

Local Bus Drivers Threaten Strike

Talk Of Walk If Busmen Balk

Cries of distress may be heard Wednesday from students who depend on buses for transportation around campus if local bus drivers go on strike as threatened.

"I have a class in the Case-Wilson-Wonders complex that ends at 9:45 a.m., and I must be at the Natural Science Building for my next class at ten," said Susan Hollowell, Farmington freshman.

with students who have classes across campus. "I'm not too happy about it," Theresa Fisher, Birmingham sophomore, and a McDonel resident, said. "I ride the bus quite a lot now that the weather is colder. It will leave a lot of kids pretty bad off."

Lynn Jacob, Detroit sophomore from Bryan Hall, said. "Walking hasn't hurt anyone yet," he added. "It will mean more walking for me. I'll have to get up earlier and hustle a little more," Henry Miarka, Detroit freshman, said.

BUS STOP OR STOPPED BUSES?--Campus buses, like the one pictured above, may be halted by Wednesday morning if drivers carry out a threatened strike against Lansing Suburban Lines. Students in married housing, Brody group and the Case-Wilson complex should get plenty of exercise if the strike is carried out.

Demand Hourly Pay Increase

Company Looks To City For Help

By CHARLES C. WELLS
State News Staff Writer

MSU students will be without bus service if local drivers go through with a plan to walk off their jobs at 1:30 a.m. Wednesday.

Disagreement between the Amalgamated Street and Electric Railway Workers Local 1039 and the Lansing Suburban Lines centers around wages. The workers are demanding a 30 cents an hour raise.

Wages for local bus drivers are $1.80 per hour. The union is demanding an immediate raise to $1.91 with increases of four cents in June and five cents by December.

Lansing Suburban Lines has agreed that the workers should get pay increases, but the line is having trouble making enough to meet the present wage scale.

"There is no question that the raise will be extended if the company can get relief from the city of Lansing," said John Cole, manager. "There is no possible way we can give the men a raise if we don't get relief."

Relief would be that the city of Lansing would purchase fuel, grease and oil tax free and then resell it to the company. The company could save an estimated $25,000 by avoiding payment of federal and state fuel taxes.

The company has been running in the red for the last five years, Cole said.

Councilman Horace J. Bradshaw, chairman of the council's Public Safety Committee, said he doubted that the proposal would reach the council in time for consideration at the Monday night meeting.

He said it would be necessary (continued on page 3)

Red Terror Continues In Saigon

SAIGON, Viet Nam (P)—Terrorists struck quickly again Monday night after a bloody bombing of a U.S. movie theater, ambushing three American military men in a grenade attack in Saigon. One of the three Americans was wounded slightly.

To cope with the rising tide of Red terror in this capital, U.S. and Vietnamese officials formed a joint security council to provide greater safety for Americans. U.S. military police guarded American schools, rode shotgun on school buses and patrolled other American installations.

The two-nation, six-member security council held its first meeting Monday afternoon. On the council are three Vietnamese and three U.S. security officers. The council was suggested by Premier Nguyen Khanh, who met with U.S. charge d'affaires David G. Nes.

Nes said Khanh had given him his personal assurance that the Vietnamese government would concentrate on the American security problem.

The shocker was the well-planned raid Sunday night by two or more terrorists on an American theater. One killed a U.S. sentry outside, the other left a bomb in the lobby that in a searing blast killed two other Americans and wounded 51.

The bombing was the sixth attack on Americans—and the bloodiest—since the Viet Cong Communists began a wave of terror against U.S. personnel in Saigon three weeks ago. Six Americans have been killed and 85 wounded.

There were unconfirmed reports that the Viet Cong are distributing leaflets saying simply but clearly: "two Americans a day."

No Early Signup This Term

There will be no early registration for seniors and graduate students this term, Registrar Horace C. King announced Monday.

No commitments were made that early registration would be held, but many students got the impression that it would be extended this term.

It was held for seniors and graduate students last November. Early registration was first tried last summer for entering freshmen attending counseling clinics and for those graduate students wanting to take advantage of it.

Findings from both time have shown that it was liked by both students and officials in the registrar's office.

"The results of prior registration experiments are now being analyzed with attention to future registration needs here," King said.

He said that regular registration will be March 30 through April 1 according to alphabetical schedule.

"The 1964 spring term time schedule is now being distributed to students in residence halls," he added. "It is available to all other students in 106 Administration Building."

U Thant Proposes Solution For Growing Cyprus Crisis

UNITED NATIONS, N. Y.—Secretary-General U Thant stepped into the explosive Cyprus situation Monday with his own plan for resolving the problem.

This was reported by diplomatic sources as the U.N. Security Council, at Thant's suggestion, postponed until this afternoon any substantive debate over the situation.

Thant went into a private huddle with U.S. Undersecretary of State George W. Ball after the council agreed to the postponement. Ball came here from Washington, where he told President Johnson earlier that a settlement is essential to world peace. Ball has played a chief role as troubleshooter in the Cyprus situation. The diplomatic sources said Thant presented a memorandum to the representatives of Cyprus, Turkey, Greece, the United States and Britain.

It contained Thant's formula for setting up a peace force to be sent to Cyprus, machinery for mediating any further troubles, and for paving the way for a permanent settlement.

The sources declined comment on the details but Thant is known to be insisting upon prior agreement among Cyprus, Britain, Greece and Turkey on the terms for composition of the force. He wants also agreement on the financing and commander for a force of possibly 10,000 men. Both Cyprus and Britain agreed to the surprise move for a postponement of the council debate. The council met briefly amid reports of fresh troubles on Cyprus and a new alert to Turkish and military naval units.

Graduation Date Moved

The date for winter term graduation has been changed from March 16 to March 13.

Ceremonies will take place at 8 p.m. in the Auditorium, said Herman L. King, assistant provost. He said the commencement speaker has not been named by President Hannah but will be announced soon.

Doctoral candidates and faculty members should order their academic costumes before March 1 at the Union Bookstore, he added.

Court Decrees Equal Districts

WASHINGTON (P)—The Supreme Court ruled Monday that Congressional districts in each state must be mapped so as to give "equal representation for equal numbers of people" as far as practicable.

This drew a protest from Justice John M. Harlan that the high tribunal is placing "in jeopardy the seats of almost all the members of the present house of Representatives."

The decision, Harlan said, "impugns the validity of the election of 398 representatives from 37 states, leaving a 'constitutional' house of 37 members now sitting." By his calculation, only 22 members elected from states at large, plus 15 others, would meet his interpretation of the majority's "equal population" ruling.

sented promptly from Harlan's interpretation. Most of those questioned saw the majority ruling as fair and something which many had expected for some time.

Justice Hugo L. Black, delivering the majority opinion in which he was joined by five other justices, conceded that it "may not be possible to draw Congressional districts with mathematical precision." But he added: "That is no excuse for ignoring our Constitution's plain objective of making equal representation."

Gun-Toter Nabbed Near Ruby Trial

DALLAS, Tex. (P)—Sheriff Bill Decker said Monday night he is holding for investigation a man who was carrying a loaded .32-caliber pistol when arrested in the Dallas County Records Building.

The building is next door to the courthouse where the murder trial of Jack Ruby is being held. Decker said that his deputies arrested the man during a routine check of the building. The Ruby trial was in a luncheon recess at the time.

Decker identified the man as David Conrad Glass, 39, of Beatty, Ore.

Decker said the man did not give any reason for being in Dallas or for carrying a gun, nor did he give any information about himself.

Thieves Take Rubens Work From Brussels Art Museum

BRUSSELS, Belgium. (P)—One of the world's great art treasures, the painting "Negroes' Heads" by the Flemish artist Peter Paul Rubens, was stolen early Monday from the Brussels Museum of Ancient Art.

Painted in the 17th century, its value was placed at about $1 million.

Museum conservator Philippe Roberts-Jones doubted the burglars could ever sell the work because it is too well known, particularly in Belgium where the painting is reproduced on the back of 500-franc notes. The art theft, one of a mounting number in Europe and the United States in recent years, was the third from Brussels Museums in the past six months.

"Negroes' Heads" thus joins another valuable and popular painting in the hands of art thieves—Francisco Goya's famous "Duke of Wellington," stolen from Britain's National Museum in London Aug. 21, 1961, and never recovered.

The Goya was valued at $392,000.

Four Top Trumpeters Head Union Jazz Show Tonight

The "top brass" on campus will be on hand for Union Board's annual jazz show at 8 tonight in the Union Ballroom.

Four jazz trumpeters, all veteran performers, will head the two-hour show. They are Bob Ruskin, Detroit graduate student, Gary Barone, Roscommon senior, Woody James, Biloxi, Miss., graduate student, and Odies Williams, Gary, Ind., sophomore.

Barone was selected most promising soloist at the Villanova Jazz Festival last week and Ruskin is jazz club president. Maurice Crane, professor of humanities, will narrate the show. Crane played the clarinet with a jazz band for several years before joining the faculty.

The show will open with the Ted Jackson trio, with Jackson on piano, Dan Spencer on drums and Paul Cullins on base.

The next number will be played by Mike Kull, piano, Bob Strand, tenor, Williams, trumpet, Bert Szabo, base, and Danny Polluk, drums.

The George West experimental jazz septet will open the show after intermission. The number will feature West on trombone, Wood James, trumpet, John Delera, tenor saxophone, Dave Klinger, piano, Kaye and Ted Small, drums, and Ted Robinson, baritone saxophone.

The final group is the Benny Poule quintet, with Poule on tenor saxophone, Ruskin on trumpet, Lymie Woodard on organ, and Reuben Upchurch on drums.

A congo drummer will also be featured.

Admission for the jazz show is 25 cents. Tonight's is the first event of Union Board Week, which will continue through Saturday.

Guantanamo Water Line Cut

GUANTANAMO BAY, P.—The water pipe line leading into Cuba was cut Monday by order of Rear Admiral John D. Bukey. Thus the last link to Communist Cuba from this U.S. Naval base was broken. The action was taken after Premier Fidel Castro charged that the naval base was stealing water from the pipe line.

The admiral said he had advised Washington of his intention after Secretary of the Navy Paul Nitze had asked for a report on Castro's charges of water stealing.

Meany To Attempt Boycott Settlement

MIAMI BEACH (UP)—AFL-CIO President George Meany says that at President Johnson's request he is trying to work out a solution to the longshoremen's boycott of ships carrying wheat to Russia. Meany said the tie-up could be settled if the government would make sure 50 per cent of the wheat goes in U.S. ships, as the longshoremen demand.

Rules Committee Subpoenas Baker

WASHINGTON (P)—The Senate Rules Committee Monday subpoenaed Bobby Baker to appear before it Wednesday and bring his records with him, the Evening Star reported. Committee Counsel L. P. McLendon told the Star the committee "has gotten to the point where we are ready to deal with Baker directly."

Cyprus Tests The West

Again Nicosia and Limassol echo to the crack of sporadic death as Greek and Turkish Cypriots wage a raw battle of hate. Obviously independence, itself wrought after years of gun play, has brought little solace to the Mediterranean island. And, sadly, the problem appears devoid of a quick solution for it is not one of illogical legislative inconsistencies, or of contending reason, but one of wild-eyed hate and nationalism.

Key to the present upheaval is the 4-1 ratio by which the Greeks outnumber the Turks on Cyprus. Couple this with the abiding hatred Greeks and Turks have for each other and you have the Cyprus of today: rent internally and threatening to involve all sorts of outside parties in a reckless melee in which the welfare of the Cypriots themselves is sure to have scant significance.

In establishing Cyprus as a nation in 1960, Archbishop Makarios, a Greek-speaking Cypriot, was named president. Fazil Kutckuk, a Turk, became vice-president and today both are the spokesmen for the two opposing communities on the island--the disunity is well aligned.

Constitutional provisions were made to guarantee the welfare of the Turkish minority. Fear that these rights are being undermined is said to account in large part for much of the current hostility.

Complicating the matter further is a treaty allowing Britain,

Greece or Turkey to intervene collectively or individually. The imminence of such action by Turkey lends a genuine air of urgency to the negotiations now underway at the United Nations.

All of this points to one abiding truth: the people of Cyprus are not to be considered exclusively as Cypriots, but are, and want to be thought of as Greeks and Turks. The cry for unity with Greece has long been heard from a large element on the island and in Athens. In Ankara concern for Cyprus is equally keen. Thus peaceful coexistence on Cyprus and its continued existence as a separate and legitimate state are open to sound doubt.

Perhaps it was in this light that British Foreign Secretary R.A. Butler thought that some readjustment of elements of the population might be best. Few other suggestions have been ventured, and at least we can trust that Butler speaks from long years of familiarity with conflicting peoples and emerging nations throughout a disintegrating empire. By any means, the road to stability will be a long one.

But in the meantime a peace of sorts must be arranged. This, and the necessity of an outside policing force to oversee the situation seem agreed upon by everyone. To this end, then, let us hope judicious action is soon taken and wanton killing stopped. We have already had too much anarchy of late.

Change Still Possible

Once again the question of independence for college students appears, this time in the form of Men's Hall Association's power over more than 6,000 dormitory residents.

MHA last week defeated for the third time this term a resolution attempting to lower dress regulations in men's residence halls. This in spite of the fact that a majority of the men in more than half the halls have expressed a desire for change.

Ten of the eleven voting members of MHA expressed a desire to retain the old rules, although many voted in accordance with the men's petitions. In spite of appearances however, the passage of the change remains impossible, as they wished, by way of MHA's regulation requiring a three-fourths vote to pass any policy changes.

Current MHA by-laws require that a full eight out of eleven members vote in favor of a change. This is an unreasonably high number, particularly when it appears that many of the members are not in tune with the desires of the residents of their halls.

If the many men who are in favor of the change are to have their way, then it appears that only a referendum vote can be the answer. This would seem to be the only way to avoid the overzealous interest MHA members seem to take in the welfare of their "charges."

Men living in residence halls, as the State News has previously said, should be considered mature enough to decide for themselves what they will wear on all occasions.

If usual methods of petitioning representatives to vote for a measure will not work against the out-dated by-laws of MHA, then the men should be able to employ a stronger device, such as petitioning for a referendum vote, in order to institute the apparently desired change.

'Showcase Of Southeast Asia'

Free China Moves Forward

Editor's Note: This is the second article in the "our Man Overseas" series. Merle L. Esmay, professor of agricultural engineering, describes several aspects of life in the Republic of China, where he is head of an MSU Advisory Group working in universities there.

The island of Taiwan, called Formosa by the Westerner, has become known to the world as the seat of the Nationalist government for the Republic of China. Taiwan, a small island located off the southeast coast of the mainland of China, is approximately 250 miles long and 100 miles wide with a population of near 12 million. Prior to the restoration of Taiwan to China in 1945 following World War II, it was occupied for a period of 50 years by the Japanese.

The Nationalist Government led by Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek moved to Taiwan in 1949 and made Taipei its capital. For the past fifteen years the government has been preparing for its return to the mainland.

The policy of the Nationalist government is, as recently restated in a note to the French on the occasion of severing diplomatic relations with the de Gaulle government "to recover the mainland of China, free the Chinese people from the bonds of tyranny and eliminate the forces of communism." Recognition of a two-China policy is, of course, not acceptable.

Realizing that recovery of the mainland will become easier as the Chinese Communist government nears collapse, the Nationalist government is particularly opposed to political and economic support of the mainland, such as diplomatic recognition by France, and economic trade by Japan.

Show Case Of S.E. Asia

During this fifteen year period the island of Taiwan has become a free world example of economic development in Southeast Asia. Economic aid of $100 million per year from the United States has played an important part in this progress.

Money alone, however, does not always mean progress as the United States has found out in some other countries. The follow-through in Taiwan with U.S. technicians and educators, and the willingness of the Chinese to move forward has been significant.

Only Japan in this part of the world surpasses Taiwan in industrialization, standard of living and general economy. Taiwan, however, even with its burdensome armed forces expenditure and a population increasing by more than three per cent a year was able in 1963 to attain a favorable balance of trade. Products valued at an average of one million dollars per day were exported last year.

Near 70 per cent of the export trade consists of agricultural or processed agricultural products. Industrialization is increasing but as yet only accounts for less than one-third of the total export trade.

The extreme high price of sugar on the world market has recently accounted for about one-third of the value of all export products. A drop in the price of sugar could adversely effect this situation. However, there have been significant annual increases in the exportation of many other products such as canned mushrooms, canned fruits and pineapples, rice, citronella, bananas, forest products, cement and mining and metal products.

Taiwan is reaching the point of economic stability when it can attract regularly attainable investments for industrialization and further economic development.

A Rice Economy

Taiwan, as are many other South East Asian countries, is known as a rice economy. Rice is consumed at the rate of one pound per day by the nearly 12 million people of the island. Rice, vegetables, pork, fowl and fishery products are produced mainly for domestic consumption.

Intensification of production per unit area of land is highly successful in Taiwan. Two crops of rice and one or more of vegetables or other crops are commonly grown each year on the cultivable land. Although only 25 per cent of the land area of Taiwan is cultivable, the agricultural production and exportation has been rising each year.

Less than one-third of this cultivable land is paddy land and therefore suitable for the two crop per year rice production.

Each acre of cultivable, land is supporting about six people. (Three that live on the farms and three in the urban areas.)

Land Reform

How has this production record been attained? By hard-working industrious people. The land reform program incorporated over ten years ago has been acclaimed as one of the world's most successful. The tillers of the soil became their own landlords and thus independent. They work for themselves and there is no greater stimulant. Two-thirds of the farmers own all of their land and 86 per cent all or part of it.

The rice farmers can be seen in their paddy fields from sun up to sun down. Although they use very little mechanical equipment as yet, they seem never to tire of expending some 360 man hours per acre caring for each crop of rice. This accounts for the fact that it takes a good sized family to care for the average sized farm of less than three acres.

Why not mechanize? A surplus of manpower and a shortage of cultivatable land continues to curtail mechanization. There are some ten thousand tiller tractors (walking, garden type) in Taiwan; however, power equipment will not be common on farms until some of the surplus labor force is utilized by further industrialization and the population increase is curbed.

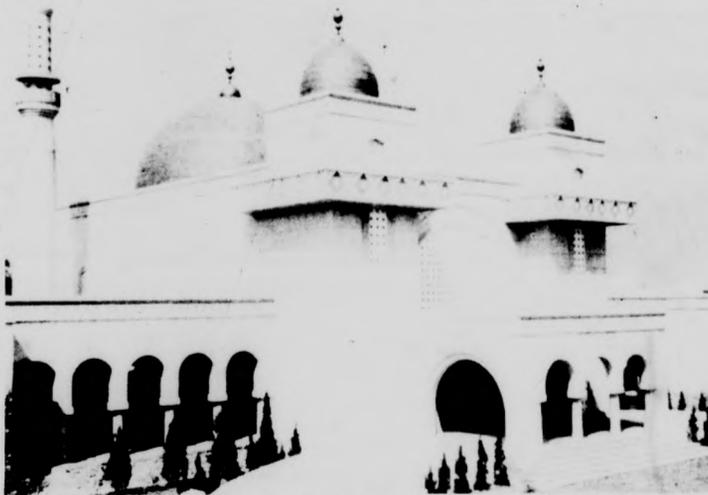

Visit Taiwan

Taiwan, located off the southeast shore of the China mainland, is on the direct path of most world travelers. It is exactly on the airline route between Japan and Hong Kong. Unfortunately, too many are still flying over without including at no extra cost this interesting stop.

Letter Policy

Letters should not be longer than 300 words, and should be typed double spaced if possible. Names and address should also be included. No unsigned letters will be printed, but names may be withheld if we feel there is reason.

The State News reserves the right to edit letters to fit space requirements.

RELIGIOUS FREEDOM -- A newly-built mosque in Taipei, the capital of the Republic of China, demonstrates the freedom of worship practiced in the predominantly Confucian and Buddhist nation.

Mr. Chin--Typical Student

Mr. Chin is a Chinese "College Joe" in the college of agriculture at National Taiwan University in the Republic of China. Joe is an exception in many respects, rather than a typical youth of the Republic of China or even a typical student of the college of agriculture. As a senior in college, he is not a typical youth, as only a fraction over five students out of each 100 get this far in the educational system of China. Ninety-five out of each 100 potential students enter primary school, 34 enter junior high school, 12 enter senior high school and 7 enter college. Joe isn't a typical college of agriculture student either because he was raised on a farm and his secondary training was in a vocational agricultural high school.

Training Rare

Even though one-half of the population of Taiwan live on farms, less than one-fourth of the students admitted to the colleges of agriculture have ever lived or worked on a farm. Only 7 per cent of the entering freshmen were trained in any of the 41 vocational agricultural schools. He is then not really typical because he wanted to take agriculture in college and was fortunate enough to be admitted to the university of his choice and subject matter of his basic interest in the college of agriculture.

His being fortunate in these two matters was due to being smart enough to pass the academic-type joint entrance examination which is given once a year for all students in Taiwan desiring to enter college, with a high score.

He attained this high score even though the vocational schools from which he graduated are noted for not being good preparatory schools for passing the entrance examinations. Nearly two-thirds of the students taking the joint examination do not pass. If their score is passing but low, they may not end up in the subject matter department or university of their choice.

This accounts for the many students in the colleges of agriculture without farm backgrounds and generally without a basic interest in agriculture.

Looking Forward

Joe is a woods products major in the forestry department of the college of agriculture and is looking forward to graduation and is considering what he should then do.

He knows he must serve one year in the military but beyond that, what?

The Republic of China has a considerable resource of standing forests high in the mountains but needs help in the utilization of the product when harvested.

Having come as far as he has come, Mr. Chin would like to become even more of an exception by going to the United States for advanced study in his field.

In providing additional training opportunities for students, the U.S. is contributing a real service to many countries around the world.

With the additional American university training in modern technology, efficient operations, management, quality control, research techniques, the extension of philosophy, the "College Joe", now a young, well-trained citizen, will be prepared to serve his country most effectively.

CHINESE NEW YEAR -- The "lion dance" winds its way through the streets as part of the festivities of last week's colorful Chinese New Year celebrations.

MSU Group Helps China Develop Self

The MSU College of Agriculture has provided an advisory group for the two senior colleges of agriculture in the Republic of China (Taiwan). This is a four-year contract program between MSU, AID and the Republic of China. The advisory group consists of five long-term advisers on two-year assignments and two short-term advisers on three-month assignments each year.

About half of the advisers are with National Taiwan University in Taipei and half with the Provincial Chung Hsing University in Taichung. Each adviser works with the professional people in his field at both universities.

Work is being done in many fields. Among them are animal husbandry, entomology, agricultural economics and forestry. The objective of the advisory program is to help strengthen the teaching, research, extension and administration at both colleges of agriculture. A major emphasis has been directed toward making the colleges more useful to the society that created them (the land-grant philosophy).

This has involved the development and promotion of faculty participation in extension activities, in-service training programs, and research directed towards solving the critical practical problems of agriculture.

The Chinese college faculties have been doing good work in teaching the theoretical and textbook subject matter, but lack some in relating this to the agriculture of Taiwan and its present-day problems.

It is believed that a closer working relationship of professors to extension activities and applied research will be reflected through their teaching and presenting subject matter in a more problem-oriented way.

Former MAC Student Medal Of Honor Winner

Harold A. Furlong is a man with two unique experiences.

He is the only former Michigan Agricultural College student to win the Congressional Medal of Honor.

He is also one of the few people who has read his own official death notification.

Both experiences resulted from a battle in Bantheville, France, during World War I.

The citation for the medal tells the story:

Immediately after the opening of the attack in the Bois de Bantheville, Furlong's company was held up by heavy machine gun fire from the front.

His company commander and several others were killed.

Furlong moved out in advance of the line and crossed an open space several hundred yards wide.

He came up behind the line of machine guns and closed in on them one at a time, killing a number of the enemy with his rifle.

He put four machine guns out of action and drove 20 German prisoners into American lines.

Furlong later learned that he had been officially listed as killed in the battle and that his college and parents had been notified.

Furlong, now a Pontiac doctor, quickly sent off letters to the school and his parents.

In his letter to MAC Furlong explained the mistake:

"I wish to inform you that the report of my death in action as reported by the Record was grossly exaggerated. I am one of the healthiest specimens in the AEF at present."

For his part in the battle, he was awarded the French Chevalier Legion d'Honneur and the Italian Croce di Guerra in addition to the American Congressional Medal of Honor.

HAROLD A. FURLONG

Furlong, born in Trout Lake, in the Upper Peninsula, attended MAC from 1914 to March of 1917 when he entered an ROTC program at Ft. Sheridan, Ill. He earned his commission as a Second Lieutenant in the U.S. Army through the program.

While at MAC, Furlong was a member of the Forensic Society, now Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity, and was on the varsity debate team for three years.

Furlong is also a veteran of the World War II. He served as a surgeon in battle zones in England, Holland, Belgium, France, Luxembourg and Germany.

Ball Says Cyprus Threatens Peace

WASHINGTON (AP)—Undersecretary of State George W. Ball, reporting the partial failure of a mission, told President Johnson Monday that violence between Greek and Turkish factions in Cyprus poses a threat to world peace.

Johnson and British Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home are trying to find some formula to prevent the violence in the Mediterranean Island republic from plunging Greece and Turkey into war.

Ball reported to Johnson Monday morning on an eight-day trip to London, Athens, Ankara and

Cyprus during which he sought unsuccessfully to get the Cypriot President Archbishop Makarios to agree to a U.S.-British sponsored peacekeeping force on Cyprus.

After talking with the President, Ball said the United States is not trying to dictate a settlement of the Cyprus dispute but is seeking to bring the situation under control.

"It is essential to the peace of the world," Ball said, "that law and order be restored so that people of the island can live in peace."

When Makarios refused the Ball proposal for an international force with only a vague United Nations connection, Britain in agreement with the United States asked for action by the U.N. Security Council.

The reason, as explained by diplomatic experts here is that the U.S. and Britain hope for a Security Council decision to preserve the present treaty arrangement governing Cyprus, including an invitation to cold war neutrals to contribute troops to a Cyprus peacekeeping force.

Makarios reportedly wants the United Nations to destroy the treaty structure and give him a freer hand in determining the future political structure of Cyprus.

If the new U.S.-British formula wins support it presumably will not call for actual intervention of U.S. troops as part of a 10,000-man peacekeeping force. The U.S.

would have participated under the NATO plan. But if it went into a force with U.N. sponsorship the Russians presumably would insist on going in also. Western powers do not want this.

The State Department denied Monday that it favors any particular final settlement for Cyprus. The Greeks are insisting on a revised government structure giving more power to the Greek majority. The Turks, fearing their minority would be virtually wiped out, are insisting on partition of the island.

One of the grave dangers arises from the possibility that Turkey will land more troops to protect the 100,000 Turkish Cypriots against the 450,000 Greek majority.

U.S. officials say that Ball's mission achieved a partial success by getting the Turks to stop off dispatch of more troops.

UB Sponsors Ride Board, Bridge, Dance Instruction

Editor's Note: This is the second of a five-part series on Union Board. The 10th annual Union Board week is now in progress.

By LINDA MILLER
State News Staff Writer

Just seven students handle all activities sponsored by the Student Services Committee of Union Board.

The most successful of the committee's ventures is the ride bureau in the Union concourse, says Jim Bannan, Saginaw senior and director. The driver puts information on a card and hangs it on the hook which designates his area of the state or country.

Students looking for rides use the board regularly. It also helps cut expenses for the driver.

A good working knowledge of bridge is given each term by Albert R. Drury, assistant research professor of surgery and medicine. The committee sponsors six hourly lessons at $3 per person.

Over 30 are enrolled in the lessons this term.

Bridge tournaments are also held for six weeks each term. Hands for duplicate bridge are pre-set and recorded by the committee. Students must find their own partners for the open competition, which costs $1.50 per team.

Dance instruction is popular with men. Bannan said about half who start the instruction drop out because few women are available for partners.

"The guys who stay on want to learn to dance, not to meet girls," he said.

This term the committee allows men to bring dates, and more students have remained in the course. About one-third of those participating are foreign students.

The talent file could be of great advantage, but only about 10 names have been filed. Bannan received calls for entertainment, but does not have much to offer.

Petitions for the file are available in the UB desk office.

The Student Services committee also sponsors the annual jazz show, the Christmas program, a "What To Do" bulletin board and publicity for billiards and bowling teams.

Bannan said that the activities of his committee are usually well-received and successful.

Faculty Concert

Woodwind Quintet Near-Professional

By JUDY HOPPER
State News Reviewer

A near-professional job was done by the Faculty Woodwind Quintet in their concert Sunday in the Music Auditorium.

Members of the quintet include Russell Friedewald, flute, Elsa Ludewig, clarinet, Edgar Kirk, bassoon, Douglas Campbell, horn, and Daniel Stolper, oboe. The audience heard an 18th-century classical quintet by Beethoven, a colorful piece by Carl Nielsen, and a classic piece by composer Hindemith.

The opening number, Beethoven's "Quintet in B flat Major," Op. 7, was a graceful pleasing piece, beginning a tranquil mood in the first two numbers, then becoming bright and perky in the last two.

The solos in this number seemed shaky, but the ensemble work was fine, and the soloists became more secure as they progressed. Especially pleasing were the even, melodic runs in the clarinet.

Nielsen's "Kvintet," written in the 1920's was a melodic, easy-to-listen-to piece. It was consonant in harmony but had such modern fixtures as wide contrasts of range, fragmented melodies, strange chords and special, sudden effects achieved with mutes, unusual note figurations and wide leaps.

The last movement of this number, "Prelude-Theme and Variations," was a series of variations featuring each instrument, built around a beginning horn theme played against striking full chords. The solos were all done well, particularly by the bassoon and horn.

The final number, Hindemith's "Kleine Kammermusik," Op. 24, No. 2, gave each instrument a chance to show its full powers in a series of five contrasting movements.

The faculty members all showed a professional ability in tonal quality, blend, solo and ensemble work in this final number. Each instrument's color and range of expression were equally represented.

Bus Drivers Threaten Strike

to recess Monday's council meeting so action can be taken today or Wednesday.

Cole said he would meet with the union at 2 p.m. today to work out an agreement which would hinge on the City Council's action.

One of the drivers interviewed while making his run on campus implied bad faith on the part of the company.

"Cole promised an 11 cents an hour raise effective Monday with or without a city contract," he said.

"We would not be planning a walkout if he hadn't promised us the raise."

He said he had little faith in Lansing City Council action because for all he knew the city might be considering a contract with another bus company.

When asked if he thought the strike would give the driver's union a bad public image, he said:

"Public reaction appears to be in our favor.

"Wage scales for Lansing bus drivers are well below those in cities of comparable size."

The Lansing Suburban Lines, also called Lansing Metro Line, operates MSU service every 20 minutes with three buses. The manager described the campus operation as seasonal.

"MSU service makes a profit during the winter months, but campus schedules run at a loss during the spring and summer," John Cole said.

The company receives no subsidy for operating MSU service.

Richard O. Bernitt, director of public safety, estimated that the proposed strike would have little effect on traffic here. If the weather remains good, most student bus patrons will walk instead of using cars, he indicated.

Computer One Of 10 In World

MSU students and faculty have at their disposal the fastest, most powerful computer in the world. The computer is the Control Data 3600, one of 10 in existence. MSU is the only university to own one.

The University purchased the huge computer in July 1963. It is valued at $2.5 million; however, its cost to the University was about $1 million.

Any student or faculty member may use the equipment, Donald Spylke, business manager for the Computer Laboratory, said.

The University provides cards, paper, key punches, a card sorter and hand calculators to those who wish to use the 3600. Some knowledge of setting up a program is the only requirement of a student.

A program is simply a problem which is placed on punched cards that are understandable to the computer.

There are about 1200 students in classes which deal with computer programs, Spylke said.

If students were charged for the computers time, the bill would be roughly $500 per hour. This is not an exorbitant amount when compared to the cost of time for human labor to do an equal amount of work. Human labor is thousands of times slower. In one second the 3600 can add a nine digit number to its self 250,000 times.

The computer and its component parts are located on the second floor of Computer Center. One wall is glass so students may watch the computer in operation from the adjoining room.

The computer requires delicate care. A 50 ton air conditioner is in operation for the sole purpose of keeping the room where the machine is kept at constant temperature and humidity.

Each morning the 3600 receives a thorough checking by a crew of engineers. They spend three hours, beginning at 5 a.m. working with the computer to make sure it is ready for the day's work. It usually runs from 8 a.m. to about 9 p.m. Sometimes it is in service around the clock.

Spylke said there is seldom any difficulty with the computer. Most problems turn out to be human errors.

HAPPINESS IS A SIDE-DISH OF FRENCH FRIES!

Spartans Upset Illini, 85 To 82

The Spartan basketball team finally won a game at Jenison Fieldhouse without scoring 100 points.

The State five edged Illinois, 85-82, last night to boost their season record (11-10) over the 4500 point and their Big Ten mark to 5-6. The Illini are now 10-8 overall and 3-5 in conference play.

The big gun for the Green and White was forward Pete Gent, who tallied 30 points. Center Fred Thomann added 25 and Marcus Sanders, Bill Schwarz and Bill Curtis each had 8.

State went most of the way without sophomore jumper Stan Washington, who fouled out early in the second half after picking up four personals in the first 10 minutes of play.

Illinois was unable to score a point during the first four minutes of the second half and the Spartans took advantage and rolled up a 10 point lead.

State shot a poor 37 per cent from the floor, but made up for it by turning Illini mistakes into points, connecting on 17 of 25 free throws and out-rebounding the visitors 74-54.

CAPTION

Wilt Never Played Prep

By JEROME CAPLAN
State News Sports Editor

Tonight at the Civic Center Lansing area residents will get a chance to watch a pro basketball game. The front running San Francisco Warriors will be meeting the cellar dwelling Detroit Pistons.

It'll be the first pro hoop contest in mid-Michigan, the first such game ever played in the state outside of Detroit.

Leading the Warriors is "The Dipper" -- Wilt Chamberlain.

Leading the Pistons are a number of less wellknown greats.

Chamberlain has been setting records since his grammar school days in Philadelphia. But Wilt has never played on a championship team. This year he hopes to correct that deficiency.

He's the "new" Wilt, as any one of a dozen sports writers will tell you. He's passing off more and turning into a well-rounded player.

Trying to describe the 7-2 wonder in this short space is as useless as Reggie Harding trying to guard him.

It's one of those see-for-yourself propositions and the Civic Center is the place to do the seeing.

Chamberlain has an impressive supporting cast -- Philadelphia's Wayne Hightower and Bowling Green terror Nate Thurmond. They form the tallest front line in the sport today.

One point, however, must be cleared up. Chamberlain never played "prep" ball. That's just a mid-western figment of someone's imagination.

Chamberlain is from the east and in that part of the great 48, now 50, it's "high school" ball unless you attend a prep school, which Overbrook -- Wilt's alma mammy -- is certainly not.

It may not mean to much to certain pencil pushers, but to classify Wilt in the blazer and beanie set that prep connotes in the East is an injustice. Wilt played "high school" ball in the Philly school yards and man, that ain't "prep" ball anyplace in the world.

Center Skip Thoren led the Illini in rebounds, but fouled out with 11 minutes left in the game and the Orange and Blue couldn't play without him. Top scorer for Illinois was Don Freeman with 27. Tal Brody had 16 and Bogie Redmon had 19.

At half-time State held a two-point, 47-45, lead on the strength of a jump shot by Sanders with nine seconds remaining in the first period.

During the initial frame the lead changed hands 11 times.

State hit on only 34 per cent of their first half shots, while the Illini tallied on 46 per cent from the floor.

Illinois' Skip Thoren was injured in the first half and had to miss a few minutes of play, but returned to stop State from grabbing a wide half-time margin.

Gent, who had his hometown of Bangor rooting for him, had 19 points in the first period to lead the State attack. Thomann collected 10, while Dick Redmon was high for the Illini in the first 20 minutes with 12.

The Spartans have but three games remaining to play this season. On Saturday they travel to Iowa City to meet Iowa. They face Northwestern at Jenison on Feb. 29 and close out the season at Columbus against Ohio State on March 7.

Illinois has six games remaining to be played. The Illini still must face Minnesota, Purdue, Michigan, Ohio State, Wisconsin and Iowa.

GENT JUMPER--Spartan forward Pete Gent (30) sends up two-pointer over the hand of Illinois' Skip Thoren during last night's game at Jenison Fieldhouse.

Bruins Still Tops

UCLA remains in the top spot in the weekly United Press International college basketball ratings, but quite a few other teams have been shuffled around.

Kentucky slipped to third, with Michigan moving up to second. Duke jumped into fourth, Villanova into fifth and Oregon State into sixth. Davidson dropped to seventh after losing to Duke, Vanderbilt fell to ninth and Loyola of Chicago moved back on to the list, replacing Texas Western in the number 10 spot. Texas Western now is in Loyola's 11th position.

Dance Show Tonight

Six dance group members will join four soloists in concert tonight and Wednesday in the Wonders' Kiva.

The performances, to begin at 7:15 p.m., will be given Thursday evening in the McDonel Kiva.

The soloists, Andra Wiklema, Detroit freshman, Marian Gitlan, New York City junior, Clinty Robinson, Tuskegee, Ala., junior and Jimmyle Listenbee, instructor in physical education, will present styles of choreography ranging from avant garde through formalistic, farce and lyrical.

Choreography has been arranged by Miss Listenbee, Betty Cantino, Sue Lundberg and Mrs. Mary Montgomery.

GETTING READY -- Dancers rehearse routines for Dance Concert which will be presented at 7:15 tonight in Wonders Kiva.

NIT, NCAA Pick Thirteen Cage 5's

Thirteen teams have been selected for post-season college basketball tournament play.

Three were named to the National Invitational Tournament (NIT) berths, while nine are going to the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) tournament.

Temple University became the first team to represent a league in the NCAA tourney. The Owls will take part in the eastern regionals, representing the Middle Atlantic Conference.

Entering the NCAA regionals as at-large teams were Villanova, defending NCAA champion Loyola of Chicago, Creighton, Texas Western, Louisville, Oregon State, Utah State, Seattle and Providence.

The first first three to enter the 12-team NIT field are New York University, DePaul and Pittsburgh.

The NIT will get underway at New York's Madison Square Garden on March 12.

This cyclotron was built and operating by the fall of 1930 and reported at the Washington April Meeting (Phys. Rev. 37, 1707, 1931). The diameter of the chamber was about 5 inches. Placed between the 4-inch diameter poles of a magnet with a field of 12,700 gauss and 2,000 volts on its single dec., it produced 80,000 volt hydrogen molecule ions trapped and measured in a Faraday cage to which a measured and adequate de-energizing voltage could be applied.

MUSEUM PIECE

The do-it-yourself-with-sealing-wax days are gone from cyclotron technology forever. The tiny instrument invented by Dr. Ernest O. Lawrence at Berkeley in 1930 has been superseded many times by increasingly larger and more powerful instruments of nuclear research.

Today the business of discovery is carried on by 3200 people at the Berkeley site of Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, overlooking the University of California campus and San Francisco Bay. And the challenge of innovation remains for engineers—in advanced accelerator design and in a dynamic unclassified research program.

EE'S: Major electronics development programs at LRL deal with nuclear instrumentation, automated data handling and acquisition, radio frequency and high voltage power supply systems, fast-counting techniques and semiconductor device development.

ME'S: Our Mechanical Engineering work concentrates on design of accelerators and the instrumentation associated with them, on magnet development, high vacuum systems, shielding problems and mechanical engineering applied to biomedical research.

Engineering graduates at all levels who want to learn more about LRL should contact the Placement Office for appointments. Campus interviews will be held on March 3, 1964.

'MSU Never A Cow College'

CONTRARY TO BELIEF--Madison Kuhn, university historian and professor of history, looks at some photos collected during his years of research in compiling his book on MSU. The University, he points out, has never been primarily a agricultural center.

"We never really were a 'cow' college."

Madison Kuhn, historian since 1942, said that MSU always has been a scientific institution. In a constant struggle since 1855, scientific training has predominated over practical.

The original purpose of Michigan Agricultural College was to provide one educated leader for every farming community, Kuhn said. No agricultural courses were taught during the first five years. Most were science courses.

Between 1865 and 1890 other states set up agricultural colleges. Many used MAC graduates on their faculties.

He said the first graduates, in 1861, were excused two months early to enter the Union Army and experiment on an electric signal system.

Kuhn is author of "Michigan State, the First 100 Years," a 500-page volume climaxed 13 years of research.

As primary sources, Kuhn used materials such as minutes of board meetings, account books and diaries. He also interviewed several graduates of the 1800's.

Another useful source was William J. Beal's "History of Michigan Agricultural College," printed in 1915. Beal was professor of botany.

Kuhn says this book was especially useful because it was written from personal experience.

During the time between the two books, Kuhn pointed out, the approach toward history changed. Beal's history was written mostly from printed sources, although it is scattered with personal observations and opinions.

Kuhn feels that the Museum should build an archive of manuscripts for future historians. He has been collecting information since 1942, filling almost 20 filing cases in two rooms above the Auditorium balcony.

Kuhn sees a need for the individual colleges and departments to write their own specialized histories. The school's size necessitates this, he says.

He also feels that MSU needs autobiographies of its professors.

Kuhn has a Ph.D. from the University of Chicago, and has been associated with MSU since 1937.

Top Citizen To Be Cited At Dinner

The annual Brotherhood Award Dinner, co-sponsored by more than 40 Lansing organizations, will be held Thursday evening in the Big Ten Room of Kellogg Center.

A plaque will be presented to the outstanding local citizen for human kindness and community brotherhood action. Community service citations will also be presented to four of the nominees.

Also included in the program are the Earl Nelson singers and a skit, "The Children are Listening," to be performed by the Community Circle Players.

Louis A. Radelet, professor of police administration will lead discussions.

Tickets may be obtained through co-sponsoring organizations or the Community Services Council.

'Shot Down' Club Formed By Greeks

Students who have been "shot down" recently may be interested in a new club being formed on campus.

Two Theta Delta Chi fraternity members are forming the club to console students who have been rejected for a date by a member of the opposite sex.

The club, which started as a joke at the Theta Delta Chi House, is now a growing organization.

Interested students who can fulfill the membership requirements of being recently "shot down" should contact Dennis L. Gabel, Harper Woods junior, or John F. Gatz, Southfield junior, at 332-2563.

'Radio Encores' To Include World War II Broadcasts

Highlights from World War II radio broadcasts will be heard in a program sponsored by the television and radio department at 8 p.m. Wednesday in the Erickson Hall Kiva.

The World War II program is the second presentation in the department's series, "Radio Encores."

Arthur Weld, professor of television and radio, said that in addition to World War II broadcasts, a playback of "The Investigator" is scheduled for later in the term.

The World War II program will include excerpts from broadcasts made during the D-Day invasion, VE Day and the Pearl Harbor attack. Among the voices heard will be those of Winston Churchill, Franklin Roosevelt, Edward R. Murrow and Adolf Hitler.

"The Investigator" is a radio play produced over the Canadian Broadcasting Corp. in 1954. It satirizes the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy and the McCarthy hearings.

Professor Weld, coordinator of the program, said "Radio Encores" has proven a 'self-perpetuating' series.

It began last Oct. 30 when a play-back of Orson Welles' radio drama "War of the Worlds" was presented to commemorate the 25th anniversary of that broadcast.

Men's Club To See Sportsman's Film

Russell Jameson, Seginaw manufacturer and sportsman, will present his prize-winning film, "The Heart of the Land," at the Men's Club luncheon at 12:10 p.m. Wednesday in the Union parlors.

The film, named the best nature film made by an amateur photographer, was produced on a cooperative expedition by Russell and several MSU staff members.
