U.S. Calls Action 'Unfortunate Step'

France Plans Peking Embassy; Will Maintain Two-China Policy

PARIS (AP)—France and Red China announced simultaneously they are establishing diplomatic relations and will exchange ambassadors within three months.

Thus President Charles De Gaulle scored a diplomatic breakthrough with a "two China" policy, a topic often discussed but never tried because of mutual hostility to it from both the Communists and the Nationalists.

U.S. Hits Red China Diplomacy

WASHINGTON (AP)—United States ability to hold the line against trade and diplomatic gains by major Communist countries suffered a severe blow Monday with France's recognition of Red China.

U.S. authorities said the consequences of the act, which the Johnson Administration denounced as "unfortunate" are unpredictable. But there is speculation that in the weeks ahead other countries may follow the French lead and that next fall there will be a strong move to seat Red China in the United Nations.

Along this line a dispatch from Ottawa Monday said that Canada is not contemplating early recognition but that the Canadian government of Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson might support U.N. membership next fall for Communist China as well as Nationalist China.

The U.S. statement deploring the French action was issued before dawn, immediately after the announcement of the step was flashed from Paris. But a State Department spokesman said later that the United States had been trying since last October to persuade Paris not to take the action.

The statement declared also that the United States will "stand firmly by its commitments" to the Chinese Nationalist government on Taiwan and to the government of Viet Nam as well as to other countries "in our common endeavor to prevent and deter aggression and to promote the interest of peace."

Kao Shih-Ming of the Nationalist embassy delivered a strong protest to the foreign ministry. But the Nationalists did not break off diplomatic relations. The United States, which had repeatedly voiced its objection to Paris, called French recognition "an unfortunate step."

Unless there is a change of mind in Taipei, the French will soon set up an embassy in Peking while maintaining an embassy on Formosa, the Nationalist Chinese island stronghold.

Peking is said to have offered no objection, although Red China always has insisted it will recognize only nations that break off with relations with the Chinese Nationalists.

By refraining from breaking off with France, at least for the time being, the Chinese Nationalists evidently sought to put the onus on Peking for accepting the two-China concept.

The protest to France said the Chinese Nationalists are opposed to any "two China" settlement of the diplomatic problem and said it will never modify this position.

French sources stressed that there were no strings attached by Peking to the recognition agreement. France, therefore, is not pledged to break with the Nationalists. Nor is it committed to any course in the United Nations on the issue of whether Red China or the Nationalists should be represented, the informants added.

A charge D'affaires will be sent to Peking soon to open the French embassy, the sources reported.

Education Committee Formed

A Blue Ribbon Student's Committee on Higher Education has been formed by members of the National Student Association, Michael Hannah, Grand Rapids freshman said recently.

Gov. George Romney's Blue Ribbon Citizen's Committee on Higher Education has fallen behind schedule in its investigations of Michigan's colleges and universities, he said.

The citizen's president told the NSA members, that if they submitted a report to the committee, Hannah said, it would be used in the committee's report to Romney.

Students interested in joining the committee may meet Thursday at 4 p.m. in 326 Student Services Building.

Hannah said there is a proposal that students working on the committee receive academic credit.

COLD WEATHER GEAR -- Hoods, scarfs and furry hats were much in evidence Monday as the balmy, springlike weather of last week was chased from campus by a cold spell.

Hannah Attends Education Meet

President John A. Hannah is attending an Education in World Affairs meeting in New York City today.

This is Hannah's second year on the board of trustees of the organization. Its purpose is to involve higher education in problems faced by the United States in its relations with the rest of the world.

In the past the organization has received support from the Ford and Carnegie Foundations.

Faculty Group Protests

Tax Attack Planned

A plan of attack on the East Lansing personal property tax will be drawn up Thursday, William T. Gillis, member of the Faculty Sub-committee on Fraternity and Sorority Affairs, said Monday.

The actual tax rates and tax payments of fraternities, co-ops and sororities will be made available at that time, he indicated.

The committee has established contacts with the people who are waging the fight against the tax in Ann Arbor, he said. However, in Ann Arbor the fraternities and sororities are working separately, he added.

"We are contacting all Michigan campuses which have a Greek community to try to coordinate our efforts," Gillis said. Gillis also revealed plans to obtain legal counsel from a tax attorney.

Two separate bills of exemption will be introduced in the state legislature in the near future, Gillis said.

Sen. Stanley G. Thayer, R-Ann Arbor and Farrell E. Roberts, R-Pontiac, are sponsoring one bill, Gillis indicated. The other is under the sponsorship of Rep. Daniel W. West, D-Detroit, he added.

Gillis said that University officials who have talked to the legislators have indicated that the bills have a good chance of passing.

The University has reaffirmed that the course of action planned by the committee is legal and has given it token moral support, Gillis said.

Gillis said that Thursday the group would consider:

--How to marshal forces for informing the legislature,

--Who should attend the legislative hearings,

--What arguments will be used at the hearings,

--Whether a lawyer is needed and if so, who?

--Financing of the operation, and

--Whether a month's delay in filling out the personal property listing should be requested from city council.

Gillis said that mere non-listing of personal property will not gain anything. The city assessor has the power to assess without the forms, he explained.

Margaret Smith Eyes Nomination

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, redoubtable campaigner from Maine, recited Monday all the reasons she should not run for the Republican presidential nomination, and then said:

"So, because of these very compelling reasons against my running, I have decided that I shall."

As a "moderate Republican" the 66-year-old, slim, silver-haired senator will enter the first primary in New Hampshire March 10. She will have no objection to her name being entered in the District of Columbia, assumes it will be entered in Oregon.

The launching pad for her candidacy was a luncheon of the Women's National Press Club, and she built the announcement into a suspense story that wowed the audience.

People had cited grave reasons for her not running, she said: Lack of money, organization, time, the heavy odds against her. This is a man's world, etc. Then, with a twinkle, she made her positive announcement.

The reason for running she seemed to find most fetching was this:

"It has been contended that I should run in order to give the voters a wider range of choice—and specifically a choice other than that of conservative or liberal—to give those who consider themselves to be moderates or middle-of-the-road advocates a chance to cast an unqualified vote instead of having to vote conservative or liberal."

Farmers Plan Exhibits Here

The 49th annual Farmer Week, with the theme "Michigan Agriculture Grows with Michigan," will be held here next week with farmers expected from every county in the state.

Displays will aim at interests of persons engaged in agriculture.

There will be a special program designed to acquaint students with careers and job opportunities in agriculture and related fields.

Over 100 meetings will be held throughout the week. One weed control expert will travel from Europe for meetings in crop science. Events also include the activities of some 40 agricultural organizations holding annual or special meetings during the week.

Poodle Advertises 'Saks' Fashions

Some people have dogs. Some of these dog-owners like their dogs well enough to buy them clothes.

Some people who buy clothes for dogs like their dogs to be dressed in the height of fashion.

Into this category come two MSU students who jointly own a miniature poodle. The poodle's names are Sondra Pomerant and Richard Rogoff. The dog's name is Tick-Tock.

Tick-Tock is a female, only 1 and one half years old. She is not a show dog. But Tick-Tock owns a three-piece wardrobe from New York's Saks' 5th Avenue store.

The wardrobe includes a sweater, a coat and, for Michigan's on-again, off-again weather, an all-purpose raincoat. The wardrobe costs about $70.

Both of Tick-Tock's owners, Sondra and Richard, are from New York City. Sondra, a former MSU student now living in East Lansing, will return to school in March. Tick-Tock lives with her. Richard is a second-year veterinary student. The dog was given to the students by Richard's aunt, since they are "going together."

If you happen to see a well-dressed young poodle wandering around East Lansing, take a good look—not many dogs wear raincoats from Saks' 5th Avenue.

'Unique' New Planetarium Set To Open Here Feb. 27

The new Abrams Planetarium, located south of Shaw Hall, is scheduled to be dedicated Feb. 27.

It is not the largest in the United States, nor the first in Michigan, but it is one of the most unique—you won't get a stiff neck watching the stars and planets.

Conventional planetarium projectors have a fixed north-south axis. The viewer must crane his neck to see all areas of the simulated sky dome.

MSU's projector, officially named the Intermediate Space Transit Planetarium (ISTP), can project the heavens anywhere the dome. This enables the operator to keep the most interesting area conveniently in front of the viewers.

Another feature is movie-type seating, with full back and head supports. Some 261 seats have been installed. They are inclined with the front row at a greater angle than each succeeding row to put the spectator's eyes on the projection which arcs 30 feet above floor level.

The ISTP projector has other unusual features. It is not earth-bound, but can show the heavens as seen from the moon or by an astronaut in space. Time travel is equally flexible.

"This Planetarium has been under discussion and design since 1956," said Curator Victor H. Hogg. "We feel that we have the most functional and flexible facilities now in existence."

Constructing this 3 1/2-inch-thick, 60-foot-in-diameter dome presented several problems to the general contractor, Banta-Brooks Inc. of Lansing.

As the concrete shell was poured in mid-winter, just one year ago, the outside of the concrete forms had to be insulated and covered with tarpaulins, while oil heaters were kept going inside the dome for about four weeks to prevent freezing. When the forms were removed, the outside of the dome was waterproofed with asphalt and "plated" with copper for additional weather protection and appearance.

Solid geometry buffs can see that the copper exterior is applied in a series of truncated spherical triangles, whose seams run like the latitude and longitude lines on a globe of the earth. "Orange peel" is the contractor's name for it.

The inner dome-screen on which the ISTP projects its heavenly pictures is 50 feet across and made of perforated aluminum. This leaves a five-foot circular walkway between the concrete and aluminum domes. This space accommodates lighting equipment and speakers to provide effects desired by the lecturer.

Missionaries Killed In Congo

LEOPOLDVILLE, The Congo (AP)—A guerrilla rampage against Christian missions and Congolese government authority was reported spreading rapidly Monday over three southern provinces.

Roving bands of rebels have killed three Roman Catholic priests and an American missionary, Irene Ferrel, 43, and unconfirmed reports reaching here said two other priests and a nun had been slain.

With a state of emergency declared in Kwilu province and guerrillas spreading terror in the neighboring Kasai and Kwango regions near the Angola border, the central Congo government ordered 450 troops into the area.

The government says it has proof Red China is supporting the revolt being waged by about 600 rebels and led by former education Minister Pierre Mulele, 34, who spent several months last year in Peking.

PARKING STICKERS AVAILABLE -- A limited number of Brody 'B' parking stickers like the one pictured above are now available for seniors, who normally would have to wait two terms before getting parking privileges.

Seniors Get Brody Field Permits Early

Brody "B" parking stickers are now being distributed to seniors who would normally qualify for parking privileges spring term.

The decision to hand out the permits early was made Thursday by Brody Board, student governing body of the Brody dormitory complex.

Results of a survey taken by the board last week indicated that some of the Brody area parking spaces were not being used. Ted Smith, Brody manager, said that some of the students who were issued Brody B's last term are no longer parking in the complex.

A Brody resident is normally given parking permit when he qualifies for an all-University permit, has a 2.0 grade point average and has lived two terms in a Michigan State residence hall.

Nyerere Urges African Conference

DAR ES SALAAM, Tanganyika (AP)—President Julius Nyerere of Tanganyika Monday urged a special conference of African nations to deal with the wave of army mutinies that swept Tanganyika, Kenya and Uganda.

Nyerere called for an urgent meeting of African foreign and defense ministers not later than next Monday to consider ways to prevent a recurrence of army revolts in the three commonwealth countries and to forestall such flareups in other African states.

The Tanganyika government also announced that Communist Chinese Premier Chou En-Lai to Tanganyika has been postponed.

McNamara Calls Missiles Dependable

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara said Monday that U.S. missiles can be counted on to reach their targets more consistently than can manned bombers.

Without any direct reference to recent criticism by Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., McNamara told Congress that he has "no hesitancy whatever" about the dependability of America's new solid-fuel, quick-firing minuteman missiles.

Saturn 1 Launching Postponed

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—The scheduled launching of a Saturn I super-rocket intended to orbit the world's heaviest satellite Monday was postponed 48 hours until Wednesday because someone forgot to remove a test device from a fuel line.

The failure, described by a space agency official as a "human error," left a metal plate blocking a line, preventing liquid oxygen (lox) from flowing into the first stage.

Admission Policy Too Vague

In response to recent reports regarding the possible institution of quotas on out-of-state admissions to MSU, the State News conducted an inquiry to find out just what the present admissions policy is, and what, if any, changes are to be made in the near future.

A startling fact seems to have appeared; either there is no specific policy followed by the administration and the admissions officers, or few administrators are willing to describe it or allow themselves to be quoted on it. In either case, there is a definite problem to be considered in the attitude of the University administration toward admissions quotas and toward out-of-state students.

First, the possibility that there is a definite policy would involve an established, if flexible, quota on the number of beginning out-of-state students, particularly those from the five states recently mentioned.

The most concrete fact that is readily given is that an approximate ratio of 20 per cent of out-of-state students to 80 per cent Michigan students is the goal in choosing each freshman class. It is admitted that minimum requirements for students from more populous areas are higher than for those from some other, less populous, states. It is also admitted, although less candidly, that New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Massachusetts and Connecticut are "not doing enough for public education" in the opinion of Michigan educators and hence their students must meet higher standards in order to prevent MSU from becoming a province of their "deprived" students. The goal, it appears, is to achieve a fairly equal distribution of students from all parts of the nation.

There is some justification for this policy. These states are not providing sufficient educational facilities for their large populations, it is felt, and Michigan taxpayers can not be expected to bear the burden of providing them with substitutes.

In spite of this, the uneven admissions policy raises the questions of the University's image as an educational institution. Evidently, students from the east are expected to feel that Michigan State is a tough school to get into and are to think of this in making their application here, while students from other areas in which MSU is not as popular a goal for high school graduates, may be given the idea that any student meeting minimum requirements will be admitted, so that the goal of geographic distribution can be reached.

This can be a dangerous policy to follow, if indeed this policy is being followed, and can, in the less populous areas, be in direct opposition to the University's over-all goal of image-building. President Hannah continually emphasized in his State of the University address Friday the necessity for MSU to compete with other institutions for faculty and research gains in order to build a reputation as one of the nation's great intellectual communities. This will be difficult if some students are encouraged to think of us as an easy mark, a "Mickey Mouse" college.

The answer, of course, is to adopt an admissions policy, if an admissions policy is to be adopted, which will permit entrance of the allowable number of the top students, regardless of their homes, in order to have the entering out-of-state freshmen each year the most qualified and most talented group available.

The University's stand on this matter is of utmost importance in connection with our standing as an educational institution and should be open for consideration and discussion.

Kennedy Building: Which One?

"Lest we forget," read the petition asking for support to name the new International Center for the late President John F. Kennedy. A thoughtful group of students had decided that the center could be a meaningful and lasting tribute to the slain leader, and they were determined that their plan would be carried through.

Then, late last week, President Hannah announced an alternate plan--to name one of the 12-story dormitories that are to be built next year and opened for fall term, 1965, after Kennedy. Evidently, everyone is agreed that some campus building should be named Kennedy, and the problem is to choose the building.

It seems more appropriate from our point of view to name the International Center

"J.F.K." and ignore the possible symbolism of giving Kennedy the tallest building we have.

What better way to keep alive the memory of Kennedy's basic philosophy than to name the home of MSU's International projects for him? The late President's intentions can well be described as a long-range attempt to improve international understanding and cooperation through programs such as those which will be housed in the center.

The John F. Kennedy International Center can be a fitting salute to the man and the philosophy, not just to the man. We encourage the Board of Trustees to consider this in deciding on names for the new buildings, since it is with them that the final decision rests.

Book Loss Plagues Library's Function

By DENISE BELCHER
State News Staff Writer

Assignment: Read 10 pages in a particular journal and 20 pages in a book on library reserve.

Problem: Try to find the journal and book, then make sure the assigned pages are still intact. Frustrating, isn't it?

Many students daily leave the MSU library feeling anger and resentment over not finding the book they want after three days of going to see if it has been returned to the shelves. Or, what can be even more traumatic, finding the book or journal needed, heaving a sigh of relief over the luck in getting it before the 99 other students in the class, and then discovering that someone has beaten you to it after all--the article is torn out.

Pages Torn Out

The problem of book loss by theft, as well as mutilation of books and journals, is one to which library officials see no immediate solution.

Exactly how many books are lost or maimed in this way is unknown, mainly because no complete inventory has been taken since 1958.

Unless a person is caught in the act of stealing a book, a rare circumstance, the only method of detecting missing books is when a student appears at the desk in one of the departments, reporting that he cannot find a book for which he has been searching. This does not yet signify that the book is missing, even if it is not checked out to anyone.

Search Conducted

There are many other places in the library where it may be, and the student is urged to fill out a call slip and reserve card at the main desk. If the book is then found, that student is the first to get it.

If after three weeks there is no trace of the book, it is placed on the search list, and a more detailed search for it is instituted. A new copy also is ordered.

This process is a little more costly than would be imagined. Not only must the book be paid for, but there is the cost of processing it into the library and getting it on the shelves. A new book priced at five dollars will cost the library about twelve dollars to get in circulation, said Merrill Jones, assistant librarian.

Turnstiles Help

Library personnel agree that the turnstiles at the exit have cut down on book loss.

"Really what the turnstile does is stop the person who is forgetful," said Henry Koch, an assistant librarian.

While heads of the various departments agree that the turnstile has cut down on book loss, several feel it still could be improved upon.

Checks at the doors rank highest on the list of complaints of the system.

The turnstile system, while helping to cut down on one problem, has increased another.

Heads of the departments report an increase in mutilation of books since the installation. This has been especially great in assigned reading and journals, which are available for a limited time, or only in the building.

Motivation Unknown

The reason for mutilation seems remote, since two large copy machines are available in the first floor stacks. They will photograph any page for 10 cents, and small pages can be done two at a time.

Next: Book stealers and mutilators--why they do it and what happens if they're caught.)

Letters To The Editor

Human Rights Rules

To the Editor:

Does the University give the same attention to infraction of rules applied to human rights as it does to rules governing such infractions as the use of intoxicating beverages or unsanitary conditions?

In reference to Monday's editorial, concerning off-campus housing discrimination, the article omitted information that is very pertinent to this case, and to the overall problem of housing discrimination in East Lansing.

The University did investigate and immediately dropped from approved housing the name of the landlord whom they felt was guilty of discrimination; however, the article failed to note that there are several students still living in this landlord's home. If the latter landlord's property is "off-limits" to the University's Housing Office, then why should it not be off-limits to all University students? This home owner is currently benefiting monetarily from a given segment of the student population while discriminating against another segment.

If a landlord's name is merely dropped from the housing list, what will prevent her from putting a "for rent" sign in front of her home and continuing to rent to University students on a discriminatory basis? In other words, the present housing regulation is totally inadequate as a means of preventing landlords in East Lansing from discriminating against racial minorities.

If the University were aware of the fact that a landlord was not attempting to prevent infractions of certain housing regulations, i.e., intoxicating beverages, it would not hesitate to not only remove the landlord's name from the list, but this same residence would be off-limits to University students immediately and in the future. With respect to the latter point, one might readily ask, are not human rights and the dignity of the individual equally as important as other housing regulations, such as those aimed at sanitation standards and drinking? It seems to us that before any real gains will be made in the area of housing discrimination for off-campus students in East Lansing, the landlord will have to understand that discriminating against a given student will hurt him financially. Merely striking a landlord's name from the list does not solve the problem. To the critic of the latter point, I realize that such University action may not improve the attitudes of many of the landlords toward minority groups. However, at this point, we are more concerned about a change in behavior which will prevent such landlords from discriminating against all segments of the student population.

Merger Aids RR Schedule

MSU students traveling to Washington, D.C., and other eastern points will share the benefits of a recent merger between the Chesapeake and Ohio and Baltimore and Ohio railroads.

The railway's afternoon "Pere Marquette" will leave Lansing at 4:55 p.m. to provide connections at Plymouth with the B&O eastbound Ambassador for Toledo, Akron, Pittsburgh, Washington and Baltimore. Previously the B&O train did not make connections at Plymouth.

The afternoon train will continue to make connections with the C&O Sportsman to Columbus, West Virginia and Tidewater Virginia points.

Officials indicated the train leaving Lansing for Detroit at 8:45 a.m. and one arriving here from Detroit, also making connections with the westbound Ambassador at Plymouth, will be unchanged.

Effective today all B&O trains will begin using the Fort Street Union Station in Detroit. Previously these runs had used the Michigan Central Station.

Prof Writes On Vision

The series, published by Chilton Books, is an exploration of "total" optometry, involving the consideration that a youngster is growing socially and emotionally at the same time his vision is developing. For this reason, its use by educators and others who work with children is anticipated, in addition to its expected audience among optometrists.

AUSG Eyes International Cooperation

Some 890 foreign students from 89 countries make MSU their home away from home.

Homer Higbee, assistant dean of International Programs, said that they usually desire and need contact with American students.

"It is a credit to AUSG that it has sponsored the International Cooperation Committee (ICC)," he said.

"An admission slip to MSU doesn't provide much security against loneliness and misunderstanding if you are a foreign student unaccustomed to the many aspects of American culture," said Carol Ann Slagter, director of the ICC.

The ICC helps foreign students during Welcome Week and throughout the year.

"The basis of friendship between nations is the friendship between their peoples. The ICC is trying to play a part in developing this friendship," Miss Slagter said.

A trip to the United Nations during Christmas vacation was jointly sponsored with the Campus United Nations.

The ICC holds informal coffee hours each Tuesday from 3:30 to 5:30 p.m. in the United Nations Lounge of the Union Building.

Foreign students who complete English requirements are eligible to participate in the Home Hospitality Program.

Mrs. Betty Abu-Gheida, acting international exchange coordinator, said that the program operates as a Lansing area community project in cooperation with MSU's International Programs Office.

Interested families may contact Mrs. Panshin at ED 2-4380, or Mrs. David P. Overholt, co-chairman, at ED 2-5774.

Indian Students Hold Republic Day Banquet

The emergence and growth of India as an independent nation was honored Saturday evening at a Republic Day banquet sponsored by the Indian Student Association.

The affair, held at Peoples Church, was highlighted by Indian food and entertainment.

Special guests were President and Mrs. John A. Hannah and Len Stuttman, local television personality, and his wife.

In accepting an honorary membership in the Indian Student Association from V. N. Mathur, Association president, Mathur, Hannah praised the "long way" India has come in the years of its independence and expressed wishes for the speedy recovery of ailing Prime Minister Nehru.

Stuttman narrated a film depicting the color and spirit of the traditional Republic Day procession through the capital city of New Delhi. Americans often go to India expecting to impart their own wisdom, he said, but usually

"we return with the wisdom India has given to us."

On the menu was vegetable curry, chicken, rice and bread-like puri. A Republic Day cake topped off the meal. It had three colored layers: saffron, white and dark green, symbolic of India's flag.

The saffron is said to represent courage and sacrifice, the white peace and truth, and the green prosperity. In the flag's center is a 24-spoke wheel, a design taken from Indian history, with the spokes representing moral principles.

Several entertainers illustrated Indian forms of song and dance. The entertainment also included a puppet show and music played on native instruments.

Two Blend Piano, Violin

Two music faculty members will present a sonata recital at 8:15 tonight in the Music Auditorium.

Romeo Tata, professor of music, violinist; and Joseph Evans, professor of music, pianist, will perform works by three well-known composers.

First on the program will be "Sonatina in G minor, Op. 137, No. 3," by Schubert, in three movements.

The second presentation will be "Duo Concertant," in five movements, by Stravinsky.

The final number will be Beethoven's "Sonata in A Major, Op. 47 (Kreutzer)."

Safety, Rescue Sail Club Goals

Safety, self-rescue and rescue of others in small sailboats are the specific objectives of the Red Cross Basic Sailing Course being taught by the Sailing Club this term.

The course, scheduled to begin at 7:30 tonight on the basement golf driving range of the Men's IM is being offered to stimulate interest in both technique and safety aspects of small sailboats, which dominate most collegiate competition.

Many former participants of this shore school instruction said they found it extremely helpful and made it much easier to learn to sail because they knew places and purposes of parts of the sailboat before trying it for the first time.

Practical instructions for the club's fleet of Penguin dinghies will begin Spring term.

The course is being taught by Debbie Hoffman, sailing master of the club, who has had previous experience in teaching this course.

The course is open to students and faculty interested in the technique and safety elements of sailing, whether or not they have had any previous experience in this sport.

The End And Play-By-Play

By JEROME CAPLAN
State News Sports Editor

WBRS, Brody Radio, has announced that Spartan football end Matt Snorton is their new program director.

Matt, who recently signed with the Denver Broncos of the AFL, apparently wants to be able to make the transition from professional athlete to professional broadcaster with ease.

It seems that old ball players don't fade away any more, they just become baseball or football announcers.

The list of former players who are now radio and TV play-by-play and color men is as long as Joe Garagiola's last name.

The player-sportscaster gives the fan something extra. He lets the listeners and viewers in on the little secrets that make the game supposedly more interesting.

Richie Ashburn, former National Leaguer, made the switch from playing center-field for the Philadelphia Phillies to broadcasting the Phillies' games. Of course a brief stint with the New York Mets probably sold Ashburn on leaving the batter's box for the press box.

Recently one broadcaster in Detroit made what will probably be recorded as the greatest switch since the one that George Washington made out of a cherry tree.

The broadcaster became a coach for the Detroit Lions. Perhaps some of his listeners thought the change long overdue.

Snorton, according to a WBRS official, has been interested in broadcasting throughout his collegiate career. He has reportedly qualified for the Brody spot because of his hard work and deep interest in programming his shows.

Fight Mars Game

Cagers Top Buckeyes

The Spartan basketball team, apparently feeling little let-down after their weekend loss to Michigan, roared back on the winning track last night at Jenison Fieldhouse and defeated Ohio State 102 to 99.

State, trailing by seven at half time, made up for sloppy first half play on the strength of a 22 point performance by guard Bill Schwarz and a 27 point show by Marcus Sanders.

OSU's center Gary Braddstied the fieldhouse point record with a 48 point output, but it just wasn't enough.

State had to go most of the way without leading rebounder Stan Washington. The sophomore jumper was ejected with 12 minutes remaining in the first half of play following a fight with OSU's Dick Ricketts.

Washington's exit left the Spartans severely handicapped in the first period. Center Fred Thomann left a minute and a half earlier when he picked up his third personal foul.

Sanders put the Spartans into the lead with 9:15 remaining in the game, but the Buckeyes fought back. The lead changed hands seven times before Schwarz put State ahead to stay with 2:30 left to go.

Coach Forddy Anderson started Pete Gent, Bill Schwarz, Marcus Sanders, Thomann and Washington, but was forced to go to his bench early in the game.

Bill Berry and Bill Curtis filled in for Thomann and Washington. Bradds picked up 26 points in the first half, connecting on eight field goals and 10 of 11 free throws.

State made the first basket, but could not hold the lead. The closest the Spartans got was 26-25 with 11 minutes left in the first period.

The win left State with a 3-3 Big Ten mark and 9-7 overall.

The loss was the Buckeyes' seventh in 15 starts and left them 3-2 in loop play.

Saturday the Spartans will try to gain revenge for their week-end loss to Michigan. The two teams will meet at 2 p.m. at Ann Arbor.

DEVELOPMENT OF MANAGEMENT IS OUR MOST IMPORTANT FUNCTION

At the 1963 stockholders' meeting, Arjay R. Miller, President of Ford Motor Company, emphasized the Company's far-sighted recruitment program and its accent on developing management talent:

"Obviously, our long-run future will be determined by the development of our management. Here, every one of us—at all levels of supervision—recognizes this as his most important function. Since 1946, the Company has recruited widely varied talent—talent that can be blended to give us the required combination of tight administration and creative scope.

"Under a carefully conceived management development program, we try to recruit the best personnel available, both in training and experience. Once we get them, we have a program for giving them varied opportunities and increasing responsibility. This program is in force in all parts of the Company—in manufacturing, finance, styling, engineering and marketing.

"The program is paying off. We have developed a real depth of management talent in the Company, and we are dedicated to seeing it continued and reinforced. Because of this, I feel not only very fortunate in being associated with this management group, but also very confident of its long-run success. We know our goals and how to achieve them."

Carey To Talk

James B. Carey, long-time leader in the national labor movement, will discuss civil rights and employment at 8 tonight in Kellogg Center Auditorium.

Carey is the second speaker in this year's lecture series sponsored by the school of labor and industrial relations.

Carey, a supporter of an active labor program on civil rights, is president of the International Union of Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of the AFL-CIO, a post he has held since 1950 when the union was affiliated with the Congress of Industrial Organizations (CIO).

He has been AFL-CIO vice-president since 1955.

Carey's career in the labor movement dates back to 1933 when he became national president of Radio and Allied Trades. In 1934 he was named a general organizer for the I. O. by the American Federation of Labor.

Carey became national secretary of the CIO in 1938, and was elected the group's secretary-treasurer in 1942. He served as general president of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers of America from 1936 to 1941.

The speech is open to the public.

Sharpeners Disappear

Thirty-eight out of 40 pencil sharpeners have disappeared from Berkey Hall in less than a year, Ted. B. Simon, physical plant superintendent said Monday.

Last spring 40 sharpeners were installed, Simon said. Of the two remaining, one is broken.

Students from three floors must share a single sharpener.

"We intend to replace some of them immediately," Simon said. "We would have replaced them before, but we didn't expect them to go so fast."

However, replacement becomes tiresome and expensive, Simon added.

Simon would not speculate as to who may have taken the sharpener.

"I'm not going to point the guilty finger at the students," he said. "Many people have access to Berkey Hall, even school children from the area."

Red China

had been expected in world capitals for several weeks, was announced by the French government in a two-sentence communique. It said:

"The government of the French Republic and the government of the People's Republic of China have decided, by mutual accord, to establish diplomatic relations. They have agreed, in this connection, to designate their ambassadors within three months."

De Gaulle had sent word to President Chiang Kai-Shek through a personal envoy, Gen. Zinovi Pechkoff, that France has no intention of severing relations with Nationalist China.

Pechkoff, 79, was envoy in World War II to Chungking, then the capital of China.

De Gaulle is planning to expound his Far Eastern policy and his reasons for recognizing Red China in a news conference Friday.

The French president obviously hopes to reestablish French influence in the Orient. He feels that the Moscow-Peking split is a power struggle in which France should have direct access to both sides.

Tackle Turf Ills

University crop scientists received a $5,000 research grant from the Michigan Turfgrass Foundation to continue studying problems affecting lawns and sports turfs.

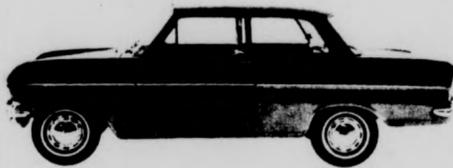

The Foundation is a cooperative research and educational association of turfmen representing golf clubs, parks, sod growers, cemeteries, athletic grounds, ski clubs, landscapers and other individuals interested in turfgrass.

"The increase in suburban living trends and available recreational time signifies additional demands for more and better turf," the Foundation said.

James A. Beard, turfgrass research specialist, said that winter injury to turfgrass is common throughout the north central and northeastern United States.

MSU is the only university doing research on the problem, he said.
