Annual 4-H Show Monday

10,000 Invade Campus For 4-Day Conclave

By ERIC FILSON
State News Staff Writer

The 48th annual State 4-H Club Show opens on campus Monday. Registration for the event, expected to draw close to 10,000 visitors to the campus, will be held in Brody hall 9 a.m.-12 noon Monday.

"A wide variety of activities will be going on around the campus during the four-day show which ends Thursday," said Russell G. Mawby, assistant director of the extension 4-H Club program.

"Over 1,500 head of livestock will be on display in the concourse of Spartan Stadium. The exhibit areas there are already being set up.

"The animals will leave about the time the football team arrives for fall practice," he said.

"About 3,000 club members and leaders participating in the show will be staying in the Brody group of dormitories. The show is an annual windup of 4-H activities and also the launching of 4-H programs for the coming year."

One feature of the show is three evening programs that will be held in the Auditorium. The programs will have a nautical theme and 4-H club members will act as masters-of-ceremonies.

"A massed chorus of 250 members from 20 counties will perform at the Tuesday evening show," Mawby said. "They will rehearse several times before the presentation in the Auditorium."

A dress revue will be held at 1:30 p.m. Thursday in the Auditorium.

"Over 130 girls from Michigan's 83 counties will participate in the program. The dresses they will wear they made themselves. Everyone is invited to the program," Mawby added.

An auction of livestock will be held in the stadium at the same time.

Exhibits will be held around the campus as part of the show. Home economics exhibits will be on display on the second and third floors of the Union.

"Some of these are already being set up. They were mailed in early," he said.

Other exhibits for poultry, crops and conservation will occupy Demonstration Hall. The basement of the Auditorium will house horticulture exhibits.

"Club members will put on demonstrations in Anthony Hall and Agricultural Engineering," Mawby said.

Other highlights of the show include the horse show on Wednesday south of the Stadium. The program will start at 9 a.m.

"A chicken barbecue will be held in front of Brody hall for club members who have had experience in an outdoor cooking project," Mawby said. "Older members from each county will prepare the feast for approximately 400 people."

"On Wednesday about 80 4-H members will travel to Detroit to study home design and home furnishing," he added.

Mawby explained that the annual show gives 4-H club members a chance to wrap up a year of activities.

"It also gives each member a chance to get individual personal evaluation of his projects."

"A Night of Stars" will climax the National Summer Gymnastics Clinic tonight. The clinic was held this week on campus. "Nearly 100 of the 170 clinic registrants are scheduled to take part in the program," said MSU Gymnastics Coach George Szyplala. "It will be a fast moving hour and a half."

The show will have comedy and variety acts, acrobatic dancers, trampoline stars, and fast tumbling exercises. It features senior champions from the Olympic Development Meet held Monday.

"The Development Meet was held to make the gymnastic students capable of trying out for the Olympic Gymnastic teams," he added.

Jim Arnold, 19, from St. Clair High School, was the outstanding performer in all-around men's competition at the Olympic meet. He also took top honors on the horizontal bar and the still rings.

The women's all-around champion was Pat Cerney, 17, from Dayton, Ohio. All-around competition consists of seven gymnastic events. To win, the performer must be proficient in each of them.

Ren Aure, 18, from St. Clair and an entering MSU freshman, took firsts in tumbling and floor exercise. Tom Sawhook, 17, from Butler, Pa., was first in men's competition on the side horse. John Mason, 16, Toronto, Canada, came in first on the parallel bars.

Dave Shidemantle, Butler, Pa., took honors in vaulting. His high school took top gymnastic honors and finished as Western Pennsylvania Gymnastic Champs.

In women's competition, Janice Richter, 17, Chicago, was first in vaulting; Sally Noble, 16, East Lansing, was first on the balance beam; Barbara Duerkop, 14, Winnetka, Ill., won top honors on the uneven parallel bars; and Nancy Smith, 16, Sycamore, Ill., was first on the trampoline.

Fred Sanders, University of Michigan trampoline champion, and Ted Wilson, one of next year's promising sophomores on the MSU gymnastic team, will be important performers in the gymnastics show.

The program will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the arena of the Men's Intramural Building. Admission is 50 cents for students and $1 for adults.

Last Summer Publication

The State News ceases summer quarter publication with this issue.

Regular daily publication will begin on the first day of classes fall term, Thursday, Sept. 26.

A special Welcome Week issue will be published on Sept. 1. It will be mailed to all entering freshmen and distributed on campus during Welcome Week and registration Sept. 22-26.

Skits Portray Life For Entering Frosh

Entering freshmen at Counseling Clinics in Wilson Hall are introduced to the University through a skit which satirizes nearly every phase of campus life.

"Bookworms," fraternity boys, sorority girls, beatniks, varsity athletes and nearly every other type of student come in for their share of light-hearted jabs from the student resident advisers who put on the skit.

Jill Markley, Dearborn senior, says the skits are "not only fun for the freshmen, but provide them with some real information about MSU." Jill plays the "sophisticated sorority girl."

Sorell Chesin, head resident adviser, acts as moderator for the skit and asks the various exaggerated characters who appear on stage for "the real low-down" on campus life.

Frank Marver, Saginaw junior and president of the Inter-Fraternity Council, acts the part of the sophisticated fraternity man. Frank Cookingham, Midland senior, is the dedicated bookworm and Lee Erickson, Chicago, Ill., junior, is his female counterpart.

Jim Cornelius, Kalamazoo junior, appears as a "campus beatnik." Jeanne Stewart, Lansing senior, is the working student and Luane Frye, Midland junior, plays the "gung-ho" residence hall girl who runs for every office in the dormitory. Mrs. Mildred Etling, a resident adviser, plays Luann's harried roommate.

John Pelletier, Southfield senior, tramps across the stage as the god-like varsity athlete, and Linda Collins, Detroit senior, winds up the skit as a shy, homesick freshman.

"Why did you come to college," the moderator asks the sophisticated sorority girl.

"Because there are 33 fraternities on campus."

"In this way, the kids get some information with a laugh at the same time," Jill said.

"Of course, we have to explain at the end that some of these characters are exaggerated types. Some of the freshmen at Counseling Clinic thought they were all true-to-life."

The final counseling clinic of the summer is being held this week. It ends next Thursday.

More Demonstrations Seen For Lansing

The Action Committee of the Greater Lansing Coordinating Council on Human Rights will hold a strategy meeting tonight to discuss further efforts to obtain changes in Lansing's present Human Relations Ordinance.

J.C. Williams, who coordinated a demonstration of some 400 Negroes and whites in front of City Hall Monday, said there will "undoubtedly be more demonstrations if the Council does not move to make the Human Relations Ordinance more than a paper document."

Since the City Council agreed to meet with the Mayor's Committee on Human Relations Monday to discuss the ordinance, the Coordinating Council will probably defer further demonstrations until the results are known, according to Williams.

"We wish to follow the spirit of deliberation and give the Council every chance," said Williams. "For this reason, there probably won't be any immediate demonstrations. However, the effort to obtain a Human Relations Ordinance will not cease until the council does take action."

The major changes desired in the present ordinance are that it provide for a paid staff and executive director with the right to investigate investigations of discrimination in jobs and housing rather than simply to study registered complaints.

"Tonight's meeting will decide what types of action will continue to be taken in this area," Williams said. "Other methods such as literature could also be used to bring the matter to the attention of the public."

Wonders Hall Ready For Operation

Wonders Hall served its first meal Wednesday in anticipation of its regular operation scheduled to begin fall term.

"The kitchen served a meal to the contractors and other people responsible for the building," said Lyle Thorburn, manager of residence halls.

The offices of the building were occupied this week. "Robert Underwood, manager of Wonders, and other staff members started operations," he said.

"The University accepted the building in sections from the contractors. The final section accepted was the east wing which includes the classrooms, offices and kitchen."

"Final acceptance was last week," Thorburn explained. "The contract is substantially complete and the building is ready for operation."

Thorburn said that the football team will have its training table in Wonders when it arrives Sept. 1. They will be living in Wilson, however.

Other pre-fall term activities scheduled for the unit are a training session for head advisers and a leadership workshop for student leaders.

The workshop is scheduled for Sept. 16

Diem Government Cracks Down On Buddhists

SAIGON, South Viet Nam - The South Vietnamese government cracked down with fury Monday morning on Buddhist demonstrators.

President Diem ordered martial law throughout the country and sent thousands of troops and police to raid temples in Saigon.

About 100 monks were arrested at one temple as troops fired pistols and threw tear gas.

Reportedly, Diem feared a coup was being plotted against him. He stationed thousands of troops at airports and other vital spots around the capital. A new military governor took over the city and a new chief of staff took over the army.

There are no reports of casualties or resistance from the Buddhists, who have campaigned for several months for religious freedom.

Saigon's airport is closed. Communications to other countries are cut off. Strict censorship is in effect for newspapers and broadcasts.

Diem authorized house searches and arrest of anyone suspected of endangering public security. Anyone arrested is subject to court martial. Diem's martial law decree said the Buddhists are endangering the government's resistance to Communist guerrillas.

The United States has openly criticized the situation in South Viet Nam.

The State Department has issued a comment deploring what it calls the "serious repressive measures" against Buddhists. The department said:

"The action represents a direct violation by the Vietnamese government of assurances that it was pursuing a policy of reconciliation with the Buddhists. The United States deplors repressive action of this nature."

Students Rally For Kennedy's Civil Rights Bill

OHIO STATE UNIVERSITY, Columbus -- A rally to rouse support for President Kennedy's civil rights bill was held Saturday at Ohio State.

The Rev. Robin Tetzloff, assistant campus minister of the Ohio State chapter of the United Christian Fellowship, said the main purpose of the rally was to influence Ohio legislators who have not indicated how they will vote on Kennedy's bill.

He added that the National Student Christian Federation has urged major Protestant student centers to suggest that students "write, telephone or telegraph their congressman asking them to support the bill."

Professor Studies Retarded Thumbnail

STATE UNIVERSITY OF IOWA, Iowa City -- After 20 years of studying his own left thumbnail, an Iowa professor has determined that fingernail growth slows with age. Dr. William B. Bean, head of the internal medicine department at SU, began his thumbnail study in 1942 at the age of 32, when it took his nail about 133 days to grow from the cuticle to clipping length. By 1959, the nail took 136 days to grow and by 1960 it took 138 days.

U. of Texas Switches To Half-Terms

UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS, Austin -- The University of Texas administration has decided to operate summer sessions on two-six week terms rather than one-nine-week term. A random sampling by the student daily newspaper showed a majority of students approved of the shorter summer sessions.

ROTC Staff Busy Again

The Army ROTC staff is preparing for its fall program.

"Most of the staff returned to campus Aug. 1 after a six-week advanced training program at Fort Riley, Kansas," said Colonel James F. Skells, chairman of military science.

"The staff went to summer camp with the advanced cadets." The training session ended July 26.

Skells noted that while a good share of the staff is on leave during August, it will return about Sept. 1 to plan courses and the general program for the fall term.

"About 500 freshmen are expected to enroll in military science and another 500 in air science.

"The response of applications for the advanced Army ROTC program is very high this year. Over 340 applications were received for the program," Skells noted.

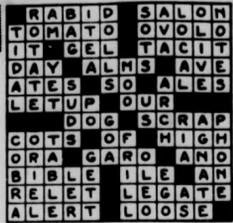

"We plan to train about 200 juniors this fall."

Skells also said that about 125 seniors will continue the advanced program.

Human Energy Laboratory Keeps Students On Run

They run and run and run--but don't get anywhere.

That's the fate of 60 MSU students who have been taking part in a physical fitness test this summer.

The subjects have been jumping up and down a set of five steps and running on a fast-moving treadmill in the Human Energy Research Laboratory in the Women's Intramural Building.

All this energy-expending activity has been carefully planned and coordinated by three students working on either Ph.D.'s or a master's degree. They are attempting to authenticate the physical education step test on a multi-level step.

The University of Michigan is also working on such a test, but with middle-aged subjects rather than college students.

"We define physical fitness as the ability to do work and to take in and utilize oxygen," explained Don Stolberg, who is working on a Ph.D. in health, physical education and recreation.

Through the various tests administered to subjects, the three have been able to gather data which, when correlated by the electronic computer, will show the measurements that best predict oxygen intake.

Kip Valenta, Detroit sophomore, was one of the subjects working with Anita Small, Ph.D. candidate and HPR instructor.

"I went through three different tests on each of three occasions in about a week's time," said Miss Valenta.

"First there was a step test in which I had six minutes to go up and down the steps as fast as I could. Many who take the test don't make it all the way through the six minutes. I almost did.

"Then I had to walk on a treadmill which was going at about three-and-a-half miles an hour.

"At the end of 10 minutes, I started running and the treadmill speeded up to six-and-a-half miles an hour. On this, you have to run for as long as you possibly can."

The final test was a re-take of

China Tightens Control Over College Students

PEOPLE'S REPUBLIC OF CHINA -- A major step to tighten political control over Chinese college students has been announced by government radio. Admission to institutions of higher education will be governed by three tests, one of which is "political suitability." Selections will be made under the guidance of local party units. Thus, the political background of the students and perhaps their parents will also be carefully screened.

Aids 'Gifted,' Retarded Children

Music Workshop Underway

A cigar-box ukelele with one string and the words of "The Star-Spangled Banner" may help mentally retarded children to find a taste of success in life and motivate them toward further learning.

With this and similar theories as a basis, 20 special education and music teachers, as well as regular university students, are Working with Unkefer is Harold Spicknall, consultant in music for special education in the Lansing school system. "We're giving the teachers and participating in a two-week long music workshop for exceptional children, directed by Robert Unkefer, assistant professor of music and psychology.

students new music skills as well as material appropriate for work with special students," Unkefer said in explaining the purpose of the workshop.

"Most of these mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed children are not as retarded in their ability to produce music as in more academic matters," Unkefer said he feels that when an exceptional child is given the opportunity to work with simple materials and create his own musical instrument, the child's feeling of success is invaluable to his future work.

"We try to put across the importance of the child's making something with a good musical tone, something that he has made and can keep as his very own."

"With this experience of success, the child is more apt to be willing to try learning something else, possibly something more difficult which he has thought beyond his capacity in the past."

Thus the musical instruments play an important part in the teachers' work for this two-week session. Each of the 20 students is making an instrument, much the same as his own students will be asked to make in their classrooms.

In a simple laboratory set up in the Music Building, the workshop participants have created cigar-box banjos, gongs, primitive-type harps and one man is making a set of orchestra bells from a piece of plumber's pipe.

Another method for introducing exceptional children to music is through the use of familiar songs such as "The Star Spangled Banner." When the children learn words to this, then they will be able to participate in widely familiar activities and they will feel more comfortable in these situations.

For example, the National Anthem is sung at many public functions. If the exceptional child is able to participate he feels more like a member of society.

Although the children will not be asked to read music, since this is harder than reading words, they can express and respond to music, Unkefer said.

For five hours each day, those participating in the workshop hear lectures, see demonstrations of music activities for the mentally retarded and emotionally disturbed child and practice their own music skills.

"If a teacher is comfortable enough to use music himself, such a teaching program will work," said Unkefer.

From this point the class is split, with music teachers given the opportunity to become familiar with the terminology of special education, and other practicing various skills including piano.

No exceptional children have been brought into the workshop classes for demonstration purposes, Unkefer said.

He explained that such demonstration groups would have been utilized, but that all organizations handling exceptional children in Lansing have stopped functioning for the summer.

Toward the end of the two-week session, each student will be asked to present a demonstration teaching example to the workshop class.

"For this, the teachers are encouraged to do something new -- something they themselves have not tried in their own classes."

Unkefer said all the teaching methods being used in the workshop are those which he has used successfully in his own work with exceptional children. More skill in music to be more flexible in their classrooms," he said.

Wirtz Joins Meeting On Rail Dispute

WASHINGTON -- Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz has joined a showdown meeting going on in Washington in hopes of solving the railroad rules dispute.

Wirtz continued mediation efforts until shortly before dawn Monday morning. Now, he has joined members of the Senate Commerce Committee and labor-management negotiators. Senate committee chairman Warren Magnuson of Washington called the meeting to see whether there is any chance of a private agreement or whether his group should set up legislation to stop a threatened strike August 29.

Two chiefs of the major rail unions, Engineers President Roy Davison and Firemen's President H.E. Gilbert, arrived in Washington last night to meet with Wirtz.

The signatures were in support of official civil rights legislation now before Congress. Another group in Switzerland handed a similar petition to the U.S. consul-general in Geneva.

University Has Own Track

Although Michigan State will never rank with the top American railroad industries, the university does have its own line on campus.

The 1.5 miles of track, with about 3/4 mile of siding, runs from the Chesapeake and Ohio connection on Trowbridge Road to the North Campus Power Plant. Mileage is so small, however, that the railroad does not even rate a line in the Official Guide to Railway Transportation.

Yet the MSU line is of importance in its own right, as it serves East Lansing's largest industry, the University.

Before its arrival on campus, the one diesel electric locomotive was used for five years at the Chaunte Air Force Base in Illinois. MSU bought the locomotive for about $100,000 as a government surplus commodity.

Every year the one locomotive does the tremendous job of switching a total of nearly 2,000 cars. The little "goat" is powered to move as many as 25 loaded hopper cars on level straight track at one time. It is powered by two 150 horsepower diesel engines, located at the end of each unit.

Tonnages for the MSU railroad are great, even though mileage is limited. Last year, about 99,741 tons, the equivalent of 1,663 loaded hopper cars were brought in to the MSU power plants. Each year, another 55 cars of refrigerated produce and frozen commodities are moved into the MSU stores warehouse, located east of Spartan Stadium.

The line does serve railroad passengers in the fall during football season. Special trains come in for the football games on Saturdays. Last year's gridiron season brought 18-car excursions from Detroit and Grand Rapids, both of which are strong-

Nuns Prove Dormitory Life Compatible To Religious One

The experiences of four Roman Catholic nuns in North Case Hall this summer have proved that religious and dorm life are surprisingly compatible.

Sister Mary Beata, Laurel, Md., Sister Constance, Charleston, W. Va., Sister Pietro, Milwaukee, Wis., and Sister Agnes Mary, Braintree, Mass., are studying at MSU this summer on grants from the National Science Foundation.

Although Case hardly seems to resemble a convent, the sisters say their life in a coed dormitory this summer has "not only been interesting, but very conducive to study."

Sister Pietro, a member of the Order of the School Sisters of Notre Dame, said she was "absolutely amazed at the quiet of the halls."

The sisters are living in four rooms on the sixth floor of Case. They eat their meals in the coed dining hall with the rest of the students.

The nuns said they thought the great majority of students were extremely well-mannered. "I think this could have something to do with the coeducational living arrangement," said Sister Constance, a member of the Franciscan order. "For example, the girls dress very neatly. This doesn't happen in a girl's school. It's difficult to get them to take the curlers out of their hair."

"The students have been wonderfully friendly," said Sister Pietro. "But it took them a while to get over their initial shock at seeing nuns in their dormitory."

"We were even invited to a pizza party one night. When we first came, we attended a get-acquainted party and wore tags. The resident advisers had a hard time deciding which of them should have us for their responsibility, because we are in an area which isn't generally used by students. One night, two of them came to us and said they had decided we were their joint responsibility."

All of the sisters were startled one night by their first experience with a dormitory fire drill.

"It must have been about 9:30 at night," recalled Sister Mary Beata, a member of the Pallottine Missionary Society. "We heard the bells, and all the noise, and we didn't have the slightest idea of what was going on."

Sister Agnes Mary, a Sister of Charity of Nazareth, said the resident advisers at the fire drill couldn't decide which list the nuns should be on. "Finally, everything got straightened out.

All in all, I would say it was one of the most surprising experiences of the summer."

Sister Pietro said she was surprised that some of the RA resident advisers were students themselves. "I must say, I think the standards are quite high. For instance, one of the girls in the dining room was told her skirt was too short -- another was told she couldn't wear curlers in her hair."

The nuns said they could "hardly believe Case was an undergraduate dorm."

"Perhaps the summer school students are more serious than the student body during the rest of the year, but they seem very mature," said Sister Pietro. "One of the girls drives us to church every morning."

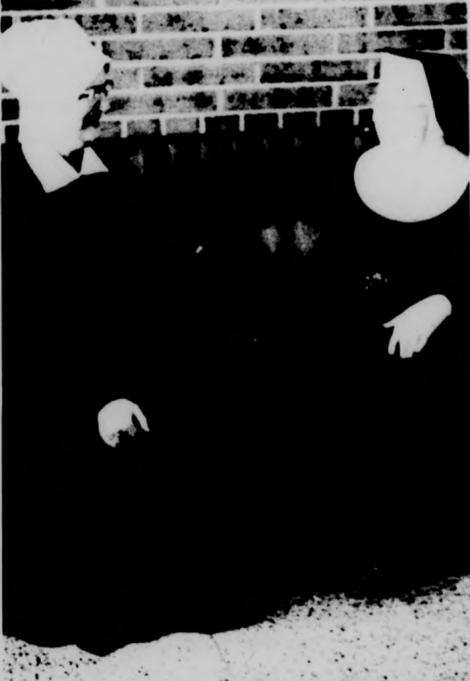

Sisters Mary Beata, Constance and Agnes Mary are studying chemistry. Sister Pietro is studying biology. This is her third summer at MSU.

"When we came, Mr. Dutch, the manager, said it was the first time he had a convent in Case Hall," said Sister Mary Beata.

Sister Pietro chimed in: "I guess Mr. Dutch is right--the whole experiment seems to have worked out beautifully."

Apartments Sprout

Off-campus student apartment construction is continuing to mushroom.

A four-story apartment building will be erected on the site of the Pig 'N Whistle shop on East Michigan Avenue across from North Williams Hall.

Richard L. Lowe, president of the University Construction Co., said the building will include 52 student apartments at a cost of $1.25 million.

The Pig 'N Whistle shop, the South Baptist Church Student Center, and a home at 124 Louis St. will be torn down to make way for the building. It will include 58,000 square feet on a 14,500 square foot foundation.

Construction will begin early this fall and will be completed in April of 1964.

The project is the fifth either completed or planned in the last six months. The other four projects will add 137 student apartments to off-campus housing.

The East Lansing City Council passed a resolution Monday requiring all apartment owners to provide a minimum of two parking spaces per apartment. If the apartment has more than two bedrooms, there must be an additional parking space for each bedroom.

Children Must Be Immunized

Children who enter Michigan schools for the first time are required to present a certificate, signed by a physician, that they have been immunized.

Parents are reminded of this legal requirement by Dr. Arthur W. Newitt, Director of the Ingham County Health Department.

"Most children who are entering kindergarten or first grade will have been immunized during their pre-school years and it will be a simple matter to obtain the doctor's certificate, Dr. Newitt pointed out.

the first step test, for a comparison of time and energy expended.

While the subject is undergoing these tests, he is wearing a football helmet-like headpiece, attached to an oxygen analyzing apparatus. Electrodes are attached to the subject to measure both heartbeat and respiration.

Tests for the men are similar, but more involved. Stolberg's group underwent 15 minute intervals. At other times they were given the same test, with a five minute rest period interspersed through the stepping.

All the subjects ran the treadmill at some time during the stepping, but this test was varied according to the subject to decrease the learning factor, Stolberg said.

During these tests, an electrocardiogram measured heartbeat while other apparatus collected expired oxygen gas. Recovery heartbeat during the five minute rest periods was also analyzed. All are working under the guidance of Wayne Van Huss, professor of health, physical education and recreation and director of the laboratory work.

Ducats Set For Students

Tickets for the opening football game of the 1963-64 season will be put on a first-come, first-serve basis during registration week, the Jenison Fieldhouse ticket office announced.

Because of the registration schedule, with all classes mixed in the time arrangement, students may obtain tickets to this first game as soon as they have finished registration and received their activity books.

This system has been adopted for the first game, Sept. 28, only.

Tickets for the remaining home games of the season will be exchanged for coupons on the established basis, with seniors receiving tickets on Monday, juniors on Tuesday, sophomores on Wednesday and freshmen and all others on Thursday and Friday.

Young GOP Group Meet

holds of State's athletic support. The coal industry is served to the greatest extent by the MSU line. The C & O delivers coal from the West Virginia and the Big Sandy coalfields of Kentucky five days per week. MSU's switching line moves the loaded hopper cars to the power plants several times a day during colder months of the year. It also operates when necessary during the warmer months.

Two diesel-powered clam-shell cranes unload the coal to the piles at trackside. The only other piece of rolling stock is a 60-ton hopper car, which is used to carry coal from piles to the power station.

Coal consumption zooms in the winter to a total of nine carloads brought in during the colder months. An average of four to five carloads are used in the summer.

Cost of the coal runs from $4 for lower grades used in the summer to $8 for the better grade coal used in the winter.

Competition Down, But Club Sails Right Through Summer

THE NORTHEASTERLY SHALL BLOW -- One sailing club member leans far over the side of his Penguin to help steady the boat as she sails on Lake Lansing. The boat is the property of the Sailing Club, but can be used by all sailing club members.

While many student organizations at Michigan State cease activity during the summer months, the Sailing Club continues to function as a unit at Lake Lansing.

Under the direction of two summer officers, Margaret Gibbs, Chicago sophomore, and Sherman Parker, Romeo senior, a sizeable number of members go sailing and attend social events sponsored by the club.

Property on Lake Lansing and six boats are owned by the Sailing Club. Members have their own clubhouse on the property, and share additional rented land with the Lansing Sailing Club. MSU members may also bring their own boats out to the club property.

Although competition with other universities slows down considerably in the summer, one regatta is held. During fall and spring terms, regattas are held every week-end, weather permitting, with other schools.

The MSU Sailing Club, one of the largest on campus, is a member of a regional organization, the Midwest Collegiate Sailing Association, and a national, the Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Association of North America. Through these branches, it is also indirectly involved in the Intercollegiate Yacht Racing Union.

Early fall term the Sailing Club will go to a Wisconsin Regatta and compete with 14 other schools. University of Michigan will host MSU and other universities at the Cary Pierce Memorial Regatta. The Women's Championships are also held in the fall.

The Big Ten Sailing Championships were held at Lake Lansing last October. Hoping this event alternates between the ten schools. The MSU Club also went to New Orleans during Christmas vacation to take part in a regatta in connection with the Sugar Bowl. If MSU's football team goes to the Rose Bowl, the Sailing Club will probably accompany it.

The MSU team came in first at its own regatta last year, and places near the top in most competition at other schools, according to Parker. He also said that the Sailing Club is one of the few organizations which has filled two trophy cases in the Intramural Building.

In addition to attending regattas, the club holds picnics, parties and occasionally puts on a water ski show. In cooperation with the Ski Club, members go on a ski trip in the winter when weather prohibits sailing activity. The Ski Club is also invited on one of the regattas.

Over 200 members were active in the Sailing Club spring term. Most of the students who join have had no previous sailing experience. Trained skippers serve as instructors for members who express a desire to learn to sail. After tests are passed, the students become qualified skippers.

On warm days, members confer in their clubhouse on Lake Lansing. Meetings are otherwise held in the Union. Dues are $10 for fall and winter terms, and $10 for spring and summer terms. During fall registration, the Sailing Club will have a booth for those interested. The facilities at Lake Lansing are open to public view during fall and spring registration weeks.

Research Started 9 Years Ago

Gal Cucumber Some Pickle

Starting nine years ago with an obscure Korean plant, a Michigan State University researcher has come up with an all-female cucumber that will likely revolutionize pickle picking. Unlike all other cucumber plants, Dr. Clinton E. Peterson's strain, known unglamorously as MSU 713-5, produces only female blossoms.

the U.S. Department of Horticulture in 1954.

Whereas common cucumber varieties produce as many as 20 male flowers for every female one, Shogoin produces some plants that have only female flowers.

using "Spartan Dawn" can do their harvest in fewer pickings and thus save on labor costs.

A mechanical pickle picker has already been developed by MSU agricultural engineers.

for mechanical harvesting. Among the qualities sought are concentrated production for once-over harvesting, easy separation of fruit from stem, and resistance to mechanical damage.

Religion Majors Study Greek

With the establishment of religion as a major at Michigan State University, the foreign language, Greek will assume more importance for student.

According to Harry Kimber, head of the religion department, Greek will ordinarily be used by the religion major to satisfy the requirements of the College of Arts and Letters. Before graduation, the student enrolled in this college must complete one year of a college foreign language.

Most seminaries and institutions of higher training in religion require Greek either as a prerequisite for entry or a requirement for graduation. The language is vital for complete understanding of the New Testament and primitive Christian thought.

MSU offers two years of Greek. The first year involves the study of pronunciation, grammar and syntax. Greek 101, 102 and 103 consist of 4 credits each.

Grammar review and translations from the New Testament, Plato, Herodotus and Homer are included in second year Greek. Each term equals 3 credits.

First year Greek is offered in the fall, winter and spring of even numbered years. Second year is offered fall of even numbered years and winter and spring of odd numbered years.

Honors work with variable credit is available on approval of the department.

Pope Furthers Relationships

Pope Paul VI recently expressed his hope for a continuation of positive Catholic-Jewish relationships begun by his predecessor, Pope John XXIII.

Richard C. Hertz, senior rabbi at Detroit's Temple Beth El, was recently received by the supreme pontiff in a private audience. He said that there is a definite effort being made at the Vatican to improve relationships with Jews and other non-Catholics.

Minister Examines Demonstrations

Press Guilty Concerning Civil Rights Coverage

By LINDA MILLER
State News Staff Writer

The public is at the mercy of popularized newspaper reports on civil rights, according to the Rev. James Didier, pastor of the American Baptist Student Foundation.

He is disappointed in the coverage of demonstrations and civil rights issues. "I am at the mercy of what I am being fed by the press," he said. "The public needs information, yet it is woefully uninformed on this subject."

The Rev. Mr. Didier used the human rights ordinance as an example of what he termed, "the guilt of the press." "Unless one is working close to it, how does he know what it says?"

In view of the demonstration Monday in Lansing, the Rev. Mr. Didier said, "If there is an issue, there should be a demonstration. He discussed two issues precipitating the march Monday: the matter of providing the right to investigate incidents of discrimination and the matter of staff and budget.

"On the basis of these two issues, the demonstration was warranted," he said. "The ordinance is worthless without implementation."

The Rev. Mr. Didier is not against demonstrations, but he "likes to subscribe only to those with specific objectives in mind. There seems to be this justification for the march in Lansing."

He cautioned, however, that many past demonstrations were totally unwarranted.

The Rev. Mr. Didier lived in Chicago as part of a minority. He is familiar with the "anguish of the minority group" and has consequently seen the civil rights issue from both sides. "It is easy for me to understand the Negro's problem," he said.

"I do not subscribe to mass demonstrations on the national scene as a rule," he said. "Yet this is almost the last resort, so I lend moral support to them."

He regrets that many in the United States are forced to the type of expediency illustrated in the march slated for Wednesday on Washington, D.C. He pointed out that some say this demonstration will set back the cause of integration.

A climate of "it's the thing to do" is a mistake, according to the Rev. Mr. Didier. "People say, 'If we can't get our own way, let's have a demonstration.'"

He believes that this attitude is not at all unrelated to the tantrums of children. "A group can so easily be converted to a mob," he said. "We have to count this as very possible and thus discount the value of demonstrations."

The Rev. Mr. Didier was in Detroit at the time of the race riots in July. He said that his reluctance to participate in mob action stems from this.

"In general, demonstrations are going to accelerate the cause and securing of rights," he said, but cautioned that, although rights may be secured in a legal manner, "it may set back the more significant relationships between the races."

Legally, a Negro can go into a restaurant and sit down. But there is much more involved than the actual serving of food, the Rev. Mr. Didier finds. "Human relationships are more subtle and significant than human rights. The latter can be forced, but the former cannot."

Peaceful demonstrations have a legal place in our society, he said. "The freedom to demonstrate is consistent with the historical American way of life and the Christian ideal, if it is peaceful. I am sure Christ would not be against it at all, except that it can be so easily subverted."

The Rev. Martin Luther King has written that temporary discrimination in the reverse is a good idea. The Rev. Mr. Didier does not agree with this concept of a temporary imbalance. "Discrimination should neither work for nor against someone," he said. Today there is an emerging sentiment for disproportionate of Negro jobs to make up for those refused in the past.

The Rev. Mr. Didier emphasized that equal opportunity means equal responsibility.

REV. JAMES DIDIER

Anglicans Aid Mergers

Anglicans of the world will try two major moves to promote church unity.

The plans to boost inter-church relations were approved by the powerful Advisory Council of the Anglican Communion and the Lambeth Consultative Body at Huron College prior to the Anglican Congress meetings in Toronto, Canada.

Anglicans pledged to support financially any member regions or dioceses that merge with other Protestant churches. A plan was also announced to add regional officers to the Anglican Communion, a world wide network of 18 regions.

One Translation

JERUSALEM (AP) - A meeting here of 70 Protestant, Orthodox and Roman Catholic leaders has proposed that a single Arabic translation be made of the Bible which would be acceptable to all Christian groups so that they can make a common approach to the Islamic world.

Vietnamese Protests Continue

Buddhist leaders are protesting the religious stand of Ngo Dinh Diem, president of the government of South Viet Nam.

The government has received warning that more suicides by fire are threatened unless it returns the body of a 17-year-old novice priest.

A government spokesman says the body was turned over to the youth's brother and is now buried. The young priest burned himself to death last week in protest of religious discrimination against Buddhist leaders.

Diem and most of his cabinet are members of the Roman Catholic Church, which has attempted to remain neutral in the dispute.

In Saigon, thousands of Buddhist sympathizers also gathered for a sit-down hunger strike earlier this week.

Mormons To Meet

The Lansing stake of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints (Mormon), will confer this week-end.

Elder LeGrand Richards, a member of the Council of Twelve Apostles of the church, will preside over meetings held in the East Lansing chapel and at East Lansing High School.

The general sessions, open to the public, will be at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. Saturday at the high school. Leadership meetings will be held at the chapel, 149 Highland St.

Elder Richards was presiding bishop of the church for 14 years. He has served as a missionary and mission president. His father and grandfather were also members of the Council of Twelve Apostles.

Police To Puplit

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (AP) - Dan Maggianetti, experienced in the punishment of sinners, steps into the role of sin preventer this summer. Maggianetti, head of the police intelligence and security division, will double as a minister at Hillman Christian Church. He was chosen interim pastor succeeding the Rev. Harry McFadden, who ended a five-year pastorate to become minister at Clinton, Iowa.

Individualist Everywhere

Dr. Norman Piersma

Every age has its non-conformists. Though usually a minority, their influence is great. The first century Christians refused to be absorbed by the prevailing political culture of Rome. They had the reputation of "turning the world upside down" wherever they went.

The fruit of the Gospel of Jesus Christ in the lives of the believers was an ethic heretofore unattained. Exemplary of this was the way the Apostle Paul handled the touchy problem to Philemon in the New Testament.

Onesimus fled the household of his master Philemon. By circumstances, known only to God, Onesimus came in contact with Paul during his imprisonment in Rome. Onesimus was converted to Christ and for sometime cared for Paul while he was in prison. Paul knew both slave and master before. He was aware of what the Roman law required for the handling of fugitive slaves. So, jeopardizing his own life in the dungeons of Rome, Paul was determined to do the right thing.

He writes to Philemon, "I am sending him back to you, sending my very heart. I would have been glad to keep him with me, in order that he might serve me on your behalf during my imprisonment for the Gospel; but I preferred to do nothing without your consent in order that your goodness might not be by compulsion but of your own free will." From totally unselfish motives, Paul sets the tenor of the scrupulously honest Christian ethic.

This high-principled, non-conformist minority has existed ever since. Their "salt" and "light" has been seasoning and enlightening society for the past two thousand years. Very little is heard about them, however. Modern literature, moving pictures, television and radio recognize no such phenomenon.

"It is generally assumed," writes James Short in CHRISTIANITY TODAY, "that everyone today smokes, drinks, flirts, attends cocktail parties; that almost everyone gambles, cheats, is unfaithful in marriage and takes advantage of another's mistakes." It is assumed that for most people the chief restraints to unsocial behavior are fear of losing reputation or social position, or fear of the law.

The world shakes its head in bewilderment and incredulity at the person who lives by unswerving convictions. This impressive minority who put principle before expediency exist—they are among us on the campus. They are not recalcitrant, however much their lack of recognition.

Imperfect though they may be, they nevertheless subscribe to a higher code for themselves and for society than do most of their contemporaries. Though non-conformist in this sense, they exert a profound influence on the status-seeking, pleasure-loving, money-mad majority.

The Judeo-Christian code is still with us. Its essence is found in the Bible—the living Word of the living God—a guide book for daily conduct. The non-conformists are not very conspicuous. The distinction is seen in their private lives. They pray, they study the Bible, they attend church regularly. They are honest.

Unitarian Leaves Pastorate

Michigan State's Channing-Murray Fellowship will lose its adviser, the Rev. Gerald K. Wyman, this fall.

The pastor of Unitarian Universalist Church has announced his resignation, effective Aug. 31. He accepted a position as projects director of the Lansing Community Services Council.

The Rev. Mr. Wyman was a member of the MSU religious advisers group and advisor to the Channing Murray Fellowship for students. He was also active on the Lansing Human Relations Council, the World Affairs Council, SANE and the Torch Club.

Several innovations in types of worship have been developed under the Rev. Mr. Wyman's leadership. He came to Lansing from Caribou, Me., seven years ago.

The Universalist Church of Lansing and the Unitarian Fellowship of East Lansing merged to form the present church during his pastorate here. Membership and the church school have grown steadily, and a large youth group has been organized.

Area Women Ordained

Two Lansing women were ordained to the Spiritualist ministry at Snowflake Camp, Belaire, recently.

Certificates of ordination were presented to the Rev. Jurone VanSickle and the Rev. Zalona Sebring, wife of the Rev. Arthur Sebring. They moved the total of pastoral candidates of the Michigan Federation of Spiritualist Churches to 70.
