Three Tell Personal Experiences

Students Divided Over Counseling

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles on mental health among college students.

By NECIA BROWN
State News Staff Writer

Students are divided in their feelings about the Counseling Center. Many feel it is beneficial. But some retain problems which leave them confused and at a loss.

Take Alice, who was a freshman. She had attended universities in Guam and England where her father had been stationed. When she came to MSU she found her credits unacceptable.

This placed her far behind and left her frustrated and confused. She was far from her parents and found it difficult to adjust to her new environment. Lonely and depressed, she sought help from the Counseling Center.

She found a sympathetic and willing listener at the Center. She was very pleased. Vocational doubts plagued her, so, upon the suggestion of her counselor, she took placement tests.

Alice saw her counselor only a few times. He was leaving the Center to do research work. Disappointed and feeling that she did not wish to speak with anyone else, Alice never returned for further aid.

"I was half-satisfied," says Alice. "He was the warm listener I needed, but I guess I needed more."

Alice holds no grudges against the Center. She is now a resident in a dormitory and has an excellent academic record. But, she is frequently "sick," studies well into the early morning hours, and relies on pills.

Mary is a junior. Feeling that she could no longer cope with personal and academic pressures, she reluctantly sought help from the Center as a last resort.

Unable to receive an immediate appointment, Mary felt angry and hurt, but was prevented from breaking her appointments by her friends.

Mary kept her appointment, but she was hostile and suspicious. After her first half-hour interview, she knew she would not return. Her counselor made her feel "uncomfortable" because he "merely listened and seldom spoke." When he did speak he told nothing she did not already know.

Asked if she wished to return for further counseling, she was angry and said she didn't see what good it would do. He certainly hadn't helped her in any way.

It seemed to her that he agreed. "He as much as told me 'Good Luck. I hope that you can figure out your own problems. Have a nice life!' He couldn't have cared less, and he seemed totally incapable of advising me in any way." Mary says bitterly.

Mary left the building in tears. She felt that if a professional counselor couldn't care or take the time to care, then who could? She had tried many other sources unsuccessfully.

Mary remains a confused, bitter girl.

GOVERNOR GEORGE ROMNEY

Stresses Higher Education

Asks $21 Million School Aid Hike

BY JACKIE KORONA
State News Staff Writer

Gov. George Romney told the legislature Thursday that he will recommend a 1964-65 budget of approximately $624 million to be appropriated with "restraint and sound judgment."

In a 36-minute State of the State address to a joint session of the House and Senate the governor outlined what he termed a "tight budget" for taking care of immediate urgent needs.

Romney stressed appropriations to higher education and mental health facilities and said that all of the finances would be taken from existing state revenues.

"The post-war population explosion will hit our 10 state-supported universities and colleges with full effect next fall," he said. "They have not fully recovered from the fiscal crisis curtailments of the last few years."

He recommended an increase of $21 million in operating funds for the state institutions of higher learning.

Added to last year's appropriations figure of $110 million, the governor's recommendation would leave the total operating fund some $4 million short of the amount cited by his special committee appointed to study higher education.

Romney also called for $27 million to continue construction of 25 buildings on college campuses and suggested plans for $41 million in new construction.

"In the next three years, this will provide $100 million in new campus buildings on a pay-as-you-go basis," the governor said. "The $21 million increase in operating funds is designed to cover anticipated enrollment increases next fall, plus a general faculty pay increase large enough to do some catching up, plus equipment increases, plus funds to get ready now for the heavier avalanche of students in the fall of 1965."

Romney said that some of the state's "most distressing and

Hits Goldwater For 'Harm To U.S.'

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara accused Sen. Barry Goldwater Thursday of damaging the national security with a statement that America's long-range missiles are not dependable.

"Completely misleading, politically irresponsible, and damaging to the national security," was McNamara's retort to the Arizona senator's statement.

Goldwater, campaigning in New Hampshire for the Republican presidential nomination, told a news conference at Portsmouth that President Johnson's proposed defense spending cuts mean a reduction of the manned bomber fleet.

Asserting this would put too much reliance on the nation's missile forces, Goldwater said intercontinental ballistic missiles are not reliable.

He said short-range missiles are reliable weapons but "our intercontinental missiles are not dependable."

Goldwater, a major general in the Air Force Reserve and a longtime Congressional champion of the manned bomber's role in defense strategy, did not go into specifics, saying that is a security matter. But he insisted the long-range missiles are dependable.

"I can tell you that and I'll probably catch hell for saying it," he said.

McNamara, a Republican, said in a statement issued at the Pentagon:

"There is no information, classified or otherwise, to support the false implication that our long-range missiles cannot be depended upon to accomplish their mission."

Creative Awards Discontinued

MSU's unique Scholarships for the Creative program has been discontinued for this year only in every department except music.

The unusual scholarships were previously offered to gifted students in creative writing, art, and theatre, as well as music.

Ronald J. Jursa, assistant director of admissions and scholarships, said it is "nearly certain" the program will be resumed next year in every department.

"Scholarships for the Creative was one of the few programs of its kind in the country," Jursa said. "There were several reasons, most of them financial, that it could not be operated this year."

The music department is the only one which will receive funds from the admissions and scholarship office to carry on the program this year. Jursa said a "special exception was made for the department."

"There were several good and sufficient reasons for the music

Hannah Traces Overseas Tour

Editor's Note: This is the first of a three part series on President John A. Hannah's trip to Michigan State's overseas projects.

By CHARLES C. WELLS
State News Staff Writer

President John A. Hannah is back on campus following a month-long tour of MSU's university operations overseas. He took time out Wednesday to reflect upon his trip, which began Nov. 23 and ended Dec. 24. Hannah, whose son, Robert, a Yale University senior, went with him, indicated the trip gave him great satisfaction.

He seemed at first reluctant to discuss his tour.

"There isn't anything more irritating than to have someone travel abroad only to return to set himself up as an authority on the area he has seen," he said.

Housing Charge Probed

The University is investigating a student complaint concerning alleged racial discrimination in an off-campus residence on the approved housing list.

Official policy requires a residence be taken on the approved housing list if investigations show discrimination has been practiced on the basis of race, creed, color or national origin. Landlords sign a pledge that they will not practice discrimination when they are placed on the approved MSU housing list.

Patrick Smith, director of off-campus housing, said the office is "speaking with all the people involved in the complaint, including the landlord and those who brought the issue to the attention of the University."

He added the off-campus housing office also has close relations with officials of the campus chapter of the NAACP and consults them when cases involving racial discrimination arise.

Maxie Gordon, Columbia, S.C., junior and president of the NAACP, said students with complaints about housing discrimination often ask the NAACP officials to help make their complaint to the housing office.

He said while the University is prompt to begin investigation when informed of alleged discrimination, students do not always complain when they feel they have a case.

"There has only been one reported case of discrimination this year," Gordon said. "Too many students talk about reporting this but don't bother to do anything about it. Others are afraid of some type of repercussion if they report a landlord to the University. There is absolutely no reason for this fear, and we hope students will begin to realize this."

Governor Gets Little Applause

Michigan's Republican-dominated legislature received Gov. George Romney's State of the State address Thursday with lukewarm enthusiasm, which reportedly disturbed the governor.

The speech was interrupted by applause only four times. Robert Danhof, the governor's legal adviser, said, "He is feeling a little down in the mouth about the reaction to it. You know—the applause."

Democratic legislators lost no time in assailing Romney's plans for the coming year.

Lt. Gov. T. John Lesinski said that the governor's proposals do not go far enough into the state's basic problems.

"In the area of higher education, the governor's budget recommendations for operating funds and capital outlays are respectively $4 million and $21 to $22 million below what his own citizens' committee considered minimum levels," Lesinski said.

House Democratic leader Joseph J. Kowalski of Detroit went further in his criticism. "The portion of the message covering education is completely inadequate -- and unacceptable," he said.

"If Romney's recommendations are enacted, Michigan will experience further deterioration -- further falling behind -- in public higher education."

Ticket Sales For J-Hop Open Today

Tickets for the 1964 J-Hop go on sale to juniors Wednesday in the Union Ticket Office. Other classes may buy tickets next Friday.

The All-University dance will be held 9 p.m. to midnight Feb. 1 in the Auditorium.

"Vegas Ventures" is the theme for the dance, sponsored by J-Council. A highlight of the evening will be the intermission entertainment by the Ahmad Jamal Trio, a noted jazz group. Dance music will be provided by the Buddy Morrow Orchestra.

Another highlight of the dance will be the crowning of Miss MSU for 1964. Last year's Miss MSU, East Lansing junior Cynthia Cuthbertson, will turn over her crown to the new queen.

Cocks will have 2 a.m. late permission for the dance. They must show a ticket stub or program from the dance to their house mothers.

David Jackson, Detroit Junior, is general J-Hop chairman. Tickets are $6 per couple.

Officials Perplexed By Gift

Sometimes a gift can be a mixed blessing. MSU's most recent gift is the old Oliver Plow Co. Plant No. 1 in Battle Creek. It consists of 43 acres of land with rail sidings and a number of buildings once used to manufacture farm implements.

University officials say it is the largest single gift ever given MSU for scholarship purposes. It is valued for tax purposes at $340,000.

It's not that University officials are not grateful, because they are.

"We are very grateful for this generous gift," said President John A. Hannah. He received it in behalf of the Board of Trustees in December.

"The University plans to sell the property and invest the money," he added. "The returns on the investment will go to the Ralph H. Young Scholarship Fund."

The fund is for deserving athletes. Because of lack of money, MSU has not been able to take advantage of its quota under Big Ten rules to help athletes with their education.

The ruling states that MSU is allowed to support up to 80 athletes with scholarships ranging from $50 per year up to the maximum of more than $1,000 annually.

The gift's donor, the White Motor Co., of which Oliver Plow is a wholly-owned subsidiary, specified that the money be used to aid student-athletes meeting prescribed scholarship standards.

"While the Ralph H. Young Fund has been in operation for seven years, the opportunity for it to serve the maximum benefit to the MSU athletic department and students has been limited. It is hoped that this gift will not only give added opportunity for the fund to serve, but encourage others to participate in its expansion," said Zenon C. R. Hansen, executive vice-president of White.

The plant is on Battle Creek's main street near the eastern edge of the city. The Oliver Corp., successor to the Nichols & Shepard Co., was the city's oldest industry and Michigan's oldest incorporated manufacturing firm.

The White Motor Co. said it closed the plant because of high labor costs, high market costs, and unsuitability of the plant to economical operation.

At that time, the plant was assessed by the city of Battle Creek at $622,080. The most recent evaluation was $340,000, but industrial sources indicate that MSU will probably get about $200,000 from its sale.

Now that MSU has officially accepted the gift, it has a problem. However, University officials are not saying much about it. The site must be converted into cash.

World News at a Glance

Moscow Welcomes Arms Cut

MOSCOW (AP)—Moscow radio Thursday night welcomed President Johnson's proposal for a cutback in American military spending, but it said: "One cannot assert that this is the beginning of the end of the arms drive. It is more a freezing of it."

LBJ Hopes Tax Cut First

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Johnson said Thursday he hopes the Senate will pass an $11 billion tax cut before acting on civil rights.

In obvious allusion to an expected filibuster over civil rights, Johnson said every hour of talk by a single senator "can keep many jobs away from many people for many weeks."

Chou Gets Chilly Welcome

TUNIS (AP)—Premier Chou En-Lai received the coolest reception of his African tour on arriving in Tunisia, whose government has promised diplomatic recognition of Red China.

The Red Chinese Premier's welcome at El Aouina airport was stiff and formal and no crowd turned up despite an official appeal, printed in the newspapers, for an outpouring of the people. A lack of popular interest was obvious.

28 Die In Argentine Plane Crash

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—An Argentine passenger plane with 31 aboard crashed about 50 miles northwest of Buenos Aires Thursday, killing 28 persons, including four Americans.

Police said the plane's pilot radioed the Zarate Airfield that there was fire aboard the aircraft and requested emergency landing clearance. The plane fell just short of the airstrip and burst into flames.

Abbott Or Abbot? Street, Buildings Differ

T.C. WOULD BE PLEASED—Abbot Hall had the benefit of a builder with a sense of historical accuracy. The second 't' added mysteriously in recent years, is properly omitted.

Name First Misspelled In Signs

Brand-new street signs in Spartan colors may be a pleasant addition to the campus community, but the lettering at one University entrance could cause a former MSU president to turn in his grave.

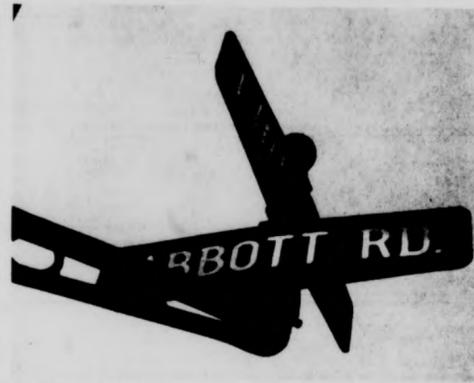

The "Abbott" entrance just west of the Union Building is an erroneous continuation of the East Lansing city street named for Theophilus C. Abbot (one t), MSU president from 1862 to 1884. Madison Kuhn, MSU historian, said that the original road was spelled correctly. "The second 't' crept in more recently," he said. "No one knows exactly why. When the University named Abbot entrance to the campus, it was simpler to give it two 't's to coincide with East Lansing street maps."

What really points out the flaw to area historians and keen-eyed residents are two buildings which maintain the correct spelling, Abbot Building in East Lansing has kept the former president's last name as he penned it, and so has Abbot Hall, women's dormitory on the east end of campus. The residence hall was formerly a music practice building with the same name.

Kuhn recalled another misspelling of an MSU leader's name, the blame for which must lie with the president himself.

Lewis R. Fisk, acting president from 1859 to 1862 and Abbot's predecessor, left the "e" off the end of his last name as his father did, because people confused it with "Fisher." He later discovered that Fisk could be mistaken for "Fish."

When Fisk transferred his presidency to Albion College he added the forsaken "e." Kuhn said it was a problem for historians to discover that the Albion Fiske was the same person as the MSU Fisk.

RIDDLE EXPLAINED—Two 't's' or not two 't's' has long been a puzzle to those who note the varied spelling of President Abbot's name. An MSU historian has explained the awkward error. Photo by Gary Shumaker

GOP Hopefuls Hit New Taxes

NEW YORK (AP)—Three governors in line for possible Republican Presidential nomination have at least one thing in common—all are against new taxes for their states.

Govs. Nelson A. Rockefeller of New York, George Romney of Michigan and William Scranton of Pennsylvania expressed that central theme this week in addressing their state legislatures.

Rockefeller, the only announced candidate among the three, promising no tax increases and proposed few new programs in presenting his 1964 program on Wednesday.

Discussing his five years as governor, he claimed "imposing accomplishments" in dealing with industrial growth, education and civil rights.

Romney, who has announced he would accept a draft for the GOP nomination, asked approval of a record $624 million budget. His proposal, made Thursday in a "State of the State" message, is $74 million more than the present $550 million budget. But Romney said he would propose no new taxes.

Gov. Scranton proposed a record annual general fund budget of $1.168 billion -- a $59 million boost--but as in the case of the other two governors made no request for tax increases.

Scranton told his weekly news conference Thursday in Harrisburg that he is attempting to discourage any efforts to project him as a candidate for the GOP nomination.

Counseling Division

John's story is unique in its primary conflicts and ultimate understanding.

"There is a lack of depth of knowledge of what counseling does and is supposed to do," says the 25-year old student.

When John first went to the Center in 1957 as a sophomore, he was filled with questions about the values of life and the very existence of man, questions which torment many college students.

He had sought help previously from many other sources—church, friends, advisers. Finally he turned to the Counseling Center.

His story is typical in that his first reaction to the Center was strongly adverse. The counselor raised questions which John did not wish to face. He did not return for counseling that term. But the following term he made another attempt.

The new counselor had a different approach. John found he could relate more readily. He continued treatment on a regular basis for a term and a half. Then, against his counselor's advice, John left school.

In 1960 John returned to MSU realizing his counselor had been right. He also returned to the Center for further therapy.

John has experienced both feelings of bitter hostility and ultimate understanding of the counseling system.

The counselor may act neutral and not seem to care. He will not let himself become involved in your problems as you might want, John says. But his job is not to tell you how to live your life, nor can he live it for you.

"His job is to point a direction, clarify, or restate for further insight. But you must be ready to function for yourself and do your part," John explains.

"Students often go to the Center with false and impossible expectations. There is no magic cure or miraculous renovation," John points out.

The Counseling Center tries to get students to see themselves and the world around them in the light of truth.

There are numerous other cases, but these typify the serious, emotional conflicts. Many students have been helped.

Since John has been on both sides of the fence, his words deserve careful attention.

"Perhaps this is where the problem lies; students aren't willing to do their part. They go to the Counseling Center with immature and unrealistic expectations hoping to have their lives changed by the 'miracle workers.'"

"Their lives might be changed. But the miracle men are human, and their success lies in the student's realization and recognition of himself and the world in which he must live."

Next: Advisers give their opinion concerning student problems and counseling aid.

Hannah Overseas

Hannah, however, is an authority on MSU's overseas operations. He examined MSU efforts in Nigeria, Pakistan, Taiwan and Okinawa.

"It is a great satisfaction to find that our University can have such an effect for good on so many thousands of people around the world," he said.

His first stop was in Nigeria. The university there, now in its fourth year of operation, has received substantial technical assistance from MSU.

Some 27 faculty members are now there and the number will be increased by three in the near future, he said. MSU, in close cooperation with the University of London has established an educational system based upon the land-grant philosophy.

Getting into the success of the new university, Hannah said that of the 15 top scorers on civil service exams in Nigeria, 13 of them were University of Nigeria graduates.

"MSU is not interested in keeping the Nigerian university a satellite, however," he said. MSU will continue to support the facility until its success is assured."

The president said it is already turning out healthy quotas of public servants and specialists in agriculture, education and the sciences.

Many graduates of the institution will continue to come to MSU for advanced work, he said.

To Play New Work

The first concert of the term in the music department series will feature the premiere performance of a faculty member's composition.

The members of the quartet, formerly called the Faculty String Quartet, are Romeo Tata, violin; James Niblock, violin; Lyman Bodman, viola; and Louis Potter, Jr., cello. All are original members.

Giant Cyclotron Magnet Assembled

A SMASHING SUCCESS--That's what's expected when work is completed on the Cyclotron Building. Exterior construction was finished during the Christmas vacation period. These parts await placement in the atom-smashing structure.

A major component of the University's new cyclotron, a magnet which weighs over 100 tons, is assembled and operating.

James W. Butler, professor of physics and astronomy, said the main part of the cyclotron is now essentially finished and the other parts are now being made.

Butler, who will be using the cyclotron to conduct experiments, said he expects the cyclotron to be near completion by the end of the school year. It will then be ready for preliminary operation, but another six months will be required before it is put into permanent use.

The building that will house the cyclotron has been occupied for several months.

$3,000 Dow Grant To Help Mini-Lab

A $3,000 grant from the Dow Corning Corporation, of Midland, to the Chemical Engineering Department will be used to buy the first piece of equipment in the department's plan for a miniaturized laboratory.

The grant will purchase a glass plant reactor to be used for research and demonstration.

The presentation will be made at a noon luncheon Monday at Kellogg Center. Representing the University will be M. H. Chetrick, chairman of the Chemical Engineering Department.

Also attending the luncheon will be department faculty and Harold R. Erenner, senior chemical engineering student and president of the student chapter of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers.

Representatives of Dow Corning will include: W. R. Collings, honorary chairman of the board, R. W. Caldwell, vice-president and director of engineering; and Melvin J. Hunter, vice-president and director of research.

The miniaturized reactor is designed as a commercial unit, made completely of glass so that students may watch chemical reactions. The unit will show the rates of chemical reactions which in turn will determine the size of commercial units needed for various jobs.

According to Chetrick, the complete miniature lab should be assembled before June. Additional pieces include all glass miniatures of a heat exchanger, a distillation unit, and an extraction unit. Plans also include a miniature fluid flow apparatus and simulator.

Job Offers Fill Bureau

The Placement Bureau is preparing to accommodate hundreds of employers and thousands of students for what is expected to be the largest winter interviewing session in its history.

A record number of fall term interviews was conducted during the past three months and John D. Shingleton, director of the bureau, predicts that winter term will be even busier. All of the Placement Bureau's 21 rooms are booked to capacity for the term, he said.

Employers held 3,853 interviews last term, a 17 per cent increase over fall, 1962, when 3,415 interviews were held. The bulk of fall term interviewing was concentrated in the scientific and technical areas. Interviews for master's degree candidates were up 59 per cent over last year and doctoral candidate interviews increased 13 per cent. Over 1,000 interviews were conducted for master's and doctoral students.

Shingleton said the increasing demand for graduate students is a trend which will undoubtedly continue. "The ratio of jobs to applicants goes up with the degree of education," he pointed out. "For Ph.D. candidates, the ratio is higher than for master's students. And it is higher for all graduate students than for bachelor's degree candidates." Interviewing will not be concentrated in technical and scientific fields this term, according to Shingleton. June graduates of all majors are eligible to interview. Last term only scientific and technical June graduates were able to interview.

"If all the non-technical graduates for June were able to interview in the fall, there wouldn't be enough room for the December and March graduates," Shingleton explained.

City Gains From Delay In Building

East Lansing could gain as much as $10,000 from the delay in construction of additional wings to the city hall and construction of a new public service garage.

Voters last year approved $845,000 worth of general obligation bonds for what could have been the largest single municipal facilities expansion program in the city's history.

City hall construction costs were estimated at $515,000, but unforeseen remodeling difficulties caused the low bid to be $708,203.

For the present time the $845,000 has been invested, and some $2,500 worth of interest is being put into a general fund for city expenses each month.

Alternate plans to cut construction costs call for eliminating one proposed wing and substituting a larger single two-story wing.

New bids for construction will be taken this month.

Oilmen Grant $2,500

Humble Oil and Refining Co. Education Foundation has given $2,500 to the College of Engineering to purchase engineering equipment for use in research and student laboratories.

Grads Enter Space Study

Eight MSU graduate students have been granted fellowships worth $2,400 a year for three years by the National Aeronautics and Space Administration for study in fields related to space and space travel.

Ten more fellowships have been awarded to MSU for next fall term.

Study in the biological, physical, social science, and engineering fields are of great interest to NASA, Allan Tucker, assistant to the MSU vice president for research and development, said.

Research related either directly or indirectly to any phase of space is also of interest, he added.

Tucker said the selection of MSU demonstrates NASA's confidence in the University's facilities and faculty.

The graduate fellowships, given on the basis of ability, past academic performance, and potential for completing the doctoral program with intensive study in the student's chosen field, are provided by NASA to train people who are qualified to work in these areas.

The fellowship also includes dependency grants of up to $1,000 a year for some of the selected students.

Students who started the program last fall were already studying at MSU or transferred here from other colleges and universities.

They are Ronald J. Fedorowicz, Saginaw, and William T. Marquitz, Dayton, Ohio, electrical engineering; Laurence Sowash, Belmor, Mo., William F. Long, Kansas City, Mo., and Lorenz A. Kull, Chicago, Ill., physics; Donald G. Hill, Mason, geology; Dennis K. Huff, Des Moines, Iowa, microbiology and public health; and Richard J. Cramer, Flint, mechanical engineering.

'Active Interest' Lauded By JFK

Campus Rights Work Hailed

One of the late President John F. Kennedy's last public statements on civil rights and integration was a message to the Student Leadership Conference on Religion and Race which met in Washington, D.C., Nov. 17 to 20.

In a wire to 326 students and 58 campus religious advisers, including 6 delegates from MSU, Kennedy said he was pleased by "the active interest of college students throughout the nation representing all major faiths in the area of civil rights."

He called the gathering of college students sponsored by campus religious organizations a "unique conference" and expressed the hope that "your own experiences and observations can be the subject of detailed discussions in the schools you represent."

The presidential message, sent to Rabbi Oscar Groner, staff coordinator of the conference, added:

"One of the fundamental problems facing the United States at this point in time is the need to move steadily toward the twin goals of equal treatment and equal opportunity for all Americans."

Teachers To Study Composition Process

The Process of Composition, a special conference for high school and college English teachers, meets today at Kellogg Center with an expected 400 teachers from every part of the state attending.

The conference, the first designed especially for composition teachers, is sponsored by the departments of English and American Thought and Language and the College of Education.

Twelve high school and four MSU teachers were on the planning committee, headed by Gordon Rohman, assistant professor of English.

By breaking the composition process into three phases, an attempt will be made to examine the basic ingredients in good composition.

Rohman will discuss the first process of pre-writing. The actual writing process will be discussed by a panel of three high school teachers and Carl Hartman, associate professor of English. Herman Struck of the English department will talk on the re-writing process, and T. B. Strandness, chairman of the American Thought and Language department will conclude the conference with a summation.

New Course Change System Confuses Students, Faculty

Registrar Horace C. King indicated Thursday that students and faculty still do not completely understand new procedures for changes in enrollment.

Changes in enrollment begin Monday. Wednesday is the last day for late registration, adding courses or changing sections. Jan. 22 is the final day to drop courses.

"The only change is that students will go to the first floor Union concourse instead of 106 Administration Building," he said. "There has been no change in the student's relationship to his academic adviser or department when dropping or adding courses."

If a change affects a student's fees, then he should go to 106 Administration instead of the Union.

Section changes are handled within departments while course changes go through the office of registrar.

MSU 24th In Science Doctorates

MSU ranks 24th in the nation in the number of science doctorates awarded, according to a U.S. Office of Education report.

During the decade of the fifties, 435 doctorates in the scientific and mathematical fields were granted.

The University of California ranks first, with 2,432 doctorates awarded during the decade.

University To Honor 3 Farmers

The University will honor a Saginaw dairy farmer, a Montcalm potato grower and a bank president from Pigeon next month.

As part of the 49th annual Farmers' week, the three will receive Distinguished Service to Agriculture citations.

Dean T. K. Cowden of the College of Agriculture will present the awards on Feb. 5 to Edward J. Wright, Saginaw; Arthur E. Sackett, Edmore; and E. J. Clabuesch, Pigeon.

Wright is a member of the Michigan Agricultural Commission and was chosen "Michigan Dairyman of the Year" in 1962.

Sackett was charter president of the Chief Wahasis Potato Growers' Cooperative and is presently a director of the National Potato Growers' Association.

President of Pigeon State Bank, Clabuesch has served on agricultural committees of both the Michigan and American Bankers' Association.

Faith On Campus Gossip Hinders Everyone

-----By Linda Miller

We are all held fast by the clutches of gossip. In varying degrees, each of us is entwined in a far-reaching web of backstabbing which hovers over society and threatens to destroy homes, reputations, intimacies, careers and even governments. "Gossip can be friendly, but the basis of most of it is malicious," a Detroit psychiatrist believes.

The tragedy of it is that under gossip what is really being said is, "Love me--don't love him or her--love me."

Every phase of life gives someone an opportunity to further one of the growing evils of our age. And we who express a religious concern fail to stem its rising tide.

I am particularly concerned with a type of gossip which appears to be prevalent on this campus and could, by its very nature, distort the example which the religious community should set. This form of gossip arises because so many of us possess a limited, stereotyped view of any person who makes his religious stance public.

When we hear, "He's studying for the ministry," or "She's a religion major," we immediately associate all forms of piety (ambiguous as the term is) and thus assign this person to the anti-smoking, drinking, partying and so forth league.

Then the unpleasant process begins. For when we find that a person who exhibits a strong religious position in society is guilty of one of the aforementioned "vices," we unjustly term him dishonest or hypocritical.

"Hasn't she got her nerve! Taking all those religion courses and going to one of 'those' parties on week-ends."

The puritanical heritage which lurks in the American mind and exposes itself in the form of gossip is enough to make any religious thinker turn in his marbles. Where does the fault lie? In part, we must blame the narrow-minded prudish who dictate rules of behavior entirely out of context with religious belief. The fault also lies with those who stand outside the religious community and think of religion as a collection of shalt-nots.

The founder of Christianity was not a negative thinker. He came to bring man more life, not to deny him the things which should be adopted or rejected in accord with civil laws or common sense. "Render unto Caesar the things which are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's." (Mat. 22:21)

Sin is a word which is misused and needs reinterpretation. It is not a cigarette or a bottle of wine.

For most religious thinkers, sin is an expression of separation from God, not an outward act so much as inner intent and willful motivation. Sin springs from self-love, not triviality.

The student in pre-theology, for example, is not dishonest in the religious sense because he carts a six pack to a party.

He may have a University policy to reckon with, but he should not be subjected to gossip which makes him out to be a hypocrite because he doesn't conform to the stereotyped view of the religious thinker.

One must not draw from the discussion that moral values have no relation to them. We must draw the line somewhere. For example, I do not murder because I love my neighbor. So why should I give a damn about my neighbor? Well, I don't, unless I recognize a basic kinship with him. The kind of kinship that says, "We are all one under God."

Pope Paul Sees Holy Land; Asks Universal Brotherhood

Possibly the longest papal trip in history was made last week when Pope Paul VI made a 3500 mile historic pilgrimage to the Holy Land.

The 66-year-old ruler of the Roman Catholic Church reversed for the first time in almost 20 centuries the journey of the fisherman Simon Peter from Jerusalem to Rome. Roman Catholics believe that Peter established the pontifical line of succession.

Pope Paul opened his three-day pilgrimage Saturday with an expression of hope for all men to "attain to universal peace in true brotherhood."

He told Moslem King Hussein of Jordan that the visit was "a spiritual one, a humble pilgrimage to the sacred places made holy by the birth, life, passion and ascension" of Jesus Christ.

The Supreme Pontiff landed Saturday at Jordan's capital, Amman, where he received a 21-gun salute and saw 14 white pigeons released.

He stood in contemplation at the River Jordan where Jesus was baptized, then turned and blessed the thousands who pressed to see and touch their spiritual leader.

He walked through Jerusalem Saturday along the Way of the Cross, the path Jesus followed to Calvary.

The Pope celebrated mass outside the Chapel of Angels at the Church of the Holy Sepulchre. At dusk he prayed in the Garden of Gethsemane, where Jesus prayed before he was captured by Pilate's soldiers.

An hysterical mob of 100,000 persons shattered police lines, broke up the pontifical procession and injured many pilgrims and spectators while the Pope traced the footsteps of Christ.

Once he had to stop in the doorway of a convent, where Veronica is believed to have wiped the face of Jesus. The slight Pontiff was often pushed by stations of the cross without a chance to pray.

Sunday Pope Paul crossed into Israel, motored to Nazareth and celebrated mass in the Grotto of the Basilica of the Annunciation.

He toured Christian holy sites around the Sea of Galilee, where Jesus led his brief ministry, and past Cana, where it is said the founder of Christianity turned water into wine.

The Pope also visited Mount Zion in the Israeli sector and the Church of Beatitudes where the Sermon on the Mount took place.

That night he met with the spiritual leader of Orthodoxy, Patriarch Athenagoras I of Constantinople.

Monday Pope Paul appealed from the birthplace of Christ in Bethlehem to world leaders to keep peace in the world and for Christians to unite. He celebrated mass in the grotto of the Church of the Nativity.

Upon returning to Jerusalem, the leader of 550 million Roman Catholics conferred again with Athenagoras I, praying that their meetings will be "a prelude of things to come for the glory of God. . . We thank our Lord for it with all our hearts and we pray that He himself who started us in this good work of peace and unity wishes to carry it to a good end."

Gym, Swim Teams Face Iowa

Wis. Added Foe For Gym Opener

The State gym team will begin its season Friday and nobody knows where it will end. Coach George Szyplula thinks the Spartans are Big Ten and National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) Championship title contenders, but he's certainly not overconfident. "We've got a good strong team this year and we think it should be a big improvement over last season's 7-3 squad," Szyplula commented. He said he'll get some indication as to how high the squad may go during Saturday's 1 p.m. meet with Iowa and Wisconsin at the IM sports arena. Iowa was one of the three teams to defeat State last year in dual meet competition and Szyplula expects them to be just as strong this year. The Hawkeyes, paced by parallel bar specialist Glenn Gailis and ringman George Hery, finished third in the NCAA and Big Ten meets last spring. Wisconsin, whom the Spartans defeated by a slim two points in 1963, features Jim Hopper. Hopper tied State's national still rings champion Dale Cooper last year for the conference title. Hopper has been forced to work more events this season, because of an injury to Badger co-star Fred Roethlisberger. Wisconsin has a 2-2 gym record, defeating Chicago and LaCrosse State, while losing to Iowa State and Mankato State.

The Spartans will be relying on Cooper and sophomore Jim Curzi, who Szyplula feels is the top man on this year's team. Curzi is the number one man in four of the seven meet events. He ranks first in the floor exercise, side horse, horizontal bar, and parallel bars. Ray Strobel is the top man on the trampoline, while Dick Gilberto leads the tumblers. Cooper is first on the bars. Szyplula thinks the Spartans are ready for the meet despite the loss of John Rohs, floor exerciser, because of a shoulder dislocation. The injury is similar to the one Szyplula himself suffered, but less severe. Cooper will be the acting captain in the Iowa meet, while Gilberto will captain the team against Wisconsin. The meet will be scored on a double-dual system. Wisconsin will not be competing against Iowa. A new system of judging, which permits judges to specialize, will be used for the first time in the Big Ten. Under the system, developed and tested by Wisconsin coach George Baber, one judge will score composition points, a second will judge only on difficulty and the third and fourth judges will grade the gymnast on his execution of the maneuvers. In previous years all the judges had graded a contestant on each subject. Curzi and the now injured Rohs represented State in the Midwest Open meet in Chicago last month. Curzi placed fifth overall in the meet and second in the NCAA championship from Southern Illinois in the horizontal bar competition. Rohs tied for third in the floor exercise.

Conference Debut For State Mermen

Spartan swimmers will put their Big Ten hopes afloat Friday afternoon in their conference opener against Iowa.

Starting time is 3 o'clock at the IM pool. Students will be admitted upon presentation of their ID cards.

In Iowa, the Spartans will be facing a squad which has dropped dual meets to Nebraska and strong Indiana.

Top performer for the Hawkeyes is Ron Barry who should be one of the outstanding breaststroke men in the conference this year.

Although Friday's match marks the first dual meet of the campaign, the season has started successfully for Coach Charles MacCaffree's squad.

The Green and White defeated powerful Minnesota, Southern Illinois, and Western Michigan in the first annual MSU Invitational Relays last Saturday.

Highlight of the meet was the 300-yard butterfly team's victory over highly-regarded Minnesota. The Spartan squad of Terry Hagen, Charles Strong, and Richard Gretzinger outlasted a Gopher contingent anchored by NCAA champion Walt Richardson.

Gretzinger, a Plymouth junior, is probably MSU's top all-around performer. He's capable of good showings in the 100, 200, 500, and butterfly events.

Among 11 sophomores on the roster are Jim MacMillan, Lee Driver, Darryle Kifer, and Terry Hagen.

MacMillan and Kifer are being counted upon in the sprints, and Hagen will perform in the butterfly.

Women's Cage Tryouts Monday

All women interested in trying out for the varsity basketball team should report to Coach Marjorie Smith at 4 p.m. Monday in the Women's IM Building.

Cagers Take On Indiana

The Spartan basketball squad will try to boost its Big Ten record over the .500 mark and win their eighth game in twelve tries at 8 p.m. Saturday in Jenison Fieldhouse.

A near capacity crowd is expected to be on hand to watch State meet Indiana and the Hoosiers' VanArsdale twins, Tom and Dick. The Hoosiers are trying to break out of a five game losing streak that has left them with a 4-7 record and an 0-2 loop mark.

The VanArsdales are averaging 44 points per game, but Indiana has only managed to average 80.8 per contest. State is averaging 92 points per contest, with senior Pete Gent the leading scorer.

Icemen At Duluth

The State hockey team plays a much-improved Duluth-Minnesota squad this week-end in a Friday-Saturday duo at Duluth. So far, the Bulldogs have won as many games as they have lost.

Duluth pulled a big upset in splitting a pair of games with Michigan Tech, a perennial hockey power. The Bulldogs lost the first game 3-2, but won the second 3-1. Tech had been tabbed for the runnerup spot to expected WCHA champion Denver. The Bulldogs also won 2 games against Army and lost 2 to North Dakota.

The leading scorer is Keith Christiansen who has scored 6 goals and 6 assists for a total of 12 points. Christiansen is a rough hard-nose player, who leads the club in penalty minutes with 17. Mike Tok follows Christiansen in scoring with 10 pts.

CAPTION

Heap Big Weekend

By JEROME CAPLAN
State News Sports Editor

The big chiefs at Jenison-by-the-river have planned a series of pow-wows over the weekend that are well worth attending.

On Saturday four teams of the green and white tribe will be doing battle at their home lodges.

At 1 p.m. the gym braves led by Chief George Szyplula will make their season debut in the IM sports arena. Two hours later, in the IM pool, their brothers of the water will face Iowa.

The Hawkeyes will be the gym opponent too, along with the Badgers from Wisconsin.

Mankato State provides the competition for the tribes' grapplers at 7:30 back in the sports arena. For Coach Penninger's wrestlers it's their first home showing.

Then at 8 p.m. in the arena the tribe's winningest team of the season--so far--takes to the wood against the Hoosiers from Indiana.

There will be other weekends where there will be four events. This is only the beginning.

The big Spartan chiefs have just one plan in mind.

They want to make the opponents feel like Custer at Little Big Horn---surrounded and defeated.

So don the bonnet, brush on the war paint and let's send the "Custers" to the happy hunting ground.

It's a big winner in the showroom, too. TR-4 is the largest selling sports car in the U.S.A. Be a winner yourself. Go Triumph!

1964: YEAR OF DECISION

Well sir, here we go into 1964, which shows every sign of being quite a distinguished year. First off, it is the only year since 1954 which ends with the Figure 4. Of course, when it comes to Figure 4's, 1964, though distinguished, can hardly compare with 1444 which, most people agree, had not just one, not just two, but three Figure 4's! This, I'll wager, is a record that will stand for at least a thousand years!

1444 was, incidentally, notable for many other things. It was, for example, the year in which the New York Giants played the Philadelphia Athletics in the World Series. As we all know, the New York Giants have since moved to San Francisco and the Philadelphia Athletics to Kansas City. There is a movement afoot at present to move Chicago to Phoenix—the city, not the baseball team. Phoenix, in turn, would of course move to Chicago. It is felt that the change would be broadening for residents of both cities. Many Chicago folks, for example, have never seen an iguana. Many Phoenix folks, on the other hand, have never seen a frostbite.

There are, of course, certain difficulties connected with a municipal shift of this size. For instance, to move Chicago you also have to move Lake Michigan. This, in itself, presents no great problem, what with modern scientific advances like electronics and the French cuff. But if you will look at your map, you will find Lake Michigan is attached to all the other Great Lakes, which in turn are attached to the St. Lawrence Seaway, which in turn is attached to the Atlantic Ocean. You start dragging Lake Michigan to Phoenix and, willy-nilly, you'll be dragging all that other stuff too. This would make our British allies terribly cross, and I can't say as I blame them. Put yourself in their place. What if, for example, you were a British costermonger who had been saving and scrimping all year for a summer holiday at Brighton Beach, and then when you got to Brighton Beach there wasn't any ocean? There you'd be with your inner tube and snorkel and nothing to do all day but dance the Lambeth Walk. This, you must agree, would not help make you NATO-minded!

I appeal most earnestly to the residents of Chicago and Phoenix to reconsider. I know it's no bowl of cherries going through life without ever seeing an iguana or a frostbite, but I ask you—Chicagoans, Phoenixians—is it too big a price to pay for preserving the unity of the free world?

I feel sure that if you search your hearts, you will make the right decision, for all of us, whether we live in frostbitten Chicago, iguana-infested Phoenix, or narrow-lapelled New Haven—are first and foremost Americans!

But I digress. We were speaking of 1964, our new year. And new it is! There is, for one thing, new pleasure in Marlboro Cigarettes. How, you ask, can there be new pleasure in Marlboro when that fine flavorful blend of tobaccos, that clean efficient Selectrate filter, have not been altered? The answer is simple: each time you light a Marlboro, it is like the first time. The flavor is such that age cannot wither nor custom stale. Marlboro never palls, never jades, never dwindles into dull routine. Each puff, each cigarette, each pack, each carton, makes you glad all over again that you are a Marlboro smoker!

Therefore, Marlboro in hand, let us march confidently into 1964. May good fortune attend our ventures! May serenity reign! May Chicago and Phoenix soon recover from their disappointment and join our bright cavalcade into a brave tomorrow!

©1964 Max Shulman

We, the makers of Marlboros, available in soft pack or flip-top box in all fifty states of the Union, wish to join Old Max in extending good wishes for a happy and peaceful 1964.

Exhibit Shows Student Work

The school of industrial design will be represented at an exhibition of student furniture designs at the annual winter furniture market in Chicago, which began Monday.

Winning entries of the Design Unlimited for Better Living Competition, open to seniors and graduate students, will be shown in the Pavilion of American Interiors at the New York World's Fair.

Last year's first prizewinner, designed by Bruce Riley, Louisville, Ky., graduate student, will be produced by manufacturers, in addition to being displayed at the World's Fair.

Station Plays Stereo 24 Hours A Day

East Lansing recently became the home of Michigan's first radio station to broadcast in stereo 24 hours a day.

WVIC-FM, 94.9 kilocycles, which originates from studios on Grand River Ave. at the east end of campus, serves several million homes in the lower peninsula.

"Although our radius is rather extensive," said Station Manager Brian Halter, "we are best able to give East Lansing the personalized touch it deserves. As the only commercial radio station having its studios here, we enjoy a direct contact with our neighboring audience."

"We try not to go off the deep end on either popular or classical music. With the added effects of stereophonic reproduction, we feel we can offer our listeners a pleasing form of entertainment."

Since early December, WVIC has become the listening habit of an ever-increasing number of University students, according to Halter.

"A recent survey of campus living units showed that 30 per cent of the students at Michigan State have FM reception," he said. "In fact, in some of the dorms this is the only thing which comes through."

With a staff which includes five full-time members and five student assistants, WVIC broadcasts live from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. From 10 p.m. to 6 a.m., the station converts to a completely automated system of transmittance. Tapes are made during day hours to be reproduced during the night without the need for studio personnel.

Three members of the school of labor and industrial relations last weekend spoke to the Industrial Relations Research Association meeting in Boston, Mass.

Subbiah Kannappan, assistant professor, spoke on "Industrial Relations Problems in the Developing Indian Economy;" Albert Blum, associate professor and assistant director, spoke on "Prospects of Office Employee Unions;" and Charles C. Killingsworth, professor, was commentator for one of the sessions.

Profs Meet To Help Teachers

Addressing a conference of the National Commission for Teacher Education and Professional Standards, Buford L. Steffire, MSU professor of education, will speak on "The Process of Becoming a Teacher."

Also attending the two-day conference which starts today in Chicago is Fred Vescolini, of the department of administration in the college of education.

The conference is one of a series of regional meetings examining the ways teachers can improve their competence.

Don Davis, executive secretary of the commission, said, "The times demand innovation. We must protect the competent and eliminate the incompetent."

Teachers and administrators from Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, Michigan, Ohio, Tennessee and Wisconsin are attending the conference.

CHRISTMAS VACATION?...It couldn't have been much of a rest for Prof. Glen Holik, who peers over the 5,700 sheets of drawings turned in by students in his Engineering Communications 160 course. The material called for more than 4,800 grades.

English Teaching Hurt By Fund Lack

Financial aid shortages leading to inept teaching of English at all U.S. educational levels may be creating a grave situation in American education, according to three faculty members concerned with English education.

The three, Elizabeth H. Rusk, professor of English and education, Edward T. Erasmus, assistant professor of English and director of the English Language Center, and T.B. Strandness, professor and chairman of the department of American Thought and Language, expressed qualified agreement Thursday with recent criticisms of English education levelled by U.S. Commissioner of Education Francis Keppel.

Keppel delivered his views on the weaknesses of English teaching before a recent meeting of the Modern Language Association of America. He pointed out that educational facilities for the training of teachers of liberal arts subject matter, especially English, need as much federal monetary aid as institutions involved in technological training, but at present are receiving a much smaller share of federal higher education funds.

"The shortage of adequately prepared teachers of English is likely to undermine the quality of American education for a generation to come unless immediate measures are taken to remedy the situation," Keppel said.

In agreeing with Keppel, Strandness said, "We are facing a future dominated by what may be called 'technological barbarians' who are unable to use their mother tongue with cogency and grace," he said. "There is a real danger that the U.S. will lose its supply of truly well-educated people if proper financial aid, either state or federal, is not channelled to the training of teachers of the liberal arts."

Erasmus, a specialist in English grammar and structure, said that a lack of funds for the proper instruction of teachers in linguistics leads directly to inadequacies in English grammar instruction at the elementary school level.

Miss Rusk, who teaches the College of Education's "methods of teaching English" course, cited the handicap of overloaded classes and other poor teaching conditions as contributing to ineffective high school English programs. She complimented the jobs these teachers are able to do under less-than-ideal conditions.

She went on to point out that Commissioner Keppel's idea of federal support for English education is not a new idea. In 1961, Congress authorized limited expenditures for improvement of English instruction.

department to carry on the program this year," he said. The contest for creative scholarships in music is being administered by the music department instead of the Office of Admissions and Scholarships. Paul O. Harder, associate professor of music, said there are already applicants for the scholarships.

High school students who will be entering freshmen next fall are eligible for up to $1,000 in combined scholarship and part-time work aid under the program. Like all MSU scholarships except the $6,000 Alumni Distinguished awards, amounts of the creative scholarships are based partially on financial need.

is it me...or Jack Winter!

It's you, princess, when you have the Jack Winter look. But whoa...take a minute to learn about the subject of stretch. Because once you put yourself in Jack Winter stretch pants, you are going to get the eye test. Be darn sure you can pass. Questions. Should you wear stretch pants? What kind of figure does it take? Most all figures are flattered by stretch, whether angular, triangular, or a figure eight. Even if you have an hourglass figure where all the sand has sunk to the bottom, stretch pants can do quick subtracting. You won't need a grease job to slip in, but there's no sag, bag or bind either. Jack Winter cuts 'em just right...lean and ladylike...proportioned in your proper leg-length. So it's you and Jack Winter getting all those straight-on, slant-eyed, turn-about-face looks. You and Jack Winter causing that campus stir.

Tom Huck sought scientific excitement

He's finding it at Western Electric

Ohio University conferred a B.S.E.E. degree on C. T. Huck in 1956. Tom knew of Western Electric's history of manufacturing development. He realized, too, that our personnel development program was expanding to meet tomorrow's demands.

After graduation, Tom immediately began to work on the development of electronic switching systems. Then, in 1958, Tom went to the Bell Telephone Laboratories on a temporary assignment to help in the advancement of our national military capabilities. At their Whippany, New Jersey, labs, Tom worked with the Western Electric development team on computer circuitry for the Nike Zeus guidance system. Tom then moved on to a new assignment at WE's Columbus, Ohio, Works. There, Tom is working on the development of testing circuitry for the memory phase of electronic switching systems.

This constant challenge of the totally new, combined with advanced training and education opportunities, make a Western Electric career enjoyable, stimulating and fruitful. Thousands of young men will realize this in the next few years. How about you?

If responsibility and the challenge of the future appeal to you, and you have the qualifications we seek, talk with us. Opportunities for fast-moving careers exist now for electrical, mechanical and industrial engineers, and also for physical science, liberal arts and business majors. For more detailed information, get your copy of the Western Electric Career Opportunities booklet from your Placement Officer.
