

Herbert Hoover, 90, Dies After Long Illness

NEW YORK, (AP)—Herbert Clark Hoover, the 31st president of the United States, died Tuesday at the age of 90, his magnificent old heart finally overwhelmed by the demands of a body enfeebled by long illness.

The end came quietly at 11:35 a.m. in Hoover's Waldorf-Astoria Tower suite high above Manhattan, on a bleak, gray autumn day. He was in a deep coma—a merciful sleep that shielded him from any final agony. A massive internal hemorrhage occurring last Saturday began his final illness.

With his passing, a nation mourned a man who won its respect and admiration anew after having been turned out of the White House in 1932 by an electorate that blamed him for America's great depression.

Only one other president in this century was refused re-election by the voters. He was William Howard Taft, a Republican like Hoover, who was defeated in 1912 after a single term in office.

President Johnson proclaimed a 30-day period of mourning, ordering flags on all government buildings flown at half staff. From the White House the Democratic chief executive said of Hoover:

"We have lost a wise American, and the world has lost a humanitarian citizen of all mankind. His steadfast leadership served us undaunted through the good times and bad—as businessman, provider for the poor and hungry, president and elder statesman...

"He lived a full and useful life, and we are all deeply in his debt."

"We shall miss his thoughtful counsel and kindly spirit. But his unquenchable sense of public responsibility for both our nation and a troubled world stands as an example that will endure."

Barry Goldwater, the Republican candidate for president, also in Washington, said:

"Herbert Hoover was a great human being. He was a whole man."

Hoover's body will lie in state for two days at St. Bartholomew's Episcopal Church on Park Avenue. Then it will be taken to Washington for a service in the rotunda of the national Capitol, where another president, the assassinated John F. Kennedy, received funeral honors only 11 months ago.

Burial will be in a national park on the site of a small cottage where Hoover was born in West Branch, Iowa, in 1874—destined to become the first American president from west of the Mississippi River.

Hoover's wife, Lou Henry, died 20 years ago in their Waldorf-Astoria suite, and she was buried in California. However, with the death of her husband, her body will be brought to West Branch to rest beside his.

With Hoover when he died were his two sons, Herbert Jr. and Allan Henry Hoover.

His life had spanned 90 years and two months. Only one other president lived longer. He was John Adams, the nation's second chief executive, who was 90 years and 8 months old when he died.

Son of a small-town blacksmith, Hoover was orphaned at 10 and in this boyhood knew poverty. He worked his way through college, became a top-flight engineer and, at the age of 28, a wealthy man.

He first gained public acclaim as organizer of mass relief for starving Europe during World War I. Hoover entered politics as secretary of commerce under Republican Presidents Warren G. Harding and Calvin Coolidge.

In 1928, Hoover defeated Democrat Al Smith for the presidency. It was a bitter campaign in which the nation held Smith's Roman Catholic religion against him. Hoover was a Quaker.

Coed Reports Alleged Assault

Michigan State Police detectives are seeking two area factory workers today in connection with the alleged rape late Monday of a Rather Hall coed near Okemos.

The 18-year-old freshman told police she was walking to her dormitory about 9 p.m. when stopped by two men in an automobile.

bile near the Beal Street entrance.

Police said she entered their car after talking with them about campus events. While the trio drove through parts of Lansing before turning toward Okemos, the driver and his passenger reportedly told her they had been drinking all that day.

The car passed Okemos High School and then turned onto a dirt road nearby, she said.

Later after stopping the car, the driver made advances to her, she told police.

She tried to get out of the car, but the men said they would kill her if she did not submit to their advances, police said. After the assault, she was returned to Rather Hall about 11:30 p.m.

She reported the incident to her resident adviser, who phoned police. The MSU student was taken to Olin Memorial Health Center where a physician established that sexual intercourse had occurred.

The coed gave police a description of the suspects and said she could identify them if she saw them again. However, she was unable to tell police where the assault occurred, but described a sign which police believe indicated it happened near Dobie Lake.

She said she was returned to campus via Mt. Hope and Harrison Roads.

Scientist Requests Dual Effort

Solving the moral and physical imperfections of today's technological advances requires concentrated effort by both scientists and humanists, a distinguished atomic physicist said Monday in the Music Auditorium.

Alvin M. Weinberg, director of the Atomic Energy Commission's Oak Ridge, Tenn., laboratory, noted that this generation faces two dilemmas: the possibility of population exceeding existing resources and the limited human capacity to absorb the growing complexity of society.

But Weinberg expressed optimism that modern technology, which has helped create the dilemmas, will be able to overcome them.

The noted nuclear scientist was on the MSU campus to deliver a Monday evening address sponsored by the University's Humanities Research Center.

Weinberg listed radioactive fallout, air and water pollution and misuse of pesticides as some of the physical imperfections of modern technology.

Scientific research and the scientist's recognition of moral responsibility, he added, will help overcome these problems.

A second deep imperfection, he noted, is a general "taint of boredom," with too many persons having "too much time on their hands."

Council Suggests Ramp

Cars Crowd City Lots

Chamber of Commerce representatives criticized city inactivity in seeking answers to problems created by the increased student use of East Lansing parking lots at Monday night's East Lansing City Council meeting.

Councilmen were told by Chamber President Joseph Mukalla that immediate action should be taken to solve present conditions in the downtown area. The new campus driving ban has resulted in many students using city lots for parking.

It was suggested by Mukalla that a parking consultant be retained to consider the feasibility of a ramp in the downtown section.

He also suggested increasing parking lot personnel and providing extra exits as a stop gap measure.

Mayor Gordon L. Thomas said the student parking problem was serious the week of registration but has lessened since then.

"I feel there is lots of parking downtown now," said Thomas. "It's unfair to say we have no plans," he said, "but you can't expect us to go out and buy land for parking willy-nilly before we know where we are going."

Fee Hall Honors Dragon

There's a dragon on the loose in Fee Hall.

In what seems to be a never-ending search for names beginning with "Fe" with which to tag the different precincts in West Fee, a group from the first floor decided to name their precinct the House of Fenrir. Fenrir was a "world encompassing dragon, who, according to Norse mythology, killed Odin, the chief of the Norse gods," Kenneth Lane, River Rouge freshman and publicity manager of Fenrir said.

In payment for killing Odin, Fenrir was slain by Loki, another of the gods, Lane said. After his death, Fenrir became a legend.

"Even though we live in Fee, this isn't the last time you'll hear of Fenrir," Lane said.

$20 Million Sought

Ad. Building Given Priority

By LINDA MILLER
Administration Writer

A $5.4 million administration building scheduled to open fall term, 1966, has top priority on Michigan State's budget request for over $20 million in appropriations for campus construction projects.

The budget priority list, in the form of a five-year building program, will go before the legislature in January.

MSU is asking for $2 million this year to start construction on its most important building of the future, the administration offices to be built on the Red Cedar River behind the Center for International Programs.

University Secretary Jack Breslin hopes bids will open in May and construction begin in June, 1965.

"Top administrators are now strung all over campus," Breslin said, expressing a "sore need" for such a building.

Less than half of the treasurer's offices are housed in the present administration building where the problem of collecting fees and ID's gets worse every year, he said.

The new building will contain offices for the president, his assistant, the vice presidents except for student affairs, secretary, registrar, comptroller, provost and other persons in key administrative positions.

Breslin said the present administration building would be

Romney Wins State Contest

By JO BUMBARGER
State News Staff Writer

President Lyndon B. Johnson and Gov. George Romney defeated their opponents in a mock election here Tuesday by margins of almost 3 to 1 and 6 to 1, respectively.

The final totals were Johnson, 6,610 and Sen. Barry Goldwater, 2,822; and Romney, 6,824, over Neil Staeble, 1,299.

In an unusually heavy turnout, 9,484 votes were cast in the presidential balloting. A number of out-of-state students preferred not to mark their choice in the gubernatorial race.

The gubernatorial race was included here because of high interest in the contest, according to Dick Sawdey, Union Board president and Battle Creek senator.

There were 52 write-in votes.

Alpha Phi Omega, men's service honorary, helped Union Board and AUSG in counting the ballots.

Results were telephoned into the Daily Illini office Tuesday night, but complete Big Ten results were unavailable until this morning.

Due to an oversight, there was no ballot box in the Emmons Hall dinner line and residents were requested to vote in Berkeley or the Union.

In a similar Big Ten mock election in 1960, participated in by all schools except MSU and Purdue, 36,435 students voted and Nixon defeated Kennedy 20,034 to 15,058.

Military Keeps Reins In New Saigon Rule

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Military men will keep a powerful hand in the government of South Viet Nam under a provisional constitution released Monday as a step toward civilian rule.

The constitution, drafted by the 17-man High National Council, sets up a security council including high brass with broad authority to handle military affairs of this Communist-menaced nation.

The authority ranges from the right to establish martial law to power to "proclaim cease-fires or negotiate in the war situation."

The security council's structure is a compromise between pressure for a strictly civilian regime and demands of Maj. Gen. Nguyen Khanh, the caretaker premier, for an independent military establishment.

The document said the chairman will be the chief of state, with the premier as deputy chairman. The others will be the armed forces minister and the chief of staff. Two of the four members will be military men and possibly three if the present chief of state, Maj. Gen. Duong Van Minh, is reappointed in the new civilian regime.

Informed sources said Khanh, who apparently will step down from the premiership as scheduled before his Oct. 27 deadline,

Goldwater Charges LBJ With Insane Policy, Mistake

PIKESVILLE, Md. (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater, saying Soviet and Chinese Communists now are exchanging cordial messages, accused the Democratic administration last night of an "insane policy of strengthening an enemy who has vowed to bury us."

"We hear the explosion of an atomic device in Communist China—and we do not know how much the Soviets had to do with it," the Republican presidential candidate said.

In remarks prepared for a rally in this suburb of Baltimore, he added:

"Where is the disunity of the Communist world? "What has happened to the split between the Chinese and the Soviets? Where is the benefit of the so-called test ban treaty?"

Goldwater accused President Johnson of what he called the "fatal mistake" of believing that Nikita Khrushchev, the fallen Soviet premier, was "a good Communist" and a friend to this country.

"We bailed our Communist enemy out of a serious economic crisis with that whole deal and with other aid," Goldwater said.

"It was hard enough to count on personal diplomacy to solve the problems of a clash of systems. But worst of all was the insane policy of strengthening an enemy who has vowed to bury us. . . we must now confront the possibility of an enemy reunited and strengthened by our own policy of aid."

Goldwater hit again and again at administration foreign policy, terming the conflict in Viet Nam "Lyndon Johnson's war" and declaring that "even the Central Intelligence Agency reports that our prestige has dipped below the peril point."

Campaign aides said they are still trying to purchase network television time, probably today, for a major foreign policy speech.

EDITORIALS

Barry Deserves Equal Time

President Lyndon B. Johnson, who is also running for president, addressed the nation on television Sunday night on the implications of Nikita Khrushchev's resignation and Red China's explosion of a nuclear bomb.

Republican presidential candidate Barry Goldwater requested equal time from all three networks for the following night. The request was refused.

As president, Johnson had a perfect right and duty to speak to the nation on the recent international crises which have stunned the world. However, it cannot be denied that Johnson, the candidate, gained political advantage from the strategically timed TV address.

Therefore, the three major television networks should in all fairness have granted equal time to Sen. Goldwater.

There is precedent for such action. In 1956, President Dwight D. Eisenhower addressed the nation on the Suez crisis while he was running for re-election. The Federal Communications Commission ruled that the networks did not have to grant Democratic candidate Adlai E. Stevenson equal time. However, the networks decided to give Stevenson equal time despite the FCC ruling.

We wonder if the networks' different attitude toward the candidates may have made a difference in their decision this election year.

News Strikes Must End

The grave problems which a major newspaper strike poses for a large city suggest that the government should take strong action when the presses stop rolling.

Detroit television and radio newsmen outlined some of the problems of the city's three-month-old newspaper strike for the Central Michigan Chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

They pointed out that Detroit's election coverage is the poorest in years. TV and radio are doing their best, but they simply do not have time to present the extensive political analyses found in newspapers.

In addition to the lack of information resulting from extended newspaper strikes, wild rumors have a tendency to sweep the cities.

In Detroit, completely unfounded rumors were circulated that a Negro boy had been mutilated by a white gang, and vice versa.

Gov. Romney has already met twice in Lansing with union leaders and newspaper publishers in attempts to settle the strike. However, these attempts at mediation have failed.

It would not seem out of line for the federal government to take an interest in strikes which affect the economic, social and political lives of millions in the nation's largest cities.

When a newspaper strike lasts for several months, the President should bring the full pressure and prestige of his office to bear on publishers and union officials in the interest of public information and safety.

DERMITORY

Fateful World Events May Shape Campaign

By GEORGE J. MARDER
United Press International

The professional politicians are trying to add up the pluses and minuses of four events last week on the presidential race in the United States.

They are, in the order of occurrence:

1. The Jenkins incident. The pros are at a loss to measure the impact of the resignation of Walter Jenkins as a top assistant to President Johnson after it became known Jenkins had been arrested twice on morals charges. There is general agreement that the potency of the Jenkins case as an issue will depend upon what the Republicans do with it. So far, Senator Goldwater, the presidential candidate, has said he will make no comment about the case unless it gets to involve national security.

Below the top level, however, the Republicans have not been backward about talking about the Jenkins affair. Such top Republicans as vice-presidential candidate William Miller and former vice president Nixon, and GOP national chairman Dean Burch all have seized upon the issue and have challenged Johnson to speak out on it.

The President issued a statement saying no hint of Jenkins' arrests had come to his attention until last Wednesday. The politicians realize that the Jenkins incident could fit into what the Republicans acknowledge is the best issue going for them in the campaigns, the question of ethics and moral leadership in the White House. There seems to be divided GOP opinion on what use to make of it. There seems to be a consensus that to carry it too far might boomerang.

Event two—the Khrushchev resignation. There is little hard knowledge in Washington about what the Soviet shakeup means. Future events will point to the significance. There is general agreement it means much more than appears on the surface—that Khrushchev was not retired because of age and ill health but that a change of Soviet policy is in the making. As for the impact on the U.S. elections, some political pros pointed to the political axiom that an international crisis always favors the incumbent. Voters are wary of changing horses when the stream is turbulent.

Goldwater was very much aware of that political lesson when he was charging that the administration would be coming up with some international crisis during the elections. He implied that it would help Johnson politically. The question remains, however, whether the Soviet change of command, as important as it is, qualifies as an international crisis. Some pros figure that its impact on the campaigns will be of minimal nature. They'll be studying the next polls to see whether they're right.

Number three—the British elections. This falls into the same category as the Soviet shakeup but with much less impact. However, there is this difference. The new British Prime Minister, Laborite Harold Wilson, is a leader of the move in Western ranks to seek accommodation with Soviet Russia. You probably couldn't find two men in the western alliance who are further apart than Wilson and Goldwater.

Event four—the Red Chinese nuclear explosion. Both President Johnson and Senator Goldwater had anticipated the Chinese test.

Warren Report Raises Questions

By Mike Kindman

The Warren Commission's report on the assassination of the late President Kennedy has left the nation with several problems to ponder, regardless of whether further investigation into the assassination might be needed.

The report included an indictment of the Dallas police, the FBI, the Secret Service and the news media, blaming all these groups for failing to prevent the murder of Lee Harvey Oswald and for being lax in the fulfillment of their duties.

The reaction to these charges in the nation's press have been mostly admissions that the job was not properly done in Dallas. But there is no single answer to the question of how justice can be done efficiently at the same time the news is being transmitted, without holding up one or the other process. Little support has been given in the press to the Warren Commission's suggestion that a code of ethics be adopted by the news media to regulate their behavior in extraordinary circumstances.

The Nation magazine, in an editorial in its Oct. 12 issue, made a most intelligent comment on the part the press and the police played in Dallas, while denying the need for a regulatory code.

"One cannot quarrel," the magazine said, "with the commission's major conclusion that 'primary responsibility' for those incredible scenes must rest with the police. Granted that the public's interest—of fantastic volume and intensity—was perfectly legitimate, still the police could have maintained order in their own headquarters if nowhere else; indeed, if they had done so, the public would have been much better informed."

On the part of the press, the Nation had this to say:

"The press did a bad job in Dallas, not because it pressed too hard for information or because it had too many reporters on the scene, but because it did not dig hard enough for the facts. If the press had done its job thoroughly, many of the myths and rumors would never have been set in motion, or would have been promptly corrected."

An editorial in the Louisville Courier-Journal called the press' representatives "highly irresponsible" for some of the actions taken in Dallas. The press and the police should both "have exercised far more judgment and restraint," the newspaper said.

"It is, admittedly, easier to make this general recommendation than to detail how the individual newsmen should handle the press in the future; the exercise of taste and judgment is not easily outlined," the Courier-Journal concluded.

A more tolerant attitude was registered by Eugene Patterson, editor of the Atlanta Constitution. He wrote, "The U.S. press, for all its flaws and imperfections, is the finest instrument for trustworthy newsgathering that the human race has ever devised. The coverage of the Kennedy assassination is a story of the best, as well as the worst, aspects of a free press."

New York Times columnist James Reston wrote on the day after the report was issued:

"The Warren Commission has fulfilled its primary assignment. It has tried, as a servant of history, to discover truth. But the assassination of President Kennedy was so symbolic of human irony and tragedy, and so involved in the complicated and elemental conflicts of the age, that many vital questions remain, and the philosopher, novelist and dramatist will have to take it from here. 'The commission has not concluded the Kennedy mystery so much as it has opened up a whole new chapter in the Kennedy Legend.'"

An editorial comment in the Commonweal magazine gives a view of the assassination and the report that is not satisfying, but that seems to sum up many people's feelings:

"What is missing is what has been missing from the whole circle of facts and events surrounding the assassination. There was neither sense nor coherence in it. It stands out still as one of those gratuitous happenings of history which have no symmetry, no rational explanation, no discernible purpose. An existentialist might call it absurd, and he might be right."

Letters To The Editor

Goldwater Would Downgrade Individual Rights In America

To the Editor:

In reply to the letter concerning students making jibes at Barry Goldwater for his conservative viewpoints, I would like to make a few comments and bring a few other things to mind.

When a man constantly makes statements, regardless of their implications, that invariably have to be modified later on, says he will balance the U.S. budget a year after getting elected and at the same time cut taxes and build a stronger military; leave civil rights up to the states and consequently let Mississippi, Alabama, and a few other extraneous places go about their way depriving people of their right to vote, replacing the Constitutional right of due process of law with lawlessness resulting in innocent people ending up hanging from magnolias or disappearing later to be found in the proverbial Father of Rivers, then I say that jibes are inevitable.

I think that most responsible Americans feel that an individual is entitled to whatever he is able to earn. But it is up to the government to make sure that the conditions for competition prevail so that everybody has an opportunity to use his entrepreneurial ability. If the government permitted uncontrolled monopoly, collusions, and other non-competitive practices, then we could kiss free enterprise and competition good-bye.

Furthermore, I disagree with Barry Goldwater and do not believe in being supported by the Welfare State, suppression of the individual nor in the superiority of socialism over capitalism. I do believe in government carrying out its responsible role by doing all it can to help the displaced and unfortunate members of society help themselves, checking individuals who are suppressing others and depriving them of their equality, and capitalism where the government maintains competitive conditions. Why must you see things in terms of either capitalism or socialism? Socialism nor capitalism in the pure sense of the words is viable. Socialistic countries have invariably come to let some prices be decided in the market place instead of decreeing them and have induced incentive into their systems by introducing competition; harsh competition exists in the Soviet Union.

It Goldwater is elected President and tries to carry out his ideas, not only I but you too shall regret it the rest of your life.

Regard For Life

To the Editor:

Someone once said, "life is an island surrounded by the tides of death. We do not know the nature of death until we experience the deprivation of someone's life." Living in the protective environment of a campus a student has little opportunity to see death, and thus, is unable to visualize it and appreciate the value of life. Many students have a rather callous view of life, and they make no effort to conserve it.

Late Saturday night a life was taken on this campus. The act was not premeditated. Instead, a combination of negligent acts on the part of both individuals involved led to the loss of one of their lives, and a deep scar on the other's memory. The driver of the sports car lacked full control of his vehicle. According to many witnesses, he had been operating in this manner throughout the evening. His error was the disregard of the traffic regulations of the campus. Not only did he endanger and actually take the life of another, but he was also risking his own life.

The pedestrian was negligent because of his failure to use a crosswalk and to check the flow of traffic before crossing the roadway. His act caused him to lose his own life, and could have led to death or injury to others.

Siebert: High Court Ruling Backs Press

Fred S. Siebert, dean of Michigan State's College of Communication Arts, told newsmen in Chicago Monday that the U.S. Supreme Court has given the press more freedom in criticizing public officials.

Siebert, chairman of the Inland Law and Press Committee, told a meeting of the Inland Daily Press Assn. that if in discussing public officials and their actions "you can show lack of malice and your statements are not too remote from the truth, you are exempt from libel."

He referred specifically to a March 9 decision of the Supreme Court reversing a $500,000 ruling against the New York Times for alleged libel against a Montgomery, Ala., police official.

Siebert defended the high court's ruling saying that it is possible for newspapers to make errors as long as they are not malicious. He said the Supreme Court felt that the right to criticize public officials was more important to the public interest than the absolute validity of each statement.

Bryan, W. Landon Win Spirit Trophy

Bryan and West Landon Halls have captured first places, respectively, in the men's and women's halls divisions of the first Spartan Spirit judging period.

Jim Tanck, Spartan Spirit director and Waterford, Wis., junior, in announcing the decision Tuesday, said it was based on reports from complex directors on the halls' participation in University events for the preceding two weeks.

Other halls and their standings are as follows:

Men's halls, West Shaw, 2nd; East Shaw, 3rd; West McDonel, 4th; North Wonders, 5th; Armstrong, 6th; Abbott and South Case, tie for 7th and 8th; East Wilson, 9th; East Akers and Snyder, tie for 10th and 11th; Bailey and Emmons, tie for 12th and 13th; and West Fee, 14th.

Women's halls, East McDonel, 2nd; West Yakeley, 3rd; Williams, 4th; Gilchrist, 5th; Butterfield, 6th; West Akers, 7th; South Wonders, 8th; North Case and Rather, tie for 9th; East Landon and Phillips, tie for 11th and 12th; North Campbell, West Mayo and West Wilson, tie for 13th, 14th and 15th; Van Hoosen and East Fee, tie for 17th and 18th; and East Mayo, South Campbell and East Yakeley, tie for the last three places.

Case Pep Rally

Case Hall will combine Homecoming display activities with a pep rally at the corner of North Case tonight at 7. A band, singer Sherry Payne and the MSU cheerleaders will be on hand, and head Spartan football coach Duffy Daugherty has been invited to attend.

Episcopal Laymen Vote On Civil Disobedience

ST. LOUIS (AP)—An attempt to "This church recognizes the of conscience to disobey such laws or social customs."

The clergy, whose vote counts equally with the laymen in the House of Deputies, favored the resolution, Lay delegates, however, voted it down.

W. Edward Morgan of Tucson, Ariz., who introduced the resolution, commented afterward that the majority of deputies was for it.

Honored Seniors Enjoy Busy Days

Elaine Ellis of Marlette and Dick Sawdey of Battle Creek were named this week's Seniors of the Week.

Both earned Outstanding Junior Awards and are now presidents of university organizations, Elaine being president of WIC and Dick of Union Board.

Elaine maintains a 3.25 all-university average majoring in Special Education.

Her memberships on the Homecoming Committee, Big Ten Residence Hall President's Council, Mr. MSU Judging Committee, Student Government Evaluation Committee, Spartan Round Table, Campus 4-H, Activities Carnival and Career Carnival have made life busy.

But Dick is just as busy in such activities as the Student Faculty Social Affairs Committee, Student Government Evaluation Committee, Union Board, Miss MSU Judging Committee and Spartan Round Table. He carries a 3.16 average in pre-law.

Both have held several offices. Elaine has been secretary of WIC, as well as vice president of West Yakeley, Tower Guard and Mortar Board. Campus 4-H made her social chairman and she was Who's Who and What's What co-chairman.

In addition, Elaine was on the Harvest Ball Queen's Court. She worked at the National 4-H Foundation in Washington, helping further citizenship programs for older youths. She also worked at the State 4-H office in East Lansing.

Dick has also served as member-at-large and as Forum Committee chairman while on Union Board. He is presently Delta Chi's recording secretary.

For their service to the University, Elaine and Dick were received into many honoraries. Circle, Tower Guard, Alpha Lambda Delta and Mortar Board accepted Elaine.

Dick is a member of Excalibur, Omicron Delta Kappa, Blue Key, Phi Eta Sigma, Green Helmet and Pi Sigma Alpha.

Goldwater Jr. Speaks; Tells GOP Policies

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Barry Goldwater, Jr., told an enthusiastic crowd in Traverse City Monday.

"Youth stands to lose most heavily if the United States is unable to keep the peace," Goldwater explained, "for they are the group to be called upon to defend the nation."

Young Goldwater spoke at a rally climaxing the first day of a five-day trip through Michigan of the Goldwater bandwagon headed by Charles A. Fligh Jr., assistant director of the Goldwater-Miller campaign in Michigan.

Harry F. Stimpson Jr., former ambassador to Paraguay, and Congressman Gerald R. Ford, R-Grand Rapids, also spoke.

Ford summed up the campaign issues as:

--The integrity, conviction and dedication of the candidates.
--The Democrats are waging a fear and smear campaign against Goldwater on the issues of Social Security, control of nuclear weapons, and foreign policy.

He blamed the blocking of a 5 per cent increase in Social Security benefits completely on President Johnson and the Democrats.

"Goldwater," he said, "would not immediately cancel social security, but would push certain revisions."

Control of nuclear weapons policy would return to that of the Eisenhower and Kennedy administrations. Goldwater believes in nuclear weapons, Ford as has been charged.

Johnson's stand tends to weaken American defenses, he said. Death of the President or a possible communications breakdown would leave the six American divisions in Europe vulnerable in case of attack.

Union Movies

Slated Thursday

Union Board's movie series will continue Thursday with the showing of the half-hour documentary, "Depressed Area, U.S.A."

This term's movies will be from the 20th Century series, according to Dick Sawdey, Union Board president and Battle Creek senior. "We hope to supplement classroom work with these films."

All movies will begin at 7:30 p.m. in the Union ballroom.

Other movies will be "Road to Berlin," Nov. 5; "Lennin and Trotsky," Nov. 19; and "Generation Without A Cause," Dec. 3.

Court Hears Students' Pleas In Shoplifting

Two MSU students pleaded not guilty to shoplifting charges in East Lansing Municipal Court Monday morning.

Another student, Gareth H. Smith, 19, Homer sophomore, paid a $54.30 fine after pleading guilty to a charge of simple larceny (shoplifting).

Smith was charged with taking a 15 cents box of erasers from the Student Book Store, 421 E. Grand River Ave., Oct. 19.

A jury trial for the two students pleading not guilty was set for Oct. 29 by Judge William Wise. Bond was posted at $100 in each case.

Thirteen guilty pleas have been entered by MSU students accused of shoplifting since registration began.

Business Groups Meet Tonight

The first joint meeting of the Accounting and Finance Club and Alpha Psi will be held tonight at 7:30 in 32 Union.

Robert Wishart and Daniel Kelly of the Detroit firm of Touche, Ross, Bailey and Smart will address the meeting. An open question and answer period will follow.

License Lifted

The secretary of state's office has announced the suspension of the driver's license of Raymond Pearson, 1106H University Village.

The suspension, due to an unsatisfactory driving record, will last until Nov. 23, it was reported.

Construction

used "as long as it can be, but it's very old."

Second in priority on the MSU budget under new buildings is a request for $3 million to start construction next year on a classroom and faculty office building almost twice the size of Bessey Hall.

Total cost of the badly needed building is estimated at $5 million by Breslin. It will be constructed between Owen Graduate Hall and the new Veterinary Medicine Building.

Both the proposed administration and the classroom-office buildings will conform to recent architecture on campus, "strictly a functional design," Breslin said.

MSU is also asking the legislature to appropriate $2 million for library expansion, but this request is secondary to the proposed new buildings.

Fourth on the priority list is a $3 million bid for a social science building which would cost an estimated $6 million. The location has not been determined.

Construction projects already underway may also get a boost from the legislature. MSU is asking $4.18 million to continue construction on the $8.98 million power plant.

A $4 million forestry conservation building at the corner of Wilson Road and Farm Lane will progress further with a $2 million appropriation.

MSU is also requesting $2 million to continue work on the Food Science Building valued at $4.5 million.

Veterinary Group

Spends Tuesday At Parke-Davis

A group of MSU students from the College of Veterinary Medicine visited the Parke-Davis and Co. pharmaceutical firm in Detroit Tuesday.

The firm, which has branch offices in 33 U.S. and Canadian cities and 28 foreign countries, is responsible for several drug discoveries. Among Parke-Davis developments are dilantin for epilepsy, benadryl for hay fever and camorprim for malaria. They also discovered adrenalin and chloromycetin.

Despite 3 Setbacks, 'S' Not Outclassed

By JERRY MORTON
State News Sports Writer

A question often has more than one answer.

That's the situation facing Spartan football fans who are asking what it will take to put the Green and White back in the win column.

"We've probably played as well as anybody expected," said Coach Duffy Daugherty.

"We've been a pretty good team, but we still have some deficiencies to overcome. But we haven't been outclassed yet."

Part of the answer to the fact that MSU has won only one of four games lies in the strong competition the Spartans have faced and the overall balance in the Big Ten race.

"No team in the conference is immune to defeat," Daugherty said, "even Ohio State."

"It's a tough league and anybody could be knocked off."

Another aspect of the problem is the Spartans' inability to contain their opponents during the second half.

So far this season, MSU foes have scored 56 of their 72 points in the second half while holding the Green and White to 39 during the last two quarters.

Daugherty attributes much of this problem to defensive injuries that have hampered seven of MSU's defensive starters.

"Some of the boys who have been injured don't have time to rest. As the game goes on, their physical condition deteriorates," he said.

Daugherty said he thinks the Spartan offense has progressed well but that the defensive situation still needs to be improved upon.

This week's four-game statistics show a marked improvement over last week's figures.

Steve Juday's 16 completions in 20 attempts gives him 33 completions in 58 tries for the season.

The passes have been good for 364 yards and four touchdowns.

Sophomore end Gene Washington leads in the pass-catching department with 13 receptions followed by Tom Krezmienski with eight and Harry Ammon with four.

Dick Gordon gained 81 yards rushing against the Hoosiers to put him well in front of his teammates with 181 yards for the season.

Sophomore Clinton Jones has rushed for 107 with Dave McCormick picking up 47.

The Spartans will be hungry for victory this week but Northwestern will be in the same position.

The Wildcats were upset, 28-27 by Miami of Ohio Saturday for their straight setback of the campaign.

Set Aside Tickets For Saturday

Students wishing to view next Saturday's homecoming football contest with their parents or non-student friends are in luck.

"There are plenty of tickets available for the game," says ticket manager Bill Beardsley, "but if students want to purchase general public tickets next to their own seat they must wait until Friday to do so."

Students can redeem their football coupons for tickets at the main ticket office and at the same time purchase public tickets adjacent to them.

An ID card is necessary for admittance on a student ticket.

Tight Defense Holds Foes While Booters Blast Net

Long ago it became an axiom in sports that members of any defensive team are generally the "unsung heroes." Often it appears that the only time they draw attention is when they make costly errors.

In view of the fact that MSU's soccer team is presently riding on the crest of a 5-0 won-lost record, it might be interesting to note that the team has allowed only a single goal.

One might attribute this to the fact that the team possesses a phenomenal goal tender, yet this isn't entirely the case.

"Our goalie, Charlie Dedich, hasn't had much to do yet this season," mused Coach Gene Kenney. "Our defending backs have held the opposing teams to very few shots."

He described his defense as a hard-working, tightly knit unit, and is elated over their success this season.

Kenney broke tradition last Saturday, when he juggled his winning defensive team. Rookie Nick Krat was moved from his usual halfback spot to center halfback where he played a sparkling game.

Fullback Denny Checkett and Manny Ruschieski, who was switched to the right fullback spot, were also singled out by the coach for their defensive work.

"These boys have done a remarkable job out there," continued Kenney, "and have been a tremendous asset to our team."

Rounding out the defensive unit are such stalwarts as Captain Louie Eckhardt, Payton Fuller, Sidney Alozie, Terry Bidlak and Van Dimitriou, whose near-flawless performances have held their opponents at bay.

MSU plays host to also undefeated Ball State Thursday, at 3:30 p.m. on the soccer field south of Spartan Stadium.

BOUNCE MANAGERS LIKE BALL

American Pastime: Hire, Then Fire

By DUANE LANCASTER
State News Sports Writer

If a coach in any sport wins the championship in his league, the chances are extremely great he'll be rehired—usually with a substantial bonus for his efforts.

If a major league baseball manager just happens to be in his first year when he accomplishes this feat, he will either run for president or be unanimously named the best manager in baseball.

No so in New York, where a pennant is all but an annual occurrence.

Yogi Berra and his New York Yankees won the American League flag and Berra did it in his first year on the job. Still, he caught the hatchet from the Yankee organization.

Michigan State baseball coach Danny Litwhiler was not surprised by the switch, however.

job was an easy way to get him off the playing list," Litwhiler said, "and it was then simple to relieve him of that job."

"Yogi wasn't sure of himself," he said. "He wouldn't sign a two-year contract and I'm not sure he even wanted the job."

"Berra had troubles with his players. A lot of the Yankee ballplayers didn't think he was qualified to be their manager and resented it."

Asked if Berra might still have a job had the Yankees won the World Series, Litwhiler replied that it would have been harder to fire Berra then, but the Yankee brass had apparently made up their minds in August.

"It was this immediate switch from player to manager that made it difficult for Berra to handle his players," Litwhiler said.

The hiring of Johnny Keane, conquerer of the Yankees in seven World Series games as St. Louis Cardinal manager was even more surprising than the firing of Berra to most people.

"Keane turned down a three-year managing contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates after announcing his resignation from the Cardinals," he said, "and it appears he knew the Yankees would offer him the job."

Litwhiler said he felt Keane resigned from baseball's world champions for personal reasons.

"The Cardinals showed no confidence in Johnny when the club was faltering in August. And now

Patriarche injected the point that parking revenue bonds, needed for ramp construction, are the most difficult to sell.

City Manager Patriarche was charged with studying the problem and reporting back to the council.

The council also initiated action to make telephone harassment a misdemeanor.

The council ordered Raymond R. Campbell, city attorney, to draw up a law to that effect in official ordinance form.

The suggested ordinance reads:

No person shall telephone any other person more than once or cause any person to be telephoned more than once for the purpose of harassing or molesting or threatening such other person or his family, whether or not conversation ensues, except for telephone calls made for legitimate business or personal purposes.

The ordinance was referred to the council by the East Lansing Human Relations Commission.

A council vote will be required to approve the final language of the ordinance.
