

Johnson-Wilson Conference Strives For Common Ground

Nixon, Ike To Meet Goldwater Cuban Turmoil Rumored Spokesmen Decline Comment

WASHINGTON (P)—Two wings of the Republican party remained on a collision course Tuesday as three of its leaders—Dwight D. Eisenhower, Richard M. Nixon and Barry Goldwater—prepared for a GOP summit conference today.

Goldwater is expected to lead at the New York meeting that the former president and the former vice president support Dean Burch in the crackling battle over the national party chairman.

The clash is expected Jan. 22-23 in Chicago when the 132 members of the GOP National Committee meet to decide, among other things, whether to keep Burch, a Goldwater protege, as national chairman. Each side is lobbying for votes in the committee and Burch supporters say they have enough to beat back any attempt by the so-called liberal-moderate forces to oust Burch.

WASHINGTON (P)—The reported attempt at suicide Tuesday by an ousted member of Fidel Castro's cabinet spurred speculation in official circles here that the Cuban Communist regime is involved in a critical power struggle.

Internal strife within the Cuban government, reminiscent of similar occurrences in other Communist bloc countries—most recently in the Soviet Union—appears to have been under way in Cuba for many months.

U.S. officials said it is too early to evaluate the seriousness of the struggle apparently now in progress in Cuba. But they said the reported suicide attempt by Cuban Labor Minister Augusto Martinez Sanchez is by no means the first sign of internal strife in the Havana regime.

Havana Radio reported Martinez shot himself in the head after being told he was out. Only recently the Castro government announced suspension from office of Joaquin Ordoqui, 70, a member of the Cuban Communist party and undersecretary of the armed forces. It said his activities—chiefly quartermaster in Raúl Castro's ministry—are under investigation. Cuban exiles speculated his suspension likely is political.

Last week a mysterious shooting was reported in the Presidential Palace in Havana. Details of that incident, and its political implications, are yet to be made known outside Cuba. Internal political troubles in the Castro regime come at a time when the Cuban regime apparently is facing increasing problems on two fronts. One is that its diplomatic and trade isolation appears to be more acute, and its economy is in a mess by admission of Castro government officials.

There have been reports that some elements of the Castro regime have sounded out Cuban exile leaders on the possibility of replacing Castro. U.S. officials say they have heard of such reports, but have no information to substantiate them.

They do not discount the possibility, however, that disillusioned elements in the armed forces and other sectors may be looking around for some alternatives to Castro.

Observers here believe a big problem in Cuba, economically and politically, may be the change of regime in Moscow and the possibility of some change of policy regarding Castro, long regarded as more friendly to Red China than to the Soviet Union.

WASHINGTON (P)—President Johnson and British Prime Minister Harold Wilson continued their efforts Tuesday to find a common basis for a revolutionary reorganization of the Western world's nuclear defense.

The two leaders and their top advisers met for an hour and 40 minutes before lunch. A fourth meeting was set for later in the day to wind up two days of almost uninterrupted conferences which, some observers predict, may lay the foundation for true nuclear cooperation across the Atlantic.

But spokesmen on both sides continued to caution that the Johnson-Wilson meetings are not aimed at reaching any decisions on the delicate problem of how to create a new nuclear structure for the Atlantic Alliance. Such a decision, they said, can be made only with the consensus of the allies.

While Johnson and his guest were mostly alone during their two Monday conferences, joining their advisers only briefly for what a spokesman called "cross reporting," Tuesday they held a joint conference in the cabinet room of the White House.

Another new feature of Tuesday's session was the presence of Vice President-elect Hubert H. Humphrey, an innovation which may indicate the President's desire to let his deputy play a major role in shaping foreign policy. Humphrey, an official noted, is well known and well liked in Europe, especially in countries with labor governments.

Both George Reedy, the President's press secretary, and T. Lloyd Hughes, Wilson's public relation adviser, were extremely reticent after the mid-morning conference. They described the talks as a "developing discussion" in the course of which NATO and the multilateral force issue were "the broad subject matters."

Wilson began explaining his government's ideas on NATO's nuclear future—and its objections to the MLF—at the Monday afternoon conference. Yesterday's talks represented "an extension of the discussions of Monday," Reedy reported.

Irish Urge Support For Soviet Penalty

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (P)—Ireland appealed to the smaller nations Tuesday to oppose firmly and vigorously any attempt to establish a big power financial veto over U.N. peacekeeping.

In a speech that reflected concern of many small U.N. member states Irish Foreign Minister Frank Aiken told the General Assembly that any attempt to establish that kind of veto could only be regarded as a revolutionary act designed to destroy the Assembly's financial powers.

Aiken also delivered a spirited defense of Article 19 of the U.N. charter under which the Soviet Union faces loss of its Assembly vote because it is more than two years behind in its peacekeeping assessments.

"It is more than a question of dollars and cents," he said. "The very survival of the U.N. as at present constituted, with its checks and balances between the Security Council and Assembly, is involved."

Aiken said the Assembly has the right to assess every member for its share of the expenses of implementing its decisions, and each has the duty to pay even if it is opposed to any particular decision.

"If we are to make a successful stand on this issue which is vital to the life of the United Nations, that means so much to the smaller members, we must submit, stand firm now."

The Soviet Union contends that the assessments for Middle East and The Congo peacekeeping were illegal because they were approved by the Assembly instead of the Council. France takes a similar view.

The United States supports the idea of recognizing the Council's major role in peacekeeping.

Mobs Sack Library; Burn American Flag

JAKARTA, Indonesia, (P)—A U.S. spokesman said Tuesday police reinforcements in Surabaya arrived Monday night only after mobs sacked the U.S. Information Service Library and burned the American flag.

In the meantime, the embassy spokesman said, the mobs for nearly 30 minutes ranged unchecked through the library, smashing windows and heaving books and furniture in the street to be burned.

It was the second attack in four days on U.S. libraries. The one in Jakarta was sacked Friday, U.S. Ambassador Howard P. Jones filed a strong protest with the foreign ministry in the Jakarta incident, but he has not yet done so in the sacking at Surabaya.

In both instances the demonstrators protested U.S. intervention in the Congo to save white hostages from leftist rebels and American support for Malaysia. Indonesia has vowed to crush Malaysia.

The spokesman said that latest reports from U.S. Consul Allan McLean in Surabaya reported two rooms of the library were demolished and about 25 per cent of the library's 16,000 books were burned or torn up.

About 1,000 of the mob forced their way into the building by smashing the doors. The mob sprayed gasoline on the U.S. flag and burned it along with books and furniture hauled from the library. No Americans were in the library at the time.

The spokesman said the incidents at Surabaya and Jakarta took place despite assurances given to the embassy about a month ago "by the high Indonesian authorities" that no attacks would be permitted against U.S. property.

As a report on the Surabaya attack was given to reporters, a group of about 100 youths paraded outside the embassy chanting anti-American slogans. The embassy gates were shut and Indonesian riot police were outside but the youths made no attempt to invade the embassy.

New 'Front Door' Opened By Hagadorn Widening

The University's east entrance will be given a boost next year when the University, the City of East Lansing and Ingham County cooperate on the widening of Hagadorn Road.

The current two-lane roadway has long been considered inadequate to serve the future needs of the University and the entire area, Ralph H. Sweinberger, an MSU landscape engineer, said.

Hagadorn Road, which marks the eastern boundary of the campus, plays a big part in the University's campus development plans. President Hannah has said that he expects the east entrance to the campus at Shaw Lane and Hagadorn Road to become the "front door" of the University in the same way that the Abbot Entrance on Grand River Avenue has been in the past.

Sweinberger said, however, that if the University was the only governing body which felt a need for the road widening, it would be playing a larger part in the project.

The University's part in the road widening consists mainly of donating the right-of-way for two additional Hagadorn lanes that are to be constructed between Mount Hope Road and the Red Cedar River.

Construction costs will be paid by Ingham County. North of the river, East Lansing will pay all construction costs. Hagadorn will be widened to three or four lanes across Grand River Avenue to either Albert Avenue or Burcham Drive, depending on the amount allotted for the project by the City Council.

The need for more than the current two traffic lanes has long been apparent, according to East Lansing city engineers. Traffic surveys have shown that the road is currently overloaded.

Sweinberger said Hagadorn Road is considered a main north-south artery of Ingham County as well as a major University thoroughfare. The University requested that the city and the county consider widening the road, but it is not just for the convenience of the University that the project is being undertaken, he said.

Contracts are expected to be let for both parts of the widening project some time next spring. Completion of the work is expected by the end of 1965, and the portion of the widening to be handled by East Lansing may be finished by next summer.

The existing bridge across the Red Cedar River on Hagadorn is expected to be sufficient for the completed roadway.

The widening will be completed before the opening of the high-rise dormitory to be built along Hagadorn in the University's east campus complex.

Army Mops Up Rioting Of Southern Sudanese

KHARTOUM, Sudan (P)—Thousands of Sudanese blacks were herded into Omdurman Football Stadium and a makeshift camp in the heart of this city Tuesday to spare them from Arab violence.

Army units joined in a vast rescue operation requested by leaders of the Southern Negro community after bloody racial rioting which killed an estimated 38 persons and injured more than 500, including five Americans.

Calm returned to the Sudanese capital but columns of armored cars and steel helmeted troops watched tensely ready to smother any new sign of violence.

Mrs. Winifred Broccoli of Park City, Utah, wife of a U.S. embassy official, suffered a deep cut on the arm. Her year-old daughter, Dominique, had superficial cuts on her face.

Men 'Treed' By Patrolman

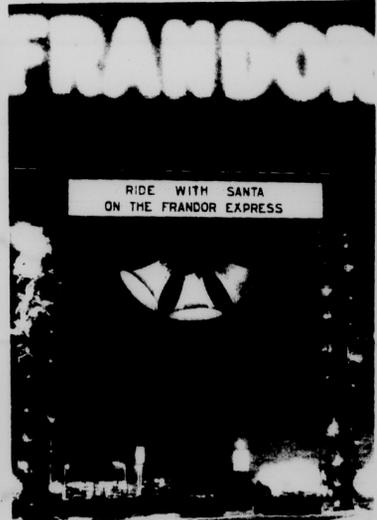

Two MSU students whose Christmas spirits rose in the wee hours Saturday had them dampened Monday morning by Judge William H. Wise.

John A. Dennis, Minot, N.D., sophomore, and Eugene L. Adolph, Port Huron freshman, paid fines of $75 each after pleading guilty in East Lansing Municipal Court to taking a city Christmas tree from the median strip on Grand River Avenue near Haslett Street.

East Lansing police said a patrolman watched the two students remove the blue lights from the tree and proceed to carry it off.

When, Where and How

Effective use of political power consists of knowing when, where and how to apply pressure to achieve a desired change in policy.

At the University of California, Berkeley, thousands of students have staged mass demonstrations this fall in an effort to change administration policies regarding campus political activity.

When the University began enforcing a ban on fund-raising activities for political purposes on the campus, a large group of students formed the "Free Speech Movement."

Continuous non-violent demonstrations resulted in a vote by the Board of Regents to lift the ban on campus political fund-raising. However, the students were not satisfied.

They are now demanding that the University allow political activity on the campus for illegal purposes. In other words, if a student group wants to raise funds to promote violent overthrow of the U.S. government, the "Free Speech Movement" thinks the University should sanction such activity.

Hundreds of students were arrested last week after they refused to discontinue a sit-in at Sproul Hall (Berkeley's administration building.) The following day, the leaders of the Free Speech Movement called a general student strike which cut class attendance in half.

The Larcenous Legislator

The recent discovery of a Michigan state representative's long felony record points out a need for routine checks on the background of newly-elected state legislators.

Daniel West, who served one term in the state legislature from Detroit's 6th District and was re-elected last November from the 24th District, has an FBI record as a felon who served sentences for house breaking, larceny and forgery in two states and the District of Columbia.

Michigan law prohibits persons who have served jail sen-

It is entirely possible that further compromise may be necessary in the dispute over student rights.

However, the students are in danger of going from the sublime to the ridiculous in their aims.

Ideally, there should be no bans on speech of any kind. However, the laws of the United States render organizations illegal if they advocate violent overthrow of the government.

The Free Speech Movement at Berkeley cannot reasonably expect the trustees of a state-supported university to sanction illegal political activity on the campus.

Opposition to any law must be carried out within a framework of reason. It must be directed at the right source. The California Board of Regents does not decide whether certain political activities are illegal, and it cannot break the laws which are made by duly elected legislative bodies.

The original aim of the students--to obtain the right to raise funds for political purposes on campus--was a laudable one. The success of the Free Speech Movement at Berkeley in obtaining a change in University policy could serve as a model to dissatisfied students at other universities.

Other schools, including Michigan State, would do well to imitate the intense political interest on the Berkeley campus.

However, any political group becomes ridiculous when it goes too far. The Free Speech Movement at Berkeley is now in the process of going too far.

tences from holding public office.

West (incidentally, that's an assumed name) was discovered after he was arrested on charges of aiding and abetting false registration of voters in the Sept. 1 primary.

While another West may never appear in state government, a routine check on newly-elected legislators to make sure that they do not have criminal records might quash any further attempts at such chicanery.

However, there should be no investigation into any other aspects of a legislator's personal life.

Now the vending machines are truly perfected. I put in my dime, selected the candy bar, pulled the proper lever, and out came my coke.

Projected figures estimate that MSU will have 100,000 students by 1984. We should be ready for a seat in the U.N. by 2000.

This column even made the Letters to the Editor. I'm surprised that anyone has the guts to admit publicly that they read Red Cedar Report.

Students Defend Bible As Work Of Historic, Philosophic, Poetic Interest

To the Editor:

Your attack on the Bible indicates that you have been misinformed about the book's purpose. It was never intended to serve as an all-inclusive text book to end all text books.

I would like to make a suggestion. Reread the Bible, Mr. McFarland. No, I'm not making a noble effort to gently lead (or drag) a little lost lamb back into the fold.

I have heard well-learned, non-Christian men praise the Bible as the greatest and most beautiful piece of literature ever written even though they believe that religion itself is a farce.

Try again!

Mary Johnson

To the Editor:

In his letter to the editor on Tuesday, Mr. McFarland states that one of the major reasons he is not a Christian is because he has read the Bible "thoroughly," implying that, because of the supposed disagreement of a list of biblical references with scientific fact or theory, the Bible is of little or no value in the support of the worth of Christianity.

I respectfully submit that his evidence is neither complete nor well-founded, and does not, in any case, lead to his conclusion.

Much of Mr. McFarland's "evidence" consists of selecting passages out of context, distorting their wording and intent, and presenting them in a sarcastic vein aimed at the uninformed. This is emotional appeal, not logical argument. This seems strange behavior from one so seemingly concerned with scientific rigor.

Nevertheless, even assuming the validity of his criticism of selected references, the most that could logically be concluded would be that certain Biblical passages should not be interpreted literally and out of context. However, there is no justification presented for denigrating all of Christianity in one fell swoop.

SEC Educates Underprivileged

By RICK GRINGHUIS, State News Staff Writer

"One of the benefits of a college education is to show it to a little boy."

As the Student Education Corps (SEC) swells its ranks, many more children can be given the incentive to stay in school.

"We're working with some adults of Spanish extraction who are enrolled in night school," said Frank Blanco, SEC coordinator.

The SEC has moved into 12 of the Lansing schools. "The reason for this is not that they are sub-standard. But there is such a wide range of economic and ability levels that one teacher cannot handle them all," Blanco said.

"We can augment the teachers' role. This leaves them free to do a more effective job."

Blanco said that the program has been fully endorsed by the schools. Many schools would like more help, Blanco said, but "we just don't have the personnel to go as far as we'd like."

"We've now become the official clearing house for other programs of this type," said Blanco. Last spring the SEC had 180 workers in the field.

"We have more now," he said, "but we still would like to increase our membership. We need more people."

SEC is not connected with the College of Education. "Anybody with a block of time and the interest can join," said Blanco. "The sense of fulfillment is the most gratifying part of our work."

Information on joining the SEC can be obtained from 314 Student Services.

To the Editor:

May I comment upon a matter of biblical exegesis in Mr. Taylor's letter which appeared in your column on Dec. 4.

Although the title of the book of Genesis is transliterated from the Greek, I think he will discover, upon re-examination, that the body of the work is written in Hebrew, not Greek. It may be that he has the Septuagint in mind!

In addition, the Greek word for "day" does have a definite English equivalent (i.e.: "day") and does have special and restricted meanings, but they need not be considered now.

In view of such erudition, Greek 102 welcomes Mr. Taylor with open arms. Haec scripsi festinans.

'Good Behavior' Points Proposed

To the Editor:

(Attention girls of Landon)

In the past several weeks the demerit point system used in your dormitory has come to my attention, and, perhaps because of my academic interest in the behavioral sciences, I have become interested in it as a means of controlling behavior.

When first hearing of the system, I assumed that it was a method whereby the girls concerned could be punished for undesired behavior in the hope that such behavior might not be repeated, under the threat of further punishment.

It is here, then, that I must take exception to your point system, for in its present form it is incomplete, and cannot accomplish its intended purpose.

Though I am a novice to the behavioral sciences, I have been instructed many times that if one wishes to "teach" new behavior, he must not just extinguish the undesired behavior, but reinforce that which is desired.

The good points might be labeled "G" points to contrast them with "D" (demerit) points. After this improvement is made, others such as double-point days during periods of the week when it is more difficult to be "ladylike," and balancing of "G" and "D" points at some suitable ratio of exchange, might follow.

Railroad Unions Set Strike Deadline

CHICAGO—Three shop unions called Tuesday a nationwide railroad strike for Dec. 15—near the start of the Christmas holiday travel period—for a wage hike larger than that recommended by a presidential board.

The unions, representing about 53,000 machinists, electrical workers and sheet metal workers, reinstated a strike call originally set for Nov. 23 but then postponed. They reinstated it after negotiations with the carriers reached a stalemate in Washington Monday.

A walkout, if other railroad unions decline to pass through picket lines, could tie up 90 per cent of the nation's rail traffic at a time when passengers are making Christmas travel plans and shipment of Christmas parcels is at a peak.

Scranton Pays Unannounced Visit To Ike

GETTYSBURG, Pa.—Pennsylvania's Gov. William W. Scranton paid an unannounced visit to former President Dwight D. Eisenhower Tuesday, a visit which lasted for several hours.

The visit came amid the growing controversy within the Republican party over its leadership by national chairman Dean Burch.

They met at Eisenhower's office here. The governor arrived during the noon hour and the conference lasted until after 2 p.m. There was no immediate inkling of the nature of their discussions.

MINEX Bigger, Better

Studies In Africa Expanded

MINEX will be bigger and better next year, its coordinator announced today.

Short for Michigan State University—University of Nigeria Exchange Program, MINEX was initiated last summer when 31

MSU students studied five weeks at the University of Nigeria.

Irving R. Wyeth, director of MINEX, has announced that 30 MSU students will study in Africa next summer.

But the second year program will be bigger and better.

Not only will the 1965 MINEX run three weeks longer for a total of two months study, but also a group of Nigerian students will study at MSU to round out the exchange next summer.

Any MSU student who expects to enroll during winter and spring terms is eligible to apply for the trip.

The 30 students will leave the United States in July.

"They will be taking course work that is distinctly African in nature," Wyeth said.

Junior and senior courses will deal with educational, social, cultural and political life in Nigeria and Africa.

All classes are taught in English, the official language of Nigeria.

Credits earned during the session will be accepted by MSU.

In addition to study on the campus in Nsukka, students will take extensive field trips through Nigeria.

A faculty member and his wife will act as group leaders for the students.

Cost per student is estimated by Wyeth at $750. This price includes transportation, tuition, housing, meals and incidentals.

Much of the program is financed by the U.S. Bureau of Educational and Cultural Affairs.

Charles Hughes, director of the African Studies center, calls the first year program a resounding success. "The students got from the experience just what we anticipated they would," Hughes said. "We hope that we can duplicate this next year."

Michigan State has worked closely with the University of Nigeria since it helped found the institution in 1960, the same year in which the African nation won its independence.

During the past four years, student enrollment has jumped from 220 to 2,500 and faculty members now number over 270.

About 30 MSU faculty members are now serving in Nsukka under long-term contracts between MSU and the University of Nigeria supported by the U.S. Agency for International Development.

Applications are being taken now by Wyeth in 109 Center for International Programs or by calling 353-0656.

Beatle Beds Help Charity

HOUSTON (UPI)—The Houston Volunteer Patients Fund for the Mentally Ill is richer, thanks to Beatles Ringo Starr and George Harrison.

Two beds occupied by the Beatles in Dallas last September were donated to the Patients Fund recently by the Cabana, a plush Dallas motel. The twin beds were put on display last week, and for $1, Beatles fans were allowed to take a historic look.

Around 1,100 youngsters, including 50 boys, showed up to stretch out on the beds, have their pictures taken or just look.

The money raised will go for Christmas presents for the patients in the Austin State Mental Hospital.

The names of 15 youths were drawn as finalists. They will write essays on the Beatles for the top prize...the beds. The bed linens will also be given away as prizes.

City Council Passes More Parking Rules

Two more parking regulations affecting Michigan State students were passed Monday night by the East Lansing City Council. A one-hour parking limit has been set for parking in front of the Michigan State Police headquarters on Harrison Road. City Manager John M. Patrian said students will be allowed to park in the area between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. The new ruling is a result of a letter sent by State Police Commissioner Joseph A. Childs complaining that several MSU students have been using the area as a parking lot. A similar letter was sent by the East Lansing Public Library Board of Trustees requesting that the parking lot and driveways on library property be designated as city streets to eliminate cars from being parked overnight and through the following day. Council also adopted a zoning ordinance which could eventually help the city solve problems caused by old housing. The ordinance allows for the erection of new office or professional buildings in the R-4 zones which are now residential and include apartments, single-family duplex houses and churches.

Groups Compete For Power

Segmented Africa Explained

The idea of the segmented state in Africa was explained by Aidan Southall, Monday evening in the Center for International Programs. Southall, professor of anthropology at the East Africa Institute at Syracuse University, explained that in a segmented state local chiefs have jurisdiction over specific areas while they pay allegiance to a central government. In the segmental system, he said, it is through competition of the various local units that authority is ascribed. Speaking specifically of Alur, Africa, Southall said the political units are also sub-centered, for there are a series of units claiming jurisdiction. "Though it may be a little too clear cut," said Southall, "one could think of the political units of Alur as a line of ruling chiefs, followed by less important chiefs, then clan heads and finally lineage heads." In Alur, explained Southall, there are two forms by which a chief's ruling lines may be perpetuated. The first form is by "kidnapping the chief's son." By this method local groups apply to the chief if they desire the chief's son to live among them for either reasons of prestige or to have a more informal presence of authority. Following a ritual of catching the son, he is taken to the village of the groups and a home for him is set up. The second form is when a chief's son is sent to a neighboring village to rule foreigners at the request of his father. His authority can increase there until he reaches nearly the stature of a chief. His move into another village results in a second level of the political segmentary system tying the groups together, said Southall. If the group dislikes the son of one chief, Southall said, the group may go to another chief and the process begins all over with another chief's son. He said it appeared evident there was also segmentation in Hawaii before 1819 with complementary opposition between the local groups, but all groups recognized the head leader.

Case Hall and Kappa Alpha Theta-Sigma Nu were winners, respectively in the residence hall and off-campus divisions of the campus College Bowl contest Sunday. Case defeated the East Shaw-Gilchrist team, and the Theta and Sigma Nus beat Gamma Phi Beta-Triangle. Scores were 200-170 and 205-115. Competition will not resume until the first winter term match on Jan. 17.

Seniors Of The Week

Hall Government: Common Interest

Dormitory government draws the interests of Gary Wright of Pontiac, and Shari Adams of Battle Creek, this week's seniors of the week.

"Our residence hall program is one of the best in the country," says Shari. "We are really looked up to because of it. Michigan State is really a leader in the Big Ten. We were cited as a good example of the living-learning residence hall program."

Shari is secretary of the Big Ten Residence Halls Assn. and chairman of its president's council. The association's purpose is to exchange information about the various Big Ten Schools' residence hall programs.

"My main job is co-ordinating. My office is available for any type of information about residence hall government and set-up," she said.

As president of Phillips last year, Shari belonged to Presidents' Council. The year before, she was vice president of Phillips. Shari has also belonged to W.C. J-Council, Spartan Roundtable and Circle Honorary.

She has also worked three years on Water Carnival.

Gary, also, thinks of himself as a co-ordinator as president of Men's Hall Association (MHA).

"My job is to serve the presidents of the men's halls and represent their views," Gary says. "We co-ordinate such things as movies, fall mixers, Spartan Street Stomp and dress regulations."

Gary is one of 10 members of the student government Re-Evaluation Committee. Representing every area of student activity, these students are evaluating the roles of governmental units to make recommendations for possible changes.

"We meet four hours a week and attend various other meetings," he said.

Gary has also been president of Armstrong and its social chairman. He is a member of the honoraries, Excalibur and Blue Key.

A special education major, Shari is very interested in working with the mentally handicapped.

"It's more of a personal challenge to me," she says. "Just because their intellectual capacity is low, they still have the right to be taught to their level."

After her wedding next August, Shari plans to work on her master's degree and teach in the Detroit area.

Gary is a business education major. "Right now I'm more interested in business, public relations or sales. I need this experience so I can teach. You can't learn human relations through a textbook," he said.

Michigan Political Scene To Be Conference Topic

The Romney administration, legislative reapportionment and other aspects of the Michigan political scene will be spotlighted at a two-day conference here beginning Thursday.

Teachers of political science and government from some 37 Michigan colleges, universities and community colleges have been invited to discuss these and other issues with political authorities at the Kellogg Center for Continuing Education.

The annual faculty workshop is sponsored by the Michigan Center for Education in Politics and the MSU Department of political science.

Five major papers will be read at the meeting which begins with an evening session on Thursday and ends at noon Saturday.

The papers and those presenting them are: "General Evaluation and Progress Under the Romney Administration," by Walter Devries, executive assistant to the governor; "ADC-U" by Samuel Kriglov, University of Minnesota; "Implementation of the New Michigan Constitution in the Romney Administration," Richard Curry, Eastern Michigan University; "Governor Romney and the Republican Party," Charles E. Schutz, Albion College, and "Reapportionment of the Michigan State Legislature," Charles W. Schull, Wayne State University.

The sponsoring Michigan Center for Education in Politics, composed of some 68 member institutions and organizations, is dedicated to updating political science and government teachers in higher education and providing opportunities for college students to become active in politics and to learn the virtues of their political systems through concrete experience in it.

Bailey-Butterfield Schedules Party

Area underprivileged children will be treated by men and women of Bailey and Butterfield Halls to a party in 151 Brody at 1:30 p.m. Sunday.

According to co-chairmen of the event, Alan Rokeach and Connie Bailey, toys valued at over $800 will be given to the 63 children with movies and refreshments completing the program.

Adventure Starts Dec. 20

More than 100 students from 45 nations will take part in MSU's 21st annual Adventure in World Understanding, designed to advance the hope of peace in the world.

Young men and women from Africa, Asia, the Middle East, the Far East, Europe and North and South America will meet together, for a period of 10 days beginning Dec. 20 at the Kellogg Center.

MSU professors and leaders of business, industry and the professions will lead discussions of various aspects of the impact of industrialization on a people.

The participants will join in cross-cultural discussions of problems arising from advancing technology.

"The Challenge of Change," is the theme of this year's event.

The program is planned to help each student to see himself and his contemporaries as products of their own particular heritages and cultures and to understand that if they lived at this time in another country, in a different situation, they might feel differently about the issues confronting the world.

Each of the foreign students will learn more about his American hosts in a day-long tour of Flint's Buick plant, Mott Foundation and Cultural Center, an overnight visit to a mid-Michigan farm family and a Christmas Eve visit with an urban family.

The Adventure is financed by contributions from industries, organizations and individuals.

Mrs. Louise Carpenter of the MSU Continuing Education Service is director of the program; Russell Kleis of the MSU College of Education, the chairman of its advisory committee and Robert Immel director of Continuing Education at Albion College, chairman of its program committee.

Theft Reported By Dick Tracy

Run as far and fast as he may, the thief who stole $75 from 213 Akers Hall Wednesday will never get away with it—one of his victims was Dick Tracy.

Campus police said Richard C. (Dick) Tracy and Howard W. English, both Trenton freshmen, reported the money stolen from their room. They said Tracy lost $10 and English $65.

Tracy, magnanimous in fame, decided to let MSU detectives have a try at solving the case.

NORAD Reports On Arms

MINE MAN--Lewis J. Patterson, a 1939 MSU graduate, was recently elected president of the Quebec Carrier Mining Company. The company operates extensive iron ore holdings in Quebec.

The United States presently has no adequate defense against attack by inter-continental ballistic (ICBM) missiles, the MSU Men's Club learned Tuesday. Speaking direct from the headquarters of the North American Air Defense Command (NORAD) in Colorado Springs, Colo., through a special telephone hook-up, Maj. Al Davis said there are presently two experimental possibilities for correcting the situation. One, he said, is the Nike Zeus missile, and the other is the Nike "X," both experimental anti-missile missiles. It would take much time, however, for either of these to be made operational, he said, since neither is yet definitely proven effective and none are yet installed in missile bases. Defenses against manned bombers, are excellent, Davis said. The Dew Line, Mid-Canada Line and Pine Tree Line in Canada, which are warning systems against attack, make it almost impossible for a plane to get to the U.S., undetected by coming through Canada. Other warning devices in the Atlantic and Pacific Oceans would allow interceptors ample time to destroy enemy planes. Davis also said that the United States is prepared for an immediate counter-attack against Russia should they ever launch an attack against the U.S. If they ever did attack, he said, they would probably hit with everything they have, but added that our defenses would probably be effective against many of the weapons.

New Officers

The Phi Kappa Psi fraternity has elected William Zabriskie, Birmingham senior, as president and Harrison (Skip) Smith, Haslett Junior as vice president. This year's new officers also include: treasurer, Bob Freeborn, Hart, junior; recording secretary, Jim Restrik, Birmingham sophomore; and corresponding secretary, Stan Dayne, Warren Junior. Others are: historian, Terry McElheny, Olean, N.Y., sophomore; sergeant of arms, Rick Powers, Hart Junior; chaplain, Steve Walton, White Plains, N.Y., sophomore; and pledge trainer, Willis Martin, Grand Rapids Junior.

Pi Kappa Phi Elects President

Federal Support Deemed Solution To Civil Rights

The South needs a power that will support and enforce the decisions of the Supreme Court, a civil rights official told an audience of about 200 students and faculty members here Monday. Charles Morgan Jr., recently appointed director of the southern regional office of the American Civil Liberties Union, spoke on "The South's Challenge to Civil Liberties." Without a new use of power to enforce federal decisions, there cannot be free voter registration, equal jury participation and a free community where citizens work and eat together, Morgan said. "Education, for example, means nothing in the society of the South. The educated people that are there usually leave. Education can't come until legal rights come," he said. Power lies in the Supreme Court, whose orders could have been enforced by Southern politicians, "the cream of the governmental power in the South. But what happened? The cream of this governmental power curdled," he said. The force of segregation in the South has been insurmountable for 100 years. The Negroes there are trapped. "For 90 per cent of the whites in the South, life is good. They couldn't care less about the Negro's problem. The 10 per cent who care about civil liberties are a minority group and can actually do very little alone," he said. The Southern community has been totally apart from the United States morally, politically and philosophically since the Civil War. He cited as examples the Birmingham church bombings in 1963 and the more recent murder of three civil rights workers in Mississippi. In closing, Morgan pointed out the need for young people under 30 to involve themselves emotionally and physically in the fight for civil liberties in the South.

NET PRODUCT--The Spartans charge the Ohio University net in weekend hockey play at Demonstration Hall. Impressive 12-0 and 13-1 victories over the Bobcats give MSU ice fans good reason to hope that the young squad could have a fine season.

Bessone Lifts An Eyebrow At Surprising Hockey Start

Last weekend's hockey bombardment of Ohio University may have caused Spartan onlookers to do a "double take." In a season earmarked for rebuilding, Spartan skaters notched their fourth win in five games, outscoring Ohio 41-14 in the back-to-back home set. It was enough to raise an eyebrow or two on Coach Amo Bessone, who would like nothing better than an improvement over last year's 8-17-1 mark. Bessone foresaw the possibility of good scoring punch in the pre-season drills when he said, "I felt we should have more scoring potential this year than we've had in the last five."

What was then conjecture became fact Friday and Saturday. For the first time in several seasons, a Spartan team was able to look to more than a lone line for goal production. "All three lines have showed me better than adequate goal eyes," Bessone said, noting the surprising performance of both veteran and rookies. Somewhat overshadowed in last week's victories, however, was the performance of Spartan defenseman Bessone used four sophomores with his two lone veterans, Rookies Bob Brawley and Tom Purdo guarded State's own blue line aggressively, handling out several bruising body-checks.

Almost on par with this pair was that of Ray Corrado and Tom Crowley, who also saw considerable ice action. Sophomore goalie Carl Howell also made a notable home debut, turning in several key saves. One whose absence in the State line-up was quite conspicuous was Mac Orme. Orme, last season's leading scorer, sat out both games to give Bessone's lines more stability. Orme will graduate this term and will be unavailable when State swings into the conference portion of the schedule.

SOCCER TALE RELIVED

The One That Got Away

The game has ended but the memory lingers on. That's the situation that has defined the Spartan soccer fans since Saturday's 1-0 setback to Navy in the NCAA championship game. MSU fans are satisfied with the season's 10-1-2 record and the highest tournament finish in the school's history, but it's only natural to wonder what blocked the Spartans from taking the final step. "Injuries played a big part," Coach Gene Kenney said. "Van Dimitriou did a good job substituting at goalie, but we could have used him on the forward line. It also hurt us when James needed a rest in the third quarter, and it took quite a while before we could get him out of the game." "The weather was another major factor," he added. "Navy played to kick the ball long down the field to get one good shot. We tried to use our usual passing game of working the ball toward the net. The field was a sheet of ice, and it made our style the more difficult of the two." Kenney said that the spectators enjoyed the MSU style of play, however. "Many people came down from the stands after the game to shake my hand and tell me they thought we had given a fine exhibition of soccer," he said. George James, All-American inside right, credited Navy as being a strong team and added that the Spartans were playing under great pressure. Right halfback Terry Bidiak said that as the game developed, the Spartans may have put too much emphasis on defense. "We tried to hold Navy rather than to score," he said. "We did play good defense, but perhaps there was too much reliance on it." Van Dimitriou, who was taken off the forward line and put in the net after regular goalie Charlie Dedich was injured in the Army game, put the blame on injuries. "We got away with key injuries all year," he said, "but they finally caught up with us. I think we outplayed them."

State Mat Leader McClure Grapples With Toughest Foe

You won't find the words "bruised knee" listed on Spartan mat programs, but for top heavyweight Homer McClure, that is the opponent he's been wrestling with so far this season. Unlike McClure's usual foes--one of whom were able to pin him down in dual meet competition last year--this latest challenger has succeeded in containing the 5'9", 250-pounder for the last several months. "Homer was injured some time at the beginning of fall practice," MSU Coach Grady Penninger relates. "It seems so long ago now that I don't exactly remember how it actually happened. He bruised his knee accidentally while practicing and it has stayed with him since then," he said. "We're hoping, however, that Homer will be back before long." While the injury may not have been serious, Penninger explained, it has proved bothersome enough to prevent McClure from engaging in daily workouts and caused him to miss the season opener last Friday against Air Force Academy. And, with this Friday's home meet with Indiana drawing near, McClure must once again be listed as a doubtful starter. Top scorer on the 1963-64 team with 28 points, McClure posted an undefeated dual-meet mark of six wins and five draws. In post-season competition, however, McClure was not as effective, winning one and losing one in the Big Ten meet and dropping his one match in the NCAA tournament. Despite the disappointing finish, McClure was expected to resume his winning ways once again this year and help raise the Spartans from the conference cellar. Filling his vacancy in the heavyweight class has been Jim Maidlow, a junior from Lansing. Jim is the brother of former MSU standout Ken Maidlow, who led the Spartans in scoring in 1958. In his first start this season, Maidlow showed good promise, pinning his Air Force opponent.

Advertising Visit

Members of a national professional advertising fraternity at Michigan State visited the Cambell Edwald Advertising Agency in Detroit Friday. Alpha Delta Sigma members were given a tour which emphasized "togetherness between employees and departments in working functions."

Soviet Skaters At Muskegon

The Olympic and world champion Soviet Russian hockey team will make its first appearance in western Michigan tonight when it takes on the Muskegon Zephyrs at Muskegon's L.C. Walker Arena. The Russian team won their second Olympic title in their last three attempts at Tokyo this fall and will defend the world championship later in the year. Muskegon is a member of the International Hockey League and is considered a strong contender for the loop championship this season.

Revamp For Union Has Begun

Instead of a new face, the Union is getting a new heart. Its heart, the first floor concourse, is being partially remodeled. Michael J. Dmochowski, Union manager, said Tuesday that a new magazine and candy counter is being installed, featuring a campus calendar.

This calendar, to be placed at the west end of the magazine counter, will show all events happening on campus.

The new counter will resemble a miniature shopping center with one entrance and exit. Jack W. Ostrander, assistant manager of the Union said, It will provide extra space for novelties and magazines.

The new magazine counter should provide almost one-third more space than the present one.

Ostrander also explained that the ride board would be moved to the west side of the concourse but that the large lighted campus map would remain where it is.

Another feature of the concourse will be a new ticket office which will occupy the area now known as the southwest alcove.

The new ticket office will have three windows to accommodate the new magazine counter, offer ticket sellers more space to work. It will also have a display area where coming programs will be advertised.

The Union Board Desk will move to the west end of the new magazine counter, beside the Campus Calendar.

Ostrander also said that the Union will have new portable units for the use of organizations wishing to have representatives in the concourse. The units will be on castors and will have circuit type designed fronts.

The area of the old Union Book Store is being remodeled into a lounge and offices for the alumni relations department which is now housed in the Student Services Building.

Dmochowski said that the new facilities should be completed by Dec. 18.

Come On In, Water's Fine

Weems, Va. P--A Navy Pilot who bailed out of his disabled aircraft near this Tidewater Virginia community last week ended things on a nonchalant note.

CMDR. T.M. Kastner, based at Patuxent, Md., Naval Air Station, splashed down into waist-deep water of the Rappahannock River not far up stream from where his Navy jet aircraft went into the water.

A young woman on a pier heard a splash and looked up to see the pilot, about 50 yards away, gathering in his parachute.

In her astonishment she could only say, "Good morning." Kastner casually replied, "Good morning."

Commuter Route

The commuter bus schedule for the winter term will run with service to meet the demand with at least an eight-minute frequency, according to Lyle Borneer, maintenance superintendent.

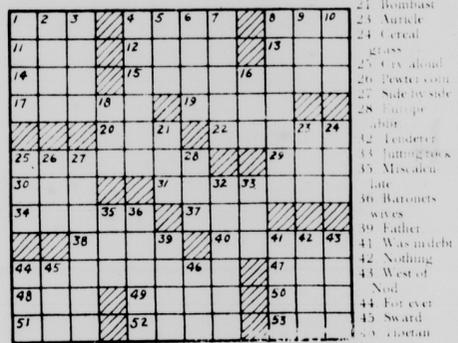

A previous article in the State News stated that the commuter bus would run from 7 a.m. to 6:20 p.m., Monday through Friday at 10-minute intervals.

Science Professors' Study Helped By Many Grants

Several members of the MSU science departments will be carrying on research this year supported by grants from federal agencies and private industry.

Leroy G. Augenstein, professor and chairman of biophysics, will continue study in the relationship of molecular organization to mental function, helped by a grant of $58,995 from the National Institute of Health.

Albert H. Ellingboe, assistant professor of botany, will study the genetics and physiology of plant parasitism, supported by $17,141 from the Institute.

He will play particular attention to the synthesis of compatible, functional relations between host and parasite.

The U.S. Army Research Office at Durham, N.C., has given Harold Hart, professor of chemistry, $15,252 to carry out research on the reactions of aryl carbonium ions.

It has also provided Jerry A. Cowen, associate professor of physics and astronomy with $17,140 to study magnetic phenomena at low temperature.

All four of these grants provide funds to set up graduate research assistantships.

Fritz Herzog, professor of mathematics, will study secants and transversals in linear and projective space, supported by $26,300 from the National Science Foundation.

The Chipman Chemical Co. of Burlingame, Calif., has provided Angus Howitt, associate professor of entomology, with $3,000 to evaluate chemicals for control of fruit insects.

Paul Wooley, professor extension of entomology, will study the use of trizone for the treatment of strawberry and vegetable land, supported by $500 from Dow Chemical Co.

Barrett Faints

East Lansing's inhalator squad rushed to Wonders Hall when Paul H. Barrett, associate professor of natural science, fainted shortly after leaving a class about noon Monday.

Barrett was taken to Edward W. Sparrow Hospital, where a doctor ascribed the illness to overwork and fatigue. He was released early in the afternoon.

Campus-Lansing Bus Rescheduled

The College-Fisher route operating from the campus to Lansing will return to former schedules, officials announced Monday.

Patrons of the line on Grand River & Michigan Avenue had complained because of the schedule change and the firm found it difficult to maintain the new schedules to the minute.

Effective today, frequency on the College-Fisher route will revert to 20-minute service, from 5 a.m. to 7 p.m., 25-minutes until 10:10 p.m., and 30-minutes from then until 12:30 a.m.

The former 40-minute schedule will be reinstated on the Washington Avenue route from 5 a.m. to 9:15 p.m.

State's Director: 'Messiah Mauled'

The director of the University of Michigan's annual Handel's "Messiah" performance is being mauled by musical critics.

Conductor Jewelyn Jones, professor of music, contends that the performance has suffered indignity because of "the un-Handelian and un-Messianic complacency" of performers and listeners alike.

"The Messiah's story is Christmas," Jones said. "It's a great and noble work, but it's subjected to cutting, editing and general mayhem at the hands of choir and chorus directors from the end of the century to the present."

"The Messiah," he added, "is the only work which has been performed by some of the world's greatest musicians, by the finest conductors and the finest singers."

Radio, TV In Store For Seniors

MSU seniors will spend winter term at a Detroit radio station.

Patrick De-Monica, Woodbridge, N.J., and Dennis Smeage, Saginaw, recently received the Michigan Association of Broadcasters Internship.

The two television and radio majors will spend 10 weeks observing the sales, sales promotion, administration and management of the station.

The MSU's internship will be held at WJLW-TV. Smeage will be at WJLW-TV.

The internship program gives students a chance to observe the management aspects of the radio and television stations.

The students may sit in on production conferences, staff meetings, and operational meetings. They will be able to work in the sales and sales promotion departments.

Selection of recipients for the internship is made by the faculty. The selection is based on the students' expressed and demonstrated interest in the area of radio and television management. Selection is also based on an evaluation of the student's future success potential.

13 New Members For Tau Beta Pi

Tau Beta Pi, national engineering honorary fraternity, recently initiated 13 new students. The fraternity's members, who are seniors ranking in the upper 20 per cent of their class or juniors in the upper 12 1/2 per cent, number more than 110,000 in chapters at 114 colleges and universities.

Biggest problem with the "Messiah," Jones said, is to decide when to perform it.

The work is not liturgical (it was actually written for the concert hall) and does not belong to any particular season of the church year.

His solution: since the "Messiah" is not for a particular season, it is an oratorio for all seasons.

"If you can't take the 'Messiah' neat, as Handel wrote it (in three parts taking about three hours to perform)," Jones advises, "then split it up without mauling it up."

"Perform the Christmas music, complete, at Christmas," he adds. "Do the Passion and Resurrection music, complete, on Good Friday or Easter."

"To Jones, Handel's 'Messiah' is 'an incredible synthesis of a perfect libretto and a perfect musical score.'"

To cut even one bar from any part of the work, the MSU choral conductor maintains, would topple the entire musical edifice.

Though Jones says he abhors such musical gimmicks as exaggerated tempos and rescoring of voices, he does not hide-bound purist.

His presentation of Handel's work (Part I—the Christmas music) with the MSU Chorus and Orchestra in their annual holiday concert includes cadenzas for two of the vocal solos, "Every Valley" and "But Who May Abide" because he says feels the high tone of the solos calls for them.

The conductor uses Handel's own orchestration, however, not Mozart's, but with the addition of extra oboes and bassoons, a practice sanctioned by Handel's precedent of using as many as 16 bassoons in his orchestra at times.

Tempo and characterization of movements in Jones' reading of the "Messiah" are in his words: "my best and most devoted attempts at discovering the 'right equilibrium' of Handel's music."

A veteran of some 25 years as musician-teacher at Michigan State, Jones has conducted the MSU Chorus for the last 10 years. He also assumed the directorship of the University Orchestra in 1963.

Students Hurt In Collision

DETROIT 4--An oil tanker veered across a median and smashed into a school bus and a station wagon in suburban Detroit Tuesday. The school bus driver was killed and 18 persons were injured.

The bus was carrying 40 Taylor Center High School students. Seventeen were treated for injuries at Wayne County General Hospital.

Bus driver Cecil Smith, 51, of Taylor Township, was pinned in his seat and died shortly after police freed him.

The double-trailer tanker hit the station wagon before slamming into the bus. One of the tanker's trailers overturned, coating the road with oil. There was no fire.

The driver of the station wagon, Robert Cecil Overstreet, 48, of Dearborn Heights, was injured seriously.

One student, John Krajewski, 10th grader, was reported in critical condition. Three in serious condition were identified as Nancy Dietrich, Cathy Boles and Eugene May.

The tanker driver, Charles F. Huber, of Tiffin, Ohio, was not hurt. Police quoted Huber as saying he swerved sharply to avoid a car which changed lanes in front of him.

2 U-M Engineers Receive Awards For Chemistry

NEW YORK (UPI)--Two University of Michigan chemical engineers received awards from the American Society of Chemical Engineers Monday.

Stuart W. Churchill, U-M department chairman, was elected vice president of the society and won the professional progress award of $1,000 for his contributions to chemical engineering.

Donald L. Katz was named winner of a founders award to recognize his contributions to chemical engineering as a teacher, author and practicing engineer.
