Goodman Lectures in Books

Goodman, New York book critic, will open the 1962 Provost Lecture Series at 4 p.m. in the Kiva. He will talk on books which "aren't written today."
Goodman's talk follows the theme of the series—"The Book and His Responsibility." Goodman was a graduate of the University of Chicago, and received a PhD in English from the University of Chicago. At present he is an associate professor of English at the University of Pennsylvania. He has lectured at the University of Pennsylvania, Western Reserve University, Columbia University, and the University of California. During his career he has taught at the University of Chicago, Black Mountain College, and Lawrence College. Goodman has stated that his aim is to find an environment which can be livable in the modern technological and social conditions. He has written many books and articles.

World Series Squared; Pierce Stops Yanks, 5-2

San Francisco, (AP)—Billy Pierce returned to his happy hunting ground at Candlestick Park Monday and squared the bat with the New York Yankees in the first game of the World Series. The San Francisco Giants won a 5-2, three-hit victory over the New York Yankees in the first game of the World Series. Pierce, unbeaten at home with a 12-0 regular season record in this park, had lusty aid from Giant pitcher Alvin Bentley, who knocked Whitey Ford out of the game in the fifth inning. Bentley tried Alvin Bentley at three games each, it will be eight years without profit. Jack Sanford (24-7) for the Giants against Ralph Terry (23-12) in today's deciding seventh game battle of right-handed pitchers. About $4,000 will be hanging in the balance on each pitch, because each winner will get about $12,000 and each loser about $8,000.

The first 13 Yankees were retired in order by Pierce and some of the 43,948 fans began to recall Don Larsen's perfect game of 1956 until Roger Maris slammed his fourth Series home run over the right field fence. Pierce rested seven days after losing the third game 3-2. He was in real danger only once. That was in the fifth after Maris' homer. A two-base error by Jim Davenport, and a walk to Boyer on an intentional fourth ball, put men on first and second with two out.

Ralph Houk, Yankee Manager, chose to stick with Ford as his batter and passed up a chance for a pinch-hitter. Ford popped up and the Yankees' one and only big chance was over. As it turned out, Houk left himself open to the usual second guessers, for Ford went out and was raked up for two more runs and chased in the fifth. Ford had skirted disaster in the early innings, getting out of trouble with the help of double plays in the first and second. But he ran into a problem in the fourth. With one out, Felipe Alou singled on a hot shot of Cleve Boyer's glove that rolled to deep shortstop. Ford worked carefully on Willie Mays, his old nemesis, and finally walked him on a 3-1 count. Orlando Cepeda, who had broken his hitless string with a single in the second, was at bat when Ford suddenly wheeled and tried to pick Alou off second base. Ford hesitated in the midst of his throw when he saw second baseman Bobby Richardson was late covering, and finally threw into right center. The only man near the ball was Jim Honechick, the second base (Continued on page 5)

New Rules On Housing 'Satisfactory'

The new housing rule permitting students 21 or over to live off-campus is working to the satisfaction of the University with only a few problems reported, Thomas Dutch, director of housing, said.

The new ruling adopted last spring allows any student 21 and over to live in unsupervised housing. Before men had to be 21 and a senior while women had to be 25.

The only complaints, Dutch said, are coming from nearly 21 men who desire the same type of freedoms offered their older classmates. Drinking and having members of the opposite sex in the living units, he said, have raised small problems.

These rules only exist so that the University has a basis for enforcement if complaints are made, he said emphasizing the fact that the University does not check student housing for infractions.

Given Fringe Benefit Free

By GERRY HINKLEY
Of The State News

The $25 parking fee for faculty and staff has been revoked without ever going into effect, and free parking has been given to University employees as a fringe benefit, Philip May, University treasurer, said Monday.

Last spring the Board of Trustees gave the administration the authority to charge employees $25 for parking and to increase the student fee from $2 to $6.

"There were so many problems in regard to the employee's fee that we decided to handle it as in the past and to consider it a fringe benefit," May said.

One of the problems stemmed from the fact that there was no money for pay raises, he said.

The faculty and staff have always had free parking with fairly good facilities, and to change this would cause problems, May said. Also the fee was heavy.

The money from the $25 fee was to be used to finance additional parking facilities especially parking ramps.

"We hope now that we will be able to build the ramps without charging the employees a parking fee," May said.

A parking ramp across from Shaw Hall is scheduled to be under construction in January or February. This ramp, he said, will be financed by operating revenue from parking lots and meters and from allocations from the buildings to be constructed in that area.

Free parking in the ramp will be provided for the men in Shaw Hall whose present parking lot will be taken up by the ramp and for faculty and staff. The general public and all other students will pay a 10 cent fee as they would in any gate lot.

The $6 student fee, which over a year is "almost nothing," was retained, May said, because the students are causing the greatest problem.

The former $2 fee just could not provide facilities to match the growth in student vehicles, he explained.

At the end of September, 8,258 student cars were registered, an increase of 1,012 cars or 16 percent over last year, Richard O. Bernitt, director of public safety, said.

There are an estimated 4,500 faculty and staff cars registered, he said. Employees are required to register their cars every three years with the change in the license plates, he added.

Three Petition Court To Review Reapportionment

Attorneys for three Michigan Republican Senators filed a petition with the U.S. Supreme Court on Monday asking a review of the decision in the Michigan reapportionment question.

The Michigan Supreme Court had decided that it had no jurisdiction in the case in 1960. The question of reapportionment had been brought to the attention of the court by August Schelle, president of the state AFL-CIO.

Schelle based his argument on the 14th Amendment to the United States Constitution which calls for equal protection of the laws for all citizens. In the case of Michigan's senatorial apportionment, he said all citizens were not getting equal voting privileges. He argued that one person in the 32nd district had the same voting power as 12.3 people in the 12th district.

Schelle appealed the case to the United States Supreme Court in April of this year. The Supreme Court returned the Michigan case after deciding Baker vs. Carr in which a similar question arose in Tennessee.

In this case a Federal District Court had decided that it could not decide on the constitutionality of apportionment as the Michigan court had. The Supreme Court said that court could hear the case.

Senators Frank Beadle of St. Clair, Paul C. Younger of Lansing and John W. Fitzgerald of Grand Ledge said in their Monday petition that the Supreme Court's decision in the Tennessee case does not control the constitutional question presented in the Schelle case.

The petition for a writ of certiorari argued Michigan has a clearly defined and workable apportionment formula in its constitution. It also noted the present State Senate Districts were created in 1952 by a constitutional amendment approved by the people 1,269,807 to 975,508.

In 1952 when the fair apportionment issue came up in the legislature, two proposals were presented. One, sponsored by the CIO, was designed to force fair apportionment in relation to population by a constitutional amendment. The other, circulated by the Michigan Farm Bureau, favored the existing apportionment. When the question was voted on, the status quo supporters won and Senate boundaries were permanently frozen by constitutional amendment.

On July 18, 1962, the Michigan Supreme Court declared the Senate apportionment unconstitutional and ordered the legislature to re apportion the Senate on the basis of the formula in the 1908 constitution or face a state wide primary election.

This decision was stayed by U.S. Justice Potter Stewart on July 27 by a temporary injunction. This ruled the Michigan court's decision inoperative.

Senators Beadle, Younger and Fitzgerald said that they were confident the United States Supreme Court would reverse the Michigan court's decision.

The Michigan Supreme Court had decided that it had no jurisdiction in the case in 1960.

International Bridge Connects Canada, U.S. at Soo

RIBBON-CUTTING CEREMONIES will be held Oct. 31 to mark the opening of the $20 million International Bridge linking Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Gov. John B. Swainson of Michigan and Prime Minister John Parmenter Roberts of Ontario have been invited to participate in the opening ceremonies. Formal dedication for the span, which crosses the famed Soo Locks and the St. Mary's River, will be held next spring.

Another link of friendship between the United States and Canada will be forged Oct. 31 when the $20 million International Bridge opens for traffic.

The span, which links the twin cities of Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Ontario, crosses the famed Soo Locks and St. Mary's River which separates the two communities.

Gov. John B. Swainson of Michigan and Prime Minister John Parmenter Roberts of Ontario have been invited to participate in ribbon-cutting ceremonies marking completion of the 9,230-foot span.

Formal dedication of the bridge will be held next spring.

The toll bridge, which is expected to play a key role in economic growth of the region, replaces a ferry service which has served the two cities since 1888.

The bridge links two major highways--Interstate 75 in the United States and Canada's Transcontinental Highway.

I-75 extends from the Soo to Tampa, Fla., a distance of more than 1,500 miles, while the 5,000 mile Canadian highway runs from one end of Canada to the other and is the world's longest paved highway.

Plans for construction of the International Bridge started before World War II. The first International Bridge Authority was created by the Michigan Legislature in 1935, but it wasn't until 1960 that all of the roadblocks were cleared and construction started.

Toch To Discuss Censor Board

Dr. Toch will discuss the reasons for the formation of such a board, and the effect it will have on the community.

Campus Accident Rate Climbing

It is tempting, but premature, to state that another record will be broken on the University campus during the present academic year. But all indications point to a new record, one which we as college students should not be proud to hold. Campus traffic accidents are mounting at a substantial rate.

A recent survey of accidents on University property from the first day of fall registration to ten days thereafter, covering the years 1960-61-62, shows a marked increase this year in traffic mishaps.

While there were 21 accidents in 1960 involving motorists, bicyclists, and pedestrians and 20 the following year covering the same 10-day period, 32 accidents have been reported to campus police this term.

If the accident rate rises or even remains steady, we surely will pass the mark of 489 accidents that took place on the campus during the University fiscal year of July 1, 1961 to June 30, 1962. Thirty-five people were injured in that period.

Granted that the pedestrian, bicyclist, and motorist each has equal rights and obligations under campus traffic regulations. None, however, should abuse his rights.

The bicyclist and pedestrian should be aware that the motorist is manipulating a complex machine while watching dozens of people and cars. He has many more distractions to contend with than they do, and he is unable to take the same evasive actions as quickly as they might.

However, this is no excuse for the motorist who forces his power on the pedestrian and bicyclist by using a heavy foot on the accelerator. He has an obligation to them to relinquish the right of way when the occasion arises.

If all people involved used a little more caution and discretion during their campus travels, perhaps then we might fall short of the 489 accidents of last year.

Look Our Way, Men of Brass!

This band of ours--the mighty marching Spartan men--is a good one. We think it's the best in the state, and one of the top bands in the nation, too.

But even when they're playing our song, they don't look our way! They face the press box. This is understandable, to a certain extent. When the television cameras start to roll, they want to be on camera.

And if they faced our way, maybe the view wouldn't be quite so glamorous for all those armchair slummers watching the game back home.

We're proud of our band. We think the band shows are terrific. But we'd applaud even louder than we do now if we could see all those formations and get a closer look at that fantastic footwork.

And if the Men of Brass would blow a few notes our way, we might even sing louder, too.

You wouldn't have to face the student section all the time, men--just every once in awhile.

Either that, or we're going to have to tote portable television sets to the stadium so we can see what you're doing!

Point of View

Butter vs. Guns In Castro's Cuba

By Jack Shea

In a powerful understatement, Winston Churchill once wrote: "Those who are prone to temperance and character to seek sharp and clear cut solutions of difficult and obscure problems, who are ready to fight whenever some challenge comes from a foreign power, have not always been right."

In the past few months we have heard much from leading Congressmen regarding the intolerable fellow, Fidel Castro, and his island of Cuba. From Senator Keating of N.Y. to Rep. Bruce Alger of Texas, many of "our men in Washington" have been calling for intervention of some sort to end the buildup of Communist military strength on the island.

Apology is immediately made for connecting Senator Keating with Representative Alger. The two might share the title of Congressman but they should in no way be considered as being equally competent. First-hand experience has left me with the impression that the latter is a mental vagabond.

Rep. Alger is a conservative freshman, and if that sounds like a contradiction of terms--he is. On the one hand he favors the withdrawal of the United States from the United Nations and a discontinuance of all foreign aid; but in the same breath he would commit our armed forces as an invasion of Cuba. In other words, he would protect the dollar but make war expendable.

Senseless to say, he doesn't go on and the campaign trail with this kind of slogan: but of necessity it lies behind his conservative-conservatism preaching.

A preferable solution, both morally and practically, would seem to lie in an altered statement of Churchill's thesis: "Those prone by temperament and character to strive patiently and faithfully for a peaceful compromise are not always wrong."

Is not the spending of a part of our national income to fight international communism preferable to an armed intervention in which some lives would certainly be lost? With respect to Cuba this latter alternative seems best.

The Russian campaign to prove to Latin American that international communism is their answer in seeking a better way of life, as failing. Recent testimony by Undersecretary of State George Ball before the House Select Committee on Export Control, has confirmed reports of recent shipments of weapons for the Cuban army. Included are: anti-aircraft missiles, coastal defense weapons, some short range patrol boats, a few fighter-interceptors, and some 4,500 Soviet specialists, technicians, and construction men. However, there still exists widespread misery and disorder. And this frustration of the people is growing; and it will continue to grow. For although in Cuba the Communists are producing the "guns," they are not producing the "butter."

A rifle on his shoulder will keep a Cuban's mind off his shrinking diet for a while, but the time is coming when he will want more including food and clothing for his and his family; when he will want the kind of freedom he used to have.

The point of this explanation of the Cuban situation is to convince Rep. Alger and his contemporaries that communism will fall of its own accord. Military intervention in Cuba is not needed. No doubt we can hasten its end, but the means to be used should be peaceful, not warlike. For example, this writer feels that the present economic blockade being affected by free world shipping, along with a vigorous dissemination of material on the failure of communism in Cuba among the peoples of Latin America, will in the end produce a much bigger victory for democracy than military intervention.

You are blatant with your cries for action, Rep. Alger. Many frightened Americans believe you, and others like you are the only ones who appear dedicated to defeating communism. They listen to your fighting words and then react with emotion instead of calm reasoning.

You would do yourself and your followers a service by keeping ever in mind those poignant words of Sir Winston:

"...clear cut solutions of difficult problems...have not always been right."

AT LEAST IT BEATS THE TRAFFIC PROBLEM

Letters to the Editors

On Speakers, Police, etc.

To the Editor:
My genuine concern over the damage done the MSU image by the current controversy regarding University policy toward public speakers prompts me to suggest an alternative approach to this delicate problem.

I propose that we allow anyone to speak on any subject as often as requested, but the audience be screened and judiciously selected. This proposal is based on the proposition that every dogma has its dogmatic opponents and that the latter, when confronted with the former, only become more resolute and unyielding. The point being, then, that by packing the audience with hostile students--qualified faculty are permitted too--inflammatory speeches are rendered harmless.

For instance, free love advocates would be provided with an audience of (1) eunuchs, (2) Sunday school superintendents, and (3) the senile. (Although adjustments might be necessary regarding 3, and possibly 2, in the event of unexpected developments subsequent to particularly stimulating lectures.)

Or, only those persons able to produce membership cards in various right-wing organizations, or perhaps National Review subscription receipts, would be allowed into the building when the Young Socialists Club presents speakers. Of course, these examples are not exhaustive and a staff would have to be hired and housed in a new building to consider the wide range of possibilities. It is not inconceivable that mailing lists be prepared so that individual students could be notified of time and place when speakers promoting appropriate ideologies are scheduled.

There is the possibility that students who fail to exhibit extreme convictions may be left off the list entirely. However, one can hope that as the system becomes more refined various shades of belief and disbelief will be classified so that everyone might be given the opportunity to participate.

Good Of Days

To the Editor:
I have one word to say to Mr. Howard, Amen! As one of your middle-aged students on campus (I have 3 teen-agers, one a freshman here at M.S.U.) I feel campuses are the last stand of controversy. If you can't have controversy on campus where can you have it? It seems to me to show very little faith in the intelligence, perception, education, and upbringing of our young people that we must screen what they are to be exposed to. What do they sharpen their wits on, how do they learn to discriminate and make judgments if not on controversy and controversial figures?

We cut our eyes on Communists, Fascists, and every shade of politics in between when I first entered college, and nobody seemed to fear we would not become first class American citizens. They encouraged us then. When did being "controversial" become a dirty word? Good heavens, by the time you are middle-aged, you're too busy and too tired to care anyhow, uncut hair. They loved to flaunt their poverty! One little Nazi girl on campus was completely frustrated because we would never argue with her, but always remained sweet, reasonable, and friendly. She never did figure out how to cope with us.

Is this the only reason for using Mennen Skin Bracer?

Skin Bracer's rugged, long-lasting aroma is an obvious attribute. But is it everything?

After all, Menthofol Skin Bracer is the after-shave lotion that cools rather than burns. It helps heal shaving nicks and scrapes. Helps prevent blemishes. Conditions your skin.

Aren't these sound, scientific virtues more important than the purely emotional effect Skin Bracer has on women? In that case, buy a bottle. And--have fun.

Bubbles, Sunshine, And Wool Sweaters

Paul Schnitt

There was a rumor going around campus that the University of Michigan has one of the cleanest water fountains in the world. Apparently, a group of well-intentioned Michigan State students, driven by a compulsion for immaculateness, traveled down to the Ann Arbor Establishment and dropped a few gallons of liquid detergent into one of the Wolverine's lavish fountains.

Well, the place reportedly turned into a Lawrence Welk spectacular with bubbles floating around. And a one-and-a-two-and-a--

There's another rumor--mind you now, only a rumor--about MSU's Thursday night production with a cast of thousands: The whole business was not the result of spontaneous student enthusiasm over the big game Saturday. On the contrary, the mass pep rallies and snake dances were provoked and led by a man seen a top a white horse wearing a general's uniform and warning of an imminent invasion by The Enemy. Now that's what I call true Spartan patriotism!

Word is out that the cannon used by the Michigan warmongers during the half-time bloodletting was really a weapon owned and operated by Oldsmobile for the purpose of knocking from the skies the plane bearing the Bud Kouts Chevrolet advertisement.

I don't know about you, but I'm terribly embarrassed at the brand of ball that the Big Ten schools are playing in non-conference competition. Washington tied Purdue, Illinois, Michigan State, Iowa and Ohio State went to the West Coast only to be beaten by Washington, Stanford, USC and UCLA, respectively. Nebraska dumped Michigan.

And Saturday, the most embarrassing of all--Purdue, supposedly one of the best teams in the Big Ten, was upset by Miami of Ohio (Miami of Ohio?).

Admittedly, it is not easy to "be up" for a non-conference games. But you're on uneasy ground, at least this year, to argue that the Western Conference plays the best brand of football in the nation when you see them howling to everybody else.

All right, will somebody please tell me who the grey-haired man in a blue suit was being escorted around Spartan Stadium by an attractive young lady while the Michigan band went through battle maneuvers.

If you tell me it was General Walker, I'll tell you you're wrong because Walker's resting quietly after falling to save Mississippi from "encroaching civilization."

If you tell me it was President Kennedy, I'll tell you you're wrong again because JFK doesn't attend football games. He plays the sport with the Administration athletes.

I can offer only one conjecture as to his identity. He was the cannoner who shot down the Bud Kouts airplane and was being applauded and honored by the people as a war hero while the Michigan State band played the Oldsmobile Fight Song.

Pet Peeve: I don't know why they do it. I don't know how they can stand it. There were fellows down on the field who were (at least through Saturday afternoon) in the midst of Indian summer with the temperature soaring to the mid 70's and near 80; the sun beating down with a passion.

And there they are--students wearing big, bushy, wool sweaters.

I don't feel sorry for those fellows down on the field who they smash into each other. They receive some satisfaction in winning--if they win.

But the people in the stands wrapped up in a four-pound garment--these people I feel sorry for.

Why do they wear sweaters when it's that hot? Don't they feel funny as they walk by the outdoor IM pool and see people flipping off the high diving board?

I'm not saying the students should go to class in a bathing suit when the thermometer reaches 78 degrees. But why the sweater?

College students are supposed to have relatively high IQ's which means they are better able to adjust to their environment. Can't they see that there is a correlation between 80-degree weather, sun beating down and outdoor bathers on the one hand and shetland wool sweaters on the other?

Honest, you won't be criticized from college society if you don't wear a crew neck sweater a week. Maybe I'm being unfair. Maybe that's all the Michigan State students have in their wardrobe--no tie shirts, no sport shirts, just sweaters. Anyway, this phenomenon has motivated me to set up headquarters in the chemistry lab where I'm working on a synthetic fabric that will make sweaters water proof and more resistant. If I perfect it, the fanatic can wear his sweaters into the shower.

Quite obviously, something has to be done about the seating arrangement vis-a-vis the sun in the ball games. I came back after the Saturday spectacle with a sunburn--on the right side of my face. The right side is as pale as a glass of milk.

Now, either we schedule games on cloudy days or sit the stadium around so that section 10 is directly facing the sun.

In the meantime I have to walk around half-man-half-milk. At least on cloudy days I'm whole milk, which, nutritional report, is very healthy.

Library Purchases Foreign Books

Years ago a group of students in Canada and the United States formed an association to make possible the purchase of books published in the world.

The American Research Library, the group formulated a plan to purchase at least one new foreign publication each year.

The association was on the assumption that any could not afford to purchase anything that was published.

Dr. Richard Chapin, of the MSU library, returned from a conference at Cornell University that had problems relating to the National Union Catalog at the Library of Congress.

Chapin terms the plan one of the real advancements of libraries in the last two decades. He noted that the association has tried to include the emerging nations of Africa and Asia but it is tough.

The University Library was chosen to purchase all publications that related to the occult sciences and psychology. Their responsibility was further divided on the basis of geography.

The African states of Togo and Dahomey were assigned to MSU. Dealers located throughout the world automatically purchase the books for the association. Mr. Eugene Debenko, acquisitions librarian, reported that MSU acquired 287 books last year.

Any book that is received is reported to the National Union Catalog at the Library of Congress.

Michigan's No. 1 game bird—at least in terms of numbers taken—is the pheasant, an immigrant from Asia first introduced to this state in 1895. Pheasants took hold here after the Conservation Department began making regular releases of these birds in 1917. The first pheasant season was held in 1925. In recent years, the state's hunters have annually harvested about one million ringneck pheasants. They are expected to approach that figure again this fall during the Oct. 20-Nov. 10 season in the lower peninsula. As this map shows, hunting will be most productive in the eastern half of the southern lower peninsula, stronghold of the state's pheasant range.

500,000 Await Pheasant Season

The opening of pheasant season in the lower peninsula Saturday is awaited by some 500,000 Michigan hunters who annually pursue the state's No. 1 game bird.

The Michigan Conservation Department estimates that about one million ringneck pheasants will be bagged during this year's three-week season.

Best hunting will be found in the southeastern lower peninsula, says the Conservation Department. Pheasant production appears to be 22 per cent above last year and six per cent above 1961.

Ringnecks are estimated to have declined 17 per cent in the southwestern portion of the state. They have dropped seven per cent in the south central sector of Michigan and six per cent in the Allegan-Muskegon-Ottawa County area.

Concentration of pheasants in the lower peninsula is probably due to the fact that they are basically farm birds. About 98 per cent of Michigan's ringnecks live below the Muskegon-Bay City line.

NEWS BRIEF

by UPI

DETROIT—A suburban Oak Park woman got her purse back Saturday after it had been taken for a 12-mile ride on the bumper guard of a car.

Mrs. Hewdig Pily, 81, dropped her purse in the parking lot of a shopping center in Berkley. The handle apparently became hooked to the bumper guard of a car driven by David O'Bannon of Southfield.

O'Bannon made several stops without noticing the purse and then went to his home where he parked the car in the driveway for several hours.

At 4 p.m. he drove to his job and parked the car in the parking lot. Another employee happened to notice the purse and notified O'Bannon who in turn called Ferndale police.

The missing purse was then returned to Mrs. Pily.

umpire, Alou scored easily on the error, with Mays taking third. Cepeda then doubled to right center, scoring Mays, and scored himself on Davenport's ground single into center field.

Once again there was one out when the Giants struck in the top. This time it was Kuenn hit less in 10 trips in the series, who finally broke out of it with a single to left. Chuck Hiller dropped a single into center field that fell dead on the soggy turf. Alou's single to left drove in Kuenn with the Giants' fourth run, bringing up Mays.

Hook let Ford pitch to Mays.

Ford justified his faith by getting Willie on a foul pop to Moose Skowron. When Cepeda followed with a single to center, driving in Hiller, Hook decided Ford was finished. Jim Coates mopped up for 2 1/3 innings and Marshall Bridges finished the job without further damage.

Beating Ford gave the Giants a terrific boost, for the chunky little lefty had won more World Series games (10) than any other pitcher and had beaten them in times and cutting fancy divots in the opener, 6-2.

The defeat, however, also dropped Ford into a tie with such illustrious companions as Ed Plank, Christy Mathewson, Rube Marquard, Bullet Joe Bush and Schoolboy Rowe as five-time series losers.

Despite the soggy outfield, the players did not appear to be overly handicapped. They made most of the plays, skidding at enthusiastic about the fine play of guards Bob Viney, John Karpinski, Boris Dimitroff and Don Bierowicz.

The Green squad was the first to cross the goal line, with Mackey scoring from six yards out. A few minutes later, Emerson Boles, also on the Green squad, intercepted a pass and galloped 55 yards for the score.

The Red squad cut the lead to 14-8 as the result of a nicely executed three-yard run by quarterback Dave McCormick.

Green Shirts Down Reds 20-8 In Frosh Intra-Squad Game

by MIKE JASENAK

Of The State News Sports

Somewhat overshadowed by the mighty clash that took place in Spartan Stadium, Saturday, was the freshmen intra-squad scrimmage Friday.

Although the contest was viewed by somewhat less than 77,801 spectators, the game was of no little importance, as these inexperienced gridgers, benefiting by their mistakes now, will someday be battling for gridiron laurels in Spartan Stadium.

The contest found the squad divided into two units, with the Green shirt squad comprised of what is presently considered the first team, battling the second string Red shirt squad.

Though the Green squad won

20-8, the score wasn't the important item. The scrimmage, which put the emphasis on hustle and hard-hitting, was primarily designed to discover and correct mistakes.

Freshman coach Burt Smith said that while both squads made a lot of mistakes, they played with enthusiasm and they hit hard.

Coach Smith, also said that as the scrimmages progress, inexperience will be overcome and mistakes corrected.

Smith was particularly impressed with the hard blocking of fullback Ed Cotton and the fine running of tailbacks Larry Mackey and Jim Garrett.

The tackle position still continues to trouble Smith, although Bob Nanna shows great promise there. Likewise, Smith is still Ford, Coates (5), Bridges (8), and Howard; Pierce and Bailey, HR-Maris.

Hook said he had no intentions of lifting Ford for a pinch hitter.

HAPPINESS CAN'T BUY MONEY

Can education bring happiness? This is a question that in recent years has caused lively debate and several hundred stayings among college professors. Some contend that if a student is sufficiently aroused, happiness will automatically come. Others say that to concentrate on the intellect and ignore the rest of the personality can only lead to misery.

I myself favor the second view, and I offer in evidence a well-known case of Agathe Fusco.

Agathe, a forestry major, never got anything less than straight "A's," was awarded her B.T. (Bachelor of Two) only two years, her M.S.B. (Master of Sap and Bark) in three, and her D.B.C. (Doctor of Blight and Cutworm) only four.

Academic glory was hers. Her intellect was the envy of every intellect fan on campus. But was she happy? answer, alas, was no. Agathe—she knew not why—was miserable, in fact, that one day while walking on campus, she was suddenly so overcome with melancholy she flung herself, weeping, upon the statue of the Founder.

By and by a liberal arts major named R. Twinkle (better known by his yoyo, "How do you like that?") said R. Twinkle "Suppose you tell me, you dumb old liberal arts major, replied Agathe peevishly.

"Suppose you tell me, you dumb old liberal arts major, replied Agathe peevishly.
