Dems Seem To Favor Message

Governor Romney's State of the State message Thursday contained a strong appeal for cooperation between executive and legislative, plus a Democratic styled program.

Aid to senior citizens, tax reform, education, governmental reorganization, anti-poverty and more state spending to improve services figured in the 45-minute speech.

Romney commented that although Michigan's last tax increase in 1962 brings an annual revenue growth of $38.5 million a year, built-in state expenditures are increasing by $50 million in the same period.

He warned this means a dip into this year's surplus to balance next year's budget.

"I stand ready now or at any time to work toward a bipartisan program of fundamental tax reform when you are genuinely so inclined," Romney told the legislators.

On education he proposed expanded aid to education to insure equal educational opportunity for Michigan youth.

He called for increased manpower redevelopment facilities and added Michigan leads the rest of the United States in this area.

Romney also said he was for an 18-year-old minimum voting age.

One of Romney's actions concerning senior citizens was the formation of a commission to study property tax relief for the elderly.

"I think the governor has become more aware of the real necessities and needs of the people and he's approaching them in a bipartisan manner," Senate Majority Leader, Raymond Dzendzel, said.

The most interesting opinion came from House Majority Leader J. Robert Traxler who said: "It sounded like the governor read all past Democratic platforms and stripped them bare of their planks."

Americans Must Share Food Abundance--Romney

By JOHN VAN GIESON
State News Editor

Americans must find some way to share or spread our agricultural abundance to the world's hungry people, or face the consequences, Gov. George Romney warned 1,100 persons attending the Michigan Agricultural Conference Legislative Dinner at Kellogg Center Wednesday night.

"We have to devise ways we haven't yet dreamed of or at some point they'll reach out to take from us what they are striving for," he said.

"This unconscionable gap between American affluence and the world's hunger obviously threatens our own stability and security--but it does far more than that.

"It imposes an imperative moral responsibility on us to reach out to our suffering brothers around the world--because both we and they are people--children of the Father who created every one of us."

Romney said that today we have the tools and know-how to eliminate hunger from the earth if we will only apply our technology in other nations as we have in this one.

"We can unleash American techniques of food production and distribution around the world, to aid impoverished nations in their own development, so that they can end their hunger through purchase and production of food."

Romney used the following ex-

Notre Dame Mails $225 For Damage

By JOAN SOLOMON
State News Staff Writer

A check for $225 collected by Notre Dame students has been sent to MSU for losses and damages to band equipment during its visit to South Bend Nov. 14.

Instruments were damaged and hats stolen during an attack on Spartan bandmen after a football victory for the "Fighting Irish."

In his letter to MSU Auditor Gerald F. Knapp, Thomas C. Oddo, president of the Notre Dame Hall President's Council, said:

"Please again express our regrets to Mr. (Leonard) Falcone, band director, and to the members of the band for the unfortunate incident. This money was collected on donations from the student body to express their apology."

"We look forward to having your band and the members of the student body visit with us in the future."

On Monday following the game, Notre Dame wired an apology expressing the hope that the band would return next year and that "the relationship between the two schools will continue to be of the highest caliber."

In a letter acknowledging receipt of the check, Falcone said:

"With the payment for losses and damage to our band equipment, the administration and student government of Notre Dame University have shown genuine regret for the incident and have done everything possible to restore the traditional friendly relations between the two universities."

"If it can be fitted into our schedule, the Michigan State Band will be glad to return to South Bend next fall."

ample to illustrate the tremendous gap between Americans and less privileged people.

"In the middle of the 20th Century, it is a tragic fact of life that the typical family dog in the United States eats more and better food than the typical workman in India."

Turning to problems of the American farmer, he said that abundance has proved a mixed blessing. It has given our people the best and least expensive food supply on earth, but hasn't yet resulted in the farmer's receiving his fair share of the economic progress he has helped to create.

Romney said he would propose a number of measures to improve the lot of Michigan farmers in his State of the State message, which he presented to the legislature Thursday.

Agriculture is the biggest buyer, seller and borrower in the American economy, he said.

Crowded Conditions Blamed

Free-Loaders Outsit Driver

A "sit-in" on a campus bus Wednesday resulted in two free-loading riders, an angry driver and a load of late students.

Bus 511 arrived at Fee Hall at 12:50 a.m.--empty. While loading, two students entered illegally through the rear door.

Driver Ronald Betterly shut off the motor and said he would not leave until the two students got off the bus.

Six minutes later, with the pair still on the bus, Betterly declined that the majority should not be penalized. He drove to Shaw, the next stop.

According to Henry Jolman, head of the campus bus services, Betterly was dismayed by the incident.

Jolman explained that it was a difficult situation, but until the crowded conditions are alleviated, he prefers to have the drivers remain courteous and use their own judgment.

Bus officials are aware of the crowded conditions and are

Laotian Combat Operation Underway Several Months

WASHINGTON (AP)--Occasional secret combat operations have been carried out by U.S. aircraft against Communist supply lines running through Laos into South Viet Nam for several months.

The operation was reportedly stepped up slightly and given tighter organization and clearer purpose following policy talks here in December among President Johnson, Ambassador Maxwell D. Taylor, Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara.

Highly placed officials believe the bombing attacks carried out by such planes as the F100 Super Sabre and the F4 Phantom II probably have served to slow the movement of some supplies from North Viet Nam to Communist guerrilla forces fighting the U.S.-supported government in South Viet Nam.

But in the jungle-covered mountains of Laos, through which the "Ho Chi Minh" trail runs, air attacks can have only limited effectiveness--knocking out a key bridge, pounding a temporary Communist camp or blocking the road for short periods of time.

The other major purpose is to try to serve notice to the North Vietnamese Reds and the Chinese Communists that the United States does not intend to pull out of Viet Nam and may broaden the war if Communist operations against the south go on.

In other words, the Johnson administration seems to have taken a first, cautious step toward broadening the conflict, without any commitment to take any additional move. Officials say there is "no escalation" in this since the territory of Communist North Viet Nam is not involved.

Combat operations in Laos by U.S.-flown aircraft were indirectly disclosed Wednesday when two aircraft were reported by the Defense Department to have been shot down by ground fire. The pilots were rescued.

Rep. Otto Passman, D-La., the most persistent and effective trimmer of foreign aid funds, didn't issue any sweeping criticism of the President's proposals, as he has done frequently in the past.

Instead, the chairman of the House appropriations subcommittee which shapes the fund provisions, said the program "cannot be evaluated until we can ascertain whether or not there will be a request for more money for the international development association and similar agencies..."

Frelinghuysen Loses Bid For Whip Post

WASHINGTON (AP)--House Republicans gave their new leader a stunning jolt Thursday by refusing to elect the man he wanted as his second in command.

Rep. Gerald R. Ford of Michigan had led his fledgling leadership prestige and authority squarely on the line by endorsing Rep. Peter H. B. Frelinghuysen of New Jersey for the job of House whip.

Instead, the GOP House members by secret ballot re-elected Rep. Leslie C. Arends of Illinois, who has been party whip for 21 years.

The vote was not even very close, 70 to 59, with 11 of the 140 elected Republicans absent. It was Ford's first real test as leader, a post he won by a scant six-vote margin of 73 to 67 over old guarder Charles A. Halleck of Indiana last week.

Ford conceded that the result "has some implications" of undermining and weakening his authority.

But he noted that Arends had pledged full loyalty to Ford if he won and for this reason "I don't think it has all the ramifications that have been read into it."

Ford discounted an ideological split in the decimated Republican ranks. Though a conservative himself, Ford took Halleck out of office in a campaign of giving the party a "new image" in the wake of the heavy election losses.

Frelinghuysen, 48, is a member of about 20 of the most liberal House Republican. Arends, 69, is an old line conservative and was an early backer of Barry Goldwater for the Republican presidential nomination.

But Ford said it was his view that Arends' past record as whip and old ties of friendship were the persuasive factors rather than any conservative-liberal split.

Arends insisted that his reelection was "certainly not a slap at Jerry Ford. I intend to turn my allegiance over to Jerry Ford and to help him. I don't think you should call this a repudiation."

Frelinghuysen also made the best of it. "There is no blood on the floor as far as I am concerned," he said. "This doesn't necessitate either a war or an olive branch to me or to anyone else."

Education Needs Aid

President Johnson's message to Congress Tuesday outlining his requests for increased aid to education is an indication of a new attitude toward education that is becoming more and more widespread.

That attitude is basically that education is indeed a national responsibility, and is a profession and a major factor in American life in serious need of major revision. These revisions extend to all levels and types of education, but primarily to big-city school systems, to post-Sputnik elementary and secondary schools and to public higher education.

The President's proposals include plans for all these, as well as for some more specific problems and deficiencies in the educational system. His proposals are a reflection of Johnson's attitude that poverty is the greatest blight on the American scene and is to be attacked in a variety of ways possible.

The message sent to Congress cites figures and past records to show that cities have allowed the quality of education in their schools to decline, as high-income families fleeing to the suburbs have been replaced by lower-income families less oriented to education; that the tremendous growth in the number of colleges and junior colleges has left many of them inadequate and non-accredited, in effect useless to their students; that the costs of education have increased far beyond the budgets of many students, leaving behind many who can not afford even public institutions; that libraries on every level have remained woefully short of fundamental supplies of older books, and completely lacking in later works; that shifts in the population have changed the needs of education to such an extent that a type of modern Morrill Act is needed to meet the demands of cities the way the original act met the needs of farmers.

Johnson was faced with a difficult task in attempting to combine so many needs into a single education plan. He has produced a perceptive document on a great many subjects related to education, and a number of suggestions aimed at solving problems.

It is regrettable that solutions to more of the problems raised in the President's message could not be provided by this bill--such problems as the top-heavy emphasis on pure and applied science, the inconsistencies in governmental spending on all levels for education and other social problems, the need for adequate and early introduction of all students to education and "middle-class values"--but doubtless solutions to these questions will come in time.

The major consideration in regard to the proposals made by the President is whether the United States, including the heavily Democratic Congress, is willing to accept a greater responsibility for educational expenditures, and whether we are yet willing to overlook the possible problems of the proposals in order to approve the general theory.

It is too early to tell whether specific proposals included in the President's message will be entirely successful or even remotely beneficial. The appearance now is that nearly every proposal is a well-thought-out response to demonstrable needs of American education.

But whether or not this year's education component of the Great Society is ideal in any sense, it is an urgently-needed beginning for what hopefully will be a trend toward greater and more uniform expenditures for education and toward modern and rational attitudes toward the functions of schools.

Congress can indicate its sympathy with the needs of the nation by passing on the President's education proposals early, so that the Great Society's legislation can get off to a progressive start in a basic area.

A Definite Difference

The time has come to look in retrospect at the way the new registration procedures employed this term worked. This could be a controversial thing to do, because opinion is divided, and with good reason.

Those who say it takes too long to sign up in advance for courses and then go through the same old registration and drop and add procedures are right. The student does play a bigger and more complex role in the new procedure than he did before.

Those who say the new method enables departments to make more accurate class schedules and provide offerings more in accord with student demands are also right.

Those on both sides who say that the idea is good, but there was too much delay and confusion this term, are probably the most correct, because that's the way it is with new procedures. Even so, the confusion this term probably did not equal that of previous terms, when departments were rushing to open new sections on the last day of registration, and when students spent hours at a time in the class card arena trying to make up adequate schedules.

Berkeley Movement Seeks Freedom

Editor's Note: The series of events at the University of California at Berkeley last fall catapulted accounts of sit-ins, demonstrations and student strikes onto the front pages of newspapers around the nation. The reasons for the student actions have been interpreted by many writers. John Hunter is a teaching assistant at Berkeley. His "Open Letter" to the public appeared in the San Francisco Chronicle Dec. 27, attempting to explain the students' feeling. Following are some excerpts from the article.

In October, President Clark Kerr chose to assert that "experienced on the spot observers" had estimated that the "hard core" group of demonstrators contained as much as 40 percent "off-campus elements"--including Communist sympathizers.

Even if there were a retraction to that irresponsible charge, the harm was done. The assertion is ludicrous, and so are others like it; yet they are hard to refute. One simply doesn't go about holding open the wallets or purses of demonstrators, demonstrating that they are not insidious card-carrying.

Very, very few students simply ignored the strike; even the opposition--not an apparent majority--was vociferously engaged with it. Many of us did not want to strike; I think most teaching assistants, for example, wanted to teach and counsel as usual. Yet the majority of us felt we had to, and did strike.

Without reflecting too deeply upon it, I think too much of the criticism leveled against the student demonstrators can be seen as a kind of unhealthy terror of difference and discord. Finding out the truth, which is the job of a university, is filled with discord; it cannot be harmonious. And students will be different. To answer the first, we are the "strange new breed of American college student"--that evidently comes up every 20 years. Part of the strangeness, naturally, is the tension that always exists between the old and the new. Yet I think there is a more genuine newness also.

Of course the public realizes that most of us are no longer very interested in "school spirit" or pom-pom girls or overturning streetcars; that happy and innocent image, which was perhaps one more way to keep us in check, is almost dead now.

Moreover, we are no longer hearing cries of a "silent generation." To the contrary, a sincere and adventurous idealism, bound up inextricably with the civil rights movement, is in the air; a feeling for necessary changes and an impatience with dull wrong-headedness.

At the beginning of the semester, the right to be functioning citizens, which is granted to students at most American universities (e.g., Harvard, Chicago and Yale), was withdrawn from students at U.C.--the right to advocate and implement political and social action on the campus (that is, the place where most of the waking hours and energies of students are spent).

The reasons offered for this action were specious; these natural extensions of the right of free speech were called an "interference with flow of traffic"; their withdrawal was a (before unannounced) "historic policy."

Most students, however, preferred to believe and there was evidence enough for it, that the action was a reflection of outside pressures on the university.

The resulting surge of discontent created the United Front. Rather than sheepishly accept the new rules, which they considered at the very least unwise and in bad faith, these students, employing the tactic that has been useful against unjust laws in the South, began the long and legally complex battle that has engaged more and more of us--the battle to win what we think belongs to us already, the rights of citizens.

If I may be wry, we are tired of being second-class citizens.

Complicating this matter has been the rather hokum policy of "in loco parentis." This is the parochial notion that university students need to be shepherded and protected.

It does not ring very true, especially to those students accustomed to helping effect a monumental, agonizing, social revolution, and it is particularly hollow when offered by administrators who have apparently shown themselves as over-sensitive to the pressure of self-interested opinion.

But more importantly, perhaps, it is a straw man. If there must be a paternalism (and we don't admit that), then there must be blood, and for some time now nothing has seemed more bloodless, cold, and mechanical than this amorphous thing "administration" (so much harder to visualize than "faculty" or "students").

Under a protective pose, the administration has been becoming for years an increasingly dead and legalistic governing body, intent, presumably, only on smoothly turning students out, pretty much to society's measure. This is insidious.

Without entering into educational theory, few will deny that this is not a very adequate conception of a great university. A university should lead, not slavishly be led; I am even tempted to say it has a responsibility to foster revolutionaries.

It is hard to estimate how much fuel this question--of life against a blank bureaucracy--has added to the fire, it is not so hard, however, to see its relation to the question of free speech and advocacy. To be blind and smooth and acceptable is not to be free. It is not even human. And to be merely murderously efficient is not to be paternal--even if we wanted fathers.

We are asking for nothing more than the right to be responsible, the right to be socially conscientious in something more than a vacuum. The faculty has come to agree that these are the rights of students, probably even constitutionally; and they are supported by legal experts.

We are not asking for or expecting concord or approbation; only a receptivity to the democratic right to dissent.

There has been no "anarchy" or "chaos" or "violence" (in spite of contrary assertions), of course. The most amazing thing, in fact, about the sit-ins, and especially the strike, was that, while they tended to turn this institution upside down, they were at the same time exceedingly well-controlled and good-humored.

The "direct action" tactics were not entered upon capriciously; rather they were the results either of the breakdown or the absence of discussion. More than once students knocked at the doors of debate; but they remained closed.

One knocks patiently at a door, calling someone out for debate, for only so long; eventually one feels like pounding the door down. Or, as the latest Nobel Prize winner suggests, of analogous situations, "the purpose of the direct action is to create a situation so crisis-packed that it will inevitably open the door to negotiation."

Spartan Spirit Explained

By Bob Harris

Editor's Note: Bob Harris, Bryan, Ohio, senior is president of All-University Student Government. Last year, he was director of Spartan Spirit.

School spirit is one of those indescribable and undefinable, yet recognizable, things that should and does add to the life of a university. To individual students it is a feeling, to groups it is a common bond, to the University it is an atmosphere of learning, of friendliness, of competition, of cooperation.

Michigan State is a university of which we can be proud, but the greatness of any institution depends not only upon the excellence of faculty and facilities, but also upon the high caliber of its students. Our phenomenal growth of the last decade in academic standing, facilities and international prestige has been due in large measure to the ability, determination and enthusiasm of the students themselves.

Recently the question has arisen as to whether or not competition between living units is good or bad for unified school spirit. Let's look at the results of that competition.

In four home football games, 15,000 students sat in organized blocks. The blood drive went over its goal. The attendance at soccer games increased by several hundred per cent. The first winter term pep rally was a big success.

These things did not happen just because of Spartan Spirit. Spartan Spirit cannot and does not purport to be able to create school spirit. Its goal is to encourage and recognize that spirit. Being proud of your residence hall, or your club, or your fraternity, does not detract from your pride in the University, rather it localizes it.

The criteria for judging the Spartan Spirit award is not perfect nor will it ever be, but spirit is competition. It is a willingness to cooperate, it is an eagerness to contribute and it takes each and every one of us striving not only for individual betterment, but working together toward a common goal.

Letter To The Editor

To the Editor:

Freshman David Flynn's reply to Reinhard Mohr is a classic example of a sub-level above the apathy of most of our classmates, since he did bother to express an opinion. However, he obviously has not researched the matter very thoroughly.

The majority of students; and it does not refer to the R. A. manual.

There are several clever reasons for this, the foremost being a built-in defense against unforeseen occurrences, i.e., the ramifications of a grasser or apartment party. Nor does the administration expect its sophomore charges to be mature or self-disciplined, because its regulations are not simply a behavior guide; they are rules with accompanying punishments.

It is hardly fair to assume that the quest for academic and intellectual freedom attracts asses instead of ladies and gentlemen. Rather, the person who is able to see a situation that demands correction deserves and usually gets the respect of his less goal-minded peers if he is able to achieve any headway.

Perhaps after some mind-broadening experiences, Flynn will understand the antagonists of apathy on this campus.

Sukarno Suggests Investigation

JAKARTA, Indonesia—President Sukarno suggested Thursday that an African-Asian group or the United Nations investigate whether Sarawak and Sabah want to remain in Malaysia. He promised to abide by the decision.

"I am for a peaceful solution of the Malaysian issue," he told reporters. "But let us investigate the real feelings of the people of North Kalimantan (the Indonesian name for Sarawak and Sabah)."

Schweitzer Turns 90

LAMBARENE—Dr. Albert Schweitzer turned 90 Thursday and was acclaimed by hundreds of well-wishers at his jungle hospital.

Order Cutback End Urged

LONDON—A meeting of 10,000 airplane factory workers urged Britain's labor government Thursday to call off a cutback in aircraft orders which would cause widespread unemployment in the industry.

The workers, who poured into the city by train from plants all over southern England, marched to Hyde Park bearing banners with slogans such as "we backed you at the poll—don't put us on the dole."

Idea Is Total Education

WASHINGTON—"The idea," an administration source said, "is to take the very best we have in education to those who need it most—the children of the slums."

He was talking about President Johnson's proposal Tuesday for "supplementary education centers" to be established in communities with high poverty rates.

The centers might be termed "educational supermarkets," designed to bring education in the slums up to the standard found in wealthier suburbs.

Probers To Call Jenkins

WASHINGTON—The Senate's Bobby Baker investigators have alerted former White House aide Walter W. Jenkins that he will be called to testify shortly after President Johnson's inauguration.

L. P. McLendon, Senate Rules Committee special counsel, told newsmen the committee plans to resume hearings during the week following the Jan. 20 inauguration. He said he telephoned Jenkins that a subpoena will be issued for him to appear for questioning the following week.

Planes Not From Thailand

WASHINGTON—The Defense Department, while still mum Thursday about the base from which the two jet fighters shot down in Laos Wednesday took off, eliminated at least one area from speculation—Thailand.

The Pentagon was asked about a published report in which relatives of Capt. Albert C. Vollmer, pilot of the F100, said Vollmer was based in Thailand.

The brief answer by a spokesman was this: "Any inference that this flight originated in Thailand is incorrect."

Campus U.N. To Hear 'Aggression Charges'

Four resolutions are scheduled to be submitted at the first General Assembly of the term for the Campus United Nations at 7:30 p.m. Friday in the Con-Con Room of the International Center.

Harris Hits Turnout Bill

Resistance to necessary changes indicates that persons are more interested in their own welfare than student government. Bob Harris, All University Student Government (AUSG) president, said Wednesday, referring to a bill which could block student government revision.

The bill, introduced in Congress last week by Jim Graham, North Wonders representative, would require a 40 per cent voter turnout in proposals concerning major constitutional revisions.

Not more than 25 per cent of the student body has ever voted in a campus election.

Harris noted that some people will always be unhappy when groups in which they participate are eliminated from student government structure, but he criticized resistance to resistance's sake.

The student government evaluation committee is expected to suggest sweeping changes in the AUSG structure later this term.

Graham has maintained since he introduced the bill that his only purpose is to provide an orderly method for changing student government.

Gourmet Club Planning Visit

Members of the Les Gourmet Club will visit the Detroit area this weekend.

The club is composed of students in the school of Hotel, Restaurant and Institutional Management. They will meet managers of various hotels and restaurants and view their facilities.

The trip will include visits to Stouffer's, Hiram Walker, Hudson's and Northland Inn.

A resolution submitted by Iraq and the People's Republic of China charges the United States and Belgium with aggression in the Congo. The resolution, which is supported by most African nations, asks the General Assembly to censure and condemn the United States and Belgium for violations of the United Nations Charter and the sovereignty of the Congo.

Two of the resolutions are being submitted by African countries. Apartheid in the Republic of South Africa is the subject of one submitted by Ghana. The Organization of African Unity is charged with aggression in the Republic of South Africa by the Republic of South Africa.

Venezuela charges Cuba with aggression and subversion and will ask the U.N. to censure and condemn the actions of the Cuban government.

The meeting is open to the public.

Students interested in joining the Campus U.N. may call 355-4503 for information between 2 and 5 p.m. on weekdays.

Correction

The hometown of Thomas W. Johnson, who pleaded guilty to shoplifting charges in East Lansing Municipal Court Monday, was incorrectly reported as Grayslake, Ill., in Wednesday's State News. He is from Lansing.

Thomas A. Johnson, a junior in police administration, is from Grayslake and was not involved in shoplifting -- much to the relief of the police school.

Cagers Blaze Hawk Trail

By DUANE LANCASTER
State News Sports Writer

The University of Iowa spoiled Michigan State's conference basketball opener 85-78 Saturday and the Hawkeyes have the opportunity to also ruin its first league road trip.

The Spartans move west to Iowa City tomorrow to meet the surprising Hawks for the second time in succession.

But State has an equal chance to repay the unappreciative visit and Coach Fordy Anderson has been drilling his squad hard this week to do just that.

"We've had three good, sharp practices this week and we're going over the films of the game to correct the mistakes we made last Saturday," he said.

The Spartans out-rebounded Iowa 46-30 and hit on 48 per cent of their shots last week to do just about everything but win the ball game.

Anderson said he would make no starting lineup changes but indicated he would go to his bench more often this time.

Traded Wilt Wilting?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Pro Basketball's all-time high scorer, Wilt Chamberlain, says his new club may have made a bad deal because he may retire after this season.

Chamberlain was traded to Philadelphia last night by the San Francisco Warriors.

"Before the deal was made I told Philadelphia Co-Owner Ike Richman that I might not be back next season. That means I'd only be playing for Philadelphia for about three months. Philadelphia parted with $375,000 and players Paul Neumann, Connie Dierking and Lee Shaffer Wednesday night to outbid other NBA clubs seeking Chamberlain.

Chamberlain makes a reported $60,000 a year.

HOT SEAT--The next occupant of this vacated chair, once belonging to ex-Spartan assistant grid coach John McVay, now head coach at the University of Dayton, may soon be decided by Athletic Director Biggie Munn. Munn returns today from an NCAA conference in Chicago.

Colorado Ice Sweep Would Put 'S' On Top

By LARRY MOGG
State News Sports Writer

State's hopeful hockey team is in Colorado Springs today awaiting the start of tonight's opening match of a key two-game set with Colorado College.

A series sweep would thrust the Spartans to the top of the Western Collegiate Hockey Association standings and establish them as a team to be reckoned with during the remainder of league play. State enters the Colorado encounter with a 1-1 league mark, but a pair of wins would move them out in front of the rest of the WCHA teams, all of which have been beaten at least twice.

The Tigers have yet to register their first conference win, having been nipped by Minnesota in their only two league contests. However, the Tigers have come on strong lately, winning four of their last five games. Their lone setback during this period was handed to them by Brown in overtime, a team that bested the Spartans by 3 goals.

The host team features a consistent scoring attack, built around speed and stickhandling. Veteran winger Bob Magie is the heart of the Tiger offense and has accounted for 13 goals to date. Glen Blumer and Warren Fordyce are other scoring threats.

Coach Amo Bessone's squad will be at full strength for the games, despite a rash of injuries from last week's Minnesota trip. The entire second line of Sandy McAndrews, Gary Goble and Mike Jacobson was nursing various minor injuries earlier in the week, but have regained form.

The Spartans starting line-up will be the same as in Minnesota with Tom Mikkola, Doug Roberts and Rich Hargreaves up front and Jack Ford and Bob Brawley on defense. Sophomore Jerry Fisher will again be in goal.

Swim, Gym Events In Iowa

All-Around Gymnast Puts Aside Crutches

By ROBERTA YAFIE
State News Sports Writer

Although gymnast Jim Curzi left Olin Health Center yesterday on crutches, he'll toss them away Saturday to compete in the meet against Iowa.

Curzi, who sprained his ankle Tuesday and has been resting at Olin since then, got the okay from Dr. James Feurig and relieved part of the burden from Coach George Szypula's shoulders.

This will be the first Big Ten clash of the season for State, and at first it shaped up as an all-around dual. Curzi, Big Ten all-around champ, was expected to repeat in his event against Glen Gallis of Iowa, who topped him in the Midwest Open but fell short of Jim in the Big Ten title race last year.

Curzi's ankle is still swollen, and this means that he'll only be seeing limited action. Floor exercise and long horse vault are out, for they require too much pressure on his foot, leaving the high bar, parallel bars, still rings and side horse events open to him.

With the elimination of the other two, he is automatically ruled out of all-around competition, a factor that should hurt the Spartans as well as create a problem for Szypula.

He has the choice of entering another man or conceding the event to Iowa, a choice of trying for 6 team points or 2. Along with this, the Spartan mentor will be doing a lot of reshuffling of his line-up.

Changes in NCAA rules this year permit a coach to make last-minute changes immediately preceding an event, and this will most likely be the course Szypula will follow.

"Iowa is one of the best in the Big Ten," he said, "and one of the toughest opponents we've faced in years. As well as being tops in all-around, Gallis is the best ring man in the country."

The NEWS In SPORTS

Back-To-Back Meets Await State Tankers

A double dose of Iowa competition is on deck for Coach Charles McCaffree's swimmers this weekend.

The Spartan's lead off against Big Eight threat Iowa State Friday evening, then journey across the state for a Saturday afternoon match with league rival Iowa.

Although neither of the Iowa squads are considered too menacing, both promise to provide a stiff test in many events. Friday's Iowa State cyclone meet will help State to get acquainted with the Beyer Hall pool, where the NCAA championships will be held next March.

The Iowa Hawkeyes have nine lettermen returning from a squad that finished eighth in the Big Ten championships a year ago. Their problem is the same this time around, their depth can't match that of a top flight team.

McCaffree's entire 18-man squad will make the trip. Sophomore distance and individual medalist Ed Glick will make the trip after missing the Big Ten Relays last week because of illness.

The Spartan coach will concentrate on building up the teams overall strength in the meets through improved performances in diving, the breaststroke and the various freestyle categories.

Matmen Eye Third Victory

This weekend, State's wrestling squad will attempt to kill two birds with one stone.

The matmen, off to one of their best seasons in years with a 2-0-1 mark and a 1-2 finish in tournament action, head for Champaign, Ill., where they will encounter the Illinois Saturday afternoon in a dual meet.

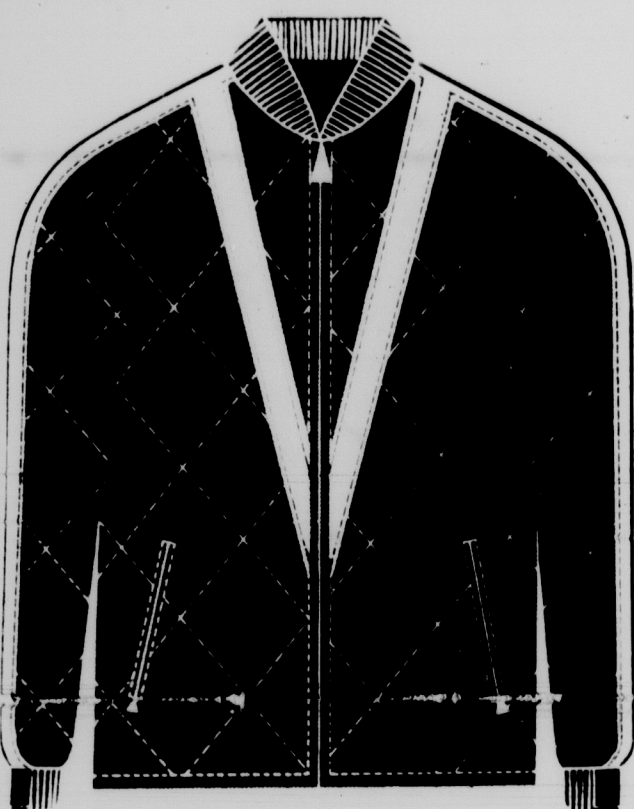

The Spartans will be able to view the University of Michigan when the Wolverines face Illinois tonight as well.

The highlight of the Illinois clash could be the matches of the Illinois Clay Beattie and State's Dick Cook. Beattie, a senior who wrestles at 157 pounds, has lost only four times in 30 matches in the last two years. Cook, a junior who weighs in at 147 lbs., is undefeated, with an overall 10-0 record.

During the week's practise, the Spartans received a severe blow when regular starting sophomore Bob Pickens broke his thumb. He is expected to be out of action for five weeks. Emerson Boles will replace him.

"We are very fortunate," said mat coach Grady Peninger. "Not only do we get a look at Illinois before our afternoon match, but we can view that tough Michigan team again."

The Wolverines, picked at the season's start to win the Big Ten wrestling title, met State earlier in the year at the Mid-American Tournament. The two teams will battle again on February 27 before the Big Ten Meet.

MARTESIA STRIATA!

The object of our concern was a small, wedge-shaped mollusk found in southern waters where we planned to lay telephone cables.

Like others of its genus Martesia (of the family Pholadidae), it is a borer.

Usually it bores into limestone or some other substance to find a home.

Would it—could it—bore into our undersea cables?

At the time, we were testing the performances of proposed dielectric materials for undersea cables at various simulated depths, temperatures and ocean pressures. We also tested for resistance to marine biological attack.

The testing showed that our cable covering wouldn't be attractive to pholads, and in nearly fifteen years of experience with undersea telephone cables we have peacefully shared the ocean bottom with them.

But we had to be sure we could. In the telephone business, reliability is everything. We must do all we can to safeguard service from interruption. No threat is too small to ignore, not even that posed by a tiny mollusk.

Right now we've got other problems.

Out in the Dakotas, hungry squirrels and field mice are nibbling on our wires.

We have to run.

Shaw Dances Require IDs

All women must show University identification to enter the Friday night Shaw dances, beginning tonight.

The new regulation is the result of crowded conditions at the dances, according to Bill Floate, East Shaw president.

The dances attract many off-campus people, which makes conditions uncomfortable for dancers.

Floate stated that the Shaw men are "in no way discouraging people from attending" the dances.

"We feel we have an obligation to our men and to those in residence halls," he said.

The dances are held in the lower lounge of Shaw and are a function of Radio WKME of Shaw.

SNCC Singer View

Leadership Keeps Movement Alive

An effective civil rights movement in the South depends on united, trained, native leadership, Matthew Jones, a Freedom Singer for the Student Non-Violent Co-ordinating Committee (SNCC) said after he appeared in concert Wednesday night in the Union.

"If we can get nationally-organized groups to band together with local civic and fraternal organizations," Jones said, "we can then put on the pressure that brings positive results," in the Negro movement.

Jones joined SNCC in 1962 while attending school in Nashville, Tenn. A former school teacher, he lost his job because of his civil rights work. He has been jailed 20 times for his involvement in civil rights activity.

Most signs of anything resembling progress have occurred within the civil rights groups themselves, Jones remarked.

"Since the founding of SNCC in 1960, we have been discovering the best methods to get to the core of the problem," SNCC concentrates on educating the Southern Negro to choose what is good for himself, on training and organizing indigenous leadership and on registering Negroes to vote.

Real social progress is negligible in the Deep South, Jones remarked, but he regards the founding of the Mississippi Freedom Democratic Party as evidence of improvement within the movement itself.

"We must get enough Negroes registered and voting to make a difference," he said.

The Freedom Singers were founded in 1962 as a spirit-building and fund-raising group for the freedom movement. Jones performed on campus with three of the other five singers.

"We didn't know if it would work," Jones said, "but our success has been good. We are the only SNCC members who can meet 1,000 to 2,000 people per week."

"Songs can do what speaking can never do with a crowd," he said. "Songs bring out the points against the social system with feeling. They give testimony to the documents."

Baroque music is characterized by driving, insistent rhythms, clear-cut dynamic and tempo contrasts and a balance of harmonic elements.

Works on the program include "Sonata in E-flat Major for Flute and Clavier" by Bach, "Sonata in C Minor" by Antonio Vivaldi, "Sonata in D Major, Op. 2" by J. M. Leclair, and "Sonata in F Major" by Dietrich Buxtehude.

Case And Shaw Schedule Dances WKME will hold a dance in case, 8:30 p.m. to midnight Saturday, in addition to the regular Friday night Shaw dance, 9 p.m. to midnight.

Bob Zook is disc jockey for the Shaw dance, Grant Fisher for the Case dance.

Recital Set By Faculty

The faculty ensemble consists of Donald Jones, instructor in music, flute; Edgar Kirk, associate professor of music, bassoon; and Corliss Arnold, assistant professor of music, harpsichord.

Baroque music is characterized by driving, insistent rhythms, clear-cut dynamic and tempo contrasts and a balance of harmonic elements.

Works on the program include "Sonata in E-flat Major for Flute and Clavier" by Bach, "Sonata in C Minor" by Antonio Vivaldi, "Sonata in D Major, Op. 2" by J. M. Leclair, and "Sonata in F Major" by Dietrich Buxtehude.

Discover the difference in the '65 Chevrolets

(As different from other cars as they are from each other)

CHEVROLET—As roomy a car as Chevrolet's ever built.

When you take in everything, there's more room inside this car than in any Chevrolet as far back as they go. It's wider this year and the attractively curved windows help to give you more shoulder room. The engine's been moved forward to give you more foot room. So, besides the way a '65 Chevrolet looks and rides, we now have one more reason to ask you: What do you get by paying more for a car—except bigger monthly payments?

CORVAIR—The only rear engine American car made.

You should read what the automotive magazines say about the '65 Corvair. They're wild about its ride. They think there's nothing else this side of the Atlantic that can touch its styling. They say if you haven't driven a new Corvair Corsa with a 180-hp Six Turbo-Chargaed! you just don't know what you're missing.

Drive something really new—discover the difference at your Chevrolet dealer's
