Kerr, Hencken, Two Reps Claim BAP Membership

Four members of AUSG announced Wednesday that they are members of the Basic Action Party (BAP). The announcement came in answer to questions raised at the Congress meeting as to who were BAP members and did they control AUSG.

Bob Kerr, AUSG president; Bob Hencken, speaker of the house, Vincent Coffey, and Webb Buell, AUSG representatives, testified to being members of BAP.

The Basic Action Party, originally the Byzantine Anarchist Party, is said to control AUSG and to keep an unpublished membership list.

RAINY REFLECTIONS--"Mirror, mirror, in the street, rain is a terrible Halloween treat." or so this coed might be thinking as she crosses Farm Lane in Thursday's showers.

According to Kerr the BAP had to obtain a charter from AUSG and does not have to keep a current membership list. No club, he said, is required to keep a current list of members.

To clarify what BAP is, Buell read the charter of the group to the representatives. The BAP platform states "that students will begin to act as responsible participants in University affairs only when they have the power to implement, as well as suggest, University rules and policy."

Questions AUSG Proposal

Controversy has arisen over one of the seven proposals to be voted on in an All-University Student Government election Nov. 6.

Andy Rogin, Bryan Hall president, has urged students to reject proposal two, which would delete Article VII, Section 4, of the AUSG constitution. This article provides for all amendments passed by Student Congress to

Want Job? ...300 Open

The Student Employment Office is flooded with job openings, but student applications have diminished to a trickle.

More than 300 jobs are available, but the students just aren't coming into the office to find them. "I've never seen anything like it," said Tom Rand, student employment office director. "Employers have been calling in for the past two weeks and cards have been filling the bulletin boards, but apparently everyone is working all they want."

The employment office placed 1,789 students in jobs during the first two months of this term.

AEC Research Could Find Key To Survival

By CHARLES C. WELLS
State News Staff Writer

Man's survival is directly related to future MSU plant science research. The Atomic Energy Commission (AEC) announced Wednesday it will sponsor plant research at MSU. Included in the AEC grant are a $2 million building to be located in the science complex, eight additional plant scientists, and a yearly budget of $1 million by 1967.

"The AEC decided to study plants because it was finding that plants are more sensitive to radiation than was previously thought," said Richard U. Byerrum, dean of the College of Natural Science. "Our findings probably will not concern the effects of fallout on the nature of plants themselves."

Byerrum divided the project into two aspects -- the long-range effort and the short-range work. He indicated MSU scientists will concern themselves with finding out about some of the mysteries of plant growth and development.

"The AEC is interested in the long-range effort of finding radiation effects on plants," he said.

"However they cannot make any discoveries concerning radiation on plants until they know more about plants in general. Tremendous strides have been made in the last 15 years about plants, but plants studies have lagged far behind animal and human studies."

We still are mystified by some aspects of the conversion of carbon dioxide into plants, he said. After these findings are made then relationships between fall-out and plants can be established.

"The future studies on plants will have a carry-over effect on other studies in the biological sciences," Byerrum added. "The new laboratory will not stop present plant studies being done by the University."

AEC grants are not a new thing to the University. Robert Carolus, assistant chairman of horticulture, said that MSU has been getting AEC money for the last 10 or 12 years.

Some recent findings MSU plant scientists have made with atomic materials are: tracing the path of nitrogen and phosphorous through plant systems; exploring the effect of strontium on plants; and the effect of rain washing radio-active matter onto plant leaves and roots.

"The future work under the AEC grant will be an expansion of previous plant studies," Carolus said.

He stressed that the research to be done lies in the basic research area, which cannot be applied directly to everyday situations. He indicated basic research is important because all applied science is based upon it.

"Through the use of radio-active isotopes, we have been able to trace the route of fertilizers through the plant systems," the assistant chairman added. "Studies have also shown that

Lab Director Hiring Begins Next Week

The search for a director to head the Plant Research Laboratory will begin next week, said Richard U. Byerrum, dean of the College of Natural Science.

A committee composed of Byerrum; Robert S. Bandurski, professor of botany; Martin J. Bukovac, professor of horticulture; Fred C. Elliott, professor of crop science; Leo W. Mericle professor of botany; N. Edward Tolbert, professor of biochemistry; and Thomas K. Cowden, dean of the College of Agriculture, will screen prominent scientists before making a choice.

The appointment of a director is subject to the joint approval of the AEC and the University.

The director of the laboratory will be in charge of the hiring of the staff for the research project, starting with eight senior researchers who will work through the different college departments.

Byerrum said that the committee will suggest staff appointees but that they will be joint appointees by the AEC and the University. These men will be specialists in the various departmental areas, according to Byerrum.

"We're working on a very broad spectrum," Byerrum said, "and we want to spread these people out through the different departments."

The pre-doctoral candidates and graduate assistants required for the project will probably come from the general channel of applications, he said.

"We usually get a few from MSU," Byerrum said, "but largely they come from other schools."

Byerrum indicated that the College of Agriculture would work closely with the project.

There are many qualified people in related departments, such as crop science, he said.

All-American Star To Talk At Rally

Former all-American quarterback Dean Look will return to the campus Friday night for the homecoming pep rally "Daemoniacus."

The three-time varsity football letterman will speak at a rally centered around a bonfire in the IM field.

The fire will blaze from torches which will be lit by Gov. George Romney on the steps of the state capitol in Lansing and carried to the field by fraternity runners.

Daemoniacus, the ancient Roman bearer of evil spirits, will be represented as a Wisconsin football player. The dummy will be thrown into the flames as a highlight of the rally.

Swim Meet Added

By SUE JACOBY
State News Staff Writer

A whirl of homecoming activities begins today for students and some 25,000 alumni.

The weekend's events begin at 10 a.m. today with a triangular swimming meet involving freshmen, varsity and alumni swimmers. The swim meet is a new addition to the traditional homecoming program.

Gordon Sabine, vice-president for special projects, will be the main speaker at a luncheon for alumni club presidents at noon in Kellogg Center.

Highlighting alumni events today is the annual Alumni Club Banquet at 6 p.m. in Kellogg Center, where President John Hannah will present honorary awards to five MSU graduates for distinguished service in public life. Awards will also be presented to seven outstanding alumni clubs.

Winners of 1963 honorary alumni awards are Lester A. Davidson, an outstanding Michigan bridge and road builder; Arnell Engstrom, legislative representative (R-Traverse City); and Frank J. Manley, director of the Mott Foundation physical education and recreation program.

Also Stephen S. Nisbet, MSU trustee-elect, and Louis A. Weil, Jr. editor and publisher, The Lansing State Journal.

"Daemoniacus," the homecoming pep rally, will kick off activities for students tonight.

Alleged Spies Preparing To Leave US

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)--Three men in the Soviet Union's United Nations delegation alleged to have taken part in a spy plot were reported preparing Thursday to bow to the United States' demand that they leave the country quickly.

Informal sources said the three would leave New York by air enroute to Moscow tonight. They are Gleb A. Pavlov, 39, attache; Yuri A. Romashin, 38, third secretary; and Vladimir I. Olenov, 37, described simply as a delegation member.

In a note to the soviet delegation said the three had abused their privilege of residence by engaging in an espionage conspiracy. It demanded their "immediate departure" from US territory. A US delegation said "immediate" normally meant 48 hours.

Daemoniacus

Daugherty and several football players will participate in the rally.

The rally is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. A parade from the Physics-Math Building will start at 6 p.m.

Sparty, the Delta Upsilon bell, the marching band and the cheerleaders will all be on hand for the parade which will stop at every dormitory on campus.

Honor Student Dies Of Gas Poisoning

An honor student, apparently despondent over his grades, died Thursday of carbon monoxide poisoning.

John J. Kleinhans, 19, East Lansing sophomore, was found by his grandmother, Mrs. E. E. Kleinhans, 274 Milford St., with whom he had lived since the death of mother several years ago.

Kleinhans, a graduate of East Lansing High School, had gained scholastic honors at MSU but reportedly suffered from mental depression over his studies.

Coroner Jack Holmes said an autopsy is planned. The body was removed to the Gorsline-Runciman East Chapel.

Michigan State, At Last!

As of January 1, Michigan State University of Agriculture and Applied Science will be wiped out of existence. After 108 years of continued growth and progress in the field of education, the East Lansing campus of MSU will undergo a major conversion, and will be brought up to date.

It will finally be christened Michigan State University, with no qualifications and no strings attached.

The name change, part of a new constitution passed by state voters last April, is the third such change since the founding of Michigan Agricultural College in 1855. The old MAC lasted until 1925, when the college's diversification made a change to "Michigan State College of Agriculture and Applied Science," imperative. The reorganization in 1955 brought the switch to the current name, which appears on the University's seal.

MSU Secretary Jack Breslin says the change occurred because the curriculum is now much more comprehensive than agriculture and applied science, which involve only two of the University's eleven colleges, Agriculture and Engineering.

Breslin says there are no immediate plans to revise the MSU seal to suit the new name.

University Role Recognized

The decision of the Atomic Energy Commission to establish a new research center at Michigan State implies a recognition of the unique and outstanding capabilities and potentialities of this University.

One of our prime selling points was cited as being the flexibility and communication between colleges and departments. We view this as further recognition of a rapidly growing university willing to change and adapt its organization, of a university setting commendable precedents.

Both the AEC and the University will benefit from the new research center.

The project will make Michigan State a national center for the study of radiation's effects on plant life. This will mean the creation of a new nucleus of top flight scientists on the campus and bolster our facilities for graduate training.

On the other hand, the AEC will have the cooperation of a school with a long and rich heritage in the natural sciences and one that has always been geared to the needs of changing times.

We find the AEC's selection a heartening affirmation of the academic course MSU has charted, especially when one considers that comparative judgments of an institution can best be made by "outsiders."

Constructive Controversy Needed

Controversy is a phenomenon the beginning of which is often obscure and the end of which is usually equally vague. These controversies just never seem to die and at the most might be said to just smolder.

And so we witness renewed discussion over the merits of a new fact of life at Michigan State: the Educational Development Project.

Recently a professor warned of "a point where the number of students is going to impair the educational quality."

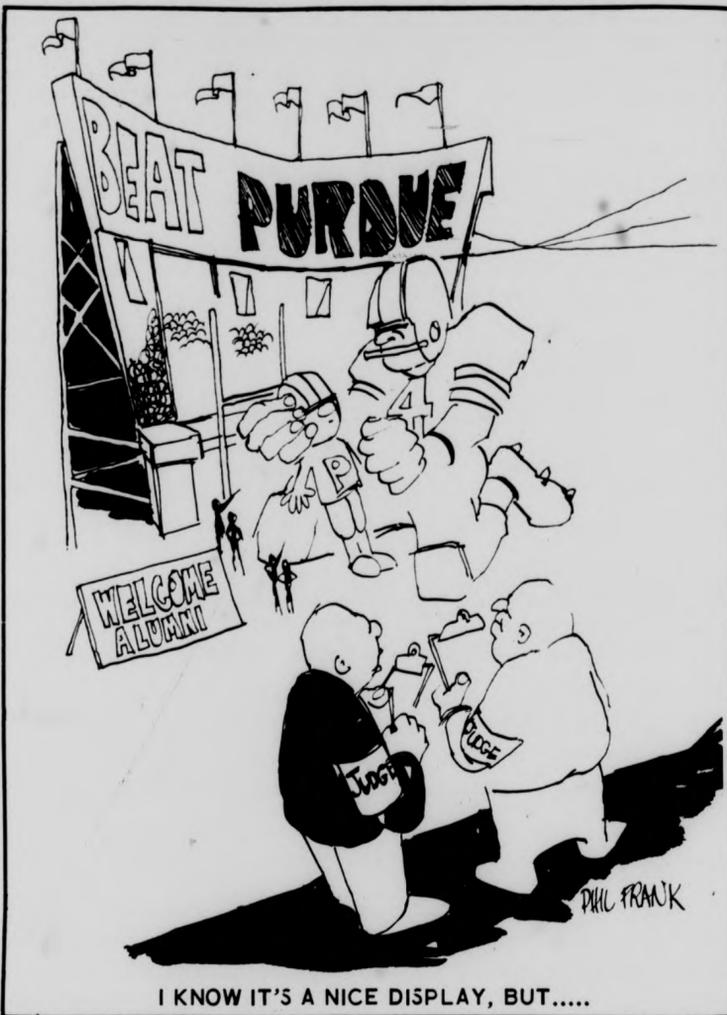

The pertinence of this statement is extremely appropriate as it points to the one great danger inherent in the educational experiment which is to be conducted at this University.

Yet, in light of the hoped for results, we must be prepared to accept this risk.

Meanwhile, we hope such constructive talk continues. EDF is a new concept and a constant reappraisal of it can only make its final implementation that much better.

It is essentially talk of this nature which will be needed to curtail the very danger the professor mentioned.

Letters To The Editor

The Storm Rages On

To the Editor:
As a member of Rather Hall's General Council and one who was present at the General Council meeting on October 22nd, I would like to correct some of the false statements made by these gentlemen and others.

Rather did not throw in the towel, we started a campaign to awaken students to the need for a change in AUSG. It indeed was our desire to see a reform movement "snowball." We want AUSG changed or abolished but before anyone abolishes AUSG, we want to see intelligent attempts made to find a solution to the problems of apathy, ineffectiveness and petty factionalism. Residents of Rather Hall along with other interested students on campus are already leading the way by forming a committee for this purpose. Is this apathy?

Several members of Rather Hall's General Council HAVE attended AUSG meetings! Please, do not credit Miss Ries with Rather Hall's withdrawal from AUSG. This action was taken by people who have first hand knowledge of AUSG's miserable existence. It is a lie to say that the only evidence the General Council was presented with was that given by Miss Ries.

In conclusion, I would like to say that after listening to Bob Kerr, Bob Hencken and Pat Quillen defend "their AUSG" at our General Council meeting last night, the General Council was once again impressed with the great need to change the present AUSG structure. We were most impressed when Kerr informed us that all that was wrong with Rather is the fact that our hall is composed of adolescents enduring the process of emotional development by breaking with organized society -- namely AUSG.

We thank Kerr for his concern; however, I personally hope our growing pains last long enough to see AUSG become the representative body of the students on this campus or see it abolished.

Non - Aligned Heads To Meet

By ROGER LEDDINGTON
State News Staff Writer

"It would be very difficult for the non-aligned nations to get together and agree at the small-nation Summit Conference next summer," said Thomas Simons, professor of Social Science. Simons said that India is so wrapped up in her problems with Red China that she is not likely to take a stand. Moreover, he believes that India does not want her problems, mainly the conflict with Red China, dragged out into the open. He raised some question as to the timeliness of the proposed conference.

"Why now that the two major powers, the United States and Russia, seem to be getting along better than they have for many years, does Tito choose this particular time for the conference?" Bruce Smith, professor of Political Science, said that in the long run, the trend is for the non-aligned nations to draw together and increase their influence somewhat. "There will be no short-run effect," he said. "The non-aligned countries have learned to detach themselves from both of the big powers and to work among themselves. "However it has been very hard for these nations to work together and agree at the small-nation Summit Conference next summer. The non-aligned nations began these conferences in 1955, then they were continued by Indonesia, Yugoslavia, and recently Egypt, with Nasser and the U.A.R.

More important than the Summit Conferences are the frequent meetings at the U.N., where the non-aligned nations can jointly influence. Smith said, "There they can influence and educate world opinion and each other." This Summit Conference will be a part of a general long term trend which will show the growing influence and power of the non-aligned nations, he said.

Boccherini Five Perform Tonight

A casual stroll through a bric-a-brac shop in Paris in 1949 led to the discovery of a rare collection of works by an Italian composer and the organization of one of the foremost musical groups of Italy.

Pina Carmirelli was so enthusiastic about her chance find of the first editions of the works of Luigi Boccherini that she set about organizing the Quintetto Boccherini to perform the rare masterpieces.

Signora Carmirelli, officially declared the foremost violinist of Italy, had discovered 160 first editions of Boccherini's compositions, 93 of them comprising his complete collection of quintets.

The works were written during the last years of the 17th century and the first years of the 18th century.

The Quintetto Boccherini, on its fourth tour of America, will give a concert at 8:15 p.m. Friday in the Music Auditorium.

Members of the Quintetto, besides Signora Carmirelli, 1st violin, are Filippo Olivieri, 2nd violin; Luigi Sagrati, viola; Nerio Brunelli, and Arturo Bonucci, alternating on 1st and 2nd cello. Signora Carmirelli, Brunelli, and Bonucci are on the staff of the Santa Cecilia Conservatory in Rome.

The Quintetto has in its repertoire works by many composers other than Boccherini, and was invited to present Bach's "Art of the Fugue" in its entirety at the Bach Festival in Ansbach, Germany, in 1961.

Pina Carmirelli began her concert career at the age of seven. She is a soloist in frequent European concerts, and is especially known for her performance of Brahms Violin Concerto.

The program which will be presented here by the quintet will include two pieces by Boccherini: "Quintetto in C minor, Op. 29, No. 1," and "Quintetto in D Major, Op. 40, No. 2."

Also on the program will be "Quintetto 9 in G minor," by G. Cambini; and "Sinfonia Degli archi (1947)," by G. F. Malipiero, a new version written in 1952 by the composer for the Quintetto Boccherini.

General admission charge is $1. Students will be admitted free with an ID card.

Homecoming Activities

The rally will begin with a parade from the Physics-Math Building at 6 p.m., and will end at the IM field, where Daemioniacus, an ancient Roman demon, will burn in a huge bonfire. A mock funeral will be held for this bearer of evil spirits.
The parade will be led by homecoming queen Donna Beukema and her nine-member court. It will include nine mobile floats. Sparty, the Delta Upsilon bell, the marching band and the cheerleaders. Every campus dormitory is on the parade route. Homecoming display judging will take place Saturday morning. In addition to nine mobile floats built by sororities, which will be stationed on campus, nearly all of the dormitories, fraternity houses and co-ops have constructed elaborate homecoming floats. Winners of the contest will be announced at the game with Wisconsin Saturday afternoon.

Mernie Fox and Bob McBain, Seniors of the Week, are two people with a great deal of originality.
Miss Fox was the first girl to work for WBRS, Brody radio. She also started the Campus Hi-Lites program on WLS Lansing radio. McBain originated the Ugliest Greek contest, and initiated the move of his fraternity, Delta Upsilon, to its new house on Hagadorn Road.
A major in general communication arts, Miss Fox is a member of Delta Gamma sorority. She is from Morton Grove, Ill., and has been active in campus activities from her freshman year. She was publicity chairman for Fresh-Soph Council, served on several Greek Week committees, worked on Water Carnival for two years and was the J-Hop executive secretary in 1963. A member of the State News advertising staff and the Retail Club, Miss Fox is presently public relations co-chairman for Senior Council.

McBain, a pre-law major from Grand Rapids, has been on Activities Carnival and Career Carnival committees several times. He was a member of IFC and public relations chairman for Greek Week and J-Council.

During the past two years Miss Fox has been on Mademoiselle magazine college board. She has also been on the college boards for Saks 5th Avenue and the Style Shop in E. Lansing.

"I enjoy helping people coordinate their wardrobes," she said, "and learning the inside mechanisms of retailing and the fashion industry."

McBain worked last summer for an accounting firm in Grand Rapids. He also toured Europe for ten weeks "and in my spare time wrote a rush booklet for my fraternity."
Future plans include a career

MSU Chest Drive At 94.4 Per Cent

University Community Chest reached the 94.4 per cent mark Wednesday with $88,411 collected since the drive began Oct. 10. Starr H. Keesler, University assistant secretary and University drive chairman, said.
The goal for the drive, which ends Wednesday, is $93,589.

Keesler said 21 divisions with over 200 departmental solicitors participated in the drive.
"We are the largest group within the government and education division and we certainly hope we can carry our share of the Community Chest load by getting our quota," he said. "A goodly number of people depend on the University community's generosity."

Keesler said although the rate of incoming money is slowing, it is not unusual for the end of a drive. With an all out effort, the University can reach its goal. Last year's drive brought in 106 per cent of the quota, he said.

'S' To Meet Badgers Before 70,000 Fans

A homecoming victory... a shot at the Big Ten championship... the gateway to a winning season.

The Spartans can grab these objectives with one swoop Saturday afternoon with a victory over the University of Wisconsin.

A sellout homecoming crowd of over 70,000 is expected to be on hand for the opening kickoff at 1:30 p.m. at Spartan Stadium.

Both teams will enter the contest haunted by the thought of elimination from the Big Ten race. Neither team can afford to lose the game if they wish to remain in contention for the conference crown.

The Spartans will go into the contest with a 2-0-1 league mark, with the Badgers standing 2-1 after a 13-10 loss to Ohio State last week.

A winning season is also on the minds of MSU fans. A victory tomorrow would be the fourth of the season for the Spartans and would insure them of at least a .500 record for the year.

Winning records are nothing new to MSU, but there was some doubt among grid experts before the season started that the Spartans would even win as many games as they already have.

In Wisconsin, the Spartans will be facing the defending Big Ten champions who have one of the strongest running teams and fastest lines in the conference.

Are the Spartans ready for the key game of the season?

"I never worry about this team putting up a great effort," said coach Duffy Daugherty. "They're always ready to play."

MSU will go into the game in good physical condition. There have been no serious injuries since the Michigan game and cold weather during the past week has helped stimulate practice sessions.

The Spartans have worked on a wide variety of offensive maneuvers which they hope will be able to penetrate the highly-regarded Wisconsin line.

The performances of the half-backs could go a long way toward determining the outcome of the game. Sherman Lewis is currently tied with Ohio State's Dick Van Raaphorst for scoring leadership in the conference with 30 points. Wisconsin halfback Lou Holland led the Big Ten in scoring last season and is eighth in conference records with 24 at the present time.

The MSU defense still ranks among the national leaders. The Spartans are third trailing Mississippi and Army in rushing defense, and fourth behind Mississippi, Princeton, and Florida in total defense.

MSU defeated the Badgers, 20-0, the last time the teams met in total defense.

Wisconsin leads in the series 6-5, but the Spartans have won four of six games since the rivalry was renewed in 1954.

Of the 11 games played, six have found the winner posting a shutout victory.

Lifters Pace Contest With Three First

A four man Michigan State weightlifting squad won three first place trophies and one third place trophy at a state-wide Class B weightlifting contest held at Highland Park, Oct. 26.

Individual winners for MSU were: Nick Ford in the 132 pound class, with a 525 pound total; Robert Mancro earned a third trophy in the heavyweight class with a 685 pound total.

Ford set a Michigan State record of 185 pounds for the two-hand press in his weight classification.

In a weightlifting contest the sum of three different and distinct lifts--the two hand press, two hand snatch, and two hand clean and jerk--determines the winner in each of the seven body-weight classes.

The weightlifting team will send six men to a State Class C meet in Flint on Nov. 16.

Hockeyettes Face Alumni

The Women's Varsity Field Hockey Team takes a weekend off from regular season play and meets an alumni squad at 10 a.m. Saturday on Old College Field.

The hockeyettes, coached by Dorothy McKnight, have a 2-2 regular season mark. Leading scorer on the team is junior Nancy Dash.

The first and second teams will resume regular competition on Nov. 9 when they travel to Kalamazoo to compete against teams from Kalamazoo College and Western Michigan University.

From The Vatican Prelates Share Rule

VATICAN CITY, (AP)—The assembled bishops of the Roman Catholic Church approved by almost 6-1 Wednesday a concept that they share authority with the Pope.

It was the second day in a row that the Vatican Ecumenical Council had taken historic votes with possibly profound significance for Roman Catholic thinking and for efforts to promote Christian unity.

Council fathers adopted the view that the Church's bishops as a whole, and by divine right, possess in union with the Pope "full and supreme power over the universal church," but that he retains his primacy.

Supporters of the concept of shared authority had cited the promotion of Christian unity among their arguments. Non-Catholic Christians often have complained that Roman Catholicism insists too much on papal authority.

Mary's Position To Be Reviewed

VATICAN CITY, (AP)—The Vatican Ecumenical Council decided Tuesday to consider a theological topic about the Virgin Mary within a document concerning the Roman Catholic Church as a whole, rather than give her the emphasis of a special study.

The council's theological commission now will have to revise the Marian topic, or schema, to fit consideration of the Virgin's place in Catholic theology into the broad schema on the nature of the church, "De Ecclesia."

Council fathers insisted their action did not downgrade the mother of Christ. But the decision in St. Peter's Basilica was clearly a change in council handling of theological topics and could affect Catholicism's relations with other Christians in a quest for unity.

The Marian document is now to become part of a Christ-centered concept of the church, but that he retains his primacy.

Other council fathers, who showed themselves in the majority with the vote, argued that the first Vatican council in 1870 did not complete its definition of papal primacy, including the doctrine of papal infallibility.

These council fathers argued that the 1870 council was interrupted by the Italian Nationalist occupation of Rome before it could take up the question of episcopal authority.

It was also argued that the council should convey to non-Catholic Christians that the Pope has the support and shared responsibility of bishops even though Catholic doctrine views him as infallible.

But the council's action did not reflect upon that doctrine, or change it.

The issue of permanent deacons was raised largely by prelates from Asia, African and South America, where there are shortages of priest. They visualized the deacons as aiding priest in certain functions.

Council experts said it was too early to tell whether the chapter on Mary will be ready for discussion before the council recesses Dec. 4.

Other council fathers, who showed themselves in the majority with the vote, argued that the first Vatican council in 1870 did not complete its definition of papal primacy, including the doctrine of papal infallibility.

Christian Unity Viewed Possible

The Eastern Orthodox Church could act as a bridge between Roman Catholicism and Protestantism in fostering Christian unity.

Archbishop Iakovos, head of the Greek Orthodox Church in North and South America, made a similar announcement about his church at a banquet in his honor in Philadelphia recently.

Francis M. Donahue, associate professor of religion and Pan-Orthodox Student Association adviser, agrees with the announcement, but emphasized that this could only be done by the Eastern Orthodox churches as a whole, not just the Greek Orthodox Church.

"The Greek-speaking part of the Eastern Orthodox Church has always been backward and unwilling to promote unity," he said. "The Greeks are the only ones not yet using the English language in their services."

The Archbishop Iakovos based his claim on the fact that orthodoxy is doctrinally closer to Roman Catholicism but ecumeni-cally closer to Protestantism.

Donahue agreed with this statement, but believes it will be much easier with Roman Catholicism. "We have the same sacraments, doctrine of apostolic succession, veneration of saints and concept of the Virgin Mary."

Roman Catholicism and Eastern Orthodoxy disagree on final church authority. The latter holds that the councils are infallible in matters of faith and morals, while Roman Catholics attribute this inerrancy to the papacy.

Donahue indicated that the doctrine of papal authority may be restated at the Vatican II Ecumenical Council so that it will be acceptable to Eastern Orthodoxy.

Archbishop Iakovos, one of the five presidents of the World Council of Churches, said that the ecumenical movement was a "movement of understanding... not to create one church or super-church, but only to unite the mind and aims of all Christians."

Questions Proposal

 become effective without a referendum unless they are concerned with student assessments.
 Rogin said that students would be abdicationing their right to vote on fees.
 "The present AUSG tax on each student is 25 cents," he said. "If this new amendment is passed unthinkingly by the student body, student taxes can be raised as high as AUSG wants to propose, and I wouldn't be surprised if by the end of the year, someone will propose that they be raised to $1 if the amendment passes. Students will be upset then, but there won't be a thing they can do about it."
 "Student government should exist to serve the student. This is a case where it is working to take rights and privileges away from the student."
 Rogin, who recently announced formation of a committee to investigate the role of AUSG as representative organization of the student body, said the amendment is "a sad outgrowth of a sad situation in which so-called student leaders are trying to pull the wool over the eyes of a student body which is too indifferent to care about what is being done."

 "Andy Rogin is mistaken," said Bob Kerr, AUSG president. "The assessment is part of the constitution under amendment one. Sections one and two would still require referendum. We would still have to give the student body specific reasons for raising assessments and they'd have to vote on it."
 "If students want AUSG to expand its activities," he said, "we have to change assessments because current revenue isn't enough."
 "Right now this amendment is not democratic," he said. "Instead of letting those who want to vote do so, we are required to have a majority."

Ballet Wins Applause

By DIANE CURREN
 State News Reviewer
 Flashing smiles, whirling feet, and brilliant colors brought an evening of pleasure and gaiety to the Auditorium Wednesday.
 The Ballet Folklorico of Mexico gave the audience a taste of the traditional Indian and Mexican life.
 One of the more spectacular dances was "La Bamba" from the "Festival in Vera Cruz." Dressed in gay festival garb, Martha Garcia and Gabriel Loyo astounded the viewers by tying a red sash into a bow with their feet.
 Probably the most emotionally charged selection of the whole evening was the "Deer Dance of the Yaqui Indians." This is one of the oldest of Mexican dances and is still performed as part of the rites done before a hunt by the Yaqui Indians.
 Dressed in only a breechcloth and headdress, Jorge Tiller performed the role of a hunted animal to such perfection that the viewers actually felt as though they were in the midst of a mad chase or dash for life.
 In "The Quetzal Birds of Puebla," the dancers impersonate the mythological Quetzal bird whom the Indians considered a sacred symbol of elegance and beauty. With elaborate headdresses that are almost six feet in diameter and require great skill to manipulate, the dancers brought to the stage a selection that was reminiscent of a grand procession.

 The windmill effect of the headdresses gave the impression of heavy birds in motion.
 Bringing a delightful evening of entertainment to a close, the ballet company did "Christmas in Jalisco." This began with a solemn candlelight procession that told the story of the wanderings of the Holy Family seeking lodgings and ended with a round of rapid, gay, and colorful dances, climaxed when the company threw streamers out into the audience.
 Amid shouts of "Bravo!" and thunderous applause, the Ballet Folklorico gave the audience

"The Mexican Hat Dance" as an encore.
 The troupe also performed "Dances of Old Michocan," which are usually done on birthdays, at fiestas, and in front of churches; "Wedding in the Huasteca"; and "Wedding on the Isthmus of Tehuantepec," a sacred dance portraying the entire ceremony of courtship, marriage, and procreation as it is symbolically performed from the ancient Indian rites even today.

Michigan State's annual freshman-varsity-alumni swimming meet will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. in the Men's IM Building pool.

As part of MSU's Homecoming celebration, Spartan tankers of the past, present and future will get together to reminisce about old triumphs and talk of the new season ahead.

strontium and calcium are both accepted by the plant.
 Some of our studies concerning relationships between strontium and calcium may have great importance to humans, he indicated. Strontium has been one of the most undesirable products of nuclear explosions.
 Specifically MSU will try to find out about:
 --How plants get energy from sunlight and the chemical processes by which a plant takes nutrients out of the ground and makes them part of a leaf, a stem, a flower or a fruit.
 --What chemical process makes a single seed a full-grown plant.
 --How does the seed direct its development into a plant which looks like its parents.
 MSU has also been doing research with atomic energy in the soil science area and in animal tissues and bones concerning storage of radio-activity after nuclear blasts.

ORTHO-VENT-the shoe with spring step design for new comfort

Group Discusses 'New' Europe

Seven MSU faculty members joined delegates from nine other countries for the ninth biennial National Conference of the United States Commission for UNESCO, October 23 to 26 in Chicago. Those attending from MSU were Werner Bohnstedt, professor of humanities; Adrian Jaffee, associate professor of English; Louis L. McQuitty, dean of social science; James D. Rust, professor of English; Vernon L. Sorenson, associate professor of agricultural economics; Walter Adams, professor of economics; and Walter S. Cohen, assistant professor of history. Over 1,500 delegates discussed the "new" European communities and their cultural, social, economic and educational relations among themselves and with other countries. Sorenson, a member of the conference planning committee, said it brought together people from all fields who are actively engaged in or interested in the revitalization of Europe. More specifically, he said, it's a look at what is happening to European countries in growth and development and the new relations of these countries to the rest of the world—especially the United States. The conference had no direct effects on world affairs, he said, but it contributed to a common understanding between the countries represented. The self-confidence and self-assurance of the European nations were evident, Adams said. It's a natural outgrowth of their emerging prosperity. Adams, who attended the conference as an official observer for the state department said some of the European nations are feeling their oats and won't go along with U.S. policies anymore.
