N. Korea Builds Up With Jets

Poles, Czechs Mask Violations

PANMUNJOM, Korea (AP)—The UN Command told the UN member Neutral Nations supervisors to get out of North Korea charging it had been used to mask a true-building arms buildup in North Korea.

The UN Command accused Czechoslovak and Polish members of flagrant unneutral conduct in covering up Communist violations and frustrating attempts by the Swedish and Swiss members to investigate them.

The commission's functions in North Korea have been suspended since the UN Command informed the Communist command until all provisions of the armistice agreement are met in North Korea, particularly those forbidding an increase in military strength.

The UN Command demanded "corrected" reports of shipments of military material and aircraft particularly jet planes—which the UN Command has moved illegally into North Korea since the armistice signing in Geneva in 1953.

Bran announced the 16 nations whose troops compose the UN Command, headed by U. S. Gen. Robert G. Gard, have agreed to a conference to resolve the dispute and withdraw foreign troops.

The British Foreign Office said it had sent a note on behalf of all 16 governments telling the UN Command and the Communist North Korea regime the UN has given no evidence of the good faith required to make such a meeting useful.

The North Koreans declared in a statement on the Pyongyang radio Thursday night they will disarm 80,000 men from their forces by Aug. 31 and also to South Korea to cut its forces to speed talks of reunification.

The broadcast, heard in Tokyo, did not say how big the North Korean force would be after this. It also said the UN Command estimate of 400,000 troops, of which 300,000 are Chinese, is "grossly inflated."

Informing newsmen here that the UN Command has no instructions to the truce commission, and its teams are expected to be pulled back to the neutral zone between North and South Korea within a week.

Senate Passes Death Penalty For Dope Sale

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill to impose the death penalty for the sale of heroin passed the Senate by voice vote Thursday. The measure now goes to the House where Ways and Means committee Thursday approved a bill imposing life imprisonment for the sale of heroin and marijuana peddlers, and the death penalty for the sale of the drug to a minor.

The Senate approved bill would impose capital punishment for sale of heroin, and the "know or should know" test for sale of the drug to a minor.

Before passage the Senate passed a provision which would have authorized wire tapping to obtain evidence against narcotics peddlers in general, a provision which is opposed in the House Committee.

Sen. Judd Says Dulles Being Left to Roam

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Walter Judd (R-Minn.) said Thursday he had heard of a plot to keep Secretary of State Dulles roaming the globe so underlings could determine foreign policy in Washington.

These underlings he described as Old Guard holdovers from the Dean Acheson regime. "At another point he said 'pro-Communists' or 'intellectuals' in lower echelons of the State and Defense Departments are pulling strings and influencing the policy of higher-up officials of the Eisenhower administration."

Judd, a former medical missionary in China, testified before a Senate Internal Security subcommittee. The State Department had no comment.

The congressman, who is a top Republican on the House Foreign Affairs Committee, testified that back in 1953 after the inauguration of President Eisenhower, a State Department employee told him of the alleged plot.

He said the employee explained that "the Old Guard employees" of the department who had served under Secretary Acheson in the Truman administration meant to keep Dulles on the globe go. By so doing, the explanation continued, the day-to-day actions they took in Dulles' absence would become policy.

After the hearing, Judd told newsmen his informant was a department employee who had fought the Old Guard employees.

A reporter remarked on Dulles' frequent and extensive overseas trips and asked Judd whether he thought the plan reported to him had been carried out.

"You can judge for yourself," he replied. "I am certainly not an expert, but I am certainly not a Communist, and I am certainly not a member of the Communist party."

Judd, asked by Sen. Eastland (Miss.) if he thought "pro-Communists" are still in the State Department and the Pentagon.

The congressman said he didn't mean these employees were Communist party members, but he testified he did not think it was just happenstance when persons advocate policies that consistently work out "against our interests."

Student Government OK's Insurance Plan

Policies Open to Full-Time Students Begin Fall Term

By CYNTHIA EATON
The student insurance plan approved by Student Government Wednesday night, will be effective fall term. The policy, handled by the Continental Company of Chicago, will be open to all full-time students.

A premium rate of $8.50 for 12 months will entitle the policy holder to $2,000 accidental death and dismemberment benefits; $750 blanket accident coverage benefits; $500 blanket hospitalization due to sickness benefits; and $200 surgical fee benefits.

The policy will supplement Old Memorial Center benefits. McKnight and Lyman of Lansing will be the local agency and will make claim payments.

A student representative, selected by the insurance company will work with the local agency and will hold office hours during the week to answer questions and accept claims.

Brochures explaining the policy along with post cards will be mailed to all students during the summer. The cards are to be filled out designating whether the student desires to sign up for the policy and then returned.

Those students desiring the policy will be covered during their return to school in the fall. Payment and enrolling for the policy will be made at a special booth at registration.

The Continental Company holds student insurance policies at Ohio State, Indiana University, Notre Dame, University of Illinois, and Wisconsin.

Investigation of the possibility of a student insurance plan began in November. Sixty-eight per cent of students in a referendum vote during spring term registration indicated they would be interested in a student group insurance.

Insurance bids were reopened spring term after a re-evaluation of the program by the student insurance committee resulted in a feeling that the suggested program was not what would serve the best interests of the student body as a whole.

West Landon Awarded Scholarship Trophies

West Landon received the traveling scholarship trophy at the women's residence halls officers' dinner Thursday. This trophy, presented by Dean of Students Tom King, is given each year to the dormitory with the highest point average.

A small permanent trophy was also presented to West Landon for the highest average winter term.

Painkiller Looks Promising

These periodical trips to the dentist may become less unpleasant in the future, thanks to the work of a Michigan State research chemist.

Dr. Robert D. Schuetz, associate professor of chemistry, has developed a new "pain-killing" drug which appears to have stronger and longer-lasting effects than equal amounts of procaine (commonly known as novocain).

The new drug, however, does not yet have the same spreading action as procaine, and requires more time to take effect. Schuetz has had a particular interest in local anesthetics, and in changing the molecular structure of certain drugs to keep their good effects but to

Lantern Night Preview

Coeds Listen as Singers Serenade Living Units

Twenty-three coed living units were serenaded last night as a preview to Lantern Night to be held Sunday night.

Mortar Board and Tower Guard members serenaded the forms and sorority houses after closing hours last night to indicate that seniors living there would be among the 50 chosen to be honored during the traditional ceremony Sunday night.

The serenaders carried lighted lanterns and left as many lanterns at a living unit as there were seniors to be honored. These lanterns will be brought to the Lantern Night program by some coed representing the house.

Monday posters were placed in the living units where seniors live. The 50 seniors to be honored will not be announced until Sunday.

Sunday night old and new members of Tower Guard and Mortar Board, AWS Activities members, East Landon, Dorn Sing winners, and the 150 freshmen, sophomores and junior coeds selected to participate will meet at 7:50 in front of the Union. Any senior women may also participate. They are asked to wear caps and gowns. The procession will proceed around Circle Drive to Dr. Hannah's home.

Dr. Hannah will give the main address and the 50 outstanding seniors will be named. Tower Guard and Mortar Board presidents will be installed.

The East Landon cheer will also sing then. In case of rain the ceremony will be held in the Music Aud.

Junior Players To Give 3 Shows

The University Junior Players will perform their third play of the year, "The Land of the Dragon," in the MSU Toyshop Theatre, Friday evening at 7:30 and at 10 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday at 4 and 7 p.m.

The cast of this "Chinese style" fantasy by Madge Miller includes young people from the Lansing and Okemos areas. The play is being directed by Mary R. Bratton, a graduate assistant in the children's theatre department.

Membership includes 25 children ranging from the first through twelfth grades. The children participate in all types of play production, ushering and crew assignments. Guest tickets are available in the main speech office.

Katie Doyle, Kinen Chosen for Office

Bob Becker was elected Student Government president and Roger Missimer was elected Congress speaker at the Student Government meeting last night.

Tom Kinen was elected speaker pro tem and Katie Doyle was elected secretary.

Becker, Lansing Junior, defeated Don Gillette, Standish senior, 31-14 with one abstaining vote.

Missimer, Reading sophomore, defeated Marie Gleason, Royal Oak sophomore, 29-18 with one abstaining vote.

Preceding the elections Robert Johnson, Detroit junior was approved to fulfill the vacancy on the Student Traffic Court for summer term.

The student insurance bill was unanimously passed after rules of procedure were suspended. The insurance policy will go into effect next fall.

Following the election, Congress under the leadership of their new speaker, cited upon two items of new business.

A special committee was appointed to investigate Bryan Hall's $25 contribution check to the Sports Clinic which was reported missing by Bruce Ferris, president of the Veterans Association. The committee was dissolved when it was reported that the check had been found.

Ferris claimed that the check had been mailed to the Student Government office in care of the Veterans Association in the campus mail Monday and that the mailman had remembered delivering it to the Student Government office that day. He said that at 5 p.m. Thursday there was still no record of the check having been received.

Upon report of the check being found Ferris said he was positive the new administration and Congress would be very efficient after their very speedy recovery of the check.

Three Congress representatives were elected members on the Committee on Committees. They are: Dave Olson, Cadillac sophomore; Marie Gleason, Royal Oak sophomore; and Dan Gallagher, Parkersburg, West Va. sophomore.

Would 2-Party System Spark Student Politics?

In today's letters to the editor column, John Goodhand, a Student Congress representative from Rafter Hall, claims "a new representative (on Congress) is faced with a wall of jealousy from returning representatives trying to protect their reputation."

This "natural reaction" he continues, could be overcome by the formation of student political parties.

The State News is not so sure there is "wall of jealousy" facing new congressmen, but Goodhand's suggestion that a two-party system be formed is intriguing.

The idea is not a new one here. It is an

V-8 Victory

Although they tried hard, America's drivers couldn't quite measure up to expectations on Memorial Day.

The National Safety Council predicted a 110 person death toll on the highways for the holiday but the best the American motorists could do was 109 deaths.

The safety council said it was "distressed" that the toll came so "tragically close" to its prediction.

It is nice that someone is distressed. It is obvious that the American public is not only not distressed, it isn't even worried or even, apparently, concerned.

Law enforcement and administrative groups are trying hard to cope with the problem of the highway slaughter that takes place every day and which rises to a gory pitch on holidays.

National Guardsmen are used to good advantage in Michigan. But even with the addition of the guardsmen, five people died violent deaths on the state's highways.

In Tennessee, the state police have adopted a system of mass blockade and mass patrol which has proved moderately successful.

Safety Commissioner Hilton Butler, who originated the plan, has said, "We intend to try and get the motorists in this state under control. And we'll play it in the open or play it sneak—but we're going to cut the death toll."

This attitude is refreshing and completely in line. It is time that the bloody carnage on the nation's highways is met with the same ruthlessness that breeds it.

Americans are too ready to shrug off the mounting auto fatality list with a "It could never happen to me." But day in and day out, hundreds of friends, relatives and loved ones find out to their deep sorrow that it can happen to them.

Since the motorists have so little regard for their lives, someone must step in and save their lives for them.

It is only through seemingly "ruthless" and "stormtrooper" tactics that this carnage can be slowed and eventually stopped.

idea that frequently crops up, especially among discontented congressmen who are of the opinion the representative group is a "do-nothing" organization. They believe a two-party system will instill a new life into Congress. They assume student interest will naturally be great in a two-party system. "After all," they reason, "most students are interested in and follow the doings of the Democratic and Republican parties. Why couldn't such interest be manifested on the college level if two parties existed?"

Why indeed? A two-party system could possibly work at MSU. But much work would be required to lay the foundation for any such plan—and even then its chances of success are slim if the experiences of other Big 10 schools are any criteria.

The "Ivory Tower," a publication of the University of Minnesota, recently conducted a poll of the editors of Big 10 newspapers to find out, among other things, what part campus political parties play in student government affairs and if they influence voting.

Five universities, the publication found,—Michigan State, the State University of Iowa, the University of Michigan, the University of Illinois and Purdue University have no political party systems.

"However," reported the publication, "lack or presence of a party system does not seem to indicate that more or less students will vote."

"The University of Michigan, for example, without a party system, has a voting percentage of between 40 and 50 percent. And the University of Wisconsin, where parties do exist, sees only 15 to 20 percent of the students go to the polls."

"At most campuses with organized parties, editors of student newspapers report there is little difference between basic beliefs of the parties. And, on most campuses, Greeks support one party while commuters and others support the other."

There is a classic story about campus political parties which may or may not be true, but it shows what can happen when a non-thinking group gains power.

One party, goes the story, campaigned on the platform that it would abolish the student tax if elected.

It was elected, and found it didn't have a cent with which to run the Student Government.

The merits of a two-party system are just as numerous and varied as those of a no-party system, as are the disadvantages.

If student interest in their student government is the desired goal, the government must convince students of its value and strength.

The evidence indicates parties alone do not necessarily add or detract to student interest in their governmental system.

Here and There Wolverine Out Despite Worries

By GENE RITZINGER
State News Editorial Page Editor

The 1956 Wolverine, a beautiful maroon and gold covered, picture-filled 468-page book is here—and right on time as editor Chuck Pardon promised it would be.

There were times during the past year when Pardon was really "sweating it" for the book never would come out. He could be seen running around like a chicken with its head cut off, murmuring under his breath "Photo deadline's tomorrow and I've still got 30 pictures to take."

On his last issue into the Wolverine office mumbled, "Shows all winter long, but when I want to take a picture of the library surrounded by snow, what happens? Damn sun comes out and melts it all. You can't win, that's all. You just can't win."

Pardon's judicious frame thinned noticeably while he worried about meeting deadlines and distribution dates.

He might have had a few problems, but they were nothing compared to those of the editor of the 1955 Maroon, yearbook of Fordham University.

The Maroon's editor had deadline troubles too. But not being as conscientious as Pardon, he didn't worry about them and the Maroon didn't quite make its distribution date.

It was, in fact, eight months late.

The editor of the '56 Maroon, who had been left holding the bag when his predecessor graduated, was "amazed and dumbfounded" when cartons of the volume finally showed up on a "dark, fog-shrouded evening."

"The city of last year's Maroon staff," said he after recovering from the shock of finally seeing the long-lost book, "was 'Wait till next year, but I'll be darned if I thought they really meant it.'"

Sales of the '56 Maroon, he complained, were far behind those of 1955. Students were reluctant to purchase it until they had examined the quality of its predecessor and "unfortunately, we haven't had any to show them."

He gave a long sales talk on the virtues of the '56 book, promising additional pages and pictures. It would be an annual rather than a yearbook and give coverage to all classes rather than to seniors alone.

"But the main virtue of the '56 Maroon," concluded the editor, "is that it will give the student body this year's news—this year."

Letters to the Editor

Young Dems Accept Debate Challenge

To the Editor:

The reason the Republicans dislike the "give-em-hell" type speech is that the truth hurts. If the MSU Young Democrats wish to hear the truth and are willing to defend the Eisenhower administration, then the MSU Democrats are more than willing to accept the challenge to a public debate.

The Young Democrats are very much interested in the truth. We are sure that the whole student body is interested in this same thing, and we promise a very interesting evening for those who do come to hear the truth.

We are also sure that some of the students who are unemployed now and probably will be all summer will be interested in hearing the Young Republicans preach the "peace and prosperity" line. We find June 4 quite acceptable and will be waiting to "give the hell" and "hear the truth."

Two Parties?

To the Editor:

Student Congress is faced with a basic issue. That issue is what orientation shall it follow—reactionary, conservative, liberal or radical. I don't care which orientation they follow, but I do care how they express this orientation.

A new representative is faced with a wall of jealousy from returning representatives trying to protect their reputation. The new representative must then assimilate himself into the whole even though he may disagree on most issues.

Interpreting The News

By J. M. Roberts

Western Europe has had two American warnings recently against letting the Russian smile offensive accomplish its chief objective.

That objective is the dissolution of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The warnings resulted from deep American worry lest the already obvious slackening of European defense measures become a runaway movement.

First, Secretary Dulles warned that unless NATO continues as a dynamic, expanding force, it is likely to deteriorate.

That was putting it mildly in the face of French removal of a large proportion of her troops from NATO to North Africa without adequate arrangements for replacement, in the face of British army reductions and of Germany's almost imperceptible progress toward a new army.

The French, of course, had NATO permission for her troop withdrawals. The military situation in Europe does not appear urgent. But against the background of strong European sentiment in favor of relaxing as Russia appears to relax, it is the psychology of the thing which arouses American fear.

That's why the House Foreign Affairs Committee appended a recommendation to heavily cut foreign aid bill suggesting that arms be diverted from Europe to such countries as Turkey, Pakistan, Nationalist China and Thailand, until Europe is "cleared" about what it wants to do.

It was a warning, and a reminder that the American national aid program was founded and still rests on the theory of aid for those who are willing to stand up and defend themselves.

No far, no concrete measures for positive action in the cold war have been suggested. Explorations revolve mainly around greater co-ordination of political and economic action to avoid collisions of policy within the organization.

Means of diverting power outward, toward the non-committed countries, have not been discovered.

NATO was organized through fear and has been kept on course at times only by snarls from the East. It doesn't know how to handle money, and it is in danger of not getting any at all.

Sales of the '56 Maroon, he complained, were far behind those of 1955. Students were reluctant to purchase it until they had examined the quality of its predecessor and "unfortunately, we haven't had any to show them."

That's when Lolome and I took off for the nearest After Six dealer, woke him up and persuaded him to part with one of those cool, comfortable After Six jobs. If your lux feels like a Spanish Inquisition torture, it's time you found out about the lightweight elegance of After Six.

Soil Bank Confuses Farmers

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Farmers fought out Thursday the conditions for becoming eligible for the Agriculture department's full price support rate of $1.50 a bushel for 1936-crop corn. To some, they are confusing.

Under its corn program, the department some time ago made individual farm planting allotments totaling 43,281,000 acres for a designated commercial producing area comprising midwestern, mid-atlantic and southeastern states.

The new farm law signed Monday by President Eisenhower directed the department

High Court Says 'No' to Sheppard

TOLUMIRUS (cnn-12) — Ohio's Supreme Court said Thursday 11: Sonlight H. Shuppard, 31, although convicted after a widely publicized trial, must serve out a life sentence for wife-murder rather than risk a death decree by standing trial anew.

The 5-2 decision upheld the co-defendant's second degree murder conviction for the slaying of his pregnant wife Marilyn, 31, nearly two years ago.

Sheppard was tried on the first degree murder charge that carries a maximum sentence of death in Ohio's electric chair for conviction.

Paul M. Herbert, who argued sheepskin's appeal before the State Supreme Court, said he did not know whether the appeal would be carried to the U. S. Supreme Court.

The blindgown slaying occurred July 4, 1954, in the Sheppard home beside Lake Erie west of Cleveland in suburban Bay Village.

Sheppard was convicted Dec. 21, 1954 in Cleveland.
He entered Ohio Penitentiary
