

U.S. Stand Firm On Laos Neutrality

U.S. Aid To South Viet Nam Blasted By Soviets In UN

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (P)—The Soviet Union and the United States clashed in the U.N. Security Council Tuesday over U.S. aid to South Viet Nam, including President Johnson's request for $125 million more to spend on the war there.

Soviet Chief Delegate Nikolai T. Fedorenko said Washington already had 16,000 American soldiers in that country and was now deciding the question of assigning "an additional $125 million in order to extend the aggression and bloodshed."

U.S. delegate Charles W. Yost retorted that the United States was only helping South Viet Nam fight off "a large-scale, aggressive Communist armed assault" directed from outside and aimed at subversion.

In talking about U.S. spending, Fedorenko did not mention President Johnson by name, but he

Any Measure But Armed Action

WASHINGTON (P)—The United States gave notice Tuesday it will take all necessary measures—short of direct military intervention—to preserve the neutrality of Laos.

State Department press officer Robert J. McCloskey declared that aggressive military actions by Communist-led Pathet Lao and North Vietnamese forces in recent weeks "have seriously threatened Prime Minister Savanna Phouma's government and the fabric of the Geneva agreements" which guaranteed the neutrality of Laos.

"As I indicated Monday our activity in recent days has been limited to a diplomatic effort to stop the fighting and restore stability," he said.

"This does not preclude any other efforts which may be required in support of the royal Lao government and Prime Minister Souvanna Phouma."

He gave this reply when asked about the possibility of U.S. forces being sent to neighboring Thailand as was done in 1962 when a Communist drive threatened to reach the Mekong River frontier with Thailand.

There has been consideration given, it was learned on good authority, of a show of force by units of the U.S. 7th fleet of the Gulf of Tonkin on the North Viet Nam coast.

Informants said no decisions have yet been made on this proposal.

Thai diplomatic sources have not as yet asked for U.S. troops to return to that country. But the State Department spokesman said the United States is aware of the deep concern expressed by Thailand at the continued deterioration of the situation in Laos.

Thailand's foreign minister Thanat Khoman sent a formal note to Britain and the Soviet Union earlier this month which declared that blatant violations of the Geneva agreement and the renewal of military activities by the Communist Pathet Lao "represent an imminent threat to the security of the kingdom of Thailand which shares a long common border with Laos."

MSU Aids Processing Industry

The growing food processing industry, a $90 billion a year business in this country, is an important and dynamic aspect of MSU research, the Men's Club was told Tuesday.

Speaking on "The New World of Processed Foods," Bernard Schweigert, professor and chairman of food science, told the guests of the club's special Michigan Week luncheon that MSU researchers are developing many new product varieties and food processing methods, and are helping to revolutionize the food packaging and distributing industries.

The luncheon consisted of all-Michigan, all-MSU products, and included such dishes as Michigan bean soup, marinated turkey, a special variety of Michigan potatoes, Michigan salad and cheeses and a Michigan dessert of blueberry pie and fresh apples. It was designed, according to Lowell Treaster, director of information services, "to dramatize the contributions that Michigan agriculture makes to the food-processing industries."

Schweigert's talk centered on the practical developments which are coming out of the four main areas of food processing—food chemistry, food microbiology, food engineering and nutrition.

Michigan State is one of the major centers of research in all of these areas, and Schweigert listed specific projects which

40 Mikes Found In U.S. Embassy

WASHINGTON (P)—More than 40 secret microphones were found in the American Embassy in Moscow when U.S. security men tore into walls of the building in April.

The State Department disclosed the find Tuesday, and said a strong protest was delivered in Moscow this morning.

Officials said the microphones were imbedded 8 to 10 inches deep in the walls of the top three floors of the 10-story building, and had obviously been installed before the Soviets turned the building over for U.S. occupancy in 1952.

An investigation was launched to determine whether the Reds got any significant U.S. secrets in the dozen or more years the listening system was in operation.

The "bugging" devices were connected to small wooden tubes which led close to the wall in various offices and apartments in the embassy building.

That allowed the sound from an estimated 10-15 feet within the room to reach the microphone without the mike being detected by normal detection devices.

The wires from the microphones led into one system which was hidden by the brick and mortar outside wall. The wires left the embassy building underground. State Department officials could not say where the wires led since their investigation could not go outside the U.S. building in Moscow.

Wallace Strong In Maryland

BALTIMORE (P)—Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace staged the strongest of his Southern raids Tuesday, running a nip-and-tuck race with favorite son Sen. Daniel B. Brewster in Maryland's presidential primary.

The Columbia Broadcasting System and the National Broadcasting Co. said Wallace would lose—but not by much—to Brewster, running as a stand-in for President Johnson.

NBC said Brewster would capture 52 per cent of the vote, Wallace 43 per cent.

CBS said its computers and analysts figured Wallace would capture 40 to 45 per cent of the vote.

With 82 per cent of the vote reported, CBS said Brewster had 198,519 votes, Wallace 170,177.

That gave Brewster 52 per cent and Wallace 44 per cent of the vote.

Romney Signs Wage Bill

Governor Romney today signed Michigan's first minimum wage law. It climaxes 27 years of effort.

Romney said the new law is designed to guarantee a decent living to thousands of presently underpaid workers. It calls for minimum wages of $1 an hour beginning next January, increasing to $1.15 in 1966, and $1.25 in 1967.

Faculty Group Reschedules Today's Meet

The meeting date for the Academic Senate has been changed from today to next Wednesday, at 4 p.m. in Fairchild Theatre.

The change is to allow President John A. Hannah to attend the Board of Trustees' May meeting. Hannah returned last night from an advisory trip to the University of Nigeria.

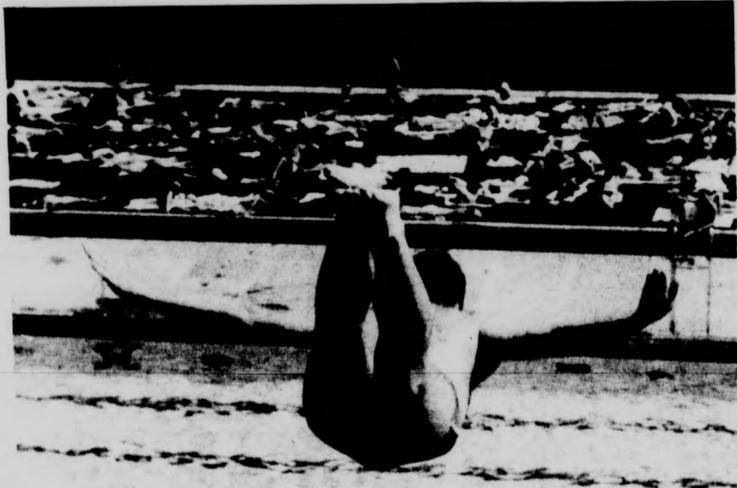

Made up of all faculty members, the Academic Senate is expected to mainly concern itself with grading practices and procedures.

Discussion should center around the institution of the "C" grade and changes in the standing for a student to enter the upper college.

A report will be delivered by the committee on committees defining the areas of responsibilities of the seven Academic Senate standing committees.

Another proposal would allow Academic Senate officers to take office on July 1 instead of June 1 which is at the end of the academic year.

The thinking behind the proposal is that the later date will make it easier for the officers to move into their new positions. It is also in keeping with the beginning of the fiscal year.

Citizenship Privileges

Court Extends Rights

By LINDA MILLER
State News Staff Writer

Naturalized Americans will no longer lose their citizenship if they live abroad several years, the Supreme Court ruled Monday.

The 5-3 decision deprives Congress of the authority to take citizenship from naturalized Americans who live continuously for three years or more in their country of birth or where they formerly were nationals. The ruling also includes those who live continuously for five years in any other country outside the United States.

Specifically, the ruling applies to German-born Mrs. Angelika L. Schneider, who gained citizenship in 1950. She returned to Germany in 1956 to marry a Cologne lawyer and has lived there since.

Samuel Krislov, associate professor of political science, has not read the specific case in question, but he said that it appears the Supreme Court is "badly divided" on this issue.

"One wing of the Court says Congress cannot take away citizenship unless the individual voluntarily renounces the United States. Another wing is talking about due process of the law and opposes discrimination against naturalized citizens."

Krislov said that just now far the Supreme Court is going in regard to the stripping of citizenship is difficult to tell.

"Most decisions are limited to particular cases," he said. "It is hard to see to what extent this decision will limit the power

Mock Presidential Primary Campaigning Begins Today

Students will have an opportunity to support their favorite presidential candidate in a mock primary election to be held on campus next Wednesday.

Students will be allowed to vote for a candidate from the political party of their choice.

Campaigning begins today and will continue through Tuesday. The event is sponsored by the Young Democrats and the Young Republicans with the support of Union Board and All-University Student Government.

"To our knowledge this is one of the first presidential mock primaries at a Big Ten school and should draw national coverage," said Patrick McCollough, Dearborn senior and co-chairman of the election committee.

Titled "Horizons 1964," the event is expected to draw many top national political figures to campus. President Johnson may even be on campus next Tuesday in connection with the election.

"If this is to be a representative sampling of student sentiment, we urge everyone to vote," McCollough said. "With conditions still so fluid, a clear vic-

Compromise Package Gains Votes

WASHINGTON (P)—A package of compromise amendments aimed at choking off the Southern civil rights filibuster gained more votes in separate party caucuses Tuesday, Democratic and Republican Senate leaders reported.

But the GOP leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said there is still an educational job to sell the package. He said he does not believe an attempt can be made before early June to halt the chain-talk on the Senate floor—now in its 59th day.

Reports Say Cuban Bridges Destroyed

MIAMI, Fla. (P)—A press officer for an anti-Castro organization said Tuesday its forces blew up six bridges in Cuba, but the press officer's chief later denied the report.

The original report by Marcos Valdes, auxiliary press officer for the Revolutionary Recovery Movement (MRR), said the attack on the bridges was a blow against the Fidel Castro regime in honor of Cuba's independence anniversary today.

Khrushchev Denounces Western Navy

PORT SAID, Egypt (P)—Premier Khrushchev denounced Western naval power Tuesday as an imperialist menace to the Asian-African sphere. He used the Suez War of 1956 as the base for an oral broadside against "aircraft carrier diplomacy."

The U.S. 6th fleet, a powerful force patrolling the Mediterranean, was an obvious target of the Soviet leader in an address at Port Said, on the Mediterranean end of the 107-mile-long Suez Canal.

"A grave threat to the security of this area can be created by realization of the plan for stationing Polaris submarines in the Mediterranean," Khrushchev said.

Neutralist Forces Withdraw

Plaine Des Jarres Seized

VIENTIANE, Laos (P)—Pro-Communist Pathet Lao troops and their allies from Communist North Viet Nam appeared to be consolidating positions Monday after seizing effective control of the strategic Plaine Des Jarres, Western military observers reported.

Gen. Kong Le made an orderly withdrawal of his outnumbered neutralist forces to positions better suited for defense, said observers returning from the front 110 miles northeast of Vientiane. After two days of artillery and mortar bombardment, the Pathet Lao overran Kong's headquarters at Muong Phan on the fringe of the plaine Monday. Kong formed new lines around Ban Khong.

While the military situation appeared confused, fighting seemed to slacken as the Pathet Lao consolidated positions around Muong Phan.

The lines around Ban Khong were quiet, but the military visitors said they could hear the rumble of artillery in the distance. The observers appeared a little more optimistic than the day before, when they predicted Ban Khong might fall within a few hours.

They said the new neutralist positions around Ban Khong, which stands atop a hill, appeared to be more defensible than the flatter terrain around Muong Phan.

Except for a few pockets of neutralist resistance, the Pathet Lao appeared to have control of the Plaine Des Jarres with its networks of roads leading into western and southern Laos.

Rocky Speaks In California; Starts Campaign For Primary

LOS ANGELES (P)—New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, with the field pretty much to himself for a while, set out Tuesday on an intensive campaign to win California's primary election just two weeks away.

At a news conference he said he hopes to win with "an effective, hard-hitting campaign."

He said he believes his victory in the Oregon primary and Monday's switch of Henry Cabot Lodge supporters to Rockefeller in the California race are "starting a trend which I am going to enjoy."

He aimed another shot at what he called Sen. Barry Goldwater's extremist positions, then left for the first appearance in four days of campaigning in California. Speaking at San Fernando Valley State College in suburban North Ridge, he attacked Communism and proposed "a positive program for peace."

Rockefeller's campaign timing is clearly more fortuitous than that of Goldwater, his only adversary for the Republican presidential nomination on the June 2 ballot.

The New Yorker's four days of speechmaking this week will be followed by five more next week. Goldwater doesn't return until next Tuesday, for one day. Then he'll be back the following Friday to remain until the election.

Salaries, Faculty Calibre Linked

If Michigan State's academic reputation is to continue improving, faculty salaries must be raised to a level competitive with other state universities.

The past 15 years have seen MSU transformed from a cow college to a highly reputable academic institution. If academic programs develop at the same rate during the next 15 years, the University will swiftly become one of the most outstanding educational centers in the nation.

However, any outstanding university must have an outstanding faculty. Competitive salaries are essential if a school is to maintain a top-rated teaching staff.

Like most public institutions, MSU is handicapped in salary competition with private universities by lack of a large endowment and dependence on legislative appropriations. This built-in disadvantage is a fact of life which state universities can do very little to change.

It is far more disturbing to note that MSU pays the second lowest average faculty salaries in the Big Ten conference. Professors here receive the lowest average pay in the Big Ten. MSU salaries rank ninth in the conference for associate and assistant professors.

Only at the instructor level do our salaries compare favorably with the rest of the Big Ten. Instructors here receive the fourth highest average salaries in the conference.

This dismal salary picture is borne out by the fact that state schools accounted for more than 90 per cent of the salary raises offered to lure faculty members away from MSU this year.

Significantly, assistant professors received the largest number of salary offers from other universities this year. The assistant professorial level is the point where MSU salaries begin to compare poorly with those of other public universities.

MSU's poor salary performance at the three highest professorial ranks is not confined to the Big Ten. The American Association of University Professors (AAUP) gave MSU a "C" ranking for average faculty compensation in its annual report on the economic status of the teaching profession.

The AAUP report includes nearly every major university in the country. Although "C" is a better rank than many schools earn, it is not appropriate for this University. Academic excellence cannot be attained through average performance.

Although MSU will probably never be able to match private university salaries, she need not worry about loss of faculty if her salaries are competitive with other state schools. A public university such as MSU offers research facilities and a wide variety of resources which most private schools cannot match.

MSU has received a legislative appropriation for 1964-65 year which tops last year's funds by more than $7 million.

Surely some of this money can be used to bring our salaries into line with those of the state universities which are our chief competitors.

To The Victors . . .

The MSU students, who were hoping the state attorney general's office would rescue them from the Sheriff of Shiawassee, undoubtedly were disappointed Monday to hear that the state finds no legal grounds to intervene.

At the request of six students, the office investigated the arrests of 111 students and their arraignments in Shiawassee county after they were rounded up by police at a grasser the night of May 25.

The state ruled that: "From a legal point of view, it cannot be said categorically that the handling of this mass affair. . . was bad."

"There does not appear to be such a clear case of abuse of discretion on the part of local law enforcement officials as to warrant interference by the state."

The students, who were fined

$25 and $35 for illegal possession of alcohol, probably do not agree with the ruling but they will have to accept it.

Those with better senses of humor may even manage a smile when they read one sentence of the state decision:

"The two justices of the peace who handled the early Sunday morning arraignments performed a service above and beyond the call of duty considering the hour and the day of the week."

Maybe a good-humored student committee will pound a beer can into a couple of "above and beyond" hero medals for the justices.

They could wear them all the way to the bank when they deposit the $4.30 costs per student--totalling over $450--they personally pocketed, by state law, for a hard night's work.

Merit System Determines Salaries

Editor's Note: This is the third of a four-part series on faculty salaries.

By SUE JACOBY
State News Staff Writer

Individual professors here may receive very high pay in spite of the fact that MSU's average faculty salaries are the second lowest in the Big Ten.

Salaries are determined according to a merit system. Faculty members are rated each year by their department heads in consultation with advisory committees.

There is a general pay range scale for instructors, assistant professors, associate professors and full professors. However, the scale provides only a broad guideline.

Adrian Jaffe, president of the MSU chapter of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP), noted that some assistant professors receive more money than associate professors and some associate professors have higher salaries than full professors.

A constant controversy rages among educators as to whether merit pay or "step scales" provide a better method of determining faculty salaries.

Under a step scale, salaries are set rigidly according to professorial rank and seniority. Thus, professorial rank and the number of years a faculty member has been at a school are far more important than merit in determining pay.

President John A. Hannah has been firmly committed to the merit pay system for many years. MSU professors have varying opinions.

Merit rating for faculty inevitably involves a subjective judgment each year by the department head, whose recommendation is then submitted to the college dean, provost, president and board of trustees.

Desirability, research, teaching ability and publication are all influential in faculty rating, according to Jaffe.

"When rating time comes around, faculty members who have higher offers from other universities naturally use this to influence departmental ratings," Jaffe said.

Faculty ratings are also related to the "publish or perish" question.

"It is true that professors who spend a great deal of time with their students and do not publish may be bypassed when it comes to salary increases and promotions," Jaffe said.

In theory, department heads are autonomous in rating their faculty members for salary increases. However, they are limited by the size of the budgets they receive from the Board of Trustees.

Average faculty salaries vary radically from department to department.

"The competitive position of the University is much worse in some areas than others," Jaffe pointed out. "For example, the English department average salary is lower than the national average. If an English professor is making $12,000 a year and receives a $15,000 offer, it will take $3,000 to keep him. A small departmental budget would probably not allow for this. "On the other hand, it might only take $500 to meet a higher offer for an economics professor, because the department's salaries are much nearer the national average."

Professors who are in favor of the merit pay system naturally tend to be those who have done well under the present system of determining salaries at MSU.

Some would like to see MSU adopt a combination of both merit pay and the step scale.

"The big advantage of a step scale is that it does not discriminate against teachers in fields which are not in great demand," Jaffe said.

"However, I would not be in favor of eliminating the (continued on page 9)

Letters To The Editor

'Down With Alcohol'

To the Editor:

As a citizen of the MSU community I wholeheartedly agree with the wisdom of the Board of Agriculture which in 18--stated that no student of MSU may possess or consume any alcoholic beverage on campus or in any off campus residence.

Under the laws of the State of Michigan, it is legal for any person age 21 or over to drink unless, of course, that person is a student of MSU in which case he cannot drink whether he is 21 or 81. This is as it should be for two reasons.

First of all, we all realize that any MSU student or any professor who happens to live on campus is far too immature to decide for himself what is right and what is wrong and therefore needs a "big brother" standing over his shoulder saying, "Yes, you may," or "No, you may not."

Secondly, the traffic problem at MSU is appalling as everyone knows, and since drinking tends to impair driving ability, drinking must not be allowed because it will only serve to complicate the situation.

There is a small minority of students, however, who do not agree with the ideas presented above and therefore it is necessary that all residences be periodically inspected. These inspections should include on and off-campus residences of all students married or single, on-campus residences of professors, and, of course, should not exclude the residence of President Hannah which is also on campus.

Scholarship Program Defect

To the Editor:

Last week the "State News" printed a review of the Michigan State Merit Scholarship program. I would like to point out the major defect of the program. Any National Merit Finalist who names Michigan State University as first choice will receive a MSU scholarship if he comes to State. I am sure that there are quite a few individuals here who were Finalists, that did not name MSU as first choice, but did come to this university.

These people have not received a scholarship, or any of the special aid such as undergraduate assistantships, etc., that go to the Merit Scholars. This difference is not due to any difference in abilities, but only to the fact that the unfortunate student gave another university as first choice. I think that these students should at least receive the non-financial benefits accorded to the Merit Scholars.

Point Of View

Defends Right To Hate

By Joe Panyard

Editor's Note: Joe Panyard, Muskegon senior, claims to be head of SNUFF, The Society for Nullification of Under-thinking Freedom Fighters.

The recent journalistic violet dropped (or thrown) by Nacia Brown seems to cap all the efforts put forth in the State News' new "trailblazer" (not pace-maker) form of journalism.

Just what exactly is this startling new trend?

We've all heard of "yellow journalism," but this seems to be black journalism.

I think Miss Brown's little piece (like most of the "crusading" items in your paper) was written with a "trite writer."

But let me begin. Despite all aroused, crusading spirit on behalf of civil rights, love your neighbor, etc., there remains the right (and I hope it always will) of the individual to dislike or even strongly dislike (yes, maybe even hate) another person, group, or thing.

It is unreasonable to tell a person that he has to love or even like another human being, be he drab, citron or black, or that he has to like interracial marriage.

Miss Brown says, and I quote, "Yet these parents have bred the youth of today, passing on their baseless prejudices, and indeed they have done a thorough job."

Whether people realize their bases for their prejudices or not, the prejudices remain.

I have my own basis for my prejudice, and I did not get it from my parents. I would like to present it now.

As Al Smith (defeated presidential candidate) used to say, "Let's look at the record."

What, in their long history on earth, have the Negroes as the racial ethnic group from Africa developed by themselves?

The answer, to my way of thinking, is nothing or at least very little.

According to modern-day scientists all human beings (black, red and white) are biologically equal. Let us assume that they are equal.

Why then, have Negroes not developed things the way Caucasoids and Mongoloids have, thus making real contributions to civilization?

Well, you might say that they were off, separated from other peoples and cultures.

So what I say. Weren't the Aztecs, Incas, and Mayas also separated, and although they were primitive in some aspects, didn't they develop some remarkable things and communities?

Take the Chinese for another example. Had there been a complete historical record of this often-separated-from-the-rest-of-the-world people, they may have developed untold hundreds or even thousands of things that other peoples have been credited with.

Next you might say the jungle, an unfavorable environment, hemmed the Negroes in, and retarded their development.

I say maybe so, but other peoples (racial ethnic groups) such as the Mayans, Incas, and Aztecs or their predecessors migrated, and they did not visibly suffer for having done it. They got out of what they thought was an interior environment and moved on to a better one.

Lastly, you might say they were "put upon," by not only white foreigners, but also by their own kind, who sold natives to the Dutch and others.

Once again I say so what, the Jews are the best example of a downtrodden people. Throughout history people have been trying to walk all over them. Still the Jews survived, prospered and flourished, enriching civilization, and bettering themselves and mankind in the process.

So the Negro group was separated, hemmed in by the jungle, and stepped on, but so were the other groups, and the difference seems to me to be that they couldn't overcome these things.

As for the two other racial ethnic groups, the Mongoloids and the Caucasoids, they developed internally that device so necessary for advancement and progress--the written language, but did the Negro?

No, he did not.

He had no written language un-

Polluted Air May Be Fatal

Doctor Says Smog Can Be Dangerous

By LEE BROWN
State News Staff Writer

"Laugh! I thought I'd die," the coed exclaimed. Then she burst into uncontrolled laughter as she tried to recall a television comic's gag about smog, Los Angeles style.

But smog, Los Angeles style or home grown, isn't a laughing matter.

If you suffer from a respiratory disease such as asthma, bronchitis or emphysema, or severe heart disease, you may eventually die from Los Angeles-type smog, said Dr. Arthur L. Stanley, specialist in pulmonary disease for 18 years and medical director of Ingham Medical Hospital in Lansing.

Airborne dust or chemicals can irritate the self-cleaning carpet of microscopic hairs which line your respiratory tract. Interrupting the cleaning operation may lead to bronchitis, an inflammation which can include any or all parts of the respiratory tract.

Dr. Stanley says one can get bronchitis from large, constant doses or irritants—inhaling smoke during a forest fire, or smoking cigarettes for years. Irritation over a period of years may permanently enlarge the lungs' tiny air sacs, where the vital exchange of oxygen and carbon dioxide takes place.

This can result in a disease called emphysema, which is characterized by shortness of breath and lack of wind."

Persons suffering from emphysema, asthma and severe heart disease are the ones who may die from smog, Dr. Stanley said, because their already poor respiratory systems are overtaxed by airborne pollutants.

Smog is not a problem in the Lansing area, according to Charles H. Pesterfield, professor of mechanical engineering and air pollution engineer for the city of Lansing.

But large cities must battle smog daily. New York Mayor Robert Wagner recently noted that the average New Yorker inhales the equivalent of two packs of cigarettes a day—even if he doesn't smoke.

Mounting evidence seems to indicate that apparently harmless levels of smog are not so harmless.

Citizens of Collinsville, Ill., were rudely awakened to another aspect of smog a few years ago when they got out of bed to find that the paint on 300 houses had turned black overnight.

Pollution from a boxboard plant

33 miles away had drifted unnoticed to Collinsville and reacted with house paint to turn it black.

Air pollution to property costs Americans an estimated $7.5 billion a year, according to a national science publication.

At this rate, each person pays about $40 a year for the privilege of putting up with airborne soot, ashes, acids, salts and gases.

Take food, for example. The 1939 estimate of smog damage to crops in southern California was $500,000.

But the 1959 estimate of damage was $8 million, a 1,600 per cent increase in just 20 years.

Nylon hosiery, leather book cover, car tires, steel rails, limestone buildings, even the clothes you wear may be damaged by smog.

For example, women walking down the streets of Jacksonville, Fla., noticed spontaneous runs in their nylon hose. The suspected cause was sulfuric acid formed when pollutants in auto exhaust gases combined with moisture in the air.

COMPLAINANTS?—Sunbathing feds, shown here taking advantage of morning sun, are complaining that sun-bathing regulations prevent them from partaking of el sol's brilliant rays.

'Enclosed Area' Regulation

Coeds Hit Sun Fun Ruling

Complaints recently have been lodged by irate co-eds that sun-bathing regulations prevent them from partaking of el sol's brilliant rays.

As soon as spring filled the air and pale co-eds flocked to the lawns, a statement was issued by Laurine Fitzgerald, assistant dean of students, enumerating the new sun-bathing regulations and urging that the respective dorm councils implement the rules as soon as possible.

Sun-bathing regulations are as follows:

1. Sun-bathing areas must be enclosed from public view.

2. Only women will be permitted to use sunning areas.

3. Women are expected to use good taste in selecting sun-bathing attire.

It seems that some dormitories have no "enclosed" areas for sunbathing purposes.

"Girls from Case-Wilson and Wonders halls have to walk to the soccer field which is at least a block and a half away from the dorms," one co-ed reported.

This seems like a silly thing to have to do, opined another, because guys can sun-bathe there too, which defeats one of the rules.

"The individual dormitories designate where their sun-bathing areas will be," Miss Fitzgerald said. "There is no rule to the effect that men and women may not sun-bathe together. It depends on the facilities of the respective residence."

For example, the Brody group is so landscaped that both men and women may sun-bathe on the lawns within the group and obey every regulation. In addition, every dorm has two private sun decks on each floor above the first. Other dormitories are not so fortunate.

Landon and Yakeley dormitories provide one sun porch for each dorm, but about 300 girls must share each one. In addition, it seems the sun decks are painted with a red substance that comes off on the girls' suits and blankets. Due to their location, this is the only area which is "enclosed from public view."

Green Speaks On Integration At NY Meet

Robert L. Green, assistant professor of education, will speak during a symposium on school integration at the Yeshiva University graduate school of education in New York City today.

The meeting is the third annual Invitational Conference on Urban Education.

Green will discuss "Problems in Social Learning." He is currently doing research on the effects of the 1959 public school closing in Prince Edward County, Va. His study centers around the county's Negro children who were unable to attend public schools until last fall.

Theme of the Yeshiva symposium is "After School Integration—What?" It is sponsored by the National Urban League and the National Scholarship Service Fund for Negro Students.

a surrender to God

there's a kind of surrender that's victory. It opens the door to a new way of life. It's a way of healing. You're invited to a one hour public lecture on this subject by Paul A. Erickson of the Christian Science Board of Lectureship. Title: "The Way to Hope and Freedom." Everyone is welcome to come and listen.

Group Sets Prayer Breakfast

The director of International Campus Crusades for Christ will attend a breakfast with about 50 student leaders at 7 a.m. Thursday in the Kellogg Center Red Cedar Room.

William Bright will have breakfast with the students as part of a pilot plan to introduce University-sponsored breakfasts modeled after presidential and gubernatorial prayer breakfasts.

The meeting is sponsored by student representatives of residence halls, fraternities and sororities, class governments and athletics.

Bright was the founder of Campus Crusades 12 years ago at the University of California at Los Angeles campus. He is listed in Who's Who in American Colleges.

The goal of the organization is to have a chapter on every college campus in the nation. It is also represented in foreign countries.

Drury On Bridge

A very interesting hand was dealt at the University Duplicate Bridge Club last week. It illustrates two important points:

1. Distribution is a very valuable factor, which can nullify honor points, and which even makes a double with 17 points a risky proposition at times; and
2. Partners should trust their own communications in spite of opposing bids.

Neither side was vulnerable and North was dealer. Take a look at the hands first, see how you would bid and play them.

South opened with a classic 1 NT, holding 17 honor points and all suits stopped. West, with a void and 14 honor points, sees possibilities and wants his partner's best suit. North, of course, can do nothing but pass. East mentions his clubs, West tries diamonds, but when East announces he has at least four hearts, West very properly goes to game.

South led his king of clubs "to take a look at Dummy." Actually, if he had been clairvoyant, he would have played his ace of hearts, followed by the 6, in order to cut down the bidders' ruffing possibilities.

The Club king is ruffed. The Club king is ruffed by West, who leads the 7 of spades to East's king. South's double places him almost certainly with the diamond king, so bidder plays dummy's 4, finesses the jack;

South's double places him almost certainly with the diamond king, so bidder plays dummy's 4, finesses the jack; leads the diamond ace, on which he throws off a spade; leads the spade ace, on which he tosses dummy's last spade; then leads the spade 8, which he ruffs in dummy.

Another club is ruffed in West, a diamond is ruffed in East, and another club is ruffed in West. The bidder makes five hearts, for an overtrick and top board score on the hand.

If South had played the trump ace to start, West would have been held to 10 tricks, but couldn't have been set. The East-West pair, disregarding South's obvious honor strength, scored by trusting their own bidding accuracy. South had a normal double, but was sitting on bidder's right, a spot which usually suggests caution in doubling. There are 40 honor points, it is true, but distribution points are exceedingly important, as this hand shows.

Wife In College To Cut Boredom

Why go to college? Mrs. Joann Witteried, an honors college sophomore who is the wife of an instructor and mother of six, is going to school to "relieve the boredom."

"Before I was in school I was bored. I just couldn't wait for my husband to get home so we could do something, like go to a movie.

Mrs. Witteried is a math education major who plans to teach on the secondary level.

"I hire a baby-sitter for the time I spend in classes and I study while the kids are asleep," she said.

While she was talking her youngest daughter was bouncing up and down on the sofa, one of her children was playing with a broken toy, and her husband wandered in with the plans for a soap-box racer he was building.

The Witterieds have three boys and three girls, age one through 12.

It takes a lot of scheduling for a wife and mother to try to go to college, and I try to stay pretty close to my schedule," she said. "Friday night is family night, and that holds top priority on my schedule."

Mrs. Witteried said they enjoy the university theatrical productions but are often unable to attend these and many other campus activities.

"But I'm not bored, boredom's not on the schedule," she said.

Interviewing Ends Friday

Official interviewing at the Placement Bureau ends Friday.

However, John D. Shingleton, director of the Placement Bureau, said a few companies will be interviewing on a request basis until the end of the term.

"There will be a few employers coming in who are looking for students in specialized jobs," Shingleton said the past term has been a "very heavy one" for interviews.

The Placement Bureau does not have a mass interviewing program summer term. However, some companies interview during the summer on a request basis.

A Serious Injury

By DUANE LANCASTER
State News Sports Writer

Three months ago, when Michigan State's baseball team came back to East Lansing after a successful spring training tour, optimism ran high and a Big Ten crown for the Spartans was in the realm of reality.

Much of the pre-season optimism was based on the senior double play combination of shortstop Mal Chiljean and second baseman Dennis Ketcham.

The pair had played together for two years. Both had good sophomore and junior years and there were many reasons to believe the duo would be the key to a pennant in '64.

But injuries, a coach's worst fear, not only broke up the steady duo, but had much to do in ending pennant talk among Spartan rooters.

Chiljean bruised his hand early in the season and has had trouble hitting all year, while Ketcham was injured two weeks ago and hasn't played since.

The peppery second baseman was upended on an attempted double play in the game against Purdue and Coach Danny Litwhiler feels Ketcham will not play another college ball game. "I doubt very much that he'll be back," said Litwhiler.

It was thought after the accident that Ketcham had strained some knee ligaments and would be lost for at least three weeks, but would be back before the end of the season.

But Ketcham failed to respond to treatment and it is now feared that the ligaments might be torn, which would end his college career.

It is not merely chance that the Spartans lost six straight with Ketcham out. Their 3-2 win over Michigan Monday was the first since Ketcham was injured.

Litwhiler said Ketcham's replacements: Steve Juday, a sophomore who is more at home around third base and first year man Jerry Walker have handled second base adequately, but have not been able to maintain the consistency of Ketcham's hitting.

"It's hard to replace a man who has played three years with two inexperienced sophomores," said Litwhiler. "Juday and Walker are good defensively, but are not as consistent hitters as Ketcham was."

"It takes a great sophomore to replace an experienced senior," he added.

Women's IM Track Thursday

The Women's Intramural Track and Field meet will get under way next Thursday at the Ralph Young Track.

Girls will be limited to two events this year and may sign up in the Women's Intramural Office between 9 a.m. and 9 p.m. today, 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. Saturday and 8:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. Sunday. The office will accept entries until 9 p.m. Monday.

Two girls dominated the events last year, when the participation was unlimited. Barbara Lockhart, Kappa Alpha Theta, and Lynne Scudder, Alpha Omicron Pi, won four events apiece. Miss Scudder won the running broad jump (14' 10 1/2"), high jump (4' 2"), 50-yd. dash (7.3 sec.) and the 60-yd. low hurdles (8.8 sec.).

Miss Lockhart won the standing broad jump with a leap of 7' 5", the softball throw with a toss of 205' 10", 100-yd. dash in 12.7 sec. and the 75-yd. dash in 9.6 sec.

The field events will be held from 5:30 p.m. until 6 p.m. and the track events will begin at 6 p.m.

Crew Regatta Saturday

The MSU crew club will be the host for the first annual Michigan State Rowing Club Invitational Regatta Saturday on Lake Lansing.

Joining the State crew will be four to six other teams. Ecorse, Wyandotte and Detroit Boat Clubs will be represented, along with at least one other club.

The regatta will get underway at 9 a.m. and continue into the afternoon, with a break scheduled to permit spectators to see the "Junior 500."

Each crew will compete twice, with finals slated for late afternoon. The 1700-meter course will be marked with buoys and patrolled by county sheriff boats.

Trophies are to be awarded for first, second and third place finishers in both the varsity and freshman crew competition.

The State crew, with only one win to its credit, finished second to Purdue last Saturday in a six-team race at Lafayette. The Boilermakers turned the 2000-meter course in 6:26, with State posting a 6:39.

Minnesota, Kansas State, Western Ontario University and St. Thomas also took part in the regatta.

The improving Spartan freshmen also finished second. The frosh were only 20 seconds behind Purdue's winning 6:40 clocking. State's time was the best for the Green and White freshmen crew this year.

Thursday the frosh crew will race the junior varsity at 5:30 p.m. on Lake Lansing, in what crew club members hope will be the first of an annual event.

Where's Wayne

Wayne State's crew team is scheduled to take part in the MSU Invitational Saturday, but the Tartars may not show up.

According to the Wayne university relations office, the crew will be several hundred miles from East Lansing on Saturday.

The Tartar sports service reports the Wayne rowers will be facing Wisconsin, in Madison, Saturday trying to upset the Badgers for the second year in a row.

Trackmen Look Back To 1963

If the 1963 Big Ten Championship outdoor track meet was held this weekend State would win.

Unfortunately the 1964 league championships are scheduled for Friday and Saturday and State won't win.

On the basis of point-producing returns, the Spartans and Illinois are the leaders. MSU scored 31 points in the 1963 meet and 24 of those points were made by returning runners.

But on the basis of top performances this year--and that's what counts--the Green and White seem doomed to a sixth place finish. In 1963 they finished fourth.

The returning point-getters are Bob Moreland, Dick Mather, Jan Bowen, Mike Kaines and Walker Beverly. Two other 1963 scorers will not be returning, although they are still in school. John Parker, who finished third in 440-yard dash, is out with an injury and third place high jumper Bill Berry has not competed this year.

Bowen won the mile run last year for State's only blue ribbon, but his winning 4:14.3 time has been beaten by four league runners this season.

Moreland, who is regaining his form after injuring his leg, was second in the 100- and 220-yard dashes in 1963. Big Ten champion Nate Adams, of Purdue, won't be running this year because of an injury, but Illinois speedster Trenton Jackson has faster times than Moreland in both events.

Mather and Kaines both picked up fourth place medals last season. Mather, who runs the 660 has a good chance to give State some points, but Kaines, on the basis of comparative times, may become an also-ran in the mile.

The last returnee, Beverly, finished fifth in the 220 last year and might move up a notch or two this season. The tall sprinter also was a member of the Spartan mile relay squad, which finished fourth. But two of the four relay team runners are missing and Wisconsin, Michigan, Iowa and Illinois all have better times than State.

Coach Fran Dittrich hopes that some of the newcomers and improved veterans can add points for the Spartans. He thinks half-miler Mike Martens and two-milers Eric Zemper and Dick Sharkey may be the men to do it.

Dittrich also will send Ayo Azikiwe into the intermediate hurdles, Ron Horning and Joe Barnett in the 660, and Bob Fulcher and Tony Hunt in the 880.

Jim Garrett, in the broad jump, and high hurdler Fred McKay also could be big Spartan surprises.

'S' Golfers Drop One To Wolves

The Michigan State golf team lost a close decision to Michigan Monday, 711-706.

Both teams used nine-man squads, as opposed to the normal six-man teams. On the basis of six men, State would have topped the Wolves, 459-456.

Top man for the Spartans was Dick Marr who shot a 74 for the 18 hole match, Phil Marston, Shep Richard and Ken Benson followed with scores of 80, 86 and 89.

Coach John Brotzmann feels that the team is definitely looking better and with just a little more effort it could make a very strong showing in the championship meet. The top six men averaged 76 Monday and if they could improve somewhat on this, State will be in good position to make things rough for the other schools.

Purdue and Indiana stack up as the best of the Big Ten, with Michigan and Northwestern close behind. Nothing is certain, however, especially in a tournament of this type, according to Brotzmann.

Intramural News

Mark Petrie (79) and Roger Hill (82) walked off with low team score of the day, as well as the fraternity title. They had a combined score of 320. ZBT finished 19 strokes behind for second and Delta Chi with the aid of the Tournament Medalist, Bob Wood (76), finished third at 348.

Emmons Hall won the residence hall title with a 357 total. Bob Hallam (90), John Zuball (90), Don Humphrey (83) and Joe Dupree (94) gave Emmons the crown over defending champion Case Hall, who finished third with 365. Bailey took second place in the residence hall competition with a 364.

Evans Scholars recaptured the independent crown with John Buchheister (84), Rich Michalak (86), Jim Capistrant (83) and Gary Thompson (81) for the second low team score of the day 334. Chemical Engineering took second place with a 343 nine strokes off the pace.

All Individual Golf Tournament entries are due in the Intramural Office at noon tomorrow. Each entry must be accompanied with a Green Fee of Two dollars. Tournament will be 36-Hole Medal play.

Agent Charged With Selling Secrets

CHICAGO (AP)—A Secret Service agent was charged Tuesday with offering to sell a government investigative report to a defendant in a counterfeiting trial—in what officials called the first such case in the history of the Secret Service. U.S. Atty. Edward V. Hanrahan said the arrest of Abraham Bolden, 29, of Chicago late Monday night was to his knowledge the first "taint against the Secret Service—the entire Secret Service. The complaint also stated that when called by Spagnoli, the government document to Spagnoli, the government complaint said, Jones gave him the unlisted telephone number of his wife so that he could be reached to complete the sale. The complaint also stated that when called by Spagnoli, the phone at the unlisted number was answered by a woman who accepted the message. Hanrahan said that Jones and his wife admitted their part in the plot. Bolden denied the accusations, and was immediately relieved of duty.

Canadian PM Asks Change For Harmony

OTTAWA, (AP)—Prime Minister Lester B. Pearson staked the life of his Liberal government Tuesday on an emotion-charged plan to put aside Canada's battle-honored red ensign in favor of a new maple leaf national flag. He said he thought too that the current session of Parliament should decide also to replace "God save the Queen" with "O Canada" as the popular anthem. The monarchy and the old flag with its British design in one corner are unpopular in French-oriented Quebec. Pearson, contending that a new flag will help bring harmony among Canada's diverse British, French and other ethnic groups, told reporters after a cabinet meeting that the specific design to be placed before Parliament will be chosen Thursday. He then went to the House of Commons and made it official that his minority government intends to stand or fall on a maple leaf flag. He was applauded by most Liberals and booed by opposition leader John Diefenbaker's Conservatives.

Seminar To Study Kerouac's Work

Jack Kerouac and the Fiction of the 1950's will be the subject of the American Studies Seminar at 8 tonight in 34 Union. Gary Great and Frederick Feied, instructors in American thought and language, will discuss Kerouac's works and their relation to the beat protest. It is open to the public.

til the 1850's when some West Africans (and perhaps this was with the help of Arabs and/or Europeans) developed the first written language. There have, however, been reports of a written native African language as early as 1450, but this was not purely native, for it used Arabic symbols. Even Arnold Toynbee, noted anthropological historian, cannot explain the Negroes' lack of internal development in Africa other than by saying "their failure to develop is an accident of history."

So the reason for the Negro inferiority complex might possibly be that they are inferior. And I repeat whether they are or are not, whether I am right or wrong, all of us have a right to dislike, or even strongly dislike another human being, group or thing.

merit pay system. I am not sure that a total step scale would be the best way of determining salaries. Perhaps a step scale specifying minimum salaries would be better. Charles W. Cumberland, professor of history, thinks that it might be possible to work out a combination of merit pay and step scales. "I certainly see great advantages and real worth in the merit pay system," he said. "I agree with President Hannah that it provides a strong incentive for professional growth. "However, there are a few inequities which some type of a combination with a step scale might be valuable in eliminating."

Incidents Reveal Impersonality

Profs Question Morals

By TED BEHNE State News Staff Writer

A few weeks ago, in a quiet residential neighborhood of New York, 38 people watched a killer stalk a defenseless woman. It took him half an hour—and three separate attacks—to complete the brutal business of stabbing her to death. During that time, any one of the onlookers might have saved her life simply by picking up the telephone and calling the police. Last month nearly 3,000 people gathered in the streets around the DeWitt Clinton Hotel in Albany, N.Y., to watch an emotionally unbalanced 19-year-old boy pace back and forth on a narrow ledge on the 11th floor. "Go ahead and jump," someone yelled. "Don't be chicken, jump," shouted someone else. A fireman shook his head in disbelief and said, "They really wanted to see him die, I just can't believe it."

HAROLD T. WALSH

Recently an 18-year-old secretary was assaulted and raped in a New York office building while she screamed in vain for help from 40 onlookers. A passing patrolman discovered the incident by accident when he noticed a crowd of about 20 people gathered around the door of the building and heard the girl's screams. Inside, 20 more people were watching the struggle from a second floor landing.

What do these episodes reveal about the mental and moral health of our society? Are they merely three unrelated incidents that "just happened" or are they warning signs of moral deterioration in America? Answers to these questions were sought recently from four Michigan State professors.

FR. R. E. KAVANAUGH

Alfred G. Dietze, professor of psychology, said the three incidents demonstrate the "dehumanizing effects of life in an urban society where relationships tend to become increasingly impersonal." "There is a fear of getting involved. People who live in large cities are less inclined to take an interest in the affairs of a stranger," Dietze said.

Wolf D. Fuhrig, instructor in social science, said there are primarily two kinds of people involved in these incidents — those who "sit by and let it happen" and those who want a "grizzly thrill." "Those who sit by and let it happen, like those who watched the rape and the killing, are demonstrating a total lack of appreciation for another person's life and welfare, but those who encourage a boy to commit suicide to provide them with a grizzly thrill are just plain sickening."

Father R. E. Kavanough, pastor of the Roman Catholic student center in East Lansing and religion instructor at MSU, said the great moral problem of our times is "the transference of moral responsibility from the individual to the group." "Only a few people feel morally responsible. If that boy would have jumped, no individual in the crowd that encouraged him would have felt responsible. It would have been the police or fire department's fault."

Harold T. Walsh, associate professor of philosophy, said he felt the incidents have "profound moral implications, but just what those implications are is not clear."

Visiting Profs To Talk About Latin America

Two distinguished visiting lecturers will participate in a Latin American Studies Center symposium at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Kellogg Center Auditorium. The symposium will deal with "Urbanization in Latin America--The Rural Setting."

John P. Gillin, professor of anthropology and sociology at the University of Pittsburgh, will speak on "Types of Latin American Country Folk." Stefan H. Robock, director and professor of international business studies at Indiana University, will discuss "The Rural Push for Urbanization in Latin America: The Case for Northeastern Brazil."

A former government economist, Robock most recently served as deputy director of the area development division of the committee for economic development. He led the U.S. planning survey team to Liberia in 1960 and he served as chief of the United Nations advisory to Bolivia last summer. Gillin began his Latin American studies in the 1930's. He has since headed field expeditions to British Guiana, Ecuador, Peru, Argentina, Guatemala, and Colombia.

Charles Cumberland professor of history and Garland P. Wood, professor of agricultural economics, will also participate in the program. Cumberland is also director of the Humanities Research Center; Wood directs the Latin American Studies Center. The symposium is open to the public.

Raisin In Sun To Be Given

Name Hall To Latin Program

Carl W. Hall, director of the American Society of Agricultural Engineers, and chairman-elect of the Department of Agricultural Engineering has just been commissioned to a long range program by the United Nations to coordinate the development and strengthen the training and research in agricultural engineering in Latin America. Hall will leave MSU for portions of May and June to make an intensive study tour of nine educational centers in Costa Rica, Columbia, Venezuela, Peru, Uruguay, Brazil and Argentina.

This U.S. program will require Hall to make an on-site inspection of program improvements at least once a year. Hall feels his major challenge on this assignment is the establishment of one key Latin American training center rather than improving each of the nine centers at which he will consult.

His previous experience as a consultant to Puerto Rican, Colombian and Indian governments plus U.S. Correspondent for the International Congress of Agricultural Engineering, will enable him on this preliminary study tour to analyze programs and propose suggestions which will increase the countries potential.

This preliminary tour is part of a five-year long-range program to improve agricultural education and research in Latin America. Stephen J. Gold, Brooklyn, N.Y., junior, received severe lacerations and a possible fracture to his leg in a diving accident Tuesday.

Police reported that Gold slipped while diving from the low board at the IM swimming pool. Gold was admitted to Olin Health Center for treatment and observation.

of Congress to take away citizenship."

Krislov suggested that the most "plausible" result is that Congress will pass a law to determine whether naturalized or native-born citizens can live overseas for a certain number of years and still retain U.S. citizenship.

"If Congress made a more balanced law with machinery for exceptions to general rules," he said, "we would have less trouble."

He also pointed out that there is no "very sensible" procedure for notifying the individual before he loses his citizenship.

In certain cases, for example when a citizen is serving in the army of a foreign country, Krislov finds renunciation of citizenship "understandable."

"But for those cases involving persons who live abroad a number of years, it is a tough question."

are going on here or which have developed new products and methods now being used commercially.

He said that in food science, "scientific principles are brought to bear on problems of food processing as they relate to the quality attributes of food products." These attributes include flavor, color, nutritive value and wholesomeness, and are the qualities that make foods desirable both as consumer products and as practical health-builders.

The three types of grants available are the U.S. government full grant, joint U.S.-other government grant and the U.S. government travel-only grant.

The full grant provides total tuition, maintenance and round-trip transportation to one of the 38 participating countries. The joint grant provides full tuition and full or partial maintenance from the foreign government plus travel from the U.S. These grants will be available in 18 countries.

Travel-only grants will supplement maintenance and tuition scholarships granted to Ameri-

Program Set To Revive Old Comedy

Popular comedy of the early days of radio will be brought back to life by the TV-radio department at 8 tonight in Union Parlor C.

The program will present excerpts from the famous comedy routines of Amos and Andy, Lum and Abner, Fibber McGee and Molly, Fred Allen, Eddie Cantor and Will Rogers.

Arthur Weld, associate professor of TV-radio, will narrate the program.

"Some of the best known and best-loved people of the time from 1920 to 1950 were radio personalities," he said.

"The Great Days of Radio Comedy" is the final program in the Radio Encore series sponsored by the TV-radio department. Other programs were Orson Welles' "War of the Worlds," excerpts from World War II coverage, and "The Investigator," a satire on the late Sen. Joseph McCarthy of Wisconsin.

Test Tube Babies Seen By Year 2000

WASHINGTON (AP)—Development of human babies in laboratory cultures—in effect, test-tube babies—may be possible by the year 2000, a Johns Hopkins geneticist said Tuesday.

Dr. H. Bentley Glass, a biology professor, made this prediction in forecasting revolutionary advances in biology by the turn of the century.

In remarks prepared for a Curley science series lecture at Georgetown University, Glass, who also is a key committee chairman of the American Institute of Biological Sciences, said, "We may learn how to create simple forms of living organisms, something as complex, perhaps, as a virus....(and we) . . . may even discover how to cultivate the reproductive cells of man and animals, to produce normal embryos, and to raise them to term, either in artificial cultures or in foster mothers.... and, in the process, (we) may find how to modify defective genes or replace them with sound ones...."

Glass also predicted:

1. The dawn of a whole new era in medicine—for example, "the marriage of biochemistry and genetics will continue to flourish...."

2. Infectious diseases will "probably be banished forever...." Researchers will "probably learn not only how to extend man's life but how to maintain its vigor in old age...."

4. Science is almost certain to solve the problems of photosynthesis—the process by which nature produces food in plants—thereby assuring the artificial production of "an inexhaustible supply of food...."

Person's Self-Concept Determines Behavior

The nature of a person's behavior is determined primarily by what he thinks about himself, and not so much by his background.

This is the feeling of a Detroit consulting psychologist who spoke last week at a cooperative nurseries conference.

"We have just passed through a generation in which we believed that behavior was almost entirely a result of the past," said Dr. J. Clayton Lafferty.

"We are discovering, however, that whether a person is well-adjusted or maladjusted is very largely a question of the kind of self-concept he possesses.

"The self-concept almost seems to act like a quota, establishing what the individual can and will be.

"Well-adjusted people are those who see themselves as liked, wanted, acceptable and able, while maladjusted people are almost always those who see themselves as unliked, unwanted, unacceptable, unable and unworthy."

Dr. Lafferty said the understanding that behavior can be dealt with in the present has opened vast new doors in the fields of counseling, psychotherapy and social work, as well as education.

"It is of the utmost importance that we develop people in our society who see themselves in positive ways," he declared.

"Parents, thus, are architects of the self-concept, and it is up to us to help our society produce people who feel about themselves that they are adequate, well-adjusted, effective human personalities."
