who finally went on to win the No. 3 doubles for Indiana and complete the Big 10 scoring.

Cobo Rapped by Leonard For Becoming Candidate

MIDLAND (AP) — Donald S. Leonard, Republican candidate for governor, said today that Detroit Mayor Albert E. Cobo had told him privately some time ago that he did not intend to run for governor.

"Yet, I saw his (Cobo's) long arm stretch all the way from Arizona to Michigan so that it could be conveniently twisted to persuade him to become a gubernatorial candidate," Leonard said.

Leonard, former Detroit and State Police Commissioner, and the GOP gubernatorial candidate in 1954, spoke before the Midland Republican Breakfast Club.

He repeated a charge that the Republican Convention in Detroit had been "rigged" in favor of Cobo. This, he said, was not done by the GOP State Central Committee but "by a certain clique within the party."

Leonard warned Republicans against complacency and a "free and easy campaign" for the general election in November, and called for "free enterprise and competition in politics."

Dr. Hance Named Speech Professor

Dr. Kenneth G. Hance, assistant dean of the School of Speech, Northwestern University, was named professor of speech Friday by the State Board of Agriculture.

Dr. Hance, whose appointment will be effective July 1, will direct the public address area of the new doctoral program in the department of speech.

Dr. Hance received the B.A. and M.A. degrees at Oberlin College and the Ph.D. degree at the University of Michigan. Prior to joining Northwestern's faculty, he taught at Olivet and Albion Colleges and at the University of Michigan.

The co-author of two speech texts, Dr. Hance is executive secretary of the Interstate Oratorical Assn.

even if this should mean adding to new car inventories that already top 900,000 units.

His idea, Cobo said, is to enable auto employees to remain working until federal aid and local improvement projects can take hold to balance employment conditions.

Williams said he would call a conference in the near future of the top representatives of labor and management, "not only in the auto industry, but from other segments of our Michigan economy already severely affected by unemployment."

"I cannot speak for industry and I cannot speak for labor," the Governor said. "But I can speak for the government of Michigan. And I tell you that we are not going to leave anything undone that will help you get back on the job."

McNamara said there were a number of reasons for current unemployment in the auto industry, adding:

One big one perhaps is that the auto industry may have gotten a bit greedy last year and gotten up too much of its market. Sales races between the giants were more important than maintaining an orderly market.

State News Takes Ribbing In Final Spartan, Out Today

The State News takes a good-natured ribbing from its next-door neighbor today when the final Spartan goes on sale in the Union, Nat Sci and outside the Union.

Inserted in the middle of the magazine is a four-page tabloid size "Michigan State Snooze" which makes fun of the world, the country, the state, the campus and "Stupid Congress."

The magazine itself contains three pieces of student fiction, a picture display on the Green Splash show, a collection of the year's Sparty Pix and a political take-off titled, "The Candidate."

Domelly W. Hadden, in this, his final issue as editor of the Spartan, vents a vitriolic attack on rock 'n' roll music in his "Perusal" column.

Included in the Snooze parody are campus stories on "Worter Cornval" and a "lovelorn" column about what happens when a man with eight-pins gets stuck.

An editorial in the parody attacks the problem and gives necessary solutions and precautions while the sports page tells of the big fix in IM badminton circles.

"By 1957, we hope to have the third largest stadium in the Big 10," Munn commented. "We hope to seat 76,000 by then." The current seating capacity is 50,000, and it will be increased to 60,000 for the 1956 season.

Munn said it cost the State students too much money to see the game at Ann Arbor four years out of five.
