Students Revolt In Hungary

Thousands Share In Demonstrations

BUDAPEST (AP)—Thousands of students in three Hungarian universities issued ultimatums to Communist authorities Sunday. They said they would conduct street demonstrations unless their demands for more freedom and better living conditions for the whole country are granted within 14 days.

The ultimatums came from students in Budapest's University of Technology and the Universities of Szeged and Pecs, two south Hungarian cities near the Yugoslav frontier.

These were the latest and most dramatic developments in a rebellious movement that has been spreading through the universities, trade schools and even high schools of Communist-ruled Hungary in the wake of a new spirit of freedom that followed de-Stalinization.

The Communist control organizations don't appear to be opposing the rebels' demands. They publicly acknowledge many demands are justified and only desire threats of strikes and demonstrations on the ground that these might be "misused by dangerous elements."

The threats of street demonstrations followed Saturday's action by 3,000 students of Szeged University who walked out of the Communist youth organization DISZ to establish an independent youth union.

In Hungary—which appears to be playing the right behind Poland in the pace of its de-Stalinization and demands for national independence—the students have dramatically taken the lead. They are not only demanding more freedom and improved living conditions for themselves, but for the whole country. Fifteen demands listed in their ultimatums included such points as: complete freedom of the press; abolition of the death penalty; permission to make trips to Western countries; and the importation of Western literature.

MSU Gets 1st Policewoman

By FAY KELSEY

Tall and stately Shirley Lazarecki, MSU graduate in Police Administration from Detroit, became the first policewoman on the MSU Campus Police Force.

Being assigned to the criminal investigation division, Miss Lazarecki will deal mainly with problems involving coeds on campus.

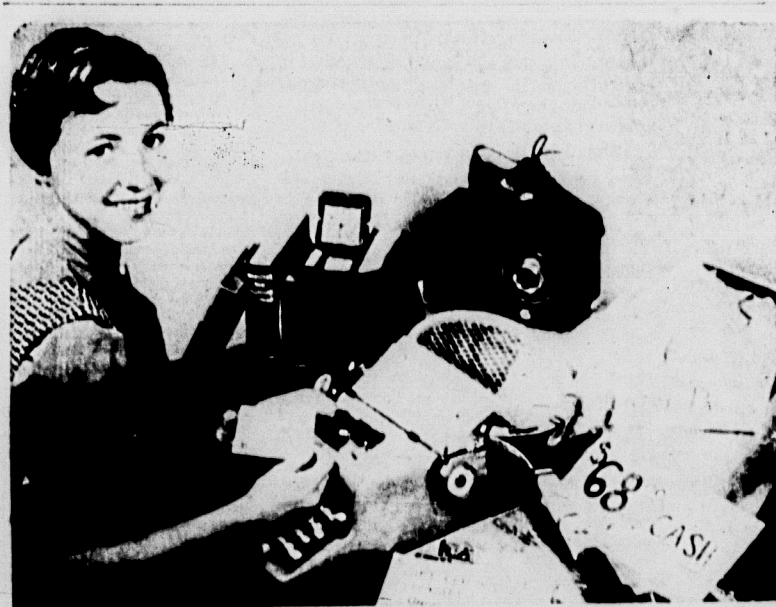

Before starting out on her first job, the new policewoman was assigned to a Lansing area orientation program with Det. Lt. Cigarsa Young of the Lansing Police for six weeks. She will also take an in-service training program with the campus department for a period of 12 weeks.

When Miss Lazarecki came to MSU four years ago, she had planned to study industrial economics, but a longtime interest in police work finally won out. At one time, she even wrote to the Federal Bureau of Investigation to obtain information on how to become a woman G-man.

Even though Miss Lazarecki is a native Detroitite and completed her education in Michigan, she prefers to do her work in small towns.

Working in plain clothes, she

Mendyk Notches 2 Long TD's

Gridders' 2nd Half Kills Irish

By PETE WALTERS
State News Night Editor

Playing their famous interpretation of Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde to near-perfection, the Spartan gridgers again waited until the second half Saturday to show why they are one of the top-ranked football powers in the nation by overwhelming Notre Dame, 47-14.

The opening thirty minutes of play were reminiscent of State's earlier games with Stanford and Michigan, with the Spartans appearing unusually docile and managing only a 7-7 tie by halftime.

When the Mr. Hyde element of the MSU offense took the field after intermission, however, the picture was reversed, with the Fighting Irish doing most of their fighting from a state of retreat.

It was then that the Spartans ripped off 239 yards on the ground and an additional 72 in the air to sew up the runaway victory.

Second string left halfback Denny Mendyk paced State's comeback with two nearly-identical touchdown runs which measured 62 and 65 yards. Both scores were registered on off-tackle plays, with Mendyk running straight up the middle of the field to paydirt.

He nearly scored a third time in the second quarter when he returned Irish quarterback Paul Hornung's kickoff from the MSU nine to the 47 and missed break.

ing into the open only when Hornung—lying flat on the ground—grabbed his foot and tripped him up at the last instant.

Reserve fullback Don Arend got into the breakaway running act, too, sprinting down the left sideline 65 yards to notch the final TD of the afternoon.

The only touchdown not scored on a running play from scrimmage came when Spartan end Larry Harding intercepted a pass thrown by Irish quarterback Paul Hornung and ran 33 yards for the score.

Other State touchdowns were chalked up by Don Gilbert and Clarence Peaks on runs of three yards each and Pat Wilson on a plunge from the one-foot line.

Capt. John Malsko booted three extra points, and Mike Panch two.

Mendyk came within a few yards of outgunning the entire Irish squad on the ground. He totaled 157 yards in 19 carries, while Notre Dame had 171 in 48 tries. Michigan State had 396 yards rushing for the game.

Detroit Fire Destroys Warehouse

DETROIT (AP)—Fire swept through a sprawling brick warehouse full of grocery supplies and damaged an adjoining metal fabricating firm Sunday. Damage was estimated at one million dollars.

Nearly 150 firemen and 25 pieces of fire-fighting equipment fought the blaze as it raged out of control for an hour and a half. Flames shooting 75 to 100 feet into the air were visible for six miles.

Three firemen were injured, none seriously.

The National Food Co. warehouse, a one-story structure measuring 300 by 400 feet, was virtually destroyed. Ira O. Shy, the firm's general manager and vice president, said the warehouse contained 200 boxes of grocery supplies.

He placed the total loss at $800,000. Fire Chief Edward J. Blohm said damage to the adjoining Misco Fabricating Co., fabricators of metal products, would be about $200,000.

The two buildings are situated near the Detroit River on the city's near west side.

Blohm said the fire appeared to have started at the rear of the warehouse, possibly from a carelessly dropped cigarette. He said it undoubtedly smoldered for some time before the alarm was turned in.

Cans of foodstuffs exploded continuously as firemen battled to bring flames under control.

Two Spartans, Mendyk and right half Art Johnson, threw—and completed—the first passes of their college careers. Mendyk connected with Panch for 16 yards and Johnson hit Blanche Martin for the same distance.

Mendyk's pass set up a touchdown on the Notre Dame three, while Johnson's loss also put the ball on the three just as the second quarter ended.

Peaks provided the game's most spectacular run with a 93-yard touchdown jaunt which was called back to the State 39 on a clipping penalty.

Tackle Pat Burke suffered State's only serious injury against the Irish. He sprained his knee, and may have torn a ligament in so doing, team physician Dr. James Feurig reported.

He will be unable to play Saturday at Illinois, Feurig said, but may be able to see action the following week, depending upon the seriousness of his condition, which has not been fully determined.

Burke also hurt his knee in the season opener at Stanford, only to make a sensational comeback and play against Michigan the following Saturday, but the new injury is not related to the previous one at all, Feurig declared.

Joel Jones, Jim Wulff, Arch Matsos and Johnson all incurred minor injuries which are expected to mend before the weekend.

According to Feurig, end Dave Kaiser, hurt in the Indiana tilt, could have played at Notre Dame, but was not used because of the performance of his replacements, Jim Hinesly and Harding.

Spartan Coach Duffy Daugherty lauded his opponent, Notre Dame's Terry Brennan, after the contest, saying "Terry's a good coach this year in spite of what the record shows. He's better than he was the last two years. I think you just can't substitute for large numbers of good players, though."

Police Ban Guns To Students

Student hunters will have to check their guns off the campus university police said last week.

An ordinance of the state board of agriculture, university governing body, prohibits possession or use of firearms on university property.

Police said the ordinance applies to married students' housing as well as to dormitories.

A number of the students in the apartment area have drawn complaints from neighbors by cleaning and adjusting their shotguns and rifles out of doors in congested areas. Police said they will have to investigate all complaints of violation of the ordinance.

Stalinists Swept Out In Poland

Gomulka Regains Secretary Post

WARSAW, Poland (AP)—Poland's Communist party Sunday night swept the Stalinists from its powerful Politburo and restored once-purged Wladyslaw Gomulka to the key post of first secretary, radio Warsaw announced officially.

Among those removed from the Politburo was Moscow's ace, Marshall Konstantin Rokossovsky, installed by Stalin as Poland's defense minister.

Reports from the closed meeting of the party central committee said the Politburo election was a complete defeat for the group identified with Rokossovsky and other leading communists who had held out for a hard policy on the Moscow line.

The Politburo was streamlined from 11 to nine members, with five holdovers. Swept from the ruling party bureau besides Rokossovsky were three deputy premiers and Franciszek Mazur, vice-president of Poland.

Warsaw radio listed these nine as members of the new Politburo: Gomulka, Premier Josef Cyrankiewicz, Maj. Gen. Alexander Zawadzki, president of Poland, Stefan Jedrejowski, chief of economic planning, Foreign Minister Adam Rapacki, Edward Ochab, first party secretary replaced by Gomulka but a backer of Gomulka in the crisis, Roman Zambrowski, minister of state control, Ignacy Loga-Sosnowski, a Gomulka backer forced from the central committee in 1948 but never jailed, and Jerzy Morawski, a party secretary and youngest member in his thirties.

Cyrankiewicz, Rapacki, Ochab, Zambrowski and Zawadzki are hold-over members.

Ousted from the Politburo were Rokossovsky, Zenon Nowak, a deputy premier, Franciszek Mazur, vice president of Poland, Roman Nowak, a deputy premier, Wladyslaw Dzwonkowski, who resigned in March as chairman of the committee on internal security giving ill health as reason, and Franciszek Mazur.

Poles Hard For Russia To Check

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of State Dulles said Sunday that even if the Russians used military force in Poland he did not think they would succeed in putting down the Polish communists' drive toward freedom from Moscow control.

Dulles also said in a television interview that he did not think "we would send our own armed forces" to oppose the Soviets if the Russians did move.

He said that would "precipitate World War III" and would result in "widening out" the people struggling for freedom.

That would be the last thing they would want, he said.

Dulles made clear that the United States looks with favor on the development of an independent Communist government for Poland. He said anything which weakens this great structure of Soviet Communist power and leads to its breaking up is in the interest of the United States.

The United States would like to see democracy in Poland and many other countries, he said, but "that is a system which can only be spread throughout the world gradually."

MSU's GOP Sets Nixon Motorcade

A motorcade of Michigan State students will travel to Lansing Tuesday morning for the whistle-stop appearance there of Vice-President Richard M. Nixon.

The Vice President will speak from a special platform set up in the parking lot of the Grand Trunk Railroad Station, 1203 South Washington Ave. His train will arrive at 9:45 a.m. and leave at 10:15 a.m.

His speech will be part of a two-day campaign tour through Michigan on behalf of the Republican party.

Before speaking, Nixon will be presented with a green and white "S" blanket by three members of the Michigan State football team—Captain John Matko, quarterback Pat Wilson and halfback Clarence Peaks.

Mary Ann Boettcher, East Lansing senior, will give Mrs. Nixon a bouquet.

Clarence "Biggie" Mann, MSU athletic director and a personal friend of Nixon's will also appear on the platform.

The student motorcade, sponsored by the MSU Young Republicans, will leave the corner of Grand River and MAC avenues at 9 a.m.

It will include a fraternity fire engine, chartered buses, and a number of private cars. Anyone with a car who would like to provide transportation for others should meet at the corner a few minutes early, said Art Bartley, Young Republican president.

A special section of the Grand Trunk parking lot will be set aside for MSU students, Bartley said.

The Young Republicans are sponsoring a contest today for posters to be used during the Nixon appearance.

A $25 award will be given to the best group of six posters made by six or more MSU students, Bartley said. The posters will be judged according to effectiveness of design, originality and aptness of thought.

Judging will take place during the motorcade. Among the judges will be Fred Newman, chairman of the Ingham County Republican Committee.

John Conolly, Gurnee, Ill., senior, is chairman of the Young Republican arrangements committee for Nixon's appearance.

Called Again

Once again President Hannah has been called upon to step outside his duties here to perform a service for his country.

Last week Dr. Hannah was named to help a special Senate committee investigating America's multi-billion dollar foreign aid program.

Included in Dr. Hannah's duties will be an inspection tour of the foreign-aid programs in Japan, Korea, Formosa and the Philippines.

In naming the eight men chosen for the inspection trips, Sen. J. W. Fulbright (D-Ark.), co-chairman of the committee, called the men "distinguished Americans" with "outstanding reputations."

In Dr. Hannah the committee chose a man versed not only in world affairs and national affairs but, more particularly, in the Far East—where MSU has operations in Okinawa, Vietnam and Pakistan.

Dr. Hannah has aided in various foreign aid programs since he served as a special consultant on the Point-Four program at its inception.

He has also served as assistant secretary of defense in charge of manpower and is a member of the joint board on United States-Canadian defense.

This latest task handed him by the national government is perhaps his biggest.

Certainly any job that is designed to point for the future and guide a program of billion-dollar proportions is an overwhelming undertaking.

Entrusted to Dr. Hannah in this investigation of one-eighth of the country's foreign aid program will be not only the millions of dollars that may be spent in the Far East, but a good deal of the money that has already been poured into the area.

While carrying out the duties of investigation, he will also be an ambassador of his country, maintaining the good will that has already been established.

Dr. Hannah has said he is flattered by the assignment, as well he might be. Equally flattered are the students of MSU and the people of Michigan, all of whom Dr. Hannah so well represents in his present job.

It may be a bit trite but it is nevertheless very true that MSU and the state will have to lose him—even for a little while.

But we in the state know full well that here or there he will do an outstanding job and be a source of pride for Spartan, Michigan or American.

knowledge in the fields of learning in which programs of instruction and research are maintained.

Specifically, the Board authorized the creation of an International Affairs Center, an institution which will enable MSU to contribute to the people of foreign lands even more educational, technical and scientific assistance than it does now.

As envisioned by the Board, the Center will fully developed to co-ordinate university aid programs now in operation in Vietnam, Pakistan, Okinawa, Mexico, Brazil and Colombia.

These programs will be expanded and new ones formed. In addition, the Center will develop research, education and training at MSU in international programs; develop a training and educational program for students, business leaders, government officials and educators from foreign nations; and provide a consulting service and other technical assistance to agencies involved in international programs.

The fact that MSU's already vast overseas aid services will be expanded through the Center strikes us as the most significant aspect of the Board's action.

In past years—and today to a lesser extent—the U. S. has aided certain areas of the world with large financial grants. Much of it was given in the true spirit of giving—the desire to assist a less fortunate nation—but much of it sprang also from "greedy" motives. The U. S., engaged in a "Cold War," needed friends and allies. Dollars, it was thought, would buy them.

This philosophy, it appears, is now on the way out. In its stead has come the type of aid program exemplified by that of MSU—one that is far more realistic and meaningful.

Many areas of the world have a crying need for the type of assistance that can be furnished by MSU experts in such diversified fields as police administration, agronomy, business administration, economics, political science and others.

It is the type of genuine aid program that benefits others and has long-range, permanent effects.

It is a type of program welcomed by the peoples of foreign lands—one need only read the reports of MSU groups now functioning in Vietnam or Brazil to be convinced.

And finally, it should be stressed, it is the type of program from which MSU students and faculty will derive much benefit. President John A. Hannah told why when, in announcing the center, he said:

"...working with peoples abroad creates an environment for this institution in which both faculty and students deepen their concerns and competencies to analyze and understand international affairs."

The Voters Speak—As Lubell Sees It

Adlai Gaining in Pennsylvania

EDITOR'S NOTE: Samuel Lubell, whose column will appear on this page until election day, is one of America's foremost analysts. He has an unusual understanding of economics, government, foreign policy and the nature of war. Over the years he has made an exhaustive study of the voting of every county and major city in the U.S. since the Civil War. Having been trained as a popular writer and reporter he has also developed a technique for interviewing people so that their voting and our national problems come alive in terms of their own experiences.

Presides Pennsylvania. Lubell this week will discuss ticket-splitting, ethnic influences on voting, and candidate Adlai Stevenson's difficulties in erasing the Democratic Party's "war party" tag.

By SAMUEL LUBELL
Adlai Stevenson has a better than fighting chance to carry the key state of Pennsylvania. His prospects, though, hinge on the outcome of a strange kind of political battle which is being fought only in Pennsylvania and nowhere else in the country.

On national issues my talks with typical voters in five Pennsylvania counties showed much the same voting trend that I have found in the country as a whole. The President is losing some of his 1952 support among Pennsylvania farmers who complain, as did one in Clearfield County, "Eisenhower made promises he never kept."

A fair percentage of workers who voted for Eisenhower four years ago, are also returning to the Democratic because "there are too many businessmen in the Cabinet" or as a bookkeeper in Westland put it, "When Eisenhower cut taxes he took nothing off my bracket."

Despite these losses, though, the feeling that the "kept us out of war" is still holding for the President somewhat more than half of the one-time Democrats who switched to him in 1952.

Projected through the whole state, this would leave Eisenhower with a victory margin of from one to two percent.

Working against this, though, is the fact that since 1952 the Democrats have won the governor's office and, with it, control of the sizable state patronage machine. In Philadelphia the Democrats have also had another four years in which to root out the influences of the old Republican machine which was toppled in 1930.

Can the Democrats use their control of the state and of cities like Philadelphia, Scranton and Pittsburgh to pick up the extra two percent of the vote that Stevenson apparently needs?

My own interviewing yielded enough shifts to the Democrats for patronage reasons so that this development must be rated as a fair possibility.

In Scranton, for example, the wife of a gas station owner, who had backed Eisenhower in 1952, was switching to Stevenson because "the Mayor is a Democrat and the few favors I've asked for he's done."

Three blocks away a 31-year-old clerk and his wife felt "Eisenhower deserves another term." The clerk, however, had been out of work for five months.

"I'm thinking of trying to get a political job," he told me. "Of course, if I do that I'll vote Democratic."

Pennsylvania has long been a prime example of the political power of patronage. While the Republicans ruled the state they made a practice of passing out jobs, particularly for highway work on the understanding that these state employees would then try to influence the votes of friends and relatives.

The system worked so efficiently that even through the New Deal years, the Republicans were able to carry low-income areas which in other states would have been heavily Democratic.

Today with the Democrats dispensing the jobs, many state employees and their relatives have been changing party registration.

To take one county I visited, in 1952 the Democratic registration topped that of the Republicans in only 40 of Clearfield County's 110 voting precincts. This year 61 of Clearfield's precincts show a Democratic majority in registration.

Not all of this shifting means changes in voting. A Scranton taxicab driver confided, "I've switched registration from Republican to Democrat because my father works for the city. But I'll still vote for Eisenhower."

In contrast a 36-year-old truck driver in Clearfield County was shifting both his registration and his vote.

"I always did feel the Democrats were more for my kind of people," he explained. "But if you registered as a Democrat you'd never get a highway job no matter how hard you might need it."

Still, the hold of a political machine is not easily killed off. For my interviewing in both Scranton and Philadelphia I picked several precincts which should have been heavily Democratic on the basis of economic make-up, but which the Republicans have been able to hold because of patronage. In both areas I was surprised to find how loyal many voters remained to their old Republican benefactors, even though the Republicans were out of office.

I'm a Democrat but my wife's not," a young Scranton miner told me. "Her father had a state job. He's dead now but the family keeps voting Republican."

Similarly in Philadelphia a 32-year-old city engineer recalled, "Fifteen years ago the ward committeeman took my father off relief and gave him a job. My father is retired now. But he says the Republicans helped him when he needed it so he sticks with them."

In Philadelphia's 31st Ward a painter observed, "Lots of us around here followed Jimmy Cioffi. He was chief magistrate but got broken when the Democrats came in. Not so long ago he died. Many people around here will be turning Democratic now. I guess, I would myself, but I have two boys in the service and I figure Eisenhower is better for peace."

In 1952 Philadelphia astonished the nation by giving Stevenson a far heavier plurality (160,000 votes) than the 6,000 lead it had given Truman in 1948.

What happened, in essence, was this: the machine had kept Philadelphia more Republican than it would have been ordinarily. With the collapse of the machine much of the suppressed Democratic vote broke through even in the face of an Eisenhower landslide in the country.

Something similar may happen in Pennsylvania this year. But if so, my talks with voters indicate it will not be because of Governor George Leader's success in breaking the hold of the old Republican machine.

Military Junta Reported Controlling Government

TEGUCIGALPA (AP) — Diplomatic sources said Sunday army officers had deposed Acting President Julio Faria Fournier.

They said they were informed from Tegucigalpa Lozano Sunday afternoon to a governing military junta headed by Gen. Roque Rodriguez, head of the Francisco Morazan Military School.

Diplomats said apparently there was no fighting. Other members of the three-man junta which took over from Lozano are Col. Hector Garza, chief of the air force, and Maj. Roberto Galvez, son of former President Juan Galvez. Galvez has been minister of development.

Terse diplomatic dispatches said ailing, 71-year-old Lozano was deposed by a military movement in the capital and in San Pedro Sula, center of the north coast banana growing belt, Sunday morning.

Details of the movement which led to Lozano's offering his formal resignation were not available. Tegucigalpa was accepting only official telephone calls.

A revolutionary attempt to seize the government occurred last Aug. 1 when a military garrison in downtown Tegucigalpa was attacked.

White House Expresses View U.S. Aid Plan Urged Poles

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States aid to Communist Yugoslavia was officially credited in Washington Sunday with encouraging Polish leaders to assert their nation's freedom from Soviet domination.

This view was advanced at the White House after Secretary of State Dulles had reported to President Eisenhower on the apparent success at least in the initial round, of Poland's revolt against Moscow domination.

Dulles spent two hours with Eisenhower, going over the Polish situation as well as developments in the Suez Canal controversy and the latest exchange of letters with Soviet Premier Nikolai Bulganin.

Presidential Press Secretary James Hagerty reported after the conference that Eisenhower and Dulles "will continue to stay in very close touch with the situation as it develops."

Hagerty was asked whether the President's decision of a week ago to continue aid to Yugoslavia, which broke with Moscow in 1948, could have been made in the hope of encouraging such moves for independent communism in Poland.

"I certainly think," Hagerty said, "that the President's insistence on continued aid to Yugoslavia reflects itself in the Polish situation and in other unrest in other satellite nations."

Asked whether Polish developments would cause any change in Eisenhower's campaign plans, Hagerty said he thought "the entire world will just have to await developments in Poland."

Government leaders in Washington were extremely reluctant to talk about the Polish situation in the early stages of its development. There were at least two reasons for this. In the first place they did not know too much about it, many basic elements of what went on inside Poland being obscure.

The second reason was that they clearly wanted to avoid creating the impression that the United States actually had anything to do with bringing off this break in the Soviet satellite system. They expect the Russians will charge American intervention as usual.

Estes Urges H-Bomb Talks

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP) — Sen. Estes Kefauver said Sunday the United States "should talk" with Soviet Premier Bulganin on his offer for a U. S.-Russian agreement to end hydrogen bomb tests, calling it "necessary to the very survival of the world."

In a statement issued in Bakersfield as he campaigned in California, Kefauver said: "By past experiences we have a right to be leery of Soviet proposals. However, this one may have been made in good faith. We have everything to gain and nothing to lose from negotiating with the Soviet on this proposal."

Moscow radio said Saturday Bulganin has written President Eisenhower proposing an agreement to ban H-bomb testing. Bulganin used arguments advanced by Kefauver and Democratic presidential candidate Adlai Stevenson contending that violation of such an agreement could readily be detected by science.

Kefauver, who has hammered hard at the H-bomb theme, declared both he and Stevenson "have been saying for some time that we should stop the H-bomb tests, and that we can do so without endangering our national security."

"We should talk with Mr. Bulganin about his proposal," he stated. "We have always taken the position that there isn't anything honorable that we wouldn't do, or any place we wouldn't go, to advance the peace of the world. It is necessary to the very survival of the world that we call a halt to these deadly tests."

Informed sources said opponents as well as supporters of Gomulka, hailed as the new leader of Polish communism, joined in a wave of applause for his 2 1/2 hour speech. The 51-year-old former secretary general of the party, tough and taciturn, denounced what he called the misrule of the past 12 years and urged Poland to set its own course toward socialism independent of Moscow.

The reception accorded Gomulka's speech and the publicity it got in Warsaw papers left no doubt he is now free to take any position in the party he may desire.

An investigating commission drew up for the Central Committee a report on rumors of troop movements around the capital and across the East German-Polish border.

It was widely believed in Warsaw that fears of a coup led the Polish government to insist that all movements of Soviet troops in and through Poland be suspended during the Central Committee session which started Friday.

WKAR-TV Awaits Hearing Results

No word has been received yet by WKAR-TV as to the results of the recent hearings by the Federal Communications Commission on the station's application for a change to a VHF channel.

It is not known when the results of the 18-month hearings will be announced, according to Dr. Armand L. Hunter, director-manager of the station. Notification of the decision of the examiner was originally to be made in September.

Hearings started in Sept. 1954 for the station's application for a transfer of its license from UHF Channel 69 to VHF Channel 10. The hearings were completed in March, 1956, and the case went to the examiner at this time.

Americans paid about 90 billion dollars in taxes in 1955.

Students Join Staff Committees

Students will be working more closely with administration officials this year under the new system of administration committees effective now.

Five administration committees have been set up to coordinate activities previously handled by several specialized groups. Under these major committees will be sub-committees, several of which will employ the services of both faculty and students, according to Thomas Hamilton, vice president of academic affairs.

The five major committees are: Instruction, Curriculum and Research; Student Affairs; Faculty Affairs; University Services and Tenure.

Of the five, only two are of direct interest to students, Hamilton said. These are Student Affairs and University Services. However, he said, students may also serve on sub-committees of Instruction, Curriculum and Research.

Since the system is still under organization the exact number of students who will serve on committees and what activities they will participate in has not been determined.

Students are already working on such sub-committees of the Student Affairs Committee as motor vehicle and social activities.

William Conits, head of the University Services Committee, has proposed a special sub-committee for students and faculty to discuss library problems.

The proposal for more student participation on Administration committee originated in Student Congress last year.
