

Landslide Win For Johnson

Michigan Voters Elect Romney

LBJ Electoral Vote Soars Beyond 400

GOVERNOR GEORGE ROMNEY

Democratic Nominees Voted To State Posts

DETROIT (AP) -- President Johnson steam-rolled through Michigan ballot boxes Tuesday, leading an apparent Democratic sweep that bagged most Republicans except Gov. George Romney.

Romney led narrowly over Rep. Neil Staebler but the texture of the returns indicated the governor would win another two-year term.

With 46 per cent of the state's precincts reporting, the totals stood:

Johnson	1,110,410
Goldwater	450,083
Staebler	741,601
Romney	772,149

Incumbent Democrats Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley and Secretary of State James Hare moved convincingly toward re-election based on fragmentary early returns.

Johnson smothered Goldwater by more than 3-to-1 in Wayne County but ironically Staebler made his poorest showing in that metropolitan area.

Staebler was polling only about 55 per cent, a full 10 per cent less than Democratic candidates normally require to offset traditional outstate Republican votes.

Romney was leading in Macomb County, a suburban area where he polled only 45 per cent in unseating Democratic Gov. John Swainson two years ago.

Staebler had predicted significant gains in suburbia.

Johnson, however, led Goldwater by 3 1/2-to-1 in Macomb, evidence of massive ticket splitting in the election.

Reports that many voters spent long periods of time in the voting booths had foreshadowed the big split vote.

PRESIDENT LYNDON JOHNSON

LBJ Electoral Vote Soars Beyond 400

WASHINGTON (AP) -- President Lyndon B. Johnson, running powerfully everywhere but in deepest Dixie, swamped Republican Sen. Barry Goldwater Tuesday night to win the presidency for the next four years.

Johnson jumped into the lead at the very start, winning Kentucky, a state that had gone Republican in the last two elections.

And with this auspicious beginning, he was never headed.

State after state fell to him, including such big ones as Ohio, New York, Illinois, Michigan and Pennsylvania.

At midnight the picture looked like this: With 53 per cent of the precincts reporting, Johnson had 24,861,684 votes to Goldwater's 16,158,170.

In electoral votes, the President led, 419 to 47.

He had won 22 states, was leading in 14 others.

Goldwater had won four states, and led in four.

Dems Lead Key Races Nationally

WASHINGTON (AP) -- President Johnson's sweeping presidential victory carried with it Tuesday the prospect of a heavily Democratic Congress--probably with an increased Administration margin in the House.

As returns mounted, Democrats had elected 17 senators and were leading in nine more races. There were two definite and two other possible overruns.

In the House, Democrats had won 167 seats, including 5 formerly held by Republicans. They were leading in 87 more, including 37 seats now Republican-occupied.

Republicans had won 24 seats, including two gained in the Deep South. In all, they had taken two seats from Democrats. They were leading in 81 races, including seven now held by the President's party.

In the single Senate race attracting the greatest national attention, former Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy defeated Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, although confined to a hospital bed by an airplane accident, easily won re-election in Massachusetts.

But in Ohio, Rep. Robert Taft, Jr., son of the late Senatorial leader, ran up a long lead over the incumbent Democrat, Sen. Stephen M. Young, 75.

The four which Goldwater carried were Alabama, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina--the four which went to the States Rights Democrats in the 1948 election won by Harry S. Truman.

For Johnson, it was strictly good news Tuesday night.

Early in the evening it was clear that the Democrats had retained control of the Senate and probably would win the House by a bigger margin than they now have.

Johnson carried Maine and Vermont, the only two states Franklin D. Roosevelt missed in his classic sweep of 1936. He was the first Democratic president in history to carry Vermont.

As reports came in from the North and Midwest, the stories often were monotonously the same: Johnson, elevated so dramatically and tragically to the White House just 11 months ago, was carrying towns that always before had gone Republican.

It was too early to get much of a line on why the vote went as it did.

But an electronic vote analysis in selected precincts, North and South, showed the anticipated heavy Negro backing for Johnson.

Michigan First With 2 Negroes

Michigan will be represented by two Negroes in the next Congress.

The two Negroes are John Conyers, Jr., of the first district, and Charles Diggs, Jr., in the 13th. Both are in the Detroit area.

Hart, Chamberlain Return To Washington

Democratic incumbent Philip Hart easily won his bid for re-election to the U.S. Senate.

As of midnight, Hart, whose lead in the first returns was nearly three-to-one, was leading his Republican opponent, Elly Petersen.

The total represents 5,213 of Michigan's 5,213 precincts.

Hart, 51, was first elected to the Senate in 1958. He left this post as U.S. attorney for eastern Michigan to become legal adviser to former Gov. G. Mennen Williams in 1953. He was elected lieutenant governor of Michigan in 1954 and 1956.

Hart received a B.A. degree from Georgetown University in 1943 and a law degree from the University of Michigan in 1947. He is married and has eight children.

He is a member of the Michigan and American Bar Associations, American Society of International Law, American Judicature Society and Michigan Bar Foundation.

During World War II, Hart served in the Army and was wounded in the D-Day assault on Utah Beach, Normandy.

PHILIP HART

Incumbent Charles E. Chamberlain looked like a winner in the race for U.S. Representative from the new sixth district.

With 31 of 78 Ingham County precincts reporting, about 45 per cent, Chamberlain led his Democratic opponent, Boyd K. Benedict, by a count of 11,034 to 8,822. Returns from other areas of the district indicated similar results.

The 6th District, its boundaries recently altered, centers on the Jackson-Lansing region. Chamberlain's win was no doubt helped by the redistricting which took him out of the running in heavily Democratic Flint.

The return of the GOP veteran to Washington will mean the continuance of generally conservative representation for the University's neighbors. In the past Chamberlain has maintained consistent opposition to almost all bills aimed at expanding the role of the federal government.

He voted against recent foreign aid bills and against Johnson's anti-poverty program.

The 47-year-old attorney has instead stressed, "We should have the courage to dig down in our jeans and pay for what we want."

Benedict, who lives in East Lansing and who calls himself a liberal Democrat, had contested Chamberlain's view of the relation of the government to the people.

Before the election, he claimed, "I don't think this district has stepped into 1964."

Currently Benedict holds the position of executive secretary of the Municipal Finance Commission.

after a smooth victory over his Democratic opponent Robert K. Wilson, 43, vice president of the South Central Michigan Carpenters District Council.

Democrat Mabel Sue French, 49, a real estate woman, lost her second county race to incumbent Harry A. Spenny, 57. She ran for register of deeds in 1960.

Registrar of Deeds Mia Bell Humphrey, 58, of Mason, turned back her Democratic challenger Pauline M. Koch, 37, a Lansing housewife. She has held the office since 1952.

Drain commissioner for the past 16 years, Gerald L. Graham, 63, was again placed in office by voters over Democrat John J. Gregurek, 27, a medical technician and graduate of MSU.

With no Democrats seeking their offices, incumbents Dorwin E. Hoffmeyer, 52, of Lansing and Jack B. Holmes, 41, of East Lansing were assured of another term as county coroners. Hoffmeyer has been in office 30 years, Holmes 6.

Lansing City Attorney Donald L. Reislis, 29, voted one of Michigan's five outstanding young men in 1964, snatched the seat left vacant by County Prosecutor Leo Farhart.

C. Ross Hilliard, 70, begins his 41st year as county clerk

State Voters Veto Ballot Referendum

The controversial Massachusetts ballot appeared to have failed.

With 1,024 of 5,213 precincts reporting, yes votes totaled only 131,715 to 275,692 no votes.

Thirty-one states use this ballot form, which is designed to eliminate single-lever or single-mark straight ticket voting. Candidates are identified by party but listed by office.

Anyone who wishes to vote for all candidates on a party slate must vote for each office individually.

The "Massachusetts ballot" was enacted by the legislature. It was put to the vote after 330,000 petition signatures requesting a referendum were obtained.

Democrats Lead In Board Race

Early returns from the election of two members to MSU's Board of Trustees indicate that Democratic candidates Clair White and Frank Hartman held the advantage.

East Lansing Voters Favor LBJ; Ingham County Selects Republicans

East Lansing

Campus and East Lansing voters followed national and state trends in the final results of the 1964 elections.

Results of precinct seven, proved Johnson victorious with a winning margin of 314 votes over Goldwater's 126; Romney over Staebler, 353 to 94; Hart over Peterson, 297 to 140; Chamberlain over Benedict, 251 to 187.

Precinct eight results showed Johnson 671 votes over Goldwater's 352; Romney over Staebler, 812 to 222; Hart over Peterson, 679 to 361; and Chamberlain over Benedict, 629 to 390.

Final results of the 10th precinct revealed Johnson gaining 596 votes over Goldwater's 330; Romney over Staebler, 852 to 131; Hart over Peterson, 598 to 327; and Chamberlain over Benedict, 502 to 308.

Precincts eight and ten include student married housing and precinct seven includes the remaining parts of campus.

Of registered campus voters 76 per cent voted with voting coming to complete stop 45 minutes before the polls closed in precinct seven.

University student voting precincts are primarily precincts 7 and 10. The expansion of the University necessitated creating precinct 10 in 1962.

Precinct 7, with 596 registered voters, includes most of the campus. A majority of the Precinct 7 voters, however, are concentrated in the Cherry Lane apartment area.

Precinct 7 is noted for its low turnout of registered voters, but by 11 a.m. Tuesday, 106 of its 596 registrants had voted.

In the past, the precinct has generally voted Republican. As part of Precinct 8 in 1960 it had a 95 per cent voter turnout.

The precinct boundary zig-zags south along city limits in inverted steps from Mount Hope Road and the Grand Trunk railroad tracks.

Precinct 10 voters vote with Precinct 8 in the Red Cedar School off Harrison Road.

There are 1,358 registered voters in Precinct 8. In past elections the voters have voted Republican, as have the majority of East Lansing residents.

Ingham County

Incumbent Republicans swept past Democratic challengers in contests here Tuesday for three seats in the state House of Representatives, returns at 12:10 a.m. today indicated.

Voters in the 59th District elected Rep. Charles J. Davis, 53, of Onondaga, to his second term in the House where he serves on the Tax and Judiciary Committees.

Re-elected to a 10th term in the House from the 58th District was Rep. Harold W. Hungerford, 62, a member of the Ways and Means Committee.

Mrs. Marie L. Hager won her third term in the House over Democratic challenger H. James Starr, 33, a former assistant attorney general and practicing attorney in Lansing.

Republican S. Don Potter defeated Democrat George Griffiths in the race for the state Senate from the 24th district.

Voters put Kenneth L. Preadmore, 43, in his third term as Ingham County sheriff. He turned back the challenge of Democrat L.B. Crouch, 41, a private detective.

C. Ross Hilliard, 70, begins his 41st year as county clerk

EXERCISING THEIR RIGHTS--Heavy voter turnout for Tuesday's election was found in this East Lansing polling station, located in fire station number 2, near Wonders Hall. The fire truck was on hand to cool off any political hot heads who might show up.

Majority Rule: Democracy's Basis

A democratic election is truly an awe-inspiring phenomenon.

Americans take for granted the premise stated in the Declaration of Independence that just governments derive their powers from the consent of the governed.

They also take for granted the unstated rule of minority submission to majority decisions.

However, majority rule is not held sacred by every country. In many parts of the world, dissatisfied minorities constantly revolt against unpopular governments.

Majority rule is a workable political axiom in the United States because of the basic faith of the American people in their society and their government.

The 1964 presidential campaign was hard-fought throughout and bitter at times. Each candidate predicted the fall of the American Republic should his opponent be elected.

Campaign oratory to the contrary, America is not going to be destroyed by the President we elected yesterday. Many citizens will oppose government policies during the next four years, but they know that they will have another chance at the ballot box in 1968.

The defeated candidates and disappointed voters will accept the majority's decision and assume the role of a loyal, constructive opposition.

Most Americans are content to accept constitutional methods for changing government because they know in their hearts that their society is healthy and their public officials are responsive to their needs.

Read The Directions

It is highly important for students to carefully read the instructions for registration on the back of all ballots.

The process is not complicated, but it is different from anything which has been tried before. If students fail to complete each step of registration on time, they lessen their chances of getting the classes they want.

Britain's New Leader
Life-Long Politician

LONDON 4.—As a boy in Yorkshire, Harold Wilson dreamed of one day becoming Prime Minister. He realized that ambition when Labor's election victory swept him into office at 48 years of age, Britain's youngest prime minister in this century.

When he walked into No. 10 Downing Street, traditional home of the nation's government leaders, he remembered posing for a picture in front of that famous address 40 years ago. He says that seriously he decided to become a politician even a year earlier—when he was 7.

In defeating Prime Minister Sir Alec Douglas-Home and the Conservatives, Wilson reversed the image of British politics. The Tories—under Churchill, Eden and MacMillan—were the party of the dominant leader. The image fostered by Douglas-Home, handpicked by MacMillan to succeed him last year, the same year Wilson was elected Labor's leader to replace Hugh Gaitskill who died.

Now it is Wilson, the white-haired, sleek-skinned epitome of self-confidence, with the rarest of smiles, who is the dominant man of British politics, head of a party known more for its inner strife than for solidarity behind a single man.

During the campaign it was said Wilson so controlled things that he carried along party headquarters wherever he went.

For months national polls said the Laborites could not lose. But even when the odds grew shorter and some observers said the result was a tossup, Wilson remained unshaken.

An expert debater, with a quick wit and sharp tongue, he called Douglas-Home "an elegant anachronism." He thundered to the voters, "It's time for a change!" paraphrasing the late American President John F.

Kennedy, he said, "let's get Britain moving again (after 12 years of Tory rule)."

But before he could win, Wilson, a round man of medium height, faced the formidable job of convincing the voters he was not what his enemies said he was: a single-minded political schemer.

To achieve wider appeal, Wilson abandoned his fiery Socialist radicalism and sought a center position closer to the uncommitted masses of voters.

After succeeding Gaitskill, his reputation for being left wing, pro-Soviet and anti-American faded. His image became that of a middle class intellectual.

In Kennedy style, Wilson established a comradeship with newsmen. His no-nonsense ways and wit gave him an ease in meeting crowds.

That he won showed that many of Britain's voters liked his own view of himself: a progressive, classless figure with a slight technical flavor.

The voters also apparently agreed with his thesis that there are still too many idle rich and manipulators in Britain. He said it was wrong that those "who make money are more regarded than those who earn the money."

Perhaps not surprisingly, his biggest clash came with women voters who seemed alienated by his pipe-smoking manner of knowing all the answers—always having the last word.

But in the end his promises of "virtile leadership—a national plan—mobilization of all the resources of all the people—A true partnership between the people and their parliament" won out.

Equally as stormy as Wilson's personality were Labor's stated desire to renationalize the steel industry and to phase out Britain's separate nuclear deterrent force.

Wilson made only careful, minimal commitment to state ownership but called money spent by the Conservatives on nuclear arms "vain posturing," a kind of diplomatic status symbol.

Oxford educated, Wilson still has a trace of Yorkshire in his speech. The son of an industrial chemist born in industrial Huddersfield, he made his first impression as a bright young man on the way up at Oxford where he lectured on economics when only 21.

Drafted into the wartime civil service, he won a seat in Parliament in 1945.

By 1947 as president of the Board of Trade, he was Britain's youngest cabinet minister in more than 100 years.

Wilson and his wife Gladys and their two sons lived in a neat little house in Hampstead Garden in northern London.

A loner by nature and in his own words "a Socialist not a socializer," Wilson now has his dreamed of chance to help shape the future of a country that long has been a close and important ally of the United States.

Is It True A Lot Of Your Supporters Switched At The Last Minute, Mr. Goldwater?

China To Expand Budget
For Nuclear Development

HONG KONG (P)—Peking, happy with the success of its first atomic test, will go all out now to boost its nuclear potential, according to specialists on Communist China.

They expect Communist China to launch a nationwide economy campaign soon to free more money and materials for further tests and research.

Intelligence sources here estimate that Communist China's budget for its nuclear program is about $500 million a year.

In 1950, one year after the Communists seized power in China, the budget for the entire department of science was a meager $1 million.

It jumped to nearly $100 million in 1956 when Soviet scientists and technicians started work on nuclear reactors for the Communist Chinese.

Intelligence sources believe it will jump dramatically again after the recent successful explosion.

The economy campaign to raise this money will mean more belt-tightening and other hardships for the Chinese masses.

Experts believe the campaign will be a revival of the "great leap forward" movement, the drive initiated in 1958 to make Communist China a leading industrial world power quickly. This program failed.

In Washington, officials expect the Chinese to explode a second atomic device soon, but say it will take 5 to 10 years for the Red regime to become a nuclear power.

Experts here believe speeches made at the Oct. 1 celebrations in Peking for the 15th anniversary of the Communist regime indicated that another "leap forward" was in the offing.

Red China recently handed governments around the world a statement explaining why it had detonated its first atomic device and calling for a summit conference to ban all nuclear weapons.

The statement, signed by Premier Chou En-Lai, was the same as that issued by the Chinese in announcing explosion of the bomb. It said China had to go ahead with its program because other nations had made tests.

President Johnson disclosed that the bomb was set off near Lake Lop nor in the Takla Makan desert of Sinkiang province, about 300 miles southeast of Urumchi, the provincial capital. The vast and underpopulated province has been involved in recent years in repeated border trouble with neighboring Russia.

There was no immediate Peking reaction to Johnson's nationwide address, which called on Red China to join the nations that have signed the limited test ban treaty banning all tests but those underground.

Chou apparently sent the statement not only to sympathetic countries but to those nations, such as Japan, which have been critical of the test.

In Peking, Communist newspapers gave front-page prominence to a slim harvest of messages and statements supporting the atomic test. Only eight were listed—Albania, North Korea, Cambodia, the Communist parties of Japan, Indonesia, Belgium and representatives of the Pathet Lao, and the pro-Communist "neutralists," both in Laos.

The message from the Albanians said the test "is the result of the correct Marxist-Leninist line and leadership of the Communist party of China headed by Comrade Mao Tse-Tung" and "a crushing defeat for the imperialists and modern revisionists"—meaning the Soviet union and Yugoslavia.

In distributing the text of the Albanian message, the Red Chinese appeared to be serving notice to the new Soviet regime that Peking has no intention of altering its rigid, revolutionary line.

Letter To The Editor

Right To Ask Policy Rationale

To the Editor:

Evidently Paul Schiff still has much to learn when it comes to dealing with Goldwater supporters. Surely the campaign has progressed sufficiently to make him aware that there is very little in the utterings of this group to be taken at face value.

Simply because Drake Morin, in the true spirit of "No Nothingism," credits Disraeli with the quotation "I disagree (sic) with what you say, but I will defend to the death your right to say it," is small reason for Schiff to assume that this is indeed so. Will the real author of these words please stand up?

You see, Mr. Schiff, it was Voltaire all along—so despite all the liberties that Sen. Goldwater and his adherents take with truth, or history, or whatever, facts will remain facts.

Lest the Messrs. Morin and Schiff feel I do Disraeli a disservice by whisking these worthy words from his lips—may I here include a few of his very own quotations for them to chew on: "Never take anything for granted," "This shows how much easier it is to be critical than to be correct," "A conservative government is an organized hypocrisy," and last, but most certainly, not least—"Upon the education of the people of this country the fate of this country depends."

Point Of View

Broaden Scope
Of Morality

By Tom Steinfatt

For Jim Graham and those who feel as he does, I have but one question:

"What is morality?"

Does it have to do with "sex" and "stealing," both being seen as equally bad? It would seem to me that a person who has reached the level of a college undergraduate should have integrated enough of his knowledge into his belief system that he would have disregarded this grade-school conception of morality. Morality has to do with people and with every act of all human beings which may affect their welfare. Perhaps it is excusable for a person who has not had a college education made available to him to think of "sex" and "stealing" when he uses the word morality, and for him not to understand that these are merely on the outer fringes of morality—that morality is something very deep within the psychological structure of a person, a very deep and genuine concern with the problems of human beings other than oneself.

Sex may become a moral problem in certain cases such as where a girl might become pregnant or where a man may ruin a fine record of a lifetime of public service. Had Walter Jenkins lived in another society at another time (during the time of Plato and Aristotle for example) when homosexuality was considered a higher form of love than heterosexuality, his actions would not have been thought dangerous to the security of the nation.

Considering the affairs of such figures as former Republican President Warren G. Harding on the heterosexual level, I fail to see how Jenkins was any more susceptible to blackmail than any person with some hankey-panky in his background. The FBI has, of course, cleared Jenkins of any suspicion of being blackmailed.

As to Bobby Baker, one can only say that he is one of the dishonestest politicians who arise in both parties from time to time. But is this all that we mean when we refer to morality in government? What about the coal miner in West Virginia who is out of work and out of money to pay for heating his meager cabin and feeding his family—is he not a moral problem?

I am certain that Goldwater and William (Honest Bill) Miller feel no moral concern for this person at all. Why should they? He could find a job if he would only go out and look (in an area in which 15 per cent of the population is unemployed) for a job, since none are available) and besides, he can get help from his county or state welfare agency.

Just because no one has any money to contribute to the local agency since the entire area is depressed, does not impress Goldwater on his high moral pedestal. As he looks down from his speaking platform, from which he has ignored even the "conservative" issues during the final weeks of the campaign (less spending and power for the federal government), he harangues the crowd on the unspeakable immoralities of the present administration, never seeing the people without, those who do not have. Now he is completely caught up in the brilliance of his own morality, and lets the campaign close with no further mention of the real issues.

What about the Negro who cannot vote, who cannot work at a "white man's" job, who has his churches bombed and his homes destroyed when he tries to register to vote, and who then must watch the local judge give the convicted men a five-year suspended sentence—is this not a moral problem? Goldwater voted against civil rights. He says it should be handled by the states, just as they have handled it for the last 100 years, just as the judge handled it who let the bombers go free.

Romney Files Complaint Against Ferency

Gov. George Romney filed a complaint Tuesday with the state Fair Campaign Practices Commission and Democratic state Chairman Zolton Ferency immediately charged Romney with "being caught in the web of his own contradictions."

Romney said he filed the complaint as a result of a leaflet being distributed in Negro areas charging "Romney is against equal housing rights."

Romney said the leaflet uses racial prejudice for election purposes and the statement contained therein is only part of what he said at the Michigan Real Estate Association convention Sept. 4.

State Total Nears 3 Million

Local voters followed the state and national trend Tuesday with heavy and steady turnouts at the polls.

East Lansing City Clerk Mary Slavik reported over 7,500 votes cast by 4:30 p.m. in the city's 11 precincts.

"There was a steady line of voters all day, rather than just in peak hours, as in the 1960 election," Miss Slavik said.

At least 95 per cent of the city's 12,113 registered voters were expected to have voted, she added.

In 1960, 93 per cent of the registered voters went to the polls.

Miss Slavik reported excellent returns on the 833 absentee ballots mailed.

Voting was heavy and steady in Lansing's 78 precincts.

Voters were at the polls early Tuesday morning. They formed a steady line all day, according to Deputy Clerk Theo Fulton.

By 4 p.m. over 2,500 of the 2,794 absentee ballots had been returned.

All over the state heavy voter turnout appeared to top the predicted 3 million.

In western parts of the state, voter turnout prior to 8 a.m. was as much as four times above normal. In some Detroit precincts voters had to wait more than an hour to cast their ballots.

As usual, the first precinct reporting was Pointe aux Barques, a tiny and traditionally Republican community at the tip of the Michigan thumb. Voting there indicated a Johnson landslide.

Case Residents
Eat Johnson Up

Hundreds of hungry students in Case Hall cast their ballots for LBJ Tuesday.

In honor of the election, the usual bacon, lettuce and tomato sandwiches served for lunch in Case cafeteria were renamed "LBJ's." Spanish rice became "Goldwater rice."

Goldwater lost out, as the students picked LBJ's by a 3 to 1 margin.

The Symposium on American Women in Science and Engineering held at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology last week exploded the stereotype of women in these fields, according to Laurine Fitzgerald, assistant dean of students.

The conference was sponsored by the Association of Women Scientists (AWS) at MIT and was attended by more than 300 women from colleges and universities across the country.

Representatives from MSU, accompanied by Miss Fitzgerald, were Carolyn Burk, Bay City senior and mathematics major; Karen Heffner, Redlands, Calif., senior and mechanical engineering major; Anne Greenawalt, Wilmette, Ill., senior and first vice president of AWS; and Virginia Shires, Florence, Ala., junior and chemistry major.

All agreed the conference was very stimulating and worthwhile. Miss Heffner said it was "reassuring to see so many other women in the same situation."

Speakers were men and women from prominent positions in industry, education, science and technology.

"They made it clear that women are as capable and as needed as men in the scientific and technical fields," Miss Greenawalt said.

"The speakers also pointed out that women can enter these fields without losing their femininity and can successfully combine marriage and a professional career," Miss Burk added.

The four women will discuss the conference at an AWS assembly meeting Nov. 16.

They also plan to make a report on women in science and engineering to be distributed to residence halls, academic advisers and department heads.

AUSG Asks Petitions For Study
Of Campus-Wide Radio Station

Petitions will be available today for the investigating staff of an all-University radio station.

"All University Student Government (AUSG) is studying the feasibility of a campus-wide radio station, Warren Platt, AUSG vice president for special projects and St. John's, Ariz., senior, said.

"If it is possible, we hope to have it in operation by the end of winter term," he said.

There are now two radio stations on campus, one in Shaw Halls and the other in the Brody group of residence halls.

"We need to investigate Federal Communications Commission regulations and the administration's feelings in the matter," Platt said.

Once Understudy For Lewis, Gordon Follows In Footsteps

Two years in the shadow of an All-American and a slow start this year didn't stop Spartan senior Dick Gordon from his finest hour that won him honors as the United Press International Midwest Back of the week.

Gordon, a 20-year old from Cincinnati, set a state record for a conference game by rushing 199 yards in 13 carries -- better than 15 yards a try--in MSU's 22-6 victory over Wisconsin Saturday.

Included were a 75-yard touch-down gallop, a 57-yard sprint that set up another score and a 26-yard dash, all from scrimmage.

Playing behind speedster Sherman Lewis for two years, Gordon carried the ball only 14 times and most of his time on the field was confined to defense when top-liners were injured.

This season, while Coach Duffy Daugherty was perplexed for the first time in years for lack of backs, Gordon got off to a slow start. In the first three games he was good for only 100 yards. Then came Indiana and an 81-yard performance. Against Northwestern, the 5-10, 178-pounder topped the century mark by five yards in 17 carries. The Wisconsin game followed.

The NEWS In

SPORTS

The sudden rise from obscurity to prominence could make Gordon one of State's best-known backs before the season is over.

On the season to date he has gained 485 yards for an average of 6.7 a carry. At a school rich in backfield tradition, Gordon could crack the top five all-time state ball carriers.

The leader, single-wing tail-back Sonny Grandelius of the 1950 squad, with 1,023 yards, is out of reach. But No. 3 Leroy Bolden at 691 and No. 4 George Saimes at 642 yards are well within reach.

AND 'NOT ENOUGH'

$194,000 Bill For Athletes

Editor's Note: Constructing an athletic program, while but a minor aspect in the structuring of an entire University, runs up a tab well over a $1 million annually. Nearly $200,000 of this sum is spent annually to lure prospective high school athletes to Michigan State. The qualifications that go hand-in-hand in the awarding of athletic tenders are explained below in the final of a series of articles on Spartan sports expenditures.

By MIKE BROOKS

State News Sports Writer

Free: One year of a college education. Terms: Attend practice sessions, keep up the grades. This was the situation facing 70 prospective MSU athletes last spring when they accepted athletic tenders for their first year of college.

Last year's budget for tenders, familiarly termed "athletic scholarships", was $194,000, according to athletic business manager John Laetz.

Laetz said MSU is sometimes forced to give out less than the allotted amount of tenders because there isn't enough money in this section of the budget.

In order to keep his free education, and earn a renewal the following year, an athlete must meet two qualifications. First, he must attend all team practice sessions.

Second, the athlete must maintain a satisfactory academic average.

The Big Ten Commission has set 1.75 as the minimum grade-point average an athlete must maintain to be eligible to compete.

MSU, however, requires that the athlete maintain an average above the conference minimum.

Gayle Mikles, assistant to Athletic Director "Biggie" Munn, supervises the handling of tenders.

As a supervisor, Mikles checks to see that potential Spartans are qualified to get into MSU, and, once in, if they are qualified, to stay.

There are two factors which determine whether an athlete can enter MSU on a tender. He must either have a high percentile ranking in his graduating class or he must achieve certain scores on either the College Boards or the American College Testing exam.

For example, a student in the 50th percentile must score 18 of a possible 34 points on the American College exam and 795 out of a possible 1600 on the College Boards.

All out-of-state students are required to take the Boards exam.

Statistics have shown that in two out of three cases a student is capable of making it through school if he can fulfill these requirements.

The Big Ten Committee, headed by Commissioner Bill Reed, determines how many tenders each school can give.

Munn has the job of setting up the tender budget.

Thirty of the 70 tenders allotted MSU this year went to football candidates.

Baseball, wrestling, swimming, basketball and track and cross-country were given six each.

Golf, gymnastics and tennis each received two.

Since soccer and hockey are not conference sports, they are limited by budget rather than by number.

Each term Mikles inspects the records of all students on athletic tenders.

In an average year, 65 of 80 students who accept tenders as freshmen will eventually graduate from MSU.

Political Parallels: Yesterday - Today

By DAVE STEWART
State News Staff Writer

One factor which detracts from the uniqueness of this and all presidential campaigns, is that all the rage and fanfare tends to be repeated every four years.

It wasn't much different than it is now, when 38 years ago the Republican presidential nominee Alfred M. Landon took derisive aim at Franklin Roosevelt's "New Deal."

In many ways the campaign paralleled the Goldwater-Johnson affair. Roosevelt had launched a massive centralized government and intended to maintain this course. But Landon saw it as alien to American tradition, among other things, calling the newly passed Social Security Act a "vote buying gimmick."

During the week before the polls opened the Kansan Landon charged:

"It is the essence of the New Deal that the Constitution must go in order to give men in Washington the power to make America over, to destroy the American way of life and establish a foreign way of life in its place."

He accused Roosevelt of "misrepresenting fact", and said the opposition was "guilty of peddling a lie."

The Republicans' Landon went on to say "the League of Nations has failed. We cannot trust the World Court."

A favorite cliché of the GOP in that campaign was "you can believe Landon."

Speaking to the nation on the eve of the election, President Roosevelt said:

"I prefer to remember this campaign not as bitter but only hard fought. There should be no bitterness or hate when the sole thought is the welfare of the United States of America."

The next day the nation voted a virtual "also ran", Roosevelt won in every state but Maine and Vermont.

Four years later it was Wendell Wilkie attacking Roosevelt for seeking a third term, and claiming the Republicans would keep the nation out of foreign wars.

Said Wilkie on the day before the election, a Roosevelt third term would be the "last step" in the breaking down of democratic principles and would eventually lead to a dictatorship.

The next day Franklin Roosevelt was returned to office. And both in victory and defeat the candidates still faced the people.

After his loss in 1936, Alf Landon concluded that "Under the American system of government the country needs an intelligent, constructive and militant minority... This means the continuation of an active national headquarters that will be able to furnish the people of this country with a fair statement of facts."

He said he could not "fail to realize the deep obligation due to the more than 16 million Americans who voted their convictions."

As for Roosevelt, he just wanted a little rest.

Following the defeat of the GOP ticket in 1940, Wilkie addressed the nation by radio, saying he accepted his loss "with complete good-will." He pledged efforts to being national unity.

It will be interesting to see just what the loser of this 1964 campaign will do.

Arts And Letters Majors Notified Of Enrollment

Majors in the College of Arts and Letters will receive notification of enrollment procedures for winter term courses today.

Because the Art Department has already pre-enrolled most of its students, only those who have not seen their advisors need to do so anytime after today.

Enrollment for students in the Department of English will be held Thursday, Friday and Monday. All faculty advisors will be in their offices 8 to 5 p.m. except for classes and lunch hours. English majors and pre-majors must fill out their enrollment cards before they see their advisors.

Undergraduate advisors in the Departments of German and Russian announced their office hours in the letter sent to students. The History and Romance Language Departments will conduct enrollment Nov. 9-18.

Interdepartmental majors may learn their academic advisor's office schedules by consulting the department office of the advisor.

Students in the Department of Linguistics, Oriental and African Languages should make an appointment with James P. Wang, department head.

Office hours of advisors in the Department of Music will be posted on the bulletin board in the Music Building.

Students in the Department of Philosophy should see their advisors according to the following schedule: Monday, S-Z; Nov. 11, L-R; Nov. 13, F-K; and Nov. 17, A-E.

Students in the Department of Religion may see Harry Kimber, head of the department from 10 a.m. to noon every week day. Professor Robert Anderson is in his office from 1 to 2 p.m. All other hours are by appointment.

Cartoonists' Political Art On Display

Political cartoons depicting the 1964 presidential candidates are on exhibition in the second floor show cases of the library.

The 15 original cartoons are on loan from Wayne State University. The cartoons were entries in a contest to find the best political cartoons from newspapers throughout the country. Cecil Jensen, cartoonist for the Chicago Daily News, won first prize in the contest. He is the creator of the comic strip "Little Duffie."

Charles G. (Chuck) Werner, cartoonist for the Indianapolis Star, won second prize. Werner was awarded a Pulitzer Prize at the age of 29, the youngest cartoonist ever to win the award at that time.

Daniel B. Dowling, cartoonist for the New York Herald Tribune, won third prize.

Interlandi, editorial cartoonist for the Los Angeles Times, and Cliff Wirth, free lance cartoonist are also represented in the exhibit.

The cartoons, editorializing the campaign issues, will be on display until Nov. 30.

The cartoons on display are the original, hand-drawn copies.

Pipe, Drum Spectacular

Pageantry Thrills Audience

By LEON WHEELER

Staff Writer

It wasn't necessary to have been an Irishman Monday night to enjoy the performance of the Massed Bands, Drums, Pipes and Dancers of The Royal Inniskilling Fusiliers, The Royal Ulster Rifles, and the Royal Irish Fusiliers (Princess Victoria's), appearing here on the Lecture-Concert Series before a large audience.

There were a variety of colorful and snappy uniforms worn by the bandsmen. Both pipe groups wore the Irish Saffron Kilts, but the Inniskillings wore French Gray jackets and shawls, while the Irish Fusiliers wore dark green jackets and cloaks.

The Drummers dress was similar to that of the Fusiliers, red coats and black trousers, with the exception of the leopard skins worn by the bass and tenor drummers.

Among all the color and the pageantry it was the quick and slow familiar Irish marches, the pipers and dancers who really made the performance.

The program, after a bugle fanfare and the presentation of the colors of the United States and Great Britain consisted of massed band renditions of "It's a Great Day for the Irish" (and it was, too, Notre Dame's football team was voted the number one team in the nation for the first time in ten years), and "Sons of the Brave."

After a ceremonial drum cadence, the drummers were joined by the twanging sound of bagpipes. The pipe groups performed the Piper's Cross to the tune of "Kelly the Lad from Killane," and "Mud Cabin."

Two male dancers were joined by four dancers from the Women's Royal Army Corps and two pipers for a three-hand reel and a jig.

Closing the first half of the program were a group of numbers played by the combined massed band, drums and pipers.

Most of the second half of the program was in concert band formation with each of the three bandmasters Ronald Horn, Maurice Clark and Leo F. Marks conducting several selections from Ireland and from around the world.

Student Hospitalized, 2 Others Hurt In Crash

An MSU sophomore is reported in good condition at St. Lawrence Hospital, Lansing, after being thrown into the windshield of his car Monday evening.

Thomas Downes, 21, of Lincolnwood, Ill., received severe lacerations to the face and head when his car collided with a pickup truck at Hagadorn Road and Mt. Vernon Ave. about 5:30 p.m., East Lansing police said.

A witness told police he saw the pickup truck, a 1964 Ford, from Burchard Drive at high speed. The car swerved to the far right side of the road, narrowly missing a child on a bicycle, then proceeded on the shoulder until it swung sharply to the left and crashed into a truck, he said.

School Districts Hold Technology Meeting

Representatives from Michigan's 50 largest school districts will attend an invitational conference on new educational technology in Erickson Hall today.

Sponsoring the conference is the Learning Systems Institute, a new research and development organization in MSU's College of Education.

"The purpose of the meeting is to expose the schools to the new innovations in industry for record keeping and research," said Ted Ward, director of the institute.

One of the highlights will be the demonstration of a large collection of information processing equipment provided by industrial developers and manufacturers.

The major speaker is John Dogswell, a research director from System Development Corp., Santa Monica, Calif. James Heald, department of Administration, and James Costar, department of Guidance and Personnel Services, will hold seminars for school record-system managers.

"We have had an overwhelming interest in this conference," Ward said, "more than we anticipated."

The meeting is not open to the public.
