

Interpreting the News

Bitterness . . . and Sadness

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

WASHINGTON — At the moment when the moral pressure of all the long years seemed to be having some effect on Russia, France and Britain have acted in a fashion which does much to undermine the whole Western position.

Bare-knuckled force, against which the West reacted so promptly in Korea, has now been used by some of the very people who have inveighed so strongly against it.

The North Atlantic Treaty Organization is disorganized. Weapons gathered for defense against communism are being used openly and without apology for national, rather than free world interests.

The traditional Anglo-French-American alliance is, for this moment, in abeyance.

It will be patched up again, under the pressure of overriding mutual interests.

But those nations who once expressed the fear the United States might maneuver them into war with a great power are now dropping their bombs on a very small power.

Russia had just announced that her use of armed force in coercing the Eastern European satellites involved "mistakes." She says she is willing to negotiate to correct these mistakes.

In all the lands of the East, where the battle for men's minds has been going on, the Anglo-French action will be assessed as the emergence of colonialism from beneath what the Orient already considered merely a cloak of reform.

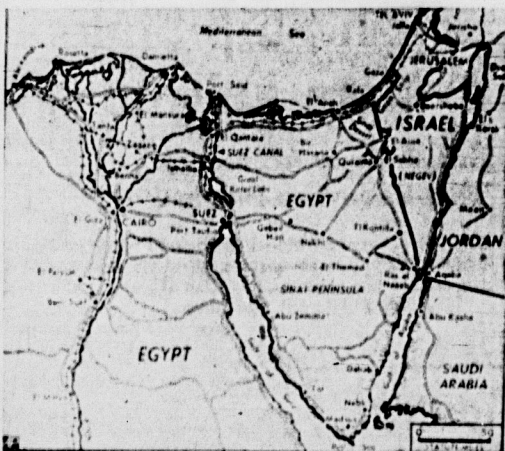

The Russian announcement will be taken as proof that she can be dealt with in safety, and the Suez action will be taken as proof that the West cannot be.

This assessment will not be applied merely to the French and the British. Russia is already charging that the United States is involved behind the scenes, and this will be believed by many of the neutrals.

The fact that the Suez action is a direct defiance of American leadership, which has been exerted for weeks on the side of moderation, is of less importance to the United States than these other factors.

There is bitterness in Washington that America's efforts to establish the West's moral position should have taken such a setback.

There is also sadness.

Profs Criticize British, French Action

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The State News asked members of MST's political science and history departments for their views of the Middle East situation. Following are their statements.)

DR. EDWARD W. WEIDNER,
HEAD OF THE POLITICAL SCIENCE DEPARTMENT

"The U. S. must choose between the principle of restraint and the short-run friendship of some of its allies.

"Hanging in the balance in this decision is the confidence of the new Asian and African countries in us. To back up France and Britain would be an invitation to set the west against the rest of the world.

"There is no cause to follow but to initiate our disapproval of the action of Israel, France and Britain to try to negotiate for the ending of hostilities. To have the troops of the three countries concerned returned to their own territory and to make the position clear before the world.

"To do otherwise would give the Soviet Union the appearance of the only great power interested in restoring aggression and preventing world peace."

DR. CARROLL HAWKINS,
ASSISTANT PROFESSOR OF POLITICAL SCIENCE

"The U. S. ignored by its British and French allies in their decision to bring peace by the sword, is not going to intervene militarily in this conflict.

"Our efforts will be directed toward ending or localizing the conflict by working through the UN and by dealing directly with the belligerent powers.

"There can be no doubt, however, that the action by the French and British without consulting Washington is a blow to American leadership in world affairs.

"The prestige of the UN has also suffered at this time it is not Russia, but the French and the English who are responsible.

"In an era of revolutionary nationalism, frustrated older imperialism and newer ideological imperialism, the need to progress toward an effective international political agency to govern an inter-dependent world is once again underscored."

JOHN SPROUT AND JACK
GREENE, HISTORY INSTRUCTORS

"Anyone who has read reliable newspapers over the past year should have foreseen the approach of a crisis in the Middle East.

"The whole affair is tragic, particularly for the people already involved in this war. Unfortunately, the strong imaginative American leadership in world affairs which could have averted this fiasco has not been forthcoming.

"American diplomacy in the Middle East must be described as shortsighted and inept. We hesitate to predict the grave consequences that may result."

"Michigan State students should view this situation with alarm because it marks the nadir of American foreign policy since World War II."

DR. JOHN B. HARRISON, ASSOCIATE PROFESSOR OF HISTORY

"The Middle East has been a battleground of clashing cultures for literally thousands of years. The problems there seem to defy solution. Although it is too early to form a mature judgment on the present crisis, it seems to me unfortunate that Great Britain and France should have taken precipitate military action where tact and patience are needed and at a time when colonialism is on the way out.

"Their action is a blow to the UN and is likely to enflame the whole Muslim world against the West.

"On the other hand, Secretary of State Dulles has been untactful in his dealings with Great Britain and France during the past four years and has thereby lessened our influence over them.

"I do not anticipate that this crisis will involve us in a major war."

Said Cleveland, Ohio, freshman SUSAN MILLER:

"Yes, I do think there is a danger of war. I don't think Britain and France were right at all in going in against Egypt."

Said Wyandotte sophomore ROYANNE GOODNEY:

"All my friends are worried for fear their boy friends and brothers may have to go into the army."

Said Melrose, N.Y., junior MARCIA HARNETT:

"Yes, I am worried about the possibility of war. I have a boy friend in the Air Force."

Said Atlantic City, N.J., sophomore GEORGE FETTER:

"I think both sides are at fault. I'm very much interested in the situation because of the draft."

There was no doubt about it. Students were worried.

Israel demolition of Arab country police posts, on grounds the posts sheltered commandos who attacked Israelis, have recently been condemned in Security Council debates.

The Council and the UN General Assembly have also heard Arab country spokesmen vow that Israel will not be permitted to continue as a state and that no peace treaty will ever be concluded with her.

Egypt recently has made separate military pacts with Syria and Saudi Arabia giving Egyptians command over the armies of each. This arrangement superseded the old-style Arab alliance that lined up all Arab nations together militarily and

In recent months the Arabs have been outfitted with Soviet-built planes and ships and Czechoslovak tanks.

Israel, barred at the outset of her history from British arms, had lately been promised jet planes by Canada and France.

But Canada announced it would reconsider the promise after the Israeli move Monday. The West, in an attempt to avoid what it called an arms race in the Middle East, refused last year to heed Israel's plea to match the Soviet bloc arms contributions to the Arab countries.

The strength of growing Egyptian regular army alone has been put at about 150,000, with recent recruiting campaigns boosting an overall defense figure to half a million. The Soviet Union has contributed to a buildup of the Egyptian navy, too.

Campus Chest Aids Services

Nursery and the National Scholarship Service and the National Student Reliance Fund. The funds collected by the Chest, State's largest organization, at the 1956-57 campaign, usually opens Monday.

Nursery was held at the Spartan wives' home, while they were working to support the family.

The building was an army structure but later the Chest was backed by the university with additional funds.

The Chest gives 15 per cent to the National Scholarship Service and Fund for Negro Students, often recognized as NSS-FNS, is an independent agency to aid in increasing higher educational opportunities for Negroes in inter-racial colleges.

Most of the funds are designated to high school students who are college candidates and may need financial aid. It also aids in counseling the student through their high school years and helps them to choose the college that will best fit their needs.

The NSS-FNS also awards supplementary scholarships to help students who already have scholarships but need more aid.

In recent years this organization has helped more than 3,300 Negroes enroll in inter-racial colleges and has aided them with $1 million.

The organization needs more money because many Negroes have to forego a college education and other local charities of the greater Lansing area. The Chest often pays tuition of a child from a needy family to attend the nursery. A piano which is now in use at the nursery was also donated by the Chest.

The American Legion also lends a helping hand along with other local charities of the greater Lansing area. The Legion often pays tuition of a child from a needy family to attend the nursery. A piano which is now in use at the nursery was also donated by the Chest.

Floriculture Display Theme Shows 'Rhapsody in Bloom'

'Rhapsody in Bloom' will be the theme Friday and Saturday nights when Floriculture Forum presents its tenth annual flower show in the Union building.

Open competition for the best floral displays will be held between men's and women's living units with prizes being awarded to the winners. Judges of the displays will be Mrs. Veda Foster, Mrs. Lucile Hein, and William Moler, all of whom are florists.

Students in the Floriculture Department will compete with each other for the best flower arrangement based on a song title.

A few tickets remain on sale for the opera performances Nov. 5 and 6 of 'Die Fledermaus' and 'Savannah.' Students should exchange coupon 'D' at the Union ticket office.

of the project the understanding was that it would be used as a means of parent education and thus serve a double purpose.

Campus Chest funds usually are used for major play equipment, usually outdoor facilities.

Last year, Campus Chest funds were voted to be used for paying instructors because there were no student observers and the university could not aid the project.

Teachers are part of the Home Economics department in the Home Management and Child Development field. Parents also help teach and make furniture, toys and clothing. Several of the parents attend classes on child development also.

There are "Dad's Work Parties" included in the program in which the men get together to help with the repairs of toys.

Eisenhower avoided any harsh denunciation or criticism of Britain and France for deciding to use force in Egypt without notifying the United States in advance. He said in matter-of-fact language:

"The United States was not consulted in any way about any phases of these actions."

"We believe these actions to have been taken in error. For we do not accept the use of force as a wise or proper instrument for the settlement of international disputes."

Despite some views that the British and French action had gravely rocked the Western alliances, Eisenhower said he in no way wants to minimize American friendship for Britain, France, Israel and Egypt—"nor our determination to remain and to strengthen the bonds among us."

Eisenhower gave no clue to any specific economic move his administration was considering to back up its demands that fighting stop promptly in the Middle East.

The President disclosed that the United States already has been in contact with the new Polish government for some days about the American pledge

Car Registration High on Campus

As the parking at MSU becomes more congested, the total number of registered cars mounts. According to statistics released by MSU's Department of Public Safety, there has been a total of 6,182 cars registered with the university.

Broken down into classes, the totals are as follows: 544 freshman cars, 1,436 sophomore cars, 1,632 junior cars, 1,550 senior cars, and the remaining cars possessed by graduate students, short course students, teachers, and other members of the university.

Although there are parking facilities for approximately 10,000 cars, much of this parking space is located on south campus.

7 Students Placed on Probation

Seven students appeared before the all-university student judiciary last week. Six were placed on disciplinary or warning probation and no action was taken against one.

Two were placed on warning probation for possession of beer on campus; and three were placed on strict disciplinary probation, two for transporting beer in a car on campus and one for theft. Another was placed on warning probation for disorderly conduct.

Olin Night Doctor Termed Impractical

Administration Considers Proposal Too Expensive

The student congress received a letter from Dean King informing them that the administration felt the hiring of a fulltime physician for night duty at the Health Center would be impractical and too expensive.

In one of the earlier congress sessions Joe Rhea, Lansing senior, introduced a bill to the congress to hire a full time physician for Olin, because he felt that in case of emergencies a doctor should be there instead of on call.

Ben Whitehead, retired congress member, stated in arguing against Rhea's proposal that Dr. Clifford G. Menzies, director of the center, had stated that a doctor was on call within five minutes from the hospital.

In regard to the Tamarabuchi case Dean King stated that the nurse on duty was told that the son was ill and nothing had been said of the severe beating the child had actually received.

Therefore, it was legal for the nurse to send the patient to Sparrow Hospital where such cases are to be handled unless it is an MSU student.

Bill Whaley, president of IFC, also sent a letter to the congress stating that discriminatory charges in the fraternities constitutions were being looked into.

Bill Reese, of the Judiciary branch of the government swore in the new members to congress. In his executive report, Bob Becker, president of AUSA, informed the congress that the elections were looked into and complaint from Andrew and plained the reasons of the Spirit for the failure of the Saturday night game. The ball team, however, is to be sent to the hospital for a check-up.

He also stated that the had handed in a resignation, but had been reinstated, therefore, it was not at the time of the election.

Carol Hodge, organizing chairman, gave a report on congress of the duties of the committee.

Becker, also announced that Bill Halsey, who was the first class president, was elected in the general election.

Lee Reese, president of the organization, gave a report on the organization's work in the past year.

New members of the work on the organization of the meeting.

IM Problems Raised at Dinner

Natural athletic representation discussed problems of the program and were shown the new IM building at the dinner in the Frandor Center.

The group considered the possibility of teams wearing color-coded shirts at games to provide better identification of players during the games. As of now playing sometimes becomes confused when players can't distinguish teammates because of the variety of clothing worn by the different players.

The blueprints for the soon to be constructed IM building were shown to the representatives. The two-story building will be located between Macklin Stadium and Dem Hall where the present varsity tennis courts are.

Stock Market Falls Because of Hostilities

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market broke sharply in heavy trading Wednesday on news of the Egyptian conflict but recouped part of its losses in quiet dealings before the close.

Prime Minister Eden's statement that Britain must protect her Middle East interests with or without prior agreement of the United States was what brought the heaviest selling.

When news came of actual bombing of Egypt later in the session, prices worsened but turned over was calm. Then followed a gradual betterment of prices which, in general, put the existing range of losses which ran $1 to $2 or more to a spread of around $1 to $2.

Grain Sales Leap After Egypt Bombing

CHICAGO (AP)—Anglo-French bombing of military targets in Egypt touched off a wild buying spurge in grains on the Board of Trade Wednesday.

LFA Show Features Pollock

The Literature and Fine Arts Gallery, at A-2, South Campus, is presenting its second exhibition of the season, devoted to the recent paintings and drawings of Charles Pollock.

Pollock, a member of the art department, returned this fall from a sabbatical year in Mexico. However, no local Mexican influences are represented.

Pollock was born in Denver, Colo., and received his early training at the Otis Art Institute in Los Angeles and the Art Students League in New York City. Under the influence of the regional school of painting which flourished in the 1930's and early 1940's, he spent considerable time in investigating the character of resources of the American scene. An example of that style can be found in the mural he painted for the entrance lobby to the Art Institute of Chicago.

Pollock has exhibited widely in galleries and museums across the country. He was represented in the 1939 World Fair in New York and has had works shown in the Northwest Print Makers, the Colorado Springs Fine Arts Center, the Society of American Artists, the Art Institute of Chicago, the San Francisco Museum of Art, the Pennsylvania Academy and the Detroit Institute of Arts.

The exhibition will run through Nov. 9 and is open to the public during regular office hours, on weekdays and also on Sundays from 1-5.

Seniors of Week Are Honored

Women Eligible at Age 62 For Social Security Benefits

WASHINGTON (AP)—Women beginning at age 62 will be eligible for Social Security retirement benefits, the Social Security Administration announced today.

The Department of Health, Education and Welfare, which administers the Social Security program, said that women who have worked for at least 10 years and are at least 62 years old will be eligible for the monthly retirement benefit.

The first government check to women retiring at age 62 will be paid in January 1958. The first check to men retiring at age 62 will be paid in January 1959.

To pay for the new disability benefits, social security taxes will go up one-quarter of one per cent Jan. 1. Workers and their employers will then pay 7 1/2 per cent each on the first $4,000 of annual earnings. The maximum tax increase for any worker will be $1.50 a year.

Another section of the law provides that the Social Security Administration will be authorized to make loans to states for the purpose of providing for the care of the aged.

The new law also provides that the Social Security Administration will be authorized to make loans to states for the purpose of providing for the care of the aged.
