Polio Shots Reaffirmed by Results

ANN ARBOR (AP)—Evidence from the still incomplete 1956 polio season reaffirms the effectiveness and safety of Salk vaccine, the who evaluated vaccine in 1954 said Thursday.

He said the vaccine would be offered to students in three weeks among student government and Bob Becker at the school.

Thomas Francis Jr., of the State of Public Health at the University of Michigan, spoke at a university medical conference.

Francis, citing a recent state polio report, said:

On Sept. 2, all 113 cases in Michigan diagnosed but not one case was reported among those who previously had received three shots of Salk vaccine.

During his summer's epidemic in Chicago, Dr. Francis said that of 633 paralytic polio cases, not one occurred after a child had received three shots on the prescription.

He said there were some rare cases when a properly inoculated child did catch the disease elsewhere in the nation.

There is no relationship between the use of vaccination and the first location of the disease.

Francis said he does not believe the sharp nationwide rise in polio cases this year is directly attributed to the vaccine.

He played a crucial part in the statistics, said:

"But the contrast of this over the past few years seems to be this being a 'low' year."

Concert Set For Sunday

First in the series of fall term music department concerts will be a joint faculty recital by Pauline and Gean Greenwell, mezzo-soprano and bass. The program will be given Sunday at 4 p.m. in the Music Auditorium.

The first group of songs will include duets and solos by both participants. Mrs. Greenwell will sing several modern Italian songs including the gay "La Cappella di San Simon," two songs by Respighi, and the brilliant "Cimara" of Spring.

Greenwell's selections will include two songs by Arthur Honegger and the suite titled "Le Bestiaire" by Poulen.

Both singers will participate in the final compositions which will include "Requiescat," written by Alfred Kanwischer who received his Master of Music degree from Michigan State in June of 1956.

Henry Harris of the music faculty will accompany the Greenwells.

'Freedom' Rioters Trial Starts

Poznan Defendants Protest Innocence

POZNAN, Poland (AP)—Communist Poland opened trials of the bread-and-freedom rioters Thursday. There were defiant protests of innocence from defendants and an official admission that force had been used to extract confessions.

Police Prosecutor Alphonse Lehmann made the admission just before trial began for 54 of the 150 arrested after the Poznan workers' uprising last June 28.

The 150 defendants are charged with criminal acts in the rebellion. Major accusations affected the group of 54, whose trials are expected to take 10 days.

Two simultaneous hearings launched the trials.

In one courtroom, three tough-looking shabbily dressed Polish youths pleaded innocent to a charge that they killed a secret police corporal.

They admitted hitting the corporal but denied they killed him. They entered their pleas defiantly.

In another hearing, nine defendants pleaded guilty to some charges of storming government offices and shooting down soldiers and police but protested they were innocent of other accusations.

There was nothing in the demeanor of the defendants to suggest the abject self-accusation that marked Communist area purge trials in the Stalin era.

At least 53 were killed and 300 injured in the Poznan workers' uprising that began as a demonstration for better living conditions. It was put down after four days by tanks, armored cars, police and troops.

The prosecution appeared to have dropped all earlier Red charges that American and other Western agents plotted the uprising while foreign visitors thronged Poznan for an international trade fair. The United States had scoffed at the accusations.

Career Carnival Plans in Final Stage

Final plans were completed Thursday for MSU's Eighth Annual Career Carnival when the floor plan for the 80 organizations representing the nation's top companies in business, industry and education were laid out by staging director Jim Hellsworth, Detroit senior.

According to Hellsworth, some of the larger companies including General Motors, Ford, Bell Telephone, DuPont, J. L. Hudson, Marshall Field, Boeing Aircraft and Standard Oil have requested 35 to 40 feet of floor space for their displays. Six companies were turned down due to lack of floor space.

Dick Herrmann, Career Carnival chairman, reports companies have been sending their displays to the campus for the past three weeks. They are being stored in the power plant warehouse until construction time Sunday.

'Surprises Western Capitals'

Fear 'Future Plans' Purpose of Trip

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (AP)—President Tito surprised Western capitals Thursday by flying to the Soviet Union with Soviet Communist party leader Nikita Khrushchev.

The trip was officially described as a vacation, but there was a widespread belief the real purpose was to continue talks on the future role that Yugoslavia will play in relations with other East European Communist parties.

Khrushchev arrived unexpectedly in Belgrade Sept. 19 on a vacation. Tito and the Russian leader spent several days talking privately.

The fact Tito returned to Russia with Khrushchev was taken as an indication their eight day talks at Belgrade were not conclusive. There was speculation the conversations had reached a point where the Russian needed to consult his Kremlin colleagues.

The official Yugoslav news agency Tanjug, reporting the Tito-Khrushchev party left on a special Soviet plane, said the party will spend several days resting.

The Soviet news agency Tass reported in Moscow that Tito and Khrushchev arrived Thursday night on the Black Sea coast.

Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev and Foreign Minister Dmitri Shepilov have been vacationing for several days at Sochi, Black Sea resort town.

Tito was accompanied by his wife, Jovanka; Vice President Alexander Rankovic; and Djuro Pucar, chairman of the state of Bosnia-Herzegovina and member of the Yugoslav Communist party Politburo.

In Washington, State Department officials were amazed and bewildered by Tito's new trip to Russia. Tito was described as being aware that the future of U.S. aid to Yugoslavia is now up for decision and that any substantial evidence of tighter relations between him and the Soviet leaders would jeopardize its continuance.

MSU Story Told by Rocks

MSU's boulders have long been a topic of discussion and their history has been long and varied.

For example, there is a boulder known as Halfway Rock which stands near the south entrance of the Union—and there's a history connected with it.

Some 100 years ago, the rock (both halves of it) stood between the city of Lansing and Michigan Agricultural College.

The rock has served as a resting spot for students traveling along the road between the Lansing and Michigan Agricultural College.

The rock, located at Lansing Avenue, was torn up and made into a memorial to war veterans and has itself been a veteran of intercollegiate rivalry of the past with some blue paint still visible.

Proposed Raise in Scholarship Requirements

A Step in the Right Academic Direction

Widespread improvements have been made in the physical plant of MSU in the past two years. New buildings have been and are in the process of being constructed and modern equipment is being installed to facilitate the process of learning for the more than 18,000 students enrolled here.

This situation can be viewed with a great deal of satisfaction on the part of both the administration and students. But it takes more than buildings and fine equipment to make a really great educational institution. These things are merely a means to an end. The single element which will finally determine MSU's status in the world today is its scholastic achievement.

Perhaps it was recognition of this fact which motivated the scholarship committee to propose higher academic qualifications

The Babe

Mildred Babe Didrikson Zaharias, probably the greatest woman athlete the world has ever known, died Thursday. Cancer, her implacable foe, finally won out—but only after the Babe had put up a fight in the only way she knew how—giving ground reluctantly, an inch at a time.

It is her courage in her last losing battle that we'd like to point out here. Others can review her athletic accomplishments.

Her illness was discovered in 1953. She underwent surgery at that time and, it appeared, had won the battle. She started playing golf again and won seven tournaments.

But it was only the first round she had won. Her inexorable enemy would not be satisfied. Later, when she was operated on for a ruptured spinal disc, additional cancer was discovered. She was in the hospital and out of the hospital, in the hospital and out of the hospital. Finally, last March, she entered it for the last time.

Almost continuously since then the nation read reports from her hospital room: "Babe Didrikson Zaharias cheerfully told her husband not to worry as she was wheeled into the operating room today." "I'll walk out of here yet," Babe Zaharias told this reporter today. "Babe Zaharias said today 'I want to be back in tournament play by the end of the year.'"

She knew her case was hopeless but still put up an optimistic front. So convincing was she that many visitors left her hospital room confident she would win despite the overwhelming odds.

But it was not to be. She lost, finally. But she never gave up. Her last words to her husband were "I ain't gonna die, honey."

Perhaps in the story of her last gallant fight there is a lesson for us.

Your Key to Better Values . . .

for students seeking scholarships. Perhaps there were other motives. The increased number of high school students going on to college, in itself, will necessarily raise competition for awards of this type.

Whatever the reasons behind it, the proposal is one which, if carried, will benefit not only the school but the students also.

Under the new plan only the upper one-fourth of a high school graduating class will be eligible to compete for scholarships. Those students receiving the awards will be required to maintain increasingly higher grades throughout the four college years to hold their scholarships.

Financial need will continue to be a strong factor in the distribution of scholarships made available through state funds and it will be considered to a lesser extent in awards financed by private endowments.

The higher academic requirements will act as a stimulant to both high school students and students in college holding a scholarship or hoping to obtain one.

Considering the large number of scholarships awarded at MSU each year, it is not inconceivable that a move to raise standards of scholarship holders will result in a hike in the overall academic accomplishments of students. In any event it is a step in the right direction.

Wanted: Reliability

With new capes, new stunts and new plans the Block S committee is all set to get into action at the first football game, Oct. 13.

Many individuals and groups have cooperated to build this year's block into one of which Spartans can be proud. The committee itself has been working since last year, Spartan Women's League has chipped in to stamp new instructions on the 1,008 cards, and even the boy scouts may pitch in to distribute and collect materials more easily and efficiently.

Now all that's needed is a full block of students for each game. Many weeks of work can easily be ruined by an unreliable and disinterested membership.

Sign-ups for the Block at Thursday night's Activities Carnival were encouraging. Officials say more people wanted to participate in the Block than seats are available in Macklin.

But the Block has had an excess of promised participants in the past, only to find many didn't show up at game time.

From the organization and plans it would appear that Block S is going to have the best year since its start. But it will be nothing unless members remain reliable.

The Voters Speak—As Lubell Sees It

Anti-Divorce Sentiment Can Hurt Adlai

By SAMUEL LURELL

One surprise of this year's election campaign is the emergence of Adlai Stevenson's divorce as a major political liability.

In 1952 among several thousand voters I interviewed only about a dozen brought up Stevenson's divorce as their reason for voting against him. In this campaign, however, in nearly every city and farm county I have gone into at least one or more voters have volunteered that they would be voting Democratic except "if a man can't run his family he has no business trying to run the country."

In some parts of the agricultural Midwest this talk is being accompanied by gossip that Stevenson was partner with Chicago gangsters. This particular accusation, which has no basis in fact, was voiced to me by farmers in four different counties in Minnesota, Iowa and Ohio. Pressed for details, none of these farmers could go beyond the vague charge and add, "That's what people around here are saying."

There was no evidence that an organized whispering campaign is involved, although in one county I was able to establish that the "ganster" rumor was spread in a talk by a local minister.

Why should Stevenson's personal life be talked of so much now? This year, in 1956, is the 10th anniversary of Stevenson's divorce. Some of his supporters have come in heavily Luthern areas.

Stevenson is also the target for a number of other personal criticisms such as, "I don't like going for a horse that's lost before," or "He's too much of a smart aleck." In farm areas he is resented as a "city fellow" and "money man." One Minnesota farm wife called him a "coupon clipper who doesn't have to work for a living."

The fact that many of these criticisms are accompanied by expressions of admiration for Estes Kefauver provides another clue to what may be behind this hostility to Stevenson. A post-mortem analysis I did last spring of Kefauver's surprising vote in the Minnesota primary showed him strongest among farming communities whose hostility to our getting into World War II was particularly intense. My interviews in these isolation-minded communities revealed that in the minds of many of these voters Stevenson was identified with the Roosevelt-Truman foreign policy.

In these areas Stevenson's divorce strengthens the raging conflict described here Thursday between the desire to vote Democratic because farm prices are so low and the feeling that the Democrats always get us into war. If farm prices improve, Stevenson's divorce will become an even heavier liability than now.

Against that can be posed one question: Can Kefauver's personal campaigning in these areas swing his admirers to back the Democratic ticket?

Where could they find a workman skillful enough not to mar the antique beauty of the

‘No Excuse’
for Not Battling

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower, stepping out of his schedule of campaign speeches, said Thursday he was fighting any battle in fighting any battle heartily and with all his might. He said he thought there is always a chance to lose it.

He made the statement in a news conference in which he was asked if he was fighting any battle in his re-election campaign against Democratic presidential nominee.

“I am not anticipating any battle,” he said. “I believe that when you are in any contest, to work like there is to be every last minute—a chance to win.”

“I am not anticipating anything,” he went on. “I just see no excuse, if you are anything enough, for not getting your whole heart into it. That is what I do.”

However, Eisenhower did not seem at all pessimistic. Nor was the sum total of his remarks on the campaign sound, as he were “running scared” despite his statement about possibility of losing.

“For the odds of being beat, Eisenhower mentioned comment on a statement by Acheson, secretary of the Truman administration, that the Eisenhower administration “seemed to be playing Russian roulette with each pistol.”

“I am not,” Eisenhower

the campaign were going to be settled on the basis of who was stronger, why, I think the betting would be considerably different if it is settled facts and on the record.”

Gov. Clement To Speak In Lansing

Gov. Frank Clement of Tennessee, keynote speaker at this year’s Democratic convention, will speak at a public rally Monday morning in Lansing.

He is also tentatively scheduled to attend a Monday noon luncheon in Kellogg Center.

Clement’s Lansing speech will be on behalf of Rep. Don Hayworth, former MSU speech professor and now Democratic congressman from the 6th District.

Hayworth is running for reelection against Charles Chamberlain, Republican prosecuting attorney of Ingham County.

The rally will be held at 10:30 a.m. at UAW Local 652 headquarters, 3450 Clare St. Hayworth will be present at the rally and the luncheon.

MSU faculty and students are invited to attend both events, said Douglas Kelley, East Lansing graduate student and assistant to Hayworth.

Clement’s day in Michigan will conclude with a Stevenson-Hayworth dinner for the 6th District, at 6:30 p.m. at the Masonic Temple in Flint. Both Clement and Hayworth will speak. Proceeds will benefit the Stevenson and Hayworth campaigns.
