7 Fail To Comply With Audit Rules

Report Excludes MSU, Wayne, Michigan

From Our Wire Services

Irregularities in audit procedures, accounting methods and noncompliance with state laws and rules with respect to handling appropriated funds were noted Wednesday in Auditor General Billie S. Farnum's audit report of seven Michigan universities and colleges.

Farnum's audit reported shortages of cash, part of which was under criminal investigation; improper use of state funds; and spending beyond legislative authorizations.

The report covered Central, Western, Eastern and Northern Michigan Universities, Ferris State College and Michigan Tech at Houghton and Sault Ste. Marie. Not included in the report were the state's three major universities, Michigan State, Michigan State and Wayne State or Grand Valley College.

With respect to Central, Farnum said a discrepancy of $2,999.72 in library fees was under investigation by state police and university officials. Four persons were involved, Farnum said.

At Ferris State College vending machine operations disclosed a cash shortage of $8,640.54. Farnum said a housing accountant admitted embezzling the funds. More than $2,700 in cash was recovered from the accountant, who was named in a warrant charging embezzlement and is awaiting sentence.

A cash shortage was noted in payroll deduction accounts at Western Michigan, Farnum said. This was reported by university officials and the state audit team set the shortage at $725. An employee made full restitution of the missing funds and was dismissed from her job, the auditor general said.

State May Audit College Records

BY JACKIE KORONA
State News Staff Writer

Auditor General Billie S. Farnum said Wednesday that his office is "considering an audit" of one of Michigan's three major universities.

Michigan State, University of Michigan and Wayne State University, as constitutionally self-governing bodies, are not required to undergo an annual audit by the state.

They do file an annual report of total expenditures of legislative appropriations for the previous year.

Farnum's comment followed disclosure of the results of audits at seven other state universities and colleges. The auditor general's report, distributed to the legislature and the governor, states that discrepancies have been found in uses of funds appropriated to the seven: Central, Western, Eastern and Northern Michigan Universities, Ferris State College, and Michigan Tech at Houghton and Sault Ste. Marie.

Farnum expressed a wish that "the schools would practice the business principles that they teach."

Representative Raymond C. Wurzel, R-Port Huron, and chairman of the House Education Committee, commented on the suggestions that Farnum has made to correct any questionable practices in schools.

"Our committee is working on implementation of the new constitution concerning schools," he said.

"I think we have taken care of several of these items in the bills which are now in the committee.

"However, we may now look over our recommendations and amendments to see how they compare with the auditor general's suggestion.

"We may also want to make some additions to our recommendations."

MSU Proposals Accepted

State To Hear Five

By CHARLES C. WELLS
State News Staff Writer

Five MSU proposals to stimulate the Michigan economy will go before the state legislature for approval within the next several months.

Eleven proposals were accepted out of more than 100 presented at legislative hearings Wednesday. The legislature appropriated $750,000 last spring for research at Michigan colleges and universities.

MSU faculty members appearing at the hearing to explain their proposals were Lawrence E. Dawson, department of food science; James W. Goff, school of packaging; John L. Hazard, department of marketing and transportation; Barret Rosenberg, biophysics department; and Lawrence W. Von Tersch, computer laboratory.

Dawson is asking $9,000 for a 24-month research project connected with foam-dried and freeze-dried eggs. He indicated that these products could be suitable for Michigan food processors. It would save about $400,000 each year from now unmarketable cracked egg losers.

Goff requested $6,500 for a six-month project to study demands for package manufacturing machinery.

"The project is designed to provide new jobs through the expansion of Michigan's tool and specialty machining manufacturing industry," he said. "There are many new opportunities for in-plant production of packaging machines to expand the machine market."

Von Tersch is planning a research project to study the feasibility of using MSU's 3600 computer installation in conjunction with industry.

The $26,000 12-month study would work out details on how industries could use the equipment via remote control from their offices. Users would be industries which could not economically install their own computer equipment.

To work out final details on a revolutionary color sensing device, Rosenberg is requesting $10,120 for a 12-month study. "The product would be less costly than present coloring measuring devices used in photography, printing, painting, fabric die control and other industries," he said.

Hazard is asking $24,120 in legislative support for a 12-month study to formalize a trade development policy for Michigan. Included in the study would be such proposals as how to expand exports and trade, cutting costs of reaching foreign markets, and servicing Michigan trade through Michigan port gateways, banks, and intermediaries.

Besides the five MSU proposals to be submitted to the legislature for approval, two came from the University of Michigan. One proposal was submitted by each of the following: Central Michigan, Grand Valley State College, Michigan Institute of Mining and Technology and Wayne State.

Total cost for the 11 research projects is $417,000.

The research proposals were submitted to the Michigan Department of Economic Expansion for consideration. The department then sent them to the legislature for approval. About $343,000 is still available for university research in Michigan.

Rep. Gilbert E. Bursley, R-Ann Arbor, indicated it would have cost more than $4 million to undertake all the proposals submitted to the department.

WASHINGTON (P)—President Johnson set as a goal for his administration a 5 million increase in jobs to a record total of 75 million, Wednesday he also asked organized labor and business for their support on tax cutting and civil rights legislation.

The President met in turn with AFL-CIO Executive Council and members of the business council in the White House cabinet room. In the strongest of terms, the President told both groups he wants and needs their help. And from leaders of both he received promises of support or expressions of confidence.

But labor leaders were more inclined to go down the line with Johnson and his program.

From the cabinet room meeting, Johnson went with the AFL-CIO group to the White House flower garden where he made a fighting speech appealing for help on his legislative program.

At the conclusion of his meeting with the businessmen, the President asked them to bow their heads in a moment of silent prayer for assassinated President John F. Kennedy. He called Kennedy "one of the greatest exponents of free enterprise we ever had."

Bolshoi Dancers Play Hard To Get

By CAROL WALLEN
State News Staff Writer

They came stepping lightly in ballet slippers into the Auditorium.

Braids disciplined their hair and pink ribbons disciplined the braids. The Bolshoi Ballet soon would begin.

But then the chatter began: "Hi Diana, Hi Susie." Were these the Bolshoi ballerinas greeting each other with American names and in unaccented English?

"No, we're from Lansing, but tonight we will dance with the Bolshoi stars," a tiny blond said before she skipped out of sight.

Seventeen Lansing area girls between the ages of 7 and 14 were chosen Saturday to dance in the final number, "Ballet School," Tuesday evening.

The dance combines the youngsters in a display of Bolshoi Ballet School teaching methods, with the company stars demonstrating the results.

Jimmye Listenbee, instructor of health, physical education and recreation, had charge of the 17 girls.

Cheryl Girvin, 11-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Foster Girvin, 435 S. Fairview, termed the show a "wonderful experience."

A student at the Simmons Virgiline School of Dancing, Cheryl has taken six years of instruction.

Cheryl expressed some disappointment in not being able to meet the Bolshoi dancers, but she said they were always practicing.

Her disappointment was shared perhaps by members of the audience.

Packaging School Plans New Center

MSU plans soon to start construction of a $400,000 building for the five-year-old packaging school.

The new building, the first unit of a proposed $2 million structure, will contain offices as well as research and teaching laboratories.

Construction funds, donated by more than 100 industrial firms, have been pledged to the Packaging Foundation, Inc., chaired by Maurice Day, senior vice-president of the Crucible Steel Co. of America and an MSU alumnus.

Although packaging is a $23 billion-a-year industry in the United States, MSU has the nation's only school of packaging.

"The packaging industry is very young," said Harold J. Raplael, associate professor. "Many companies do not yet recognize its importance."

"Our main trouble is to find qualified people to teach in this field," he said.

The school of packaging, which graduates from 45 to 50 students a year, is designed to teach people how to design and test packages for the industries of the world.

Legislature Votes To Quit Dec. 19

The Michigan legislature voted Wednesday to adjourn the current special session Dec. 19 at noon.

In a concurrent resolution offered by Sen. John W. Fitzgerald, R-Grand Ledge, the legislature set Dec. 10 as the date for introduction of bills.

The day before final adjournment, the Senate and the House of Representatives will meet for conference committee meetings, consideration of amendments to bills and conference reports.

Final action on amended bills in the committees must come either Dec. 18 or 19. If agreements cannot be reached the bills may be brought up again when the legislature convenes in January.

The first unit of the building is to be completed by the summer of 1964. It will be located south of the Engineering Building.

Something To Celebrate

Prohibition Dead 30 Years

Although East Lansing remains dry, the rest of the nation today celebrates the termination of nearly 13 years of prohibition 30 years ago.

The repeal of the 18th amendment to the U.S. Constitution legalized the sale of liquor in the nation Dec. 5, 1933. The decision was official when Utah became the 36th state to ratify the 21st amendment.

Black Muslims Suspend Malcolm X
CHICAGO (UPI)—The leader of the anti-white Black Muslim sect has suspended Malcolm X, his second in command, for expressing joy at the assassination of President Kennedy.

A statement issued by the Chicago headquarters of Elijah Muhammad said Malcolm did not speak for Muhammad when he characterized Mr. Kennedy's assassination as an instance of "the chickens coming home to roost."

U.S. Nuclear Force Proposal Opposed
PARIS (P)—The Western European Union, an advisory body of legislators from the six Common Market countries and Britain, voted Wednesday to oppose the U.S.-proposed nuclear force made up of the nations of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO).

The proposal was put forth nearly a year ago by President Kennedy.

The European Union vote has no direct effect on whether the plan will be accepted or rejected by the NATO nations, although the chief opponents are Britain and France.

Security Council Asks Arms Embargo
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (P)—In a rare show of unanimity the U.N. Security Council Wednesday called for a worldwide arms embargo against South Africa to curb enforcement of that country's white supremacy laws.

The 11-nation council approved a Norwegian resolution representing the toughest stand in U.N. history against South Africa's policy of apartheid, or rigid segregation.

The Norwegian resolution asked all nations halt shipments of supplies to South Africa's arms industry as well as arms themselves.

UPI Names Lewis All-American Back

NEW YORK (UPI)—MSU halfback Sherman Lewis was named to the 1963 All-American football team announced Wednesday by United Press International.

The following players were chosen as the 11 finest in the United States:

Ends --- Vern Burke, Oregon State; and Jim Kelly, Notre Dame.

Tackles --- Scott Appleton, Texas; and Carl Eller, Minnesota.

Guards --- Bob Brown, Nebraska; and Rick Redman, Washington.

Center --- Dick Butkus, Illinois.

Backs --- Roger Staubach, Navy; Gale Sayers, Kansas;

Sherman Lewis, Michigan State; and Jay Wilkinson, Duke.

The 1963 UPI first team includes four juniors. Butkus, Staubach, Redman and Sayers have another year of college eligibility. It marks the first time since 1955 that this many juniors have been named to a UPI All-American team.

Headed by Brown of Nebraska, who weighs 269, the All-American first team linemen average 230 pounds, one of the highest levels in history. Burke, the Oregon State end, is the lightest, at 201.

The backfield, with MSU scabbard Lewis weighing only 154, is light, but compensates for weight with unusual speed.

Just To Stay Awake

It doesn't seem to matter that they can cause a dependency verging on genuine addiction, or hallucinations, or latent psychoses. No, to many students seeking 'knowledge and truth' such facts are irrelevant. So, soon, as the squirming intensifies and desparation mounts, the benzedrine and dexedrine pills will make their appearance and lights will greet the dawn.

But, maybe this should be expected, for isn't it lack of foresight which initially necessitates the frenzied cramming of the drug users? Isn't it a lack of foresight which forgets the truly artificial nature of drug-induced alertness, an effect that can wear off with unexpected swiftness with potentially disastrous results?

The drug users forget all this and more. Benzedrine and dexedrine prevent the normal fatigue process, forcing the body to overextend itself. As a result outright collapse is not an infrequent outcome.

Such drugs have their proper use--under a doctor's supervision. Indiscriminate use by panicked students remains a poor substitute for procrastination.

Trial Demands Restraint

The trial of Jack Ruby should be neither broadcast nor televised and it is to be hoped that the Texas judge with whom the decision rests will rule in that sense. The question arises because the accused's lawyer has indicated that he would not object to the televising of the court proceedings in this case.

Canon 35 of the Canons of Judicial Ethics of the American Bar Association reads in part: "... The broadcasting or televising of of court proceedings are calculated to detract from the essential dignity of the proceedings, distract the witness in giving his testimony, degrade the court, and create misconceptions with respect thereto in the mind of the public and should not be permitted."

Canon 35 has the force only of recommendation, not of law, in many states, including Texas. Whether to accept or reject the recommendation in Ruby's case will therefore be up to the Texas judge before whom he will appear.

In a free country, of course, justice must be seen to be done. It will be difficult enough to give Ruby a fair trial under any circumstances, in view of uncertainties regarding his mental condition, community and national emotions, and many other factors.

But above all, it is the deep emotions likely to be stirred by this case that should be cause for concern. If sound and pictures from the court are fed into homes across the land, they could threaten the national will to healing and reconciliation so manifest in the aftermath of the tragedy.

Letters To The Editor

MSU Misrepresented

To the Editor:

It was with dismay and disgust that we read the letter to the editor in the December 2, 1963, Detroit Free Press by MSU student Hugh J. McDonald.

Mr. McDonald devotes his entire letter to a criticism of the actions of the administration and student body of this University during the period immediately following the assassination of President Kennedy.

Not being part of the administration, we have no comments to make concerning their action, but we bitterly object to the following paragraph of the letter which concerns the student body: "That very night--while 75,000 Berliners wept openly and unashamedly in the streets, while Parisians, Londoners, Muscovites and Romans marched in spontaneous and unmistakably genuine mourning processions, while every chief in East Katanga trooped weeping into the home of the U.S. Consul--hundreds of students were demonstrating throughout the MSU campus with snake dances and cries of 'Go, State, Go!'"

We are very impressed with Mr. McDonald's knowledge of worldly affairs, but very disheartened at his apparent ignorance of actual happenings at the school he chooses to misrepresent.

You may have seen a small group carrying on in the manner stated, Mr. McDonald, although we doubt it! But did you see the thousands of students pouring into the churches for Memorial Services?

Did you visit the dormitory rooms and see the tears?

Thanks, Mr. McDonald, for misrepresenting 27,000 students to over a million readers.

What We Owe

To the Editor:

It has been said, I believe, that man is more than just a mere animal because he was created with a superior intelligence, by which he could comprehend his environment and through which he could improve upon his conditions.

Upon the tragic death of John F. Kennedy, we witness man in his most tragic and primitive form. What perverted sense of logic and reasoning was used, if any? What did someone hope to accomplish? We see completely forsaken the only distinguishing faculty that exists which makes us superordinate to a mere animal. It's my belief that every time we misuse our ability to reason, or anytime we forsake it entirely, then we are relinquishing our right to be called human beings and revert to that most primitive state.

It is my belief that if this society is to progress, the unmerited, unwarranted bigotry and hypocrisy will have to be eliminated. This responsibility, this burden, rests upon the shoulders of every citizen, not only his neighbors.

I can not remember when so much has been owed by so many to one man and, paradoxically, when so little has been owed so many.

Columnist Notes Trials Of Trade

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (P)--Now and then a fellow ought to rear back and take a long steady look at how he earns his living--and what his work means to him.

It came as something of a shock to me the other day to realize I had been writing a daily newspaper column for 20 years, which made me feel something like a dinosaur at the typewriter.

I had to admit also to a feeling of humility. During those two decades I had composed more than 5,000 immortal messages to mankind, and what had they achieved? Very little, I must confess.

The world still seems embroiled in a great big mess, but I can't see that this is altogether my fault. No man can make a better world single-handed, and I don't feel I've had enough help on the job. And besides, I'm not through. Give me another 20 years, and I may be able to save civilization yet--the modest goal of every columnist, in one way or another.

The life of a columnist is hardly what some romantic members of the public think it to be. In this beatific vision of the columnist dwells in a penthouse, rides to work in a chauffeur driven limousine, spends his afternoons giving advice by long distance to the President and Nikita Khrushchev, and his evenings in the glamorous company of movie and society queens.

It hasn't quite worked out that way with me. My chauffeur is a subway motorman, I live in a four-room, well-appointed tenement apartment, film dolls rarely invite me out to supper, and sometimes days and days go by without either the President or Khrushchev asking me for help.

No wonder the world's in such a pickle. I haven't been given the tools to do the job.

Some more personal notes on the columnist's trade: It enlarges the soul, but wrinkles the brain.

There are those who believe that writing a column is an easy racket, but Don Marquis said it best long ago when he described this peculiar form of industry as "digging a daily grave."

Nine out of ten column readers firmly believe that, given the same opportunity, they could do a better job. And any columnist, if he is honest, must wonder if perhaps six out of ten of them aren't right.

It takes no unusual equipment to become a columnist. But you do need an insatiable curiosity about life, and a pair of ears bent from listening to others. A two-pants suit also is helpful, as a columnist spends an important part of his time sitting in a swivel chair staring hopelessly at the sullen typewriter.

The question a columnist is asked most often is, "where do you get your ideas?" The answer to his is, you don't "get" ideas; you beg, borrow or steal them--or excavate them out of a numb skull with the cold chisel of necessity.

The ordeal of the columnist is more lonely than that of motherhood, for when the birth pangs seize him neither nurse, doctor nor anyone else on earth can help him. Delivering brainchildren is a solitary occupation, and the results often are stillborn.

What is the real reward of columning? It is that old cliché of the newspaper world--"you meet such interesting people."

People make up a columnist's universe, and they are endlessly exciting--the schemers and dreamers, the oddballs and the geniuses, the rut-contented and path plowers. And there is no danger of running out of fresh material, as more people are born every day.

There is one other reward. A columnist is free, in Horace Greeley's phrase, to seek "the bright sunbeam of truth."

What more could a fellow want?

LBJ Tries For Tax Cut

(UPI)--President Johnson is wielding an economy broom with his eyes set on next year's tax fight in the Senate.

Washington analyst George J. Marder of United Press International reports that the President knows it shapes up as a rugged fight. But he figures he can put the tax cut bill over the top by showing Congress a sincere attempt to economize.

That's why he's concentrating so hard on keeping down the spending to be proposed in the next budget, due to be sent to Congress next month.

The facts of Congressional life rule out any Senate action on taxes until after the budget is received by the lawmakers. Many senators want at least a look at spending plans before committing themselves to the tax bill.

Here's how persons close to the President see the situation...

Budget spending figures will be the key to the tax fight...the House made this evident by calling for economy as it passed the bill. A Republican proposal to keep spending to this year's level was narrowly defeated.

It is too late to make the upcoming budget over into the new President's image. The budget for the next fiscal year has been in preparation for months...is now approaching its final screening at the White House. It isn't practical for the President to study individual items or subject them to critical examination. Nevertheless, unless some drastic controls are adopted, the budget will soar and thus endanger passage of the tax bill.

It's impossible to bring total spending below current levels, unless there's a big cut in defense which is not in the picture. Certain built-in expenditure increases based on greater population and projects previously authorized by Congress make some kind of an increase inevitable.

Congressmen who are demanding reduced spending are being wholly unreasonable. Presidential sources insist, and are conveniently ignoring their own votes in the past for the built-in increases.

Nevertheless, certain corners can be cut and waste eliminated to keep the budget increase within reasonable and manageable proportions...acceptable to the majority of lawmakers.

And that's what the President is trying to do...not by an item examination of budget spending...but by demonstrating his desire for economy to key officials and count upon them to look for places to save.

That's why he's been calling in the defense secretary and the commerce secretary and the budget bureau chief. He wants to impress upon them the need to search out places where spending can be cut, delayed, or at least increases held to the minimum. That's why he's been appealing to defense contractors to look for ways to save the government money.

As a Senator, Mr. Johnson was not a member of the so-called economy bloc headed by Senator Byrd of Virginia. There were times, especially for health and science research...when he called for greater spending than the White House had proposed. But as head of the Senate preparedness committee, Mr. Johnson had frequently pointed the way to savings in defense spending. He hopes to sweep the budget broom effectively enough to clear the Senate path for the tax bill early next year.

Part Of Rehabilitation Project

Deprived Youths Tour MSU

Twenty-six youths from the Detroit Special Education Vocational Rehabilitation Project toured the MSU campus Wednesday, through the planning of the Student Education Corps.

The adolescents, classified as mildly mentally retarded, come from areas of "environmental deprivation," said Bernard Barth, social group worker for the project, which provides schooling for students who at 15 are unable to keep up academically with their classmates.

"The children sent to us often have personality, emotional, and social problems that interfere with their learning. They have been culturally deprived and have little conception of how to conduct themselves in society," Barth said.

The retardation is rarely the result of a physical or mental deficiency.

The project attempts to widen the youths' horizons, place them in contact with a variety of public and social conditions, and "change them enough to enable them to get out into the world and hold a job."

The MSU tour, which included stops at the stadium, the plant science greenhouse, Bryan Hall, the cow barns, and the state capitol, is part of the plan to introduce the rehabilitation students to varied places of interest.

The Student Education Corps organized the tour in answer to a request from Barth. Bryan Hall provided "big brothers" and lunch for the visiting students. The Bryan residents decided to use their Christmas card funds to provide the meal.

The first stop of the tour Wednesday morning at the stadium provided some of the boys with an opportunity to engage in enthusiastic, impromptu football kicking and passing with Barth. Other visitors clambered over benches exploring the stadium or talked along the sidelines.

In the plant science greenhouse, the students questioned their guides and project instructors about the work going on. "What is he doing?" someone would ask, and the explanation would be given clearly with no apparent attempt to oversimplify.

"These kids are sharper than I thought," said one student as he searched for an employee to help answer a question.

"We try to make our students realize how to work for money. To most of them planning is foreign. They live only from moment to moment. We try to make them look further ahead, to realize how they can accomplish getting what they want," Barth said.

"Actually we try to disturb them a bit. Their home environment gives them no conception of the average middle class ideas. It is square to look at a newspaper and pencil and paper can actually frighten some of them."

Few have progressed beyond the fifth grade level.

"Many of these youths have lived through more than we will ever read about. They come from Detroit's most socially disadvantaged areas," said Fred Tinning, rehabilitation counselor at the project.

exceeded state appropriations in their fiscal year 1962-63 spending by $3,781.17. Farnum said this could be explained by the difficulty in accurately estimating year-end expenditures such as expense accounts and other unknown costs. But he said it was a state institution's responsibility to stay within the legislative appropriation.

Michigan Tech officials at Houghton were criticized in the audit report for spending $85,192 to refurbish an old building for use as a president's residence. Farnum said the university used more than $27,000 in state funds on the capital outlay project which were appropriated for other purposes.

State regulations and law require work orders for capital outlay projects approved by the state administrative board. Farnum said the institution did not get a work order for the project and used maintenance men and other laborers on operating fund payrolls for the residence work, which should have been put under contract bids.

Farnum's report was given to the governor, members of the legislature and the attorney general Wednesday.

He said any action taken in the major irregularities would be left to the legislature or attorney general.

He made a number of general recommendations based around establishing uniform accounting standards for all the institutions.

Literary Mag Heads Selected

Jim Cash, Grand Rapids senior, was named editor-in-chief of the 1964 literary magazine, Red Cedar Review. He was chosen by Carl Hartman, English professor and chairman of the Red Cedar Review committee.

Other appointments include Margaret Case, Philadelphia, Pa. senior, poetry editor; and Fred Piet, Detroit junior, fiction editor.

Virgil Scott professor of English, will again serve as adviser.

Students interested in staff positions may pick up applications at the English department office in Morrill Hall.

"When I return to East Lansing, I hope to get some sort of clerical job before any more operations," he said.

Sunday, the proceeds from a special Christmas collection at St. John's student parish will go to Clabbers for future school costs and other expenses incurred during his stay in the hospital.

Last February Clabbers was involved in an accident which took the lives of an MSU senior and two teenagers from Okemos and Lansing.

Clabbers received severe bruises and what was reported as a fractured right leg. He spent over a month in Sparrow Hospital in Lansing before beginning his long stay in Olin.

Since that time he has had 11 major operations on the leg. "They let me go out for short times between operations," Clabbers said. "One night I went to a movie and met Wendy."

"We got to know each other and finally became engaged about two months ago."

Since he is not in school this term, Clabbers has no studying to while away the hours in Olin.

A Scrabble game and one called Stratego sit on his window sill. A television set stands in front of the bed.

"He's like a living 'TV Guide,'" said his fiancée.

Clabbers has also had "about 16 roommates" in Olin to help pass the time.

Kodak Aids Dallas Hunt For Clues

DALLAS 4--The Eastman Kodak processing laboratory in Dallas is including in processed film returned to customers small slips reading:

"President's assassination. Should this film contain pictures taken of President Kennedy's assassination, call your local FBI office immediately."

The notifications were put in film packets beginning Nov. 25 and will be included through this weekend.

Kodak officials said it was done on "very strong request" from the FBI, although they were anxious to cooperate, anyway.

Fencers Map Defense Of Big Ten Crown

By RICHARD SCHWARTZ
State News Sports Writer

Target date for the start of the 1964 fencing season may be February 1, but for the Big Ten champion Spartans, the critical phase begins now.

With the graduation loss of foil fencer Dick Schloemer and several key figures in last year's campaign, Coach Charles Schmitter's outfit must find replacements for starting roles.

Schmitter, entering his 26th year of Spartan coaching, realizes the task facing his squad:

"Anytime you're defending champion you're on the spot," he said. "We'll have more pressure this year than we had in several seasons imply because everybody's laying for you."

Schmitter said the team has good potential though he didn't feel it's up to last year's at this point.

"I can't say that I'm really satisfied with the way the team has shaped up in fall practice but we'll keep working and see what happens."

Put to analyzing strengths and weaknesses in each weapon class,

Schmitter minced few words:

"As it looks now, we should find our greatest strength in foil. Sabre shows promise, but epee is going to be our weakest spot."

Schmitter will be pinning foil hopes on Neis Marin and Bryan Kutchins, both lettermen who saw regular action last season. Competing for a third position in the line-up will be a host of sophomores and juniors.

"We aren't going to be as tough as we were last year because of the loss of Schloemer," Schmitter said of foil prospects.

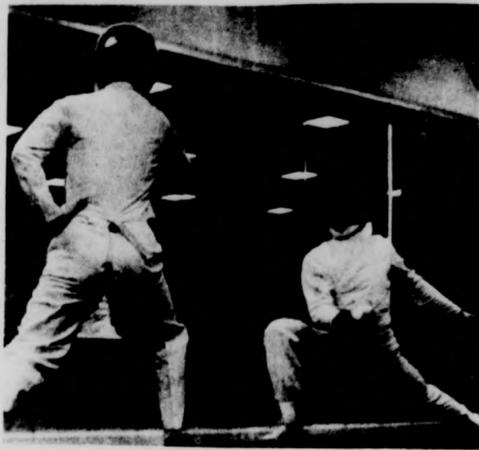

"But we should have a fairly well balanced foil team if Marin and Kutchins come up to expectations."

"There are going to be a couple of dog fights," he said of the open position in foil. "This should be good for the team."

State's sabre fortunes will ride on success of Captain Lou Salamone, last year's Big Ten sabre champion, and Dave Simmons.

"We could be pretty well off if these people fence somewhere near potential," Schmitter commented.

"Salamone should do well," he

said. "He's become more poised this year and has a better idea what's going on. Simmons has come along pretty well in the little while he's been with the team and with more bouting experience could make a good reputation for himself."

The road ahead in epee is probably the most difficult for the Spartans and Schmitter. With Bob Brooks (1961 Big Ten title) and Capt. John Pelletier gone, epee will be a haven for a new crop of hopefuls.

Likely to get a call for starting positions are juniors Joel Serlin and Gene Pawlik. Both saw limited action last season.

"We're going to be missing Pelletier and Brooks," Schmitter said. "Here's where you have to say we have unknown quantity. Right now it's the weakest weapon but it could very well shape up."

Two Spartans Get Awards

The presentation of the Ross Trophy to Ed Youngs and the Danziger Award to Dewey Lincoln were the highlights of the Detroit MSU Alumni Club dinner held in honor of the Spartans at Cobo Hall Tuesday night.

Judging for the Ross Trophy was based on athletic ability plus scholarship.

The Danziger Award is presented to the Spartan from the Detroit area who has contributed the most to the team.

Youngs played center for MSU during the past three seasons. This year he was hampered by two injured knees, but he was still able to make a significant contribution to the team.

Lincoln earned three letters for the Spartans while playing halfback. He broke his jaw in the Southern California game this year, but it didn't stop him from doing an outstanding job offensively and defensively for the rest of the season.

State Nips Western By One In Thriller

Despite a 45 point effort by Manny Newsome for Western Michigan, Spartan cagers fought to a 101-100 victory over the Broncos before 8,821 fans at Jenison Fieldhouse last night.

It was the second consecutive 100 plus splurge by the Spartans who were led by center Fred Thomann with 26 points and sophomore guard Stan Washington with 25.

State battled to the wire to register the win. A steal by Pete Gent with the Spartans behind 98-97 set up a crucial State scoring play.

Two free throw opportunities by MSU's Tom Douglas at this point failed but Marcus Sanders grabbed the rebound and put the Spartans ahead 100-98.

Western, who while ahead 98-97 attempted to stall play, now was faced with a similar display by State. All the Broncos could manage was a final score with about five seconds remaining to finish an even 100.

After trailing 49-44 midway in the game, State rallied to a lead of several points in the early stages of the final period. Western tied it again at 5:45 and from there on it was back and forth for both teams.

Both teams got off to a slow start at the outset of the game. With two minutes of playing time elapsed, State held a 3-0 advantage on free throws.

But it wasn't until two and a half minutes had gone by that Thomann sank the game's first basket for State.

Sanders and Gent each had 18 points for the Spartans who hit for 46 per cent of their field shots. Bill Schwarz also hit double figures with 12 points.

Western had 42 per cent accuracy in field shots. In addition to Newsome's 45, high scorers for the Broncos were Ajac Triplet with 18, Bill Street with 15.

The Spartans' next foe will be Bowling Green, Saturday. Game time at Jenison Field House is 8 p.m.

Stadium Press Box A Busy Place

As the crowd cheered for the Spartans and Illini at last week's championship game in Spartan Stadium, another crowd was working to spread the play-by-play game information through the stadium and around the country.

Hundreds of publication and broadcasting representatives filled the six levels of the stadium's press box, one of the nation's most elaborate sports information facilities, as the Big Ten title was decided.

The Spartan press box has room for over 500 people at a time. It spreads over 94 yards of the stadium's west side, between the two 3-yard lines on the field. It was built at a low projection, so the writers and broadcasters can have a close-up view of the game unmatched in any stadium of comparable size.

From the bottom up, the press box's first level is the admissions area. Credentials are checked here and each worker is assigned to his respective press deck.

The second level contains the darkroom and wire-service transmission suites where the information that comes from the higher levels is processed and sent out.

The third level includes the press lounge, a cafeteria, telephone headquarters, and a television workroom. The lounge and cafeteria seats about 200 people.

Lackey Hockey Captain

Veteran defenseman Carl Lackey has been elected State's 1963-64 hockey captain by vote of his teammates.

Lackey, a senior from Sault Ste. Marie, has been an outstanding performer for the Spartans for the past two years. He finished up with 13 assists and a goal last year and is described by Coach Amo Bessone as perhaps the best offensive defenseman in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association.

As a sophomore Carl posted four goals and nine assists thus making him the highest scoring defenseman for two straight years.

Carl combines with Jim Jacobson to form what Coach Bessone calls, "the finest defense Michigan State has had since our championship team of 1958-59."

This is the first year that Carl is the only Lackey on the Spartan squad. His brother, Tom, graduated last year and is now helping Bessone with his freshman crew.

and pre-game lunches are served here to press workers.

Actual broadcasting begins on the fourth level up where 100 cameramen working for television, and newsreels set up shop each game. A special section on this level provides space for University officials to entertain guests up to 40 at a time.

Second from the top is the headquarters for the press, with room for 200 people. Thirty Western Union positions may be occupied at any time and two snack bars are provided for the convenience of writers.

The highest level of the press box holds the radio deck, with 19 booths. Thirteen are radio broadcasting booths, and the others are for the stadium public address system, game movies and the teams' coaches. Just three of the press box's six levels—the radio, press and photo decks—look out on the field. Pressmen, covering a game do not have to do all the fact-finding work themselves. They are given "flip cards" which contain rosters of the competing teams and game histories. During the game and immediately afterwards, workers are given complete information and statistics on the game, as well as locker-room quotes from coaches and reports of any injuries.

A total of 16 radio broadcasts were planned for Saturday's game. One television camera crew and two television audio crews also were at work.

The television set-up was for the advantage of students of the University of Illinois who could not make the trip to East Lansing. A closed-circuit broadcast carried the game to the Illinois campus. Two West Coast television stations also taped accounts of the game for their listeners.

Fred Stabley, sports information director, said Spartan Stadium's elaborate press facilities make a profit for the University.

"Radio receipts will range from $10,000 to $25,000 for a season," he said, "depending on the kind of year we have, and a televised game can mean as much as $80,000 or $90,000."

The money brought in in this way helps pay for the University's sports publicity services.

ence when they learned that only those directly connected with the show were allowed backstage. Reporters and photographers peered through open doors to catch glimpses of the leotard-clad dancers before the curtain rose.

"We're sorry ma'am, no one is allowed backstage during class," a man said as he directed a woman to the door. Snatches of Russian could be heard backstage, drawing another line between performers and audience.

But once the curtain rose, no language was needed. Applause from an appreciative audience broke into the dances and brought performers back for bows and encores.

So long and often did the audience applaud that the program lasted until 11 p.m. A standing ovation complimented the Russian company and the American youngsters as the curtain fell.

Tippit Donations Near $120,000

DALLAS 4--Donations for the family of slain Dallas policeman J. D. Tippit neared the $120,000 figure Wednesday and his two sons were promised scholarships at Texas A&M University.

The scholarships for Curtis and Allen Tippit will be sponsored by the Dallas A&M Club and the Texas A&M Former Students Association.

"The only thing they will have to do to obtain the scholarships is meet the entrance requirements," an alumni official said. "As I understand it, one of the boys is 15 years old and the other is quite a bit younger."

Contributions coming into the Dallas police station totaled $63,173 at a preliminary count near the end of the day. Money sent to other places totals about $55,000.

Seminar Set For February

World Change Analyzed

An international relations seminar, "The Winds of Change in the Emerging Nations," is scheduled for Feb. 28-Mar. 1.

Sponsored by All-University Student Government, the International Relations Club, and the National Student Association, the seminar will consider guerrilla warfare, and conditions necessary for revolution.

Leo Cherne, chairman of the International Rescue Commission and executive director of the Research Institute of America, will deliver the keynote address, "Revolution in our Time: The Tragedy of It's Betrayal."

The various delegations will be treated to banquets and an informal dance in addition to the different speeches and discussions scheduled.

Participating in the seminar will be delegations from the Midwest Region of the Association of International Relations Clubs, the Big Ten universities, Michigan Region of the National Student Association, AUSG, Campus UN, and the MSU International Club.

"The intention of the seminar is to stimulate a wider concern among the students of the participating schools in the field of international relations," said Sandy Henry, Port Huron junior and public relations director of AUSG.

Major General Edward G. Lansdale, USAF, assistant to the secretary of defense for special warfare, will speak on the strategy and tactics of change during a revolution.

U. N. Ambassador Adlai Stevenson has been asked to take part in the seminar. If he comes, he will be speaking on "How New Will the Better World Be?" a discussion of a world federation of states and peace in the future.

Among M.S.U. faculty members taking part in the seminar are: Baljit Singh, assistant professor of political science, an ex-

Toy Drive Collection Starts Today

Two campus organizations today will begin collecting toys for their annual "Toys for Tots" drive to provide Christmas toys for underprivileged children.

Members of the Semper Fidelis Society for future Marine officers and Zeta Beta Tau fraternity will take part in the drive. They will be stationed at laundry centers in married housing areas to pick up new repairable toys.

The program is run by the Lansing Marine Corps Reserve Unit, and has brought toys to thousands of children in the Lansing area over the past several years.

Anyone with toys to contribute who is not near a collection area can call ED 2-3565 for collection. Toys will be collected until Dec. 20.

Pope Gives Bishop More Authority

VATICAN CITY (AP) - Pope Paul VI Wednesday decreed Roman Catholicism's greatest reform in worship in 1,700 years and then told his bishops they must assume a greater share in church government.

Addressing the Vatican Ecumenical Council, he also revealed plans for an unprecedented personal pilgrimage sometime next month to the Holy Land--the first by a reigning pontiff.

The three steps were strides on the path to Christian unity and Roman Catholic renewal, a path charted by Pope John XXIII. In a three-hour meeting of the council, its last until next September, the Pope and his assembled bishops made sweeping changes in centuries-old traditions and practices.

Their liturgy reform, in the first Roman Catholic conciliar decree in 93 years, opened the way for the use of modern languages in the Mass and sacraments. Latin had been used since the third century A.D.

Pope Paul's appeal to the bishops to clarify their role in church government put him on the side of progressive prelates advocating such a review in the interest of Christian unity.

'Christmas Is' Party Theme

"Christmas is..." will be the theme of the annual MSU employees' Christmas party to be held Thursday, Dec. 19, from 8 p.m. to 11:30 p.m. in the Union.

The party's activities will include billiards, bowling, chess, cards, table tennis, checkers, and movies. Various exhibits and demonstrations will also be featured.

The Virgiline Simmons Dancers will present a program of popular dances, followed by continued dancing in the Union Ballroom and Parlor.

Control Data 3600 Fills Modern Needs

The University's new Control Data 3600 computer can do in seconds problems that human beings would take years to do.

The computer, which was delivered here in July, 1963, replaced an older computer, the MISTIC, which was unable to keep up with demands of modern research.

The University's 3600 is the third one made by the Control Data Corp. State was supposed to receive the first one, but because of national defense priority it went to the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory of the Atomic Energy Commission, and the second went to another defense agency.

The computer is used by many departments, ranging from engineering to political science, and also by student and faculty researchers.

Those who have financial support for their programs pay a fee for the computer, data preparation and programming assistance. Those without assistance have free use of the computer but must prepare their own data.

The University cyclotron project and the Communications Research Center have been heavy users of computer time.

State is paying $1,387,800 of the cost of the computer and equipment. The actual cost is $2,980,000 but the University received an educational discount.

The National Science Foundation contributed $400,000 toward the purchase.

PJ Party Set

Phi Kappa Tau fraternity will hold its annual pajama party Friday at the house.

Men and their dates will wear pajamas.

The evening will be highlighted by a pizza dinner and the appearance of Santa Claus, who will give a present to each date, the housemother and the cook.

Museum Recreating American Wilderness

Members of the MSU Museum staff are traveling to places such as the Central American tropics or the Arctic tundra region to gather information for a series of seven exhibits on American animal life which the museum is building. The exhibits will include the animals of the Central American tropics, the Sonoran desert in southwest United States, Rocky Mountains, Great Plains, northern woods, Arctic tundra and the eastern deciduous woods in the North Central United States. The fourth exhibit, grassland animals of the Great Plains, is being completed this term. This project is headed by John Metheany, museum technician and instructor of art, and John Hope, Museum staff artisan and sculptor. The prong antelope is the most noticeable grassland animal. Also included in this exhibit will be snakes, moles and a reconstructed anthill. Background material in all the exhibits is painted or manufactured scientifically accurate in all details, Metheany said. Grass is sent from the various regions to the Museum where it is preserved by a chemical bath then sprayed with the correct shade of green paint. Leaves are constructed from plastic, wax or paper. Even the rocks are manufactured because the exhibit floor could not support the weight of natural formations. If the exhibit is inaccurate from the viewpoint of a geologist or an ecologist then it must be reconstructed, Metheany said. In order to be scientifically accurate members of the museum staff go on field trips or "pilgrimages" to each area. Accompanying these men are photographers, hunters, geologists and artists. "The completed projects give visual information about natural objects of a scientific nature," Metheany said. The diorama, or painted background, is an extremely objective work of art. It must be painted so accurately and impersonally that it cannot be recognized as the style of any particular artist. Lighting, too, plays an important part in each exhibit. Shadows falling against the background would destroy the illusion of space. Not all animals from each region can be grouped in one display, Metheany said. It would be unnatural to have a deer and a mountain lion standing serenely side by side.

Emphasis On Thinking

New Course Aids Writers

Help may be on the way for students who have come to regard English composition as an exercise of agony.

D. Gordon Rohman, assistant professor of English, has launched an 18-month study designed to help teachers show average and poor writers "how to do consciously what the good writer does unconsciously."

Aided by a grant from the U.S. Office of Education's Project English, Rohman has designed an experimental course that places emphasis on the "strategy" of writing.

English teachers, he believes, pay too much attention to the "tactics" of student writing. "Because it has been easier to do," he says, "we have addressed ourselves to the end product of a student writer's labors: the overt composition, put in words, on bond paper, with suitable margins and proper heading."

By the time a student has drafted a composition, Rohman said, it is too late to give him help where he most needs it.

"The really serious job of response to experience freshly conceived has been left to the student's unaided and untutored imagination, and no amount of red penciling can turn his stones into bread, his water into wine."

Writing, says Rohman, is a "thinking-writing" process, and he wants more emphasis placed on the "thinking" portion, the all-important mental exercise that takes place before pen meets paper.

The result is an experimental course which he terms a "pre-writing course."

Students are asked to write an essay each week, plus shorter writing exercises both in and out of class.

They do not, however, concern themselves solely with correcting bad grammar, improper style, or faulty expression. These, Rohman said, do not comprise the "real badness of writing."

Bad writing, he says, is a matter of "stale perspective, standardized conceptualization and old-hat structuring." These result from "cliche response" to "what is."

Conservative Raps Choice Of Warren

The key to MSU's course is analogy. Effective use of analogy, Rohman explains, leads to creative, orderly thinking. This kind of thinking is vital to the writer who seeks freshness and originality.

"The best analogies," he says, "have freshness that involve an intuitive perception of similarity between dissimilars so that the comparison comes as a shock, but a shock of recognition."

A conservative spokesman and admitted member of the John Birch society Tuesday night criticized the appointment of Chief Justice Earl Warren to a fact finding board studying the assassination of President John F. Kennedy.

Clarence E. Manion, former head of the Notre Dame law school told the Conservative Federation of Michigan meeting at Sexton High School, that several days before the appointment of Warren, the Daily Worker came out suggesting that the Chief Justice be made a member of the fact finding board.

He also said that since Lee Harvey Oswald, alleged assassin of President Kennedy, admitted that he was a Communist, it is up to the Communists to prove that he wasn't under orders.

"If he wasn't under discipline, then the burden of proof is on the other side," Manion said.

He called communism in the United States a "diabolic, Luciferian conspiracy" trying to destroy this country.

"After the President's death, let no one ever say again that there is not an internal threat from Communism in the United States," he said.

Manion said that our foreign policy should be strengthened to enable us to achieve an outright victory in the cold war, and that we should break off diplomatic relations with "these scoundrels."

"No co-existence is possible," he added.

Almost all of the problems in this country are due to the failure of our foreign policy, he said, adding that neither political party offers a choice.

Don't Be Just Half Safe

Be sure to know the contents of that deodorant you are using. This knowledge could save your life.

A recent report by the American Medical Association warned that people who rub an antibiotic into their skins, either in a deodorant or in other skin applications, may become "sensitized" to it.

If this happens internal use of the antibiotic is likely to cause skin irritation and could result in death.

Dr. James S. Feurig, health service director, said it is a good idea to know the contents of any deodorant or skin application which is used.

If a doctor is aware that a person is using an application which contains an antibiotic such as penicillin, Feurig said, he will take precautions before using that particular antibiotic on the person.

Scientists To Speak On Nerves

Three scientists will discuss problems relating to the nervous system here Monday.

Speaking at a seminar in 31 Union at 4 p.m. will be Dr. John I. Johnson, Dr. David Megirian and Dr. Serpas Putnam. Dr. Johnson is from the laboratory of neurophysiology at the University of Wisconsin. Drs. Megirian and Putnam are from the departments of physiology and anatomy, Emory University.

The seminar is being sponsored by the institute of biology and medicine. Reports are scheduled on "Raccoon Dorsal Column Nuclei: Correlates of Behavioral Specialization in Neural Anatomy and Physiology," "Ascending Vestibular Projections," and "Mammalian Inter-hemispheric Pathways."

Dr. Johnson has been studying behavior in the raccoon and how it relates to man. He will continue his studies in Australia next year.

The scientists will tour University facilities and talk with faculty members before the seminar.
