Pirates Beat Yanks In 1st Series Game

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Airt Pittsburgh Pirates knocked out the New York Yankee starter with three runs in the first inning today and clawed out a 6-4 victory in the opening world series game despite 13 Yankee hits off Vern Law and Elroy Face.

When Law, the national league champion, 26-year winner, got in trouble in the eighth, it was Face the shrewdly pitching-watching relief ace. Taking over with two on and nobody out, Elroy Face pitched a superb game. He struck out Moe Drabek for a third, called strike, got Yogi Berra on a fly and struck out Moose Skowron. Although Face was picked for a two-run punch home by Elroy Howard in the ninth, the Yanks never could generate enough steam to match the fighting Bucc after that first inning.

Philippines Reaffirms U. S. Bond

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—The Philippines reaffirmed its alliance with the United States Wed. and got table-thumping disapproval from Soviet Premier Khrushchev.

While western delegations applauded, Khrushchev pointed his finger at three separate occasions as chief Philippine Delegate Francisco Delgado addressed the General Assembly in a major policy speech. Khrushchev was protesting.

First Khrushchev pointed his assembly desk when Delgado warned the new nations of the world against a "wall in sleep" clothing. He pounded again when Delgado referred to the 1956 Heligoland uprising. When Delgado left the rostrum, Khrushchev pointed a third time and made a "sweep-him-away" motion with his hand. Delgado also lectured the Neutralists on the dangers of upsetting the world balance of power. "We cannot all be neutrals," he said. "Some of us have to perform the unpleasant and even dangerous policy of helping to keep the scales of power in equilibrium."

Hannah to Give Keynote Speech At Conference

President John A. Hannah is in Chicago to deliver the keynote address today before a meeting of the American Council on Education.

The American Council on Education is a council of national, state and local educational organizations. The Council serves as a center for the collection and distribution of information, opinions and ideas concerning the improvement of education at all levels, especially the higher education level.

Wednesday night, President Hannah attended a dinner in Chicago sponsored by the Joint Office of Institutional Research of the State Universities Association and the American Association of Liberal Grant Colleges and State Universities.

ART DITMAR, the Yanks' starter, retired only one man before the hitless-run scrappers from the National League finished him off for the day to the delight of 36,676 at ancient Forbes field.

Ditmar went to the mound with a one-run lead, fashioned by Roger Maris' 104-foot home run into the upper deck in right in the Yankee first. It didn't last long.

The American League Champion, who finished the regular season with 15 straight victories, played like sleep-walkers in the Pirate first. They never were able to recover. It was the Pirates, first series victory over the Yanks, who brushed them off in four straight in 1957.

BILL VIRDON walked, stole second and sped all the way to third when nobody covered second base on Berra's throw. Then game Dick Groat, the league hitting king, running a double to right stirring Virdon. Bob Skinner bounced a hard shot past Bobby Richardson on the well-packed infield and Groat raced to with the run that put the Pirates ahead to stay. Skinner, stole second on Berra's high throw and sped home with the third run of the big inning as Roberto Clement's hard bouncer hit center.

CLEMENT'S HIT started a parade of Yankee relief men that included Jim Coates, Duke Mads and Ryno Duren as manager Casey Stengel maneuvered desperately, trying to close the gap. The Pirates, whose power had been rated much inferior to the Yanks' home run blasting, showed they packed a wallop in the fourth when Bill Mazeroski followed a walk to Don Hoak with a two-run homer off Coates over the scoreboard in left into a tree in Scheeler Park, about 360 feet from the plate.

Neutralist Hopes Now Sagging

Menzies Calls Nikita "Caesar"

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Australia denounced Soviet Premier Khrushchev Wednesday as a hypocritical latter-day "Caesar" trying to break up the UN and advance his influence by threats and violence.

The smallest attack came at a tense struggle shaped up at the UN General Assembly, over an apparently carelessly neutralist attempt to bring President Eisenhower and Soviet Premier Khrushchev to face each other in a personal meeting.

Prime Minister Menzies of India, a leading and influential voice of neutralism, spearheaded the Neutralist effort, demanding passage of a five-nation neutralist resolution opposing the two-man summit. Failure of the assembly to agree at the summit would be dangerous to the world's peace.

The assembly, reflecting similar neutralist hopes, for a year, had watered down their resolution, changing their "demand" for a summit to an expression of hope that one would take place. A personal meeting between the two world leaders, was what the Assembly would spread that expression of hope on the floor.

SPIRITED DEBATE over the Neutralist attempt, occurred last night at the Assembly's morning session. It was interrupted in the afternoon by a postponement of the debate.

It was then that Prime Minister Robert Gordon Menzies, in an address prepared for that purpose, called for his heavy assault on Khrushchev, one of the strongest against the Communist Chief that far in this special session. Menzies conferred with President Eisenhower in Washington Sunday.

"Mr. Khrushchev," the Australian, had the Assembly "be asked to convert the United Nations into the discredited institution by dividing the nations—no ancient Gaul was according to Julius Caesar—into three parts, which he conveniently though perhaps not very accurately described as the Communist world, as he might prefer to call it, as the free democratic world (as if not to step outside the slogan left, the capitalist world) and the neutral world."

THIS WAS a reference to Khrushchev's proposal to swap the office of the UN Secretary General and substitute a board of three veto-wielding members of the Security Council.

Referring to his talks with President Eisenhower, Menzies pointed the President as determined to talk Communist attempts to extend their influence to the new African states. He said the President felt "We are not to look at our new colleagues (the new U.N. members) as if they were voters to be collected or as seats in a bit international game, but as independent, co-equal and free."

Petitions Ready For AUSG Seats

Petitions for vacant Student Congress seats must be returned today. Petitions will still be available from 7 to 5 p.m. in the Student Services. Elections will be held Oct. 11. Bakers, Butterfield, East Lansing, East Lansing, East Lansing, East Lansing and West Lansing each have one vacant seat.

Atmosphere, Bryant, Emmons, fraternities and Snyder each have two open positions. Three seats are open from the Lansing area.

Starlings Believed Cause of Plane Crash

BOSTON (AP)—Hundreds of dead starlings—on a Logan International Airport runway—may hold the key to New England's biggest airplane disaster that took 61 lives late Tuesday.

Gen. Edward Quezada, Federal Aviation Administrator, expressed the possibility today at a Civil Aeronautics office news conference that an investigation of the crash into the sea of a four-engine Eastern Airlines Electra last week after taking off from Boston.

"We are convinced," the General said, "A large number of starlings were at the end of that runway when the plane took off. When these birds are ingested by a jet engine they can disrupt the delicate airflow of the engine and cause a stall."

The jet plane—with 67 passengers and a crew of five—had just taken off near twilight when it suddenly plunged into a narrow sea, separating the airport and Woburn, Mass., on Boston's North shore.

The passengers were barely settled in their seats, their safety belts fastened. Most of them died in their chairs, the belts still in place.

Of the 72 starlings, Cocker Shov, Chairman of the Massachusetts Aeronautics Commission, reported that an ornithologist had been in thousands of the birds, 100,000, migrating through Boston bay. They come down on runways to get warm.

And he added, those on the runways were alive yesterday afternoon.

Many of the passengers were Pennsylvania businessmen, some of whom had attended a short convention in Boston.

Also aboard were 13 highly trained Marines, bound for boot camp. For most of them it was their first plane ride. Twelve of them died.

The 11 survivors of the crash included both plane mechanics. Many of them are in serious condition.

The captain, skipper and flight engineer perished.

The Contemporary Issues Forum is to begin publication of a literary magazine because many feel there is a lack of free expression and intellectual thought on the campus, according to Marty Kahl, spokesman for the group.

"The magazine is a further intellectual thought and stimulates free expression by the student body," Kahl, New York sophomore, stated.

"An attempt will be made to publish all sides of an issue, along with short stories, poems, and art-work contributed by students," Kahl remarked. "Tentative arrangements have been made to present a lecture by Samuel Shaw, instructor of MSU-O, in November. Shapiro has recently written articles for the New Republic Magazine."

Nehru Pushes for Meeting

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. (AP)—Prime Minister Nehru of India declared Wednesday that he would like to see the United States and Soviet Premier Khrushchev meet at this moment of East-West tension would be dangerous, harmful and totally unjustified.

"If we cannot understand our own people, what can we do?" Nehru asked in an impassioned speech.

Professor Starts Today For Taiwan

Edward J. McCully, professor of Agricultural Economics, will leave today on a two-year assignment to the Agricultural Extension Service in Taiwan. McCully will study and advise two schools in Taiwan in strengthening their basic agricultural instruction, research and extension programs and also in developing their rural college programs.

The two institutions are the National University of Taiwan in Taipei and the Provincial College of Agriculture at Tainan.

Four other Michigan State students will join Professor McCully in Taiwan during the next year of the contract. These will be advisers in dairy, agriculture, extension, agricultural education and agricultural engineering.

Professor McCully, who joined Michigan State in 1949, was a research agricultural engineer in Nanjing, China, from 1948 to 1949 for the National Agricultural Research Bureau. Prior to that he was connected with water resources development in 11 western states.

A native of Ames, Iowa, Professor McCully holds degrees from Iowa State University and was head of the department of agricultural engineering at North Dakota Agricultural College from 1929 to 1939.

Campus UN Sets Meeting

The first regular meeting of the MSU Model United Nations will be held Friday at 8:30 p.m. in the Union Ballroom.

Foreign and American students interested in membership are invited to attend, according to Secretary General Mervyn T. Tamm, Iraq graduate student. Membership forms will be available in the UN lounge before the meeting.

The Friday agenda will include discussion of the winter intersession UN conference to be held here, subject to resolutions and decisions at coming Model UN meetings, and acceptance of new members.

Abbot Closes Early

By ANNE MAYLE
State News Staff Reporter

The majority of votes at MSU today when they heard of the new AWS ruling which extended week-days to 11:30 for upper-classmen and 10:30 for freshmen. This new provision allowed the upperclass women to have more classes in their living units until the closing hour of 11:30. This is not as in Abbot Hall, however.

According to Abbot Hall President Mary Jo Lindsay, Detroit Jr., all males have to be out of the dorm by 10:30 for three reasons.

FIRST, the majority of the women residing in Abbot are freshmen, and there is no way for the dorm officers to differentiate their dorm from those of the upperclass women. There were too many girls taking advantage of this situation, Miss Lindsay said.

SECONDLY, Abbot is situated so that many girls have to pass through the lobby to get to their dorm which remains open until 11:30. Many of these girls have packages on. As the upperclass women are still understanding their callers at this time in the lobby, it created much embarrassment.

LASTLY, the switchboard at Abbot is flooded with calls after 10:30 and it was becoming almost impossible for the switchboard staff to handle the incoming calls as well as buzzing the dorms for the male callers.

THE DORM Presidents' council has discussed this problem and found that other dorms don't have it. Abbot didn't make this ruling to set an example for other girls dorms, Miss Lindsay added. It should have no effect on security. However, Miss Lindsay said, as they house only upper-class women who have made their grades.

Deferred Rush Should Help Greeks

MONDAY marks the inauguration of the latest innovation in fraternity circles: deferred rush.

Completely disallowing the first term freshman from pledging a fraternity during fall term, the new plan will, no doubt, come under some initial criticism, both from that group and the individual houses themselves. This is to be expected.

The freshman may be incensed because he feels he is being held back from joining the fraternity of his choice, while the houses might tend to believe that the new system will hurt their traditionally big fall rush, during which time they usually pledge a larger number of men than at any other time of the year.

HOWEVER, both groups will probably find as the term wears on that the system is helping them more than hurting them. Here's why:

The freshman student, under the new plan, will now have 12 weeks in which to make up his mind whether or not he wishes to join a fraternity and, if he does join, which house he will pledge. We think that, in itself, is a major redeeming point of the new program.

The change from high school to a large university is a great one. To expect a freshman to know with which house he would like to be affiliated when he's only had a chance to observe university life for less than two weeks is, we think, nonsense.

YET, in the past, unsuspecting freshmen were herded off the streets and into chapter houses before they even got a chance to ask how much it would all cost. Before the week was up, members had the "initiation" signed to pledge and it wasn't long after that that our boys found he was officially affiliated with people, half of whom he didn't know well enough to call by their first names.

The new plan should eliminate this sort of thing to a large degree.

Freshman now will have an entire term to decide which chapter offers them the best type of companionship and brotherhood closely suited to their own personality.

EACH house has an individuality of its own. The "waiting" period will enable the freshman to discover these individualities and take an active interest in those houses which seem to offer what he wants.

Another important factor is grades. A tremendous percentage of pledges never made the coveted 2.2 last year, and as a result, are still in the pleading stage.

By eliminating pledge activities from a first term freshman's busy schedule, there's a better chance that he will be able to devote his initial term to finding out how he stands, academically, in relation to the other members of his class.

THIS, in turn, could help indicate to him whether or not he will ever be able to maintain his grades while participating in fraternity activities during future terms.

But the freshman is not the only one aided by deferred rush. The fraternity chapter also benefits in many ways, not the least important of which is the fact that they will now be able to see for themselves what kind of grades the student received the term before.

In the past, the Greeks could only go on high school grades, a poor determinant if there ever was one. Now, the chapter will be able to evaluate the prospective pledge in terms of that all-important figure, his previous term's MSU grade point.

THIS should be of invaluable help to those houses that are earnestly striving to uplift the fraternity system by admitting only scholastically sound men. Since critics of the fraternity system have harped in previous years about the low academic standings of the chapters, this would seem to be an excellent opportunity to help put an end to these charges.

'Mental Hitch-hikers' Have to Go!

ALTHOUGH the quality of television seemed to sink to new depths during the summer, we think one notable exception deserves comment.

This one exception was the Armstrong Circle Theater, which presented an informative and entertaining show entitled "The Dishonor System." Written by Jerome Coopersmith, the drama exposed the various agencies that feed on the laziness of college students who seem to find it distasteful to write term papers or take exams.

COMING when it did, the program was extremely timely. It is usually about this time of year that new campaigns of "criticism" and hidden notes, ad infinitum, get their starts. MSU, being one of the nation's largest universities, is certainly no exception.

MORALIZING about this would be fruitless. The people who would heed any advice are already honest. The cheaters who read this uniqueness they have "ghost readers," too, will no doubt laugh it off and then return to busily filling their blue books with pre-test "notes."

Pessimistic though it may sound, we realize that harping at the guilty party has little, if no, effect. Some are appealing to the instructors instead. The beginning of a new school term would seem to be an excellent time for a university-wide "crack down" by responsible people on these "leeches" of knowledge.

ALTHOUGH we deplore the concentration camp aspect of this "get tough" policy, there seems to be no other choice. The only alternative toward the honest handling of an examination seems to be more direct control over the student's actions in an examination.

IN general, this means checking I.D.'s and blue books, watching for neck ratters and monitoring the test with the utmost scrutiny. True, the whole process smacks of grade school. But what else can be done when some students insist on acting like they were still in that age category?

Cheating doesn't hurt just the cheater. It hurts every member of the class. An honest student has no chance when he is facing a rigid curve.

OUR NATION is depending on MSU's graduates for the leaders of the future. How valuable to any civilization are engineers, lawyers and teachers who slipped through the university on someone else's brains? It is depressing to even think of the answer to this question.

"Mental hitch-hikers" are a detriment to everyone. As young adults it is our responsibility to get rid of them.

Students Against Ike-K Meet

By CATHIE MAHONEY, State News Staff Writer

Would a meeting between President Eisenhower and Nikita Khrushchev lead to an improvement in international relations if the meeting were held this week?

Results of the poll show that the average student feels that no solution to the difficulties between the two nations would be reached by such a meeting at this time.

Wanda Hessler, a sophomore from Bozette City, feels a meeting now would not have any effect, "because Khrushchev is waiting to see what will happen after the election."

Most of the students contacted in the informal poll thought that if there is any chance of easing the tense situation it will come after the presidential election in November.

"I think it will depend a lot on which party holds the top office," said Bill Becker, a sophomore.

Because of the different philosophies of the parties, there is a difference in the handling of foreign affairs. But at the present time there would be no solution to the problem."

Bill's cousin, Jim Becker, a Chicago junior, disagrees with him in part. He feels that for some reason a meeting between Eisenhower and Khrushchev would come to some good.

With so many countries of the world in conflict and disagreement, I think they would get a temporary halt to their fighting to see the outcome of the meeting. But I don't think that's the main reason after all, because Eisenhower doesn't have that much time left in office to really get anything settled."

Some students feel as A. Fawcett, Chicago senior, does that Khrushchev should apologize or at least make amends to Eisenhower for his recent behavior toward the President.

"It would ruin our prestige with the rest of the world if we went running to Russia," he said. "We should definitely let Khrushchev come to us—that's the only way there could be any solution."

"The Soviet Union is the narrow-minded to listen to our views and agree to any U.S. proposals," said Lucy Clough, a freshman from Delmar, N.Y. "However, I think Eisenhower would like to try to settle our problems because his goal should be 'international peace,' she said."

Roberta Foote, Jackson freshman, thinks there is too much of a delicate situation at the present time to try to do anything about it.

"It would be better to leave it alone for awhile," she said. "I don't think Khrushchev is ready to negotiate with us at the present time," said Mary Kay Oswald of Chicago, a junior.

Therefore, there would be no point in repeating an episode like that of last week," she concluded.

Pat Dillon, a Paw Paw freshman, feels that the Soviet leader has such a hostile attitude toward the U.S.—Eisenhower especially—that there is no chance of any meeting between the two. However, she thinks that if we were to meet with her, Russia, we must stand firm.

Only one student of the 11 polled felt it would really do any good to have a meeting between the U.S. and Russia.

Bill Becker-Grosse Pointe freshman, said, "I think it would be a good idea to discuss their problems. In this way each other's views would be understood and we could meet each other halfway."

Mary Ann Galbraith, Edwardsburg freshman, summed up the general feeling when she said, "Khrushchev has publicly declared more than a sufficient number of times that he won't negotiate until we get a new president."

Capitol Report Crucial State Campaign Starts

By CHUCK RICHARDS, State News Capitol Reporter

It is quite possible that more time, energy, and money will be spent on the current campaign for the Michigan Legislature than any other period of history.

The 1960 race for seats in the House and Senate between the Republicans and Democrats is a crucial battle to determine control of the state's law-making body.

Certainly, never before has so much interest been aroused in Michigan's state government since the 1959 fiscal squabble between the two parties which almost ended in a disastrous deadlock before cooler heads prevailed.

Followers of the wild melee in Lansing will recall that for the first time in more than 20 years the Democrats like to remember, a deadlock prevailed in the House. The split was 35-33 between the two parties, an unprecedented occurrence for the normally Republican-dominated group.

The Senate, however, was in firm control of the Republicans, 22-12, and the administration was headed by a Democrat, Governor G. Mennen Williams.

It was evident in this period that further taxes were needed to maintain an ever-increasing budget—and then the fun began.

pushed for a graduated income tax, claiming that it was the most equitable solution and that the majority of the states in the union (including California, New York, and Wisconsin) already had such a tax.

Rebuttal leaders countered with the theory that each person should pay the same amount and advocated a "use-it-or-lose-it" sales tax, which is really a sales tax.

With Rep. George Sallade (Rep. Ann Arbor) voting with the Democrats, an income tax bill was pushed through the House. The Senate rejected it.

With a deadlock staring them in the face, the Democrats repudiated and passed the "use-it-or-lose-it" sales tax which was later ruled unconstitutional by the Supreme Court.

Now the issue of whether or not the people wish to oversee the Supreme Court ruling is on the ballot.

Perhaps the one obvious good to arise from the otherwise almost comical proceedings is the spotlighting on the woefully inadequate state representatives in Lansing.

For example, one member of the appropriations committee in the Senate was asked why funds to MSU (along with others) had been cut.

"Oh," President John A. Hannah is always wasting money on all those marble buildings," he vehemently replied.

When asked what marble buildings he referred to, the reply was: "All those buildings he puts up are marble."

Men like this have been around the capitol for many years but only recently has the public come around to realizing their existence. And the absence given to the tax problem helped bring this into focus.

These are a few of the reasons why both parties are beginning to realize the significance of putting up capable candidates to run the state—and why this year's race is so interesting to observe.

The Editor's Corner Whither Spirit?

BY SUE PRICE, EDITOR-IN-CHIEF

AFTER a big football game there are many thoughts which come to mind, and the Michigan game Saturday made me realize more than ever that the Spartan fans, if they can be called fans, have very little spirit.

It is true we cheer the team on when we are winning or close to a touchdown. We scream for a score and cheer loudly then. But if the TD is not made we grumble and complain. We criticize the quarter-back and say it's all his fault that the play failed.

The cheerleaders are on the field to lead cheers. What do they get in return for their efforts? Very little response.

ONE cheerleader said recently that he joined the squad because he liked to cheer at games and was tired of watching everyone in the stands around him doing nothing but sitting. If it weren't for the plays near the goal, most of the fans would never move a muscle, even to say, "Yea State!"

The band did an excellent job throughout the game. The pre-game and half-time shows were unique and showed careful preparation. The band has spent many hours practicing new routines, and the practice has paid off. The band showed it is becoming one of the best college bands; it has musical skill and versatility.

DURING the game several sections of the band led fight cheers. The band members tossed hats in the air and waved shakers while cheering the team. Unfortunately, little response was heard from the stands. At least the unique "world's longest chorus line" got response from the crowd.

The ticket lines for each game are long; it's obvious everyone wants to go to the game. Why not show a little spirit and let the team, the band, the cheerleaders, and the coaches know that we are behind them when we get there?

Curstone Comments Michigan Fans Getting Peered

Notes written on the back of a discarded "Go Blue" badge:

EDITORIAL comment trickling in from Ann Arbor suggests that there are many die-hard Wolverine fans that are more than a little agitated at the losses incurred by their heroes by the Spartans over the last five years. The Michigan Daily, student newspaper, quoted one disgruntled fan as saying: "I'm sick of just winning the band contests; next time we've got to win the football game."

Although it would seem only decent to leave our rebuffs some little crumbs of glory, we'll not be so hasty to concede even the halftime show to the men of many flags and capes. The MSU band put on what was probably their best performance ever. The petty swipes at the Spartan band that found themselves on the front page of the Daily only demonstrated that Michigan students have found something new to worry about—the rising emergence of our band.

Take heart, Wolverines... There's always the swimmer's season to think of.

ON the other hand, it's ironic that MSU's largest crowd in history had to watch the worst show ever put on by "Block N."

Granted, it takes some time to iron out the kinks in any new endeavor. But let's hope that last Saturday's display won't be repeated again this weekend before another new capacity crowd. It almost makes one shudder to think that the group will be on nationwide television Oct. 29 for the Ohio State game. Won't men and dad be surprised!

Letters to the Editor ROTC 'Rabble Rousing' Called Security Threat

To the Editor:

It was brought to my attention that in the Wednesday, Sept. 28, State News, the so-called "AUSC" Spirit Committee on ROTC announced public hearings for Monday.

The rabble rousing over a dead issue should not be allowed. The Board of Trustees has given its answer after due deliberation that ROTC should be compulsory.

The Army's position is one of emphatically favoring a required ROTC course.

It behooves the ROTC without the required basic course, it could not meet even the minimum perpetual annual officer requirement from the ROTC program. If we do not have the officers we need, the national security will be threatened.

It is interesting to note that the Young Socialist newspaper for Oct. 1960, a newspaper put out by the Young Socialist Alliance, states that one of the planks of the SWP is to "end ROTC."

It would be well for the chairman of the select committee to state his political viewpoint. The committee must have been stacked and their resolution a farcical conclusion.

Daugherty's Faith in Wilson to Reap Dividends

By JOHN SCHNEIDER
Last Saturday, 76,000 football fans witnessed the arrival at Spartan Stadium of Michigan State's new quarterback, Tom Wilson.

Couch Daugherty, who coached Wilson in almost every attempt during the Michigan season, was not surprised when Wilson was named the starter. The question will probably be asked before the MSU-U of M game, however, whether Wilson would be able to do as well if he were the signal caller for the Spartans, as the Spartan quarterbacks have been for the most part in the past. This year, however, Wilson showed both a running ability that has not been called into play by means of "safety passes" which was erratic at

The point is, however, that Wilson possesses all the ingredients of a top notch quarterback, as last Saturday's game best showed. The hopes of the Spartan football fans rest on whether or not he can continue his high level of performance for the rest of the season.

LUCKY STRIKE PRESENTS: DEAR DR. FROOD!

DR. FROOD'S THOUGHT FOR THE DAY: It's better to have loved and lost than to have spent the whole weekend studying.

Dear Dr. Frood: My roommate is a good guy, but there's one thing about him I can't stand. He wears button-down collars but never buttons the little lapel buttons. Why is this?
Clothes Conscious
DEAR CLOTHES: Don't let this worry you. It's just that his thumbs are too big.

Dear Dr. Frood: The other day my roommate and I had an argument about the difference between traditional art and modern art. What, in your opinion, is the basic difference between these two forms?
Art Major
DEAR ART: The examples above should settle your argument. The portrait at left is traditional. The artist has drawn Lincoln as he actually appeared. The portrait at right is modern. As you can see, the modern artist has drawn Lincoln's great-great-grandson.

Dear Dr. Frood: Once and for all—is it right or wrong for a man to marry a girl for her money?
Righteous
DEAR RIGHTEOUS: Nowadays this isn't simply a matter of right or wrong. There are the tax angles to consider.

Dear Dr. Frood: I don't understand my boy friend. When we are all alone and the moon is full, he tells me he worships me. But during the day, he crosses the street when he sees me coming. What is wrong?
Loveless
DEAR LOVELESS: Did it ever occur to you that he may be a werewolf?

Dear Dr. Frood: My favorite brand is Lucky Strike. But unfortunately I am left-handed. Why doesn't Lucky Strike come out with cigarettes for left-handed people?
Lefty
DEAR LEFTY: Left-handed Luckies are available. Simply ask for "Left-handed Luckies." They come in a white pack with a red bull's-eye. The only difference between these and ordinary Luckies is that you must always smoke them while facing a mirror.

"LUCKIES ARE BETTER THAN MONEY," says Dr. Frood (who gets paid in Luckies). It's a fact that college students smoke more Luckies than any other regular. This cigarette is all cigarette—the cigarette that still tastes great. Try a pack today—it's the only thing you and Dr. Frood will ever have in common.

CHANGE TO LUCKIES and get some taste for a change!

Football Practice Closed: New Plays for Iowa?

Sports were held Wednesday in the Spartan football camp as the players ran offensive and defensive drills in their closed states.

Only members of the press were allowed to watch the players run through a new series of offensive plays especially designed for Iowa this weekend.

If Coach Daugherty does use a new style offense this week, it will be the third variation in as many games. At this the Spartans made pronounced use of the split T with the halfback carrying the heat of the offense. Against Michigan, Daugherty came up with the belly center-interference play, a play which had the halfback and the quarterback carrying the ball.

The Spartans will be using a healthy squad into Saturday's contest with the Buckeyes. All players have been practicing at full speed during the week and

The Early Bird's Worm Bites Back In Late Fine

Did you sneak into registration early? If so, the administration may have your number—student number and all, that is.

The registrar's office has announced that 30 students were caught trying to register early. These students were caught when their names and student numbers did not match the registrar's records.

Some of the cheaters heard a rumor about the registrar's office catching them. Upon going to the registrar's office and identifying themselves, they were allowed to register again Monday. Late registration was their only penalty.

A few others discovered that their names were not on any class lists. When they went to the registrar's office, they also were allowed to re-register. Some of the cheaters haven't seen the registrar yet. They won't know their penalty until the end of the term when they find they won't receive credit for their class work.

The registration schedule now used by the registrar's office is based on a schedule worked out by student government in the 1940's. The schedule is designed so that each term a different section of the alphabet is registered first.
