

New ROTC Program Better for Students

ROTC is on a voluntary basis for the first time this fall.

As expected, enrollment in the Army and Air Science programs has dropped considerably.

Seven hundred signed up for the program this fall as compared to 2,400 enrolled last fall under the compulsory program.

Army officials are confident that a large number of these will continue on into the advanced program.

They also feel that a large number of students enrolled in ROTC 100 will decide to go into the regular ROTC program.

ROTC 100 is an idea borrowed from the University of Wisconsin. It is a series of five orientation periods to explain the ROTC program to male students.

After the five lecture programs the men will have a choice of going on into the ROTC program or being through with the Army until after graduation.

Nov. 1, then, is the final day in which freshmen have to participate in some part of the program.

At first glance the new enrollment figures for ROTC seem low, but the students who have now signed up for the program will bring a better attitude and the idea of completing the four years with them.

The students will be more receptive to the class work and the calibre of the courses during the first two years will probably rise to meet the greater challenge offered by these interested students.

The fight for ROTC at Michigan State was a long haul, but we think it was worth it from both the student's and the department's points of view.

Students are pleased about the outcome. Many, however, forget the long exhaustive study that an AUSG committee, under the leadership of John Martinen, made.

It was this study and other work by AUSG which helped to realize the voluntary program.

It makes the student body proud to know that if something is a big enough issue with them, they can push it through and make themselves heard.

Getting Into Harvard

That part of Harvard College which still functions in Cambridge rather than Washington is going through one of its periodic wrangles over admissions policy.

The most telling argument to date is one which admits that the recent left home on the Charles is not as nonchalant about the White House as some Harvardians have tried to make it appear.

Former dean of admissions Wilbur Bender, writing in a recent alumni bulletin, objected to a proposed policy of admitting to Harvard only students placing in the top 1 per cent on nationwide tests. He did so on grounds that this would have denied Harvard admissions to Presidents Kennedy, Franklin Roosevelt, and Theodore Roosevelt.

Much as this prospect might appeal to non-Full Moose Republicans, Bender's argument does make sense.

For there are some qualities of character that the most meticulous tests cannot uncover; some eccentricities of curiosity and intelligence that are simply not cast in a mold. It is often these qualities, late-blooming in many cases, that make the bold leader or inventive researcher. And no great university can afford to dispense with such students, who challenge its faculty and leave its platoons of more methodical scholars.

Churchill's early school difficulties are well known. Jan Christian Smuts also had trouble learning to read until long after other children had. And in one of the more notable cases of mistaken admissions policy, a headmaster threw the great inventor Thomas Edison out of school because he "would never learn."

There is more than a hint in these cases that Harvard would be well advised to go on admitting future Presidents.

Point of View

The Problem of Bigness With Some Suggestions

By Bob Seiler

How wonderful it is to read about the tremendous gains our University is making in the number of students enrolled. For this school year there is an increase in registration of 11% over last year.

Michigan State is rapidly becoming one of the largest universities in the country. This is certainly an outstanding leap forward from the old days of Michigan Agricultural College. A University has a moral responsibility to the citizens to accept as many students as possible who are able to meet the entrance requirements. With such an ever-increasing number of applicants, a university must provide a place for a greater number of students.

Our administration decided to do its part to fulfill the growing desire for higher education by admitting more students. It is a commendable commitment on the strength of our nation that more people have the opportunity to acquire the level of education of which they are capable.

Besides having a bigger freshman class, our enrollment figures also show that there is a large increase in the number of transfer students.

Each year the freshmen class has entered with a finer academic record. This accomplishment plus the fact that more students are choosing to finish their education at Michigan State after previously attending another school, should make us all proud of our University. This is an enviable record.

However, there are also negative aspects of this situation. We all witnessed one such drawback on the first day of classes. This is the problem of the overcrowded class room. Some other outstanding effects of an increase in enrollment are a dilution of the student-professor relationship and a heavy strain on the research facilities of the library.

It is a detriment to any university and a damaging burden on the professors to have classes which are too large. A professor with too many students is forced to limit questions, class discussion, and individual attention to the particular problems of each student.

Also many professors have been faced with the dilemma of reducing research papers due to the lack of materials in the library or because the work of grading such a vast amount of papers is prohibitive.

Our library contains only a certain number of volumes in specific areas. In some instances this is not adequate for a large group of students to use for outside readings and term papers. The result can only be fewer assignments from the professor.

If we are to maintain the same quality in the level of our education, we must increase the number of instructors and improve the library facilities in an amount proportional to the increase of students. Needless to say, if we are going to raise our standards, the total increase must be larger than the number of new students.

The end result of the university is the graduate. His quality must not be reduced because his quantity has been increased.

Letter Policy

Letters to the Editor should be sent to the Editor, Michigan State News, Student Services Building, Campus.

We encourage students and faculty members to criticize, praise, and expound their views in the letters column. The column will be as big as the readers wish to make it.

We ask that no letter be over 400 words and that every letter be signed. We will print no letter that is unsigned.

We reserve the right to edit any letters.

Letters to The Editor Professors, Pistols, Protests

To the Editor:

The readers of the State News are entitled to the facts and a correction of the impression given by your editorial of October 2 on "Class Cancellations in History Department".

In each of the cases cited, efforts were made to secure professors for the courses and the decision to cancel them was not made until shortly before the beginning of the term when it became clear that no professors for these courses would be available. Replacements of senior professors are not arranged in a matter of weeks.

The Department is now engaged in finding a scholar and teacher to replace Dean Varg. The credentials of many scholars throughout the nation will be examined and several will be interviewed. When an appointment is made the course in the History of Foreign Relations of the United States will be taught. Professor Adams will return to the campus next summer and again offer his courses in the History of Russia. The decision to cancel the courses in question was taken in the Department and this decision was made because there was no alternative.

Recognizing that the cancellation of two courses in popular areas would cause disappointment to many students, a course in the Near East in the Modern World was added. This, too, is an important, even controversial, area. Furthermore, a course in Russian History will be available at the 400 level in the Winter and Spring Terms. A Department always regrets the necessity to cancel any of its courses, but there is no reason to imply sinister motives in this situation. The reasons are very simple and very clear.

If the State News had questioned me or any member of the History Department, the facts would have been furnished and there would have been no need for the editorial. Beyond this, the spreading of error and misunderstanding, which I assume is not the purpose of the State News, could have been avoided.

Campus Police

To The Editor:

I have been giving considerable attention to the fact that the campus police carry guns. After much study and thought I have come to the conclusion that there are only three possible alternative reasons for this phenomenon.

First, Michigan State students are a particularly vicious and violent lot and the police need weapons to prevent crimes of violence. This is made evident by the large number of armed robberies and murders occurring on the campus in recent years.

Second, since the flying saucer scare of several years ago, the Michigan State campus has faced an imminent danger of invasion from outer space, and the police need sidearms to cope with this menace.

Third, the Department of Public Safety is imbued with a pathological high degree of pusillanimity. No matter which of these alternatives is correct it is still true that Michigan State is the only place in the world where the police break up a party raid by firing their revolvers.

On Campus Crazy Courses In Catalog

----- Sally Derrickson

This University is a pretty amazing place. Who would have thought you could learn how to make ice cream and call square dances at college? You can even take a course in how to work a slide rule or how to build a greenhouse!

At MSU, you can study just about anything as a quick check of the catalog will tell you.

You can take Rural Electrification 412 or Sewage analysis 481. You can learn how to judge dairy products or how to wrestle.

There's something for everyone.

You can study chamber music, maintenance of mobile homes, color and design as applied to daily living, house furnishing, clothing consumption, clothing in relation to human behavior, man and the anthropoids, or nursery administration. (That last one is in the forestry department. If you're interested in other kinds of nurseries, the Home Management and Child Development department has a course in Participation in the Nursery School, I and II.)

In the horticulture department, there's Ornamental Plants I, II, and III. You can also take courses in social recreation and game leadership, advanced basketball, playground and day camp administration, hander safety, weight-lifting, understanding of young children, antenna theory, forest insects, greenhouse insects, shade tree insects, farm crops insects, fruit insects, aquatic insects, and even taxonomy of immature insects.

And that's not all. What about butter-making 402 or Cheese making 405? And swine production, sheep production, beef production and horse production (Animal Breeding I and II might be prerequisites here.)

If none of these suit you, there are courses in scout leadership, Household Equipment I, II, III and IV... house cost estimating, and advanced house cost estimating... fly and bait casting, paddleball, scuba diving, anatomy of the head, neck, and thorax.

Don't forget Weaving I and II, either, the next time you check your course schedule with your academic adviser. You can also take a nature study, animal behavior, fundamentals of wood seasoning, police defense tactics, personal identification, or advanced Theory of Reinforcement I and II.

Interesting courses, all of them. And all in the catalog.

So why aren't we all studying these?

Curious as it may seem, the answer is already in the catalog. The University speaker policy, actually it represents a further limitation. An approval by the committee could not remove any of the restrictions already set by the University, state, etc. However, disapproval of speaker could only limit academic freedom beyond the prevailing hindrances. We feel that the only function of the committee, therefore, can be an additional curtailment; the specific form of this curtailment will be a function of the arbitrary political views or indef-ferences of the committee members.

Rather than being notified of any official communication of Administration's decision, we learned of it by chance reading of the State News.

If above our protests this committee is still formed, we would like you to provide us in writing with a delineation of the specific criteria not set forth in the News which will be employed by the committee in selecting speakers. For we can operate under the vague stipulations presented in the News or reject them.

Flint Junior Journalists Plan Protest Demonstration

FLINT, (UPI)—Students on the staff of the suspended Flint Junior College newspaper Thursday made plans for a demonstration as school administrators sought to implement a new editorial policy.

After meeting with school officials Wednesday, Dean Lewis Fibel announced a six-point editorial policy which included a prohibition against "inflammatory articles."

"The College Clamor" was forced to suspend publication Tuesday because it was "without a definite editorial policy," according to Dr. Lawrence L. Jarvie, superintendent of Flint schools.

In its last edition, the weekly paper published what was interpreted as a tongue-in-cheek article critical of General Motors, the Flint School Board and the local daily paper.

Students with the paper said they plan to stage a demonstration Friday, protesting the suspension of publication.

Telegrams were sent to the National Students Association claiming "a breach of freedom of the press." Other state colleges and universities were asked to lend their support in the protest.

Coed Held In Robbery

MADISON, WIS. (UPI)—A University of Wisconsin coed, who once studied "correctional administration" with hopes of becoming a parole officer, was held Thursday as the suspected brains of a gang which stole about $1,000 from parking meters.

Police withheld the names of the girl and three boys involved. A fourth was being sought.

The girl reportedly told police that "half the campus" knew about the home made keys used by the gang to open meters.

The meter thieves operated so successfully that the city at one time considered spending $3,500 to change the locks on meters.

The lock-switching idea was dropped when city traffic engineer John Bunch received a package, apparently mailed by the gang, that contained a key and a note that advised the city to save its money because keys for the new locks could easily be made. The key opened parking meters on the Doty street city parking lot, Bunch said.

A break in the case came Tuesday night with the arrest of a 17-year-old boy seen tampering with a meter. The youth steered police to other members of the gang, the youth reportedly told police he "picked up $40 to $60" a night on forays.

The girl was expected to be charged with contributing to the delinquency of minors. The others probably will be charged with vandalism and theft, police said.

CHARLEVOIX, -- Democratic candidate for congressman-at-large Neil Staebler, Thursday called for a self-liquidating federal education fund that would provide loans for qualified public and private college students.

Under his plan, repayment would provide loans for qualified public and private college students.

Under his plan, repayment would begin a year after the student left school. It would be made through a charge determined by an actuary and taken from his income tax return.

"This country is falling behind in producing teachers, engineers, doctors and many others in scientific and technical fields," Staebler said.

He said the competition between the United States and Russian demands expansion of higher education opportunities for American youth.

Yankees' Scoreless Streak Snapped

Yankees Off to Fast Start

FRANCISCO (AP)—The New York Yankees won the opener of the World Series today, whipping the weary San Francisco Giants 6-2 as Whitey Ford scattered 10 hits in a record 10th inning in the baseball classic.

The 33-year-old left-hander made a record 18th start for the American League champions, had his series of consecutive scoreless innings snapped at 3 2/3, but the Giants after the third inning.

While, Clete Boyer produced the key hit—home run in World Series history—a bases-empty shot in the seventh inning that put the Yankees ahead to stay, 3-2.

The second game of the seven series here, starting at 7 p.m. (EST), will be a right-hander's Ralph (Babe) Ruth (12) is expected to start the Yankees and Jack Sanford for the Giants.

Yankees got rolling against the first inning, Bobby Richardson and Tom Seaver teamed to double. The Yankees got one back in the second inning by Willie Mays, Jim Dwyer and Jose Pagan, then the third on Chuck Hill.

Defense Department ordered the transfer on the basis of information which indicated it was wise for the game to be at Oxford and the fact that incidents continue to occur.

Government ultimatum put on a festival weekend at the Ole Miss students, who came to play host to nearly 100,000 visitors. After Friday night was called off, so were out-of-control rallies and other rioting events.

The 24-year-old Meredith, a Force veteran, went on his fourth day of school, his escort of U.S. troops was cut in half, from six to three. And plans were announced for the withdrawal of 380 troops from among 450 on duty at the campus rioting last week.

Washington, however, an official said the situation at Oxford was considered fairly calm.

On a relatively quiet night at the campus, only 11 persons were picked up for questioning, and were released. There have been more than 250 arrests in the week, but only a handful have been charged with crimes.

In the rioting, some 12,000 federal troops were sent to Oxford to restore order. About 3,000 still are on duty.

Gen. Katzenbach, Deputy Attorney General, told news-people that while there was no indication of Meredith's arrest, he did not know whether further reductions in the guard would come.

At some point," he added, "authorities may have to take responsibility for Meredith's safety." However, Lt. Gov. J. Johnson Jr. said earlier this week he didn't think it ever would be possible for Meredith to leave the university without protection. Johnson said he did not imagine state forces would be a substitute for federal troops.

Johnson, asked when he thought it might be possible for federal government to remove its tight grip on the university campus, replied that "my ball isn't good enough for ler's double and singles by Felipe Alou and Mays.

Boyer's homer in the seventh cracked the tie. The Yankees made it 5-2 in the eighth when Dale Long's single and a sacrifice fly by Boyer drove in runs. They closed out the scoring in the ninth on Elston Howard's run-producing single.

Where Ford and Boyer stood out as the stars for the Yankees, Mays was the main offensive threat in the San Francisco lineup. He clipped Ford for three singles in four times at bat.

Pagan, the Giants' shortstop, also had three hits.

San Francisco had perfect baseball weather for its first World Series, and a crowd of 43,852 turned out. But it was a dismal day for the tired Giants, who Wednesday earned the right to represent the National League in the series by winning a best-of-three playoff from the Los Angeles Dodgers.

With the 1962 season in its opening weeks, it appears the battle for the tournament berth is wide open. St. Louis University, Michigan State, Washington University at St. Louis and Akron University are expected to be among the leading contenders for the Midwest race.

Who, me?

I've had three interviews already!

But your fourth interview might be the most important. Especially if it's with the man from JPL.

That's right, Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Caltech operates JPL for NASA. Gives the place a campus atmosphere. 3500 people there. Eleven hundred of them are scientists and engineers. The rest are technicians, secretaries, librarians - all kinds of people to back up these scientists and engineers.

JPL's job? Space exploration. Designing the spacecraft and instrumentation that'll explore the moon and planets. They want to find out what the moon is made of and if there's life on other planets. And they will. They're a dedicated bunch. And they like their work. After all, what could be more fascinating and more challenging than the work they do?

Take a half hour or so to talk to the man from JPL. Make an appointment now. It could be the most important 30 minutes in your life.

Archbishop To Visit U.S.

At a church service in New Delhi, India, a wide-eyed little Indian girl slipped up close to a huge clergyman in elegant cope and miter. Then, face aglow, she raced to her mother.

"Mommy! Mommy! I've just seen the Archangel Gabriel with wings and a tall hat."

She was talking about the Lord Archbishop of Canterbury, Primate of the Church of England, first subject of the British realm, and spiritual leader of 42 million Anglicans around the world, Arthur Michael Ramsey.

Archbishop Ramsey next week is making his first visit to the United States since assuming a post which makes him one of the most revered and influential figures in all Christendom.

The communion of which he is titular head spreads through 46 nations around the globe, including 3 1/4 million Episcopalians in this country.

Since being elevated to the Canterbury post on June 21, 1961, he has followed the course of his predecessor, the Rev. Dr. Geoffrey Francis Fisher, in working in behalf of Christian unity.

"Nothing in the world matters more than the fulfillment of the prayer of our Lord 'That all may be one,'" he says.

Arriving in New York Oct. 11, the Archbishop also will visit and speak in numerous other cities—Trenton and Princeton, N.J., Chicago, Los Angeles, San Francisco and Washington, D.C., before attending the meeting of the Episcopal House of Bishops Oct. 27-29 in Columbia, S.C.

Kavanaugh, McDevitt Serve St. John's

Serving as parish priest at St. John's is Father Robert E. Kavanaugh, and assisting him is Father Thomas D. McDevitt. Father Kavanaugh, a native of Kalamazoo, attended St. Joseph Seminary, Grand Rapids for classical studies; Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit for philosophy; Mt. St. Mary's of the West, Norwood, Ohio; and St. John Provincial Seminary in Plymouth, Michigan.

In June, 1951 he was ordained at St. Mary Cathedral in Lansing and assigned as assistant 1954-55, Father Kavanaugh was reassigned to East Lansing and remained as assistant at St. Thomas Aquinas until 1957 when he became the first pastor of the new St. John Church and Catholic Student Center.

For the past seven years, he has taught in the Department of Religion at MSU, and has been active in the Newman Club and educational conferences.

Born in Jackson, Michigan, Father McDevitt spent his entire schooling, primary and secondary at St. Mary's School in Jackson.

He entered the Sacred Heart Seminary in Detroit in the fall of 1950 and spent two years there. The next six years of training for the priesthood were spent at the American College in Louvain, Belgium. Father McDevitt was ordained in Louvain on June 29, 1958, and assigned in the fall as assistant at St. Agnes Parish in Flint. He was transferred in March, 1960, to St. John Student Parish.

While in Europe he traveled extensively and made a summer trip to Palestine and the Holy Land. He also spent time with various youth groups in France, Germany, and Spain.

Father McDevitt comes from a family of six children, three boys and three girls.

St. John's Has Served Students Since 1957

Founded in 1957, St. John Student Parish is unique; it is exclusively for the students of MSU and their families. Student spirituality is the primary concern of the parish and its entire spiritual program is geared to the mentality and outlook of the University student.

Prior to 1957, Catholic students were organized into a Newman Club. This, along with many other programs and activities, has been integrated into the total operation of the parish.

St. John's sponsors an educational program aimed at helping each student to grow in the knowledge of the Catholic faith and to help each student integrate his faith with his course of studies.

To accomplish this, the parish offers courses in fundamental and advanced theology, scholastic philosophy, sacred scripture, and a pre-cana course designed for prospective brides and grooms. Other educational features are the Sunday forum, special lectures, and the graduate club. The social program provided by the parish includes regular dances, movies, parties and Sunday supper. Also programs such as ski trips, toboggan parties, and plays are offered.

Because MSU has a large percentage of married students, the parish also offers a wide variety of programs planned specifically for them.

This article is the second in a series of weekly features on the various religious organizations and churches.

Missionary to Give Service in Spanish

Rev. Phil Saint, Missionary Evangelist and choir artist from Cordoba, Argentina will conduct an entire service in Spanish this Saturday, Oct. 6 at 7:30 p.m. at the Inter-city Bible Church. Mr. Saint's brother, Nate, a missionary pilot, and four companions were killed by the Auka Indians in the Ecuadorian jungles in January 1956. Life magazine carried a complete story of the incident.

Rachel Saint, a sister, who is now translating the Bible into the Auka language and living in the primitive Auka village, was featured on the "This is Your Life" TV program.

Last September, a local radio station broadcast a fifteen minute interview with Mr. Saint concerning the work which he is doing in Argentina. He reported that he has sold his home in Greensboro, North Carolina, and now considers Cordoba his home. Mr. Saint is married and the father of five children.

All Spanish speaking people are invited to attend. Mr. Saint will also be at the Inter-city Bible Church for services on Sunday, Oct. 7.

T.V. Slates Mormon

Local television channels 10 and 12 will carry the 132nd semi-annual general conference of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints (Mormon) Sunday, Oct. 7, beginning at 10 a.m. People throughout the nation will be able to view the conference via a hook up of more than 100 television stations.

Presiding will be David O. McKay, eighty-nine year old prophet, seer, and revelator of the Council of Twelve Apostles. The conference will be held on Temple Square in Salt Lake City in the famed Tabernacle. Talks on church doctrine, family life, education and the basic Christian virtues of faith and good works will be heard from Church authorities.

The talks Sunday include: that the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints is neither Catholic nor Protestant but is the restored Church of Jesus Christ, having the same organization of the early church—prophets, apostles, teachers, and evangelists.

Locally, the Lansing Ward (church) is situated at 149 Highland, with Dr. Albert Pearson, Wolff expressed some surprise at the large turn-out for the course, although he suspects a number of the students had originally planned to take Ibo.

When asked the reasons for the study of an African language he said the class interest falls into two general areas: those with some vague idea of someday going to Africa or becoming involved in African affairs, and those with an intellectual curiosity about an unusual language.
