Accuses Dems of Irresponsibility

Administration's Clear Accomplishments

ST. LOUIS (AP)—President Eisenhower Tuesday night told the Democrats of "political irresponsibility at its height" and credited his administration with a good record of "clear accomplishments" toward enduring peace and prosperity.

Adlai Raps Presidential Powers

Calls Administration Of 'Limited Interest'

SEATTLE (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson said Tuesday night that "the undue delegation" of presidential responsibilities by the President "is hazardous at any time, let alone times such as these."

He added that the present administration is "narrowly representative of a limited interest, and that the Democrats will assist that problems be met by an executive who assumes the full responsibilities of his office."

The Democratic presidential nominee said in a speech at a political rally that the Republican administration "has not told the people the truth about the 'crucial facts of history'."

"And I say whatever the reason that the undue delegation of responsibility and authority by the President is hazardous at any time, let alone times such as these, and diminishes the office of the presidency."

Stevenson pitched most of his talk on "the problems raised by the explosive power of nuclear energy."

He said his suggestion that the country start to find a way to stop the testing for hydrogen bombs had been met by the President and other Republicans "only with sneers and astonishing distortion of what I said, and with implications that even talking about this jeopardizes the nation's security."

He said his proposal "reflects a desire that I am sure is deep in the minds of all mankind."

"I have indicated my complete willingness to accept any better proposal for accomplishing the same purpose but I can't accept the apparent administration position that we are powerless to do anything to stop this fast-moving race for extinction."

Turning to the development of the atom for peace, Stevenson said he favored "the fullest cooperation between government and private industry but not the abdication of public responsibility in this field with the result that little progress will be made."

Plane Crash Cause Explained

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Capital Airlines plane crash at Midway Airport, Chicago, Feb. 28, was attributed Monday to possible "malfunctioning of the propeller control switches."

This, the Civil Aeronautics Board reported, "eliminated a loss of lift," causing the plane to drop short of the runway.

The Detroit-Chicago plane, a Viscount with 11 passengers and a crew of 5 aboard, was approaching for a landing. A few occupants suffered minor injuries, but the plane was damaged badly.

Wrong Cars for Coeds' Dates

Alban D. Pettie, 36, of Wayne, accidentally drove the wrong car home Saturday night after leaving a coed home from a date here on the MSU campus. He discovered the mistake the next morning, just before a police search was ordered.

Wayne Pettie, of Niles, also taking a coed home, was the owner of the mistaken car, which was the same year, color and make as Pettie's. The keys had been left in both cars.

After his discovery, Pettie turned the car over to the campus police. No criminal charges were made against him.

Dispute COPE

Reuther, GOP Senators Clash on Political Funds

WASHINGTON (AP)—Two Republican members of a Senate group keeping tabs on the current campaign clashed Tuesday with AFL-CIO officials over the financing of labor's role in politics.

Testimony by Walter Reuther and another union leader was challenged by Sen. Curtis (R-Neb.) and Goldwater (R-Ariz.) at a public hearing of the Senate elections subcommittee.

Reuther, president of the Auto Workers and an AFL-CIO vice president, said all donations to candidates by the UAW and the AFL-CIO Committee on Political Education (COPE) come from "voluntary contributions of union members and other individuals."

Such spending is not financed by "monies collected through regular union dues or assessments," he said.

Curtis long has contended that dues paid by union members are used for political activities "in violation of the law."

He and Goldwater pressed this view in questioning Reuther and James McDevitt, a co-director of COPE.

McDevitt told the subcommittee that COPE has both a political education fund, from which he said comes largely from union treasuries, and a political campaign fund which he said comes exclusively from contributions.

Curtis and Goldwater questioned the uses of the political education fund. They challenged McDevitt's assertion that voter registration drives and the publication of a COPE "Voters Guide" fall in the category of political education.

McDevitt took the position that we have the right to inform our members on current issues and to urge them to vote in accordance with what they think of best for them and their families.

Reuther read to the group a statement which said the problem today is not the political activities of unions but the abuse of wealth and business and the new aristocracy of oil and the unbridled contributions by corporations.

Labor's political contributions are just peanuts compared with management gifts to candidates on the other side of the fence," he said.

SWL Publishes Etiquette Book

By JEAN McMANUS
What is a "Thank you" note under? Who stands up when an older person enters the room? What is the proper way to butter a slice of bread or get that last bit of chicken? What does it mean to be courteous?

Spartan Women's League, a women's service organization, has just published an etiquette book that answers these and other questions about the proper way to do things on a university campus.

"This We Do at MSU" is the title of the book edited by Elaine Ridderman, Fremont senior. Diane Dahlquist, Cadillac senior, is the co-editor and cartoonist.

A coming-out party for the book will be sponsored by SWL Thursday night at 7:30 in room 21 of the Union to stress the importance of etiquette and how it is needed at MSU.

Mrs. Shirley Marshall, Lansing high school teacher, will be the main speaker. The program will also feature Tom King, Dean of Students, who will give the faculty approval of the book, and Bob Becker, student government president, who will give the student approval.

Slides of the cartoons in the book will be shown and narrated by SWL members. The first copies of the etiquette book will be given to those attending the program.

Brinks Robbers Sentenced

8 Given Life, Additional Terms

BOSTON (AP)—Eight men were sentenced to life in prison Tuesday for the $1,219,000 robbery of the Brinks Inc. money transfer nearly seven years ago.

Without a trace of emotion, the prisoners—all from Greater Boston—heard Judge Felix Forte mete out the sentences in Superior Court.

Let out under heavy guard to begin their terms in the new Massachusetts Correctional Institution at Walpole were:

Anthony Pino, 48, a laborer; Adolph "Jazz" Martin, 44, a salesman and pool room manager; Michael V. Grogan, 42, a longshoreman; Thomas F. Richardson, 48, a longshoreman; James J. Faherty, 44, a bartender; Henry D. Baker, 49, a vending machine operator; Vincent J. Costa, 42, a truck driver; and Joseph F. McGinnis, 52, a former liquor store operator.

All but McGinnis were given the same sentence. In addition to the life terms, they were ordered to serve 8 to 10 years on breaking and entering and 2 years at hard labor.

Normally, life terms are eligible for parole consideration after 15 years. The additional sentences are to be served after the life terms.

McGinnis, described by the prosecution as "the brains" of the robbery, was given eight concurrent life terms for being an accessory before the fact of armed robbery. In addition he was sentenced to 8 to 10 years for being an accessory before breaking and entering and 2 1/2 years to 3 years for receiving stolen goods.

Chief defense counsel Paul T. Smith already had indicated an appeal will be taken. He has nearly three weeks to take such action.

Still to be disposed of is the sentencing of Joseph J. "Spec" O'Keefe, 48, who put the time on his one-time pals and accused them in open court of being fellow robbers.

O'Keefe pleaded guilty long before the nine-week trial of the others got under way Aug. 6th. No date has been set for his sentencing.

O'Keefe was the star prosecution witness and his testimony probably was the main peg in the jury's decision that all were guilty.

Still missing was most of the loot. Only about $90,000 was recovered from the Jan. 17, 1950 robbery.

Final Show Tonight

Danish Ballet Dazzles Capacity Audience

By JIM ESTES and NEILDA TROUT

After the requirements of international relations had been met by the playing of the respective national anthems, the Royal Danish Ballet dazzled a capacity audience with their brilliant performance Tuesday evening.

"La Sylphide," the major work of the evening, best displayed those qualities for which the Royal Danes are world renowned.

Henning Kronstam, the handsome, Scottish lad, left about as though the law of gravity had been repealed especially for him. Margrethe Schanche portraying the elusive sylph demonstrated uncommon gracefulness and beauty of motion, particularly with her arms and hands.

Much of the action in "La Sylphide" was carried on through timing. Even in their facial expressions the Royal Danes reflected emotions appropriate to the action.

"La Sylphide" might have been aptly titled "The Witches' Revenge," for the fragile sylph is killed through the machinations of an evil speaking revenge upon the killed lover.

The highlight of "La Sylphide" was the shorter work on the program, was the "Mimosa Dance," danced with extreme precision by Mona Vangas and her reflection, Axel Thorberg.

The third work on the program, "Dream Pictures," was the least successful of the Danish troupe's offerings. Set in Copenhagen's Tivoli Gardens, its totally unrelated episodes did not hang together at all. Nevertheless it did contain one very enjoyable and hilariously funny dance by six very athletic "oldsters," who set about to show the younger set how to dance.

Although the Royal Danish Ballet is old in years, it is young in spirit. No one seemed to be enjoying themselves more than the dancing Danes.

Tonight the Royal Danish Ballet will present their final performance here, repeating "La Sylphide" and "La Ventriloquist" and adding "Graduation Ball" as a third work.

The band's prescience show will feature an original arrangement by the band specialty man, Norman Kimball. Toy Toot Band on Parade. This version will have band members forming toy trumpets and toy bells.

Undergraduate men at MSU are being offered a chance this week to earn a marine corps commission, while continuing university courses.

A four man Marine officer procurement team from Detroit will remain in the Union until Friday.

Freshmen, sophomores, and juniors may sign up for the program. They are required to attend two 6-week summer training programs while attending the university.

Students in the program enlist after graduation for a three year term as second lieutenants in the U.S. Marine Corps Reserve.

Ballet Makeup Artist To Give Techniques
Borge Simonson, makeup director of the Royal Danish Ballet Company, will present an informal lecture-demonstration on make-up techniques for ballet theater today at 4 p.m. in 49 Aud.

The program is sponsored by Theta Alpha Phi, national theater honorary.

National Policies Disputed

Council Begins Secret Meetings

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles and Soviet Foreign Minister Shepilov split sharply Tuesday over Dulles' call for a Suez settlement based on the principle of insulating the canal from national policies.

The disagreement of the United States and the Soviet Union, thus was thrust into the spotlight as the U.N. Security Council ended public debate and began secret talks in a desperate search for a Suez solution.

"The heart of the problem," Dulles said in a 26-minute speech to the council, "is acceptance of the principle that should be a system to insure that the canal cannot be used by any country as an instrument of its distinctly national policy."

Talking to newsmen in the council lounge after Dulles spoke, Shepilov rejected this principle as a cover for internationalizing the canal. He said any international group created to run the canal would be in the state of the world today, he influenced by the politics of the countries on the board. Furthermore, he said, the Soviet Union rejects international operation of the canal.

Dulles expressed some constitutional interest in a suggestion by Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi of Egypt for a group of reasonable size to attempt to negotiate a settlement. Dulles rejected on the other hand a proposal by Shepilov that a group of six or eight members, picked on the basis of proper balance, attempt such negotiations.

Speaking with sudden heat, Dulles charged that Shepilov, by thus disregarding the users of the canal, wants to establish a committee to constitute that we can know in advance that it can never agree.

Shepilov replied to the newsmen that Dulles was not "constructive" in "sympathizing" with the Egyptian suggestion and criticizing his idea. He said he would not agree to a group not properly balanced as it would "exclude negotiations on a basis of equality and put them on a basis of imposing the views of the majority on the minority—an ultimatum."

Shepilov suggested Monday a

Polio Shots

It's No Time to Gamble When Health Is Stake

Signups for the university-sponsored Salk polio inoculations for students are not up to expectations.

After two days, only 1,200 students have registered for the shots.

The university has acquired enough vaccine to provide protection for 9,000 students but unless the current rate of signups sharply increases within the next three days, two-thirds of the vaccine will have to be returned to the makers.

Perhaps some students are "last-minute Charlies" waiting for the Friday deadline to roll around before they take advantage of the Salk protection.

Others, no doubt, are reluctant to sign up for fear of the needle. And others probably do not have the required two bucks.

But even making a liberal allowance for these groups, there is no reason why the people taking registrations should not be kept busy all day... unless students are of the opinion they're "too old" for protection against polio.

Doctors, of course, don't agree with this sentiment. One of them, Dr. F. S. Leeder of the Michigan Health Department, has written about polio:

"We see a disease... originally regarded as being limited to infants now no longer confined to infancy; a disease originally considered mildly communicable now regarded as highly communicable... from an endemic disease, it has tended to become an epidemic disease."

Of 3,561 reported cases of polio in Michigan for the years 1951, 1952 and 1953, 526 or 14.8 percent of the total number of victims were between the ages of 20 and 29—the age group within which many MSU students fall.

What is even more striking is the fact that 111 persons in the 20-29 age group died of the disease.

The 111 represented 28.6 percent of the total number of deaths from polio in all age groups for the three year period.

These statistics are for years before the Salk polio vaccine was discovered and proved to be a successful defense against the crippling disease.

This year, says the Michigan Health Department, there have been six deaths due to polio—by far the lowest number ever recorded in the state. Credit for the few deaths is given the Salk vaccine.

But MSU students, apparently, are hard to convince.

Or perhaps they are gamblers, figuring they haven't had the disease so far so they might as well take a chance that they won't ever get it.

It's a silly gamble.

Ike Strong in Ozarks

Prodigal Dems Hold Key in Missouri

(EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the second in a series of articles by the Associated Press political reporters who are surveying political sentiment in key states across the nation. Today's article deals with Missouri.)

By OVID A. MARTIN
ST. LOUIS (AP)—Democrats who strayed to the GOP fold in 1952 and helped give Missouri to President Eisenhower again hold the key to the outcome of the presidential race in this state.

Democratic leaders say that about 100,000 of the party regulars voted the Republican ticket four years ago when Eisenhower had a 29,000-vote majority over Adlai Stevenson, his opponent again this year.

"What will they do this year?" They are coming back in droves," says Wilbur F. Daniels, Democratic state chairman. "Many have become disillusioned with Eisenhower's domestic and foreign policies."

Even Republican leaders agree that Stevenson appears to be gaining ground.

But Percy Compton, the GOP state chairman, figures Eisenhower is leading.

"He still has the edge in Missouri," he said, "because a lot of Democrats don't care for Stevenson. The President still is mighty popular because of his efforts in behalf of peace."

This reporter, turned for the Ozark Mountain area of southwest Missouri for a possible answer to these conflicting political forecasts. The section long has been the Republican stronghold in the state.

The Eisenhower vote in the Ozarks was more than sufficient to wipe out sizeable Stevenson majorities in the state's two big cities—St. Louis and Kansas City—and in other parts of the state.

Hailing along country roads where farmers were harvesting what was left of drought-damaged crops, at county seat court-houses, stores and other business places, in a drive through the district, this reporter queried:

"How's the election coming along?"

Almost without exception, they replied that Eisenhower was running well ahead in the area but that this year's majority would be considerably smaller than it was in 1952.

Some sections of the Ozarks are suffering from four and five consecutive years of drought. Farm incomes have been very low. Many farm families have sought work in nearby towns and cities to augment small farm returns.

Yet, there is little complaining, or criticism of government farm programs, or demands for big-scale federal aid.

It is this attitude that is influencing state Democratic leaders to go slow in making big victory forecasts. Daniels, the state chairman, put Stevenson's state majority at 30,000 votes "as of now."

What with some Republican farmers switching over, this figure would indicate that many Democrats who voted for Eisenhower in 1952 will do the same this year.

The leaders might deny it, but the Democrats appeared to be placing their greatest emphasis on the state races and the Republicans on the presidency. When asked about the election outlook, Democrats most often would reply: "Blair will win easily."

James T. Blair Jr., present lieutenant governor is opposing Republican Len Hoeker. St. Louis lawyer, for the governorship.

On the other hand, frequent complaints were heard that the GOP efforts are being concentrated on the presidential race.

These complaints came chiefly from "old line" Republicans who backed the late Sen. Robert Taft of Ohio for the Presidential nomination in 1952 and who have not warmed very much toward Eisenhower.

Party chiefs disagreed in their lineup of the way labor and Negro groups will vote. They make up substantial parts of the voters in the state's two big cities.

Compton, the GOP chairman, said his party may lose five per cent of the farm vote, but that this would be offset by gains of "at least" that percentage in both labor and Negro votes.

Disagreeing, Daniels predicted an "almost solid" labor and Negro vote for his party.

GHOST TRAINS PREDICTED

ANN ARBOR (AP)—"Ghosts" trains operating without crews may run the railroads of the future.

Speakers at the second annual Railroad Management Seminar at the University of Michigan said crewless trains have been operated by electronics for up to 10 miles on a separate trial basis. But the perforated tape that masterminds the operation is likely to be restricted to freight yard operations for the next several years.

The Voters Speak—As Lubell Sees It

'Big Business' Tag Hurts GOP

By SAMUEL LUBELL

Although the realignment of voters on economic lines in this election seems to favor the Republicans, the Democrats remain the party to which most Americans instinctively turn when in economic trouble.

A dramatic, if sad, illustration of this Democratic appeal for the "hard luck" voter can be seen in two machinists to whom I talked on adjoining streets in Detroit.

Both men had voted for Thomas E. Dewey in 1948 and for Dwight D. Eisenhower in 1952 but now said, "I think I'll go Democratic this time."

"There have been too many mergers and monopolies under this Administration," protested one of the men angrily. "With Charlie Wilson in the government General Motors gets the business and the smaller outfits get squeezed out. I worked 21 years at Packard. Now with Packard merged with Studebaker and Curtiss I don't know whether I'll even have a job."

And if I do get another job, what of my seniority rights?" he demanded. "Well, I have to start from the bottom again and get laid off every time something happens. Like is just a figurehead. Those big-company guys like Wilson run things."

The second machinist—also a Packard worker—was more restrained though nonetheless troubled. He, too, blamed Packard's troubles largely on General Motors but recognized that "G.M. is just so much more efficient. They ought to help run the smaller companies." He also asked, "Why can't the government use some of the hundreds of millions we're spending overseas to keep our jobs going in this country?"

He was picking weeds from the neat lawn in front of his house and he straightened up as he continued to talk.

"I'm fifty-three," he said. "That's not really old and I have a lot of experience. But who's going to hire a man my age if Packard closes down? The other day one of the fellows in the office saw a message that came through on the kind of workers the new company wanted. The message said they had to be 'men under 40, between five feet six and five feet eleven inches all and without a potbelly.'"

He stopped for a moment and then added with quiet bitterness, "I've been with this company more than thirty years. That message didn't say anything about how good a job a man has done before. You'd think we were just cattle being weighed in."

The pained look on that worker's face is only one of the many evidences I have run into of how politically sensitive the American voter has become to the role of business in our national life. Currently the business man stands in higher public favor in the country than at any time since the depression.

Yet, the feeling that the Eisenhower Administration has "rigged" things for the big fellow is also the President's No. 1 political liability.

Almost any economic downturn or hardship that people suffer tends to revive recent memories against "Wall Street" or "big business" running the country.

A San Francisco grocer, for Eisenhower in 1952, was going back to the Democrats, because "too many small businesses are closing up." In Milwaukee a drug company salesman was shifting back to the Democrats because in the merger of his firm with another his salary had been cut.

A jewelry buyer in Los Angeles liked "Eisenhower as a man" but was troubled because "he has based his whole administration on big business."

The removal of the excess-profits tax is often cited as proof that "Eisenhower promised to cut taxes, but he took it off the back of the worker." We're paying more than ever before," a St. Louis factory worker and a New York suburbanite both complained. "That tax cut cost us our Christmas bonus."

While the excess-profits tax was in force, they explained, "the company gave out liberal bonuses. The money would have gone to Uncle Sam, anyway. When the tax came off, the companies put the bonuses into their own pockets."

Rising living costs, and the "tighter" credit policies of recent months also come in for considerable criticism.

That these and other economic grievances would be bringing many 1952 Eisenhower voters back to the Democrats is not too surprising. What is perhaps more significant is how limited these Democratic gains have been so far.

Stevenson's problem can perhaps be summed up in this way: Except in some parts of the farm belt, the general level of prosperity has robbed the Democrats of what has long been their strongest single vote-getting asset—the memory of the depression. In its place the Democrats have been left with the political rallying cry of "the big guys are squeezing out the little fellows."

There is enough of this economic squeeze and hostility to "the man with the big buck" in the country to lift the Democratic voting strength well above the 1952 level. But can it be turned into the ground-swell Stevenson needs to be pushed over to victory?

Interpreting the News

Polish Justice Wins Observers' Praise

By J. M. ROBERTS

AP NEWS ANALYST
The Western world will accept for the time being, and with some hesitation, the apparent injection of a new type justice into the Communist courts of Poland.

Justice as it is known in Western courts is not an ordinary part of Communist machinery. Yet both newspaper correspondents and legal observers from the West are testifying to the fairness of the trial of the first three of the Poznan rioters.

Those who remember that an American ambassador to Russia also testified to the fairness Stalin's 1937 purge trials are bound to approach this new Communist manifestation with some caution.

Not that the Western observers have not seen and heard right.

The question is whether subsequent evidence will show this is indeed a new departure which is to become standard, or whether it is a window dressing job designed to reduce world hatred of Communist crimes against civil rights.

If the same old Gestapo methods continue in cases where the spotlight of publicity cannot reach, then nothing will have been accomplished.

As time goes on, if there is any democratization in Poland it will become evident just as the crimes of the Communists are exposed out despite all of their efforts to cover up.

As of this moment, one mild day cannot be accepted as a sure sign of spring.

Senate Investigates Chicago Scandal

Witnesses Won't Testify
In Million-Dollar Conspiracy

CHICAGO (AP) — Two key witnesses refused to testify before a U.S. Senate committee digging into the million-dollar Hodge scandal.

One is Edward A. Hantz, Chicago banker who was sent to jail for cashing phony state checks for former State Senator Orville E. Hodge.

The other is Edward A. F. Hantz, who has described himself as a messenger for Hodge.

Hantz was told that contempt would be taken against him, and he was contemplated for arrest.

Hantz is serving a three-year term in the Illinois State Penitentiary for a conspiracy in the Hodge scandal.

His campaigns for the Republican nomination as state auditor in the 1952 spring primary and for election to that office in the fall of that year cost about $200,000. But, he said, none of it was stolen money.

He didn't share the embroiled cash with anybody.

He is not "covering up" for anyone.

Students Aid Congressman

Three MSU students have been appointed as aides in Congressman Don Hayworth's campaign for re-election.

The three, all political science majors, are: Peggy Mueking, Lansing senior; Julia Wieskora, Grand Haven senior; and John Thomas, Ringoes, N.J., graduate student.

Miss Wieskora will be in charge of recruiting student volunteer workers for Hayworth.

Miss Mueking will be in charge of students doing door-to-door canvassing in East Lansing, and Thomas will head up similar efforts in Lansing.

There are a number of volunteer jobs students may do in the campaign, to gain first-hand political experience. Interested students may contact Julia Wieskora for details.

Congressman Hayworth was a speech professor at MSU until his election to Congress two years ago.

A 49-bell carillon to be built in Washington, D.C., was presented to this country by the people of the Netherlands.

Pat Burke and Clarence Peake, Spartan football players, add their names to the list of 700 students who registered Tuesday for the Salk polio vaccine shots being offered MSU students.

700 Students Register For Salk Vaccine Shots

Seven hundred more students registered Tuesday for the Salk vaccine program at State. Students are urged to sign up as soon as possible because only 9,000 shots are available.

Registration will continue until Friday noon on the second floor of the Union from 8-5 p.m.

Education students on student teaching assignments will be allowed to register with their resident coordinators for the Saturday morning of October 23 and Nov. 24. These shots will be administered at the Olin Memorial Health Center.

Other shots will be given on the weeks of Oct. 13-19 and Nov. 12-16 on the fourth floor of the Union in the Ping Pong room.

The $2 fee for the first two shots is to be presented upon registration. The third shot will be given spring term and can be paid for then.

This program is being sponsored by Olin Memorial Health Center and the All-University Student Government.

Notre Dame Ticket Sale Deadline Set

Distribution for Notre Dame tickets will continue through Thursday from 9-4 p.m. in the Union Concourse, according to Don Pais, ticket chairman.

Approximately 700 applications have been taken for the combined train and game ticket. The price is $10.50 and includes a round trip train ticket, game ticket and bus transportation to and from the train station in South Bend, Ind., to the stadium.

There will be no game or train tickets sold separately.

Names will be drawn Thursday night and the lost will be posted on the Student Government Board located on the first floor of the Union Friday morning.

The student government office is working on the idea of obtaining more tickets for the game to boost the 500 total.

No money is necessary to sign for an application but must be paid when tickets are picked up Friday with ID cards.

Student Asked To Return Tickets

All students unable to use their tickets tonight are asked to return them to the Union Ticket Office as soon as possible.

ENGINEERING OPPORTUNITIES AT MELPAR TO BE DISCUSSED ON CAMPUS SOON

One Of Nation's Leading Electronic
R & D Companies To Interview
Engineering, Physics, Math Majors

Unusual opportunities for rapid professional growth and advancement at Melpar, Inc., one of the Nation's leading electronic research and development organizations, will be detailed to interested engineering, math and physics majors in a series of interviews to be held on campus soon.

A subsidiary of Westinghouse Air Brake Company, Melpar is now engaged in a program of expansion involving substantial increases in staff and facilities.

Despite Melpar's rapid expansion, the highest standards of personnel selection are constantly maintained. This selective process has produced a vigorous organization of great experience and competence in all fields of electronics.

Younger men who wish to apply their engineering knowledge to problems of a varied and challenging nature are required to fill important posts in Melpar project groups. Plan to interview the Melpar representative when he visits your campus.

No Waiting For "Automatic" Advancement at Melpar

At Melpar there is no waiting period for "automatic" advancement. Instead, an engineer, regardless of his age or tenure, may move ahead as rapidly as his skill and performance dictate. Each engineer's achievement is reviewed at least twice a year. In this manner engineers deserving advancement can be quickly "spotted" and promoted. As soon as an engineer is ready for more complex responsibilities they are given him.

Melpar Gives Financial Assistance For Advanced Study

The list of universities located near Melpar laboratories that offer graduate and undergraduate courses in engineering subjects includes: Georgetown University, George Washington University, American University, Catholic University, University of Maryland, University of Virginia, Harvard, Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Northeastern University, and Boston University. Melpar offers financial assistance for study at these distinguished schools.

Many Extra Benefits

Melpar's personnel policies and salary structure compare most favorably with those of the industry as a whole. The Company maintains a liberal program of benefits too extensive to detail in this space.

Choose Assignments From Varied Fields

Engineers who join Melpar may choose their assignments from one or more of these challenging fields:
Flight Simulators • Radar and Countermeasures • Network Theory • Systems Evaluation • Microwave Techniques • Analog & Digital Computers • Magnetic Tape Handling • UHF, VHF, or SHF Receivers • Packaging Electronic Equipment • Pulse Circuitry • Microwave Filters • Servomechanisms • Subminiaturization • Electro-Mechanical Design • Small Mechanisms • Quality Control & Test Engineering

Fine Living Conditions Offered By Melpar Locales

Melpar's R & D operations are centered near and in Washington, D.C. and Boston, Mass. Both are rich in cultural and educational facilities. The Northern Virginia area in which Melpar's headquarters laboratory is located is within easy driving range of beaches, lakes, mountains as well as other recreational and scenic points. The climate allows outdoor recreation 215 days of the year. Fine homes, and apartments in all price ranges are readily available.

Melpar's Boston area plants allow engineers to enjoy the pleasant tempo of New England living coupled with Boston's splendid cultural and educational advantages. Melpar pays relocation expenses.

Booklets Available

An attractive, fully-illustrated booklet describing living conditions prevailing in the Washington, D.C. area can be obtained from your campus Placement Officer.

Grads Go To Work At Once

The college or university graduate who joins Melpar is not required to undergo a formal training program. Instead, he immediately becomes a member of a project group and is assigned to work with an experienced engineer whose guidance and assistance enable him to advance rapidly. Members of Melpar project groups gain experience in all phases of engineering problems by free and frequent interchange of ideas during group meetings. Such experience is valuable in leading to eventual managerial responsibility.

Make Appointment Now For Melpar Interview Oct. 17

To secure an appointment with the Melpar representative when he visits your campus, contact your Placement Officer today. At the same time ask him for booklets on Melpar and the Northern Virginia area. We believe you will find them of unusual interest.

Melpar Experiences Sure & Steady Growth

Founded in 1945, Melpar has doubled in size every 18 months for the past 11 years. Recently it completed erection of a complete new headquarters laboratory near the Nation's Capital, and is presently making substantial additions to its Watertown, Mass. laboratory (4 miles west of Boston), and to its research department in Boston.

Located on a 44-acre landscaped tract in Fairfax County, Virginia, only 10 miles from Washington, D.C., Melpar's main laboratories encompass over 265,000 square feet under a single roof. Fully air-conditioned, they are equipped with every facility. In addition to the new, ultra-modern headquarters plant, Melpar maintains additional facilities in Arlington, Virginia, Boston and Watertown, Massachusetts, for a total of 460,000 square feet.

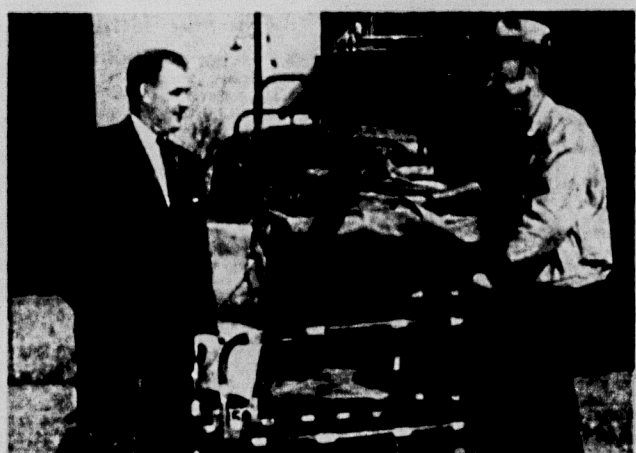

University Courses Offered at Melpar

Melpar staff members, both holders and non-holders of degrees, may take advantage of the many fully-accredited courses in engineering subjects which are offered at Melpar's headquarters laboratory.

Qualified Graduates Offered Paid Inspection Trips

After a personal interview on their campus, qualified candidates may be invited to visit Melpar's headquarters laboratory at Company expense. Information on opportunities available for graduates together with details on living conditions in Northern Virginia is available by simply writing: Mr. William Schaub, Melpar, Inc., 3000 Arlington Blvd., Falls Church, Virginia.

A Campus-to-Career Case History

"I'm learning more every day—and like it"

Roger Lindblom, B.S. in General Engineering, Iowa State College, 19 is today District Plant Superintendent for the 11,000 square miles of the Haron, South Dakota, district.

"The openings are there," says Roger, "and the telephone company trains me to fill them. I joined Northwestern Bell in 1950 and spent one year learning pole line and cable construction. This, plus short periods in other departments, gave me a good telephone background."

"My experience really grew when I became an installer repairman, and in 1952, Wire Chief at South Sioux City, Nebraska. There I was responsible for the 3500 dial phones that served the town."

In March of 1954 I went to Grand Island, Nebraska, to help supervise dial conversion projects in that district. Everything I'd learned to date came in handy on that job.

"A year later I went to Omaha on a staff assignment, and in March, 1956, I moved up to my present position."

"I head a group responsible for installing and maintaining Plant equipment in the Haron district. We supervise ordering and distributing supplies, and I'm responsible for personnel and employment. I work with other department heads in the administration of our district."

"Each assignment I've had has been broader than the last, and believe me, the more I learn, the better I like it."

young southpaw now in the Navy, who stifled the Yankee bats to give the Dodgers their first World Series in eight tries.

Don Newcombe, (27-7), the huge right-hander who started the second game, is Manager Walter Alston's choice for the crucial spot. Johnny Kucks, (18-9), another of his young aighthanders, was Stengel's pick.

Brooklyn had only four hits off Turley, who had carried the each time with two out, only to have Labine close the door.

In the eighth the Yankees again put two men on when Collins doubled high off the scoreboard in right field and Mantle was walked intentionally. With only one out, Labine got Berra on a fly to Snider and made Slaughter ground to Gilliam.

Brooklyn's first real chance to get Turley came in the sixth when he walked Gilliam and string of shutout pitching to 18 consecutive innings before he finally gave up a run. One of the hits was a short fly to Slaughter lost in the sun on Gilliam in the third. Another was a double by Labine in the eighth when Slaughter faced toward the left field corner and finally stopped short of the wall, the ball bouncing into the seats for a ground rule double.

It was the first time a series game had gone 6-0 for nine innings since 1913 when the New York Giants scored three in the 10th to beat the Philadelphia A's 3-0. And it was the first extra inning struggle since the opener of the Giants-Cleveland series in 1954.

Time after time the Yankees threatened to get Labine but they never could get the base hit they needed. Only once, when Hank Bauer and Joe Collins singled with two out in the third, did any of their seven hits come in the same inning.

Labine, a bullpen artist all year, started only three games during the regular season and finished but one.

The 6-foot right-hander from Woonsocket, R.I., had worked in 62 games for the Brooks in their drive to the pennant but was making his first World Series start. He had appeared in eight previous series contests on relief.

A stiff wind blowing from left field toward right made it difficult for right-handed hitters to approach the handy left field seats. However, it was Labine's sinker and Turley's blazer that really stopped them cold.

The Yanks got two men on base in the third and sixth,

Strong Scoring Attack Sought by Hoopsters

By JOE HOFFMAN

Hoping to find a scoring punch to replace last year's graduates, Coach Fordy Anderson and 19 Spartan hopefuls will begin practice Monday for the 1956-57 basketball season.

Anderson's main problem will be in finding a scoring attack to lead the Spartans into another first division finish. The Spartans finished fifth last season.

Gone are Julius McCoy, Duane Peterson and Walt Godfrey, State's top three scorers of a year ago. McCoy broke all MSU scoring records and wound up second to Robin Freeman in the Big 10 scoring race.

Leading the Spartan contingent this year will be seniors George Ferguson, Harry Lax and Pat Wilson; juniors Max Gorenback, Larry Hedden, Jack Quiggle and Charlie Bencie, and sophomores Tom Rand and Bob Anderson.

Wilson, a starting guard last year, is currently with the football squad. He won't join the hoopsters until the last week in November.

Others on the team include Joe Reading, Tom Markovich, Bob Schaulat, Dave Scott, Leon Fox, Ralph Anderson and Warren Marazita.

The remaining men are Dean Vanderwaal (back from two years in the army), John Russell, Gary Siegner, Jim Stouten and football players Don Arent and Blanche Martin.

The four top juniors all saw plenty of action last season. Bencie and Gorenback will be battling for the starting center spot, while Hedden and Quiggle have a good chance of starting at forward and guard respectively.

The season opens for the Spartans at home Dec. 1 against Iowa State. Brigham Young moves into Jensen Fieldhouse Dec. 8, and then the squad will journey to Indianapolis to play Butler Dec. 17.

State plays its first two Big 10 games at home. The Spartans meet Purdue Jan. 5 and Michigan Jan. 7.

A Green and White game will be played sometime in November, although the date is not set yet.

Football Pass Being Held

The football accuracy pass began Monday, Oct. 8, at Demonstration Hall field and will continue through Friday, Oct. 18.

The participants throw five passes at the target from approximately 25 yards. A bull's eye is three points, and hitting the target is one point. A maximum of 25 points is possible.

Any individual student, excellent football candidates and other varsity letter winners now taking part in official team practice, are eligible to compete.

Contestants sign up for the tournament as they throw at the target.

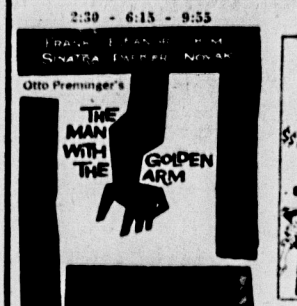

Two hundred fifty entrants took part in the tournament last year. Duane Franks-kovak won first place with a total of 13 points.

Yankee Pitcher Resigned to Fate

Seek Soviet Refuge

Russian, Daughter Arrive in London

LONDON (AP)—A Russian who spirited his American-born daughter, Tanya Chwastov, 21, out of New York last week arrived on the liner Queen Mary Tuesday and took refuge in the Soviet Embassy.

"I am going to Russia," she said, graying Alexander Chwastov, 36, told reporters in broken English while two Soviet Embassy officials looked on.

Chwastov is a former displaced person who spent five years in the United States.

A Soviet official said Chwastov and his daughter probably will sail for Russia Friday aboard the ship V. M. Molotov.

In Washington, Sen. Lehman (D-N.Y.) has demanded that the State Department take action to prevent what he termed the kidnapping of Tanya by her father. British immigration officials made no effort to hold them up when the liner arrived at Southampton.

At the base of the controversy is the fact that Tanya is a citizen of both Russia and the United States under the laws of the two nations.

Chwastov has been away from Russia since 1943 when he was captured by the German army. He subsequently became a displaced person, went to America and married the child's mother, Helena, also a displaced person. Tanya was born in Philadelphia.

Chwastov has given no specific motive for his desire to return to Russia. There have been reports in the United States that Russian officials put pressure on him and he feared retaliation against his 16-year-old mother, who is still in the Soviet Union.

U. S. immigration officials sought to intercept Chwastov in New York and even threatened to force the liner's departure, but failed to locate either the father or the child.

Coffee Hour Planned For Art Grads. Staff

Graduate students and staff members of the art department are invited to a coffee hour scheduled for 2 p. m. in the Art Library, 100 South Washington, on Thursday from 2 to 4 p. m.

Abramson, a distinguished American painter, currently visiting artist and teacher in the art department during the fall term, will be guest of honor.

French Club to Hear Panel on Tourist Life

The French Club will meet at 8:00 this evening at the International Center, instead of 7:30 as previously planned. A panel of students will discuss tourist and student life in France.

MSU Coed Advances in Contest

Judi Vesotsky, Grand Rapids senior, one of three coeds competing for the title of the most beautiful college woman in the country.

Miss Vesotsky, a radio, television and speech major, was one of two girls entered by her sorority, Alpha Chi Omega, in a national contest sponsored by a leading cosmetic manufacturing company last spring. Coeds representing 600 universities in the U. S. entered the competition.

Notified last summer that she had been chosen from Michigan State, Miss Vesotsky, who was awarded a trip to Chicago where pictures were taken and preparations made for the regional contest. Ballots were placed in fashion magazines and newspapers. Voting was also carried on by letters or post cards.

When the ballots were tallied, Miss Vesotsky and coeds from UCLA and the University of Missouri were the winners. One of the three will be chosen national winner in December.

Voting will be carried on by the same process as before. The winner will be awarded a ten-day vacation in Havana and $75 plus an appearance on a national television broadcast.

Only sorority coeds participated in the contest and applicants were required to submit letters stating their academic achievements, activities and experiences plus pictures.

group made up of Egypt, Britain, India, France, the Soviet Union and the United States. He said it could be widened to include Yugoslavia and Iran or Indonesia and Sweden if desired.

Dawzi did not suggest any membership but the idea of a small negotiating group to seek a settlement, or at least a basis for negotiations, has found favor with several council members.

Dulles took a stand once more in support of a British-French resolution based on principles laid down by 13 countries at a Suez conference in London last August.
