Investigation Indicates Campaign Tactics Legal

An Elections Committee investigation into alleged "unfair campaign tactics" at the student referendum March 7, has shown that the referendum was legal, Election Commissioner Jim Billings, East Lansing senior, said.

What's Ahead For AUSG?

The proposal to reorganize Student Congress into a student senate was defeated by a substantial majority last Tuesday.

we felt -- and still feel -- that it was AUSG's best hope of becoming an effective organization which would work in the most efficient and representative manner to promote student interests.

AUSG leaders and others who backed the plan did not plan an extensive campaign to push it because they didn't expect much opposition. The opposition used completely legal means to present its side -- but the sheet placed in student mailboxes was filled with half-truths and false implications about the proposal.

The opposition did have a valid point, however. Perhaps the measure was pushed through too fast, regardless of the time spent in formulating it. Student Congress and the student body as a whole needed more time to discuss and debate the plan.

The question now is what's next for Student Congress and AUSG. Jim Barnes, AUSG President, strongly backed the plan. He is now attempting to close ranks and try again--this time through internal reform propositions, progress the face-lifting it needs.

As we see it, the reforms needed are primarily those which were embodied in the student senate plan: a cut in the number of representatives, and some method of boosting the quality of representatives.

As the University enrollment continues to grow, some adjustment in representation will have to be made. The base now is one representative for every 300 students. The present body is so large that it is unwieldy, and ends up as a "Wednesday night debating society" much of the time. In addition, it is a problem now to get representatives to fill the vacancies and to attract qualified students to the posts.

We hope that Student Congress will follow the example set by Barnes and begin immediately to work on plans for internal reform.

Counseling Center Overflows With Term-End Rush

By RON SOLAVE
Of The State News

MSU's Counseling Center is bombarded annually by over 5,000 students seeking help. According to Director Rowland Pierson, a new counseling position has not been created at the center for seven years.

"The number of students has increased every year and we are in somewhat of a bind," Pierson said.

"Those 5,000 students represented a true cross-section of the University. They came from all classes and included graduate students. There were students on academic probation and students in the Honors College. There was no one particular group that had more problems than anyone else," observed Pierson. "The center is truly an all-University operation."

A term-end rush puts pressure on the Counseling Center that sometimes forces students to wait as long as two weeks to see a counselor, Pierson said.

In the last three weeks of every term the center has experienced difficulty meeting the demand.

The term-end rush is due to mounting anxiety over academic problems that arise late in the term and to the fact that students have a natural tendency to put things off, Pierson said.

There is a problem in trying to meet the demands of the students with the available staff. Full time staff at the center consists of 16 counselors, 15 of whom hold Ph. D. degrees. In addition to the full-time staff, the center employs the services of 12 part-time Ph. D. candidates from the University. These people work directly under the supervision of the full-time staff.

Half of the employees of the counseling staff have degrees in psychology and the rest hold guidance and education degrees.

The center, under the supervision of the Dean of Students, works with students who have emotional difficulties up to the level that it would be more appropriate for them to have further psychological help.

A student makes an appointment either by calling or seeing a receptionist at the center, located on the second floor of Student Services. In most cases an appointment must be made and then the student usually must wait two or three days to see a counselor.

There is a counselor on duty to help students who only require a few minutes of aid or who have extremely serious problems of an emergency nature.

Pierson said the main aim of the center is to supplement the academic life at MSU.

"We have a strong feeling that a young man or woman, who is a king of worry, concern, conflict, or unresolved problem interferes with a student's best academic performance. Therefore, anything within reason the University can do to help students resolve these obstacles facilitates the academic goals of the university."

Counseling interviews are the main method used by the center. These interviews may be supplemented by tests of resources from the center's occupational information library.

Pierson stressed that tests are used only if the student and the counselor feel that they would give additional help.

Interviews, according to Pierson, give the student "an opportunity to express, in strict confidence, anything of concern to him, in his own way."

Letters To The Editor Northern Michigan, Cures, Etc.

To the Editor:

In recent issues of the State News there have been many comments on Dr. David Dickson's leaving MSU. Dr. Dickson is said by some to be leaving because the academic atmosphere is not what it should be at State. This may be so, for it is granted that MSU may leave something to be desired by many people, especially in regards to academic atmosphere.

There are a few of us at State, however, who wonder if Dr. Dickson knows what he's getting into at Northern.

I spent a year at Northern and certainly would agree that Northern is lucky to get a man of Dr. Dickson's caliber. Whether or not Northern can satisfy Dr. Dickson's admirable hopes for a better academic atmosphere is a question that I cannot help but ask.

The chances are that Dr. Dickson's arrival at Northern will be welcomed by many of the students. They will be convinced that it's really great that he has come to Northern and they will be well aware that he is said to be leaving MSU for the reason stated.

Dickson is the new head of the department of language and literature will be discussed briefly in the cafeteria of the new student union where the students spend a lot of their time. The conclusion of the discussions will almost undoubtedly be that Northern is a better school than MSU, especially in respect to academic outlook. This conclusion will be discussed in the new field house, in Northern's splendid dormitory system and on the way to the one classroom building (old) of which the library is an annex.

Unfortunately, Northern's physical plant seems to reflect the attitude of the students there. Sports and fun come first and eventually classes or the academic topics may get some consideration.

Those of us who know Northern wish Dr. Dickson luck if he is hoping for an improvement in the academic atmosphere there. He's almost certain to need lots of it.

Merits of Corps

To the Editor:

Last week the State News ran articles dealing with Dr. David Gottlieb's proposal for a student corps that would aid underprivileged children. We have been discussing this proposal in a class that I have with Dr. Gottlieb.

This program seems to be meritorious in at least four aspects. First, it would aid the culturally deprived children. Even if the student helps do no more than provide companionship and show genuine interest in the child, it would be a step in the right direction.

Second, this program would aid school teachers. Due to their deprivation, these children are often school problems. If they are helped through this program, they will, presumably, be less of a problem.

Third, this program would provide practical experience in dealing with both children and adults. This experience would be of immeasurable aid to anyone who plans to teach or deal with people.

The program will alleviate many community problems, such as juvenile delinquency. In this sense it is a true civic endeavor for bettering the community.

This is a strong vote in favor of this program, which I feel will better our country.

Survey Shows Buying Habits Of Married Students

By FRED LEVINE
Of The State News

Families living in on-campus married housing units spend more than $2 million a year on food, according to a recently-completed State News survey.

Researchers talked to 246 families, which comprise more than 10 per cent of the total units.

The survey showed that 44 per cent of the families spend between $15 and $20 a week on groceries and 19 per cent spend more than $20 a week.

The three University married housing areas -- Spartan Village, Cherry Lane and University Village -- house some 4,000 people. According to the survey only 37 per cent of the families do not have children, while 27 per cent of the families have at least one child, and 36 per cent have more than one child.

The State News survey reinforced one taken by the D.P. Brothers Advertising Agency in the spring of 1962. It again proved that over 97 per cent of the families read the State News daily. This is the highest readership of any university newspaper surveyed.

Who does the shopping for the family? In almost 60 per cent of the units, husband and wife shop together, while in less than 40 per cent of the homes the housewife must carry the shopping bags alone.

Most families were concerned with the parking facilities of supermarkets. The survey showed that 241 of the homes (97 1/2 per cent) had at least one car. These families felt it necessary to be able to park close to a market, especially when the wife does the shopping alone.

Price and selection are the two main factors that influence 63 per cent of the families in their supermarket buying preferences, the survey showed. Trading stamps drew 18 per cent. The tremendous growth of trading stamps in the past few years apparently has a definite bearing on buying motives, according to the survey.

Almost 30 per cent of the families do their shopping on Wednesday. A large percentage of these shoppers choose that day because several supermarkets give double trading stamps on Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday are the next most popular shopping days.

Surveys in other college communities have also shown selection and price as leading factors. Families in married housing devote much of their total budget to foodstuffs and are keenly aware of food prices. This may indicate a special need for price selling in advertising, in the stores, or even in supermarket windows.

Need More Aid

To the Editor:

I support completely the efforts of those involved in seeking aid for the starving and impoverished Negroes of Mississippi.

One would hope, however, that this campaign will not be considered in any manner as a cure. The plight of the southern Negro is but a symptom of a profound imbalance in the distribution of the wealth and resources of our society.

It is fine to ask why surplus foods rotting in government storage bins cannot be given to these people.

But why should that food not already be in their hands instead of being left to decay? The position of these southern Negroes is indicative of some of the profound contradictions that exist in the arrangements of our economic institutions and the distribution of their rewards.

Bias And Prejudice

Tears Minus Blood 'n' Sweat

Paul Schnitt

A few weeks ago I received a mimeographed letter from the Class Council. It was headed "Dear Senior:"

"As the time of graduation draws near, we feel a heightened awareness of the ties that have bound us throughout our undergraduate years..."

I stopped reading. I couldn't go on. My eyes were moist -- if someone was holding a raw onion three inches away.

I did, indeed, feel a heightened awareness -- but not of the ties that have bound the seniors together during our undergraduate years.

On the contrary, I felt a heightened awareness because I was sitting in the top row of Spartan Stadium's upper deck.

You ask why I was sitting up there at the end of winter term. Well, I was sitting up there because it was the only dry spot on campus, the rest being submerged under water. And according to Boyle's Seventeenth Law of Survival, the desire to head for Spartan Stadium's upper deck is directly proportional to the water level on the ground.

Or put it another way, the desire to be in the upper deck is inversely proportional to one's ability to swim. And since I habitually take a life preserver into the bathtub with me, I figure row 140 to be the safest place until Noah's Ark sailed by.

This time of year, of course, the great melting season of the giant Michigan glaciers succumb to the warming sun and MSU students canoe to class.

Unfortunately, the problem is inherent in the flatness of terrain and will never be solved -- not even by the Educational Development Project whose only solution, it is rumored, will be installing educational TV in every canoe.

What people don't realize is that this problem could have been avoided a century ago when Sen. Justin Morrill was just trying to have a Congressional act named after him.

His dream, as we all know, was realized. And the choice of places for the first land grant school was narrowed down to two: a fertile plain east of Lansing or the side of Mount Rushmore.

The East Lansing area was chosen simply because some of the sighted beanie sculptor claimed the mountain and intended to chisel four heads out of the rock. He had three figures in mind -- was waiting for Teddy Roosevelt to be born and become a great American President so that he could carve his head in stone.

A foursome. Besides, the beanie had no idea what Teddy would look like.

All of which returns us to the Senior Class Council letter which brought tears of nostalgia to my eyes -- tears which trickled down my cheeks and dropped into the water below, raising the level another inch.

Memories, memories! How close we seniors were through those four years. At the football games we sat together, arms around shoulders, chanting our class song.

What class spirit!

Those intangible ties which drew together classmates such as precocious 19-year-olds and 27-year-old Korean War veterans, the common interests which drew together history and mechanics engineering majors; the warmth and mutual friendship expressed between the sororities and fraternities on the one hand and the dependents on the other.

I got out my typewriter and invited all my senior classmates to my room for that final get-together if and when the water disappeared.

It took me nine days to type out all the invitations. But it was worth it.

I put the invitations into corked bottles and tossed them into the water.

Sure will be great to meet with the gang, sit around and talk about the good old times we've had together.

On second thought, maybe I should have invited them to Spartan Stadium abode where we could all feel a heightened awareness.

Registrar Microfilms Every Student Record

Microfilm is in wide use today as a method of storing a vast amount of information in a small space.

It has another, equally important function: the protection of records. The registrar's office is now planning the permanent recording of every student who has been admitted to the University in its history.

Although this will alleviate a problem in the vault, a more important purpose at this time is records security," Registrar, said.

King's registrar, said, "The University is one part of a three-pronged approach to records protection. Other aspects of the program are simplifying record keeping and a schedule for destroying records.

In the event of a fire, the most serious threat would be water, which conceivably could seep into the vault. But the chances of the water's doing much damage are narrow because there are floor drains, King said.

The permanent student records date back to 1857, when the first class entered MAC. For the first 42 years the records were kept in ledgers, and then the master card was devised.

Approximately 130,000 cards for 1900 through 1957 have already been microfilmed.

When the microfilming is completed, the 50 roles of 16 mm film can be stored in an area the size of a desk drawer. The project was started about four weeks ago, after an old microfilm machine was replaced to accommodate the 10 by 12-inch cards.

The microfilm will serve mainly as a safety factor. If the original cards were destroyed, they could be duplicated from the film.

The originals will continue to be used for transcripts, King said his office annually receives requests for about 25,000 transcripts from students and graduates.

"We would need additional equipment to use the microfilm for this purpose," he said. "We really don't have the volume to justify that cost."

Income Subject To Reductions

Students' income is being withheld tax deductions to a ruling from the Internal Revenue.

The University is obligated to the withholding tax from the graduate student performing research work.

According to the ruling, the amount received by students for research performed on a regular basis, which a university contracts to perform for a student, are compensation for services of the student.

Such amounts cannot be considered scholarships or fellowships because the research is used for credits toward a degree according to the ruling.

Wright Home Built For Art Profs

In 1940 the neighborhood children called it "the house of the '50's." In 1963 it was referred to as "the house of the '70's." This is the best way to describe the home of Misses Alma Goetsch and Kathrine Winckler.

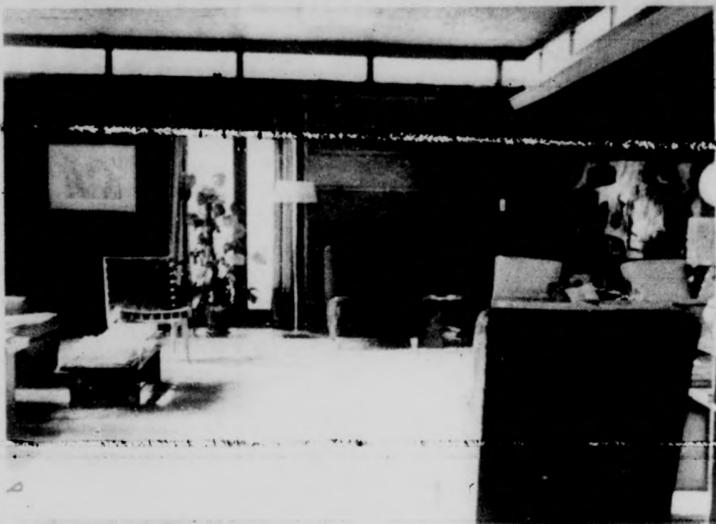

In 1939 the two women decided they wanted a work of art especially designed for living, and felt world famous architect Frank Lloyd Wright was perfect for the task.

The house, located on Hulett Road in Okemos, was originally one of a seven house complex, and is considered one of Wright's best. It was also Wright's favorite "small house."

The Winckler-Goetsch home has a large living room with ranges of glass doors on the entrance side and long vertical windows in the back.

The main roof slab extends over the entrance to provide shelter for an automobile. Wright thought a car, unlike a horse, didn't have to be stabled.

The house was the first in the Lansing area to use radiant heating, from pipes built into the rock balast floor. Wright detested the sight of radiators and air ducts.

and decided Wright was just the one to design it for them. The house is on Hulett Rd. in Okemos.

Money Talks Loudly; Hockey Players Listen

By GARY RONBERG
Of The State News

State's hockey squad had its ups and downs this year, finishing with an 11-12 record.

WCHA, so there were more low points than high ones from a conference standpoint.

Criticism of State's ice squad reached its peak immediately after the Spartans absorbed their second straight 6-2 loss to Michigan Tech here Jan. 26.

"How can a little school like Tech come down here and lick us like that twice in a weekend," many fans groaned. "You'd think from a school of 27,000 students someone could scrape up a pretty good hockey team."

The money talks loudly in simple terms. Money talks, it talks to hockey players on their way to Michigan Tech just as it does to football stars signing MSU letters.

The teams that consistently fight for the WCHA title—Denver, North Dakota and Michigan Tech—all offer anywhere from 12 to 15 scholarships to new players each year.

Michigan State offers four. Michigan and Minnesota are in the same boat.

"It's pretty tough to coax a kid into coming to Michigan State when Denver is holding a full ride in front of his nose," MSU Coach Amo Bessone said.

"Here we have to divide our scholarships up so that we can give most players a little financial help."

Bessone pointed out that Denver's scholarship situation is not on a par with Michigan Tech.

"About 10 of the players on their varsity roster right now won't even make next year's team," he said. "Their freshmen squad is so good it beats the varsity in practice."

Denver, the New York Yankees of the WCHA, is in Boston this weekend representing the West in the NCAA finals. Next year the Pioneers could be hard up for Big Ten schools to compete with.

"We're dropping Denver from our schedule next season," Bessone said. "Michigan is contemplating the same action and Minnesota doesn't play them now."

"It's silly for us to play a team of that caliber—they ruin us for games with teams more our speed."

Hockey could be a real money-maker here if it were given a chance. The Spartans averaged nearly 2,000 fans per game at the dilapidated MSU ice arena—and had a losing record to boot!

By contrast, Minnesota pulled 70,000 into beautiful Williams Arena for 13 home dates, an average of 5,300, and the Gophers are good, but not great.

Baseball, Golf Swing South For Spring

By STEPHEN J. BROWN
Of The State News

EDITORS NOTE: This is the last of a two part series on spring sports.

State's baseball team last year was all hit and no pitch. The chances of this year's squad depends a great deal on how well the sophomore pitchers perform.

The infield is pretty well set. Letterman Mike Chiljean at shortstop and Denny Ketcham at second base will combine to give State a sharp keystone combination.

First base is a battle between right-handed Sam Calderone and left-handed hitting Jerry Sutton, who carried a big bat for State last year.

Third base is the biggest question mark. John Hines and Bill Billinger are battling for the position. Coach John Kobs might shift Calderone from first to third if neither Hines nor Billinger proves satisfactory.

The outfield has a returning senior letterman and three returning juniors. Jeff Abrecht is the returning junior, and Dan Costello, Jay Bach and Joe Porrevecchio are the returning juniors.

Mike Barnett, Bob Mamere, and Norm Honke will provide bench strength for the Spartans.

The Spartans have great depth behind the plate. There are six men battling for the catching spot. Lettermen George Azar and Wade Deal are the leading candidates, while Paul Turngate has been making a good showing. These men are being pushed by sophomores Gary Lytle, Dale Peters, and Larry Lawley.

The mound staff is the chief concern of Coach Kobs. He has only two returning lettermen, Jack Nutter and John Aquino are the two veteran hurlers.

Nutter is considered the best pitcher on the squad. His best pitch is his fast curve, he has a fair fast ball which he throws right-handed. He relies on an even mixture of curves and slow stuff with an occasional fast ball.

Fighting it out for the third starting spot are veteran Doug Miller and sophomores Jerald Behn, William Collins, Doug Doherty, John Edward, Dennis Erickson, and Carl Sabing.

The squad is in good shape now and has been working out since the middle of January.

The team will face its first trial at Camp Lejeune on March 22. They will open their Southern swing there with a three game set, then move to Ithaca, Fort Lee, University of Virginia, University of Richmond, and George Washington University.

The regular season gets under way against Albion on April 13. MSU is looking for an improvement over last year's fifth place finish in the Big Ten.

The team to beat is Michigan which has lost only two men from last year's championship squad. Ohio State has a highly touted team and Minnesota looms as a darkhorse.

The Spartans' chances of taking the Big Ten Title rest on the shoulders of the pitching staff.

The outlook for the Spartan golf team is not too promising this spring. Dan Townsend and Charles Mendell, two of the Spartans' best golfers will not be able to participate.

The team has had a seventy two hole play-off among its members to see which of the men will go on the twelve day southern trip which starts March 19.

Phil Marston, a junior transfer student led the squad with a 303 score. Juniors Dick Marr and Ronald Hartman finished close together as Marr shot a 311 and Hartman a 312.

John Hunter, another junior shot 314 and Doug Schwartz, a sophomore 324 while Bill MacDonald will round out the traveling squad with a 325.

Chandler Introduces Legislation To Ban Detroit Lions TV Blackout

The Detroit Lion's football "blackout" of televised games may be a thing of the past. And if so a large part of the credit will go to a freshman State Representative by the name of Paul M. Chandler, R-Wayne.

Television and professional football have been at odds for a long time all over the nation, but the Michigan legislature has taken a step that may finally give the non-season pass holders a break.

Chandler has put before the House Committee on General Taxation a bill to put a 10 percent tax on all admission tickets to professional football games. A second and separate provision to the bill is the waiving of the tax if a local station.

The interpretation of the meaning of local stations means that the game must be televised at the time it is played from a transmitter located 25 miles or less from the place where the game is played.

Chandler outlined his argument for the bill:

"Approximately 70 per cent of all seats sold to Detroit professional football games are sold as season tickets at a price of $70 or $80 a pair.

"They are void of all state taxes, where many other more essential items are taxed.

"The balance of the seats are undesirable behind posts, in the bleachers, inconveniently located, or standing room. Because these seats might be hard to sell, if a fan were to be offered the choice of home television, the management has chosen to cut off television to some, but not all Michigan taxpayers."

With his argument on behalf of the television viewer, Chandler pointed out an interesting fact concerning a responsibility that professional football has to the state.

"The sport is made possible, in part, by contributions from the public at large—public financing of the 'farm system,' use of free space in the newspapers, use of the public's radio and TV channels, etc."

He said: "Professional football games are regulated by police paid from public funds; their customers travel public highways and freeways; they use public utilities; their promotion and advertising is made possible by the use of public radio and TV.

"And as a curious aside—the same newspapers which have assailed this bill, House Bill 478, voluntarily and readily give great amounts of free advertising space to professional football games. In the Detroit area alone, during the season, this free advertising space would amount in dollar value to $20,000 per week.

"Newspapers, voluntarily assisting the professional football promotion, in turn are assisted by public funds. Special postal regulations bestowing low rates for mailing newspapers are one example.

Public taxes make this possible. Special labor laws for newsboys are another example of public subsidy. There are others."

Chandler remarked that in a press discussion it was contended that "how the Lions choose to televise their games is their business," and that their freedom in this area is not subject to review or legislation.

He refuted this: "The fact is television waves, used by private stations, are the property of the people at large.

"Neither the Detroit Lions, nor the National Football League own the TV channels. They are the property of the tax-payers."

"When the public believes that the policy for the use of these airways is not in their best interest, or discriminatory, they have every legal right to object through their elected representatives."

If this bill goes through, it will be the first of this type of legislation in the country.

Illini, Bulldogs In Regionals Here

Winners Here For NCAA

JOHN VAN GIESON
The State News

Illinois and Mississippi State will be matched with the Maroons. They hail from the small town of Starkville in colorfully named Oktibeha County.

The Bulldogs will be making their first appearance in the national meet. They have had to overcome the force of tradition featuring five men averaging double figures. Another Illinois was 19-5 and the Bulldogs were 21-5.

Dave Downey led the Illini in scoring this season with 473 points an average of just under 20. He also topped the team in rebounds with 236.

Bill Burwell, perhaps the team's most improved player at the season's close finished with 371 points for a 15.3 average. He stands 6-foot-9 and will be Burwell could become involved in one of the most interesting man-to-man duels in the tourney if Bowling Green survives its opening game. The Falcons are paced by 6-10 star Nate Thurmond, who is one of the countries outstanding rebounders. Burwell is no slouch in that department, himself, with better than 200 rebounds.

The two other Illini starters

Michigan State and Syracuse will meet on the gridiron in 1968, Athletic Directors Lew Andrews of Syracuse and Biggie Munn of Michigan State announced Monday.

The game will be played here Sept. 21. It is a one-year agreement.

Syracuse, perennially a ranking Eastern independent, and Michigan State will get together in football for the first time in 16 years. In the last previous meeting, Munn's national championship 1952 team smashed the Orangemen, the Eastern collegiate champions that year, 48-7.

The schools have played eight times beginning in 1917. State leads the series 5-3.

The Los Angeles Angels have yet to produce a .300 hitter. They have been in the American League two seasons.

Illinois will be looking for help from Bill Burwell (above) and Bill Small when they go after the NCAA regional basketball crown here this weekend.

with double figure averages are again Bob Starnes with 13 plus and Tal Brody with 10.

All are seniors with the exception of Brody, a sophomore. The probable starting lineup is Downey and Starnes, forwards; Burwell, center and Small and Brody at the guards.

Two more sophomores provide Coach Harry Combes crew with talented relief. They are 6-10 Skip Thoren and 6-6 Bogle Redmond. If Illinois gets into height difficulties, fans can expect to see the "twin towers" offense featuring Burwell and Thoren in a double pivot.

Mississippi State's team goes

Joe Dan Gold with 13.4, Doug Hutton at 10.3 and Stan Brinker at the same figure also have scored in double figures.

The Bulldogs equal Illinois in likely number of starting seniors. Forwards Mitchell and Gold and guard Stroud all are seniors and 6-7 Bobby Shows, probable starter at center, is too. If Shows doesn't start, the 6-5 Brinker will man the pivot.

Guard Aubrey Nichols and Richie Williams, who has only been eligible for seven games, are the top Maroon substitutes.

Mississippi State's seniors have compiled a 64-12 record in three years of varsity competition while terrorizing Dixie in general and the Southeastern Conference in particular.

International Club's Activities Far-Ranging

By JUDY PORTER
Of The State News

The International Club on campus, which is thought by most MSU students to be of interest only to foreign students, includes a wide variety of activities. According to Thomas Castro, president of the International Club, at least one-half of the club's membership are Americans.

The International Center from which the International Club grew was formed in 1944 by Dr. Shao Chang Lee, presently teaching in the department of religion. President John A. Hannah asked Lee to organize the International Center in hopes of drawing more students from different countries to MSU.

Hannah gave the foreign and local students a house, formerly occupied by the Dean of Women, Elizabeth Conrad, to use as a social center. The house was made into the International Center and soon became a home away from home for many foreign students.

By 1945 there were enough students to form a club, and Lee suggested they organize the International Club. After serving seven years as both head of foreign students and director of the International Center, Dr. Lee handed the job over to Donald Gemmel, foreign student advisor.

Today the International Club has 400 members. Its Board of Directors is made up of the presidents of the 11 international organizations on campus.

MSU Isn't Prepared For Attack

MSU was recently cited as an area which is largely unprepared for a nuclear attack.

"The University hasn't seen fit to implement a civil defense program," said Capt. Richard Nicolen, deputy director of the Defense Division of the State Police.

"It is the people who make the decisions at Michigan State who are responsible," he said.

Nicolen explained that in order for the University to get federal support in a civil defense program, buildings must be marked. There has been no attempt to do this, he said.

Richard Bennett, director of the department of Public Safety said that the Army Corps of Engineers has completed a survey of buildings on campus and rated them.

"By October 1962, 48 buildings were approved," he said. Bennett said, however, that the University has not signed a licensing agreement with the Federal government. No marking of the shelters or stockpiling would begin until an agreement has been signed.

"The Civil Defense program here at Michigan State is based upon natural disasters. Present shelter would house 26,225 people," he said. "Our program is based upon the experience of the Flint tornado in 1953," Bennett said. "It got the wheels rolling here and a program geared to natural disasters was developed."

Nicolen's remarks about the University were part of a larger statement in which he charged that the whole Lansing area lags behind the rest of the state in preparing a sound civil defense program.

He cited Flint, Battle Creek, Kalamazoo, Detroit, Grand Rapids and Muskegon as cities which have civil defense programs.

Cooperation and active participation are exemplified by each club during the International Festival held each spring.

The International Festival is the highlight of the year for the campus. Each club displays a booth with articles from the members' native land. A stage show is planned where each club gives a talent show representative of its native country. Prizes are given for the booths and the talent competition.

Each club is well-organized and has an active membership. Members make contributions to their prospective clubs and to the public. Friendship, understanding, native banquets, dancing, singing and informal get-togethers are all a part of the international organization on campus.

Last term the Arab Club invited the United Campus Ministry, affiliates of all the university churches, to an Arabian dinner where Arabian food and music were provided. Art and literature from the Middle East were displayed for the guests.

Chinese Club members participated Jan. 26 in China Night.

Glee Club Plans Tour

Spring vacation will be a time of relaxation for most students, but for members of the Men's Glee Club, it will be a week of travel and singing.

The Glee Club will tour the state, March 20-27, appearing at high schools and auditoriums throughout Michigan.

On March 20, the group will sing at the Coldwater High School and the following night at Homer High School. They will appear at the Almont Congregational Church on March 22, and in St. Clair Shores March 23. The next day will find the Glee Club in Fremont, then at Rockford High School, and the final concert will be at St. Louis High School.

NSF Gives Zoology Grant

The National Science Foundation recently awarded a grant to the department of zoology which will place special equipment in the hands of advanced undergraduates.

The money will aid the purchase of equipment which could not ordinarily be placed at the disposal of undergrads, said Charles S. Thornton, chairman of the zoology department.

The research equipment for teaching was allocated on a priority system. Staff members, post doctoral fellows and graduate students had access to the equipment before undergrads.

This is the night when the members celebrate the Chinese New Year.

The Caribbean Club is the youngest of the International Clubs. It was organized one year ago. The members, who come from the British West Indies, Virgin Islands (American West Indies), Trinidad, Jamaica and Haiti, meet each month to talk and read the newspapers from all the different islands.

Social gatherings and Korean suppers are a regular part of the Korean Club.

The Indian Student Association with its 102 members actively celebrate three Indian functions each year. Independence Day is observed on Aug. 15. Diwali, the festival of lights, is celebrated on Oct. 22 with an Indian banquet, dancing and instrumental music.

Indian Republic Day is celebrated every year on Jan. 26. An Indian dinner and stage show was held at the Peoples Church. Indian instruments were played and displayed in celebration of the day the country became a Republic in 1950.

The Iranian Club will celebrate Nowroz, the Iranian national holiday and the beginning of the new calendar year for the Iranian people, with the Iranian students at the University of Michigan later this month.

One of the most active members of the International Club is the Japanese Club. Membership includes 50 Japanese students.

Grant Enables Farm Education Program

A grant of $304,979 from the W.K. Kellogg Foundation of Battle Creek will enable the Agriculture Economics Department to extend its mass management education program for Michigan farmers.

L.L. Boger, professor and chairman of Agriculture Economics, said intensive educational work with farm families can improve farm management skills and increase the incomes of families participating in this program.

Through his field work of 365 state agriculture agents, this mass management program will directly involve 3,000-6,000 farmers. A comprehensive coding system will provide a common farm management "language" which will improve communication locally, nationally and internationally among agriculture sectors.

Med Technologists Seeking New Blood

Medical technology needs men. As one means of meeting this need, the 25 men enrolled in medical technology have organized the Medical Technologists.

"Many men do not realize the possibilities and the need for capable men in this field," president Jim Osburn, Albion senior, said.

The Association will hold an open house for all men with non-preference majors on April 2. Four medical technology labs will be conducted by professors who will explain the various work and research. Gross anatomy, tissue culture and histology; bacteriology and virology; blood chemistry, blood counts and cutting and staining procedures are the subjects to be covered.

In the future the Association will sponsor speakers and panel discussions to give prospective majors a clear picture of the work of a medical technician. Starting salary is around $5,400 with good pay increases. A medical technician need not worry about a job, Osburn said.

Missed A.F.R.O.T.C.?

Go A.F.O.T.S!

These letters stand for Air Force Officer Training School—a three-month course for those who realize they want to become Air Force officers, but don't have enough school time left to enroll in AFROTC.

We prefer our officers to start their training as freshmen, so we can commission them directly upon graduation. But right now we're accepting applications for another fine way to become an Air Force officer—OTS. We can't guarantee that this program will still be open a year or so from now. As an Air Force officer, you'll be a leader on the Aerospace Team, serving your country while you get a flying headstart on the technology of the future. The U.S. Air Force sponsors one of the world's most advanced research and development programs—and you can be part of it.

If you're within 210 days of graduation, get more information on OTS from the Professor of Air Science.

Well, you won't be getting all that money in one year. You'll be getting some of it each year, at a much lower tax rate. What you should do is put aside a certain amount of it.

1. According to the Department of Labor, you're worth over $350,000 as soon as you get your sheepskin. That's theoretical, of course.

I didn't even know the Department was thinking about me.

I'll take it right on in a long-sleeved shirt. I'll be a millionaire.

2. The way that figure of $350,000 is how much average college graduates earn by the time they graduate.

I'll take it right on in a long-sleeved shirt. I'll be a millionaire.

3. As an Eco major, I feel obliged to tell you what would happen to that bundle. First, Uncle Sam would help himself to about 200 Gs. With the going rate for penthouses, your life's earnings would disappear in one year.

You've ruined my day.

4. Since you'd be worth 22,000 dollars a year for Social Security, you'd have to pay back to your old man an allowance of $22,000 a year.

Pay Fine Or Forfeit Diploma

Six hundred students may not graduate at the end of this term or register for next semester if traffic fines aren't paid. If a student who plans to graduate owes traffic fines, he must pay them by the end of the term or his diploma will be withheld until he does. Students returning spring term will be turned away at registration until the fines are paid. Money received from the payment of traffic tickets goes into the Student Loan Fund.

Spring Vacation Library Hours Set

Battle Of The Bulge

NEW YORK (AP)—Men's waistlines are getting bigger. The average men's belt size has gone up as much as four inches in the past 25 years in some parts of the country, reports Herbert Novick, executive director of the Association of Men's Belt Manufacturers. New England and the Middle Atlantic states, where many corporations have their offices, shows an average belt size of 36 inches compared with 32 a quarter century ago. The South has maintained a trim 32 average, up only one or two inches over the last generation. And the West maintains middle road around the middle with the average belt size measuring 34 inches.

Nothing like playing with the wheelbarrow to vent those pent-up hostilities. This educational recreation is under supervision in the pre-school laboratory located in the home management building.

Florida Tan Will Cost $25

Are you planning on going to Ft. Lauderdale during spring break? If you are one day late for registration, it will cost you $15, two days late will cost $20. Registration is March 25-27. Classes begin March 28. If you want to fill out your registration cards while you are lying on the beach with nothing to do, you may pick up registration packets any time in 106 Administration Building.

Schuller On Inspection Tour Brazil Needs Fast Education

Charles F. Schuller, the University's coordinator for the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) left Saturday for a five week inspection tour in Brazil. "The standard ways of education are much too slow and cumbersome for Brazil's present problems," he said. To handle these problems adequately, the USAID program is designed to teach Brazilian educators how to handle instructional materials to cure Brazil's high illiteracy problem. Schuller said the major problem in Brazilian education is time. Brazil is currently being threatened by a strong Communist movement. To preserve the country's freedom, a quick method of education must be introduced. Many Brazilians go to the USAID headquarters in San Paulo to learn how to operate instructional materials. "The important thing we are trying to do here is make this a Brazilian effort," he said. Schuller said much emphasis must be put on teaching the social and agricultural sciences in Brazil. "These are the areas which need immediate attention," he said. "If we can teach them better methods, their social misfortunes can't help but improve."

Crissy as Busy Schedule

William J.E. Crissy is very much in motion. Crissy, professor of marketing, gave two speeches at a seminar in Chicago to attend a seminar in marketing executives in the steel industry. Crissy will direct a Steel Institute seminar in March. Crissy is a keynote speaker for the Improvement Products Convention. Crissy said, "I am an efficient secretary who track of everything for my busy schedule. I still find time and maintain personal relationships with students. I want my students to feel at home in their class. Anywhere from one to ten students will drop over to see me in my office. I want to find out more about my students than he could in a classroom situation. I want to learn about my students' problems and social conditions. "Then when they come for a class, I want more than that they are a class of 300 students in a lecture hall. Crissy was named the presidency of Perceptual Development Inc., a New York consulting firm. He is one of the founders of the firm. Crissy is co-author of "The Psychology of Selling" series and other sales management publications. He has also written a book on the psychology of selling. Crissy earned his bachelor of science degree at West Chester State University, his masters at the University of North Carolina.

Spartan Stadium Contains Interesting Museum Items

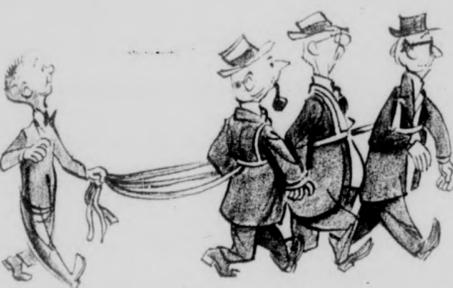

Storage area for the campus museum may contain more interesting items than the museum itself. Michael Ouchynnyk, associate curator of the museum said. Ouchynnyk said the 30,000 items stored on the east side of Spartan Stadium include pictures, clothing, furniture, dolls, model airplanes and "many other fascinating objects." The museum storage has three purposes, Ouchynnyk said. "One is to keep smaller and more valuable items in good condition until they are used at the museum." A second is to supply materials to the University museum when needed, or material to other museums, and to departments here. A third is to supply materials to students. "There are many students who use our facilities when working on research projects," Ouchynnyk said. A girl recently used the women's clothing collection for a paper on 18th century women's clothes. Space is becoming a problem at the museum, Ouchynnyk said. At the moment, items almost reach the roof in many places. "This creates our largest problem since each item must be handled with great care, he said. Museum storage is also suffering from a water problem. After an especially hard rain, overhead leakage results, Ouchynnyk said.

HAIL TO THE DEAN!

Today let us examine that much maligned, widely misunderstood, grossly overworked, wholly dedicated campus figure—the dean. The dean (from the Latin Deanere—to expel) is not, as many think, primarily a disciplinary officer. He is a counselor and guide, a haven and refuge for the troubled student. The dean (from the Greek Deanos—to skewer) is characterized chiefly by sympathy, wisdom, patience, forbearance, and a fondness for homely pleasures like community singing, farina, spell-downs, and Marlboro Cigarettes. The dean (from the German Deinung—to poop a party) is fond of Marlboro for the same reason that all men of good will are fond of Marlboro—because Marlboro is so honest. These Marlboro cigarettes are honestly good, honestly aged to the peak of perfection, honestly blended for the best of all possible flavors. Marlboro honestly comes in two different containers—a soft pack which is honestly soft and a Flip-Top box which honestly flips. You too will flip when next you try an honest Marlboro, which, one honestly hopes, will be soon.

There is not a dry eye in Utah

But I digress. We were learning how a dean helps poor, troubled undergraduates. To illustrate, let us take a typical case from the files of Dean S. Sigafos of the University of Y. (Oh, why be so mysterious? The dean's name is Sigafos and the University is Utah.) Wise, kindly Dean Sigafos was visited one day by a freshman named Walter Agnucourt who came to ask permission to marry one Emma Blenheim, his dormitory laundress. To the dean the marriage seemed ill-advised, for Walter was only 18 years old and Emma was 91. Walter agreed with the dean, but said he felt obligated to go through with it because Emma had invested her life savings in a transparent rainhood to protect her from the mist at Niagara Falls, where they planned to spend their honeymoon. If Walter called off the wedding, what use would the poor woman possibly have for a rainhood in Utah? The wise, kindly dean pondered briefly and came up with a brilliant answer: let Walter punch holes in the back of Emma's steam iron. With steam billowing back at the old lady, she would find a rainhood very useful—possibly even essential. Whimpering with gratitude, Walter kissed the dean's Phi Beta Kappa key and hastened away to follow his advice—and the results, I am pleased to report, were madly successful! Today Emma is a happy woman—singing lustily, wearing her rainhood, eating soft-center chocolates, and ironing clothes twice as happy, so I am told, than if she had married Walter. And what of Walter? He is happy too. Freed from his unwanted liaison with Emma, he married a girl much nearer his own age—Agnes Yucca, 72. Walter is now the proud father—stepfather, to be perfectly accurate—of three fine, healthy boys from Agnes's first marriage—Everett, 38; Wilhelm, 43; and Irving, 55—and when Walter puts the boys on a lead and takes them for a stroll in the park on Sunday afternoon, you may be sure there is not a dry eye in Utah. And Dean Sigafos? He too is happy—happy to spend long, tiring hours in his little office, giving counsel without stint and without complaint, doing his bit to set the young, uncertain feet of his charges on the path to a brighter tomorrow.

We don't say Marlboro is the dean of filter cigarettes, but we're sure it's at the head of the class. Get some soon—wherever cigarettes are sold in all fifty states of the Union.

What Every Student Needs: His Own Library

Books should have a personal library. A discussion held recently at the end of a year over 50 paperbacks, wisely chosen, can constitute a good start for a library.

The group agreed that a responsible college student should definitely have a personal library. By spending as little as a dollar over 50 paperbacks, wisely chosen, can constitute a good start for a library.

"Harpers" and "The New Yorker" and the New York Sunday Times provide useful information and a good background of Textbooks, which students too often sell when the course is over, also are a good beginning for a library -- especially the humanities texts and anthologies.

For any student to be really successful, reading must be stimulated. This is one of the chief reasons small libraries are being put in dorms.

Two books which aid buyers and readers are "The Reader's Adviser and Bookman's Manual" and "Good Reading: A Guide to the World's Best Books."

Shopping Centers Are Cultural Phenomena

Shopping centers have become a cultural phenomena in America in less than a decade, the president of the shopping center trade association said Friday.

They have replaced the "main street" of the American community during the early part of the Twentieth Century, Roy P. Drachman, president of the International Council of Shopping Centers, explained.

"The trend today is to larger and more compact centers, with a greater percentage of local stores and better all-around customer services," he said at a Shopping Center Management Conference at Kellogg Center.

Drachman said centers were originally built around a department store. Today, he said they generally include two department stores and sometimes as many as four.

Other businesses were quick to move in on the retailing boom. It is not unusual for the newest shopping centers to have hospitals, automobile dealerships, hotels, bowling alleys, archery ranges, stockbrokers, bus terminals, traffic courts and veterinarians, he noted.

Adding to the cultural climate in many centers are such attractions, as libraries, community halls, heliports, legitimate and motion picture theaters, churches, chapels and art galleries he said.

"To my knowledge, the only establishments we don't have in shopping centers today are mortuaries."

Even though development has been rapid, he said, more services are being constantly tested.

Some of these new ideas include air conditioned, enclosed shopping malls for year-round comfort, better parking facilities with wider spaces, covered ramps and moving walkways, central credit systems, better traffic control, permanent exhibition halls and underground shelters.

"We'll go as far as the public wants," he said. "Our ultimate goal is to develop stable, complete centers, which will withstand the test of competition and provide the best possible merchandise and services at the lowest cost to the shopper."

Cheering Tryouts Set For Spring

Each Country Has Own Ballet Style

By LESLEY KLEIN Of The State News

Ballet has many forms, and every country has its special style. Miss Krassovska, prima ballerina of the American Dance Company, which presented "American Dances," Monday night in the Auditorium.

"Each country has a different kind of school of dance and style of dance. It is all a matter of taste," said Miss Krassovska.

America's interest in ballet as a form of art has been growing in the past twenty years continued the ballerina. Some colleges have instituted ballet schools and are quite successful.

Nevertheless American ballet tends more toward modern dance away from the classical interpretation. This is an example of the difference in dance styles, Miss Krassovska said.

"The French," said Miss Krassovska "like new creations. Each ballet season produces new dances, new choreography, different patterns some are successful, some are not. But the main thing is that new creations are stressed."

According to Miss Krassovska, Germany leans towards modern dance. "In Europe the best modern dance comes from Germany as opposed to England where the old traditional classical ballet is prevalent," she stated.

Italy, the proverbial land of romance lives up to its name according to Miss Krassovska.

"Italy is very strange. The Italians love romantic ballet. They are classical in outlook. A performance may be very different, but a ballet that is easy to dance but with graceful movements and blue romantic lighting will be appreciated," she explained.

Miss Krassovska said that she believes classical ballet to be fundamental to all types of dance for its technique is more demanding and difficult to perfect. Even skaters take ballet lessons, she said.

Miss Krassovska's co-stars, Ruth St Denis who was to perform her famed East Indian Dance, is ill in New York with the Asian Flu and was unable to come.

Young GOP Battle Continues

Thomas C. Cobb, associate professor of education and adviser to the MSU College Young Republicans, said Monday he has no intention of resigning in response to charges leveled by Fletcher Monningh, club chairman.

Cobb asked Monningh to surrender the chair at a recent meeting because of what he called "undemocratic and unparliamentary tactics."

STUDY ROOM?—The Jane Woodard Poetry Reading Room is a real attention-getter. Here, Gail Popkin, Bethesda, Maryland, freshman, and Thomas Howell, East Lansing, special student enjoy its facilities. The room, donated by Mrs. Jane Woodard, was also designed by her and is entirely original, says C. David Mead, chairman of the English department. It provides a place where students can go to confer with faculty, meet with visiting poets, listen to drama and read poetry.

Say U.S. Pilots Signed Up For Invasion Under Ike

CHICAGO (AP) — The Chicago Sun-Times said Monday night that most of the American pilots who volunteered for the Cuban Bay of Pigs invasion in 1961 were recruited by the Central Intelligence Agency before President Kennedy took office.

In a dispatch from Thomas B. Ross of the newspaper's Washington bureau, the Sun-Times said a partial timetable shows the Eisenhower administration was formally committed to the undercover pilot plan six months before Mr. Kennedy's inauguration.

Metropolitan Lovers Lane

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — A military parking ramp has turned into a modern day lovers lane. An executive of a six-story parking ramp reported that couples have been drying up the ramp to the fifth or sixth levels to do their smooching.

The Sun-Times related that "reliable sources said the Eisenhower administration ordered the recruitment to start in July 1960, and the CIA had signed up 18 American pilots and co-pilots by Nov. 16 of that year."

"Six more fliers signed their contracts on Jan. 26, 1961," the dispatch continued. "That was six days after President Kennedy took the oath of office and, according to reliable sources, well in advance of the time the CIA informed him of the full ramifications of the invasion operation."

The Sun-Times said "the recruitment timetable was advanced as evidence of the extensive Cuban commitments which Mr. Kennedy inherited from the Eisenhower administration."

The Washington dispatch said the President and his brother, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, "had promised support from official U.S. air units." "But it is clear from the recent reports of the CIA recruitment," the story said, "that the government committed itself to air support on an unofficial and undercover basis."

European Vacations Needn't Be Expensive

A European summer vacation isn't as expensive as it sounds. Many Michigan State students are going to Europe to study this summer.

National Mastitis Confab Slated

Richard Brown from the National Animal Disease Laboratory in Ames, Iowa, will be one of the major speakers at the Second Annual National Mastitis Council Meeting today and Wednesday at Kellogg Center. The meeting is being sponsored by the Colleges of Agriculture and Veterinary Medicine. Current research in bovine mastitis will be evaluated by about 125 veterinarians and dairy industry personnel. The meetings will be open to the public.

They slept wherever possible, usually in private homes or open fields. They ate moderately and bought their own food. In short, they "bummed" around Europe. For $1,000 to $1,500, any student can spend a leisure summer in Europe. Tom and Bob found, their way the most inexpensive and educational.
