Calls For $250,000 For MSU Center

By JACKIE KORONA
State News Staff Writer

Gov. George Romney Thursday asked the legislature for $250,000 to reactivate the former MSU Traffic Safety Center.

He also outlined specific questions for the center to study, should the appropriation be made.

The requests were included in the governor's special message on traffic safety.

The MSU Traffic Safety Center opened in 1956 with a special appropriation from the legislature. Later finances for the center were included in the University's general operating fund. Subsequent financial shortages brought about a "phasing out" of the center in 1961. Since that time, the University has maintained a traffic safety program, headed by Gordon Sheehy.

Romney explained why he felt the center should be reactivated to its former status:

"We need practical research and experimentation that will identify the causes of accidents, evaluate existing prevention methods and develop more effective safety techniques."

For these purposes, the governor said, the MSU center should be reactivated.

"The reactivation of the center is justified if it can provide the answers to the immediate and practical safety problems now facing us," he said.

"Its continued operation should be related to its ability to contribute to safe motor vehicle travel."

The governor suggested three specific areas for the center to study:

--Periodic vehicle inspection on a required rather than voluntary basis.

--Stricter licensing of drivers on both the original and renewal bases.

--Probationary drivers licenses for all age levels.

Michigan's present law makes it a misdemeanor to drive a defective vehicle. Of those vehicles voluntarily brought in for inspection, 20 per cent are defective in some way, Romney said.

Periodic vehicle inspection is required by law in some states.

"We should take advantage of what others have learned," he said, and suggested that the Traffic Center could make a comprehensive study of such systems in

Faculty Group Downs Open Hearing Policy

By SUE JACOBY
State News Staff Writer

An amendment to the AUSG constitution which would have opened student judiciary hearings to the public was unanimously rejected Wednesday by the Faculty Committee on Student Affairs.

The amendment, approved in a student referendum fall term, called for open judiciary hearings unless a student specified his case be closed. The present policy, upheld by the six-member faculty committee, requires closed hearings unless a student asks that they be open.

Dear of Students John A. Fuzak said the committee felt a change to open hearings would not act as an effective check on the efficiency and honesty of student judiciary.

"There was a general feeling on the committee that if the amendment was approved, a student who asked for a closed hearing might be placed on the defensive, as if he had something to hide by closing his hearing to the public."

The present system, Fuzak said, allows more freedom for the individual.

"A student can have an open hearing if he wants one," he pointed out. "The faculty committee is concerned that students be given the best possible chance to explain their cases in the way they see fit.

"It is not an easy thing to reject an amendment which has been approved by the students, but in this case every member of the

Greeks, Co-ops Attack Tax Plan

By CYARS BALCERS
State News Staff Writer

A multi-pronged attack on the new personal property tax emerged from a meeting of fraternity, sorority and co-operative representatives.

The group decided to gather facts, approach state legislators and seek legal advice and then carry the matter to the East Lansing City Council.

The meeting called by George Hibbard, new chairman of the Faculty Sub-committee on Fraternity and Sorority Affairs, was attended by approximately thirty people who were in some way affiliated with the affected organizations.

A committee to collect facts relevant to the new tax was appointed. They are Mrs. Isobel Dickinson, alumnae advisor to Sigma Kappa sorority; Bruce Avery, Secretary-treasurer of the alumni board of Alpha Gamma Rho fraternity; and Jerry Wright, new president of the Inter-co-op Council. Other persons from the university are to be added at a later date.

Bill Gillis, past chairman of the Faculty Sub-committee volunteered to approach state legislators in regard to exempting legislation and work through university channels to seek legal advice in the matter.

Following initial contacts, the group plans to contact the East Lansing City Council. However, consensus ran that action with

Student Congress OK's Resolution

Ask Ticket Policy Reversal

By HIGH J. LEACH
State News Staff Writer

A resolution requesting a return to the previous system of distributing basketball tickets was passed by a large majority at the All-University Student Congress meeting Wednesday night.

Under the resolution, Bob Kerr, president of All-University Student Government, Bob Hencken, speaker of Congress and Bob Harris, director of Spartan Spirit, are asked to carry the request to the proper authorities.

In part, the resolution states that the policy requiring students to pick up tickets at either Jenison Fieldhouse or the Union before basketball games "causes greater inconveniences than its limited objectives are worth."

It also states that "the student body of this University desires a return to the previous policy," in which no advance tickets were needed for admission to games.

Kerr was one of the few present at the meeting who opposed the resolution. He termed the controversy over the new policy "a tempest in a teapot."

Kerr asked that a vote on the resolution be postponed until the new policy could be more thoroughly investigated, but added "If the students don't want it, it won't be."

Harris admitted that the students "had it nice" under the previous system, but does not think a return to it will solve the problem.

Harris has worked out a four-point plan that he says he thinks will prove satisfactory to both students and the ticket office.

First, students would be able to get up to four tickets, the same number as students are allowed during football season.

Second, a validated ID card would have to be presented for each ticket requested.

Third, each ID would be punched on a certain number for each game.

Fourth, a ticket and an ID with a punch on the proper number would have to be submitted at the door.

The third point would eliminate the problem of students who use one ID to obtain numerous tickets.

Harris said the ticket office has been "bending over backwards" to cooperate with him.

The new policy, Harris said, will help both the University and those students who wish to attend basketball games.

John Glenn Turns To Earthly Career

HOUSTON, Tex.—John H. Glenn Jr., the first American to orbit the earth, gave up his astronaut wings and a possible trip to the moon Thursday as apparent steps toward formal entry into politics in his native Ohio.

Robert R. Gilruth, director of the Manned Spacecraft Center, accepted Glenn's resignation from the space program but gave no indication of plans for the 42-year-old Marine Corps lieutenant colonel.

The resignation did not include the Marine Corps commission Glenn held 20 years.

Glenn would not comment on ballroom there for a 10 a.m. EST news conference today.

Unidentified political leaders in Ohio have reported Glenn will seek nomination to the post now held by U.S. Sen. Stephen M. Young, a 74-year-old Democrat who is seeking re-election.

There had been speculation that any decision by Glenn to leave the space program would be prompted, to a major degree, by a fear his age would prevent him from being among the first astronauts to land on the moon, a national objective within the decade.

Mayo Girls Romp Barefoot

The barefoot contessa of MSU may be found among the stocking-footed gals of Mayo.

Coeds in the Mayo dorm have been going through a "no-shoe" experiment to save their dining room rug.

Miss Rosann Bongey, manager of Mayo Hall, said that in an effort to preserve the new rug, which was purchased last fall, the girls are not permitted to wear their snow-covered boots while dining.

She said that many of the girls did not have time to go upstairs and change into dry shoes so they have been allowed to eat stocking-footed.

ND Tickets Available At Jenison

The University Ticket Office announced late Thursday afternoon that students would be able to pick up general admission seats for Saturday's basketball game with Notre Dame today at the Jenison Fieldhouse ticket office.

A ticket office spokesman said that there were over 1,000 tickets available and they will be distributed only at Jenison from 9 a.m. until noon and again from 1-4 p.m., or as long as the supply lasts.

The spokesman refused comment, however, on whether the seats, if they are all not picked up today, would be available to students at the Fieldhouse door on Saturday night.

Ticket distribution for the Jan. 25 game with Michigan is scheduled to begin Tuesday morning at Jenison and at the Union. No decision has yet been reached on whether ID cards will be punched to prevent each student from obtaining more than one ticket.

Ticket sales begin today for the 1964 J-Hop, "Vegas Venture," to be held Feb. 1 from 9 p.m. - 12 midnight in the Auditorium.

Tickets at the Union Box Office today will be available only to juniors, but all students will be able to buy them beginning Monday. Only 1,500 tickets are available. Each ticket admits one couple and cost $6.

A highlight of the evening will be intermission entertainment by the Ahmad Jamal Trio. Dance music will be provided by the Buddy Morrow Orchestra.

Miss MSU will be crowned at the intermission of the dance. Preliminary judging begins Sunday.

PANAMA --A domestic political dispute shaped up over Panama's demand for a new Canal Zone treaty and the U.S. government's stand for discussion, not negotiation, of issues affecting the relationship of the two nations.

At the same time high sources in American and Panamanian official quarters said there was a glimmer of hope for a formula that might reopen the door.

Emory Offers Apathy Cure

Inefficient student government and a student body apathetic about campus issues is not unique at any single university.

Almost 800 miles south of here, in Atlanta, Ga., Emory University students face these problems of inefficiency and apathy. The Emory student newspaper offered a possible solution to whip up student interest and government responsiveness--the formation of campus political parties.

With All-University Student Government back in session this term, MSU students and their representatives might mull over this excerpt from a student newspaper editorial:

...students feel little enthusiasm for student government because they have no agency of recourse through which they can be heard.

"The advantages of political parties are numerous. Because candidates would be nominated by a caucus of primary held by each party, they would be obligated to run on a political platform which would both effectively compete with the opposition party and maintain a respectable record for future elections.

"The party system would, by nature, create a larger and more unified electorate for a majority of votes would be solicited by each party for election. Thus, if representatives of various schools wished to be successful candidates, they would find it necessary to become increasingly aware and increasingly interested in the issues of concern to the total University enrollment.

"Academically, a party system could take the 'techniques of politics' out of a categorically 'classroom study.' It could not only equip students with the tools to compete more successfully in later state and national elections, but could effectively sugarcoat a lesson in political party functions.

"Such being the case, an entire body of students, not just a nominee and friends would be out to solicit support for their candidate."

Wanted: A Ticket Policy

The University Ticket Department's realization that students do take dates to basketball games, and that they really do not like to sit and watch a game by themselves, is a ray of sunlight in the cloudy hoop-ticket picture.

Athletic Department officials are trying desperately to find a solution to the problem that will please all students.

We are quite pleased that a move is underway to follow our Monday morning suggestion and determine a method for punching ID cards to prevent an uneven distribution of the general admission seats.

More than 8,500 of Jenison's 13,000 seats are available to students, faculty and staff. Yet there are over 25,000 students on the MSU campus.

Whatever remedies to the ticket problem are undertaken, short of building a new fieldhouse, will not be to the satisfaction of every single student.

But the athletic department is rightly concerned only with the real "followers" of Spartan basketball. They want to be sure that the win-or-lose supporters always will have a seat.

We agree with this philosophy. But we still think that a better ticket policy can be found.

Next Tuesday the Michigan game tickets will be made available to students. There is no time to waste.

Letters To The Editor

Is Housing Bias Fought?

To the Editor: What is the actual, concrete policy of MSU concerning racial discrimination? Official policy of course condemns discrimination, but what further action besides a mere policy statement is used to follow up cases of discrimination within the university's control?

I have been led to believe that action against discrimination ends with a mere policy statement. I point to the specific case of a local householder renting an approved, supervised home. This householder clearly stated in my known presence to an administrative official of off campus housing that she would not rent to Negroes when queried concerning this matter. "I will not rent to Negroes," I wondered about this matter for some time and finally decided to go to the off campus housing people and find what, if any, action was being taken.

"The case is presently being investigated, etc., etc., and we'll be contacting you soon concerning this case." There was really nothing to investigate, for the householder clearly told off campus housing she would not rent to Negroes. Nonetheless, I waited for off campus housing to contact me. That was seven weeks ago, and I am still waiting.

What can a person assume from such an eye-opener? I've drawn some conclusions, and I don't like what I see. It seems strange that a large section of the University can willfully drag its feet on the question of discrimination in housing, while at the same time its president is a leader in the nation in the fight against racial discrimination.

Intelligent men will realize a stand must be taken against this sickness gnawing at our society. The time to stand is now; change within a certain segment of this University is a must.

Asks Bus Drivers To Be Courteous

To the Editor: I experienced something the other morning that most of the students who use the bus lines here on campus face. It seems as though some of the bus drivers have an aversion to waiting even a few seconds for students who try to make the buses to get to class (might I note here that in the cases I refer to the buses have been no more than half full and at least two minutes ahead of schedule by the drivers' own admission).

In this weather it is no pleasure to wait for a bus and then have it leave you standing at the bus stop, which is so ironically marked. It seems to me the bus company, through its drivers, owes its customers the same courtesy that any other business gives the students, for they are making the same type of profit.

With the new automobile regulations, more and more students are going to be relying on the bus transportation, and the way things are being run more and more students are going to turn to profanity while running down the street after their "favorite" bus drivers.

My hope would be that this letter will turn the campus bus drivers to more courtesy and less animosity towards students who don't suit a driver's timetables.

Emphasis On Young Laborers

New Education Trend

Editor's Note: This is the second in a series of articles in which faculty members discuss prospects for 1964.

By LINDA MILLER
State News Staff Writer

The world of learning will see a reappraisal of the American system of education in 1964, an MSU educator predicts.

Raymond N. Hatch, professor of education, views 1964 as the year for changes in the schooling of employment-bound youth. "Both lay and professional people, though verbalizing the need, have tended to ignore the future of those who move directly from high school into the world of work," he said.

Hatch, a candidate for superintendent of public instruction in the last state election, anticipates a major push this year at both the national and local level to help the employment-headed youngster to become a more effective citizen.

Referring to both high school graduates and drop-outs, he said, "We must improve our system of education to lure students to finish school."

He demonstrated by analogy the effect of the public school system on drop-outs. It is like taking one apple out of a basket of rotten apples and polishing it up. Nothing is accomplished if it is put back with the same rotten apples.

In this period of college hysteria there is a proneness on the part of Americans to put emphasis on the college-bound. "Even so," Hatch said, "the entire nation is beginning to see the need for another emphasis. In 1964 we will broaden the base for both the college directed and the employment-bound."

Despite the rise in recent years of a class of intellectual elite, Hatch expects that an equally growing maturity of society will recognize that scholastic aptitude is a relative term.

"There is a growing acceptance of a far greater number of young people who can profit from training as opposed to the so-called gifted elite," he said.

Today Americans accept a college degree in the same manner a high school diploma was viewed at the turn of the century. Regarding this observation, Hatch noted that every year the number of semi-skilled and unskilled laborers gets smaller. There is more emphasis on skilled and service occupations, some of which do not require a college education but demand training beyond high school. "We must meet this need in 1964," he said.

The push for more education at all levels will not see any significant rise this year, as compared with the past decade. "Naturally, an increased body of knowledge means an increased demand for more education," Hatch said. "But the trend is not really unique."

He indicated that there may be greater competition in 1964 among college graduates in the areas of science, technology and service areas, for example, institutional management. Still, this change complies with the trend in recent years.

The problem of expanding enrollment in higher education was a source of heavy discussion among educators in 1963. Hatch said that there is no flat "yes or no" answer to this question. "I question, however, whether state institutions will put a hard and fast ceiling on enrollment," he said. "Colleges and universities will undoubtedly expand to absorb some of the increase."

"In all probability," Hatch said, "we will find a state of readiness on the part of the people of Michigan to accept additional taxes for the support of education."

Politics And Poker

Why Barry Won't Quit

By JACK SHEA

After the death of President Kennedy, Barry Goldwater's political stock took a plunge. This was acknowledged in just about every newspaper and magazine.

Conservative Americans and ambitious Republicans who up to the 22 of November had looked at the relentless attacks on the Kennedy family by Goldwater as the best way for the Republican party to win in '64, felt genuine sorrow at losing "their President."

Personal attacks on the Kennedy family and the Kennedy "dynasty" didn't seem very fitting any more. And the hero of these attacks, the Arizona "conservative with a conscience," lost some of the broad appeal he had started to pick up in the Republican party.

Rank and file Republicans hadn't liked many of Kennedy's policies, but in his assassination they came to realize, as they never thought they would, what a model man he was, and how much the mainstream of American life would miss him.

Public opinion polls expressed this sentiment. Republican county chairmen when they were polled in early fall had given Goldwater a wide margin of support. Now they were turning to other candidates, more notably Richard Nixon.

County chairmen, as a political breed, are not ideologists. They look at a campaigner not as a thinker, but as a vote getter. It hadn't been easy for Goldwater to garner their support, but after three years of hard work, aided by anti-civil rights sentiment, he was getting to a point where he almost had the state-central committees of important northern states convinced that his brand of politics was the one hope they had for victory in '64.

But as we have said, Kennedy's assassination changed all that. The broad base of Republicans took stock of their situation and decided that in light of events, a minority party could never take an anti-Kennedy image to the country and hope to win.

Which leads us to the question of the day: Why has Barry Goldwater thrown his hat in the ring? Didn't he and his advisers read the polls -- didn't they stick a moistened thumb into the air to see just which way the political winds were blowing?

I think they did. And I think advisers told him that his chances had taken a turn for the worse. But Barry Goldwater's always been a headstrong man and the final decision was to be his.

He made his decision to run not so much because he really thinks he can win (although on paper I'm sure he can convince almost everyone - except himself - that he can), but rather because he views 1964 as the year to put his name and his cause into the history books.

In an era of peace probes, he is a militarist. In an era of growing interdependence, he is a nationalist. In an era of painfully slow progress toward a social consciousness, he is a protector of the wealthy class.

Win or lose, his massive campaign will rate a significant page in the annals of history. No man can claim an immunity to this kind of ambition.

Hop To It, Ladies; Leap Year's Here

By FAYE UNGER
State News Staff Writer

Despite the historian's claim that Julius Caesar initiated leap year in 46 B.C. to eliminate lagging seasons, every woman knows the idea was invented for her benefit.

And it is now time, in this era of equal rights, for the woman fully reclaim her lost leap year rights.

In 1288, long before the days of woman suffrage, Scotland passed a law that "ordained... for each year known as leap year each maiden lady of both high and low estate shall have liberty to bespeak the man she likes; if she refuses to take her to be his lawful wife, he shall be fined in the sum of one pound or less, as his estate may be; except if he can make it appear that he is betrothed to another woman..."

A few years later France passed a similar law and during the fifteenth century Genoa and Florence passed laws guaranteeing female leap year rights. Throughout Europe the ancient custom came under the sanction of law.

Today all that remains of this ancient law is permission granted the female to become more aggressive in persuading the male of her choice to propose to her. She must cajole, flatter, mother, flirt, and scheme and plot and scheme.

(For those MSU co-eds interested in the information, the ratio at State is 61 boys for every 39 girls.)

Magazines and newspapers deluge the modern woman with ideas for convincing the man of her dreams that she is his ideal. Some of the advisers are men, confident in the knowledge they supposedly still hold the final hand.

All this plotting is long and difficult and sometimes fruitless work for the present-day female, and this is stated without any intent to discredit her charm and perseverance.

However, some intelligent woman might take a hint from another noted event occurring in leap year-- the Presidential election. It is a commonly known fact that at present the women outnumber the men in the United States. By utilizing their voting rights the women could effect any laws they wished, including restoration of their basic leap year rights.

It was an idea, anyway.

Solis of Panama took part in the conference.

There was no word as to Trucco's specific mission or the outcome.

The President was under heavy pressure from civic, professional and business organizations to insist on negotiations of a new treaty that would give Panama eventual ownership of the strategic waterway.

On the other hand, some influential, conservative Panamanians called on Chiari to restore relations now and bring up the matter of the Canal later. This group appeared to be a distinct minority in the tumult about the 1903 pact that gave the United States perpetual rights over the Canal Zone.

Foes of Chiari's administration injected the canal issue into campaigning for a general election May 10 with a statement accusing the government of backing down from its original firm stand for concessions from the United States.

Information and repair service numbers will also be changed in March.

Nye's Books Go In White House

Two books by Russel B. Nye, professor of English, have been selected for inclusion in a special reference collection in the White House.

The books are "George Bancroft," for which he won a Pulitzer Prize in 1945, and "Fettered Freedom," published in 1948 by the MSU Press.

The two books are among 1780 books in 23 categories selected for the White House collection by a committee of librarians. The collection, for use of the President and White House staff, was authorized by the late President Kennedy.

More $$ Available To Grads

Fellowships are now available for graduate students interested in earning their M.S. and Ph.D. degrees through the radiological health specialist training curriculum. Shosel Serata, assistant professor of civil and sanitary engineering, said Thursday.

The Radiological Health Specialist Training Project, financed by the U.S. Public Health Service, will lead to M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in the areas of engineering and the physical and biological sciences.

The fellowships award a basic monthly stipend of $250 to post-bachelor students, $300 to post-master, and $400 to post-doctorate. In addition, there is a $30 monthly stipend for each dependent. The stipend is tax exempt, and tuition fees are paid.

To apply, students should contact Serata, the project director, 377 Engineering Building, 355-5155.

Greeks Attack Tax Plan

Council to add additional taxes seemed disagreeable to many. Mrs. Dickinson pointed out that already the Greek system pays an average of about $2,000 per house in real property tax.

Others commented that if the move is enacted the Greek and co-op system may contract to the point when most students living on campus, no tax revenue at all would be collected from the present organizations. Some pointed out that even now taxes from these living units are used for the city school system though none of the members living in the fraternities, sororities or co-ops are sending children to school.

The tax burden is high enough, opinion ran, without additional levies. In protest to the new assessment the group asked that the organizations which received forms requesting a list of all personal property postpone sending these to the City Assessor until a definite course of intention becomes evident.

The City Council would at best be temporary. Eventually exempting legislation from the state legislature would have to be sought. "We should be given an explanation by the City Council why this personal tax assessment is being levied," Mrs. Dickinson said. "If parents are financing the college education of some of the students this could well be a form of taxation without representation." The impatience of the City

Press Publishes Book Of Essays

"New Essays by Arthur Murphy," a book edited by Arthur Sherbo, professor of English, has recently been published by the MSU Press.

Sherbo discovered the essays in an eighteenth century periodical, "The Entertainer," while studying in England several years ago as a Guggenheim Fellow. Arthur Murphy was a friend and biographer of Samuel Johnson.

YD's Knock Property Tax

At their first session of the term Wednesday the Young Democrats passed resolutions favoring lowering the voting age to eighteen and calling for the prohibition of taxes on multiple student dwellings.

Stepping down from the "chair" to offer the second resolution, Pat McCulloch, Young Dems chairman, urged the club to "do everything in its power to eliminate the injustice of what amounts to a tax on, rather than a tax for, education."

The resolution passed unanimously. The Young Dems offered hearty support to a bill proposed in the State Senate by an

Ann Arbor Republican, Sen. Stanley G. Thayer, R-Ann Arbor. The bill would exempt student dwellings from a personal property tax, such as the one that has been proposed by the East Lansing City Council.

McCulloch said that East Lansing is not showing much consideration for students or for education.

He attacked the logic of using tax money to finance education and then levying a tax on student housing that would increase the cost of their education.

The resolution that called for lowering the voting age to eighteen was narrowly passed after extended debate.

New officers were elected to replace vacancies due to practice teaching. Tom Emery, Lansing senior, was elected vice-president; Beverly Clark, Harrow, Ontario, junior, secretary; and Don Goldbaum, Dearborn junior, treasurer.

Faith On Campus "True Church" A Fallacy

By RAVEL LUTZ

While relatively few students major in religion or enroll in theology at Michigan State, the number of missionaries on campus seem to constitute a large percentage of the student population. They do not wear labels or set up booths at registration; they attempt to bring all who cross their righteous path to their doctrine of belief. Since their true purpose in life is to bring people to God, these true believers work constantly to achieve their goal, never weakening under strain, or covering at the biting remarks of the scornful.

They are members of the True Church. All others will be doomed, however, unless they accept the doctrine of the True Church, for only if one is armed with this set of beliefs can he ever hope to combat Satan and his accomplices. Only if he is a member of the True Church can he ever receive salvation. The members of the True Church realize that the gods of other religions are mythical in character; only their God is the true god; and only their doctrine of belief is the true doctrine of belief.

It is not enough, however, for the true believers to try to correct others' mistaken ideas concerning theology. They must also cope with those who have no beliefs! Indeed, a double burden rests on the shoulders of the True Church members. The parents of some students here on this campus have not seen fit to educate their sons and daughters properly. By depriving them of any belief—even if it be a slightly erroneous one—these parents have fostered immoral atheists! And some of these atheists may be Communists! All this is due to nothing more than lack of proper religious upbringing. No matter what the non-believer does, it is sure to have evil consequences, for only if one has a faith in God can his actions achieve honor and worth.

The members of the True Church, while they listen attentively to the sermons of the minister each Sunday, are permitted to lie, cheat, steal, even murder—yet they will be saved, for they believe. Hell-fire and damnation are to be the fate of the non-believer, regardless of his actions; for only through the True Church can man ever find salvation.

This brings us back to the many missionaries here at Michigan State. Each one believes that he—and probably he alone—has found the True Faith and is a member of the True Church and, most important, worships the Right God. (After all, everyone knows that there is only one God—all the others must be false.) Each person, in his certainty, tries to force his beliefs on someone else, convinced that this will bring forth the greatest possible good.

But this goal of bringing everyone to the True Church can never be reached. How much longer must the dissenter be subjected to the proselyting attempts of his fellow students?

Yale Prof On Grad Retreat

Paul Holmer, professor of theology and philosophy at Yale Divinity School, will lead graduate students who attend a retreat next weekend at Tecumseh Woods.

Holmer will discuss scientific language and the language of religion. The retreat is open to all graduate students. Registration, at $8.50 per student, is available until Wednesday noon with Tecla Sand, campus worker, University Lutheran Church.

Students will leave at 7 p.m. Friday and return following Sunday noon dinner.

U-M Setting For Pastors' Conference

The Rev. Wallace Robertson and the Rev. Warren Day of East Lansing Peoples Church are among area clergymen who will attend the annual Michigan Pastors' Conference at University of Michigan Monday.

Three discerning scholars will lead the study of "The Search for a True Personality." The Rev. Dr. Robertson said that the program offered a good opportunity for Michigan pastors to receive outside stimulation from these men.

They are Granger E. Westberg, associate professor of medicine and religion, University of Chicago; Benjamin E. Mays, President of Morehouse College, Atlanta, Ga; and Robert Lehman, assistant professor of psychiatry, University of Louisville Medical School, Ky.

The Rev. Dr. Robertson said that Westberg has done significant work in the correlation between medicine and the ministry. Mays is one of the outstanding Negro educators in the country.

R.H. Edwin Espy, general secretary of the National Council of Churches, will also address the pastors. The youth of Trinity Lutheran Church, Ann Arbor, will present a chancel drama entitled "Christ in the Concrete City."

Scriptures Study Basis

Is the Bible irrelevant to the educated man of the 20th century? What is the proper use of the Bible by the Christian?

These and other questions will form the ground work for a consideration of the Scriptures by the University class of East Lansing Trinity Church (Interdenominational). Because the Bible is the basis of the Christian faith, 10 weekly sessions will be devoted to a study of its impact on modern society.

The classes, held at 9:45 a.m. each Sunday during winter term, will be led by instructors and include discussion by class members. A textbook and outside reading will be assigned to supplement the course work.

Campus U.N. Meets Today

The General Assembly of the Campus United Nations will convene at 7:30 tonight in the Union Ballroom to consider a proposal calling to censure the Soviet Union. Albania, the People's Republic of China and Algeria will submit the resolution.

The document charges the Soviet Union with intimidating thousands of citizens of China into leaving their homeland for the Soviet Union.

Russia is also accused of forcing many of these individuals to return to China to carry on subversive activity.

The proposal also maintains that the Soviet Union has refused to recognize historically wrong annexations of Chinese territory, there by violating its own position regarding imperialistic expansion.

In conclusion, it is requested that the issue involving directed border areas be brought before the World Court.

other states to determine the workability of a similar program in Michigan.

"Many suggestions for more uniformity in driver licensing examination have been made," he said. "A strong case exists for more comprehensive physical examinations of drivers."

The governor said that the traffic center could study the possibilities of stricter licensing programs for those first obtaining a license as well as those renewing old licenses.

Romney also suggested a study of a probationary period of "at least 90 days" for all those first receiving licenses.

Several other recommendations were included in Romney's message: prohibition of drag racing and speed contests on Michigan highways; implied consent to chemical tests in cases of suspected drunken driving; including 16- and 17-year-old drivers in the "point system;" and a strengthened state police force.

The governor's recommendations came as a result of a traffic fatality increase in Michigan during the past year. In 1963, 287 more people died in traffic accidents in the state than during 1962.

Entomologist At War Against Leafhopper

Beware the six-spotted leafhopper bearing aster yellows! This isn't bad advice if you happen to be lettuce, celery, onions, potatoes, parsnips or carrots.

Aster yellows is a virus-transmitted disease that annually infects crops of these vegetables, mainly lettuce. The six-spotted leafhopper is the insect that spreads the disease.

J.R. Hoffman, associate professor of entomology, was largely responsible for developing the method which combines parathion, DDT and malathion for controlling this pest.

He sprayed fields along farm edges to keep leafhoppers from entering.

"Before this control method, Michigan farmers lost about half the trip in one flight," Hoffman said. "They now harvest about 50 per cent of their lettuce crop."

There are two strains of aster yellows—California and Eastern. The California strain infects crops in Michigan. It's brought by migrating six-spotted leafhoppers from the Rio Grande.

"Of course, they can't make the trip in one flight," Hoffman said. "The trip takes about four months, which means the third or fourth generation reaches Michigan in early June."

The only leafhopper that carries aster yellows is the six-spotted one. The six spots that identify the insect are located on its head and are visible only through a microscope.

"My colleagues and I are always looking for improved methods of controlling the six-spotted leafhopper," says Hoffman. If you happen to be a six-spotted leafhopper, beware of scientists with test tubes!

"US BUGS HATE HOFFMAN"—So reads the sign in the office of J.R. Hoffman, professor of entomology, who peers at a six-spotted leafhopper. The feeling is mutual.

Faculty Committee

Fuzak added there was also "some question in the minds of the committee" as to who would be allowed to attend the open meetings.

"It was not made clear in the amendment whether the meetings would be open to the press or people beyond the University community. There was also a feeling that this point was not made clear at the time of the student referendum."

The faculty committee also rejected an amendment which called for the AUSG administrative vice-president to attend student judiciary meetings as a non-voting member.

"This amendment was rejected solely because the committee felt it was undesirable to give a person full knowledge of what goes on at a student judiciary meeting without the corresponding responsibility of having to make a decision," Fuzak said.

The faculty committee approved three amendments, including a controversial proposal which removes a former restriction requiring a majority vote of the student body on any questions concerning AUSG finances.

Tobacco Smoke Radioactive

Medics Find Cancer Clue

BOSTON, (AP)—Two Harvard researchers said Thursday they have found a radioactive element in cigarette smoke which may be a cause of lung cancer.

Drs. Edward P. Radford and Vilma R. Hunt of the Harvard School of Public Health, described their report as the first to suggest that radioisotopes in tobacco are involved in the production of lung cancer.

While it has been shown that ionizing radiation can produce cancer in man, Radford said, "We cannot say at this time that we have proven that radioactivity is a cause of lung cancer."

Radford and Mrs. Hunt said they found traces of the element polonium in tobacco. They determined that polonium attaches itself to smoke particles and is carried into the bronchial tubes and lungs.

"Polonium may constitute a significant initiator of neoplasia (abnormal growth) in the bronchial epithelium (lining) of a cigarette smoker," their report said.

Radford told a news conference that he and Mrs. Hunt are continuing their research in an effort to determine "the role polonium may play as a cancer producer."

Students Enjoy Slippery Trays

COLLEGE PARK, Md. (AP)—University of Maryland students discovered during a recent snow storm that cafeteria trays made wonderful sleds, and that's how all the trouble began.

B. James Borreson, executive dean for student life, ordered all trays removed from the University dining halls after 40 to 50 students were injured and 4,000 trays disappeared.

"It's the most hazardous kind of thing you could imagine," Borreson said. Removal of all the trays set off a noisy demonstration by about 1,000 trayless diners last night and campus police had to be called to restore order.

Borreson's edict: "If we don't have enough trays to go around, let's not fool with them at all. We'll wait for people to bring them back."

AUSG Eliminates Silent Prayer

Student Congress resolved by a narrow margin Wednesday night to eliminate customary moment of silent meditation at its meetings.

Representatives who introduced the resolution said that the 60 seconds were not serving the purpose for which they were set aside.

Bailey representative Howard Wilchins, Paterson, N.J., sophomore, said that there is no reason to retain something which is not used properly. "Silent meditation cannot be turned on and off," he said. "We do it in our own time and place when we feel like it."

"For what conceivable good did it exist?" asked House Speaker Bob Hencken, Huntington Woods senior. "Half the members haven't prayed to God in five years and don't care to. I see no sense in thinking Congress is presided over by God. People can pray elsewhere and do a better job of it."

AUSG President Bob Kerr, Washington, N.J., senior, said that the reasons given for abolishing silent meditation before Congress were not adequate. "I used it," he said. "The whole business was rather trivial and really none of my concern."

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: TOM BENSON

When Tom Benson (B.S., Engineering, 1956) joined Michigan Bell in 1960, he was asked to put a new method of handling telephone repair assignments into operation in his Detroit Plant District.

So expertly did Tom prove out the new method, his company soon put it into use throughout the Division and promoted Tom to Staff Service Supervisor.

On his new job, Tom introduced a new cost results plan to the field force. Another success, another promotion... this time to Supervising Foreman. Now Tom is responsible for installation results in the entire Wyandotte District with 50 installers and five supervisors reporting to him.

Tom Benson, like many young engineers, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.

Cagers To Renew Series

Michigan State's oldest basketball rivalry will be extended Saturday night at 8 p.m. when the Spartans return to the friendly confines of Jenison Fieldhouse to take on non-conference Notre Dame.

The game will mark the 82nd meeting between the two squads. In a series dating back to 1908, the Irish hold a substantial 54-27 margin.

State, which seems to play its best basketball at home, will have to do just that if it hopes to bounce back after dropping a 103-82 verdict to Minnesota last Tuesday. The Spartans' unbeaten home record will be in serious danger as the aroused Irish have an extra victory incentive, Notre Dame's veteran coach, John Jordan, resigned last week, effective at the end of this season, because of student dissatisfaction. If anything is needed to make the Fightin' Irish more "fighting," this would be it.

Notre Dame, holders of a 5-9 season's mark, are not a bad ball team despite their losing record. The Irish have been victorious over Northwestern, Bowling Green and Valparaiso, while losing to such cage powers as Illinois, Kentucky, DePaul and Indiana. Scoring leaders are 6-1 guard Larry Sheffield, who carries over a 23 point game average, and Ron Reed, a 6-5 forward who is averaging better than 18 points.

Curzi-less Gymnasts To Face Ohio State

Shoulder may be an unlucky word for Michigan State gymnasts, but Saturday they must shoulder the weight of competition from an invading Ohio State team.

The Spartans, currently 1-1, will be without the services of Jim Curzi, a prize sophomore who suffered a shoulder separation and dislocation in his, and the team's, first meet last week.

Saturday's outing, which will start 1 p.m. at the Men's IM will also see two other Spartans, John Rohs and Manuel Turchan, sidelined with injuries. Despite the weakened line-up, MSU Coach Szygula is optimistic over Spartan chances.

Top on Szygula's list is Dale Cooper, State's still ring artist, who is unbeaten in 21 dual meets. Other key figures for the Spartans are sophomore Ted Wilson on the horse, rings and high bar and Dick Giliberto in the floor exercise and tumbling.

On the tramp, OSU's Dan Jarrett and Ken Collins both tied for first against Illinois with a 9.45 showing. Jarrett placed sixth in the Big Ten meet last year. All-around star Dick Aifeldt is another top gymnast for Ohio State.

Cougars Are Tough Animals

By JEROME CAPLAN
State News Sports Editor

On Wednesday's sports page there was an article announcing a new football coach at Washington State University.

The article was headlined, in part: "Huskies Pick Coach."

Calling Washington State the "Huskies" is the same as calling Michigan State the "Wolverines." In other words, it's wrong.

Now any one who knows anything about sports knows that the "Huskies" are the University of Washington's teams. And the UW-WSU rivalry is just as strong as the one between U-M and MSU.

The Washington State alumni club sent three representatives to see us Wednesday. They were quite pleased we gave space to their alma mater, but we're aghast at being called the "Huskies."

So we got out the old Blue Book of College Athletics and waded past the Ichabods (Washburn U.), the Sho'men (Washington College), the Presidents (Washington and Jefferson) and the Generals (Washington and Lee).

Then, there it was staring us right between the eyes:

"Washington State University: Address—Pullman, Wash.; Enrollment—Men 4975, Women 2851; Colors—Crimson and Grey."

And there on the next line under the heading "nickname of teams" was the word "Huskies" and a dark black line.

The "Huskies" was written in pencil, as the alumni club members were quick to point out.

We quickly grabbed our gum eraser and there, believe it or not, underneath the dark line was the word "Cougars."

So the alumni contingent about-faced and left me sitting humbly in my old wooden chair.

And off they went smugly grinning in their huskie-pulled dog sleds.

Wrestlers Head For 'Home'

It should seem like a homecoming, but members of the Spartan wrestling team won't be expecting a warm reception when they meet the University of Oklahoma at Norman Saturday afternoon.

Four of the probable starters for MSU are Oklahomans, and coach Grady Peninger is a graduate of Oklahoma State.

Gary Smith (123), Dickie Turnbull (147), Terry Leonard (167), and Homer McClure (heavyweight) are all residents of the Sooner state, and all were victorious in the Spartans 20-5 trouncing of Mankato State last Saturday.

But the fact remains that the Sooners are defending NCAA champs and are cruising along with a 5-1 record in what has been termed a "rebuilding year."

Oklahoma has defeated Lehigh, Rutgers, Army, UCLA and Kansas State, with Oklahoma State inflicting the lone defeat.

Last season the Spartans met the Sooner squad for the first time in dual meet competition. They went into the meet as a heavy underdog, but only lost to the Sooners by a 14-11 count.

Volleyball Club

Any male students who are interested in competing on the men's intercollegiate volleyball team should attend a meeting at 7:30 p.m. Monday in 208 Men's IM Building.

Oklahoma has one unbeaten wrestler this season. He's 157-pound Bill Lamwhor at 6 with 177-pound Sven Helm as the outstanding member of the Sooner squad.

After Saturday's meet, the Spartans will return home to prepare for a rugged weekend of Big Ten competition.

Purdue will supply the opposition next Friday afternoon with Illinois invading the Imarena on Jan. 25.

This year MSU must face five teams which finished in the top ten in last season's NCAAA meet. They include Oklahoma, Michigan, Pitt, Iowa and Minnesota.

Nators At Ames Saturday

The Spartan swim team will be aiming for its second win over an Iowa team in a week when members travel to the Hawkeye State for a meet with Iowa State Saturday afternoon.

Last week the sophomore-led MSU squad glided to a 92-76 win over Iowa. The Green and White are expecting more trouble than that at Ames.

Leading the MSU contingent will be a fine crop of sophomores who produced five of the Spartans' eight wins against Iowa last week. Highlighting the triumph were varsity record-setting performances by Neil Watts in the 500-yard freestyle and Lee Driver in the 200-yard breaststroke.

The Iowa State meet should have special significance to Spartan coach Charles McCaffrey, who coached the Cyclones at the outset of his collegiate career. Between 1937 and 1941 he coached Iowa State to four consecutive Big Seven titles.

Saturday's meet will be the Spartans' final non-conference dual meet of the season. Purdue will visit the IM pool next Friday for the first in a series of six consecutive Big Ten meets ending up to the conference championship early in March.

Higher Starting Pay Seen For 1964 Grads

Job opportunities for the 1964 college graduating classes, probably the number largest in the nation's history, are expected to be better than ever before, John D. Shingleton, Placement Bureau director, said.

Salaries for the average 1964 MSU graduates are expected to be 2 to 4 per cent higher than last year, he said in a speech Wednesday night in Erickson Hall.

Basing his remarks on a recent Placement Bureau study, Shingleton said the largest increases in demand and in salaries are in the scientific and technical fields but that all majors will share in the general increase.

The demand for marketing, packaging, hotel management and accounting majors will be particularly excellent, he said. Education majors at all levels will have an unusually good selection of jobs.

Advanced degrees are in demand, with a masters degree in business or industry drawing about $75 to $100 more per month than a bachelors degree. A Ph.D. will command anywhere from nine to twelve thousand a year, depending on the field.

Majors in electrical engineering and metallurgy, mechanics and materials science will get the top average starting salaries of $7650 per year, followed closely by physics and math majors with salaries for all majors cover a range of $2700, and with virtually all salaries over $6500 being awarded to majors in scientific and technical fields.

Shingleton urged graduating seniors to utilize the services offered by the Placement Bureau in locating employment opportunities.

State's Orme Number Two

State's hockey center linesman Mac Orme is tied for second in the Western Collegiate Hockey Association's scoring race, Orme and Denver's Dom Fragomeni both have six points.

Colorado's John Simus has five goals and four assists to lead all scorers with nine points.

Denver and North Dakota are tied for first place in the conference. Denver split a pair of games with Michigan Tech last weekend, while North Dakota won two games from Colorado College.

State, Minnesota, Michigan and Michigan Tech, are tied for third with 1-1 records. Denver and North Dakota have 2-1-1 records for a .625 percentage.

Recitals Planned In Piano, Voice

Two graduate music students will present recitals this weekend.

Solveig Steen, Sioux Falls, S. D., piano student, will give a recital at 8:15 tonight in the Music Auditorium.

Jean Ann Heyer, Greenville voice student, will sing at 4 p.m. Sunday in the Music Auditorium.

Miss Steen holds a master's degree from the University of Michigan, and is completing work on her doctoral degree.

Miss Heyer, who received her bachelor of music degree from Michigan State in 1962, is working on her master's degree.

Miss Steen will play C. P. E. Bach's "Sonata No. 2 in A minor," Beethoven's "Sonata in E Major, Op. 109," Ravel's "Sonatine," and Prokofiev's "Sonata No. 3 in A minor, Op. 28."

Miss Heyer, accompanied on the piano by Penna Rose, Fowlerville junior, will sing selections by Pergolesi, Vivaldi, Scarlatti, Gluck, Schubert, Debussy, Milhaud, Copland, and others.

Both recitals are open to the public.
