

Reorganization Better Housing New Plan Brings Off-Campus Residences On Big Ten Par

The recent reorganization of the off-campus housing administration will pull off-campus residences into line with other Big Ten schools, Jack Seibold, acting director of the off-campus housing office, said today.

The off-campus housing director will work with the offices of deans of men and women at the University of Michigan, said Seibold.

Seibold said many landlords desire University approval to increase the number of tenants. Only students over 21 may live in unapproved housing.

Another function of the off-campus housing office is to handle problems caused by unapproved housing, Seibold said.

"We try to handle disciplinary action within the range of our authority when problems are created by the places in which students live," Seibold commented. "One of our functions is to keep peace between the students and the people of the community."

Seibold said landlords in unapproved homes sometimes report disciplinary and financial problems to the University.

"When student behavior is obviously unbecoming, we try to handle it in the best way we can," he said. "However, we try to keep out of financial difficulties with unapproved housing. This is strictly between the student and the owner."

"The University is a third party in financial agreements with approved housing landlords," he noted. "We operate on a quarterly rental agreement."

Seibold said another function of the off-campus office would be to keep a record of where students live.

"This occupies a great deal of our time," he said. "If all students would notify us of changes in address, our work would be aided greatly."

On-campus dormitory assignments will be handled by the residence hall division under the re-organized housing administration. Married housing will be taken care of by a new office on Harrison Road.

Off-campus housing will continue to be administered from the housing office on second floor, Student Services.

Seibold said a great percentage of the off-campus housing office continue to administer approved off-campus housing.

Reid Wants Recount Of Lieutenant Governor Votes

Republican Clarence A. Reid, who lost the lieutenant governor race to Democratic incumbent T. John Lesinski last week, announced Monday that he will seek a partial recount of votes in Wayne County and other heavily Democratic areas.

Reid disclosed he would not file his recount petition until the official vote tabulation is accepted by the state board of canvassers.

An unofficial check shows an 8,867 vote discrepancy in wire service reports of Lesinski's margin. United Press International (UPI) reports Lesinski's margin as 2,438 votes.

The Associated Press reported that Lesinski had won by 11,035 votes.

UPI reported on the day after the election that Lesinski had defeated Reid by 6,376 votes. It proceeded to tabulate unofficial returns and included results from counties where earlier returns had been unavailable. The check narrowed Lesinski's margin to 2,438 votes, UPI reported.

Final returns from counties may not be available until the state board of canvassers meets Nov. 26.

Reid mentioned Bay County one of the 13 outstate areas carried by Lesinski, as a possible area where he will seek a recount.

Reid will have to pay $5 for every precinct he desires recounted. Money will be refunded only if he is declared the winner on the basis of the recount.

Lesinski is vacationing in Florida and was not available for comment.

James Vinall, public relations director for the state central Democratic committee, said Reid's "traditionally favor Democrats" in Michigan.

Reid will file his recount petition with Secretary of State James Hare. The recount would be conducted under the direction of a four-member bi-partisan board of state canvassers.

Governor-elect George Romney, the only Republican elected to the state executive team, resigned Monday as head of the Mormon Church in Detroit.

He announced that he expected the resignation to be approved early next year.

He Who Trots Horse To Class, Rides To Jail

Over 10,000 University students drive their automobiles on campus, but it is illegal for a student to ride a horse to class. In fact, a student whose horse is found parked in front of class could spend 60 days in the County Jail and be fined $50.

This is the stiffest penalty provided by the MSU grounds ordinances, as adapted by the State Board of Trustees.

Burt Ferris, Grounds Maintenance Superintendent, said these ordinances are posted throughout the campus so students may familiarize themselves with the regulation.

"Unfortunately, many of the newer students are totally unfamiliar with these rules," he said.

The grounds ordinances are enforced by the campus police. It is also illegal to:

- Possess or use any firearms on campus; shoot any birds or wildlife on campus; drive any vehicle (including horse-drawn carriages) on any grassed area; deposit or dump refuse of any kind on campus; deface any campus property; build unauthorized bonfires on campus.

For those students who might be thinking about it, it is illegal to breed cats or dogs in dorms, fly model airplanes on campus, steal lamp posts, float any advertisement or drive a motor boat on the Red Cedar.

Review Of Nixon's Career Stirs Intense Public Furor

NEW YORK - A television review of Richard M. Nixon's career, which included comment from Alger Hiss, a man whom Nixon helped send to prison long ago, stirred a widespread public furor Monday.

The intense reaction carried an echo of history, recalling the high feeling that surrounded the Hiss case of more than a decade ago.

That case first brought Nixon into the limelight. And it was Hiss's appearance on Monday's program, entitled "The Political Obituary of Richard Nixon," that produced the uproar.

The program included both censure and praise of Nixon, from supporters and critics.

Four TV stations, in Philadelphia, New Haven, Conn., Cincinnati and Columbus, Ohio, cancelled in advance. About 80 other ABC affiliates carried it. Many reported a tide of response, mostly complaints.

There were threats of bombing or arson, in several instances, but no evidence of such actual attempts materialized.

There was no comment from Nixon. But Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's former press secretary, called the program, a "new low in undistinguished reporting."

"It set out to kick Richard Nixon and accomplished its goal by avoiding facts, substituting innuendo in its interpretation of his career," ABC defended the program as a balanced and honest documentary, giving both sides of a controversy, said James C. Hagerty, ABC vice president in charge of news.

The broadcasting company said Monday that if Nixon asks for equal time to reply he will get it.

Hundreds of telephone calls and telegrams, more than 1,000 in the network's New York headquarters alone, poured into ABC affiliates throughout the country, many of them criticizing the appearance of Alger Hiss on the program. Others termed the show "worthwhile" and "timely."

The half-hour Sunday night program, titled "The Political Obituary of Richard Nixon," was comprised of taped interviews and of comments by moderator Howard K. Smith.

Former representative Jerry Voorhis, California Democrat whom Nixon defeated in 1946, said in Washington Monday that he telephoned ABC headquarters in New York Sunday. He said he told a network official that any use of his taped remarks on Sunday night's program would be without his authority if Hiss's taped discussion of Nixon was used on the same program. The network used tapes of both Voorhis and Hiss.

Hiss, former State Department official convicted of perjury in 1950 after a congressional investigation led by Nixon, said he believed his prosecution by Nixon, then a congressman, was politically motivated.

On the program, Hiss said he had no feeling of hostility against Nixon, although he regarded the former vice president's actions against him as "motivated by ambition and personal self-serving."

Hiss, now a New York salesman, was convicted and jailed on perjury charges in connection with his association with the late Whittaker Chambers who at one time was a Soviet spy courier. Hiss steadfastly maintained he was innocent of the charges.

The protests against the show began coming in even before it went on the air. Walter Annenberg, president of Triangle Publications Incorporated, instructed his organization's two ABC affiliated stations in Philadelphia and New Haven not to carry the program.

U.S. Remains Firm On Soviet Withdrawal Of Cuban Bombers

WASHINGTON (AP) - The United States was reported standing firm Monday on its insistence that Soviet bombers, as well as missiles, be removed from Cuba. This word came from the White House after a strategy session lasting nearly two hours between President Kennedy and his top advisers in the Cuban crisis.

The only other word from Presidential Press Secretary Pierre Salinger was that the group made "an across-the-board review" of the situation including negotiations under way in the United Nations.

U. N. Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson and John J. McCloy, a special negotiator in the Cuban talks with the Soviets, and U. N. Secretary-General U. Thant in New York made reports, Salinger added.

Informants forecast tough negotiating ahead, and there even is a growing expectation that some of the elements of the Kennedy-Khrushchev agreement for a Cuba settlement may never be fulfilled.

Salinger said specifically that the United States is still standing by its demand for a withdrawal of Soviet bombers from Cuba as well as missiles.

With Sunday's count showing 42 missiles headed back to Russia aboard Soviet ships, U. S. authorities figure the atomic rocket menace from Cuba has been virtually removed. But the two dozen or more Soviet IL28 bombers believed remaining in Cuba can carry nuclear explosives, too.

In his public exchange with Soviet Premier Khrushchev, Kennedy agreed to lift the U. S. blockade around Cuba and pledge not to invade the island in return for Khrushchev's removal of offensive weapons from Cuba under U. N. supervision. Khrushchev also was to halt further introduction of such weapons into Cuba.

Kennedy has made plain the United States includes the Soviet bombers as offensive weapons to be removed under the deal but the Russians have been foot-dragging on this. The Havana regime under Fidel Castro has protested their removal.

U. S. authorities expressed belief that Russians might try to use the continued presence of the bombers in Cuba as a bargaining lever in the negotiations now under way. The United States, in turn, was expected to continue its blockade until the bombers are taken out.

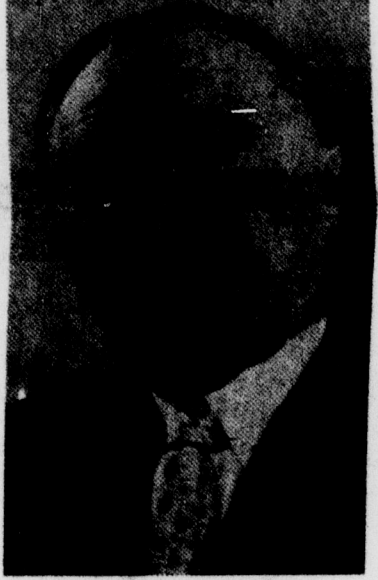

Removal of the bombers would still leave unfulfilled the U. N. verification of the weapons withdrawal promised by Khrushchev. Castro has stood fast against any U. N. inspection inside Cuba.

Adenauer Cautions Optimism

BONN (AP) - Chancellor Konrad Adenauer said Monday the West should not negotiate with the Soviet Union until Premier Khrushchev shows more evidence of an earnest desire to settle East-West tensions.

The West German leader, on the eve of his flight to the United States for talks with President Kennedy, cautioned Americans against optimism about Cuban developments.

Expressing skepticism that the Russians have removed their rockets from Cuba, Adenauer said the fact that Soviet ships have been photographed leaving the Caribbean island with long covered tubes aboard proves nothing.

KONRAD ADENAUER

The 86-year-old Chancellor said it was dangerous to let the Russians depict themselves as great peace-lovers by this move and declared the Kremlin wants to keep Cuba intact as a Communist center in the Americas.

Adenauer made it plain that Berlin would be among the chief issues he intends to discuss with President Kennedy, but he showed unmistakable concern that the Washington administration might be misled by Khrushchev's outward show of backing down in the Cuban crisis.

Adenauer, whose trip was delayed a week at the President's request because of the Cuban situation, said there was no evidence that Khrushchev sincerely wanted to settle East-West differences. The best way for the Soviet leader to show such sincerity, he said, is to agree to a nuclear test ban and to an effective control.

Kennedy Thanks Precinct

President Kennedy sent an official letter of thanks Friday to the men of Emmons House, a precinct in Emmons Hall for their telegram of support during the recent Cuban crisis.

Kennedy's reply came on a card with the seal of the President of the United States on the top. The engraved card said:

"I am most grateful for your expression of support and confidence. Your message gives heartening evidence of our national unity and strength of purpose during the current international crisis. With all best wishes, J. F. Kennedy"

Jack Shea, Detroit junior and president of Emmons House, said the thought of the idea after the President spoke to the nation on Oct. 22.

"We held a precinct meeting and voted unanimously to send the message," he said.

The message stated:

"Dear Mr. President: The men of Emmons House wish to convey to you their hearty support of your Cuban Declaration of last evening. We live in a time of tension and anxiety when calm deliberative leadership is of the highest import. Your message exemplifies the depth and balance that we as students must always strive for."

Confidently and respectfully yours, Men of Emmons House, Jack Shea, president

Shea noted that the reason for the delay in the President's answer can probably be attributed to the fact that Kennedy received 50,000 telegrams.

The President's letter will be exhibited in one of the show cases in the main lobby of Emmons Hall.

Board To Name Contractor For New Coed Dorm

The Board of Trustees is expected to award a contract Friday for construction of a new dormitory being built near Owen Hall, Clair Huntington, supervisor of new construction, said Monday.

Bids for the coed dorm were received Wednesday. Huntington said a recommendation had been sent to the Board of Trustees for final approval and that bidding was closed.

The new dorm will cost approximately $6 million. It is being constructed on a pattern similar to Wonders Hall. Foundations for the dorm were begun before bids were received in a move to speed completion of the dorm by fall, 1963, or winter, 1964.

Oxford Debaters Due Here

Members of the internationally renowned Oxford Debating Union, touring the United States this fall, debate here Wednesday on the question "Resolved, that the continued existence of the Castro regime should not be tolerated in Cuba."

William David Madel and John B. McDonnell of Oxford University battle MSU debaters Clark Davis, Pontiac sophomore, and James Hudek, Cedar Rapids, Iowa, freshmen.

The debate will be held in auditorium C-109 of Anthony Hall at 8 p.m. Admission is free and there are no reserved seats.

The two British graduate students are visiting the United States under the sponsorship of the Institute of International Education. They have been featured in a television debate over NBC.

The Saturday Review says the British debaters "flip manner and lively wit draws laughter from student audiences."

Debates in English universities command much the same student attention as major sports events in American colleges.

English college debaters take a less serious approach to debate than American students. Their comments are often flippant and aimed at entertaining audiences.

The ground rules for Wednesday's debate allow one ten-minute speech by each debater. This will be followed by a brief period during which the audience can ask questions.

The MSU debaters will take the affirmative stand, arguing that the Castro government should not be tolerated by the United States.

Pre-Eskimo Specimens Found By MSU Men

Baffin Island valley termed the richest early archaeological sites in the eastern Arctic explored last summer by an expedition team that included MSU men.

The expedition recovered 4,000 specimens of a prehistoric civilization, many of them from the valley.

The MSU participants were Maxwell, curator of the Museum of Natural History, and William Hughes of the anthropology department, who was a doctoral candidate in anthropology, and Bruce Morrison, who is an anthropology major.

well's two sons also were members of the expedition. The members lived in tents and ate dehydrated and frozen foods for 10 weeks.

The expedition explored the south coast of Baffin Island, which is west of Greenland and north of Hudson Bay.

Except for the one trip they made to the nearest post (20 miles away) for a "weekend vacation", the members of the expedition saw only each other and animals of the Arctic, and an occasional Eskimo.

There were threats of bombing or arson, in several instances, but no evidence of such actual attempts materialized.

There was no comment from Nixon. But Herbert G. Klein, Nixon's former press secretary, called the program, a "new low in undistinguished reporting."

Faculty Committee Should Include Faculty Members

To label the present Faculty Committee on Student Conduct a faculty committee is a misnomer.

It might be called an academic administration committee, but it is not, according to its present composition, a true faculty committee.

The line between faculty members and academic administration is a fine one. But it seems to us that a faculty member is one whose prime duty is teaching students. Members of the academic administration are one-time faculty members who have been elevated to positions such as dean, assistant dean, etc. Even if these people teach classes, their prime duties are concerned with administrative problems within their departments.

The Faculty Committee on Student Conduct is a case in point. This committee is the one which metes out punishment to students who violate University regulations.

Each college nominates members to serve on this committee, and usually, assistant deans are chosen to serve on it. Most of the assistant deans teach one class.

The present committee consists of Dean of Students John A. Fuzak, Eldon Nonnamaker, director of Men's Division, and Frances De Lisle, director of Women's Division.

It also includes five assistant deans, two representatives from the counseling center, and a representative from health service. The remaining three members are full-time faculty members who teach classes regularly.

They are obviously in the minority.

It would seem that members of the academic administration, because of the nature of their jobs and because they have less contact with the students than members of the regular faculty, might tend to be more sympathetic to administrative ideas and problems than to those of students.

If the faculty committee on student conduct is to be a true faculty committee, it should include at least a voting majority of bona fide faculty members.

Bias and Prejudice

Congressman! Trying To Bury Us--Culturally!

Paul Schnitt

Congressman Y. A. Goobar
Michigan State Legislature
Lansing, Michigan

Dear Mr. Goobar,

Since you are my representative and since you are in a position to do something about it, I feel it is my duty as an American to write you concerning a grave topic.

It has come to my attention that there have been some strange happenings on the Michigan State University campus this year. Perhaps only my sharp, analytical mind was able to perceive them. I would like to relate them to you so that something can be done before it's too late.

Time is on our side.

As you well know, sir, Michigan State boasts of an outstanding Lecture-Concert Series. Its popularity and impact upon students is great, indeed.

But make no mistake--this year the program's true colors have come out.

Do you realize that over a period of seven days, there were two different programs from Russia performing in the Auditorium?

Yes, that's right! From the soil of the Enemy came Violinist David Oistrakh and then Sunday, the Leningrad Philharmonic. Moreover, later this year, the Poznan Choir from Communist Poland will be on the campus.

Things are beginning to fall in place very clearly, aren't they, sir? There may have been something rotten in Denmark; likewise, there are rotten things happening at our state-supported school.

Are we going to stand around and do nothing? Is this the kind of "entertainment" we want our children to see and hear?

Is it true that the leftist-liberals have taken over control of Michigan State's administration? Has President Hannah become merely a pawn in the hands of the one-worlders among the faculty ranks?

Do we want our children duped by these skillful cultural manipulators who, with one stroke of the baton, one beat of the drum or one pluck of the harp, have the audience applauding, rising to its feet and hoping for an encore?

Must our sons and daughters have their ears filled with Communist-controlled programs featuring Prokofiev, Tchaikovsky and Rimski-Korsakov?

Everyone knows that Khrushchev said, "We will bury you."

Khrushchev is a Russian. Rachmaninoff is a Russian. Therefore, Rachmaninoff wants to bury us. Should we listen to symphonies composed by a man who wants to bury us?

Sir, we're at war today. It's a different kind of war. But it's war!

I say it's time to act. Right now!

I say Oistrakh, Ba'the Bolshoi, Lambaste

the Leningrad and Picket the Polish Poznan Choir.

Give me Fabian or give me death! The "1812 Overture" and "Scheherazade" should not be played by patriotic Americans.

Either they are with me or they ain't; and if they ain't, they're sympathizing with the Enemy. Look at it this way: when we entered World War I, no patriotic American played Beethoven. And we won the war.

I say don't play Tchaikovsky and we'll win this war, too.

Let's not sit around while our national fiber is weakened by Communist infiltrators skilled in the art of cultural warfare.

Will a "no win" policy prevail? Or will those conscientious Americans rise up and fight?

Mr. Congressman, you are in a position to fight. You have the power of the purse, the power of life or death over our state university at East Lansing.

I say use that power. I suggest that as soon as possible you propose that a three-man Committee on Concerts (not to be confused with the CCC) be set up to screen outside entertainment coming to state-supported schools.

If there is some member of the legislature who has ever attended a concert, I recommend that he be one of the members of the committee. I suggest that a congressman from the appropriations committee be the second member. And, if possible, have the Editorial Director of WILS be chairman of the committee -- to vote in case of a tie and to veto in case of disagreement.

If Michigan State refused to have any of the Lecture-Concert performers screened by the Committee on Concerts, I say it's time to lay down the law.

If they openly flout the committee, retaliation should follow.

For every sonata played, cut off $100,000; for every concerto, cut off $200,000; and for every symphony, cut off $500,000.

Just keep cutting until they learn that nobody can defy authority and get away with it.

Sincerely yours, I. M. Constituent

P. S. If you have a few spare hours sometime within the next couple of days, perhaps you can drop by at my East Lansing residence, and we can drink a few toasts to celebrate our victory on the "Wet and Dry" issue. Thank heavens, the evil elements have been defeated!

Letters to the Editor

Sunshine Patriots, Bus Stops, Etc.

To the Editor:

Ah! The summer soldiers and the sunshine patriots make their appearance now. After five weeks of protest by all honorable channels and by the entire spectrum of honest student opinion, the perennial tree-sitter Jamie Blanchard and his cohorts have made their play for the sympathy of the student body and the administration.

They claim that they are proffering a "peaceful protest." Who can say that the October 18 meeting of the Campus Club Conference was not peaceful? Did we battle the police or even stage a sit-down strike in the Union? Did the Detroiters from the Support-SNCC group preach violence or urge the overthrow of the national or university administration? Or wasn't it a protest? Well, we have maintained (contrary to the accusations of the Administration) that since we invited the Detroiters in mid-September, we were merely keeping our commitment to them, while holding to our stand of non-recognition of the committee on Speakers. Our intent, therefore, was not protest, nor was it defiance, though the State News immediately came out with a banner headline in this vein.

Whether the C.C.C. was right or wrong, then, revolves about the legal consideration as to whether the intent or the consequences be the criterion.

When Bob Howard and other campus club presidents decided to co-sponsor the meeting, they did so because (1) they agreed with the intent (exercise of freedom of expression and assembly) and (2) were aware of the consequences (violation of administration policy); they wished to indicate their solidarity with the intent, even in face of possible retaliation.

So the few student politicians that could rightly be called statesmen (as I remember that's what the history books call those who stand for the rights and dignity of their constituents, whatever the consequences) have been labeled "immature," "irrational," and "irresponsible" "rousers of rabble."

The stage is set for the entrance of the opportunists. Let us be mature, they say, and realize that the only way we can get anything from the Administration is through the Administration's channels. They seem to forget that the present hotly contested issue is a channel that is designed to take something away! Please, O Powers That Be, give us a token of your Disposition. In return, we will do whatever you tell us, through whatever channels you prescribe, and you can tell the Legislature that our rebellious spirits are under control.

With the token of the Administration's Disposition purportedly illustrating what an "in" they have with the Administration, Blanchard and Company will approach the Student Body in the spring claiming to be able to get more (in the Establishment) than other political aspirants.

Once a great Senator who had said he would rather be right than President compromised his opposition to slavery because he indeed wanted to be President.

He was not elected. While it is plain that Blanchard should not be compared to Daniel Webster, it is imperative that his unprincipled bid on the road to the AUSG Presidency be squashed.

Fellow students, do not let your elected representatives "realistically" or "legally" continue to sell your interests down the river. Protest letters are fine, but beware when Blanchard et al. approach the Establishment with hat in hand and the prestige of the student civil liberties movement on the altar.

Ex-President MSU Young Socialists

Always Late

To the Editor:

Look! Look! Look! See all the people! What are they doing? They are at the bus stop. They are waiting for the bus. The bus is late.

The bus is always late. Oh! Hear the bus! It is coming! The bus does not stop. It is full. "Vroom, vroom" says the bus. What do the people say? "We will wait," say some people.

"We will wait," say other people. There is a name for these people. The name is optimist.

Wait. Wait. Wait. See! See! Another bus! This bus stops! OH! OH! OH! The bus driver is happy.

"Lots more room in the back," says the happy bus driver. The people get off the bus. What time is it?

The big hand is at five. When the big hand is at five, we say it is twenty-five after.

"Damn! Damn!" say the people.

Campus "Confidential"?

To the Editor:

I am writing in regard to our campus answer to "Confidential" magazine--the "State Urinal."

For the most part, the "Urinal" resembles a high school gossip column with such familiar features as the music box (example: "All Alone Am I" by Betty Badbreath) and colorful comments on recent romances and parties.

Unfortunately, the "paper" doesn't stop at that point. Disregarding an individual's reputation, the "Urinal" has, in the past, accused a student of loose, to say the least, morals in the form of so-called "cute" jokes.

The readers of the "Urinal" are a concentration of the persons whose respect a Michigan State Student highly desires. Whether or not the accusation is valid is not the point.

The point is that it isn't up to a handful of gossips to spread such ruinous rumors on a mass basis in printed form.

I offer two suggestions to the editors of the "State Urinal": (1) Please think of the consequences for the individual that you're exposing to the MSU student body (2) Examine your own moral histories objectively.

Such organizations as AUSG, IFC and Pan-Hel should see that the "State Urinal" is either permanently rid of dangerous, basic moral judgments of individuals, or is eliminated from the Michigan State scene.

Freedom and Cash

To the Editor:

The Administration's failure to defend the Speaker's Committee indicates to me that they have no good justification for their position. However, a reason for this denial of free speech does exist: there is much pressure from the "outside" to keep Communists and other "undesirable" or "un-American" speakers away from the students.

These outsiders are led by a small but vocal group of narrow-minded State Legislators who want MSU pure, unadulterated, 100 per cent American, and 100 per cent ignorant of 20th century ideas. The Legislature claims power over us because they give us a healthy sum of money each year. Not wanting to risk losing any of this money, the Administration kneels reverently before the Legislature, and denies the students free speech.

Some students on this campus have stood up for their rights. The Administration should follow this example and tell the "outsiders" to mind their own business.

Anti-Prejudice

To the Editor:

In the many years we have been members of the faculty, the administration of Michigan State University, and the community as a whole, have treated racial and religious groups with such fairness, and with such genuine tolerance, that the question of prejudice has not arisen.

It is, therefore, particularly shocking that guests of this country and of this university, such as Mr. Khalaf Al-Delaimy, should inject the poison of anti-semitism into a community where there has been none before.

We would hope that Mr. Al-Delaimy will learn the lessons of American democracy while he is our guest here, and we wish him well in his endeavors to put them into practice in his native land.

Parking

To the Editor:

Everyone who drives a car on campus has realized by now that the increased number of students has considerably aggravated the parking problem. As often as not, the pay lots will not admit any more cars. The University, cognizant of this problem, has taken steps that are peculiar indeed. Last year there was a free lot on the south side of Shaw Lane across from Power Station Road. This lot has been decreased in

STATE OF THE NEWS

Student Pickets: A Good Sign

Bruce Fabricant

Those 16 Michigan State students who picketed the White House a few weeks ago during the Cuban crisis on behalf of the Student Peace Union may have been wrong in their beliefs about the best to insure peace.

But the fact that they felt strongly enough to come to Pennsylvania Avenue mansion, with three to four thousand other students, to urge more intensive efforts by the United States and Russia to abandon atomic war is an enlightening sign.

The agitators who repeatedly preach "student apathy exists on campus" will have to take a back seat for the time being. Students were wondering and still are wondering what President Kennedy's or Premier Khrushchev's next move will be in the Cuban chess game.

The student peace demonstration that supports an end to the quarantine and opposes any military action towards Cuba does not earn the participants any piping hot coffee. No key White House representatives met with them.

In a past student picketing performance, President Kennedy provided the coffee and representatives when he made it clear that he did not believe the signs the students carried telling them what to do about fall-out shelters and nuclear tests represented a personal criticism or a challenge to government stability.

This time the case must have been different. The Student Peace Union marchers maintain that military threats will strengthen Castro's support in Cuba and Castroism throughout Latin America. They were wrong on both counts. The quarantine and the Soviet arms build-up in Cuba were also regarded as provocative acts and grave threats to world peace.

The Student Peace Union's agenda does not end there. It is achieving a just and lasting peace. Withdrawal of foreign military bases by all countries under UN supervision is but another means for reaching their goal.

A U.S. withdrawal from Greece and Turkey, coupled with a Soviet exit from Cuba, would suit them best. But if such a deal was made by Washington at the expense of one of its allies, the question, therefore, likely to arise in every allied capital would be:

If the State Department will resolve the Cuban crisis at the expense of Greece or Turkey, what will it do if Berlin, or Paris, or perhaps even London is threatened?

The events of the past few weeks did show us, however, that Mr. Khrushchev staged a military retreat from the Western Hemisphere when he was confronted with American military force. The nuclear bases are being dismantled and it appears that the world's balance of power is being maintained, although the student peace demonstrators might not like the means by which the balance is being kept.

The U.S. has little craving for violent student demonstrations having seen from the sidelines much of their evil results in Asia and South America.

However, the means of picketing as practiced by the undergraduate demonstrators from Michigan State in Washington, a long way from the mass coercion that subverts the democratic process.

The students to worry about are those who do not care about anything, not the ones who have a conviction and stand by even though we might disagree with the conviction.

It is good to find students debating what kind of policies are most beneficial for the University, country or world, and accepting casually all the ideas of their elders.

size and it seems as if the police force has been increased to accommodate the overflow. This poses a real problem for those of us who must drive to campus.

As an example, the other morning, I found the pay lots and the afore-mentioned free lot full. I parked on the road which provides access to the free lot. This road, which at present leads nowhere, is not posted. Several other people must have found themselves in a like situation for several automobiles were parked on the road. Later, I found a parking violation tag on my automobile.

My query is how the police determine which areas are not designated for parking. I believe that it would help if they informed the student body. At present, it seems as if receiving a parking violation is often at the whim of the officer on duty. My hat is off to our boys in blue. After all, it sometimes requires quite a bit of creative interpretation to find sufficient reason to dole out parking violation. I, for one, would appreciate a little advance warning about new areas to the University to inform about the legality of parking new areas either by posting the areas or by publishing their decision in the paper for all to read. Since parking seems to be a game played by the MSU traffic force, how about giving the players an equal break by publishing the rules.

Harriers Cop Big Ten Championship

State's harriers did it as they triumphed in the Big Ten cross country championship at Iowa City, Iowa, Monday. The Spartans were 25 points ahead of their nearest competitor, Wisconsin 83, Illinois 114, Ohio State 114, Indiana 129, and Minnesota 139.

The harriers went into the meet with their worst regular season record under Coach Fran Dittich, and were rated as contenders mostly from force of habit.

But no one -- except Dittich and his seven-man squad -- really thought the Spartans would return to the form which brought them nine titles in 11 years.

State had no particular individual standouts; the whole team stood out. Coach Dittich described it as, "the best team race we have had in a long time."

The first four State runners to score were bunched so closely that only 22 seconds separated them. They took four of the first eight places.

Pacing the Spartan assault was sophomore Jan Bowen who finished third in 20:09. Following him were senior co-captains Roger Humbarger and Don Castle.

Humbarger took fifth in 20:24 and Castle was seventh in 20:26. Sophomore Mike Kalnes was the fourth State runner over the line as he ran a 20:31 to take eighth.

Abbot Wins Championship

Abbot Hall won the all-University women's IM swimming championship Thursday. The Abbot team scored 37 points to 36 for Off-Campus and North Case.

Navy Coach, 12-Foot Net Headline Basketball Clinic

Ben Carnevale, head basketball coach at the U.S. Naval Academy, will be a headliner at the 10th annual Basketball Coaches Clinic here Friday and Saturday.

He will team with Fordy Anderson, MSU's cage coach, to provide more than 400 high school and college coaches from Michigan and surrounding states with the latest thinking on offensive and defensive play.

In his 17 years as Navy coach, Carnevale has never had a losing basketball team. Including his two years at the University of North Carolina, his overall record is a sparkling 272 wins and 126 losses.

EAGLE SHIRTMAKERS PROUDLY ANNOUNCES A DACRON/COTTON OXFORD THAT WILL NOT PILL!

OH, given time a short-necked man with a heavy beard could pill any oxford cloth, they're that soft. But until just recently even Little Lord Fauntleroy could have pillled a DACRON/cotton oxford cloth shirt with one curl tied behind him. Which is why we didn't put out any of them. ★ Sure you know what pillled means; it's when the fabric gets roughed up into little pills. ★ Well, Du Pont has a brand new type DACRON that resists pilling. It came out about a year ago, but we waited until Greenwood Mills, the weavers who make our cotton oxfords produced a DACRON/cotton oxford they were proud of: a really luxuriant lofted oxford. And that brings us up to now. We are making Eagle Shirts of this new material in both a Tabsnap collar and a button-down collar. At about $8.50.

★ Tabsnaps, you may recall, are Eagle tab collars that need no collar buttons.
 Our button-down collars also have a property highly prized by the toney cognoscenti*: a sort of sloppy bulge. We used to call this "flare" until we noticed everybody else was too. Besides, it really isn't a flare, it's a sloppy bulge, but it's ours and we like it. ★ So if you want a drip-dry oxford shirt that won't pill perhaps you'd better drop a note to Miss Afferbach (she says forget the footnote) and ask her where in your town you can find Eagle Shirts. This is because many fine stores prefer to put their own labels in our shirts; very flattering, but tough on Eagle eyed shoppers. Write her care of Eagle Shirtmakers, Quakertown, Pa.

*Du Pont's trademark for its polyester fiber. That wouldn't be a bad name for an Italian fashion consultant. Say, do you suppose we could get Miss Afferbach to change her name to Toni Cognoscenti and ...

Future ATL Head Sez Speling Ain't The Onli Important Thing

By Sue Fry
Of The State News

An American Thought and Language professor thinks the university should concern itself with more important topics than technical matters, such as spelling.

T. Ben Strandness, who will take over in December as chairman of the ATL department, made his comment after a story by George E. Sokolsky, a nationally syndicated columnist, was published.

In his daily column, "These Days," Sokolsky said that the product of many high schools and colleges today is defective, because students are not taught to spell, read and write the English language.

"Many academic people," Strandness said, "confuse literacy with the ability to spell Cincinnati."

Many of the best writers are poor spellers, while many of the best spellers are poor writers, Strandness said.

He cited many of today's academic journals as being poorly written. They employ obscurity, jargon, or the passive voice, even though they are written by persons who are considered to have a basic awareness of the language.

"Good writing should make you feel that you would like to be in the writer's company," he said.

Commenting on the aspects of liberal education, Strandness said that a university like Michigan State has a double obligation:

"Our university is obligated to produce both professionally educated people and liberally educated people."

"The graduate has to butter his bread, but he also has to live a full life," he explained.

The lack of a liberal education, Strandness feels, amounts to nothing more than training in a specific area.

"A concentration on technicality is like concentrating on carpentry instead of architecture," he said.

The liberally educated person, Strandness believes, is characterized by awareness. This awareness should be historical, social, linguistic, religious, and artistic.

"The hope of a course like ATL is that students will find awareness in an area and continue their interest in it," he said.

This means, he explained, that the object of liberal education or progress is not so much to supply the student with liberal education, but to supply him with the awareness he needs to continue his education.

"In a free society, liberal education is necessary, as it is not in a fascist society," Strandness said. "A fascist society is satisfied as long as its people are good workers and slaves to the government."

He cited Woodrow Wilson's comment that good education should make young people as much unlike their parents as possible.

"This statement may go a little far," Strandness said, "but those who are well educated are independent. They will never be servants to a master."

Predict Complete College Integration

WASHINGTON (U) - Two Negro college presidents predicted Monday that all Southern colleges and universities eventually will be integrated, including those which now have an all-Negro student body.

Such integration is well under way in the border states, they said, getting started in the deep South states, and is inevitable even in such strongholds of opposition as Mississippi.

President Rufus B. Atwood of Kentucky State College in Frankfort, and President Felton B. Clark of Southern University, Baton Rouge, La., said integration itself does not spell the doom of the all-Negro college.

Negro colleges will survive or fall on only one issue, they said: the quality of the programs they offer.

The two presidents are attending the annual meeting of the Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges.

Atwood said that integration in reverse—the enrollment of white students in predominantly Negro colleges—is a little recognized trend in the direction of complete integration.

Since the early 1950's, he said, the student body at West Virginia State College has changed from all Negro to 75 percent white; Lincoln University in Jefferson City, Mo., a Negro land grant college, is now about one-third white; and his own institution, Kentucky State, has 80-90 white students in a total enrollment of 868.

Clark said there are now 650 Negro students attending previously all white colleges and universities in Louisiana, "probably more than any other state in the deep South." There still are no white students at Southern University, he said.

Both men said that college integration must eventually come to Mississippi, where the government-enforced admission of Negro James Meredith to the University of Mississippi sparked rioting.

"I can't see anything else but complete compliance by every state with the decision of the Supreme Court," Atwood said.

"Integration is going to happen in colleges everywhere," Clark said. "Naturally it will be slower in some states than others."

As integration comes to pass, both college presidents said, there will be increasing competition for the brightest Negro high school graduates.

WASHINGTON--Sen. Philip A. Hart, admitting he was disappointed over the victory of George Romney in the gubernatorial election, said Saturday Gov. John B. Swainson's courage contributed to his defeat.

Hart said Swainson had the courage to veto the Bowman bill, which made illegal a Detroit tax on non-residents, even though he knew it was "politically bad."

The senator urged that Republicans and Democrats work together and solve the problems that confront them.

Midway, a vital naval air station despite its 1.9-square-mile size, is the home of some 280,000 albatrosses.

To Midwestern Farmers Election Proves Favorable

The recent election proved favorable to midwestern farmers who didn't want to be restricted on their corn production.

The backers of the proposed 1964 farm bill weren't elected this year.

According to the October 13 New York Times and D. E. Hathaway, professor of agricultural economics, farmers strongly objected to the farm bill because it restricted feed grain production.

But the price supports contained in the bill weren't so harshly criticized, both sources agreed.

Hathaway said that the 1964 Kennedy administration farm bill directs the secretary of agriculture to support prices and restrict production to reduce surpluses.

"The bill, if passed, would have given farmers the choice of voting for either mandatory acreage controls or sharply lowered prices," he said.

Voluntary, rather than compulsory controls are offered by the present farm bill.

"Those opposing the bill, particularly Republicans, have come out on top in the election, while those favoring it have lost," Hathaway said.

"I think the farmers would have voted it down, anyway," he added.

Feurig Links Student Suicide With Inability To Organize

Superior college students are more likely to commit suicide than those students with average or below average grades. According to Dr. James S. Feurig, director of University health services.

"When a student takes too many credits it may result in a sudden drop in grades," he said. "With fewer credits there is less pressure, more time for each subject, and suicidal tendencies will be reduced."

Feurig said lack of organization on the part of the student is one of the chief causes of anxiety and frustration. Too much frustration and anxiety may lead to attempted suicide.

"The day must be organized much the same as that of a working individual," he said.

"For example, students must plan a definite time for getting up in the morning. They should spend a certain part of each day studying in an organized manner."

He said that the problem of student suicide at the University is not as serious as in other colleges.
