House Writes Tax Epitaph

 '63 Tax, Rights Bill Unlikely  Refuses 'Package' By Vote Of 47-44

JFK Hopes For Action Next Year

WASHINGTON (P)—President Kennedy virtually conceded Thursday there is scant hope that Congress will act this year on his two top-priority proposals for a massive taxcut and new civil rights safeguards.

Kennedy told a news conference, however, that he does expect action before the 1964 presidential election, but not without the possibility of serious hitches. He speculated, for instance, that a 1964 civil rights filibuster might tie up tax legislation as well.

In the past, the President has taken the position that enactment of both bills was possible, even essential, this year.

Kennedy did hold out faint hope that the tax bill, already passed by the house, might reach the Senate floor by the end of the year. "Otherwise," he said, "the civil rights bill will come over (to the Senate) after the first of the year and there may be a very long debate. The tax bill may be caught up in that."

Kennedy, showing as much heat publicly as he ever has as President, protested "this is the worst attack on foreign aid that we have had since the beginning of the Marshall plan" in 1947.

Kennedy said he has never questioned the right of Congress to decide how much money should be appropriated, but he added: "In the field of foreign policy there are particular burdens placed on the President, whoever he may be."

"If there are failures in the Middle East, Africa and Latin America, and South Viet Nam and Laos," the President said, "It is usually not a senator who is selected to bear the blame but it is the administration, the President of the United States."

Arrest Of Yale Prof Stalls Culture Swap

Negotiations for a 1963-65 Cultural Exchange Program, between the United States and the Soviet Union were postponed Thursday because of the Soviet arrest of Yale professor Frederick C. Barghoorn.

Previous to Barghoorn's arrest, negotiators had hoped to agree on a fourth two-year contract. The current agreement expires Dec. 31.

The talks were canceled on the recommendation of U.S. Ambassador Foy D. Kohler, who has been refused permission to see Barghoorn since the Russians announced the arrest Tuesday. The professor was arrested while visiting the Soviet Union as a tourist.

Under the program the two

Today Last Day To Get Schedules

Today is the last day to pick up winter term time schedules, indicated Registrar Horace C. King.

About 75 per cent of the time schedules have been distributed. Distribution is at the cloak room window at the Union main floor.

Students must present ID cards and are allowed only one person.

Vehicle Group Maps Bus Plan

By SUE JACOBY
State News Staff Writer

A tentative proposal to implement the Faculty-Student Motor Vehicle Committee recommendation approved by the Board of Trustees last summer calls for an improved University-controlled transportation system to begin operation winter term.

The proposal recommends that the present bus operation be subsidized by the University if financial support is needed to secure the degree of control and service adequate for the needs of a campus on which student driving will be prohibited 7:30 a.m.-6 p.m. on class days.

The present bus service is operated by a private Lansing firm and the University has no control over scheduling or the number of buses.

A University-controlled transportation service was the cornerstone of the plan approved by the Trustees, which will prohibit student driving on campus beginning fall term, 1964. Richard O. Bernitt, public safety director, and John A. Fuzak, dean of students, have developed a broad new policy for driving regulations which calls for immediate improvement of the transportation system "to dispel any argument that student will need their personal vehicles in the future."

Fuzak said the recommendation for University-controlled transportation in no way implies the original proposal of the Faculty-Student Motor Vehicle committee meant was that MSU should have sufficient control to meet increased transportation needs of its students when the new driving restriction becomes effective.

Key proposals of the recommendation by Fuzak and Bernitt include extension of parking and driving privileges for graduate assistants, and expansion of police supervision to enforce the new driving and parking regulations.

"This proposal is not the final one which will be submitted to President Hannah," Fuzak emphasized. "There will be some changes in our final report, but the major outlines are the same. And the entire program is subject to the President's approval."

Spouses of students have not been able to obtain regular Faculty-staff permits in the past because of their husbands' or wives' student status. Under the proposed regulations, they would be able to obtain one-year permits entitling them to parking and driving privileges equal to those granted by staff-faculty permits.

The proposal reads: "This is done with recog-

US Studies Alliance Proposal

The United States is giving "serious study" to a Brazilian proposal to permit "any country," presumably including Soviet Russia, to contribute to Alliance for Progress funds for development of Latin America.

The Brazilian plan proposes that Latin American countries and the United States contribute a total of $2 billion a year to the Alliance, and that other countries then be invited to participate.

"I would not want to see the United States involved in such a program," said Charles Cumberland, professor of history.

Cumberland stated the effects of the expanded program on the basic Latin American problem would be "nil."

The problem, he said, is that the conservative landowners have refused to make the concessions necessary for progress -- such as giving up their tax privileges to aid economic reform.

Garland Wood, director of the Latin American Studies Center, said he believed the new Alliance program might make a "positive contribution" to European-Latin American trade relationships.

Wood remarked that Russia had few trade ties with Latin America and the proposed aid arrangement would be of little benefit to her economically.

Governor Hits 7 Republicans, 31 Dems For 'No' Votes

BY JACKIE KORONA
State News Staff Writer

Gov. George Romney's fiscal reform program -- called dead at least three times in the past week -- finally did die in the House of Representatives Thursday.

By a vote of 47 to 44, House members turned down an amendment which would have tied all parts of the governor's tax reform package to the income tax.

Romney said Wednesday that if either the income tax bill or the amendment failed in the House, he would have a clear indication of lack of support for fiscal reform.

 Xmas Tree Falls With Tax Hopes ***

Tax reform wasn't the only thing killed in the House of Representatives Thursday.

A Christmas tree was also made ready for burial.

Rep. Russell Hellman, D-Dollar Bay, brought a small synthetic Christmas tree to his House desk shortly after the special session on tax reform convened.

"I predict we'll be here until Christmas," he said at the time.

Decorations sparked from the little tree's branches and a spirit of the Santa-season dominated the front desk in the House chamber.

But after the House voted 47 to 44 against a reform amendment, Hellman asked the Speaker for a few minutes recess. "My prediction was wrong," he said, "I'll just have to chop down the tree."

Hellman took a hatchet from his desk and chopped.

Fellow legislators looked on in mock horror. But Hellman kept chopping, and the tree fell to the floor.

The little Christmas tree died with tax reform.

Opinion On Sewage —It Stinks!

The East Lansing sewage plant, originally built to service 25,000 people, is now operating for an over-load of 67,000.

As essential as sewage disposal is, at least 3,500 people wish it didn't even exist. Those 3,500 are MSU students living in the Brody group of dormitories and in University Village near the plant.

Their views are unanimous. "It stinks!"

Two roommates from Bailey, the dorm closest to the plant,

Colleges Pay Interest

State Invests Revenue

Michigan colleges and universities will continue to pay interest on all funds raised for self-liquidating projects while depositing two per cent of it with the State Treasurer.

The State of Michigan will then invest the deposit money at four to five per cent. Revenue from these state investments will go to the general fund and not the universities, a state official said.

This is possible because of a recent Senate amendment requiring state universities to deposit two per cent of their self-liquidating bond projects with the state treasurer. The money is to be used for future heat and power expansion.

The amendment was made to House Concurrent Resolution 20 which approved Oakland University's $2 million dormitory project. It requires that Oakland deposit two per cent of the project cost with the state treasurer. This will apply to all Michigan institutions of higher learning.

Oakland University, MSU's affiliate near Pontiac, will borrow some $2 million at from 3.25 to 3.5 per cent interest for the project. The revenue will be raised through self-liquidating bonds to be paid for through

Auto Show Opens Today In Lansing

Lovers of custom autos, hot rods, and remote control vehicles will find chrome, steel and polished beauties at the 1963 Rod and Custom Auto Show.

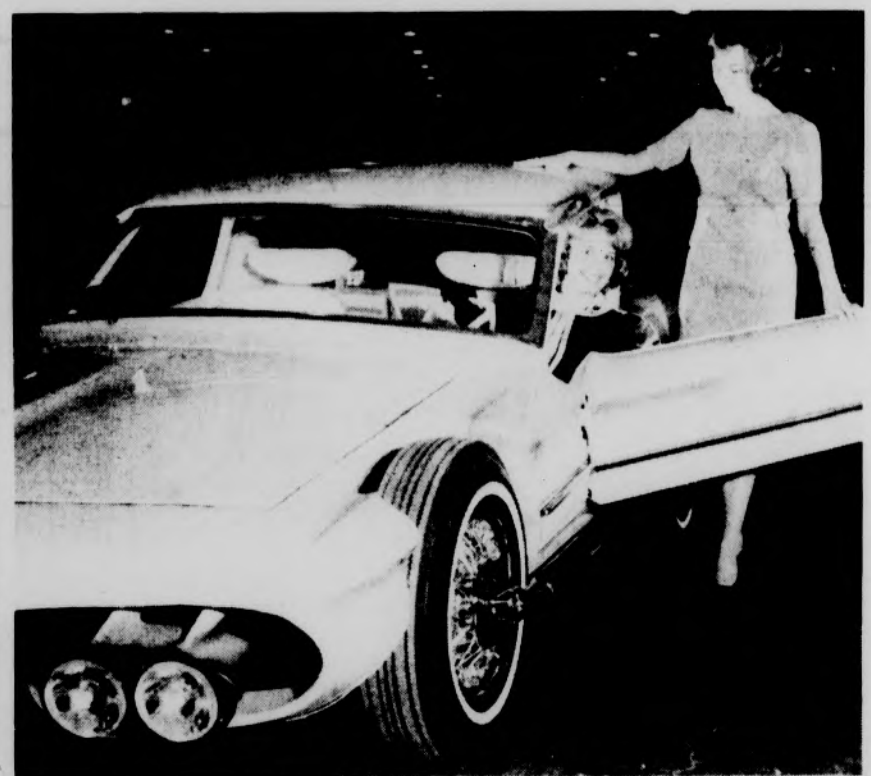

Opening today at 5 p.m. at the Lansing Civic Center Exhibition Hall, the show will feature over 70 of the nation's newest custom cars and hot rods.

The show will include demonstrations of the electronic cars, the Super Sonic, valued at $40,000 and the $20,000 Car Craft Dream. These cars, which operate via remote control, will be demonstrated every hour during the show.

Cars from 10 states will be on exhibit at the event which lasts through Sunday. Show hours are 5-11 p.m., Friday, and noon-11 p.m. on Saturday and Sunday.

Following the House vote, the governor told newsmen: "Fundamental reform of the Michigan tax structure is -- for now -- impossible."

Sixteen Republicans were among those voting against their governor's fiscal program.

The governor criticized them, as well as the Democrats voting against the amendment, in his press conference.

"Every Republican will have to answer for his vote," Romney said. "All who voted will answer to the people at election time."

Romney said that since the amendment was voted on openly, rather than dying in committee, the people would know who favored and who opposed fiscal reform.

"If all Republicans had backed tax reform, it would have been adopted."

AUSG Commends Advisers

The role of faculty advisers, Congress committee attendance, government surplus food, and popular entertainment were discussed at the AUSG weekly meeting.

Legislation passed included granting a charter to the Baha'i Club, a religious organization; appropriation of $200 to Spartan Spirit to finance pep rallies and a bill for recognition of outstanding faculty advisers of campus organizations.

Recognition of faculty advisers of student organizations will be provided in the form of a letter of commendation. It will come from the Office of the Dean of Students and the Office of Organizations to the deans of the advisers' respective colleges.

Reorganization of the executive branch of AUSG and a study of the causes of student flunkout were brought up.

Students wishing to evaluate the functions of AUSG may attend the Exploratory Committee meeting 8:15 Nov. 8, second floor, Union, Chris Thoms, West Shaw, representative said.

Beat Notre Dame Rally Tonight

A pep rally to increase spirit for Saturday's football game with the Notre Dame Fighting Irish will be held tonight at 7:30 on Old College Field.

The rally, sponsored by Spartan Spirit, will feature several of the football players in a stunt as well as the varsity cheerleaders.

NAACP Missing Opportunity

Late last spring, wide attention was centered on the East Lansing area when a little lady told a group of MSU students they couldn't use a neighboring recreation park because some of them were negroes.

It seems that she owned the park and felt if she let Negroes in, it would hurt her business. This raised the dander of the campus chapter of the NAACP and they succeeded in focusing near-national attention on the situation by picketing the park for hours.

One result of the unfavorable publicity that the area received, was the establishment of a Human Relations Commission. At their first meeting they called on all interested parties to present their complaints regarding discrimination at future commission meetings.

We expected the NAACP to be once again right on top of the situation. But such has not been the case. . . at least to date. Queried as to their slow response to the Commission's search for discrimination evidence, the NAACP gives a couple of quick answers.

First, they point out that their advisor is a commission member. This may be true, but isn't it also true that he hasn't been to a NAACP meeting since last spring?

Second, they say it has been most difficult to obtain evidence that a person is discriminating in either housing or employment. Not because it doesn't exist, they say, but because of the intricate procedures that have to be followed to get worthwhile evidence.

We sympathize with this second point, but we feel that part of the reason they have had trouble getting going is their own inertia. They seem to be more interested in regional and national human relations conferences than in pressing ahead with the work to be done here at home.

Certainly there is room for both in their over-all club program, but while the opportunity exists to present facts to the East Lansing Human Relations Commission, their primary attention should be given to accumulating evidence of local discrimination, which could some day result in some local legislation.

In The Name Of Freedom . . .

Tonight we may all rest easier, for this week the State Department closed approximately 26 percent of this country to travelers from the Communist bloc. This is the same proportion of territory closed in the Soviet Union to travel by American visitors.

Such a remarkable display of tit for tat diplomacy is another example of the naïveté so often displayed by this country in international affairs; a naïveté which saw us agast at the presence of Communism in Cuba, blundering over the U-2 and committed to a Diem in Viet Nam.

The State Department hastens to make the claim that security matters were partially responsible for its actions.

But what will the new regulations accomplish? Does the State Department really believe a traveler standing outside an air base or across from the gantries of Canaveral can learn something Soviet intelligence doesn't already know?

If the curious visitor got too close he might find things hot; he might even be burned, but it is doubtful that he would discover any dramatic new secrets.

Meanwhile, we constantly crow about the glaring contrast between the forces of good and the forces of evil. We tell ourselves that we are the land of the free, that the fate of democracy is in our hands.

But are our hands different from theirs today? When we react to the Soviets' ugly constraint with an equivalent move, are we different, are we still the up-righteous protector of the ideals of freedom?

An Answer To Discrimination

Racial discrimination in off-campus, University-approved housing has always been difficult to cope with because of the lack of an effective weapon with which to fight it.

But the void may be filled by the Hearing Board set up by the Student Senate Human Relations Commission last week. Not only does this board make it possible for individual students to take action when discrimination occurs, but it can perhaps end racial bias in approved rooming houses and women's apartments. If a landlord is found guilty of discriminating, his house will be removed from the approved list. The possibility of this occurring should make many landlords and house-mothers think twice before lying about vacancies and regulations to an "undersirable" students.

Before this action by the Student Senate, a person witnessing discriminatory practices in housing could do little more than report it to the Human Relations Commission, which had no practical power to deal with the situation. Now, if students are alert, the situation can be bettered and the number of instances of overt discrimination reduced.

Letters To The Editor

Film 'Affirms Absurd'

To the Editor:

I have read with great interest the penetrating comments of Mr. Lackey on Bergman's "Winter Light." However, contrary to his view, I find evidence of a continuing probing and searching on the part of Bergman, that is at last beginning to lead to an affirmation. In "The Virgin Spring," Bergman seemed to be asking, "What is the nature of Grace, and how does it come to man?" In "Through a Glass Darkly," the question seemed to be, "What is the nature of God?" but in "Winter Light," he confronts the most bleak and chilling question of all -- "Is God there?" The growth is not only one of austerity in style, as Mr. Lackey points out, but also in depth of theme.

The seemingly stark cynicism of the ending of "Winter Light," if examined in the light of writings of Soren Kirkegaard, seems to result in an "affirmation of the absurd," as Kirkegaard would put it. Kirkegaard was as violent as Bergman in his denunciation of organized religion as a hopeless sham; but, at the same time, his life was an agonized search for God which ended in an affirmation, rather than a denial. For Kirkegaard, faith involved an unlikely marriage of paradoxical elements, much like the parade of ironies and paradoxes Bergman places before us in "Winter Light."

I believe Bergman is affirming a Kirkegaardian paradox here. As Pastor Erickson observed, "I spoke as if cut off from God and yet I felt that every word was significant."

So I say to Mr. Lackey -- read Kirkegaard, and then perhaps you will see "Winter Light" in a different light. In winter, the sun is farthest from the earth, its light is cold and thin, it gives little warmth and fades early. Yet, it comes from the sun, and is the light. Without it, it would be dark indeed.

Coed Insulted

To the Editor:

It was my fortune to witness one of the worst scenes of my life the other day.

It was necessary for me to be at Olin Health Center the other day at about 12:30. I was sitting in the lobby when a co-ed walked up to the receptionist. The young lady was insulted to such a degree, that I was tempted to ask the cheerful receptionist where I could go to try to have her fired. The co-ed was obviously feeling very terribly, and after a fierce series of questions, "...you're trying to tell me that you have no other free hour...?", etc.) the revoltingly disrespectful receptionist told the young lady that she'd have to come back some other time. It is serious that the administrative body of Olin is unable to discharge such undesirable help as this. I don't think we mean to interrupt such important creatures as receptionists from their conversations, but after all kids, it is our Health Center.

Point Of View

Don't Think, Just Respond

By Lyn Rae Blake

What are you examiners in our modern colleges and universities trying to accomplish? Are you playing a game called "Elimination" and if so, just which students are you trying to eliminate? In many of our courses you try to teach students to think clearly, to express themselves without ambiguity or vagueness, and there by to apply what they learn not only in daily but in their future experiences.

On the other hand, the exams you give reverse all your own convictions concerning these principles. Sure, you say, "If we were direct with the questions everyone would pass, so we have learned to use trick techniques in order to establish a curve." But, I ask you, just which students are you putting at the bottom of the curve in this process? Who are you discouraging?

A reasonably intelligent student enters the classroom to take part in one of your exams. He has enthusiastically studied for this particular course and is genuinely interested in the material. Given an electromagnetic pencil he is told to mark a black line in the blank which represents the best answer among four foils.

The student thinks, and this is his first mistake. He considers all the materials he has learned before and during his study of this course. He makes his analysis and only after this does he mark his answer. But behold, when the results come out he finds himself on the lower end of the curve. After many tries he may even find himself out of the University, simply because he has learned to think and can't break the habit.

We are told time and time again not to think just to mark our first response (or is it a guess?) and the answer will usually be correct. Is the answer really correct according to the world's most learned and experienced concepts or is it correct because a few men have decided it is and set a tabulating machine to believe it is correct?

What kind of world are we building? Perhaps you professor of the ambiguous exams would like to see us run like machines, indoctrinated, non-thinking. If this is what you are aiming for I pat you on the back and compliment you on your excellent start.

Latins To Vote

From Our Wire Services

A light of hope for free and honest elections is shining in Venezuela's white house in Caracas. President Romulo Betancourt and his aides are preparing the way for free national elections in the Latin country on December 1.

The elections will determine Betancourt's successor, and the new congress which takes office next March.

But trouble is brewing. Just outside Maracaibo, Venezuela's oil capital, police picked up a young member of the FALN, the so-called Armed Forces for National Liberation. They are aligned with Fidel Castro and are determined that the elections shall not take place.

The young man carries a small but powerful explosive which may be attached to a vital pipeline.

On a street in Caracas, Interior Police pick up another suspected terrorist.

In his possession are found detailed plans for a bank robbery.

The bank robbery doesn't come off and the plan to sabotage the oil pipeline also fails. But other plots in the unceasing drive to throw Venezuela into chaos and eventually to transform it into another Cuba have been more successful.

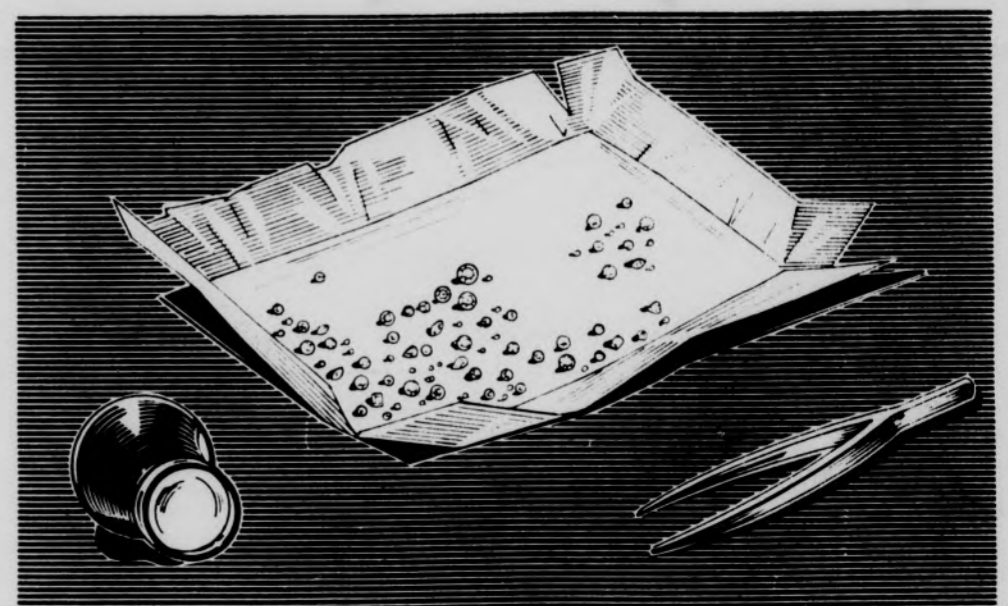

The immediate goal of the FALN is to disrupt the economy and to goad Venezuela's military into overthrowing the elected government and setting up a military dictatorship--against which the Communists could rally a revolution.

Neither plan has been successful and the betting now is that neither will be.

As Betancourt prepares to become the first president in Venezuelan history to turn his office over to a freely-elected successor, seven candidates have declared themselves for office.

Front-runner is 57-year-old Raul Leoni, head of Betancourt's court's own Action Party. The party claims more than 900,000 votes out of an electorate of around 3.5 million.

scientific cooperation, and exchanges of delegation of specialists.

In the field of education, the Soviet Union wishes to expand the annual exchange of 40 graduate students to 50 or 60. The American side, still dissatisfied with students' living conditions, travel restrictions, and lack of access to institutions and archives intends to keep the program at 40.

John Steinbeck, Nobel prize winning American author, is in the Soviet Union under the Cultural Exchange Program. He shrugged off the hospitality heaped on him on a Soviet tour, denounced the arrest of Barghorn, and said the door to U.S. Russian cultural exchanges "is slammed shut."

Music Frat's Concert Due Sunday

A composition written to commemorate the 25th anniversary of the Gamma Epsilon chapter of the Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia fraternity will highlight the fraternity's celebration concert Sunday at 4 p.m. in the music auditorium.

"Chant of Orpheus," by James Niblock, chairman of the music department will be performed by the wind ensemble of the professional music fraternity.

The one-movement, adagio-tempo piece is based on the themes of the music used in the fraternity initiation ceremonies, said Terry Odelli, Monongahela, Pa., senior, and president of the local chapter.

The concert and a dinner-dance are planned this weekend by the chapter to celebrate its 25th anniversary.

The 30 chapter members are not all music majors, but all participate in campus musical organizations, Odelli said.

The concert Sunday will be performed in three parts. The first will be done by small groups and soloists. The second will be given by the Sinfonia Wind Ensemble, and the third by the Phi Mu Alpha Chorus.

Joint Piano, Violin Recital To Include Bach, Debussy

Two seniors will present a joint recital of piano and violin music at 8:15 p.m. Friday in the Music Auditorium.

They are Elizabeth Barry, Midland violinist, and Judith Woodbury, Davison pianist.

Miss Woodbury will open the concert with Beethoven's "Piano Concerto No. 3 in C minor." John Richardson, associate professor, will play the pianist part. Miss Barry will follow with Bach's "Partita No. 1, in B minor," for unaccompanied violin.

Next Miss Woodbury will play four short pieces, one each by Paradies, Mozart, Debussy, and Szymanowski.

The final number, a duo, will be Hindemith's "Sonata in E, for Violin and Piano."

"It really smells bad," said a new student from Bailey.

However, familiarity can breed acceptance, at least to an Emersons Hall senior.

"I know this sounds terrible, but after four years of living with it, I think I've just gotten used to it. I know the smell is there, but it just doesn't bother me.

According to John Patriarche, East Lansing city manager, plans for a new sewage plant are well under way. The building of the plant has been contracted, and construction will begin this February.

It is expected to be completed by the fall of 1965.

Most encouraging for students, the new plant will be located "one mile down the river," said Mr. Patriarche, and its odor, therefore, will no longer be a part of the MSU atmosphere.

Schwarz To Play In Soccer Tourney

BY RICHARD SCHWARTZ
State News Sports Writer

Bill Schwarz told the State News late Thursday that he definitely will be in the Michigan State soccer lineup for the National Collegiate Athletic Association playoffs later this month.

Schwarz, who's also a senior basketball performer for State, had been torn between staying with the soccer squads or moving over to the basketball team which has its opener Nov. 30.

Should the soccer men advance beyond the preliminaries, which start Nov. 23, Schwarz may be forced to miss the first three basketball encounters. A state victory in the semi-finals, will call for a championship match the same day that the Spartan hoopers meet Bowling Green.

"I want to play soccer," Schwarz said. "I told my coaches that I've made this my choice but will play it by ear and wait to see who our soccer opponents are."

"I can always decide to play in a basketball game if the occasion allows me to," he said.

Schwarz is known to have had a talk with Athletic Director "Biggie" Munn prior to making the decision. Also called in to discuss the matter were soccer Coach Gene Kenney and basketball Coach Fordy Anderson.

"I had both coaches and the boy himself in my office and we had a long discussion," Munn said. "Munn denied that there had been any interference in the matter. He specifically denied rumors that administration officials stepped into the situation."

Munn did say he had spoken to Gordon A. Sabine, MSU vice-president in charge of special projects, in his office the same day, but claimed that Sabine had come to see him on another matter.

Munn said, however, that Sabine was asked what he felt on the matter, but that he had not attempted to enter into the issue at any time.

Sabine was unavailable for comment.

Anderson was quoted in a released statement as saying: "Bill made his own decision. I'll allow him to play with soccer all the way."

"My feeling is that any time any of our teams have a chance for a national title, that squad should get all the help it can," Anderson, in an interview Tuesday, had said in reference to a basketball scholarship which attracted Schwarz to Michigan State.

"I'm not in the welfare business. All I'm doing is practicing hard as I can," he said, "and up comes a big black monster. All I did was cooperate with another coach and give up a player on my squad temporarily."

Soccer's Kenney welcomed the news: "Bill has made a great contribution to our fine season this fall. I'm happy he'll be available for the tough playoff games ahead," Kenney said.

Schwarz paced the undefeated Spartans in scoring with 14 goals and 11 assists. He played with the club for the first time this fall and was a key man as State won nine in a row without a loss and captured Midwest College Soccer Conference honors.

He's won two letters in basketball playing a guard and has been a regular for much of the time.

Cloudy, Cool, Forecast For Notre Dame Game

A crowd of over 70,000 is expected at Spartan Stadium tomorrow when MSU and Notre Dame square off in the 29th renewal of their colorful grid rivalry.

Band Plays Berlin Music

The 165-member marching band will feature the Irving Berlin music during its half time show at Saturday's 2 p.m. football game here with Notre Dame. Highlight of the performance will be a "stereophonic" production of the Berlin song, "You're Just in Love."

Divided into two units, sections of the band will play separate melodies and perform different maneuvers. The result will be a separation of both sight and sound. Also included in the show will be two other Berlin compositions, "There's No Business Like Show Business," featuring the band in a 90-yard chorus line, and "Say It With Music."

Other songs will include "This Could Be the Start of Something," "Something for Cat," and "I Could Have Danced All Night." Musical arrangements and staging for the show will be by William C. Moffit, assistant band director.

Game time is 2 p.m., and the weatherman is predicting cloudy skies with cool temperatures.

There will be plenty of tickets available at the gate since the game is not expected to be a sellout.

MSU will be attempting to come one step closer to evening up the Notre Dame series which began with a 34-6 Irish victory in 1897.

Notre Dame holds a 16-12 edge in the series, but the Spartans have won the last seven contests between the schools.

The game looms as a key tilt for both teams. The Spartans will be attempting to retain the momentum of a four-game winning streak, and the Irish will be trying to snap a three-game losing string.

MSU will enter the game with their highest defensive and overall rating of the season.

The Spartans were ranked fourth in the nation in this week's poll, and they continue to rate high in several defensive departments as well.

The Green and White are currently second in the country in least rushing yardage allowed, and are eighth in total defense.

Mississippi has allowed its opponents only 64.1 yards a game on the ground. The Spartans are close behind at 66.4.

The Spartans also rank high in punting. They are third in the nation in team punting with a 40.9 average, and Lou Bobich rates eleventh in individual statistics.

Indians Badminton Champions

The Indian Club captured the Men's Intramural Independent Badminton Championship Wednesday night, by winning the tournament's doubles competition.

Arvind Summanwar and R. Srivastava dropped the Canadians 3-15, 15-9, 15-9 to win the doubles and take the tourney title.

The Canadian team was made up of Claude Fournal and Bob Doyle.

The team championship is awarded on the basis of total points accumulated in the singles and doubles matches. The Indian Club's doubles victory, accompanied by their high singles rating, gave them the championship.

Dr. Gutstein Moves Office

DR. JOSEPH B. GUTSTEIN

has moved his optometric practice to Suite 1516 Michigan National Tower. His offices were formerly in the Prudden Building.

A former professor of optometry at the Monroe College of Optometry, and Chicago College of Optometry, he has lectured extensively in the field of vision and eye care and is the author of a text book on optometry used in schools throughout the country.

Originally from New York City, he had his elementary, high school, college and university training there. Dr. Gutstein received a bachelor of science degree from the College of the City of New York and studied medicine in the Royal College of Physicians and Surgeons in Scotland before World War II.

A graduate of Columbia University School of Optometry, he taught elementary grades in Brooklyn prior to accepting a post as associate professor and head of the department of optometry at the Chicago College of Optometry. He was also assistant clinic director in charge of out-patients.

Holder of licenses to practice optometry in Illinois, Indiana, New York and New Jersey, besides the state of Michigan, Dr. Gutstein has been awarded the degree of Doctor of Optical Science for outstanding work in his field.

In the contact lens field, Dr. Gutstein was one of the first to introduce the latest techniques to the Central Michigan area. In 1958 he became a charter member of the National Eye Research Foundation. This foundation is a non-profit institution, chartered and dedicated towards encouraging progress through research in contact lenses. In 1959 Dr. Gutstein achieved fellowship rank in the National Eye Research Foundation.

In recent years he was invited to become a member of the Royal Society for the promotion of Health and Welfare. This is an international foundation for the promotion of health and welfare through the cooperation and coordination of all health related professions. The Royal Society has its main offices in London, England.

Dr. Gutstein has organized and attended seminars and study groups in the field of eye care in Chicago, Detroit, Grand Rapids and Lansing.

Locally and in civic affairs, Dr. Gutstein is a member of the Elmhurst PTA, West Junior High PTA, Congregation Shaarey Zedek, B'nai B'rith, the Hi-Twelve Club, the Kiwanis Club, Masonic Lodge No. 33 F. & A.M., Red Cross regional blood donors committee and the Lansing Library Committee.

Dr. Gutstein, his wife Bernice and three children, Geri, Shelly and Howard, reside at 1417 Woodbine St.

Active Greeks Named

Seniors Mix Work, Fun

Carol Krimian and Jerry Roberts have been selected as Seniors of the Week.

Both Roberts and Miss Krimian have been active in their Greek systems. Roberts was the administrative vice-president for IFC last year and Miss Krimian is the present treasurer for Panhellenic Council.

Miss Krimian, a home econ-

Soph Council and chairman for the Housemother's Tea. She is presently a member of Senior Council.

An Advertising major from Warren, Roberts is a member of Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity. He was social chairman and is currently president of the fraternity.

He was also publicity chairman for IFC, a member of the Student Faculty Social Committee and Student Safety Committee. He was night sports editor for the State News and is now a member of the advertising staff.

Roberts is a member of Blue Key, Kappa Tau Alpha and Alpha Delta Sigma honoraries.

Two summers ago Miss Krimian worked as a waitress at the Concord Hotel in the Catskill Mountains, in New York. "It was lucrative but obnoxious," she said. "By that I mean that although we got to see various stars and important guests, we were not allowed to use the hotel facilities."

Last summer she worked as a legal secretary. "It was wonderful experience especially after the previous summer."

The last two summers Roberts has worked at a resort in Wisconsin. "The first summer I was a waiter," he said, "and last summer I was promoted to bartender."

Roberts traveled to Pittsburgh for an IFC convention and to New Orleans for his fraternity conventions during the summers.

After she graduates next fall, Miss Krimian would like to teach junior high home ec. around the Detroit area.

CAROL KRIMIAN

Roberts plans to do account work for an advertising agency in Chicago. "Chicago, because the expenses of living are not as high as in New York," he said. Roberts will graduate this spring.

Get Credit Twice In 'Great Issues'

Students who have had the Great Issues course will be given credit if they re-enroll, said Donald R. Come, Great Issues chairman.

He said this is because the course will cover new topics.

Coed Journalists Hear News Talks

News coverage of an organization is not difficult to secure once the publicity chairman knows where, when and how to contact newsmen.

It was for this purpose that Theta Sigma Phi, women's journalism honorary, sponsored its annual publicity clinic Wednesday. Representatives from the campus news media and the Lansing State Journal spoke to students representing some 20 organizations.

Bruce Fabricant, State News editor-in-chief, outlined three purposes of the campus newspaper: to give information about campus activities, to provide a means of student expression and to give students practical experience in writing.

"We welcome all contributions to the paper," Fabricant said. Students must take the initiative if they wish to have their organizations publicized, he said. Otherwise, it is difficult for a student staff to cover some 28,000 campus residents, 3,000 professors and 11 colleges.

Dennis Smeage, Shaw radio representative, discussed both the Shaw and Brody dorm stations.

"We prefer all announcements to be sent in rather than phoned in because there is less possibility of error," he said.

Ruth Martens, State Journal student writer, explained the type of news she includes in her column. John Green, Journal staff writer, covers campus events for the paper.

A question-and-answer session followed the individual discussions of various media. The audience then broke into groups to discuss specific publicity problems.

"Publicity Please," a pamphlet listing area news media and people to contact was distributed.

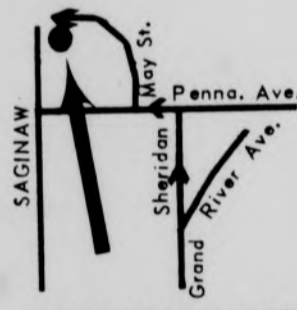

"We printed extra copies of the pamphlet and hope to get it to interested organizations," said Gerry Hinkley, Theta Sigma Phi president and State News campus editor.

tinued to vote for the principles and even the details of tax reform they have supported in the past, then we would have tax reform."

Democratic Lt. Gov. T. John Lesinski, issued a statement following the House action.

"The governor created an intolerable situation by failing to allow those members of both parties who were interested in fiscal reform to initiate action together from the very start.

"He was interested in a Republican fiscal reform only."

Seven Democrats voted for the amendment while 31 voted against it.

Asked if he thought the lack of Democratic support were more an attempt to hurt him politically than a vote against fiscal reform, the governor said he did not know.

November 16, 1953

Wisconsin's Badgers messed up any cut-and-dries aspects of the Big 10 football situation Saturday by working over Illinois in a 34-7 shocker. That means a nerve-twitching finale this week as both the Badgers and Illinois try to keep themselves in a championship picture that already has been taken over—at least in part—by Michigan State.

MSU's Spartans finished their big 10 season with a 5-1 record for this their beginning year in the conference.

Two new amendments to college rules were approved by the faculty recently. The amendments were: "Any student who has attained 92 or more credits shall not be permitted to enter or remain for more than two terms in the General curriculum division," and "Upon attaining junior standing, if the student is more than eight points in arrears, he will be dropped from the Division he is registered in."

nition that this group of employees should no longer be discriminated against because of their spouses' student status and that their efforts for the University are as demanding as those of a co-worker who is unmarried or married to a non-student."

Parking privileges would be extended for graduate assistants "in recognition that the University is placing more dependency on such persons for teaching and research," according to the proposal. Graduate assistants would also be allowed to drive on campus.

All students will be governed by the driver regulations, regardless of the credit load they are carrying. Students registered for less than six credits do not have to pay a car registration fee.

U.B. Dance Set

Union Board will sponsor a dance Saturday in the Union Parlors following the MSU-Notre Dame game. The cost is 25 cents per person.

Ohio State To Build Subway?

Ohio State University may build a campus subway to help solve its parking and traffic problems.

Like MSU, Ohio State is faced with the problem of transporting students to the center of the campus from outlying parking areas. Columbus police complain about constant parking violations by both on and off-campus students.

The proposed subway would lead from a large parking lot on the outskirts of the campus to the area around main classroom buildings known as the Oval. A tunnel would be built under the Olentangy River, which lies between the two areas.

The subway would probably run both above and under ground. Gordon B. Carsen, vice-president of business and finance, cited the football stadium as an area where tracks would be above ground. A pedestrian ramp would cross them.

Meeting Planned For Pre-Meds

Pre-medical students may meet members of the University of Michigan Medical School Admissions Committee Friday, November 22. A meeting will be held at 9:30 a.m. in the lounge of the Student Services Building. The meeting is primarily for the sophomore, junior or senior who has not made formal application for admission to the University of Michigan.

Students having any question pertaining to this meeting should contact the Placement Bureau.

Assistant Dean Postpones Talk

Laurine E. Fitzgerald, assistant dean of students, has postponed a speech previously scheduled for Monday on the status of modern college women until winter term.

The speech was to have been presented in East Landon Hall for residents of the West Circle Drive dormitory complex.

World News at a Glance

Bomb Injures Two Servicemen

SAIGON, Viet Nam (P)—A powerful terrorist bomb exploded in an open air cafe along Saigon's crowded bar alley Thursday critically injuring two U.S. servicemen.

The Communist guerrillas have vowed to intensify bomb attacks on U.S. military personnel and the bombing obviously was part of the campaign.

A passerby presumed to be a Viet Cong terrorist was believed to have hurled the bomb.

Eight Party Leaders Exiled

BEIRUT, Lebanon (P)—A power struggle among the Ba'ath socialists of Iraq led to the exile of eight party leaders Thursday. There were reports that Col. Abdel Salam Aref may be on his way out of the presidency.

The expulsions followed the exile to Madrid Tuesday of Deputy Premier Ali Salem El Saadi and a military clash and street demonstrations Wednesday that threatened to overthrow that Ba'ath government.

The latest turn appeared aimed at getting both rival factions—Saadi and his followers versus the Shebib-Jawad group—outside the country. This could pave the way for the return from Madrid of Saadi.

Reds Attack Unarmed Personnel

SEOUL, Korea (UPI)—The United Nations command in Seoul reports troops from Communist North Korea killed a South Korean official and wounded an American Wednesday. It said the Reds attacked a group of unarmed personnel in the demilitarized zone along the truce line.

Col. George Creel, a spokesman for the UN command, said the command has requested a meeting of the military armistice commission to protest "the unprovoked attack."

It was the first incident of aggression by North Korea in the truce area since last July.

Sen. Smith 'Formidable Politically'

WASHINGTON (P)—President Kennedy Wednesday called Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, a "very formidable political figure." He said he wouldn't relish campaigning against her in the New Hampshire presidential primary.

Mrs. Smith has said she is considering entering some presidential primaries, but hasn't definitely announced plans to enter any particular race.

Fuzak Doubts Gottlieb Plan For Research

A professor's suggestion that students do research with a faculty member on sabbatical leave is "only the glimmering of an idea," John Fuzak, dean of students, said Thursday.

David Gottlieb, professor of sociology, anthropology and education suggested in his "Last Chance" lecture Wednesday night that the University adopt a program in which a faculty member would be given a six month leave once every three years to do research work with a group of students.

Fuzak said that the idea is "hard to buy" unless it is worked out carefully and is presented in the form of a proposal. He suggested that interested students meet with Gottlieb and other faculty members to develop the proposal in detail.

"If plans are laid out well," Fuzak said, "the idea will be accepted and given a trial."

Gottlieb said in his talk that if students demonstrate enough interest in a good idea, someone in administration will support it.

Fuzak is also concerned that many faculty members on all University campuses have "gradually withdrawn from any contact and responsibility beyond the confines of the classroom, because of loyalty to their disciplines."

"But the professor's vision could be impaired by too much contact with students," he said. "It's a matter of balance."

Giving professors a leave of absence from class instruction would require some financial support, he said.

What Would The Flag Look Like With 51st?

BOISE, Idaho (UPI)—Idaho's skinny northern panhandle country between Washington and Montana has been the scene in recent weeks of "secession talk."

It became a reality Wednesday in a move described by one state official as "the spirit of fun and games." A group of Lewiston residents spent $20 to file articles of incorporation for "North Idaho."

The group wants to succeed the 10 northern counties from the 34 southern counties and form the Union's 51st State. They've already plastered yellow stickers reading "North Idaho--The 51st State" on traffic signs and utility poles in sections of the 10 counties.

An Idaho split-up has been proposed many times in the past. Once a "State of Columbia" was suggested but nothing came of the idea.

And in the 19th century, there was talk of creating a separate State from lands in North Idaho, Eastern Washington and Western Montana. Many thought Spokane would make an ideal capitol city, but the state of Idaho remained intact with its long panhandle strip.

Wednesday's move was met with mixed emotions.

Gov. Robert Smylie dismissed it as a "publicity gimmick." Secretary of State Arnold Williams, noting that it would take an act of Congress to create a new State, said he felt the State should resist any attempts at secession.

Atty. Gen. Allan G. Shepard said he thought the action was "in the spirit of fun and games."

'Strangers' Among Us

By Martin P. Wolf

"When Abraham sat at his tent door, according to his custom, waiting to entertain strangers, he espied an old man, stooping and leaning on his staff, weary with age and travel, come towards him, who was a hundred years of age. He received him kindly, washed his feet, provided supper, caused him to sit down; but observing the old man ate and prayed not, nor begged a blessing on his meat. He asked him why he did not worship the God of heaven. The old man told him that he worshipped the fire only, and acknowledged no other god. At which answer Abraham grew zealously angry that he thrust the old man out of his tent, and exposed him to all the evils of the night and an unguarded condition."

"When the old man was gone, God called to Abraham and asked him where the stranger was. He replied, 'I thrust him away because he did not worship thee.' God answered him, 'I have suffered him these hundred years, although he dishonored me; and couldst not thou endure him one night?'"

It would seem to me on our campus today there are strangers among us; shall we be like the misguided Abraham and thrust them out of our tent of understanding? Being a member of a minority group that has for several thousand years felt the impact of intolerance, I find it necessary to sympathize with the few minority groups on this campus, atheists, agnostics and other students who, by their own right, worship fire, themselves, nothing or what-have-you.

We who are the "believers" (and I happily proclaim this honor) have an obligation to the God in whom we believe to endure these strangers among us. Moreover, we must do so knowingly. What Abraham did unknowingly: wash their feet, provide meat and cause them to sit down among us. Why? Because if we really believe in the God above who helps direct our life and shows us the way of goodness and virtue, we must help him in his endurance. Sometimes we believers become overly zealous, and in so doing I think we err in God's eyes.

In recent months this column has been viciously attacked on grounds that in many instances are not supported by the laws of this country nor by the morality inherent in the establishment of this nation. This column, being in a paper published by a state university, has been challenged on grounds that directly or indirectly purport to the "separation of church and state" principle.

The Zorach case, judged by the United States Supreme Court in 1952, sustained the right of New York State to release public school students for religious instruction. The case itself has little bearing, but the majority opinion by Justice Douglas repudiates the absolutism of this principle. He stated, "When the state encourages religious instruction or cooperates with religious authorities by adjusting the schedule of public events to sectarian needs, it follows the best of our traditions. For then it respects the religious nature of our people and accommodates the public service to spiritual needs. To hold that it may not would be to find in the Constitution a requirement that the government show a callous indifference to religious groups."

This decision clearly indicates that the interpretation of the separation principle cannot be dealt with in terms of verbal absolutism. Paul G. Kauper in "Religion and the State University" states that, "The idea that the separation principle means the government cannot aid religion, if stated as a universal and absolute proposition, is not supported by precedent, history, or the common understanding."

I offer those who do not believe the following story as food for thought. Admittedly, it is not concerned with the above points, but for those who wish to remove God from education, there might be something here to think about.

Recently, a high-school teacher here in the United States entered his classroom to find a group of his students in the back of the room on their hands and knees. With a frightened look he yelled at them, "What are you doing back there?" The student closest to him answered, "It's all right, Mr. Smith, we are just shooting dice." The teacher sighed in relief and said, "Whew! For a moment I thought you were praying."

RELIGION EDITOR'S NOTE: Acceptable guest editorials for the column, "Faith On Campus," will be printed in the order in which they are received. Next week: "Agnostic's Corner: Why God?" by Huron Smith, Jr.

Six To Attend Inter-Faith Meet

Five MSU students and a university pastor will join Protestant, Catholic and Jewish groups from colleges all over the nation for a Student Leadership Conference on Religion and Race in Washington, D.C. next week.

The Rev. John Duley, pastor for United Campus Christian Fellowship and lecturer in the department of religion, will accompany the five students to the first inter-faith meeting of this kind on the student level.

About 50 Protestant, Catholic and Jewish campus religious workers and staff and student leaders from the Northern Student Movement, CORE and the Student Non-violent Coordinating Committee will serve as staff for the seminars and workshops.

Group Seeks Unity In Protestant Sects

Plans to bring together the nation's conservative and Evangelical Protestants were underway Wednesday.

The Rev. W. Stanley Mooneyham, acting executive director of the two million-member National Association of Evangelicals and sponsor of a church unity meeting in Detroit, said invitations for an "exploratory" meeting would be issued next spring.

He said the move could unite on a "fellowship" basis nearly 20 million Christians. Invitations issued by NAE leaders and other denominational heads would seek to bring together most of the Protestant groups who do not belong to the National Council and World Council of Churches.

The "united front," Mooneyham said, would link those who emphasize "Biblical authority and the person of Jesus Christ as Savior."

Invitations, he said, will go to Missouri-Synod Lutherans, Southern Baptists and the Church of the Nazarene, as well as 40 member denominations of the NAE.

for the seminars and workshops.

The student conference is an outgrowth of the historic National Conference on Religion and Race held in Chicago last January. It has been organized around a core curriculum of seminars and workshops designed to train for leadership and action on the American college campus.

The staff of national sponsors reported that student delegates are coming to the conference already convinced that "the educational institutions in the United States must not remain aloof" from the struggle for racial justice.

The students will not pass resolutions. The purpose of the national gathering is to enable students to apply locally the techniques and information gathered in Washington.

The students meeting in Washington from Nov. 17 to 20, will have an opportunity to meet with congressional and administration leaders on pending civil rights legislation.

White To Speak On Evangelism

John White of the International Fellowship of Evangelical Students in Latin America will speak to the public at the East Lansing Trinity Church Wednesday at 7 p.m.

In addition to student work, Dr. White spends part of each year in medical service in leper hospitals. He was educated in British medical schools and is the author of several articles on religious work among university students.

He said the move could unite on a "fellowship" basis nearly 20 million Christians. Invitations issued by NAE leaders and other denominational heads would seek to bring together most of the Protestant groups who do not belong to the National Council and World Council of Churches.

The "united front," Mooneyham said, would link those who emphasize "Biblical authority and the person of Jesus Christ as Savior."

Says Federal Support Needed

Neibuhr Urges School Aid

Reinhold Neibuhr, prominent theologian, has urged Americans to "get out of the rut of unreasoning prejudice and seriously consider the possibility of great federal aid to education" in an editorial published in several Protestant journals.

The aid program he envisioned would include private and parochial schools. He said that local communities can no longer cope with the financial burden of doing something about overcrowded schools, drop-outs, teacher shortages and outmoded curricula.

The Rev. Truitt Smith, of the Baptist Student Union, favors federal aid to education under limited conditions. In contrast to Neibuhr, he does not believe federal aid should include private or parochial schools.

"There is an important principle that I think should be upheld here, and that is the separation of church and state," he said. "I am very much in favor of public schools. If the schools do their job and the churches do theirs, we will get along fine. If parents want to send their children to a religious or private school, they should not do so at the public's expense."

The Rev. Fr. Robert Kavanaugh, St. John's Student Parish hopes the state and local governments continue to support education as long as they are able.

However, he holds that parochial schools should receive some assistance. "The right of education is not primarily the state's, but the parent's," he said. Of course, parents wish to give their children certain spiritual and moral values. For Catholics, this is generally done best in parochial schools.

Catholics are interested in public schools and do not mind supporting public education, according to the Rev. Fr. Kavanaugh. "They just wish to see a fair expenditure of the tax dollar."

He fears that parochial schools will be "priced out of existence" without some support. This would be tragedy, he said, because parents would have to see their children acquiring values which they consider false.

One plan which offers some hope of agreement between the two views is now being attempted in Cherry Hill, a suburb of Detroit, and the outskirts of Flint. In this plan, Catholic children take science and math courses and those requiring special equipment from the public schools. Religion and humanities are taught at the parochial schools.

Grade schools divided by religion date back to the Kaisers. Adolf Hitler put an end to them, but they were reintroduced after World War II by the Christian Democratic Party under Chancellor Konrad Adenauer. This party receives heavy support from West Germany's Catholics. The Catholic Church favors the separate schools.

The situation is different with high schools. Of these, 12 percent are private and mostly denominational, but 70 to 80 percent of their expenses are met by public funds. The rest of the high schools are state-run and completely secular, as are all universities.

Half of West German children are separated in grade school by religion, although parochial schools like those in the United States hardly exist.

There are publicly supported grade schools for Catholic children and publicly supported grade schools for Protestant children. Catholic classes are taught by lay Catholic teachers, and Protestant classes by lay Protestant teachers.

Different textbooks are used to reflect the different beliefs of the two traditions.

The remaining half of the nations more than five million children attend grade schools together, without regard to their religion. Each of the ten states determines its own type of school system. Some provide only separate schools, some only mixed schools, and some a combination of the two systems.

Private grade schools are allowed only under special circumstances and are very rare.
