

Education Needs Total $131 Million

Hannah Hopeful For Budget

By CHARLES C. WELLS
State News Staff Writer

MSU administrators are hopeful that the University will get a budget increase of $7.3 million over last year. Governor George W. Romney is proposing that the legislature appropriate $39.6 million for MSU's operation in 1964.

"This is the first time in recent years that the Department of Administration has placed emphasis on rising university enrollments in preparing the state budget," said President John A. Hannah.

"I'm not celebrating until it gets through the legislature," he added with a smile.

He said passage of Romney's proposal would partially restore the average state aid per student to the 1957-1961 average of $1,061. State aid per student was $876 in 1963 and passage of the budget provision would bring it to around $1,000 per student.

The $7.3 million increase is not as overpowering as the figure would lead one to believe, Hannah indicated. MSU has a lot of catching up to do because of budget cuts over the years.

"The increase will be distributed between Oakland University, MSU's affiliate near Pontiac, the extension service, the agricultural experiment station and the University itself," he said.

"Passage of the bill will put MSU in better shape than it has been in the last five years."

He said the money would be used to improve student services, faculty salaries, and increase the staff.

Citing an example, Hannah noted:

"Under our student advisor setup, MSU instructors advise from 75 to 100 students and still teach full time. This is really too much to expect of them."

"Increased state aid will help alleviate this problem."

He said that purchases of teaching equipment had been cut 50 per cent since 1960.

"In 1960, we purchased some $1.4 million worth of teaching equipment," he said. "After that about $700,000 was cut from that area and it was never restored."

Philip J. May, vice president for business and finance indicated the governor's request was more adequate than MSU has had in years.

"We hope the legislature will follow the recommendations of Governor Romney and Controller Allen in making a decision on the proposals for higher education," he said.

"The recommendations were made after careful consideration and closely parallel the Citizens Committee report on Michigan's college and university needs."

The increase will erase many deficiencies and do a great deal to catch up on budget reductions made in previous years, he added.

MSU Gets $7 Million Increase

Governor Predicts Enrollment Hike

By JACKIE KORONA
State News Staff Writer

Gov. George Romney Thursday proposed general operating appropriations of $131.3 million for Michigan's state-supported colleges and universities for 1964-65.

Of the total, $39.6 million is earmarked for Michigan State for a $7.3 million increase over last year. The figure is $9 million less than the MSU request of $40.5 million.

The recommendation for the University of Michigan is $44.1 million, $5.9 million more than last year, but $3.4 million less than the university request.

Romney said the greater increase for Michigan State--22.6 per cent for MSU and 15.3 per cent for the University of Michigan--is a result of predicted enrollment increases.

MSU's predicted enrollment increase for next fall is 9.8 per cent, or 30,497, while the University of Michigan's is 5.4 per cent, the governor said.

Romney said the total $21.5 million increase to higher education will permit each of the state's 10 colleges and universities to:

Meet pressing demands for faculty and non-faculty salary increases, with a minimum 4 per cent increase.

Meet higher costs of equipment and supplies.

Proposed Budget A Record

From Our Wire Services

Gov. George W. Romney Wednesday gave the legislature a record proposal budget of $622.4 million for 1964-65, terming it a "lean but muscular" plan tailored to meet needs while using less money than is available.

The budget would allow the greatest expansion for educational and mental health services and for capital outlay.

Romney asked for a $21 million increase in operating appropriations for the state's 10 colleges and universities.

"With 10,000 more students expected next fall, the cost to provide existing levels of education to this greater student load would be about $11 million, load would be about $11 million," he said. "But the state must do more than simply maintain our educational status quo."

In the field of mental health he recommended spending $90.5 million, an increase of about 10 per cent.

Romney said, "Michigan is now undertaking the largest and most amazing pay-as-you-grow capital outlay program in the country. This year we are investing $30 million in capital outlay for the coming year, the budget includes $51 million."

"The budget also recommends preliminary planning money and some starts on 24 university and college buildings with total value of $41 million to provide instructional facilities for the avalanche of new students who will be enrolling in coming years...also included are funds to continue the Capitol Development Project in Lansing."

In other areas Romney asked: --Traffic safety--$400,000 proposed for an expanded safety program, plus funds for 200 new state police troopers."

--Welfare-- present welfare expenses from the general fund are about $98.5 million; I am herein asking an increase of less than one per cent, to $99.5 million."

--Senior citizens-- "To encourage stronger senior citizen programs at the local level and to provide an incentive for local (continued on page 6)

Dorm Asks Dress Rule Revision

A request for revision of men's dress regulations is to be presented to Men's Halls Association today.

Thomas Guthrie, Watsontown, Pa., junior and president of Emmons Hall, was to submit the request on behalf of the men of Emmons.

The requested change would put the regulations used last spring term into effect on a year-round basis. Presently men are required to wear dress slacks and dress shirts to evening meals Monday through Friday.

If the regulations are changed, men would be allowed to wear any sport shirt with a collar or a dress shirt. Clean and neat trousers of any kind would be permissible except for knickers, jeans, dungarees, and levis. Dress Bermudas would be allowed.

Sunday dress would remain coat, tie, dress slacks, and dress shirt.

Emmons General Council approved the request by a large majority. Petitions were to be (continued on page 5)

Johnson To Fill Rights Position

WASHINGTON (AP) -- President Johnson is expected to fill vacancies next week on the Civil Rights Commission, which has been lacking two commissioners and a staff director for almost three months.

White House sources said Wednesday that Johnson is expected to name one or more commissioners and possibly a staff director.

White House sources indicate there are plans for the commission to meet with the President in the near future. Although the commission met last week and approved reports of a number of its state advisory committees, staff activity has been hamstrung by the lack of top leadership.

"We're beginning some new programs and continuing work on the old ones," one commission source said, "but it's almost impossible to make the hard decisions. With only four commissioners, we couldn't hold an adverse hearing in any city. In fact, if one commissioner can't come, they can't even hold a meeting because they wouldn't have a quorum."

The four active commissioners are chairman John A. Hannah, President of Michigan State University; Erwin N. Griswold, dean of the Harvard University Law School; Robert S. Rankin, chairman of the Department of Political Science at Duke University, and the Rev. Theodore M. Hesburgh, president of the University of Notre Dame.

U-M Contest Tickets Left

A few student general admission basketball tickets remain for Saturday afternoon's game with the University of Michigan at Jenison Fieldhouse.

But Athletic Ticket Manager Bill Beardsley thinks that all tickets will be distributed to students before the Friday deadline.

There are more tickets available for the Monday night Ohio State game than for the MSU-U of M contest. Tickets for this game also will be available until Friday unless the supply is exhausted.

Ticket booths at Jenison Fieldhouse and the Union second floor concourse are open today from 9 a.m. until noon and again from 1 to 4 p.m.

Robert Kennedy Pleased With Sukarno Conference

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)--"I think there was general agreement," Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy told newsmen Wednesday night after a two-hour conference with President Sukarno and Deputy Prime Minister Subandrio.

Kennedy acted as a mediator in the Southeast Asian crisis that Jones, who attended with Kennedy, said he was encouraged.

"There were full and frank discussions," he said, "but the talks went very well."

A foreign ministry spokesman, Ganis Harsono, said later that a formal session originally scheduled for Thursday is canceled and that instead there will be an informal discussion between Kennedy and Sukarno after a morning meeting of the Supreme Operational Command.

Top Faculty Named Friday

Six MSU faculty members will receive $1,000 checks for outstanding service to MSU at the 1964 Faculty Convocation Friday.

Scheduled for 8 p.m. in the Auditorium, the convocation will also include an address by President John A. Hannah.

Forty-two faculty members were nominated by dean advisory councils in each of MSU's 11 colleges. The names were then submitted to the University Distinguished Faculty Award Committee which selected 12.

President John A. Hannah, Howard R. Neville, acting provost, and Milton E. Muelder, vice president for research development, chose the six winners.

Money for the awards comes from the MSU Development Fund, an alumni organization.

A long-established tradition here, the award started as a naming of the most outstanding teacher of the year. It was expanded to include other contributions to the University, like research and public service.

Senate Committee Approves Tax Cut

WASHINGTON (AP)--The Senate Finance Committee unanimously approved a $9 billion tax cut for the nation's 80 million individual taxpayers by accepting the rate reductions voted by the House.

The committee also voted 16-0 to go along with President Johnson's proposal that the full cut in withholding, to a 14 per cent rate, be put into effect a week after the bill becomes law.

West Germany Assured On Arms Control

GENEVA (AP)--The United States assured West Germany Wednesday that President Johnson's five-point arms control plan will not interfere in any way with the proposed multilateral nuclear force of the North Atlantic Alliance.

The assurance was given by U.S. disarmament negotiator William C. Foster to Dr. Lothar Lahn, newly-appointed West German observer at the 17-nation disarmament conference here.

Authoritative sources disclosed that Foster gave Lahn renewed assurances that the United States will engage in no arms control bargaining with the Russians without full prior consultation with the NATO council.

Safety Group Suggests City Mall

Depending on the outcome of a planning commission study, pedestrians may find relative safety on the East Lansing shopping area streets.

Under the direction of G. Michael Conlisk, head of the East Lansing Planning Commission, studies are now being made to correct problems caused by an increasing traffic flow.

One of the commission's major proposals calls for a pedestrian mall behind the central business district.

The flow of student shoppers and fraternity pedestrian and vehicular traffic to and from campus has made this area one of continuous congestion, with an accompanying accident threat.

According to a recent commission report traffic flow problems are expected to double by 1980 as a result of projected enrollment figures. The report stated that a mall separating car and pedestrian traffic at help solve the congestion problem.

The 'Magic' Bridge

Once upon a time, MSU students heard that the University and East Lansing were going to build them another bridge over the Red Cedar River.

The students first heard the tale in the winter of 1962 B.B. (Before Bridge).

The bridge, with four traffic lanes and two eight-foot walks, would span the river on the west end of campus at Bogue Street.

When we get our bridge, the students dreamed, we won't have to fight our way through the Black Forest of car jams and bike jams and people jams by the Farm Lane bridge.

Students with classes in Eppley and residents in Van Hoosen and Owen Castles were joyous. When we get the bridge, it won't take 20 minutes of jousting to get across campus to class, they cried. Next winter we won't have to chance dashing across the frozen--we hope--river, they thought.

But then something went wrong with the Magic Building Wand of the students' Fairy Godparents. Fairy Godfather in East Lansing discovered that the Beta Theta Pi fraternity property was in the way. Then the Betas sold their land to a private land developer. Then that Land Lord and the Fairy Godfather hassled over right-of-ways and street extensions. The Fairy Godmother on campus and the students waited and waited--all the way through 1963 B.B., meanwhile trekking back and forth the long way around over the Farm Lane Bridge.

The students were getting older every day--who wouldn't get gray fighting through that Black Forest every day? And as the days wore into months and months, some students began to wonder if Fairy Tales really come true, if they would live happily ever after, even if there were really any Fairy Godparents and Magic Wands after all.

Then in October, 1963 B.B., the Fairy Godfather paid the Land Lord 31,277 dragon teeth for the bridge right-of-way and this week he found someone to build the bridge for only 204,594.82 more dragon teeth. As Fairy Godfather and Fairy Godmother dug into their purses, they again made the students a promise: You'll have your bridge by Aug. 1 or before.

So finally it looks like even the cynical students will once again believe in Fairy Godparents and Magic Building Wands and they'll walk and drive over the new bridge happily ever after.

A Little Less Light, Please

Action to eliminate a traffic hazard caused by a traffic light on Harrison Road near the Grand Trunk Railroad tracks was taken Monday night by the East Lansing City Council. The council voted to install a second light on Harrison Road south of the tracks to stop cars before they reach the tracks.

The council indicated that the light will be installed as soon as possible.

Under the present system, a light on the south side of the tracks is an excellent idea and it should eliminate the possibility of a car having to stop on the tracks when the light turns red. Installation of such a light should be rushed.

But now while East Lansing is in the process of installing a second light in the Trowbridge and Harrison Road area, it seems an appropriate time to re-evaluate the necessity of such a traffic light operating during most hours of the day.

Admittedly, traffic on Harrison

Road is exceptionally heavy early in the morning and late afternoon, for example, and on football Saturdays, but that adds up to only a few hours a day and four or five Saturdays a fall.

But the traffic light has not been installed for the sole purpose of regulating football traffic; the real reason for the light is to regulate the flow of traffic between Harrison and the Trowbridge Road connector with I-496.

So far traffic over the freeway connector has been quite light, and there is no real need for a traffic signal except during the periods cited previously. Therefore, why not regulate the signal so that yellow and red blinkers flash most of the day, as is now the case at night?

The periods during the day when standard red, amber and green lights should be used would be approximately from 7 to 9 a.m. and from 3 to 6 p.m. with variations to be determined by periods of peak traffic flow.

Fee Urges Understanding

Nationalism To Pose Far Eastern Troubles

Editor's Note: This is the sixth in a series of articles in which MSU faculty members discuss prospects for 1964.

By SUE JACOBY
State News Staff Writer

Nationalism and neutralism in the emerging nations of the Far East will continue to challenge U.S. foreign policy-makers in 1964, according to Walter R. Fee, chairman of the history department.

Fee, who spent seven years in Japan and has visited Viet Nam, Thailand and Cambodia, says an overwhelming desire to eliminate the possibility of nuclear war will remain the primary motivation of the Far Eastern nations.

"We Americans are often impatient and lack understanding of the Far Eastern countries for what we consider equivocal policies toward the Soviet Union and Communist China," Fee said.

"We forget that we have never known the real horror of war, that America does not border on China as India does, that we have never had an atomic bomb dropped on us as the Japanese have."

Anti-American sentiment in the Far East can be traced to a U.S. attitude that the small countries are merely pawns in the struggle between East and West, Fee said.

"If our young people in particular can cultivate a respect for the traditions and culture of these countries, anti-American feelings would be greatly lessened. There is a sad lack of information on the Far East in this country."

Japanese anti-Americanism has been in and out of the news since 1960, when Tokyo students rioted over a prospective visit of President Dwight D. Eisenhower. The former President called off his visit as a result of the riots.

Fee was in Tokyo when the riots were going on in 1960. He said reports had been "exaggerated" and denied there is widespread anti-American sentiment in Japan.

"Of course, there is a strong nationalistic movement in Japan," he emphasized. "But antagonistic feelings toward the United States are not general." It is highly unlikely that Japan will turn to Communism, Fee predicted.

The future of the small, economically underdeveloped nations of the Far East seems less certain. China, desperately in need of space and food for a mushrooming population of more than 600 million, shows no signs of slowing her drive to gobble up the small nations on her borders.

Pro-Western Thailand and South Viet Nam, neutralist Cambodia and Indonesia, Burma and the new Malaysian Federation are among the small nations struggling to fend off their hungry neighbor to the north.

Strong nationalistic sentiments, fostered by leaders like President Sukarno of Indonesia, mean the small nations are unwilling to accept interference in internal affairs from any of the major powers, Fee said.

"The leaders and the people of most of these countries have a dream--a dream of a better life, a higher standard of living. They have their independence, precarious as it may be. They are now waging a war on centuries of poverty."

Fee said nationalism will continue to grow in the Far East during the coming year. "This can be a great force for good or evil," he emphasized. "If the peoples of the West will make an effort to respect these nations for what they are and what they have been, rather than as pawns in a power struggle, the nationalism can be a force for good."

Fee forecasts no significant change in the balance of power during 1964, but he emphasizes crises could flare up in any number of spots.

"These 'trouble spots' are worrisome," he said. "No one knows when a brush-fire war such as the one in Viet Nam could lead to a more widespread conflict."

Whether the trouble spots can be kept from spreading is one of the big unanswered questions of 1964.

Letters To The Editor

Barry's Reasons

To the Editor:

Jack Shea's wish for the political death of Barry Goldwater contained a number of propositions which go well beyond the simple dishonesty of his remark that Sen. Goldwater is running for President out of personal ambition. It assumed, in short, that the alleged electoral fate of one man necessarily means the loss of a political movement when, in fact, the latter has been of course disproven and the former met with growing doubts.

The author implied that in an era of some "social consciousness," the wealthy class should have no protection--or a good deal less. Now certainly, argument here is not confined to a single man nor to 50 million men, for few would believe that a minority of poor deserves any more privilege or "protection" from the law than a minority of wealthy.

But a more outspoken and immediately dangerous element of leftist thought is the belief in a new tone of "interdependency" in the Cold War. This belief, a major part of the late President's foreign policy and gladly affirmed by the present Administration, has created a general euphoria toward communism abroad and particularly at home.

The rumblings of communism overseas are too vast and too successful to be attributed entirely to a bankrupt beard to the south, and it is only too obvious that rebellions and demonstrations in Panama, Peru, Zanzibar or wherever are possible in large part only to Kremlin aid. In other words, Communist agitators and rebels are making startling progress in many areas.

But as I have already said, communism presents a particular threat at home and largely on the college campus. In his year-end report to the Attorney General, J. Edgar Hoover stated that: "The Communist Party, USA, has continued its unwavering allegiance to the Soviet Union, which is committed to the goal of world domination by communism."

"In October, Communist Party delegates met in Chicago, Ill., to lay the groundwork for a new national youth organization aimed at exploitation of what the Party describes as a drift toward the left among young people. . . (Gus Hall has stipulated that) it should avoid the appearance of a Soviet-style organization; however, it should not tolerate anti-Soviet or anti-Communist Party thinking."

I therefore suggest that Barry Goldwater is not running to "put his name in the history books" but out of necessity; out of the conviction, shared by millions of Americans, that conservatism can best fill the role of leadership today--a role in which Liberals have so abysmally failed.

Insurance Annoys

To the Editor:

There are many student wives employed on campus and most of this employment does not arise through career consciousness but out of necessity. A pet peeve with my wife and others these days is the life insurance program which the University has set up and made mandatory for its employees.

My comments on the life insurance program are anything but complimentary. For example, the only possible way for my wife to benefit from the program is to die within the next two years, because after I finish my education in 1966 and transfer my residence to a law school she will not be employed here and therefore cannot continue the insurance nor can she receive any redemption for her investment.

Another hilarious point concerning the policy is that once she reaches the age of 65, if employed at MSU and still in the program, she will have invested $1,230 and upon death her beneficiaries will receive only $1,000.

It is my earnest belief that no employer, no matter how powerful, can legally tell his employees how to spend their money.

If my words are stained with any untruths my deepest and sincerest apologies. Otherwise, I would contend that this is a mere act of taxation without representation.

Article Is Insulting

To the Editor:

The article, "Behind The Panama Crisis," which appeared on the editorial page of Jan. 20, commits a blatant insult to the University community which can be neither excused nor passed over.

The initial approach of the writer, characterized by the statement that "no one will be able to give a very clear-cut answer (to the cause of the riots and ensuing crisis)," negates the very purpose of the University and the search for truth.

We are not here to pay homage to the black forces of mysticism which cloud reality, but rather to penetrate that apparent ambiguity with knowledge and understanding. The analysis which suggests that a given situation cannot be understood, then wanders into a superficial glance at the Never-Neverland described as the whole Latin American situation and terminates with the propagation of the very myths which have in part led to the original problem, flouts the methodology of learning on which the University is based.

Further, it is an affront not only to the students of Latin American affairs but also to those in the community who are dedicated to the pursuit and use of reason.

Mali Shows Extent Of Red Rift

By KAREN GILLILAND
State News Editorial Writer

Everybody talks about it, but what truth can be found in the volumes of print debating the ideological split between the Soviet Union and Communist China?

Naturally, Moscow and Peking sources deny the existence of any conflict between their goals. They are partners, they say, working together toward a Communist world full of peace and brotherhood.

But, another incident has been added to the growing list offered as evidence of tensions plaguing the Communist bloc. The scene is Mali.

Mali is a former French colony in western Africa which attained independence after World War II. Since that time, Mali has been a socialist nation, and has maintained a militantly anti-West policy.

Now, it seems, Mali is having trouble deciding which of her Communist friends means more to her.

The incident which has brought this to the fore was the distribution of pamphlets praising the Soviet Union for its achievements in Africa, and, particularly, for its economic aid to Mali. The pamphlets, believed to have originated at the Russian embassy, were distributed by hundreds of Mali youths.

The significance of the pamphlets lies in the timing of their distribution. Red Chinese premier Chou En-Lai was visiting Mali at the time. Needless to say, the pamphlets quickly disappeared from the streets.

Chou was greeted warmly by Mali's President Modibo Keita. Apparently the greeting was too warm for the comfort of the Russians who have sunk more than $50 million into the development of Mali's economy.

Also of concern to the Russians is the new round of talks between Chou and Mali leaders. Diplomats have suggested that these talks concern possible Chinese credits for Mali.

There are already 300 to 400 Chinese technicians in Mali working on rice paddies, and sugar and tea plantations. It seems that possibly Mali's socialist experiment is on the verge of failure, and both Moscow and Peking are seeking to save it.

The Mali government eagerly wants the Chinese credits but, at the same time, is waiting for Soviet reaction. Mali wants to offend neither of these sources of economic help.

Amateur Radio Club Contacts 58 Nations

Using a powerful new short-wave radio station, the Amateur Radio Club has entered a worldwide contest and contacted 195 "hams" in 58 foreign countries.

Thomas Drake, instructor of electrical engineering and club adviser, estimates those figures to be near the top in the contest, based on the winning totals of previous years.

The station apparatus, or "rig," a Collins S-line, costs $4,000. Because of its cost and complexity, the electrical engineering department owns the rig.

Club President Sheri Zeigler, Wilmette, Ill., junior, estimates the rig has multiplied the club's membership tenfold.

"Last year the club had eight or 10 members," she said. "Since the new rig has been operating (Nov. 4), we have 40 active members and 40 more names on our mailing list."

The club, with records back to 1925, predates the University's own radio station, WKAR. The stations of those early years were far different from the advanced sets used today. Drake said advances yielding greater areas which may be contacted have increased the popularity of amateur radio operation.

He said the rig is equivalent to a 4,000 watt AM station broadcasting in all directions. (WJIM in Lansing broadcasts its AM at 1,000 watts.) The rig differs from an AM station because it sends a highly directionalized beam instead of a radio station's broad beam. Thus the rig is equivalent to a 32,000 watt AM radio station.

Does contacting foreign countries, while speaking only English, handicap the operators? Don Karconen, Mass. freshman in charge of programming and special affairs, said:

"English is the truly universal language. Almost all the foreign hams speak it, and we seldom run into trouble with voice communications. When we do have trouble, we switch over to code."

The code is the internationally-known Morse code. All operators of the rig must be licensed in this code, and pass an exam given by the master operator of the rig.

A PANELESS EVENT--For two weeks, both hands and the wind have easily gone through this window pane of the west entrance to the Union. Manager Michael Dmochowski, explaining that it will soon be replaced, notes "it happens quite often."

Parking Ramp To Get Phones

Emergency phones will soon be a fact for the parking ramp south of Shaw Hall and rear view mirrors are a possibility, according to Richard Bernitt, director of public safety.

Phones at the center stairway of each ramp level, will connect drivers with the department of public safety.

"It was our opinion that since the ramp is unattended, drivers might have no way of calling attention to vehicle problems or of contacting police or the fire department without telephones," Bernitt said.

"My only regret is that they were not installed the day the ramp opened."

The phones are for emergency purposes only. Spartan Roundtable Tuesday suggested rear view mirrors to help drivers see approaching cars on turns as a possible improvement.

"From the few times I have used the ramp, I would say mirrors are not necessary," Bernitt said.

"Nevertheless, they may be needed, and we will look into the possibility of installing the mirrors."

Quirk Boxes Monday Night

Allan Quirk, a junior from Canada, will be fighting a substitute opponent in Montreal's Paul Saune Arena Monday night in a bout that was originally scheduled to be a defense of his Canadian heavyweight crown.

Quirk was scheduled to meet Andre Belanger, the French champion of Quebec City, in a title bout, but the Frenchman injured his hand in training and the match had to be postponed until April.

Taking the place of Belanger will be a tough Detroit heavyweight Chuck Majewski. Majewski, holder of a 21-7 record, is expected to be a rough test for the Canadian student.

JUST IN CASE--This student will soon be able to use a direct telephone line between the new Shaw parking ramp and the police should an emergency occur.

Soviets Visit Shreveport To Sightsee

SHREVEPORT, La. - A pair of Russians from the embassy in Washington, apparently sightseeing, caused a minor flurry of excitement here Monday.

George D'Artois, commissioner of public safety, and three officers walked up to them on a downtown street and asked what they were doing in town.

"They got pretty belligerent, and said they had diplomatic immunity, and said they were going to complain to the Russian ambassador about our questioning them," D'Artois said. "They said we were violating their rights."

Market Club To Introduce New Placement Concept

The Market Club will introduce a new concept in student placement at 8 p.m. Thursday in 35 Union.

Called the Man Marketing Clinic, its purpose is to help students in the field of marketing find the jobs they want, and it will be open to all interested students.

Assisted by W.J.E. Crissy, professor of marketing, Leo G. Erickson, associate professor of marketing, and Edwin B. Fitzpatrick, Placement Bureau assistant director, the Market Club will present a three-pronged attack that will help students in all phases of job-hunting.

The first phase will be films and a talk by Fitzpatrick on job hunting and the role of the Placement Bureau in the student's search.

Crissy will present the second phase. He will introduce and explain a special brochure he has written. His 18-page booklet is designed to help the student to know more about himself as an employable individual and to know more about vocational openings suitable to his talents.

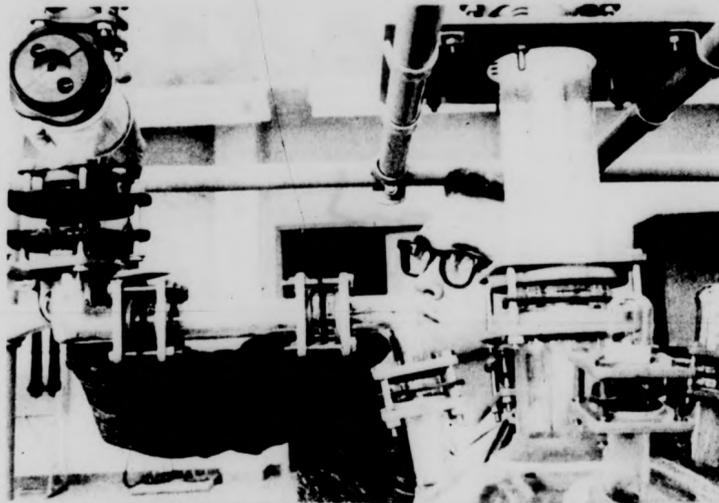

The third phase will be mock interviewing. This enables a student to go through an interview before a panel of students and faculty, who then evaluate and criticize the student helping him to strengthen his weak points. These interviews will be made by appointment at the student's convenience.

In addition, the Man Marketing

Clinic will have a file of resumes of participating students in the Placement Bureau and in the marketing department. All employers interviewing at MSU will know of this file before they arrive and can use it to help in their choice of students.

The file in the marketing department will help the faculty to recommend students for jobs that come to their attention. They will also be available to give tips on companies interviewing.

The Man Marketing Clinic will also assist students in their search for summer and part-time jobs in the field of marketing. Last year several jobs for the summer went unfilled because interested students could not be found in time.

Scientist Develop Blue Cheese Fast

Three MSU food scientists have shortened the curing time for blue cheese from three months to ten days.

Conventional blue cheese is cured by sprinkling mold spores in the curd after setting, draining, and cutting, then salting after the wheels are made. Holes are then punched in the cheese and it is allowed to cure. The entire process takes three months.

Theodore I Hedrick, professor of food science, Erland Kondrup, dairy plant superintendent in the food science department, and Wayne Williamson, research assistant in biochemistry, have developed the new method.

The mold spores are inoculated into the milk before setting. At the time of draining the cheese is stirred to keep it from forming a mass instead of retaining the individual cube form.

The curd is then transferred to shelves with a fine mesh screen and allowed to ripen. It is stirred daily.

Finally, a quarter of the salt is added on the fourth and fifth days of curing, and the rest on the sixth day. The salting is the secret of the new process. Early or late salting can cause undesirable qualities in the cheese.

By the tenth day there is enough mold growth to assure a fine blue cheese flavor, color and texture. The end product is made up of small cubes instead of the conventional wheels.

Taste panels have already approved the new cheese, rating it higher than blue cheese taken from wheels cured by the regular method.

The researchers wish to refine their curing technique before releasing it to commercial processors.

SAN MATEO, Calif. (AP)--The junior college has come into its own in California.

Two-year "junior" or "community" colleges are skyrocketing in enrollment and prestige all across the country, but nowhere more than in California. Here, the goal of free higher education for all is nearing reality.

This year there is a tuition-free public junior college within commuting distance of 80 per cent of the state's high school graduates. More than 352,000 degree-seeking students are attending the 71 institutions.

Nationwide, there are about one million students enrolled in 425 public and 278 private junior colleges.

Many of California's students will be content with only one or two years of general or vocational education, and those working toward a degree won't necessarily get it. But at least 25 per cent, and probably more, will go on to four-year colleges and universities.

Because they are locally controlled and financed, there may be no such thing as a typical California junior college. The College of San Mateo, however, may serve as an illustration of how they are organized.

The college has 5,441 day students, and another 10,000 in evening college.

In the years since its opening in 1922, the San Mateo Junior College district has never asked for a tax increase.

By operating economically, saving its money and investing wisely, the district had nearly $10 million in reserves when it came time to build the new campus.

What are the taxpayers getting for their investment?

--A community resource which opens the door of higher education to every resident of the district, regardless of age, race, color, creed, financial circumstances or educational background.

--A second-chance opportunity for the "late bloomers" and "early goofers" who didn't know when it counted that they would want or need more education.

--A community cultural center with plays, concerts and lectures, and soon to have a 70,000 book library, a UHF television station and an FM radio station.

This trend has been established in other states, such as North Carolina.

California was named by the report as the only state which offers vocational and technical programs for post high school students on a state-wide basis. These programs are offered in the comprehensive two-year colleges.

"California seems to be the only state that has a state-wide system of comprehensive community colleges capable of meeting the new need," said Harold T. Smith, author of "Education and Training for the World of Work."

The committee findings explain that precedent has already been established and that Michigan has the legal machinery for the adoption of the concept.

Need for such a program is shown by the fact that a high percentage of students presently in technical education programs are accepting positions even before completing their training.

The council plans to circulate bulletins to interested groups in Michigan in an effort to gain support for the program.

The plan has been approved by the Community College Development Committee and the Post Twelfth Grade Community Education Committee.

Junior Colleges Growing

Extended Role Proposed For Community Colleges

A new role for state community colleges was proposed recently by the Michigan Council of Community College Administrators.

Under the proposed plan, funds provided by recent federal legislation would give local communities an opportunity to expand and develop needed programs of vocational and technical education at the high school and post high school level for employment-bound youth.

According to the report on area skill centers compiled by the council, the community college proposal is the most natural and economical approach to the training of a major segment of the present and future labor force.

The committee believes that as the need for college-parallel courses increases as a result of the increase in college-age students, these centers might become independent community colleges.

Michigan's Office of Community College Cooperation, originated the concept.

Tanganyika Leader Tours Revolt City

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika (AP)--President Julius Nyerere toured his capital Wednesday in the wake of a short-lived army revolt and helped dispel rumors he was a virtual prisoner of the Tanganyika army.

In a brief radio speech last night, the African leader condemned looting and lawlessness which accompanied the army mutiny, but this was his first public appearance since the troops broke out of their barracks to take over the city.

The President, wearing slacks and a bright sports shirt, drove through looted shopping areas accompanied by two police outriders and a police jeep.

Several times he stopped his car to talk with Indian and Arab shopkeepers whose stores were broken into by the mob.

He also visited the house where an Arab was killed in Monday's violence.

The President seemed grim and tense when he left his white walled State House, but appeared to relax and regain his confidence during the 3-1/2 hour tour.

After the expulsion of British officers and the appointment of an African commander-in-chief, the troops of the 1st Battalion, Tanganyika Rifles, were back in Dar ES Salaam's Colito barracks and the city was returning to normal.

Six hundred miles to the west in the garrison town of Tabora, troops of the 2nd Battalion reaffirmed their allegiance to the republic.

British officers and families at Tabora have been flown out to neighboring Kenya. The officers were briefly arrested by the men but were unharmed.

In violence following the Tabora mutiny Tuesday, one Arab was killed in the town.

Art Prof Exhibits In N.Y.

SEVEN 1963 is the title of Charles Pollock's oil, to be shown in New York.

An oil painting by Charles Pollock, associate professor of art, has been included in an exhibition at the Whitney Museum of American Art in New York.

The show, "Contemporary American Painting," includes works by 145 leading American artists, and will continue through Feb. 2.

Pollock's painting in the show is a nonobjective study in red, blue and black entitled "Seven, 1963." He completed the work last year while in Italy on a sabbatical leave.

Pollock has been an art instructor in New York and a supervisor of mural painting and graphics for federal art projects in Michigan, before joining the MSU faculty in 1942.

He has done free-lance designing, painting and newspaper work. A retrospective exhibition of his work is scheduled to open at the Kresge Art Center here Feb. 3.

Hoglund Wins Council Post

C. Ray Hoglund, professor of agricultural economics, has been named to the board of directors of the American Grassland Council.

Hoglund will serve for three years as a member-at-large. The appointment was announced by the national council Jan. 1. The organization is concerned with coordinating activities relating to the use of forages in the nation's agricultural industry.

School Suspends Student Locksmiths

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Two University of Pennsylvania students, who authorities said studied locksmithing intensively so they could gain access to the University's confidential records, have been suspended for a minimum of two years.

At the same time, it was announced earlier that two other students were suspended until next fall on charges of drunk and disorderly conduct in the dormitories. A fifth student was placed on probation for allegedly forging his adviser's signature on a registration form.

Dean of Men Robert F. Longley declined to name the students. He said the two who gained access to the records studied locksmithing intensively, using library books.

The dean said they asserted they were interested solely in records and reports relating to their own performances at the University.

Soviet Fishing Fleet Largest In World

WASHINGTON (AP)—Russia has amassed the world's largest fleet of modern fishing vessels, which have spread to every ocean and have used strong-arm tactics to crowd out other fishermen, a Senate report said today.

The Senate Commerce Committee viewed this tremendous expansion as a peril to the U.S. fishing industry and a threat to the available supply of fish.

Soviet fishermen were accused of using rough tactics such as: Hit and run collisions, crowding out other fishermen with trawler flotillas, destroying pots and lines of other fishermen, using nets with tighter mesh than allowed under fishing treaties, ignoring fish conservation plans.

The committee, in a preface to its 50-page report, said "We must continue to crusade for conservations practices and to guard against rustlers of the sea." The document was compiled by Leon M. Herman, specialist in Soviet economics in the Library of Congress. He based it on Soviet publications translated in the library and at the University of Washington.

Coeds Find Dormer Living Comfortable, Convenient

Communal living, the goal of dormitory or sorority life, has been brought to perhaps its highest level in many places in the University community.

Dormer living, one large bedroom for many people instead of several small rooms, is being practiced in 13 sorority houses and three dormitories on campus—Landon, Gilchrist and Campbell, as well as in the Van Hoosen Hall apartment system.

"There are many advantages of sleeping in a dormer," said Pat Drake, Troy, Ohio, junior in Delta Gamma. "This way we can study in our rooms without disturbing anyone who is trying to sleep."

The sorority dormers are always dark and quiet, since there are no telephones or lights. Most sororities have a wake-up system, with one girl each day responsible for waking up the others.

Pat Blaney, Jackson senior in Gamma Phi Beta, said, "If you go up to sleep late at night, you hear the snorers and the sleep-talkers." In the dormitories, dormer life is somewhat different. The girls study and sleep in their rooms because separate study rooms are not provided for each room.

There is an excess of space in the dormer—eight closets for six girls. The dormer is about the size of two rooms.

"The dormer arrangement is especially good socially," said Gretchen Albrecht, Pittsburgh junior living in a Van

Physics Teachers To Hear Leitner

Alfred Leitner, professor of physics will present a paper on "A Laboratory Cryogenic Station" at a meeting of the American Association of Physics Teachers today in New York City. Richard Au, a graduate student, is coauthor.

A motion picture made by Leitner and entitled "Liquid Helium II, the Superfluid," will run at a continuous showing of new physics films at the Statler-Hilton Hotel during the AAPT and the American Physical Society meetings this week.

Leitner will also present a paper on "New Integral Representations" Saturday at the annual meeting of the American Mathematical Society in Miami, Fla.

'THE PLAY'S THE THING'—Wherein Othello, played by Earl Bowen, Pocatello, Iowa, graduate student, is about to destroy himself through the murder of Desdemona, portrayed by Cathy Mann, Detroit junior. Photo by George Junne

'Othello' Planned For Next Week

The University Theater Performing Arts Company, in cooperation with the humanities department, will give 11 performances of William Shakespeare's "Othello."

"Othello" is required reading for Humanities 242, and the presentation is designed to give students a fuller understanding of the play.

"About a half hour of sub-plots and dialogue leading into the actual play has been deleted in the interest of time," said Chuck Lauterback, assistant professor in speech and play director.

The presentations, which last almost three hours, will run Tuesday through Monday in the Auditorium Arena Theater at 8 p.m.

On Feb. 11 and 12 the show will move to the Wonders Hall Kiva, and on Feb. 13 and 14 it will go to the McDonel Hall Kiva. These performances will begin at 7:15 p.m.

Earl Boen, graduate assistant in acting from Pocatello, Idaho, will play Othello. He has worked in the Ashland Shakespeare Festival in Ashland, Ore.

In the role of Iago will be Fred DeSantis, Grosse Pointe Woods graduate assistant, who has toured with the Catholic University productions and appeared in the Colorado Shakespeare Festival.

The cast also includes Cathy Mann, Detroit junior, Eve Davidson, Eaton Rapids junior, Richard Carpenter, Port Huron graduate student, Emmet Faulkner, Sault

Discusses Pornography

'Sex, Obscenity Not Same'

He ran into his kindergarten classroom and skipped toward his seat. From his hip pocket peeked a small comic-strip booklet.

Curious, another boy tugged the booklet free and opened it. . . the teacher came to break up the ensuing struggle.

Perhaps an incidental quarrel

Dorm Asks

circulated in the dormitory to show added support for the action.

One of the main arguments for the policy was that "clothes don't make the man." It was the council's opinion that behavior is not influenced by attire.

An objection to the present system was that some men wear the same shirt to meals for the entire term. Often this results in dress shirts looking worse than most sport shirts.

The necessity of paying for laundering white shirts was also brought up.

Men's dress regulations were revised last year to those presently in effect. Previously men were required to wear suits or sport coats and ties to all evening meals except Saturday.

James R. Appleton, associate director of residence halls, recalled that there was some student opposition to changing the regulations last year.

Appleton said he personally thought more emphasis should be placed on the words "neat and clean" than on specific dress. These words, he said, could be further defined.

Appleton said he thought MHA should "set something definite and stick with it."

but, seeing the booklet, the teacher headed for the principal's office. He called the Lansing Police Dept.

The booklet contained what the U. S. Supreme Court terms "hard-core pornography." It's mere possession is a criminal offense.

Control and prevention of pornographic material, an increasing field, is a job involving the U. S. Post Office, the FBI and state and local law enforcement agencies.

In Lansing, the job falls largely to one man, detective Kenneth Swan of the juvenile division of the Lansing Police Dept.

Speaking before the Parent-Teachers Association of Lansing's Everett High School Tuesday, Swan said:

"Sex and obscenity are not synonymous. The portrayal of sex, for example, in art, literature and scientific works is not of itself sufficient reason to deny material the constitutional protection of freedom of the press and of speech."

The test for obscenity is according to the Supreme court, "whether to the average person, applying contemporary community standards, the dominant theme of the material, taken as a whole, appeals to prurient interests."

Early in 1963, Swan set up a rotating citizens committee to review pocket novels and magazines. If the committee rules that a publication is questionable, the distributor for the Lansing area is asked not to put it on the newsstands, Swan said.

If the distributor fails to remove the questioned literature from the newsstands after two warnings, he is subject to arrest, Swan said.

Withheld pocket novels numbered 85 out of 442 reviewed and magazines numbered 48 out of 96 reviewed, he said.

"In some of the books offered for sale," Swan said, "it took up to 20 pages to describe a single sex act."

He said most of the "smut" books follow the same general pattern—the dominant theme is always sex in perverted forms. People have different names, they are cast in slightly different situations, but the basic pattern remains the same, he said.

Jamal To Provide J-Hop Entertainment

Best-selling jazz pianist Ahmad Jamal will provide half-time entertainment at the annual J-Hop in the Auditorium.

General chairman Dave Jackson, Detroit junior, said Thursday that Jamal, an artist who earned musical fame with the album "But Not For Me," will stage a performance during the J-Hop intermission.

Jamal recently appeared at Carnegie Hall and Town Hall, New York.

Dance music will be supplied by Buddy Morrow and his "Night Train" orchestra. The band's repertoire includes popular music from early Dixieland, rhythm and blues, ballads and progressive jazz interpretations.

The orchestra has recorded such best-sellers as "Night Train," "One Mint Julep" and "I Don't Know."

Casino surroundings will carry out a "Vegas Venture" theme, Jackson said. Refreshments will be available in a night club at the lower level of the Auditorium.

Miss MSU will be crowned during the half-time ceremonies policy for France in Southeast Asia. The aim would be to re-establish French influence in what once was French Indochina.

The French decision has nettled the United States and other allies.

No exact date was set for the Brazilian trip, but reliable sources said it probably will be some time in September. The trip also may take De Gaulle to Buenos Aires, Montevideo, Uruguay; Santiago, Chile, and Lima, Peru. He will be visiting South America at a time when the United States will be preoccupied by the presidential campaign.

De Gaulle's acceptance of an invitation from President Joao Goulart of Brazil in effect ends the "lobster war" of last year. This was a controversy over fishing rights off the coast of Brazil.

Meanwhile, the cabinet spokesman said France is continuing preparations for the diplomatic recognition of Red China. Defense Minister Pierre Messmer reported to the cabinet on his recent visit with Cambodia's Chief of State, Prince Norodom Sihanouk in Phnom Penh.

He told his colleagues that Red China cannot be ignored "if one wants to have an active policy in Southeast Asia."

One of De Gaulle's objectives in this area was spelled out last August when he urged the reunification of South Viet Nam and Communists North Viet Nam under a guaranteed neutral status.

Athletes Frequently Injured

Shoulder Easily Hurt

By HUGH J. LEACH
State News Staff Writer

Dr. James S. Feurig, Olin Memorial Health Center director, said the injury is just what the name implies—a separation in the shoulder.

Two bones are involved, Feurig said, the collar bone, or clavicle, and a part of the shoulder blade known as the acromion. The bones are bound together by ligaments to form a joint.

When the ligaments are strained or stretched, the result is a shoulder separation. The degree to which these ligaments are which he was performing and partially dislocated his shoulder. In trying to recover he banged his shoulder on the bar and a separation resulted.

One month to a year, depending on the degree of separation, is required for complete recovery, Feurig said.

Prep Cager Stays Benched

DETROIT (UPI)—A high school has the right to punish a basketball player by kicking him off the team, a judge ruled Wednesday.

He was ruled ineligible to play varsity basketball in October. He hired an attorney and appealed to the court.

Rashid said he did not believe the penalty was too severe, since the boy could have been expelled from school.

Circuit Judge Joseph G. Rashid made the ruling in the case of Robert Clark, 6-8 center of the Dearborn Heights Robichaud High School team. Clark was suspended from school in 1962 and reinstated on probationary terms last February.

"If we do not uphold the hand of teaching authority," he said, "I don't know where we are going."

Wolverine Challenge

We of the University of Michigan Rugby Club, being kindly gods, send our condolences to Michigan State University in that far-off land, Lansing.

We wonder if there are any red-blooded individuals at your institution who would care to represent their namesake in a Rugby contest in the spring of 1964?

We realize that sports activity at M.S.U. at this time is very feeble indeed, but we hope that someone may see fit to return our challenge.

For any that are unsure of the game, we will be glad to furnish copies of instructions upon request, at a slight fee (cost).

It seems strange that other institutions of higher learning are well represented in Rugby ranks, (Notre Dame, Duke, Army, Cornell, University of Michigan, Virginia, Indiana, Minnesota, Illinois, and others) and yet the Spartan campus is unable to show her face?

Is this due to a lack of spirit? We in the east, being older and wiser, would not like to think this of our more inexperienced brothers in the west.

Anyone for Rugby?

'Bush League' Reply

Dear Mr. Lancaster:

From your State News column of Jan. 15 (Bush League Behavior), it would appear that that economics professor would have good cause to include you among those students he refers to as "kiddies."

Your incomplete and obviously hasty treatment of the incidents during the Indiana game is ample proof that the "legendary" immature college student does exist on the campus.

Surely we should not condone these incidents, but neither should we hastily and so completely condemn an entire student body for one small incident which has admittedly been a rarity on this campus. You quoted Fordy Anderson as saying that "We've never had anything but good reports on our student fans." Can you deny that from that source, this incident must have been an isolated thing?

Granted, throwing trash on the floor is deplorable and dangerous but let's put it in the right perspective. There was very little actual trash which reached the floor, not even enough to warrant sweeping it.

Booing and "boo-birds" have been a part of athletics since the beginning. This does not make the practice any less disagreeable, but my point is that it happens in high school, college, and professional athletics, and is not limited to Jenison Fieldhouse by any stretch of the imagination.

And who's to say that the derisive cheering which occurs when an opposing player fouls out or a coach pounds the floor and jumps onto the court to scream at an official, is any less a violation of good sportsmanship? Yet you fail to include these in your criticism. Of course the Big Ten is not "bush league." Of course Michigan State is not "bush league," but your editorial certainly was! The probability of the incident recurring cannot be considered impossible, but your editorial may have been more acceptable after it had been repeated at some subsequent home game.

One game should not be used as a guidepost to such an opinion, when the entire history of athletics at this University stands ready to prove you wrong.

As that economics professor probably would say—impatience and haste are the marks of an adolescent ("kiddie").

Schmitter Back After Illness; Fencing Opener Nears

What's it like to be an arm-chair coach?

One who can tell you is fencing's Charles Schmitter who spent most of last week hospitalized while recuperating from illness. He has doctor's orders to cut down on activities.

Any other time, this might not pose too great an inconvenience, but with the season kick-off just nine days away, Schmitter finds it a difficult restriction.

"I don't recommend it as a good coaching procedure," the veteran said jokingly. I can think of better ways to do the job.

"But after last week, when I was as sick as I've been in the last 45 years," Schmitter explained, "I wouldn't push my luck too far. Only days ago at this same time, I was completely incapacitated, so while I'm not anywhere near par, I'm just thankful to be back."

Schmitter, whose 25th year of MSU coaching last season was capped with a Big Ten championship, expects rugged grind for the 1964 campaign. As an opener, the Spartans meet Air Force Academy and UCLA in Colorado Springs.

Schmitter rates Air Force the toughest fencing outfit in the Midwest, making this one of the most challenging openers of any season.

The loss of a week's coaching has made Schmitter hard pressed to find the best combination for the starting three in each of the three weapon classes.

"Whichever men I go with, I don't think I'll have to worry about the spirit of the team,"

Spartan Profile

Bill Curtis--Extra Hustle

BILL CURTIS

Head basketball coach Fordy Anderson doesn't find it hard to praise Bill Curtis, a sophomore from Grand Rapids.

"He is a fine rebounder, a good defensive player who possesses an extra amount of hustle and desire," Anderson said. "He's very coachable and learns quickly."

A 1962 graduate of South High School in Grand Rapids, Curtis led the Trojans to three straight city basketball titles and is one of the most promising sophomores on the varsity squad.

Curtis came to State on a basketball scholarship and, after winning a freshman award last year, has proven that he is ready for Big Ten varsity ball.

He has appeared in all 14 games this year and has accounted for 53 points. More important, the 6 ft. forward has averaged 6.3 rebounds per game, fourth highest on the team, and against Wisconsin led both teams in rebounding with 16, despite playing less than half the game.

Curtis is currently the "seventh" man for the Spartans and has provided Coach Anderson with several excellent pinch performances.

Bill Curtis -- a name you'll hear a lot of for the next two basketball seasons.

'Hollow Crown' Royal Treat

"The Hollow Crown" a Royal Revue was presented as part of the Lecture-Concert series in the Auditorium Tuesday night.

The revue, produced by the Royal Shakespeare Company, was a collection of extracts from the lives of British monarchs, from William the Conqueror to Queen Victoria. These included poems, speeches, and letters, most in the words of the rulers themselves.

Members of the company were Ann Firbank, John Nettleton, John Warner, and Michael Gough.

The musical company was made up of James Walker, playing the piano and harpsichord, and singers Stephen Manton, Brian Priestman, Richard Golding, and John Lawrenson. To one unaccustomed to the formal British stage, they gave the appearance of a group of English butlers in an American barber shop quartet.

Miss Firbank, portraying Jane Austen in "A Partial, Prejudiced and Ignorant Historian" gave a humorous description of the monarchs from Henry IV (1399-1413) to Charles I (1625-1649).

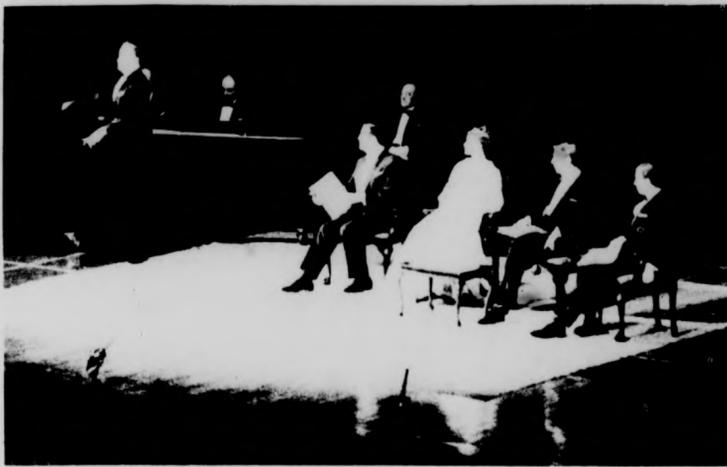

A letter in which Henry VIII proposed to Anne Boleyn, a lady in waiting at his court, was read and was followed by a letter that Anne Boleyn wrote to Henry from the Tower of London just before her execution as queen.

In a dramatic moment of English history, Charles I was shown as he confronted the Court at his trial for high treason. It was Charles' contention that a king could not be tried by a mere earthly court. He was proven wrong and condemned to death.

One of the high points of the evening came with the "Counterblast to Tobacco," a vigorous speech by James I. His blast on smoking and pinch snuffing in his Court was well received by the audience, as they were doubtlessly comparing it with the recent reports from our own officialdom.

The musical company rendered a "Ballad to an Absent Friend" written by Albert, Prince Consort to Queen Victoria. Also presented was a ballad written by Richard I during his captivity in the Castle of Durrenstein.

Although for the most part, the audience was enthusiastic, there were some dull moments when heads were seen to droop. In particular, the selections from the Chronicles covering the rulers from William I (1066-1087) to Edward II (1307-1327) were dry and factual.

heavier enrollment next fall.

Get ready now for the even heavier avalanche of additional students in the fall of 1965.

The governor also outlined a $51.2 million capital outlay budget including $8 million for MSU and $5.3 million for the University of Michigan.

He explained why the MSU recommendation is greater than that for the University of Michigan:

"MSU is in a heavy outlay period and the big bulk of Ann Arbor's will come next year. Ann Arbor is now in the planning stage, while MSU has already begun construction."

The new chemistry building and the power plant on the MSU campus were cited as major items to be financed with the capital outlay funds.

Medical buildings are major facilities planned for the Ann Arbor campus, the governor said. Romney's total budget called for spending $622.4 million of an estimated $646.4 million in estimated resources for 1964-65.

Of the difference the governor recommended that $19 million be "invested in our own future."

He called for the "future fund" to be used to continue the pay-as-you-grow capital outlay program now underway. Part of the $19 million may be used in university construction, he said. The remaining $5 million would be a budgeted surplus.

"A surplus will be proof to the people of Michigan and the nation that Michigan has regained its fiscal integrity and once again is the dynamic, progressive, forward-looking state we have been historically," he said.

Newsman Warns

Beware Of Chinese

Red China is our real enemy in Viet Nam and should be taken more seriously, warned David Halberstam, New York Times correspondent in Viet Nam, in the Kiva Tuesday night.

"Red China is a real power to those on her border and what happens in Viet Nam will have repercussions in other south-east Asian countries," he said.

He said that if the tough Vietnamese cannot win their war the other countries will be discouraged.

"If the United States leaves Viet Nam it will prove that our word is not good," he said, "and that Red China will be accepted as the eventual winner."

He also advised Americans to trust reporters and not announcements designed by our officials to prop up the new government in South Viet Nam.

"The State Department is always more optimistic than I am," Halberstam said. "The guerilla forces are two to three times stronger than they were in 1962 and the Communists are getting more powerful."

He said that the newsmen reported a dangerous situation in the delta area last January when the State Department was announcing that we were winning the war in Viet Nam.

The government is spending $1.5 million a day and is losing to the poorly-equipped Viet Cong guerillas, partly because there is little follow-up of intelligence, he said.

"The Viet Cong get most of their weapons by attacking little outposts," Halberstam said.

He said that the outposts should be taken down and that the South Vietnamese troops taught to fight at night.

There is too much dependence on air and artillery which makes it difficult to know who is being killed, he said. The antagonism caused when peasants are killed may do some recruiting for the Viet Cong.

The Viet Cong kills people who are already disliked by the villagers, Halberstam said. All of their strategy is politically motivated.

Because the United States promised not to leave Viet Nam, we may have to increase our commitment and send troops to help win the war, he said.

"The Viet Cong keep their people lean, hungry and angry at the Diam clique," Halberstam said.

"Political change is necessary to give the people a sense of honest government. The Diem regime tolerated corrupt people. He said that the new government in Viet Nam has created a period of genuine partnership, and has a sense of reality. They have a willingness to face the problem.

There are areas we could have had in 1962, he said, but the commander was afraid to take casualties and reported 98 per cent control over the area.

"We (newsmen) were the first to spot the political overtones to the Buddhist crises," Halberstam said.

he noted. After the way they handled themselves while I was out, I'll have that much more confidence."

Sabre, headed by captain Lou Salamone and Dave Simmons, should figure strongly in State's defense of the conference crown.

In the 1963 Big Ten meet held here in East Lansing, Salamone captured the sabre title for the Spartans.

Foil, although missing the services of Dick Schloemer, who took foil honors last year, will have two returning veterans in Nels Marin and Bryan Kutchins.

Epee, which lost the 20-plus winners in John Pelletier and Bob Brooks, (1962 Big Ten champion), is the least experienced weapon for the Spartans.
