Officer's Life

Boredom -- Until the Moment They Race With Death

By DAVE JAEHNIG
Of the State News Staff

hour upon hour of boredom, punctuated by moments of excitement and near-terror. The policemen live for that moment when only police can save the situation," the veteran night patrolman said. "It happens late at night. But when it does, you know it's going to be big." The rookie patrolman knew this night was going to be "big" as the powerful patrol car slid around a corner. The heavy-duty siren screamed in his ears, and the bounce of the Farm-Lane railroad crossing nearly put his head on the car roof. The corporal at the wheel was giving him instructions on how to handle an attempted suicide. The impersonal radio squawked, telling the two officers that they were on their own. Traffic, consisting mostly of the maintenance staff returning home from a night's work, pulled over ahead, and the patrol car slipped through the Giltner Hall corner. The corporal quietly cursed the driver that refused to get his car out of the middle of the road. He cut off the siren as the car sped into the court yard behind the coed's dormitory and braked to a stop. Already unconscious, the small, attractive coed was placed carefully on a stretcher and hurried down the halls lined with girls. Once outside, the officers slid the stretcher into the back of the patrol car, while hundreds of curious faces peered out of three-stories of windows. Jamming the car into reverse, the corporal turned around and headed for Olin Memorial Health Center. The officers were met at the emergency door by a trained nurse's aide. A registered nurse hurried out after her. The coed was taken to the emergency room, while the registered nurse tried to get information from her roommate over the phone. The roommate had discovered a bottle of sleeping pills missing. Had the unconscious coed taken them? Examining the coed, and evaluating her condition, the doctor, who had now arrived, took quick action. Seeing that they were no longer needed, the officers left the hospital.

Later they learned that quick action had saved the coed's life. The real reasons for her attempted suicide were never learned. The corporal radioed the station, telling the desk officer that they were clear from the hospital. They were told to move to Spartan Village at once. The other units had not succeeded in locating a prowler. This time was no different. After an hours search, the police quickly, but quietly to the scene, lest they scare the prowler into running away. "Prowlers in the married housing villages are almost impossible to catch," the corporal explained. "Usually they are residents who can just run into their apartment when they see us." This time was no different. After a hour's search, the police

S. Cuts Back Miss Forces

James Meredith Starts Second Week
Of Classes Without Incident

FORD, Miss. (AP) - The Government cut back its forces around the University of Mississippi Monday as Negro leader James Meredith began his second week of classes without incident. The Army cut back its forces from 20,000 to 10,000 men. The Army said it was pulling back some 5,400 troops from the campus, Miss., and some 300 troops from the surrounding area. The first withdrawal of regular Federal Forces into the integration area.

RR Walk May Be Hazardous

Concern that children living in Spartan Village and nearby areas may catch a foot between the wooden planks of a crosswalk at a railroad track in the area has been shown by at least one parent. In a letter to the East Lansing City a few days ago, Daniel Anderson, 1424 K Spartan Village, said the crosswalk over Grand Trunk Railroad tracks at Harrison Road has a number of wide gaps both in the crosswalk and between ties. He said that the spaces were large enough to catch and hold the shoe of a young child if his foot should happen to slip through.

Many children living in Spartan Village use the crossing every day on their way to and from the Red Cedar School. Jack Pratt, local section foreman of the Grand Trunk railway, said he has the materials and the means to fill up the gaps, but that he must first have authorization from the supervisor of tracks in Battle Creek. The City Council has delayed action on the matter pending further investigation.

State's 'Pop' Tops U of M

If enrollment statistics mean anything, Michigan State topped the University of Michigan this fall. Tentative figures released by each school show MSU registered 27,728 students for resident credit compared to 26,018 at Michigan. The MSU figure includes 1,256 students at MSU-Oakland and 1,458 at resident centers in East Lansing (Kellogg Center), Benton Harbor, Grand Rapids, Pontiac, Traverse City, Saginaw and Marquette. The number of students attending classes on campus is 25,014.

World News at a Glance

From AP and UPI Wires

Senate Passes Foreign Aid Bill

WASHINGTON, -The Senate passed Monday a $3.9-billion foreign aid appropriation bill but got deeper into a fight with the House over a farm money bill. This struggle threatened hopes for adjournment this week. Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield of Montana said he is reconciled to keeping Congress in session indefinitely as Sen. Richard B. Russell, (D-Ga.), proclaimed a "No Surrender" stand in the farm bill battle.

Supreme Court To Rule on Classroom Religion

WASHINGTON, - The Supreme Court agreed Monday to rule on the constitutionality of Bible-reading and recitation of the Lord's Prayer in public schools.

This question of intense national interest was left unanswered by the varied interpretations of the court's historic June 25 decision that a prayer drawn by state officials for use in New York State's public schools violated the constitution.

Miami Braces to Accept 1,113 Prisoners

WASHINGTON, -In Washington and in Miami, hundreds of people were at work Monday setting up facilities to take care of 1,113 Cuban prisoners if and when they are released.

Officials would not be drawn into discussion of whether negotiations to free the captives of the Bay of Pigs invasion actually have been concluded successfully, but they gave every impression they think the men will be released.

Reds Say Nyet to Western Protest

BERLIN, -The three Western powers Monday protested to the Soviet Union the refusal of East German guards to let a British Army ambulance go to the aid of a man wounded along the wall in East Berlin.

The Russians refused to accept the protest. The protest was sent in the form of identical messages from the ambassadors of the United States, France and Britain in Bonn.

Constitutional Rights Gone in Venezuela

CARACAS, VENEZUELA, -President Romulo Betancourt suspended constitutional guarantees again Monday in the midst of persistent sniping gunfire and a bathroom bombing which he blamed on communists and their allies.

Thirteen persons were wounded last night by a terrorist bomb blast at the Tamaco hotel and by sniper fire from near by roofs at the military transport headquarters in downtown Caracas.

Yugoslav-U.S. Relations Worsen

BELGRADE, YUGOSLAVIA, -Yugoslav communists looked at the United States with increasing bitterness Monday as this country and Russia drew closer than they have in years.

Two events last week underlined dramatically the changing state of Yugoslav foreign relations. One was an official visit by Soviet President Leonid I. Brezhnev which ended with a joint communique signed by Brezhnev and President Tito expressing identical views on a wide range of issues.

Wet Town Or Dry? East Lansing Voters To Decide 'Climate'

East Lansing has been a dry town for 55 years, but things may change Nov. 6 when voters go to the polls to vote "yes" to repeal the dry clause, or "no" to keep the city dry.

If the clause is repealed, it will mean package good stores in the city limits will sell beer, wine and liquor. Taverns also will serve beer and wine if license applications are approved by the city council.

Before a tavern or bar can sell liquor by the glass, another vote must be called and then the State Liquor Control Commission must approve and grant a license.

John M. Patriarche, city manager, said, "There were no set locations that package goods stores or taverns will be set up in, providing the dry clause is repealed. However, the law does say that there may not be a package good store or tavern within 500 feet of a church or school."

Does this 500-foot limit also apply to the University? Patriarche said he was not sure on this point. If there were a question, the city council would decide and then the State Liquor Control Commission would vote, he said.

The request to have the dry clause repealed was made by the East Lansing Chamber of Commerce. Its request petitions were circulated and 496 signatures were received. The group felt they could have obtained more, but there was a misunderstanding about the date the petitions had to be filed with the city clerk.

The Chamber of Commerce thought the petitions had to be filed 60 days prior to the voting date, but they were due 90 days prior to voting. The group lost 30 days and perhaps many signatures. However, it did have enough to bring a vote Nov. 6.

The vote to repeal the dry clause will be only the second in the city's 55-year history. The original charter, drawn up in 1907, contained a dry clause and it was carried over in the new charter, approved in 1944.

In 1958 a vote was taken to try to repeal the dry clause, but it failed.

This year could be another question, but Patriarche was unwilling to make any public predictions on the vote outcome.

Dorticos Says Blockade Would Be an Act of War

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y. - At a tumultuous General Assembly session Monday President Oswaldo Dorticos Torrado of Cuba demanded that the United Nations condemn as an act of war any U.S. blockade of his country.

Outside the hall chief delegate Adlai E. Stevenson served notice the United States would maintain its economic pressure against the Fidel Castro regime.

Selective Service to Note Eligibility

Selective Service classification of 118,000 Michigan registrants now in class IV-F will be reviewed to determine whether the men would be eligible for military service in time of National emergency, Col. Arthur A. Holmes said Monday.

Holmes, State Director of Selective Service, said registrants who might be available for military service in case of an emergency will be reclassified into class I-Y.

Nearly 50 per cent of Michigan's registrants being examined daily are disqualified on physical, mental or moral grounds under the rigid peace time acceptance standards now in effect, Holmes said.

Many of the disqualified registrants would be acceptable for military service in time of war, he said. The I-Y classification will put these registrants on notice of liability for military service.

the speech. It was led mainly by a group of Soviet U.N. employees who left their desks to attend. Stevenson took the assembly rostrum briefly to explain that he would violate U.N. tradition if he replied directly to a speech by a chief of state. He said he would make a statement at news conference.

At the meeting with correspondents the U.S. chief delegate described the charges by Dorticos as "neither original nor true."

He reiterated the United States would not attack Cuba, but added: "Let it be equally clear that the United States will not tolerate aggression against any part of this hemisphere."

He said it was absurd to describe U.S. economic action against Cuba as either aggressive or warlike.

"It is the most normal, and indeed the least violent way, in which we can express our strong disapproval of the threats and sword rattling emanating from Cuba," he declared. Then in words directed at the Soviet Union as well as Cuba, Stevenson added:

"Let no one mistake the impact of this Soviet intervention in Cuba on the hope we all share for world peace. If the Soviet Union persists in the course it has chosen, if it continues to try to prevent the peaceful social resolution of the Americas, it will increasingly excite the deep indignation of the people of my country and of other American states."

"The result will be to make the resolution of issues far more difficult in every other part of the world. A consequence of this gratuitous Soviet initiative is to postpone even further the hope for world stabilization. I cannot state this point with sufficient gravity."

Dorticos asked the General Assembly to consider whether or not a U.S. Naval blockade of Cuba would amount to an act of war.

He asked whether the United States had the right to take one-sided action "in contempt of the United Nations."

RAILROAD TRACKS CAN BE DANGEROUS

Politics and the Best Man

President Kennedy's quick swing through Michigan last weekend has been called "highly successful" by state Democrats. Kennedy gave a series of hard-hitting speeches urging election of Democratic Congressmen and State Officers to enact legislation "that will move this country forward" and slammed at Republicans for blocking progress.

Ex-President Harry Truman will be in Detroit Oct. 27 to give one of his famous "give-em-hell Harry" speeches, presumably with the same purpose as Kennedy's trip. The President plans several trips through the nation before the Nov. 6 elections.

Newsmen and Democratic officials in Detroit Saturday predicted that Republican gubernatorial hopeful George Romney will call on ex-President Dwight D. Eisenhower to come to Michigan on a mission similar to Kennedy's. So far, Romney has not asked Ike to boost the Michigan Republicans.

The final results won't be known, of course, until Nov. 6. The time left before the election is likely to be filled with "polticking" fast and furious.

It is lamentable, in a way, that candidates cannot campaign on their abilities and records alone.

However, since the dawn of politics, tactics such as these, where candidates call in national figures to help them out, have been considered logical and legitimate means of winning an election. 'Twas ever thus.

We urge our voting-age readers to keep their eye on the men and the issues in the upcoming election, and ask them not to be blinded by the light shed by national figures on state candidates. In an intelligent election, it's the best qualified candidate, not the one with the most connections, who wins.

Lecture - Concert Series Best in the Nation

In our University community, it really should be unnecessary to plug cultural events - particularly the Lecture-Concert program. Michigan State can rightfully boast of truly one of the finest lecture-concert series of any university in this country. And from all indications, this year's Golden Anniversary Series should be outstanding.

The Chicago Symphony, Lenin-grad Philharmonic and Detroit Symphony will fill the Auditorium with the music of the world's greatest composers.

Students will have an opportunity to hear a recital by artists of the calibre of Russian violinist David Oistrakh, pianist Rudolf Serkin, Metropolitan Opera basso, Jerome Hines and soprano Leontyne Price.

The New York Opera Company will perform in their entirety two of the most popular operas, Verdi's "Rigoletto" and Mozart's "The Marriage of Figaro."

There will be ballet, a Shakespearian presentation and much more.

Of course, many of the new students (and far too many of the older students) have never attended a concert by one of the world's great orchestras or seen and heard an entire opera performed or attended a recital by a renowned artist.

Such a situation should not be for young men and women striving to become well-rounded individuals. Just as good grades and school spirit are part of a student's education, so, too, are the cultural experiences.

We recommend that each student set aside a few nights of the year to attend one of the programs sponsored by the Lecture-Concert Series.

For those who have not experienced it, the evening could provide as much satisfaction and enjoyment as earning an A grade in one of your courses or rooting the Spartans on to victory.

Point of View

Judgment at Mississippi

By Jack Shea

In the field of jurisprudence, an interesting theory concerning the justification of punishment is the theory of retribution. This theory holds that punishment is justified on the grounds that wrong-doing merits punishment. Indeed, it sounds not only logical but also necessary for the preservation of order, that guilt, properly established, should be followed by retribution; and furthermore, that the degree of that punishment should depend on the depravity of the act involved.

To apply this logical statement to a current situation is the task with which we concern ourselves here.

Governor Ross Barnett of Mississippi at first vocally, and later by personal and delegated forceful physical resistance, inspired insurrection and rebellion in his constituents that resulted in the death of at least two people.

That he should not be held accountable for his actions and punished according to their ad-judge severity is inconsistent with an American principle of equal treatment. In his defense it will be argued that in addition to his own passionate belief in segregation, and the tremendous pressure brought to bear upon him by Mississippi White Citizens Councils, he also faced the obligation of upholding the State Constitution to which he had sworn allegiance.

All of these considerations are, however, intimately inferior. Governor Barnett's own passions and those of the White Citizens' Council had an avenue of expression open to them; the state and federal courts. In fact, in this particular case, they stuck by the court system until appeals to federal courts reversed pro-segregation decisions in the state courts. In other words the court system was good enough for them until they began to get decisions they didn't want.

Then led by a Governor, who just a short time before had been the focal point of mass ridicule, state officials began to openly defy any person, institution, or law, that they did not find compatible.

With emotional speeches and actual physical impairment of federal marshals, the Governor set the example that sent mobs of Mississippians from all over the state to gather in the small town of Oxford on Sunday night, September 30. Here his unlawful and irrational efforts reaped their harvest: death, destruction, and shame.

If in the future law and order is to be served, on this or any other question that might arise, the retributionists must have their way now... with Governor Barnett.

Fred, I don't know if I am really this anxious to join the fraternity. Fred...Fred?

On JFK, Speakers, Brody

To the Editor:

I am relieved to learn that a stop at MSU wasn't included in President Kennedy's itinerary for his coming three-state political tour.

I'm sure that many people in this university and outside the university, not to mention the President himself, would be embarrassed by the inevitable State News headline: "Speaker Committee OK's Kennedy!"

Oregon Speakers

To the Editor:

Congratulations to AUSG President Bob Howard for taking a firm stand against the Administration's policy of approving all speakers coming to MSU's campus. His will not be an easy position, for he will probably be subjected to pressures from people off campus as well as from the Administration.

Mr. Hannah is ducking decisions which are rightfully his as administrator in charge of this university. More than that, he is demonstrating a rather sorry lack of confidence in the students of Michigan State.

For Mr. Hannah's edification, here is a model situation which he would do well to follow:

The model is the series of events which took place last February at the University of Oregon preceding the visit of Communist Party U.S.A. (CP) to the campus.

Before I came to MSU, friends told me that Midwestern and Eastern schools were more paternalistic than western schools and allowed students to control little of their own affairs. The present episode has not given me any grounds for rejecting their views.

Again, congratulations to Mr. Howard. He is keeping up with some pretty auspicious company.

Hot Coffee

To the Editor:

Apathy can only be compared to a cup of lukewarm coffee—unbearable!

Opportunity should be presented on this campus to challenge all beliefs which any individual may hold. How defiantly to an opinion, believing it to be infallible truth, and yet cower at opposition, refusing blindly to recognize opposition, or recognize it and yet stubbornly refuse to debate with the contentions of the opposition?

Is not truth more important than the temporal security which comes from holding an untested belief?

Is not truth the goal of most University students? So far, these statements have presented merely an ideal. They are not, in fact, a reality.

It has been said that a University is the battleground of ideas. Yet, how unfair it appears that a defender picks his own challenge, knowing that he can defeat it easily. How unfair of Hercules to pick a blind beggar for his challenger!

For his challenger! And how unfair that my beliefs are not allowed to be tested by all willing challengers, how unfair that I must form my opinions in distortion with the real world.

As John Stuart Mill pointed out

A COLUMN Where Form Follows Function

Paul Schnitt

Scanning through the football program during the game Saturday I could not help noticing the pictures of buildings on the Michigan State and North Carolina campuses.

There were, for example, pictures of Kresge Art Center, Eppley Center and Bessey Hall.

From the chapel Hill school we saw the Carroll Hall School of Business Administration, Wilson Library and Manning Hall.

These structures, which represent the predominant architectural styles of the two universities, contrast greatly.

For the students who have taken Humanities, you would recognize immediately that North Carolina's buildings were designed in neo-classical style which swept across Europe and the United States at the end of the eighteenth and beginning of the nineteenth century.

The movement came in the form of a revival of ancient Greek and Roman architecture which was characterized by a distinguishing element, as Doric, Ionic and Corinthian columns (Carroll Hall) and Manning Hall utilize the Ionic style; the colonnades in front of Wilson Library are of the more lavish Corinthian style; domes, rounded arches and a distinct symmetry.

The style is consistent with the heritage of the area which came under the architectural influence of Thomas Jefferson in the early years following America's independence.

Surely any cultural dilettante beholding these graceful beautiful buildings, reeking with tradition, would be overcome aesthetically.

Then, again, it is a matter of taste. Now take the style which seems to be evolving on the Michigan State campus as exemplified by such new structures as Bessey Hall, Eppley Center and the new engineering building.

It is commonly known as "modern" architecture as distinguished from, say, classical, baroque and neo-classical. However, to a little more descriptive, perhaps we might call MSU's style "neo-rectilinear." The presumption is that this style was influenced by the late Senor Luis Caballo.

Caballo, a Cuban laborer, got the idea for the neo-rectilinear style from the shape of the cigar boxes in which he had been packing 10¢ Havana for 34 years.

Well, as the story goes, Caballo quit his job, came to America and became the foremost architect of the cigar box, or rectilinear style.

And now Michigan State's campus has become a showplace for cigar boxes—er, neo-rectilinear style.

For example, take the extension of Eppley Center closer Shaw Dormitory.

As a close friend remarked: "If they had built a chimney, it could pass for a crematorium."

Then there's Bessey Hall. Now here's a building characterized by such architectural elements as 90 degree angles, square room and rectilinear slate slabs cemented to the front.

Every time I walk by the building I imagine in my mind's eye about 10 students in each room wearing striped uniforms, scrubbing cups across the windows demanding better treatment.

I'm not saying that you can't read Ralph Waldo Emerson, Euripides or study about human behavior in a penitentiary can be done. It is being done.

Nor am I advocating that somebody stick four Doric columns in front of Bessey.

Understand, I don't recommend adopting neo-classical as the University of North Carolina. It would probably look incongruous with Michigan State's progressive spirit.

Perhaps I have been very unfair dealing with the neo-architectural style on this campus. To be sure, the style is to the phrase—"Form follows function."

Michigan State is an architecture emphasizing practicality. Indeed, if somebody built a marble pillar and stuck it in the ground on this campus, they'd schedule classes on top of it.

The interiors of such structures as Eppley Center, the Library and the new engineering building are spacious and, in their way, rather attractive.

But there is one thing Michigan State should be considering: it decides to break ground for the many new buildings ultimately must rise.

Last year Professor Herbert Weisinger, chairman of our Comparative Literature Program, submitted a letter which was published in the State News.

In essence, Dr. Weisinger pointed out that there are a number of architects of international distinction who now make Michigan their home but who never were called on to provide an example of their work on this campus.

He closed his letter with a plea to employ the services of one of the outstanding architects "to convert the campus into a living museum of fine contemporary architecture" and "improve the appearance of the campus by the inclusion of interesting buildings."

"Our campus deserves no less," he added.

I think so, too.

In "On Liberty":

1. As long as we are forced to re-examine our beliefs, it will either strengthen our faith or prove it wrong.

2. Our opponent may not be completely wrong. He may have some truth we have not yet gained.

3. If we are wrong and silence our opponent, then we remain in ignorance.

It is not, therefore, a choice nor a gift, but a duty of educators and those who control debate of ideas to allow them the greatest possible capacity of expression.

Personally, I like my coffee hot.

Young GOP, Dems, GOP Seeking Votes

Dems Active

omney to Visit Saturday

The Young Republican Club, led by Harvey Schroeder, City senior, faces a busy day as the state campaign gets under way.

With M. Bentley, senatorial candidate from the 15th District, guest in the Union on Saturday, George Romney, the Michigan gubernatorial candidate, will be on campus Saturday.

Schroeder said that tentative plans are being made to have Romney, Charles Chamberlain and Norman Stockmeyer appear on campus Saturday.

The club plans to have an active role in the campaign, according to President Bob Hencken, Huntington Woods Junior.

"Of course, it's hard to say exactly what we'll do," Hencken said. "A lot depends on the enthusiasm of the members. If it's high maybe we'll do some block and precinct work."

The Young Democrats already have distributed campaign literature at registration and they plan to do some more distribution in married housing and East Lansing.

"We're not sure about the administration's attitude on distributing leaflets in married housing," Hencken said, "but it's perfectly legal."

He also said that the Greater Lansing Young Democrats campaign is at the North Carolina game. Their work will be mainly for Supreme Court Justices Paul Adams and Otis Smith.

While the Young Democrats are backing Don Hayworth for Congress, they are not working for any one candidate, Hencken said.

"We are trying to bring every one possible to the campus," Hencken said, "especially Neil Stuebner, candidate for congressman-at-large." Governor Swainson will be speaking in the Union ballroom on Oct. 14 as part of a radio interview.

Dean, Director Back Wednesday

John A. Fuzak, dean of students, and Eldon Nonnamaker, director of men's division, will return Wednesday from a three-day dean's conference at the University of Illinois.

Each of the city's 11 precincts will organize and carry out the drive with the help of party workers.

On election day, both parties intend to get their voters to the polls. Party challengers will be at the polls checking lists of known party voters.

Then at about 4 p.m. telephone committees from each party will call their voters who have yet to vote and urge them to do so.

Precinct chairmen from each party will also be at the polls to check the recording of the vote in their precincts at the end of the day.

Both parties will also provide rides to the polls and baby-sitting services for their voters on election day.

Each party chairman said that how well they will do in the election depends on how well their party's organization does its job.

Both chairmen expressed optimism in an area that has in the past voted heavily Republican.

"It seems to me that we have a good chance of electing Romney," Marshall said. "We could also elect the full Administrative Board if the party organization does its job."

Drews said that the Democratic Party will give a good account of itself in East Lansing if the party workers are able to get out the Democratic vote.

Students at San Jose State College appear to be gabbier than those at Michigan State. At 8 a.m. Monday, the San Jose students were scheduled to complete 500 hours of continuous telephone conversation.

Last Fall term Michigan State students set their mark at 168 hours in a talkathon between Butterfield and West Landon that continued for seven days.

Nineteen days ago a student at a men's dormitory at San Jose dropped a dime in a pay phone and dialed a women's dormitory in an attempt to establish a new record.

San Jose student Scott Moore said the longest previous phone conversation was 470 hours at Chico State College in California.

The Democratic and Republican parties of East Lansing are campaigning on the grassroots level to get out the party vote in the coming election.

This includes canvassing, distributing party literature, obtaining absentee ballots for voters, and providing rides and baby sitters for voters on election day.

Gary Marshall, chairman for The East Lansing Republican Party Committee, outlined the Republican plan for November as one which calls for finding the local Republicans and insuring that they register and get to the polls.

To accomplish this, the Republicans have appointed a precinct captain in each of the city's 11 precincts. On Sept. 25, precinct captains and party workers in East Lansing participated in the party's Neighbor-to-Neighbor campaign.

The purpose was to bring up to date party files on residents of the city as well as to raise funds for the party.

Pollsters brought up-to-date information on the number of potential voters in each household, whether or not they were registered to vote, as well as party preferences of the voters. Those not registered were urged to do so before the Oct. 8 deadline.

Very similar to the Republican plan is that of the Democratic party. Robin Drews, Democratic chairman for East Lansing, said that the party will check voting records of known Democrats in an attempt to get out the voter who votes only in the national election and not during off-year elections.

Dollars-for Democrats, the party's major fund raising drive, will be conducted in the near future in the East Lansing area, Drews said. Precinct chairmen will be conducting a door-to-door canvass of the city's 11 precincts.

He also said that the Greater Lansing Young Democrats campaign is at the North Carolina game. Their work will be mainly for Supreme Court Justices Paul Adams and Otis Smith.

While the Young Democrats are backing Don Hayworth for Congress, they are not working for any one candidate, Hencken said.

"We are trying to bring every one possible to the campus," Hencken said, "especially Neil Stuebner, candidate for congressman-at-large." Governor Swainson will be speaking in the Union ballroom on Oct. 14 as part of a radio interview.

Each of the city's 11 precincts will organize and carry out the drive with the help of party workers.

On election day, both parties intend to get their voters to the polls. Party challengers will be at the polls checking lists of known party voters.

Then at about 4 p.m. telephone committees from each party will call their voters who have yet to vote and urge them to do so.

Precinct chairmen from each party will also be at the polls to check the recording of the vote in their precincts at the end of the day.

Both parties will also provide rides to the polls and baby-sitting services for their voters on election day.

Each party chairman said that how well they will do in the election depends on how well their party's organization does its job.

Both chairmen expressed optimism in an area that has in the past voted heavily Republican.

"It seems to me that we have a good chance of electing Romney," Marshall said. "We could also elect the full Administrative Board if the party organization does its job."

Drews said that the Democratic Party will give a good account of itself in East Lansing if the party workers are able to get out the Democratic vote.

San Jose student Scott Moore said the longest previous phone conversation was 470 hours at Chico State College in California.

Freshman Basketball

Freshman basketball practice will begin 7:30 p.m. Monday. Practice will be held in the upstairs gym in Jenison Field house.

All interested freshmen are urged to attend, but must supply their own equipment.

with the help of Chuck Hiller, a slick second baseman never noted for long-ball hitting. He powered the Giants into the deadlock, driving a pitch by Marshall Bridges into the lower right field stands in the seventh inning for a grand slam home run. The blow came after the Yankees had tied the score in the sixth, 2-2.

The Giants had jumped off to a two-run lead in the second inning on a two-run home run by Tom Haller.

Ex-Yankee Don Larsen, now a relief pitcher for San Francisco, got the victory. The win came on the sixth anniversary of that day in 1956 when he pitched a perfect game for the Yankees against the then Brooklyn Dodgers.

Jim Coates, also working in relief after starter Whitey Ford was taken out, was the loser. It appeared for a time, until the deciding seventh, that the Giants got a bad break. Juan Marichal, the Giant starter, was forced to leave the game after he hurt his pitching hand while trying to bunt in the fifth. Bob Bolin relieved him, then Larsen entered the game in the sixth. Hiller's smash gave the victory to Larsen, although Billy O'Dell nailed down the win for San Francisco with three innings of strong relief pitching.

Bridges, the Yankees' second relief pitcher after starter Whitey Ford had been lifted for a pinch-hitter, threw the decisive home run ball.

Bridges was mournful in the Yankee dressing room. "I didn't think Hiller could hit a ball that far," he told newsmen. "I didn't know he had that much power."

Bridges said he threw Hiller two curves and then a fast ball which didn't break the way he wanted it to.

Hiller said he used a bat belonging to southpaw Billy Pierce to hit the grand slammer.

DETROIT (UPI) Coach George Wilson of the Detroit Lions Named a slippery field Monday for the team's 9-7 loss to the Green Bay Packers Sunday.

"Don't blame Milt Plum," Wilson said. "I sent in the pass play and Terry Barr ran his pass pattern. He just slipped."

The Lions had eight yards to go on the third down play in the closing minutes of the game when Herb Adderley, former MSL star, a product of Michigan State, intercepted a pass from Plum to Barr. Adderley raced down the left sidelines to Detroit's 18 and Paul Hornung quickly kicked his third field goal of the game to claim the victory for Green Bay. Plum had completed third down passes in the two previous series to pick up first downs.

NEW YORK (UPI) - The National Hockey League opens its season at New York Thursday.

In Detroit Monday, former Red Wing Manager Jack Adams was honored at a testimonial dinner. Adams recently retired after 35 years with the club and Coach Sid Abel assumed the managing responsibilities.

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) - A Firmount Park incident involving Heavyweight Champion Charles (Sonny) Liston for the second time in 15 months divided him and the police into two camps Monday.

The huge boxer, who won the title from Floyd Patterson in Chicago, Sept. 25, claimed police discriminated against him by halting his 1962 Cadillac, taking him to a guardhouse on suspicion of intoxication and then releasing his without placing any charge Friday night.

NEW YORK (UPI) - Johnny Pesky isn't wasting any time in his new job as manager of the Boston Red Sox.

Minutes after the 42-year-old, former Red Sox infielder took over the Boston reins from Mike Higgins Saturday night, he started laying plans for the 1963 season.

"I can't say what the club needs," Pesky said. "But I will sit down with Mike and go over the whole team man-for-man."

DETROIT (UPI) - Jarley Sewell, star lineman for the Detroit Lions, escaped serious injury early Monday when his car went out of control and sideswiped four parked vehicles in Wayne. Sewell, 31, was traveling with his wife, Jean, at the time. He was treated at Wayne County General Hospital for head cuts, and a long cut on his ear. Sewell was released from the hospital, but his wife who was driving was kept for observation.

DETROIT (UPI) - Dave Debusschere, the basketball and baseball star from University of Detroit, made his pro basketball debut with the Detroit Pistons Saturday night and helped the Pistons to a 112-95 victory over the Chicago Zephyrs at River Rouge High.

Debusschere, who took a week off after closing out the baseball season with the Chicago White Sox, scored 13 points and grabbed eight rebounds although playing less than half the game.

He explained: "I kind of figured Bridges would try to get me out on fast balls and Pierce's bat is lighter than mine. So I used his."

The ball landed six rows back in the lower right field seats to become the blow that beat the New York Yankees, and tied the series.

The Giants' victory ensures a return of the series to San Francisco Thursday for at least a sixth game and possibly a seventh game on Friday. In Tuesday's final game at Yankee Stadium, it will be Jack Sanford, winner of the second game, pitching for San Francisco against New York's Ralph Terry, who lost to Sanford, 2-0.
